TO THE MOST NOBLE, MOST MYGHTY, AND MOST
redoubted pryncer kyng HENRY the VIII. kyng of Englands and of fraunce, defensour of the fayth, lord of Ireland, and in erth supreme heed immediatly vnder Chryst of the church of England, his humble seruaunt RYCHARD T A V E R N E R desireth all Joye, felicitie, and longe lyfe.

How hyghly all England is bounde to your incomparable maiestie for the infinite and manifold benefites receyued at your most gracious handes from tyme to tyme without ceasing, euē from the beginning of your most noble raigne: truly no mortal tongue is habile with wordes sufficiently to expresse, or with secret thoughtes of hert worthely to contriue: Certes, it far passeth bothe the skilender capacite of my wpyt, and also y rude infancy of my tong to do either thone or thother: yea another Cicero or Demosthenes wer not ynough here-vnto. Wherfore omittinge or rather leauinge to some other the iust Encomye and commendation of your graces most ample dedes, worthy of eternall me-more, yet this onething I dare full well affirme, that amonges all your maiesties deseruinges vpon the chursten religion (then which surely nothing can be greater) your highnes neuer did thing more acceptable vnto god, more profitable to y auancement of true churistianitie, more displeasaut to the enemies of the same, & also to your graces enemies then when your maiestie lycenced and wylled the moost sacred Wyble conteynyng the vnspecked and lyuely worde of God to be in the Englysh tong set forth to your hyghnes subiectes.

To the setting forth wherof (most gracious & moost redoubted Soueraigne lord) lyke as certeyn men haue neither vndiligently nor yet vnderstandyngly truelyed: So agayn it cannot be denied, but y some faultes haue escaped their hades. Neither speke I this to depaue or maligne their industrie & paynes take in this behalfe: no rather I think them worthy of no litle praisse & thanks for the same, considering what great vtilitie & profit hath redounded to your graces hole realme by the publyshyng and setting forth therof, although it were not finished to the ful absolucion and perfection of the same. For assuredly it is a worke of so great difficultie, I meane so absolutely to translate the hole bible that it be faultlesse, that I feare it can scarce be doone of one or two persons, but rather requyeth bothe a deper confarrynge of many lerned wittes together, and also a iustier tyme and longer leysure.

Wherfore the premisses wel considered, for almost as y printers herof were very desirous to haue this most sacred volume of the bible comforth as fault lesse & emendatly, as the shortnes of tyme for the recognising of y same wold require, they desired me your most habile seruat for default of a better lerned, diligently to ouerloke & peruse the hole copy: and in case I shold fynd any ne-table default y neded correctio, to amed the same, accordyng to y true exepars Whiche thyng accordyng to my talent I haue gladly done.

These therfore my simple luybracions & labours, to who might I better dedicate, the vnto your most excellēt & noble maiestie, y only authour & grounde nexte God of this so hygh a benefite vnto your graces people, I meane that the holy scripture is communicate vnto the same.

But now though many faultes pchaunce be yet left behind vncastigat, either for lacke of lerning sufficient to so great an enterpryse, for default of leasure, I trust your maiestie & all other y shal rede the same, wyl pardon me, consyde-ryng (as I haue already declared) how harde & difficult a thinge it is, so to set forth this worke, as shal be in al pointes faultles & without reprehension.
And thus I comitt your most gracious & excellēt maiestie to ytūcio of y highest, to who be al honour, glory, & prayse, woulde without ende. AMEN.

Christ vnto the people. Iohn. v.
Seeke the scriptures: for they are they that testifie of me.

Paul to Timothy. ii. Tim. iii.
As scripture giuen by inspiration of God is profitable to teache, to inproue, to amend and to instruct in righteuousnes, that the man of God may be perfecte and prepared to al good workes.

The same to the Rom. xv.

What thynges soeuer are mytten, are mytten for our lernynge: that we thoro-wlye patience and comfort of scriptures, might haue hope.

Salomon to the people. xxx.

All the worde of God, is pure and cleane it is a shild vnto them that put their trust in
it. Put nothinge vnto his wordes, lest he reprouethe, and thou be found a liar.

Moses to the people. Deu. xii.

Thou shalt not doo as the people of the land doe: for they haue no lawe nor iudgement nor statute, neither do they haue any lawe nor iudgement, neither do they haue any statute.

The Lord vnto Joshua. Jos. i.

Let not the booke of this lawe departe oute of thy mouth: But receyde therein daye and nighte, that thou mayest be circumspice to doe accordinge to all that is mytten therein. For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, and thou shalt haue vnderstandynge. Turne therefore from nether to the right hande, nor to the left: that thou mayest haue vnderstandynge in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people. Exo. xxi.

And thou shalt shewe thy sonne at that tyme, sayinge: This is done because of that whiche the Lord dyd vnto me when I came oute of Egypte. Therefore it shall be a signe vnto thee vpon thy hande, and a remembrance betwene thyne eyes, that the Lord deslawe maye be in thy mouth. For with a stronge hande the Lord brought the oute of Egypte.

Moses Deut. xxxi.

So that thou rede this lawe before all Israel in theyr eares. Gather the people together: both men, women and chyldren, and the strangers that are in the cities: that they maye heare, learne, and feare the Lord your God, to kepe all the wordes of this lawe.

THE CONTENTES OF THE SCRIPTURE.

THE CONTENTES OF ALL THE HOLY SCRIPTURE
as well of the olde testament as of the newe.

In the holy Writings of the Bible teach vs that there is one God, almyghty, that hath neither begynnyng ne endynge: whiche of his owne goodnes dyd create all thynges: of whome all thynges procede, & withoute whom is nothyng: which is ryghtous and mercifull, and which worketh al thynges in all after his wyl: of whom it may not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that.

Then that this very God did create Adam the first man after his owne Image and lykenes, and dyd ordeyne and appoynte hym Lorde of all creatures in erth, which Adam by the enuy of the deuill, disobeyinge the commaundement of his maker, did first sinne, and brought sin into this worlde, such and so greete, that we which be spronge of him after the fleshe, are subdued vnto sinne, deathe, and damnacion, broughte vnder the yoke and tyranny of the deuill.

And further, Christ Jesus his son was promised of God the father, to be a sauoure to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David, and the other fathers: whiche shulde deliuer them from their synnes and tyranny of the deuill, wherby they were all subiect by Adam.

And that in the meane season whyle the fathers looked for sal-uacion and deliuerance promysed, because mans nature is such, that he not onely can not, but also wyl not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and specially such a synner as hath nede of the sauinge health promysed, the lawe was gi-uen throughe whiche men myghte knowe sinne, and that they are sinners when they se they do none of the thynges that the lawe commaundeth, with so glad and wyllynge a minde as God requireth: but rather agaynst their wylles, without affection, and as though they were constrained with the feare of that hell which the lawe threatneth sayinge: Cursed be he that mayntayneth not all the wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was giuen to thintente that synne and the malice of mens hert beinge therby the better knowne, men shuld the more feruently thurst the commynge of Christe, whiche shulde redeme them from their synnes.

Last of all: We are taughte that that Christe whiche was promysed and shadowed in the olde testament, is sent of the father, at suche tyme as he had determyned with hym selfe, at suche tyme (I saye) as all wykednesse floppeth. And that he was set not for any mans good workes (for they all were synners) but to thintente he wolde make good his promise and shewe the abundant riches of his grace, whiche he had promysed.

In the newe testament therfore it is moste evidently declared, that Jesus Christ the true lambe and hooft, is come to reconyle vs to the father, payinge on the crosse the punishment due to oure synnes: and to deliuer vs from the bondage of the deuill (vnto whom we serued throughe sinne) and to make vs the sonnes of God, such as he hath gyuen vs the true pearson of the father, and sayth. and tranquillie of conscience, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: which feare is put away by the sayth, that the father giueth, vs drawing vs vnto his sonne. For that faith is the gyft of God whereby we beleue y^e Chyſte is come in to this worlde to ſaue ſinners: which is of ſo greete pity that they whiche haue it, deſyre to perſourne al the duties of loue to al men, after the example of Chyſt. For ſaythe ones receyued, God gyueth his holye gholt, wherewith he tokeneth and marcketh all that beleue: which is the pledge and earnest that we ſhall ſurely poſſeſſe euerlaſtyng lyfe, and that gyueth witnes vnto oure ſpिरितe, and graſteth this faith in vs, that we be the ſonnes of God pourynge therewith the loue in to oure hertes which Paul deſcrybeth and ſet- teth out to the Corinthians. By that faith and conſydence in Chyſte whiche by loue is myghty in operation, and that ſheweth it ſelfe thoroꝝ the woꝝkes of loue ſterynge men therto, by that (I ſay) we are iuſtified: that is, by that ſayth, Chyſtes father (whiche is become oures alſo thoroꝝe that Chyſt our brother) counteth vs for ryghtous & for his ſonnes: imputing not our ſinnes vnto vs thoroꝝe his grace.

The holpe
ghod. To conclude, he came that we being clenſed from our ſynnes, & ſanctified vnto God the father: that is, halowed vnto the uſe of the father to exercepſe good woꝝkes forſaking the woꝝkes of the fleſh ſhuld frely ſerue him in righ- touſnes and holynesse al our life long thoroꝝ good woꝝkes which God hath ordeyned that we ſhuld walke in them declaring our ſelues thereby to be ſure- ly called vnto this grace: which woꝝkes whoſoener hath not, declareth y^e he hath not ſayth in Chyſt.

Indycc. This is that Chyſt Ieſus whiche after he hath kyled the man of ſynne with the breath of his mouth, ſhal ſyt in his maiesty and iudge al men, geving vnto euery one the woꝝkes of his body, accoꝝdinge to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. And that ſhal ſay vnto them that ſhal be on his right hande. Come ye bleſſed chyldren of my father, inherete ye the kyngdome prepared for you from the begynning of the worlde: And vnto the that ſhal be on his lefte hande. Depart from me ye curſed, into euerlaſtyng fyre: which is prepared for the deuyll and his aungels. Then ſhal the ende come and he ſhal deſpue by the kyngdome to God the father.

iudgement. To thintent we ſhulde knowe this by the goodnes of God woꝝkynge by his holy ſpिरितe, are the holy wrytinges of the Byble gyuen vs: That we ſhulde knowe (I ſaye) and beleue that there is one God, and Ieſus Chyſte whome he hath ſent: and that in beleuyng we ſhuld haue euerlaſtyng lyfe thoroꝝ his name.

Lyfe euer-laſtyng. An other foundacion then this can no mā lay. And S. Paul deſpꝛeth that he be holde a curſed which preacheth any other faith & ſalua- tion, then only by Ieſus Chyſt: though it were an angel of heuen. For of him, and thoroꝝ him, & for him, are al thinges: to whom, with the father and the holy gholt, be honour and gloꝝy for euer moꝝe. AMEN.

CAPITULO. I.

In the begynnyng * created God heuen & erth. The erth was voyde and emptye / and darknes was vpon the depe, and the spirite of God was vpon the waters.

And God sayd: let there be lyght: and there was lyght. And God sawe the lyght that it was good: & diuided the lyght from the darknesse: & called the lyght the day / and the darknesse the nyght: and the euening & mornynge was made one daye.

God also sayd: let there be a firmament betwene the waters: & let it diuide the waters a sonder. Then God made the firmament: and parted the waters which were vnder the firmament, from the waters aboue the firmament: And so it was doon. And god called the firmament Heauen: And the eueninge and mornynge was made the seconde daye.

And God sayd: * the waters vnder heauen be gathered together in one place, that the dry lande maye appere: And so it was doon. And God called the dry lande the erth: and the gatheringes together of waters called he the see. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let the erth bring forth grene grashe and that bereth seed: and fructfull trees beeryng frute euerie one in his kynde / hauynge theyr seed in them selues vpon the erth: And it was doon. And the erth brought forth herbe & grashe that bare seed euerie one in his kynde: & trees beeryng frute: and hauynge theyr seed in them selues / euerie one in his kynde: And God sawe that it was good: and the eueninge and mornynge was made the thyrde daye.

Then sayd God: * be there lyghtes in the firmament of heauen / to diuide daye frome nyght: that they maye be for signes / seasons / dayes / and yeres, And * let them be lyghtes in the firmament of heauen, to gyue vpon the erth: And so it was doon. And God made * two grete lyghtes: A grete lyghte to rule the daye / & a lesse lyghte to rule the nyght: and made sterres also: And God set them in the firmament of heauen to gyue vpon the erth / and rule the daye and the nyght: and to diuide the lyghte from darknesse: And God sawe that it was good: and the eueninge and mornynge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayd: * let p. waters bringe forth creatures that moue and haue life, and foules for to flee ouer the erth vnder the firmament of heauen. And God created grete whales and all maner of creatures that lyue and moue which p. waters brought forth in their kyndes: & all maner of federed foules in theyr kyndes: And God sawe that it was good: and blessed them sayenge: Increase and multiplye & fill the waters of the sees: and let the foules multiplye vpon the erth. And the eueninge and mornynge was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayd: let the erth bringe forth the lyuynge creatures in theyr kyndes: catell and wozmes & beastes of the erth in theyr kyndes / and so it was. And God made the beastes of the erth in theyr kyndes / and catell in theyr kyndes: and all maner wozmes of the erth in theyr kyndes: and god sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let vs make man to our sympletyde and after our lykenesse: and let hym haue rule ouer the fysh of the see, and ouer the foules of the ayre / and ouer catell and ouer all the erth / and ouer all wozmes that crepe on the erth. And God created man after his lykenesse / after the lykenesse of God created he hym: male and female created he them.

And God blessed them, and sayd: Growe and multiplye, and fill the erth / and subdue it: and haue domynyon ouer the fyshes of the see / and foules of the ayre / and ouer all the beastes that moue on the erth.

And God sayd: Se, I haue gyuen you all herbes that beare seed vpon the erth / and all maner trees that haue fruite in them & beare seed: to be meate for you and for all beastes of the erth: and vnto all foules of the ayre: vnto all that moue on the erth, and wherin is lyfe / that they maye haue all maner herbes & grashe for to eate: and so it was doon. And * God be- hield all that he had made / and lo, they were cretyng good: and the eueninge and mornynge was made the sixt daye.

The chapter before is repeted agayne: the halowynge of the Saboth: the four hoodes of paradys: the settinge in of man in paradys: the tree of knowledge is forbidden hym: the creation of Cne: the institution of marriage.

CAPITULO. II.

Thus was heuen and erth finished with all theyr * furnyture: and in the seuenth daye God ended his woike which he had made: and rested in the seuenth daye from all his woikes that he made. And blessed the seuenth day: and * sanctified it: for in it he ceased from all his woikes which he had created and made.

These are the generacions of heuen and erth when they were created, in the tyme when the Woide God created heuen and erth and all the mybbes of the felde before they grewe in the erth. And all the herbes of the felde before they sprange / for the Woide God had yet sente no rayne vpon the erth, neither was there yet any man to tyle the erth. But there arose a myste out of the grounde / and watered all the lande. Then the Woide God * hope man / of the mould of the erth / and byrthed in to his face the breth of lyfe. So * man was made a lyuynge soule.

The loide God also planted a garden of pleasure from the begynning / and there he set man whom he had formed. And the Woide god made to lyuynge forth of the erth, al maner trees beaustifull to the sight, and plesant to eate: and the * tree of lyfe in the myddes of the garden: and also the tre of knowledge of good and euyl.

And there sprang a river out of Eden to water the garden, and thence divided it selfe, and grewe in to foure principall waters. The name of the one is * Euphrates, he it is that compasseth all the lande of Babilon / where golde groweth. And the golde of that countrey is precious, there is founde Babilon / a stone called Onix. The name of the seconde river is Gi-bon, whiche compasseth all the lande of Inde.
And the name of the thirde river is Tigris, whiche runneth on the East syde of the Assyrians. And the fourth river is Euphrates.

And the Lorde God toke Adam, and put him in the garden of pleasure, to dwelle in and to kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Adam sayinge: Of all the trees of the garden eate: But of the tree of knowledge of good and bad eate thou not: For the same day thou ca-rest of it, thou shalt dye the death.

And the Lorde God sayd: It is not good that man be alone, I will make him an helpe to beare him companie. And after the Lorde God hadde made of the earth all maner beestes of the felde, and all maner foules of the ayre, he brought them unto Adam to se what he wolde call them. And as Adam called all maner be-est by names, so are they named. And Adam gaue names unto all maner cattell / and unto the foules of the ayre, and unto all maner beestes of the felde. But there was no helpe founde unto Adam to beare him companie.

Then the Lorde God cast a slumber on Adam, and he slepe. And he toke out one of his ribs, and in steade thereof he filled up the place with fleshe. And the Lorde God made of the ribbe whiche he toke out of Adam, a woman, and brought her unto Adam. Then sayd Adam: This is now a bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh. This shall be called woman, because she was taken of man. * For this cause shall man leue father and mother, and cleue unto his wyfe, and they shall be one flesh. And they were eyther of them naked / bothe Adam and his wyfe, and were not ashamed.

The serpent disceyved the woman. The serpent is cursed. Chyldre of the serpent are proud. Adam is cast out of Paradise.

CAPI.

III.

But the serpent was made subtiler then all the beestes of the earth, whiche the Lorde God had made: a sayd unto the woman: Why hath God commaunded you not to eate of all maner trees in the garden? The woman sayd unto the serpent: of the fruite of the trees in the garden we eate / but of the fruite of the tree that is in the myddes of the garden (sayd God) we eate not: for that he toucheth it not:
lest we dye. Then sayd the serpent unto the woman: not so, for what he hath sayd, for God doth knowe that when so ever ye wolde eate of it, your eyes shoulde be opened, and ye shoulde be as goddess, and knowe bothe good and euill. And the woman sawe that it was a good tree to eate of, and sayde unto the serpent, and a pleasaunt tree for to geve understanding. And toke of the fruite of it, and gaue unto her husbande also, and he ate. And the eyes of bothe them were opened, that they knewe that they were naked.

Then they covered theyr selves together, and made them apurys.

And they herde the voyce of the Lorde God as he walked in the garden in the coole of the daye. And Adam hid hym selfe and his wyfe also from the face of the Lorde God, among the trees of the garden. And the Lorde God called Adam, and sayd unto hym: Where arte thou? And he answered: Thy voyce I herde in the garden, but I was afrayde, because I was naked, and therfore hidde my selfe. And he sayd: Who tolde thee that thou wast naked?
Hast thou eaten of the tree, of whiche I bad thee that thou shouldest not eate? And Adam answered: The woman whiche thou gavest me a companion, gave me of the tree, and I ate.
And the Lorde God sayd unto the woman:
Wherefore dydest thou so? The woman answered: The serpent disceyved me and I ate.

And the Lorde God sayd unto the serpent:
because thou hast doone this, cursed be thou above all cattell and beastes of the earth: upon thy belly shalt thou go: and the earth shalt eat of thee. For thou hast eaten of the tree, of whiche I bad thee that thou shouldest not eate:
and thou shalt be under the power of the husbande, and he shall rule thee.

And unto Adam he sayd: I will en-crease thy sorowes, and make the oke with thine: and with payne shalt thou be helpered. And thou shalt be under the power of thy husbande, and he shall rule thee.
And unto Adam he sayd: Because thou hast obeyed the voyce of thy wyfe, and eaten of the tree of which I commaunded thee not to eate: Cursed be the earth in thy worke. In so-rowe shalt thou eate thereof all dayes of thy lyfe: And it shall beare thornes and thistles unto thee. And thou shalt eat the herbes of the felde. In the sweate of thy face shalt thou eate bread, until thou returne unto the earth, whence thou wast taken: for earth thou art, and unto earth shalt thou returne.

And Adam called his wyfe Eve, because she was the mother of all that lyueth. And the Lorde God made Adam and his wyfe garmentes of skynnes, whiche he put on them. And the Lorde God sayd: Lo, Adam is become as one of us in knowledge of good and euill. But now leed he stretch forth his hande, and take also of the tree of lyfe, and eate and lyue ever.
Then the Lorde God cast hym out of the garden of pleasure, to tellye the earth whiche he was taken. And he cast Adam out, and byd sette at the entrynge of the garden of pleasure Cherubin with a speere swerde mounyng in and out, to kepe the waye to the tree of lyfe.

IIII.

Adam laye with Eve his wyfe, whiche conceyved and bare Cayn, and sayd: I have obtained a man of the Lorde. And he proceeded forth, and bare his brother Abel:

And Abel became a shepheard, and Cayn a plowman.

And it fortuned in processe of tyme, that Cayn brought of the fruite of the earth an offering unto the Lorde. Abel brought also of the first borne of his shepe, and of the fatte of them. And the Lorde looked unto Abel and his offeringe, but unto Cayn and his offeringe looked he not. And Cayn was wroth exceedingly, and lowzed. And the Lorde sayd unto hym: Why art angry, and why lowzed thou? Wotest thou not yf thou doest euill, for thy synne lyeth open in the doore. Notwithstandinge let it be subdued unto thee, and rule thou it. And Cayn talked with Abel his brother.

And as sone as they were in the felde, Cayn fell upon Abel his brother, and slewe hym.
And the Lorde sayd unto Cayn: Where is Abel thy brother? And he sayd: I can not tell, am I my brothers keeper? and he sayd: What hast thou done? The voyce of thy brothers bloode cryed unto me out of the earth. And now cursed be thou upon the earth, which opened her mouth to receyue thy brothers bloode of thyne hande. For when thou tilled the grounde, she shall henceforth not geue her produce unto thee. A vacabunde and a rennagate shalt thou be upon the earth.

And Cayn sayd unto the Lorde: My synne is greater then that it may be forgiven. Be-holde thou cast me out this daye from the earth, and from thy sight must I hyde my selfe, and I must be wanderynge and a vacabunde upon the earth: For ever who shal me slewe?
For if I am not slain, yet I shall be a wanderer upon the earth. And the Lorde sayd unto Cayn: Not so, but who so ever slepeth Cayn shall be punished seven folde. And the Lorde put a marke upon Cayn, that no man shoulde hym. And Cayn went out from the face of the Lorde, and dwelte in the lande Nod, on the east syde of Eden.

And Cayn laye with his wyfe, whiche con-ceyved and bare Henoche. And buylded a cite, and called the name of it after the name of his sonne, Henoche. And Henoche begate Irad.
And Irad begate Mathusael. And Mathusa-el begate Lamech. And Lamech toke hym two wyves: the one called Ada, and the other Zilla.
And Ada bare Jubal, of whome came they that dwelte in rentes, and had cattell. And his brothers name was Jubal, of hym came all that exercise them selves on the harpe, and on the organs. And Zilla also bare Tubalcayn a worker in metall, and father of all that graue in brasse and yron. And Tubalcayn's sister was called Noema.

Then sayd Lamech unto his wyves Ada and Zilla: heare my voyce ye wyves of Lamech, & herke unto my wordes, for I have slayn a man and wounded my selfe, and have slayne a pong man, and got my selfe stappes: for Cayn shall be auenged seven folde, but Lamech seventy tymes seven folde. Adam also laye with his wyfe yet agayne, and she bare a sonne, and called his name Seth. For God (sayd he) hath gyven me an other sonne for Abel whom Cayn slewe. And Seth begate a son, and called his name Enos.

And in that tyme began men to call on the name of the Lorde.

The genealogie of Adam unto Noe.

CAPI.

V.

This is the booke of the genealogy of Adam. In the day when god created man and made hym after the similitude of God. Male and female made he them, and blessed them, and called theyr names man, in the day when they were created. And when Adam was an hundred and thyrty yere old, he begat a sonne after his yphnesse and similitude: and called his name Seth. And the days of Adam after he begat Seth, were eight hundred yere, and begate sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Adam whiche he lyued, were ix. hundred and thyrty yeres, and then he dyed.

Seth was an hundred and v. yeres olde and begate Enos. And after he had begot Enos he lyued. viij. C. and viij. yeres, and begate sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Seth were
ix. hundred and xij. yeres, and dyed. And Enos was. iij. C. and x. yere olde and begat Kenan.
And Enos after he begate Kenan, lyued. viij.
hundred and xv. yeres, and begate sonnes and daughters: and all the dayes of Enos were. ix. hundred and v. yeres, and then he dyed. And Kenan lyued. lxx. yeres, and begat Mahalael. And Kenan after he had begot Mahalael lyued. viij.
hundred and xl. yeres, and begate sonnes & douchters: and all the dayes of Kenan were. ix. hundred & x. yeres, and then he dyed. And Mahalael lyued. lxx. yeres, and begate Jared. And Mahalael after he had begot Jared lyued. viij. C. and xxx. yeres, and begate sonnes & daughters: and all the dayes of Mahalael were. viij. hundred. iij.
C. and xv. yeres, and then he dyed.

And Jared lyued an hundred and lxxij. yeres, and begate Henoche: & Jared lyued after he begat Henoche. viij. hundred yeres, & begate sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of Jared were
ix. hundred & lxxij. yeres, and then he dyed. And Henoche lyued. lxx. yeres & begate Mathusala.
And Henoche walked with God, & lyued after he had begot Mathusala. iij. hundred yeres,
and begate sonnes and daughters: And all the
dayes of Henoche were. iij. hundred & lxx. yeres, and Henoche lyued a godly lyfe, and was no more sene, for God toke hym awaye.

And Mathusala lyued an hundred & lxxvij. yeres, & begate Lamech: And Mathusala after he had begot Lamech, lyued. viij. hundred and lxxij. yeres, and begate sonnes and daughters.
And all the dayes of Mathusala were. ix. hundred. lxxij. yeres, and then he dyed.

And Lamech lyued an. C. lxxv. yeres & begat a son, and called hym Noe, saying. This same shall comfort us in our woakes, & sojourn of our handes, whiche we have about the earth, that the Lorde hath cursed. And Lamech lyued after he had begot Noe. v. C. lxxv. yeres, and begate sonnes and daughters. And all the dayes of La-mech were. viij. hundred. lxxvij. yeres, & then he dyed. And when Noe was thye hundred yeres olde, he begate Sem, Cham, and Japheth.

The cause of the flood. The malice of man here.
The preparation of the ark.

Cham is the father of Canaan. These are the
is. sonnes of Noe, and of these was all the worlde overspred.

And Noe begyne an husbandman, went forth and planted a vineyard, and dranke of the wyne and was droncke, and laye unconscious in the myddell of his tent. And Cham the father of Canaan sawe his fathers priuities, and tolde his two brydres that were with him.
And Sem and Japheth toke a mantell, & put it on both thei shuldres and went backwarde, and couered their fathers secrets, and their faces were backwarde, so that they sawe not their fathers nakednes.

As soone as Noe was awaked from his wyne, and with what his yongest sonne hadde done vnto hym, he sayde: A Cursed be Cana-an, and a seruauit of al seruantes be he to his brydren. And he sayde: Blessed be the Lorde God of Sem, & Canaan be his seruauit. God increase Japheth that he maye dwell in the tent of Sem. And Canaan be their seruauit.

And Noe liued after the flood thre hundred and fiftye yere: so that all the dayes of Noe were. ix. hundred & fiftye yere, & than he dyed.

The genealogie of Japheth, Sem and Cham.
CAPI. X.

These be the generations of the sonnes of Noe: of Sem, Cham, and Japheth; whiche begate them epydizen after the flood.

The sonnes of Japheth were: Gomer, Ma-gog, Madai, Javan, Tubal, Mesech and Thyras. And the sonnes of Gomer were: As-kenas, Kaphar and Togarma. And the sonnes of Javan were: Elifa, Tharlis, Luthim and Dodanin. Of these came the Isles of the gen-tys in thre contrees, euerie man in his spech, kynred and nacion.

The sonnes of Cham were: Chus, Misra-im, Phut and Canaan. The sonnes of Chus were: Seba, Heupla, Sabta, Karyna & Sabtema. And the sonnes of Karyna were: Sheba and Dedan. Chus also begate Phemod whiche began to be myghtry in the earth. He was a myghtrye hunter in the fyghe of the floide.

Wherof came the prouerbe: he is as Phemod that myghtrye hunter in the fyghe of the floide.
And the begynnyng of his kynngdome was Babel, Erech, Achad and Chalne in the lande of Synear: Out of that lande came Assur, and buidled Ninue, and the stretes of the cyte, & Calah, and Kellen betwene Ninue & Ca-lah. That is a great cyte. And Nimrod begate Ludum, Enamim, Leabim, Naphruhim, Pathrusim and Casuhim: from whence came the Philistins, and the Caphtithynes.

Canaan also begate Zidon his eldest sonne & Berth, Jebull, Emor, Sirgoli, Hun, Aethi, Sini, Acuadi, Zenuai and Harman. And afterwarde sprange the kynreds of the Canany-tes. And the colles of the Cananytes were sed Sydon till thou come to Serara and to Asa, and till thou come to Sodoma, Gomora, Adama, Zebaim, eue vnto Bala. These were the children of Cham in their kynreds, ton-ges, landes and nations.

And Sem the father of al the children of ber, and the eldest brother of Japheth begate chubich also. And his sonnes were: Elam, As-sur, Arphachlad, Lud and Aram. And the children of Aram were: Uz, Hul, Gether & Mas.

And Arphachlad begate Sala, and Sala begat Eber. And Eber begate two sonnes. The name of the one was Peleg, for in his tyme the earth was deuyded. And the name of his brydher was Jakeran.

Jakeran begate Almodad, Saleph, Hyza-moneth, Jarah, Hadozam, Ufal, Dikela, D-bal, Abumael, Seba, Sphir, Heula and Tobab. All these are the sonnes of Jakeran. And the dwellynge of them was from Ebla butt thou come vnto Sephara a mountayne of the east lande. These are the sonnes of Sem in their kynreds, languages, contrees and na-cyons. These are the kynreds of the sonnes of Noe, in their generations and nacyns. And of these came people that were in the worlde after the flood.

The buyldynge of the towre of Babel. The establishyn of tongues. The generation of Sem the sonne of Noe vntill Shyham whiche goeth with Lot

XI.

And al the worlde was of one tongue, and one language. And as they came from the east, they founde a playne in the lande of Synear, and there they dwelled.
And they sayde one to another: come on, let vs make byrche and burie it with fyre. So byrche was their dyne, and dyne was their morte. And they sayd: Come on, let vs buyld vs a cyte and a towre, that the toppe maye reache vnto heuē. And let vs make vs a name afore we be scatered abrode ouer all the earth.
And the Lorde came downe to se the cyte &
the towre which the children of Adam hadde buylded. And the Lorde sayd: See, the people is one, and haue one tongue amonge the
all. And this haue they begon to do, and wil not leaue frome all that they haue purposed to do. Come on, let vs descende, and myngle their tonge euen there, that one vnderstande nor what an other sayeth. Thus the Lorde scattered them from thence vpon all the earth.
And they lefte of to buyld the cyte. Whe-fore the name of it is called Babel, because that the Lorde there confounded the tongue of all the worlde. And because that the Lorde frome thence scattered them abrode vpon all the earth.

And when Terah was. lxx. yere olde, he begat Abram, Nahor and Haran.

And these are the generations of Terah.
Terah begate Abram, Nahor and Haran. And Haran begate Lot. And Haran dyed before Te-rah his father in the lande where he was borne, at Ur in Chalda. And Abram and Nahor toke them wyues. Abrahams wyfe was called Sarai.
And Nahors wyfe Myrica the daughter of Haran, whiche was father to Myrica and to Isela. But Sarai was barren, and hadde no childe.

Then toke Terah Abram & his sonne and Lot his sonne Harans sonne, and Sarai his daughter in lawe, his sonne Abrahams wyfe.
And they wente with hym frome Ur in Chaldea, to go into the lande of Chanaan. And they came to Haran and dwelled there. And when Terah was two hundred yere olde and fyue, he dyed in Haran.

Abram is blessed of God, and goeth with Lot into Canaan. And God promyseth to geue the same lande to his seld. And afterwarde goeth Abram into Egypte and cauleth Sarai his wyfe to saye that she is his syster. And she was taken awaye of Pharao for which the Lorde plageth hym.

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Abram, Get the out of the contree and frome the kynred, and oute of thy fathers house, into a lande whiche I will shewe the. And I will make of the a myghtrye people, and will bless the, & make thy name greete, that thou mayst be a blessing. And I will bless them that bless the, and curse them that curse the.
And in the wall be blessed all the generations of the earth.

And Abram went as the Lorde had hym, & Lot wente with hym. Abram was. lxxv. yere olde, when he went out of Haran. And Abram toke Sarai his wyfe, & Lot his brydheres sonne, with all & their goodes whiche they hadde gotten, and & soules whiche they hadde begoten in Haran. And they departed to go into the lande of Canaan. And when they were come thither, Abram went forth into the lande till he came vnto a place called Sichem, and vnto the oke of More. And the Cananytes dwelled then in the lande.

Then the Lorde appeared vnto Abram, and sayd: vnto & thy seed will I geue this lande.
And he buylded an auter there vnto the Lorde whiche appeared to hym. Then departed he thence vnto a mountayne that lyeth on the east syde of Bethell and pitched his tente: Betweene Sychem and Bethell, and Ay on the east: and he buylded there an auter vnto the Lorde, and called on the name of the Lorde.

And when Abram departed, and toke his iour-ney southwarde.

After this there came a berth in the lande.
And Abram went downe into Egypte, to lo-coure there, for the berth was sore in the land.
And when he was come vnto Egypte, he sayd vnto Pharao his wyfe. I knowe that thou art a fayre woman to loke vpon. It wil come to passe therto-ward when the Egyptians see the, that they will saye: she is his wyfe. And so shall they see me, and saue the.
Saye & I praye the therto-ward that thou art my syster, that I maye save the better by reason of the, and that my soule maye lyue for thy sake.

As soone as he came into Egypte, the Egyptians sawe the woman that she was very fayre. And Pharao sayde vnto his seruaunts, and sayd: this woman is my wyfe. So that he was taken into Pharaos house, whiche entreated Abram well for her sake, so that he had shepe oxen and he asses, men seruantes, mayde seruaunts, she asses and camels.

But God plagued Pharao, & his house with great plagges, because of Sarai Abrahams wyfe.
Then Pharao called Abram and sayde: Why hast thou thus dealt with me? Wherfore toldest thou me not that she was thy wyfe? Why saydest thou that she was thy syster, and cau-sted me to take her to my wyfe? But now lo, there is thy wyfe, take her and get the hence.
Pharao also gaue a charge vnto his men ouer Abram, to leaue hym vnto, with his wyfe and all that he had.

Abram and Lot departed out of Egypt. And Abram deuyded his lanoe and cauleth with his brydher
Lot. There agayne is promysed to Abram the lande of Canaan.

XIII.

Then Abram departed oute of Egypte, betwene he and his wyfe, and all that he had, and Lot with hym vnto the south.
Abram was very ryche in cattell, syuer, and golde. And he went on his iourney frome the south euen vnto Bethell, & to the place where his tente was at the first tyme, betwene Bethell and Ay, and vnto the place of the auter whiche he made before. And euer called Abram vpon the name of the Lorde.

Lot also whiche went with hym hadde shepe, cattell and tentes: so that the lande was not habile to receaue them that they myght dwell together, for the & substaunce of their rychewas so greete, that they coulde not dwell together. And there fel a strepe betwene the herd-men of Abrahams cattell, and the herdmen of Lots cattell. And reuer the Cananytes and the Phereyses dwelled at that tyme in the lande. Then sayd Abram vnto Lot: Let there be no strepe (I praye the) betwene the and me, and betwene my herdmen and thine, for we be & brydren. Is not all the hole lande before the? Departe, I praye the, frome me. If thou

And Lot lift up his eyes, and behelde all the contrey aboute Jordan, which was a plentifull cōtrei of water every where before the Lorde destroyed Sodome and Gomorra, even as the garden of the Lorde, & as the lande of Egypte wch thou come to Zoar.

Then Lot chose all the colles of Jordan & toke his journey from the easle. And so departed the one brother fro the other. Abiam dwel- led in the lande of Canaan: and Lot in the cy- tes of the playne, and pitched his tent toward Sodome. But the men of Sodome were wis- ked, & spinned exceedingly against the lorde.

CAP. XVIII.

As he chaunced within a while, that Amraphel kyng of Sennar, Arioch kyng of Ellasar, Kedorlaomor kyng of Elam and Erydall kyng of the nations, made warre with Bera kyng of Sodome, & with Bira kyng of Gomorra, and with Sineab kyng of Adama, and with Semeabab kyng of Zeboim, and with the kyng of Bela, whiche Bela is called Zoar. All these came together unto the vale of Sydon, whiche is now the salt see. Twelve yere were they sub- ject to kyng Kedorlaomor, and in the xij. yere rebelled. Therefore in the xliij. yere came Kedorlaomor and the kynges that were with hym, and smote the * Kapharims in Astaroth Karnaim, and the Sufpins in Wam, and the Symps in Haba Katiathaim, and the Hor- ems in their owne mounte Seir, unto the playne of Sychar, which bordereth upon the wyldernesse. Then went out the kyng of Sodome, and the kyng of Gomorra, and the kyng of Ada- ma, and the kyng of Zeboim, and the kyng of Bela now called Zoar. And sette their men in aray to fyght with the in the vale of Syd- oym, that is to saye, with Kedorlaomor the kyng of Elam, and with Erydall kyng of the Nations, & with Amraphel kyng of Sen- nar. And with Arioch kyng of Ellasar: four-kynges againste hym. And that vale of Syd- oym was full of lyme pyttes.

And the kynges of Sodome and Gomorre fled, and fell there. And the residue fled to the mountaynes. And they toke all the goodes of Sodome and Gomorre and all their vtyalies, and went their waye. And they toke Lot also Abiams brothers sonne and his goodes (for he dwelled at Sodome) & departed. Then came one that had escaped, & tolde Abiam the be- hewe which dwelled in the vale of * Canaan the Amoryte, brother of Eschol and Aner: which were confederate with Abiam. When Abiam herde that his brother was taken, he harnessed his seruantes boine in his owne house the hundred and eghthene, & folowed till they came at Dan. And sette hym selfe and his seruantes in aray, and fell upon them by nyght, and smote them, & chased them awaye unto Hoba: which lyeth on the left hande of Damascus, & brought agayne all the goodes, and also his brother Lot, and his goodes, the women also and the people.

And as he returned agarn from the slaugh- ter of Kedorlaomor & of the kynges that were with hym, than came the kyng of Sodome to meete hym in the vale of Sane, which now is called kynges dale.

Then * Melchisedech & kyng of Salem brought forth bread and wyne. And he beyng the priest of the most hygh God, blessed him sayenge: & Blessed be Abiam unto the moste hygh God, possessor of heauen and earth. And blessed be God the moste hygh God, which hath deliuered thine enemies into thy han- des. And Abiam gaue hym tythes of all.

Then sayde the kyng of Sodome unto A- biam: Geue me the soules, & take the goo- des to thy selfe. And Abiam answered the kyng of Sodome: I lpe tpe my hande unto the Lorde God, most hygh possessor of heauen & earth, that I will not take of all that is thine so moche as a thred or a shoulcher, lest thou wouldest saye, I haue made Abiam myghe. Haua onely that whiche the ponge men haue eaten and the partes of the men which were with me, Aner, Eschol & Mamre. Let them take theie partes.

And Abiam & buyded the Lorde, and it was counted to hym for rightousnes. And he sayd unto hym: I am the Lorde that brought the out of Egipt in Caldea to geue the this lande to possesse it.

And he sayd: Lorde God / wherby shall I knowe that I shall possesse it? And he sayd vn- to hym: Take a cowe of thye yere olde / and a she goate of thye yere olde / and a thye yere olde ram / a turtill doue and a yong pigeon. And he toke all these and slayded them in the myddes, and layde euery yere one against an other. But the soules slayded he not. And the byrdes fell on the carcases, and Abiam boue them away. And when the sonne was downe, there fell aomber upon Abiam. And lo, feare and greate darknesse came vpon hym.

And he sayd unto Abiam: knowe this of a surety, that thy * seed shall be a straunger in a lande not theys. And they that make bondmen of them and entreate them euill & iust. hundred yeres. But the nation whome they shall serue will I iudge. And afterward shall they come out with great substance. Generethelste thou shalt go vnto thy fathers in peace, and shalt be buryed when thou art of a good age: and in the fourth generation they shall come hyther agayne / for the wyckednesse of the Amorytes is not yet full.

When the sonne was downe and it was waxed darke: beholde, there was a smokeinge furnesse / and a fyre brande that & wente betwene the sayd peces.

And that same daye the Lorde made a coue- nant with Abiam sayng: vnto thy * seed will I geue this lande, from the ruer of Egypte, e- uen vnto the greete ruer Euphrates / the Ken- nites, the Kenyites, the Cadmonyres / the He- thytes, the Pherytes, the Kapharims, the A- morytes, the Canaanites, the Sergetites and the Jebusites.

Sarai giueth Abiam leue to take Agar her mayde to wyfe. Agar deliued her maydes: for whiche she was euill intreated of Sarai, and therfore runneth away. The aungell meynge her, commaundeth her to turne agayne and dothe promysse her seed. And nameth her by the childe Ismael.

CAP. XVI.

That Abiams wyfe bare hym no chyldren. But she had an handmayde an Egyptian, whose name was Agar. Wherfore she said vnto Abiam: Behold, the Lorde hath shut me vp that I can not beare. I praye the & go in vn- to my mayde / peraduenture I shall be multi- plied by means of her. And Abiam herde the voyce of Sarai. Then Sarai Abiams wyfe toke Agar her mayde the Egyptian (after A- biam had dwelled .x. yere in the lande of Ca- naan) and gaue her to her husbnde Abiam to be his wyfe.

And he went in vnto Agar, & she conceived. And when she sawe that she had conceived: her maydes was despised in her syght. Then sayd Sarai vnto Abiam: Thou dost me by- speghe, for I haue gyuen my mayde in to thy posome: and now because she seeth that she hath conceived I am despised in her syght: the Lorde iudge betwene the and me. Then sayd Abiam to Sarai: beholde, thy mayde is in thy hande, do with her as it pleaseth the.

And because Sarai feared soule with her, she fled from her. And the aungell of the Lorde founde her by a fountayne of water in the wyldernes: euen by a well in the way to Sur. And he sayd: Agar Sarais mayde, whence comest thou, and whither wilt thou go? And she answered: I flee from my maydes Sarai. And the aungell of the Lorde sayd vnto her: returne to thy maydes agayne, and submytte thy selfe vnder her handes.

And the aungell of the Lorde sayd vnto her: I will so increase thy seed, that it shall not be nombred for multitude. And the Lordes aungell sayd further vnto her: se, thou art with childe, and shalt bere a son, and shalt call his * name Ismael, because the Lorde hath herde thy tribu- lation. He shall be a wyld man, & his hand shall be against euery man, and euery mans hand against him, and yet shall he dwell fast by all his brethren. And she called the name of the Lorde that spake vnto her: thou art the God that lo- kest on me / for she sayd: I haue of a surety sene here the & backe partes of hym that seeth me. Wherfore she calleth the well, the well of the ly- uing that seeth me, whiche well is bitwene Ca- des & Bared. And Agar bare Abiam a son, and Abiam called his sons name which Agar bare Ismael. And Abiam was .lxxvij. yere old when Agar bare hym Ismael.

Abiam is called Abraham, and Sarai is named Sara. The lande of Canaan is here the fourth tyme promysed. Circumcision is here institute. Isaac is promysed. Abraham prayeth for Ismael.

CAP. XVII.

When Abiam was nynty yere olde and. ix. the Lorde appered to hym, sayeng. I am the almyghty God, walke & before me and be vncorrupt. And I will make my bond wyfene the and me / and will multiply the ex- ceedngly. And Abiam fell on his face. And God talked mozeouer with hym sayenge: It is I beholde my & testament is with the, that thou shalt be a father of many * nations. Therefore shalt thou no more be called Abiam, but thy name shall be Abraham: for a father of many nations haue I made the, and I will multiply the exceedingly, and will make nations of the: yea & kynges shall spring out of the. Twelue * pyrnies shall he beger, and I wyl make a great nation of hym. But my bonde wyl I make with Isaac, which Sara shall bere vnto the: the curen this tyme twelue moneth.

And god leste of talking with hym, & departed vp from Abraham. And Abraham toke Ismael his son, & all the seruantes borne in his house and all that was bought with money, as many as were men children among the men of Abrahams house, and circumcised the foreskynne of eche of fleshe, euen that selte same daye, as God had sayd vnto hym. Abraham was foure score and xii. yere old, when he cut of the foreskynne of his fleshe. And Ismael his sonne was xii.
yere olde when the foreskynne of his flesch was circumcised. The selfe same day was Abraham circumcised and Ismael his sonne. And all the men in his house, wherby they were borne in his house or bought with money (though they were straungers) were circumcised with hym.

There appeared the men vnto Abraham. Isaac is promysed to hym agayne, at whiche Sara laughed.
The destruction of the Sodomites is declared vnto Abraham. Abraham prayeth for them.

wyues. And Sara laughed in her selfe sayeng.
How when I am waxed olde, shall I geue my self to * lust, and my lord olde also? Then sayd the Loide vnto Abraham: Wherefore doth Sara laugh sayeng: Shall I of a surety bere a chyld now when I am olde? Is the thyng to hard for the Loide to do? In the tyme * appoynted wyl I retorne vnto the, as sone as the frute can haue lyfe, and Sara shall haue a sonne. Then Sara denyed it, sayeng: I laughed not / for I was aschayde. But he sayd: yea thou dydest laugh. When the men stode vp from thence and looked towarde Sodome. And Abraham went with them to byng them on the way. And the Loide sayd: Can I hyde from Abraham that thyng which I am aboute to do, sayeng that Abraham shall be a * great and a mighty people / and all the nations of the erth shall be blessed in hym? For I knowe hym that he wyl commaunde his chyldren and his household after hym, that they kepe the waye of the Loide / to do after ryght and conscience / that the Loide may bynge vpon Abraham that he hath pro-myssed hym.

And the Loide sayd: The reye of Sodome and Gomorre is great, and they synne is exceedyng greuous. I wyl go downe and se whether they haue done all together accordyng to that reye whiche is come vnto me or not, that I may know. And the me departed thence and went towarde Sodome. But Abraham stode yet before the Loide, and dyde nere and sayd.
Wylt thou destroy the ryghtous with the wycked?
Yf there be l. ryghtous within the cite, wylt thou destroy it, and not spare the place for the sake of l. ryghtous that are therein? That be farre from the, and thou shouldest do after this maner / to sey the ryghtous with the wycked / and that the ryghtous shoulde be as the wycked:
that be farre from the. Shouldest not the iudge of all the worlde do accordyng to ryght? And the Loide sayd: Yf I fynde in Sodome ryg-tye ryghtous within the cite, I wyl spare all the place for thy sake.

And Abraham answered and sayd: beholde I haue taken vpon me to speake vnto the Loide, and yet am but * dust and ashyes. What though there lacke. v. of l. ryghtous / wylt thou destroy all the cite for lacke of v? And he sayd:

sayd: what yf there be. l. founde there. And he sayd: I wyl not do it for fourtyes sake. And he sayd: O let not my Loide be angrey, that I speake. What yf there be founde thyng? And he vnto his place.

Lot receyued two aungelles in to his house. The fithy lures of the Sodomites. Lot is deliuered and deliuered to dwel in the city Zoar. Lottes wife is turned in to a pyller of salt. Sodome is destroyed. Lot is drunken and lyeth with his daughters, whiche conceyued chyldren by hym.

CAPI. XIX.

And there came. ii. aungelles to Sodome at euen. And Lot sat at the gate of the city. And Lot sawe them, and rose vp to mete them / and he * bowed hym selfe to the grounde with his face. And he sayd: Se lordes, turne in I pray you in to your seruantes house and tary all nyght and washe your fete / and eate vp early and go on your wayes. And they sayd: nay, but we wyl abyde in the streates all nyght. And he * compellid them exceedingly. And they turned in vnto hym & entered in to his house, & he made them a feast & dyd bake fyne cakes / and they * ate. But before they wyl to rest, the men of the city of Sodome compassed the house rounde about, both olde & yonge / all the people fro all quarters. And they called vnto Lot and sayd vnto hym: Where are the me which came in to thy house to nyght? byng them out vnto vs that we may do our lust with them.

And Lot went out at the doores vnto them & but the doze after hym and iapd: nay for gods sake byrthen, do not so wyckedly. Beholde I haue two daughters whiche haue knowen no ma, them wyl I byng out vnto you: do with them as it semeth you good: Only vnto these me to nothing, for therfore came they vnder the shadow of my roff. And they sayd: come hither.
And they sayd: Camest thou not byrther to so-iourne? wylt thou be now a * iudge: we wyl surely dele worse with the than with them.

And as they pleased sore vpon Lot & began to breake vp the doze, the men put forth the reys handes and pulled Lot in to the house to them and put to the dooze. And they smote the men that were at the doze of the house with byndnells * bothe small & great: so that they coulde not fynde the doze. And the men sayd moze our vnto Lot: If thou haue yet here any sonne in lawe, or sonnes or daughters, or what so euer thou hast in the cite, bynge out of this place:
for we must destroye this place, because the cry of them is greate * before the Loide, whiche hath sent vs to destroye it.

And Lot went out & spake vnto his sonnes in lawe, which shoulde haue maryed his dought-ters / and sayd: stande vp & get you out of this place, for the Loide wyl destroye the cite. But he semed as though he had mocked vnto his sonnes in lawe. And as the morning arose the angels cauled Lot to speke hym sayeng. Stande vp / take thy wyfe and thy two daughters, and that that is at hande, lest thou perishe in the synne of the cite. And as he prolonged the tyme the men caughte bothe hym, his wyfe, and his two daughters by the handes, because the loide was mercifull vnto hym / and they broughte hym forth and set hym without the cite. When they had brought them out / they sayd: Saue thy lyfe, and loke not behynde the, neyther tare thou in any place of the countrey, but saue thy selfe in the mountayne, lest thou perishe.

Then sayd Lot vnto them: Oh nay my Loide beholde, forasmuch as thy seruant hath founde grace in thy sight, now make thy mercy great / whiche thou shouldest vnto me, in sauynge my lyfe. For I can not saue my selfe in the moun-taynes, lest some mysfortune fall vpon me and I dye. Beholde, here is a cite by, to fle vnto / and it is a lytle one: let me saue my selfe therin: is it not a lytle one, that my soule may lue?
And he sayd to hym: se, I haue receyued thy request concernyng this thyng: I wyl not ouerthrowe this cite for whiche thou hast spoken.
Haste the / and saue thy lyfe there: for I can do nothinge tyl thou come in thither. And therfore the name of the cite is called zoar. And the sonne was vpon the erthe when Lot was entered in to zoar.

When the Loide capned vpon * Sodome and Gomorre, by synne and tye from the Loide out of heuen, and ouerthrowe those cites & al the region, & all that dwelled in the cites, and that that grewe vpon the erth. And Lots wyfe looked behynde her, & was turned in to a pyller of salt. Abraham rose vp early, and got hym to the place where he stode before the Loide, & looked towarde Sodome and Gomorre and to-warde all the lande of that countrey. And as he looked: beholde the smoke of the countrey arose as it had ben the smoke of a furnace. But yet when god destroyed the cites of the region, he thought vpon Abraham: & sent Lot * out fro the danger of the ouerthrowing, when he ouerthrowe the cites where Lot dwelled.

And Lot departed out of zoar and dwelled in the mountayns, & his. ii. daughters with hym, for he feared to tary in zoar: he dwelled therfore in a caue, bothe he and his. ii. daughters also.
Then sayd the elder vnto yonger: our father is olde, and there are no mo men in the erth to come in vnto vs after the maner of all y. wyld.
Come therfore, let vs geue our father wyne to drynke, and let vs lye with hym that we may saue seed of our father. And they gaue they sa-ther wyne to bynke that same nyght. And the elder daughter went and laye with her father.
And he perceyued it not, neither when she laye downe, neyther when she rose vp.

And on the morowe the elder sayd vnto the yonger: Beholde, yesternyght laye I with my father. Let vs geue hym wyne to drynke this might also, and go thou & lye with him, & let vs saue seed of our father. And they gaue theyr fa- ther wyne to drynke & night also. And the yon- ger arose and laye with him. And he perceyued it not: neyther when she laye downe, neyther when she rose vp. Thus were both the dought- ers of Lot with chylde by theyr father. And the eldste bare a sonne, and called hym Moab/ which is the father of the Moabys vnto this daye. And the yonger bare a sonne, and called hym Ben Ammi/ which is the father of the chil- dren of Ammon vnto this daye.

And Abraham departed thence towarde the south country and dwelled betwene Cades and Sur and sojourned in Se- rar. And Abraham sayd of Sara his wyfe that she was his syster. Then Abimelech kynge of Sear sent and fet Sara awaye.

* Gen. xlii. and xlii. b.

Abimelech is charged for Sara's sake.

And God came to Abimelech by nyghte in a dreame and sayd to hym: Se, thou arte but a deed man for the woman's sake whiche thou hast taken awaye, for she is a mannes wyfe. But Abimelech had not yet come nye her, and therefore sayd: Lorde, wylte thou slepe epyg- tous people? sayd not he vnto me, that she was his syster? yea, and sayde not she her selfe that he was her brother? with a pure herte and innocent handes haue I doone this. And God sayde vnto hym in a dreame. I wote it well that thou dydest it in the purenesse of thy herte. And therefore I kepte the that thou woldest not synne agaynste me / neyther suffered I the to come nyghe her. Now therefore deliuer to the man his wyfe agayne / for he is a pro- phete. And lette hym praye for the that thou mayest lye. But yf thou deliuer her not a- gayne, be sure that thou shalt & dye the death / with all that thou hast.

* Gen. xlii.

Then Abimelech rose vp by tymes in the morninge, and called all his seruantes / and tolde all these thynges in theyr cares / and the men were sore afearde. And Abimelech called Abraham and sayd vnto hym: what hast thou done vnto vs, & what haue I offended the, that thou shouldst bryng on me and on my kynge- dome so greete a synne? thou hast doone debes vnto me that ought not to be done. And Abi- melech sayd moreouer vnto Abraham: what sawest thou that moued the to do this thyng?

* The feare of god among the hebrewes is principal taken for the honore & fayth that we owe vnto god / & that with such a loue as the chylde hath to the fa- ther.

And Abraham answered. I thought that per- aduenture the & feare of God was not in this place / & that they shoulde slep me for my wyfes sake: yet in very dede she is my sister, the doughter of my father / but not of my mother: and became my wyfe. And after God caused me to wandre out of my fathers house / I sayd vnto her: This kynredes waile thou shewe vnto me in all places where we come, that thou saye of me, that I am thy brother.

Then toke Abimelech shepe and oxen / men seruantes, and women seruantes & gaue them vnto Abraham / and deliuered hym Sara his wyfe agayne. And Abimelech sayd: beholde the lande lyeth before the, dwell where it plea-seth the best. And vnto Sara he sayd: Se, I haue gauen thy brother a thousande peces of syluer, beholde this thyng shall be a couerynge to thyne eyes, and vnto all that are with the / and vnto all men an excuse.

And so Abraham prayed vnto God: & God healed Abimelech and his wyfe & his maydens so that they bare chyliden. For the Lorde had closed to all the matryces of the house of Abi- melech, bycause of Sara Abrahams wyfe.

The Lorde bysired Sara as he had sayd, and dyd vnto her & accordyng as he had promysed. And Sara was with chylde and bare Abraham a sonne in his olde age, euē the same season which the Lorde had appoynted. And Abraham called his sonnes name that was borne vnto him, which Sara & bare him Isaac / and Abraham & circumcised Isaac his sonne when he was, viij. dayes olde, as God commaunded hym. And Abraham was an hun- dred yere olde / when his sonne Isaac was borne vnto hym. And Sara sayd: God hath made me a laughyng stocke: for all that heare will laugh at me. She sayd also: who wolde haue sayd vnto Abraham, that Sara shoulde haue gauen chyliden luche / or that I shoulde haue borne hym a sonne in his olde age? The chylde grew, and was weaned, and Abraham made a greete feast the same daye that Isaac was weaned. Sara sawe the sonne of Agar the Egyptian which she had borne vnto Abrah- am a mockyng. Then she sayd vnto Abrah- am: cast awaye this & bondmayde & her sonne: for the sonne of this bondwoman shal not be heyre with my sonne Isaac: But the wordes seemed very greuous to Abrahams eyght, bycause of his sonne. Then the Lorde sayd vnto Abrah- am: let it not be greuous vnto the bycause of the chylde and of thy bondmayde: But in all that Sara hath sayd vnto the, heare her voyce: for in & Isaac shall thy seed be called. Moreover of the sonne of the bondwoman wylt I make a nation / because he is thy & seed.

And Abrahā rose vp early in the morninge and toke bread & a bottell with water, and gaue it vnto Agar, puttynge it on her sholders with the chylde also, and sent her away. And she departed & wandred vp & dwene in the wilderness of Berseba. When the water was spent she was in the bottell, she caste the chylde vnder a bush & went & sat her out of syght a greet way as it were a bowshot of: for she sayd: I wyl not se the chylde dye. And she sat downe out of syght, and lyfte vp her voyce and wepte.

And god herde the voyce of the chylde. And the aungell of God called Agar from aboue, and sayd vnto her: what ayleth the Agar? Feare not, for God hath herde the voyce of the chylde where he lyeth. Arise and lyfte vp the chylde / and take hym in thy hande: for I wyl make of hym a great people. And god opened her eyes and she sawe & a well of water. And she went and felld the bottell with water, and

And it chaunced the same season, that Abi- melech and Phicol his chiefe captayne spake vnto Abraham, sayenge: & God is with the in al that thou doest. Now therefore were vnto me euen here by God, that thou wylte not hurt me nor my chyliden, nor my chylidenes chyliden. But that thou shalt deale with me and the countrey where thou art a stranger, ac- cordyng vnto the kyndnesse that I haue shew- ed the. Then sayd Abraham: I wyl sweare.

And Abraham rebuked Abimelech for a well of water, whiche Abimelechs seruantes had taken awaye. And Abimelech answered, I wyl not who dyd it: also thou toldest me not, neyther herde I of it, afore this daye. And Abrah- am toke shepe and oxen and gaue them vnto Abimelech. And they made both of the a bonde together. And Abraham set. viij. lambes by them selues. And Abimelech sayd vnto Abrah- am: what meane these. viij. lambes whiche thou hast set by them selues. And he answered by. lambes wait thou take of my hande, that it maye be a wyrenesse vnto me, that I haue dygged this well: Wherfore the place is cal- led Berseba, because they were bothe of the. Thus made they a bond together at Berseba. Then Abimelech & Phicol his chiefe captayne rose vp and turned agayne vnto the lande of the Philistines. And Abraham planted a wod in Berseba, and called the name of the Lorde, the cuerlastynge God: and dwelt in the Philistin lande a longe season.

After these debes, God dyd & proue Abrahā and sayde vnto hym: Abrahā. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: take thy only sonne Isaac whom thou louest, and get the vnto the Lande Mozia, & sacrifice him there for a sacrifice vpon one of the mountaynes which I wil shewe the. The Abraham rose vp early in the morninge & sad- led his asse, and toke two of his meny with hym, and Isaac his sonne: and cloued wod for the sacrifice, and rose vp and got him to the place whiche God had appoynted him.

The thyrde daye Abraham lyft vp his eyes and sawe the place a farr off, and sayde vnto his yonge men: lyde here with the asse. I and the lad will go yonder and worshippe & come agayne vnto you. And Abrahā toke the wod of the sacrifice, & layd it vpon Isaac his sonne, and toke fyre in his hande and a knyfe. And they went both of them together.

Then spake Isaac vnto Abraham his fa- ther and sayde: My father? And he answered here am I my sonne. And he sayde: Se here is fyre and wod, but where is the shepe for sacri- fice? And Abraham sayde: my sonne, God will proude him a shepe for sacrifice. So wēt they bothe together.

And when they came vnto the place whiche God shewed hym, Abraham made an autter there, and dyelled the wod, and bounde Isaac his sonne, and & layde hym on the autter, & boue vpon the wod. And Abraham stretched forth his hande, & toke the knyfe to haue kil- led his sonne. When the aungell of the Lorde called vnto hym from heauen sayenge: Abrah- am Abraham? And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: laye not thy handes vpon the chylde, neyther do any thyng at all vnto hym, for now I knowe that thou fearest God, in that thou hast not spared thyne only sonne for my sake. And Abraham lyfted vp his eyes and lo- ked aboute: and beholde, there was a ramme caught by the hoines in the bysses. And he wēt and toke the ram and offered hym by for a sa- crifice in the steade of his sonne. And Abrahā called the name of the place, the Lorde wyll se: wherfore it is a comen sayenge this daye: in the mount will the Lorde be seene.

* James. i. d. & i. d.

And the aungell of the Lorde cryed vnto Abrahā from heauen the second tyme sayeng: by my selfe haue I & sowne (sayth the Lorde) because thou hast done this thyng and hast not spared thy only sonne, that I will blesse & multiply thy seed as the sterres of heauen, & as the & sonde vpon the see syde. And thy seed shall possesse the gates of his enemyes. And in thy seed shall all the & nations of the earth be blessed, because thou hast obeyed my voyce. So turned Abraham agayne vnto his yonge men, and they rose vp and wente together to Berseba. And Abraham dwelt at Berseba. And it chaunced after these thynges, that one tolde Abraham sayenge: Beholde, Milca the hath also borne chyliden vnto thy brother Nachor: Bus his eldest sonne, and Bus his bro- ther, and Remuel the father of the Syrians, and Esed, and Bal, and Yldas, and Jed- laph, and Bethuel. And Bethuel begate Re-becca. These. viij. dyd Milca bere to Nachor Abrahams brother. And his concubine called Hecuma we bare also Tebah, Saha, & Haas and Maacha.

CAPI.

XXIII.

Sara was an hundred and. xxiij. yere olde (for so longe lyued she) and than dyed in a heade cytie called Hebzon in the lande of Canaan. Then Abraham came to moyne and betwape Sara. And when Abraham rode vp frome the funeralles, he talked with the sonnes of Beth, sayenge: I am a stranger and a sojner amonges you, geue me a possession to burie in with you, that I maye bury my dead out of my syght. And the children of Beth an- swered Abraham sayeng vnto hym: Heare vs Lorde, thou art a prince of God amonge vs. In the cheffest of our sepulchres bury thy dead: None of vs shall forbyd the his sepulchre, that thou shouldest not bury thy dead therein. Abrahā rode vp, and reuerently thanked the people of the lande the chyliden of Beth. And sayde vnto them: If it be poure myndes that

I will bury my deade out of my sight, heare me and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar: and let hym geue me the double caue whiche he hath in the ende of his feide, for so muche money as it is worth, let hym geue it me in the presence of you, for a possesid to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the chyldren of Heth.

Then Ephron the Hethite answered Abraham in the audience of the chyldren of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of his cite, sayinge: Not so my Lorde, but heare me: The feide geue I the, and the caue that therein is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the to bury thy deed in. Then Abraham bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande, and spake vnto Ephron in the audience of the people of the contee, sayinge: I praye the heare me, I will geue spuer for the feide, take it of me, and so wyll I bury my deed there. Ephron answered Abraham, sayinge: My Lorde hearken vnto me. The lande is worth. iiii. C. spies of spuer: but what is that betwene the and me? burye thy deed. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron, and payde hym the spuer whiche he had sayde in the audience of the sonnes of Heth, that is to wyte. iiii. C. spuer spies of currant money amonge marchauntes. Thus was Ephrons feide wherin the double caue is before Hamor: aswell the feide as the caue that is therein, and all the trees of the feide whiche growe in all the borders rounde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the sight of the chyldren of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of the cite. And then Abraham buried Sara his wyfe in the double caue of the feide that lyeth before Hamor, otherwyse called Ephron in the lande of Canaan. And so bothe the feide & the caue that is therein, was made Abrahams sure possession to bury in, of the sonnes of Heth.

Abraham maketh his seruante to sweare: & sendeth him to seke a wyfe for Isaac his sonne. The seruante was faithfull and brought Rebecca wyf for Isaac toke to his wyfe.

C API. XXIII.

Abraham was olde and steepe in age, & the Lorde had blessed him in all thinges. And he sayde vnto his eldest seruante of his house whiche had the rule ouer all that he had: & put thy hande vnder my thye that I maye make the sweare by the Lorde that is God of heauen and God of the earth, & thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of the Cananites, amonge which I dwell. But walte go vnto my countrey and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac.

Then sayde the seruante vnto him: What of the womā will not agree to come with me vnto this lande, shall I bringe thy sonne agayne vnto the lande whiche thou camest out of? And Abraham sayde vnto him: beware of that, that thou bringe not my sonne thither. The Lorde God of heauen which toke me from my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, & which spake vnto me and sweare vnto me sayinge: vnto thy seed wilt I geue this lande, he shall sende his angell before the that thou mayest take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Reuerchelesse if the womā will not agree to come with the then shalt thou be without daunger of this othe. But aboue all thinge bringe not my sonne thither agayne. And the seruante put his hande vnder the thye of Abraham and swaie to hym concerninge & matter. And the seruante toke. x. camels of his masters and departed, and had all maner goodes of his master with him, and rode by & went to Mesopotamia, vnto the cite of Haran. And made his camels to lye downe without the cite by a well spde at euen: aboute the tyme that women come to drawe water, and he sayde.

Lorde God of my master Abraham, send me good spede this daye / and bestowe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stande here by the well and the daughters of the men of this cite will come out to drawe water: Nowe the damsell to whome I saye, bowe downe thy pitcher, & let me drinke. If she saye: Drynke, and I wyll geue thy camels drinke also, that same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruante Isaac: yea and thereby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe ouer euer he had lefte speakinge, that Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Haran: Abrahams brother, and her pitcher vpon her shoulde: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, a mayde and vnknewen of man. And she went downe to the well, & fylled hyr pitcher and came by agayne. Then the seruante ran vnto her and sayde: let me sup a litle water at thy pitcher. And she sayde: drinke sy.

And she halted and late downe her pitcher vpon her arme and gaue him drinke. And when she had geuen hym drinke, she sayde: I wyll drawe water for thy camels also, vntill they haue drinke ynough. And she poured out hyr pitcher into the trouge hastily, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to set water: and drew for all his camels. And the felowe wondered at her. But helde his peace, to wete whether the Lorde hadde made his iourney prosperous or not. And as the camels had left drynkinge / he toke a golden eare ring of half a spie weight and two braceletes for hyr handes, of. x. spies weyght of golde, & sayd vnto her: Whose daughter arte thou? tell me: is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? And she sayde vnto hym: I am the daughter of Bethuel the sonne of Milca / whiche she bare vnto Haran: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue lictre and prouender ynough, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed hym self, and worshipped the Lorde: and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche reaseth not to deale mercifully & truly with my master, and hath brought me the wyfe to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ran and tolde vnto the ym of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And

And Laban ran out vnto the man, to the well: for as soone as he had seene the eare ringes and the braceletes vpon his sisters handes, and heede the wordes of Rebecca his sister, sayinge: thus sayd the man vnto me, the he went out vnto the man. And lo, he rode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherfore standest thou withoute? I haue dressed by the house, and made rowme for the camels. And the man came into the house and he vnbrydled the camels: & brought lictre and prouender for the camels, & water to wash his fete & thier fete that were with him, and there was meate set before him to eate. But he sayde: I will not eate, tyll I haue sayd my message. And he sayd: say on. And he sayd: I am Abrahams seruante, and the Lorde hath blessed my master out of measure, so that he is become great, and hath geuen hym shepe, oxen, spuer & golde, menservantes, maydeservantes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare him a sonne, when she was olde: to whom hath he geuen all that he hath. And my master made me sweare sayinge: thou shalt not seke a wyfe to my sonne amonge the daughters of the Cananites in whose lande I dwell. But shalt go to my fathers house and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayd vnto my master: what if the wyfe will not folow me? And he said vnto me: The Lorde before whome I walke, wyll sende his angel with the, & prosper thy iourney that thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But if (when thou comest vnto my kynred) they will not geue the one, then shalt thou beere no peccell of myne othe.

And I came this daye vnto the well & sayde: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, if it be so that thou makest my iourney which I go, prosperous: beholde I stande by this well of water, and when a brygge cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me a spie of water of thy pitcher to drinke, & she saye agayne to me: drinke thou, and I wyll also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whome the Lorde hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And afore I had made an ende of speakinge in myne harte: beholde Rebecca came forth, & her pitcher on her shoulde, & she went downe to the well and drew. And I sayde vnto her: geue me drinke. And she made haste, and toke downe her pitcher frome her shoulde, & sayde: drinke, and I wil geue thy camels drinke also. And I dranke, & she gaue my camels drinke also. And I asked her sayinge: whose daughter arte thou? she answered: the daughter of Bethuel Harans sonne, whome Milca bare vnto him. And I put the eare ringes vpon her face and the braceletes vpon her handes. And I bowed my self, and worshipped the Lorde, and blessed the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche had brought me the right wyfe, to take my masters brothers daughter vnto his sonne. Now therefore if ye wyll deale mercifully and truly with my master, tell me: yf not tell me also: that I maye turne me to the right hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, sayinge: The thinge is proceed of the Lorde, we can not therfore saye vnto the, eyther good or bad: beholde Rebecca before thy face, take her and go, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, as the Lorde hath appointed. And when Abrahams seruante herde thier wordes, he bowed hym to the Lorde, flat vpon the earthe. And the seruante toke forth twels of spuer & twels of golde and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vnto her brother and to her mother he gaue spues. And then they ate and dranke, both he & the men that were with him, & tarped all nyght and rose vp in the morninge.

And he sayde: let me departe vnto my master. But her brother and her mother sayd: let the damsell abyde with vs a while, at the lest x. dayes, and then go thy wayes. And he sayd vnto them: byndet me not, for the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye that I maye go to my master. And they sayde: let vs call the damsell, and wytte what she saith to the matter. So they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wilt thou go with this man? And she sayde: yea.

So they let Rebecca their sister goo with her noile and Abrahams seruante, & the men that were with him. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou arte sure syster growe into thousande thousandes, & thy seed possesse the gates of thier enemyes. And Rebecca arose and her damiels, and sat them vpon the camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the seruante toke Rebecca, and went his waye.

And Isaac was comynge frome the well of the x. iij. ynge and seynge, for he dwelt in the south countrey, and was gone out to walke in his meditations about the euen tye. And he lyt by his eyes and looked, and beholde the camels were comynge. And Rebecca lyt vpon her eyes, and when she sawe Isaac, she lpghted downe of the camel, and sayd vnto the seruante: what man is this that cometh agaynst vs in the feide? And the seruante sayd: it is my master. Then she toke her mantell, and put it about her. And the seruante tolde Isaac all & he had done. Then Isaac brought her into his mother Saras tente, and toke Rebecca, & she became his wyfe, and he loued her: and so was Isaac comforted ouer his mother.

Abraham taketh Bethura to his wyfe: & begetteth many chyldren. Abraham dyeth & geueth all his goodes to Isaac. The genealogie of Isaac. The byrth of Jacob and Esau. Esau sellith his title of enheritaunce for a messe of pottage.

C API. XXV.

Abraham toke hym another wyfe called Bethura, whiche bare hym Suran, Jeklan, Medan, Midian, Shuah, and Jeklan begat Seba and Dedan. And the sonnes of Dedan were Adum, Refusim and Teumim. And the sonnes of Midian were Ephra, Ephra, Hanoch, Abida, and Elda. All these were the chyldren of Bethura. But Abraham gaue all that he hadde, presence of Isaac his father: but Esau his brother was come from hunting, and had made also meate, and brought it unto his father, & sayde unto hym: arysie my father and eat of thy sonnes venyson, that thy soule may be blessed. Then his father Isaac sayde unto hym: who arte thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was astonied out of measure, and sayde: Where is he then that hath hunted venyson and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, & have blessed hym, and he shall be blessed. Wherfore Isaac perke the wordes of his father, he cryed out greatly and bytteryly aboute measure, and sayde to his father: blese me also my father. And he sayde: thy brother came with subtiltye, and hath taken awaye thy blessing. The sayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hath undermyne me now two tymes, for he hath taken awaye my heritage: and I have taken awaye my blessing also. And he sayde: had thou kept neuer a blessing for me?

Isaac answered and sayde unto Esau: beholde I have made hym thy lord, and all his mothers children have I made his seruantes. Moreover, with coine and wyne have I bought hym, what can I do unto the now my sonne? And Esau sayde unto his father: hade thou but that one blessing my father? blese me also my father: so spake Esau his voyce and * wepte. Then Isaac his father answered and sayd unto hym: beholde thy dwelling place shall haue of the fatnesse of the earth, & of the dewe of heauen from aboue. And with thy swerde shalt thou lyue, and shalt be thy brothers seruant. But the tyme will come, when thou shalt get the masterye, and lowse his yoke frome thy necke.

And Esau * hated Jacob, because of the blessing with which his father blessed hym, and sayde in his harte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, for I will sle my brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sent and called Jacob her yonger sonne, and sayde unto hym: beholde thy brother Esau threatneth to kyll the: now therefore my sonne heare my voyce, make the redy, and flee to Laban my brother at Haran: and tarpe with hym a whyle tyll thy brothers fearnesse be asswaged, and tyll thy brothers wrath turne awaye frome the, and he forget that whiche thou hast done to hym. Then will I sende and let the awaye frome thence. Why shouldest thou lose you bothe in one daye? And Rebecca spake to Isaac: I am wepe of my lyfe, for feare of the daughters of Beth. If Jacob take a wyfe of the daughters of Beth, suche one as these are, or of the daughters of the lande, what luss wuld I haue to lyue.

¶ Jacob is sent into Mesopotamia / to Laban for a wyfe. Esau marreth an Ismaelite. Jacob dyeth: and a dymme. This is promysed. Jacob maketh a bowe.

XXVIII.

¶ When Isaac called Jacob his sonne, and blessed hym / and charged hym, saying: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Canaan, but arysie and get the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the daughters of Laban thy vncle. And God almightie blessed the, increase the, and multiplie the that thou mayest be a nombre of people, & geue the the blessing of Abraham: bothe to the and to thy seed with the, that thou mayest possesse the lande (wherin thou arte a stranger) whiche God gaue unto Abraham. Thus Isaac sent forth Jacob / to go to Mesopotamia unto Laban / sonne of Bethuel the Syrian / and broget to Rebecca Jacobs and Esaus mother.

¶ When Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob / and sent hym to Mesopotamia / to get hym a wyfe thence / and that as he blessed hym / he gaue hym a charge / saying: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Canaan: and that Jacob had obeyed his fathers charge, and was gone to Mesopotamia: and saynge also that the daughters of Canaan pleased not Isaac his father: then went he unto Ismael, and toke unto the wyues whiche he had, Mahala the daughter of Ismael Abrahams sonne, the sister of Rebeccah to be his wyfe. Jacob departed from Berseba, and went towards Haran, and came unto a place, and tarped there all nyght, because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, and put it vnder his head: and layde him downe in the same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and beholde there stode a ladder vpon the earth, & the top of it reached vp to heauen. And se, the angels of God went vp and downe vpon it: yea and the Lord stode vpon it, and sayde:

I am the Lord God of Abraham / thy father, and the God of Isaac: the lande on whiche thou sleepest wyl I geue the and thy seed. And thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth: and thou shalt sprede abrode: west, east, north and south. And thou shalt take the lande: and thou shalt all the kyndes of the earth be blessed. And se I am with the, and will be thy keeper in all places whither thou goest, & will bringe the agayne into this lande: nepther wyl I leaue the tyll I haue performed all that I haue promysed the.

¶ When Jacob was awaked out of his slepe he sayde: surely the Lord is in this place / & I wyl not. And he was alarayed and sayd: how fearefull is this place: it is none other but the house of God: and the gate of heauen. And Jacob stode vp early in the morning and toke the stone that he had layd vnder his head, and pitched it up an ende, & poured oyle on the top of it. And he called the name of the place Bethel, for the name of the cite was called Lus, before tyme. And Jacob bowed a bowe / saying: It God wyl be with me, and wyl kepe me in this iourney whiche I go, and wyl geue me bread to eat, and clothes to put on, so that I come agayne unto my fathers house in sautie: then shall the Lord be my God / and this stone, whiche I haue set set vp an ende: shall be Gods house: and of all that thou shalt aske me, wyl I geue the: & thy lyf shall be in the.

¶ Jacob cometh to Laban and serueth seven yere for Rachel. Lea was brought to him in wedde of Rachel: she marreth them both: and serueth yet. y. yere more for Rachel. Lea conceiveth.

XXX.

¶ When Jacob lyfte vp his feete, and went towards the West countrey. And as he looked aboute, beholde there was a well in the fild, and thre flockes of shepe laye there by (for at that wel were the flockes watered) and there laye a grete stone at the well mouth. And the marie was to byng the flockes thither, and to roulle the stone from the welles mouth, and to water the shepe: and to put the stone agayne vpon the welles mouth into his place. And Jacob sayde unto them: Brethren wherfore he ye? And they sayd, of Haran are we. And he sayd unto them: knowe ye Laban the sonne of Habor? And they sayd: we knowe hym. And he sayde vnto them: is he in good helth? And they sayd: he is in good helth, and beholde, his daughter Rachel cometh with the shepe. And he sayd, lo, it is yet a greet while to night: neither is it tyme that the cattell shuld be gathered together: water the shepe, and go and feede them. And they sayd: we maye not, for all the flockes be brought together, and the stone be roulled from the welles mouth: and so we water our shepe.

¶ When Laban herd tell of Jacob his sisters son, he came to meete hym, and embraced hym, and kysed hym, and brought him to his house. And then Jacob tolde Laban all the matter. And then Laban sayd: well, thou art my bone and my fleshe. Abode with me the space of a moneth. And afterwards Laban sayd unto Jacob: Thouge thou be my kynsman / holdest thou therefore serue me for nought? tell me what shall thy wages be? And Laban had. y. daughters, the eldest called Lea, and the yongest Rachel. Lea was loze eyed, but Rachel was beautifull and well fauoured. And Jacob loved her well, and sayde: I wyl serue the seven yere for Rachel thy yongest daughter. And Laban answered: it is better that I geue her to the than to an other man: abyde therefore with me.

¶ And Jacob serued * seven yeres for Rachel, and they seemed vnto hym but a fewe dayes: for the loue he had to her. And Jacob sayd vnto Laban: geue me my wyfe that I maye lye with her, for the tyme appoynted is come.

and made a feast. And when even was come, he toke Lea his daughter and brought her to hym: and he lay with her. And Laban gaue to his daughter Lea Zilpha his mayde, to be her seruant. And when the morning was come beholde it was Lea. When sayd he to Laban: wherfore hast thou played thus with me? do not I serue the for Rachel, wherfore then hast thou begyled me? Laban answered: it is not the maner of this countrey, to marre the yongest before the eldest. Passe out this weke, and then shall this also be geuen the for the seruyce whiche thou shalt serue me yet. yet. yeres more. And Jacob dyd euen so, and passed out that weke, & then he gaue hym Rachel his daughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rachel his daughter, Bilha his handmayde to be her seruant. So laye he by Rachel also, and loured Rachel more then Lea, and serued hym yet. y. yeres more.

¶ When the Lord sawe that Lea was despyed, he made her fructifull: but Rachel was barren. And Lea conceived and bare a sonne, and called his name Ruben: for she sayd: the Lord hath looked vpon my tribulation. And now my husbande wyl loue me. And she conceived agayne and bare a sonne, and sayd: the Lord hath herde that I am despyed, and hath therefore geuen me this sonne also: and she called hym * Symeon. And she conceived yet and bare a sonne, and sayd: now this ones wyl my husbande kepe me companye, because I haue borne hym thre sonnes: and therefore she called his name Issachar. And she conceived yet agayne and bare a sonne saying: now wyl I prayse the Lord, therefore she called his name Judah: and left bearynge.

¶ Rachel and Lea beynge bothe barren geue thei maydens vnto thei husbands: & they bare hym childyren. Jacob duceuerth Laban in the conceyvinge of the shepe and kyddes. Jacobs reward for his seruyce.

XXX.

¶ When Rachel sawe that she bare Jacob no children, she enuyed her sister / and sayd vnto Jacob: Geue me children, or els I am but deere. Then was Jacob worthe with Rachel saying: Am I in Gods sted, whiche kepeth the the frute of thy wombe? Then she sayd: here is my mayde Bilha: lye with her, that she maye beare vpon my lappes, that I may be increased by her. And she gaue hym Bilha her handmayde to wyfe. And Jacob laye with her: and Bilha conceived and bare Jacob a sonne. When sayd Rachel. God hath geuen sentence on my lyde: and hath also herde my voyce: and hath geuen me a sonne. Therefore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Racheles mayde conceived agayne, and bare Jacob an other sonne. And Rachel sayd: God is turned, and I haue made a chaunge w. my sister, and haue gotten the vpper hande. And she called his name Naphtali.

¶ When Lea sawe that she had left bearynge / she toke S'pha her mayde, and gaue her to Jacob to wyfe. And S'pha Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. When sayd Lea: Good lucke: and called his name Gad. And S'pha Leas mayde bare bare Jacob an other sonne. Then sayd Lea:

happy am I, for the daughters wyll call me blessed, and called his name Aser.

And Ruben went out in the wheet harvest tyme, and found mandragoras in the felde, e brought them vnto his mother Lea. Then sayde Rachel to Lea, geue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. And Lea answered: Is it not proughe that thou hast taken away my husbande, but wouldest take away my sonnes mandragoras also? Then said Rachel, wel let him stepe with the this night, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And when Jacob came from the felde at euen / Lea wente out to mete hym, and sayd: Ipe with we, for I haue bought the
with my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slept with her that nyght. And God herde Lea, that she conceived and bare vnto Jacob the fyfth sonne. Then sayde Lea: God hath gyuen me my rewarde, because I gaue my mapden to my husbande: & he called hym Jachar. And Lea conceived yet agayne, & bare Jacob the sixth sonne. Then sayde she: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my husbande dwell with me, because I haue borne hym. & called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a daughter, and called her Dinah.

And she remembred Rachel, herd her, and made her fructfull: so that she conceived and bare a son, and sayd: God hath taken awaye my rebuke. And he called his name Joseph, saying: The Lorde gyue me yet an other son.
As sone as Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob said to his father in lawe: Send me away that I may go vnto my owne place & coutrye / geue me my wyues, and my chyldren for whom I haue scrued the, & let me go, for thou knowest what scrupce I haue done the. Then sayd Laban vnto hym: Yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blest me for thy sake) appoynte what thy re-warde shall be, and I wyll geue it the. Then he sayd vnto hym, thou knowest what scrupce
I haue done the / and in what case thy cattell haue ben vnder me: for it was but lytle that thou haddest before I came / and now it is en-creased in to a multitude / and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But now when shall I make proupyon for myne owne house also.
And he sayd: what shall I then geue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt geue me nothing at all so thou wilt do this one thyng for me, and then wyll I turne agayne & fede thy shepe and kepe them.

So thou aboute all thy shepe this day, and separate from them all the shepe that are spotted and of diuers colours, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambes. And then loke, all that shall be party coloured, blacke and spotted, as wel amonge the shepe as the hyddes, the same shall be my rewarde. So shall my eyghthous-nes answere for me, when the tyme cometh that I shall receyue my rewarde of the, so that what so euer is not speckled and party among the goates and blacke amonge the lambes / let that be thysse with me. Then sayd Laban: Lo I am content, that it be accordyng as thou hast said. And he sorted out that same daye the goates that were party and of diuers colours, and all the hyddes that were spotted and party coloured, and all that had wyght in them, and all the blacke amonge the lambes, and put them in the keepynge of his sonnes / and sette thysse dayes iourney betwene hym selfe and Jacob: And so Jacob kepte the reue of La-bans shepe.

Jacob toke rodde of grene popull, hawell, and of chesnottes, and pyllid wyghte streakes in them, and made the wyghte appere in the haues:
And he layde the haues whiche he had pyllid betwene the shepe in the gutters and watynge trowghes / when the shepe came to drynke:
that they shoulde conceyue when they came to drynke. And the shepe conceived before the haues & brought forth speckled, spotted, and party coloured. Then Jacob banded the flock and put the rodde in the trowghes before the eyes of the shepes and all wyghte & all blacke were Labans, but the reysdue were Jacobs, and he scuered the flockes one from an other.
And alwaye in the fyfth buckynge tyme of the shepe. Jacob put the haues before the shepe in the gutters, that they myght conceyue before the haues: But in the latter buckynge tyme he put them not there: so the last broode was Labans, and the fyfth Jacobs. And the man became exceeding rich, and hadde many shepe, mayde seruantes / men seruantes / camelles and asses.

At the commaundment of God, Jacob departed from Laban, and toke his goodes with hym. Rachel desired her fathers ymages. Laban foloweth Jacob. The couenaunt betwene Laban and Jacob.

CAP. XXXI.

And Jacob herd the wordes of Labans sonnes how they sayd: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was our fathers / and of our fathers goodes hath he gotten all this honour. And Jacob behelde the counsaile of Laban, that it was not towarde him as it was in tymes past. And the Lorde sayde vnto Jacob: Euen agayne in to the lande of of thy fathers, and to thy kynred, and I wyll be with the. Then Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the felde vnto his shepe, and said vnto them: I se your fathers countenance that it is not towarde me as in tymes past.
Moreouer the God of my father hath ben with me. And ye knowe how that I haue ser-ued your father with all my myght. And your father hath deceyued me, and chaunged my wages. x. tymes: but God suffred hym not to harme me. When he sayd, the spotted shall be thy wages, then all the shepe were spotted. Yf he sayd, the speckled shall be thy rewarde, then were all the shepe speckled: thus hath God taken awaye your fathers cattell, and gyuen the me. For in buckynge tyme I lyfted up myne eyes and sawe in a dreame / and beholde, the rammes that bucked the shepe were straked, spotted, and partye. And the angell of God spoke vnto me in a dreame, sayinge: Jacob?
And I answered: here am I. And he sayd, lyft up thine eyes and se, how all the rammes that leape vpon the shepe are straked, spotted, and partye:

Then answered Rachel and Lea, and sayd vnto hym: we haue no parte nor enheritaunce in our fathers house, he counterth vs as stragers: for he hath solde vs, and hath eaten vp the price of vs. Moreouer all the ryches whiche the God hath taken frome our father, that is ours and our chyldrens. Now therefore what so euer God hath sayd vnto the, that do. The Jacob rose vp, and let his sonnes and wyues vpon camels, and carped awaye all his castell and all his substance whiche he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Isaac his father vnto the lande of Canaan. Laban was gone to * where his shepe, and Rachel had solen her fathers ymages. And Jacob stole away pryncely frome Laban the Syrien, and tolde him not that he wolde departe. So fled he and all that he had, and made him selfe redy, & passed ouer the ryuers, & wente streyght towarde the mount Gilead.

Upon the thirde daye after, was it tolde Laban that Jacob fled. Then he toke his byrthe with hym, and pursued hym. viij. dayes iour-ney, and ouertoke hym at the mount Gilead.
And God came to Laban & Syrian in a dreame by nyghte, and sayde vnto hym: take hede to thy selfe, that thou speake not to Jacob ouer warpe. And Laban ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched his tente in the mounte. And Laban with his brethren, pitched their tente also vpon the mount Gilead. Then sayde Laban to Jacob: why hast thou this done to sleale
awaye frome me, and carpe awaye my doughters as though they had bene taken captiue with the swerde? Wherefore wentest thou awaye secretly vnknothen to me, and byddest not tell me, that I myghte haue brought the
on the waye with myth, syngynge, tymrels, and harpes, and hadde not suffered me to kisse my children and my daughters? Thou wast a fole to do it, for I am hable to to you euyl.
But the God of youre father spake vnto me yesterday, saying: take hede that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. And now thoughe thou wouldest thy waye, because thou longest after thy fathers house, yet wherefore hast thou stolen my goodes?

Jacob answered and sayde to Laban: I departed pryncely / because I was afraid, and thought that thou wouldest haue taken awaye thy daughters frome me. But where as thou doest calenge me for thesse, with whom to e-uer thou syndest thy goddes, let hym dye here before ouer brethren. Seke that thyne is with me, and take it to the: for Jacob wilt not that Rachel had stolen them. Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tente, and into Leas tente, and in to the two maydens tentes: but founde the not. Then wente he out of Leas tente, & entered into Rachels tente. And Rachel toke the ymages and put them in the camels strawe, & late downe vpon them. And Laban scrched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde he to her father: Sye, be not angrye that I can not fynde by before the, for the discale of women is come vpon me. So searched he, but founde them not.

Jacob was wyth, and chode with Laban.
Jacob also answered and sayde to hym: what haue I trespassed, or what haue I offended, that thou folowedest after me? Thou hadde scrched all my stuffe, and what hadde thou founde of all thy howtholde stuffe? put it here before thy brethren and myne, and let them iudge betwene vs both. This. xx. pere that I haue bene with the, thy shepe and thy gootes haue not bene barren, and the rammes of thy flocke, haue I not eaten. What so euer was rome of beasles, I brought it not vnto the, but made it good my selfe: of my hande byddest thou require it, whether it was stolen by daye or nyght. Moreouer, by daye the herte consumed me, and the colde by nyght, and my slepe I departed frome myne eyes.

Thus haue I bene. xx. pere in thy house, & scrud the * xij. yeres for thy. v. doughters,
vi. pere for thy shepe, and thou hadst chaunged my rewarde. x. tymes. And except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the God whom Isaac & I searcth had bene with me: surely thou haddest sent me awaye now all empty. But God behelde my tribulation, and the labour of my handes: and rebuked the yesterday.

Laban answered and sayd vnto Jacob: the doughters are my doughters, and the chyldren are my chyldren, and the shepe, are my shepe, and all that thou seyst is myne. And what can I do this daye, vnto these my doughters, or vnto their chyldren whiche they haue borne?
Nowe therefore come on, let vs make a bonde,
I and thou togither, and let it be a wytnesse betwene the and me. Then toke Jacob a stone and set it vp for a pyler and marke stone, and sayde vnto his brethren, gather stones. And they toke stones, and made an heape, & they ate there vpon the heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead, cyther of them after the propertie of his language.

Then sayde Laban: this heape be * wytnesse betwene the and me this daye, (therefore is it called Gilead) The Lorde loke & iuge be-twene me & the, when we ar departed one fro another: that thou shalt not bere my doughters, neyther walte take other wyues vnto them. Here is no man with vs: beholde, God is wytnesse betwene the and me. And Laban sayd moreouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape and this marke whiche I haue set here, be-twene me and the: this heape be wytnesse and also this marke, that I wyll not come ouer this heape to the, and thou shalt not come ouer this heape & this marke to do any harme.
The God of Abraham, the God of Rahol, and the God of their fathers / be iudge be-twene vs.

And Jacob sware by hym that his father Isaac feared. Then Jacob byd sacrifice vpon the mount, & called his brethren to cate bird.

And they ate bread and tarped all night in the byll. And early in the morning Laban rose up and kissed his chyldren and his daughters, and blessed them and departed and went unto his place again, but Jacob went forth on his iourney, and the angels of God came & met hym. And when Jacob sawe them, he sayd: this is Gods host, and called the name of that same place, Mahanaim.

The vision of the angels. Jacob sendeth presentes unto his brother Esau. How he wrestled with the angel which chaunged his name and called hym Israel.

CAP. XXXII.

A Iacob sente messengers before hym to Esau his brother, unto the lande of Seir and the feild of Edom. And he commaunded them sayinge: Se that ye speake after this maner to my Lorde Esau: thy seruante Jacob sayth thus. I haue iourneyed and ben a stranger with Laban unto this tyme and haue gotten oxen, asses and shepe, men seruantes and women seruantes, and now I sende imballage to the my Lorde, that I maye fynde grace in thy sight. And the messengers came agayne to Jacob sayinge: We came unto thy brother Esau, and he cometh agaynst the & my hundred men with hym. Then was Jacob greatly afraide and wyl not which way to turne hym self, and deuised the people that was with hym, & the shepe, oxen, and camels in to two companies, and sayd: If Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other may saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac: Lorde which sayest vnto me, retuene vnto thy country and to thy kynred, and I wyl do all well with the. I am not worthy of the leed of all the mercies and trouthes whiche thou hast bestowed vnto thy seruante. For with my staffe came I ouer this Jordan, and now haue I gotten two broues. Deluyte me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym, lest he wyl come and smyte the mother with the chyldren. Thou sayest that thou wouldest surely do me good, and wouldest make my seed as the sande of the see, whiche can not be nombed for multitude.

To go with a staffe is a maner of spekinge of the Hebrewes which signifieth nothing els but to go simply bare by a with oute any speches or strength as in Gen. vi. b.

And he tarped there that same nyghte / and toke of that which came to hande, a present vnto Esau his brother two hundred shepe, and two hundred asses, and two hundred oxen, and two hundred camels, and he gave them to his seruantes. And he put the shepe in two companies, and the asses in two companies, and the oxen in two companies, and the camels in two companies, and he went on his iourney. And he commaunded the forerunners, sayinge.

When Esau my brother meeteth the and asketh the saying: whose seruante art thou, and whither goest thou, and whose are these that go before the: thou shalt say, they be thy seruante Jacobs, and are a present sent vnto my Lorde Esau, and behold, he hym selfe cometh after vs. And so commaunded he the seconde and euen to the thyrde / and lyke wyse all that folowed the broues sayinge, of this maner se that ye speake vnto Esau when ye mete hym and sayd moreouer. Beholde thy seruante Jacob cometh after vs, for he sayd I wyl please his wyath with the present that goeth before me, and afterwarde I wyl se hym my selfe / so peraduenture he wyl receyue me to grace. So went the present before hym, and he tarped all that nyght in the tence / and rose up the same nyght, and toke his two wyues and his ii. maydens, and his xi. sonnes, and went ouer the forde Jacob. And he toke them and sent them all ouer the ryuer, and tarped behynde hym selfe alone.

And there was a man with hym vnto the breakepence of the daye. And when he sawe that he coulde not pteuayle agaynst hym he smote hym vnder the thygh, and the senow of Jacobs thygh was ranke as he was with hym. And he sayd: let me go, for the daye breaketh. And he sayd: I wyl not let the go, excepte thou blesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. And he sayde: thou shalt be called Jacob no more / but Israel. For thou hast wrestled with God, and hast pteuayled.

And Jacob asked hym sayinge, tell me thy name. And he sayd, wherfore dost thou aske after my name? and he blessed hym there. And Jacob called the name of the place Bethel, for I haue sene God face to face, and yet is my lyfe referued. And as he wente ouer Bethel the sonne rose vpon hym, and he halted vpon his thygh, wherfore the chyldren of Israel eate not of the senow of the thygh vnto this daye / because that he smote Jacob vnder the thygh in the senowe that was ranke.

Esau and Jacob are agreed. And Jacob came to Sichem.

CAP. XXXIII.

Iacob lyst by his eyes and sawe his brother Esau come, and with hym iiii. c. men. And he diuided his chyldren vnto Lea, vnto Rachel, and vnto his two women seruantes. And he set the women seruantes & the chyldren formost, and Lea & her chyldren after, and Rachel & Joseph vndermost. And him selfe went before them and fell on the ground. By tymes tyme he came vnto his brother.

Esau ran to mete hym and embraced hym and fell on his necke & kissed hym, and they wepte. And he lyst by his eyes & sawe the wyues and the chyldren, & said: what are these which thou hast? And he sayd: they are the chyldren whiche God hath gyven thy seruante. Then came the maydens forth, and they obersaunce. Lea also and her chyldren came and tid they obersaunce. And last of all came Joseph and Rachel, and they obersaunce.

And he sayde: what meanest thou with all the broues which I met. And he answered: to fynde grace in the sighte of my Lorde. And Esau sayd: I haue ynough my brother kepe that thou hast vnto thy selfe. Jacob answered: oh nay, but if I haue founde grace in thy sighte, receyue my present of my hande: for I haue sene thy face as thoughe I had sene the face of God, wherfore receyue me to grace and take my blessing that I haue brought the for god hath gyven it me. And I haue ynough of all thyngs. And so he compelled hym to take it. And he said: let vs take our iourney and go. And I wyl go in thy companye. And he sayde vnto hym: my lorde knoweth that I haue ten chyldren / wyues and kyn with ponge vnder myne hand, which if men shold ouerbynde but euen one daye, the hole flocke woulde dye. Let my Lorde therefore go before his seruante, and I wyl dyue sayre and softly, accordynge as the catell that goeth before me and the chyldren be hable to endure: till I come to my lorde vnto Set.

And Esau said: let me yet leaue some of my folke with the. And he sayd: what needeth it? let me fynde grace in the sighte of my lorde. So Esau went his waye agayne that same daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke his iourney towardes Succoth, and dyt hym an house, & made bootches for his catell: wherfore the name of the place is called Succoth.

And Jacob came peaceably in to the cite of Sichem in the lande of Canaan, after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pitched before the cite, and bought parcell of grounde where he pitched his tent, of the chyldren of Demos Sichems father, for an hundred lambes. And he made there an aulter, and there called vpon the mighty God of Israel.

The ransoming of Dina Jacobs daughter by the men of Sichem. And of the great bloodshed done by the sonnes of Jacob.

CAP. XXXIV.

Dina the daughter of Lea which we bare vnto Jacob, went out to se the daughters of the land. And Sichem the sonne of Demos the Deuyte lorde of the countrye sawe her, and toke her and laye with her, and forced her: and his herte laye vnto Dina the daughter of Jacob. And he loued the damsell and spake kindly vnto her, and spake vnto his father Demos sayng: get me this mayde vnto my wyfe. And Jacob herd that he had despyled Dina his daughter, but his sonnes were with the catell in the feilde, and therefore he helde his peace till they were come. Then Demos the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to comen with hym. And the sonnes of Jacob came out of the feilde as sone as they herd it / for it greued them, and they were not a lytle wyroth, because he had wrought folly in Israel, in that he had lye with Jacobs daughter, whiche thyng ought not to be done. And Demos comened with them sayinge: The soule of my son Sichem longeth for your daughter: geue her hym to wyfe, and make mariages with vs: geue your daughters vnto vs, and take our daughters vnto you, and dwell with vs, and the lande shall be at your pleasure / dwell and do your busynes, and haue your possessions therein. And Sichem sayd vnto her father and her brethren: let me fynde grace in your eyes, and what so euer ye appoint me, that wil I geue. Aske frely of me bothe the dowry and gyses, & I wyl geue accordynge as ye say vnto me, and geue me the damsell to wyfe.

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Demos his father disceitfully, by-

he had despyled Dina theyr syster. And they said vnto them: we can not do this thyng that we haue geue our syster to one that is vncircumcised / for y were a shame vnto vs. Dneiy in this wyl we consente vnto you. If ye wyl be as we be, that all the men chyldren amonge you be circumcised, then wyl we geue our daughter to you, and take yours to vs, & wyl dwell with you and be one people. But if ye wyl not herken vnto vs to be circumcised, then wyl we take our daughter and go our wayes. And theyr wordes pleased Demos: and Sichem his sonne. And the ponge man descreed not to do the thyng, because he had a lust to Jacobs daughter: he was also mooued let by of al that were in his fathers house. Then Demos and Sichem went vnto the gate of the cite, and comened with the men of the cite, sayinge: these men are peaceable with vs / and wyl dwell in the lande and do the occupation therin. And in the land is rowme ynough for them: let vs take theyr daughters to wyues, and geue them ours: onely herein wyl they consente vnto vs for to dwell with vs and to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are among vs be circumcised as they are. Theyr goodes and theyr substance and all theire catell are ours, onely let vs consent vnto them, that they may dwell with vs.

And vnto Demos and Sichem his sonne harkened all that went out of the gate of his cite. And all the men chyldren were circumcised what so euer went out at the gates of his cite. And the thyrde daye when it was paynfull to them, two of the sonnes of Jacob Simcon and Leui Dinas brethren, toke euey of them his sword, and went in to the cite boldly, and slew all that was male and slew also Demos and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the sword, and toke Dina theyr syster out of Sichems house, and went theyr waye.

Then came the sonnes of Jacob vpon the deed, and spoiled the cite, because they had despyled theyr syster: and toke theyr shepe, oxen, asses and what so euer was in the cite & also in the felde. And all theyr goodes, all theyr chyldren and theyr wyues toke theyr captiue & made vauoche of all that was in the houses.

And Jacob said to Simcon & Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me synke vnto the inhabitants of the land, bothe to the Canaanites and also to the Pherezites. And I am few in nōbre. Wherfore theyr wal gather them selues together agaynst me and slei me, and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered, wholde they deale with our syster as with an hoore?

Jacob goeth vnto Bethel, and buryed his ymagis vnder an oke. Dechoz a dreyth. Jacob is called Israel. The lande of Canaan is promysed hym. Rachel dreyth in labour. Ruben lay with his fathers concubine. The death of Isaac.

CAP. XXXV.

And God sayde vnto Jacob: aryste, and get the vp to Bethel, and dwell there. And make there an aulter vnto God that appeared vnto the, when thou fleddest from from Elau thy brother. Then sayd Jacob vnto his householde & to all that were with him: put away the straunge goddes that are among you & make your selues cleane & change your garmentes and let vs arysle and go vp to Bethel that I maye make an altier there vnto God whiche herde me in the day of my tribulation, and was with me in the way which I went.

And they gaue vnto Jacob all the straunge goddes whiche were vnder theyr handes, and all their earetynges whiche were i their eares/ and Jacob hvd them vnder an oke at Sichem. And they departed. And the feare of God fell vpon the cyties that were round about them: that they durst not folowe after the sonnes of Jacob. So came Jacob to Lus in the lande of Canaan, otherwyle called Bethel, with all the people that was with hym. And he buylded here an altier, and called the place Bethel, because that God appeared vnto hym there, when he fled from his brother.

Then dyed * Deboia Rebecas nouerle/ and was buryed beneath Bethel vnder an oke. And it was called the oke of lamentation. And god appeared vnto * Jacob agayne after he came out of Mesopotamia and blessed hym and said vnto hym: thy name is Jacob. Notwithstandynge thou shalt be no more called * Jacob, but Israel shall be thy name. And so was his name called Israel.

And God sayde vnto hym: I am God almighty, growe and multiply: for people and a multitude of people shall sprynge of the, & a multitude of people shall come out of thy loynes. And the lande whiche I gaue Abraham and Isaac will I geue vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the wyl I geue it also. And god departed from hym in the place where he talked with hym. And Jacob set vp a marke in the place where he talked with hym, cuen a pyloure of stone, and poured wyne offering thereon and poured also oyle thereon, and called the name of the place where God spake with hym, Bethel.

And they departed from Bethel, and when he was but a felde byeth from Ephrath / Rachel began to trauell. And in travell she was in perill. And as she was in paynes of her labour, the mydwyle sayde vnto her: feare not for thou shalt haue this sonne also. Then as her sonne was departing, that he * must dye: she called his name Benoni. But his father called hym Beniamin. And thus dyed Rachel and was buryed in the waye to Ephrath whiche is now called Bethlehem. And Jacob set vp a pylle vpon her graue, whiche is called Rachels graue pylle vnto this daye. And Israel went thence and preched by his tent beyonde the * toure of Edre. And it chaunced as Israel dwelte in the lande, that Ruben went and * laye with Bilha his fathers concubine, and it came to Israels eare. The sonnes of Jacob were. xij. in nombre. The sonnes of Lea Ruben Jacobs eldest sonne, and Simeon, Leui, Juda, Issachar, and Zabulon. The sonnes of Rachel: Joseph and Benjamin. The sonnes of Bilha Rachels mayde: Dan and Naphtali. The sonnes of Zilpha Leas mayde Gad and Asar. These are the sonnes of Jacob whiche were borne hym in Mesopotamia.

Then Jacob went vnto Isaac his father to Ramme a principal city, otherwyle called Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac sojourned as straungers. And the dayes of Isaac were an hundred and lxx. yeres: and then fel he speke and dyed, and was put vnto his people being old and full of dayes. And his sonnes Elau and Jacob buryed hym.

The wyues of Elau. Jacob and Elau are reche. The genealogie of Elau. Elau dwelleth in the hyl Seir.

CAP. XXXVI.

These are the generacions of Elau which is called Edom. Elau toke his wyues of the daughters of Canaan, Ada & bought her of Elon an Hethite, and Ahalibama the daughter of Ana, whiche Ana was the sonne of Zibeon an heuyte. And Basmath Jimaels * daughter and wyfe of Nebaioth. And Ada bare vnto Elau / Eliphas: and Basmath bare Reuel: And Ahalibama bare Reus, Isaciam and Roah. These are the sonnes of Elau whiche were borne hym in the lande of Canaan.

And Elau toke his wyues, his sonnes and daughters and all the soules of his house: his goodes and all his catell and all his substance which he had got in the land of Canaan/ and went in to a countrey away from his brother Jacob: for they * reches was so moche that they coude not dwell together, and that the land wherein they were straungers, coude not receyue them: because of theyr catell. Thus dwelte Elau in the mount Seir, whiche Elau is called Edom. These are the generacions of Elau father of the Edomites in mount Seir, & these are the names of Elaus sonnes: * Eliphas the son of Ada the wyfe of Elau/ and Reuel the sonnes of Basmath the wyfe of Elau also. And the sonnes of Eliphas were Theman, Omar, Zepho, Saetham and Renas. And Thimna was concubine to Eliphas Elaus sonne, and bare vnto Eliphas Amalech. And these be the sonnes of Ada Elaus wyfe. And these are the sonnes of Reuel: * Nachach, Serah, Samma, & Mila: these were the sonnes of Basmath Elaus wyfe. And these were the sonnes of Ahalibama Elaus wyfe the daughter of Ana son of Zibeon, whiche he bare vnto Elau: Reus, Isaciam and Roah.

These were dukes of the sonnes of Elau. The chyldren of * Eliphas the first sonne of Elau were these: duke Theman, duke Omar, duke Zepho, duke Renas, duke Roah, duke Saetham & duke Amalech: these are the dukes & came of Eliphas in the lande of Edom/ and these were the sonnes of Ada. These were the chyldren of Reuel Elaus sonne: duke Nachach, duke Serah, duke Samma, duke Mila. These are the dukes that came of Reuel in the lande of Edom, and these were the sonnes of Basmath Elaus wyfe. These were the chyldren of Ahalibama Elaus wyfe: duke Reus, duke Isaciam, duke Roah: these dukes came of Ahalibama & daughter of Ana Elaus wyfe. These

These are the chyldren of Elau/ & these are the dukes of them, whiche Elau is called Edom. These are the chyldren of Seir the Horyte, the inhabitour of the land, Lothan, Sobal, Zibeon, Ana, Dilon, Elcer and Disan. These are the dukes of the Horytes the chyldren of Seir in the land of Edom. And the chyldren of Lothan were Hori and Hemam. And Lothans wyfe was called Thimna.

The chyldren of Sobal were these: Aluan, Manahath, Ebal, Sepho and Onam. These were the chyldren of Zibeon. Ana & Ana/ this was that Ana that found the mules i the wyl derces, as he fedde his father Zibeons asses. The chyldren of Ana were these. Dilon & Ahalibama the daughter of Ana. These are & chyldren of Dilon, Hemdan, Eshan, Jethia and Cheran. The chyldren of Elcer were these. Hilhan, Scauan, & Ahan. The chyldren of Disan were Uz and Aran. These are the dukes that came of Hori: duke Lothan, duke Sobal, duke Zibeon, duke Ana, duke Dilon, duke Elcer, duke Disan. These be the dukes that came of Hori in their dukedomes in the lande of Seir.

These are the kynnes that reigned in the lande of Edom before there reigned any kynge among the chyldren of Israel. Bela the sonne of Beor reigned in Edomea/ and the name of his city was Dinhaba. And whi Bela died, Jobab the sonne of Serah out of Bezara reigned in his steade. When Jobab was ded, Husam of the lande of Theman reigned in his steade. And after the deith of Husam, Hadad the sonne of Bedad whiche stode the Adianytes in the felde of the Moabrytes, reigned in his steade/ and the name of his city was Aueh. When Hadad was dead, Samla of Massaka reigned in his steade. When Samla was ded, Saul of the ryuer Khaborb reigned in his steade. When Saul was ded, Baal Hanan the sonne of Achbor reigned in his steade. And after the deith of Baal Hanan the son of Achbor, Hadad reigned in his steade, & the name of the city was Pagu. And his wyfes name Mehetabel & daughter of Maatred the wylter of Mesaa.

These are the names of the dukes that came of Elau in the. xij. hundredes, places and names: Duke Thimna, duke Alua, duke Terbeth, duke Ahalibama, duke Ela, duke Dinon, duke Renas, duke Theman, duke Mibzar, duke Magdiel, duke Jeam. These be the dukes of Edomea in theyr habitacions / in the lande of theyr possessions. This Elau is the father of the Edomites.

Joseph accuseth his brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of his brethren, and is sold to the Egyptians Jacob bewaileth Joseph.

CAP. XXXVII.

And Jacob dwelte in the lande wherein his father was a straunger / that is to saye in the lande of Canaan. And these are the generacions of Jacob: when Joseph was. xvi. yere olde, he kept wepe with his brethren & the lad was with the sonnes of Bilha and of Zilpha his fathers wyues. And he accused his brethren vnto his father of an euill crime. And Israel loued Joseph more then all his chyldren, because he begat hym in his olde age/ & he made hym a cote of many colours.

When his brethren sawe that theyr father loued hym more then all his brethren/ they hated hym, and coude not speke one kynd worde vnto hym. Moreover Joseph * dreamed a dreame and tolde it his brethren: wherfore they hated hym yet the more. And he sayd vnto them/ heare I pray you this dreame which I haue dreamed: Beholde we were makynge sheues in the felde: and lo, my shefe arose and stode vpryght, and pours stode rounde aboute and made obeysaunce to my shefe. Then sayd his brethren vnto hym: What, shalt thou be out kynge, or shalt thou regne over vs? And they hated hym yet the more, because of his dreame and of his wordes.

And he dreamed yet another dreame & told it his brethren sayynge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: We thought the sonne and the moone and. xj. sterres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren, his father rebuked hym and sayde vnto hym: What meaneth this dreame which thou hast dreamed: Shall I and thy mother & thy brethren come and fall on the ground before the? And his brethren hated hym / but his father noted the sayynge.

His brethren wente to kepe theyr fathers shepe in Sichem/ and Israel sayd vnto Joseph: Do not thy brethren kepe shepe in Sichem? come, that I maye lend the to them. And he answered, * here am I. And he sayd vnto hym: So & se whether it be well with thy brethren and the shepe, and byng me worde agayne. And sent hym out of the bale of Hebron, to go to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym wandrynge out of his waye in the felde, and asked hym what he sought. And he answered: I like my brethren, tell me I pray the where they kepe shepe. And the man said, they are departed hence/ for I herd them say, let vs go vnto Dothan. Thus went Joseph after his brethren, and founde them in Dothan.

And when he sawe them a farr off before he came at them / they toke counsell agaynst hym to slep hym/ and sayd one to another: Beholde, this * dreamer cometh/ come now and let vs slep hym, and caste hym in to some pytte/ and let vs saye that some wyched beest hath deuoured hym, and let vs se what his dreames wyl come to.

When Ruben sawe that, he went about to ryd hym out of theyr handes and sayd / let vs not kyll hym. And Ruben sayd moreover vnto them/ we de not his * blood, but cast hym in to this pytte that is in the wyldernes/ and laye no handes vpon hym: for he wolde haue rydde hym out of theyr handes, and deliuered hym to his father agayne.

And as soone as Joseph was come vnto his brethren, they strept hym out of his gay cote that was vpon hym / and they toke hym and caste hym in to a pytte: But the pytte was empty and had no water therein. And they sat them downe to eate bread. And as they lyft vp theyr eyes and looked about, there came a com-panpe of Jsmaelites frome Silca, and their camels laden with spicery, baulme and myre, and were gonyge dwyne into Egypte.

Then sayde Jnda to his brethren, what a naryeth it that we. sey our brother, and kepe his bloude secret? come on, let vs sell hym to the Jsmaelytes, and let not our handes be defyled upon hym: for he is our brother, and our flesch. And his brethren were content. The as the Madianites marchant men passed by, they drewe Jofeph oute of the pyt / and solde hym vnto the Jsmaelytes for. xx. peces of syluer. And they brought him into Egypte.

And when Ruben came agayn vnto the pyt and founde not Jofeph there, he rent his clothes, and went agayne vnto his brethren sayenge: the lad is not ponde, and where wal I go? And they toke Jofeph's cote and kyled a goate, and bypped the cote in the bloude. And they sent J gape cote & caused it to be brought vnto their father, and sayde: This haue we founde: se, whether it be thy sonnes cote, or no. And he knewe it sayenge: it is my sonnes cote, a wicked beast hath denoured him, and Jofeph is rent in peces. And Jacob rent his clothes, and put sacke cloth about his lornes and sorowed for his sonne a longe season. The came all his sonnes, and all his daughters to comforte him. And he wolde not be comforted but sayd: I will go downe into the graue vnto my sonne, mourninge. And thus his father wepte for hym. And the Madianytes solde hym in Egypt vnto Putiphar a loyde of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall.

The marriage of Jnda. The testy's of Er and Onan, and the vengeance of god that came there vpon. Jnda lare with his daughter Chamar. The byrthe of Phares and Zara.

C A P I. XXXVIII.

And it fortuned at that tyme, that Jndas went frome his brethren, and gat hym to a man called Hira of Odollam and there he sawe the daughter of a man called Sna, a Canaanite: And he toke her, & laye with her. And she conceived, and bare a sonne, and called his name Er. And she conceived agayne, and bare a sonne, and called him Onan. And she conceived the thurde tyme and bare a sonne, whome she called Sela: and he was at Chelyb when she bare him.

And Jndas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Chamar. But this Er Jndas eldest sonne, was wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, wherefore the Lorde slew him. The sayde Jndas vnto Onan: go in to thy brothers wyfe and marre her, and styre by seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceyued that the seed wulde not be his: therefore when he went in to his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the grounde, because he wolde not geue seed vnto his brother. And the thynge whiche he dyd, displeased the Lorde, wherefore he slew hym also. Then sayde Jndas to Chamar his daughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, till Sela my sonne be growen: for he feared lest he shoulde haue dyed also, as his brethren dyd. Thus went Chamar, and dwelt in her fathers house.

And in processe of tyme, the daughter of Sna, Jndas wyfe, dyed. Then Jndas when he had leste moynge, wente vnto his wyfe Merces to Thymnath, with his frende Hira of Odollam. And one tolde Chamar, sayenge: beholde, thy father in law goth vp to Thymnath, to where his wyfe. And she put her bydowes garmentes frome her, and couered her with a cloke, and dyspyed her selfe: And sat her wome at the entreynge of Enaim, which is by the hye wayes hyde to Thymnath, because she saw that Sela was growen, and she was not geuen him to wyfe.

When Jnda sawe her, he thought it hadde bene an hoore, because she hadde couered her face. And turned to her vnto the waye & sayde Come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe. And she sayde what wilt thou geue me, to lye with me? Then sayde he, I will sende the a bydow frome the flocke. She answered, Then geue me a pledge yll thou sende it. Then sayd he, what pledge wal I geue the? And she sayd the spgner, thy bracelet, and thy staffe that is in the hande. And he gaue it her, and laye by her, and she was with childe by him. And she gat her by, and went, and put her mantell fro her, & put on her bydowes rayment agayne. And Jndas sent the byd by his neyghbour of Odollam, for to fette out his pidge agayne from the wyues hande. But he found her not. Then asked he the men of the same place, sayenge: Where is the whoze that sat at Enaim in the waye? And they sayde: there was no whoze here. And he came to Jnda agayn, sayenge: I can not fynde her, and also the men of the place sayde: that there was no whoze there. And Jnda sayd: let her take it to her, lest she be blamed: for I sente the bydow, and thou couldest not fynde her.

And it came to passe that after thye monethes, one tolde Jnda, sayenge: Chamar thy daughter in lawe hath played the whoze, and wylde playing the whoze is become great with childe. And Jnda sayde: bynge her forth, and let her be byente. And when they brought her forth, she sent to her father in lawe, sayenge: by the man vnto whome these thynges pertayne, am I with childe. And sayde also: loke whose are this seale, bracelet, and staffe. And Jnda knewe them, sayenge: he is more ryght wyfe than I, because I gaue her not to Sela my sonne. But he laye with her no more.

When tyme was come that she shoulde be deliuered, behold there was two byrnnes in her wombe. And as she traueled, the one put out his hande, & the mydwife toke & bounde a reed threde aboute it sayenge: this will come out sicke. But he plucked his hande backe agayne, and his brother came out. And she sayd: wherefore hast thou rent a rent vpon the? and called him Phares. And afterwards came out his brother that hadde the reed threde about his hande, which was called Zara.

God p'p'et'ch Jofeph. His mapres temptacyon. He is crucified and cast in pyson. God hath mee eye vpon hym.

C A P I. XXXIX. Jofeph

Jofeph was brought vnto Egypt, and Putiphar a loyde of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall an Egyptian bought hym of the Jsmaelytes, which brought him thither. And the Lorde was with Jofeph, and he prospered and contynued in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that the Lorde was with hym / and that the Lorde made all that he dyd prospere in his hande: wherefore he founde grace in his masters syght, and serued hym. And his master made hym ruler of his house, and put all that he had in his hand. And as soone as he had made hym ruler ouer his house, and ouer all that he had, the Lorde blessed this Egyptians house for Jofephs sake: and the blessing of the Lorde was vpon all that he hadde: bothe in the house, and also in the feldes. And therefore he leste all that he had in Jofeph's hande / and lokyd vpon nothyng that was with hym, saue onely on the byed whiche he ate. And Jofeph was a goodly person, and a well fauoured. And it fortuned after this, that his masters wyfe cast her eyes vpon Jofeph, and sayde: come lye with me: But he denyed and sayd to her. Beholde, my master woteh not what he hath in the house with me: but hath committed all that he hath to my hande. He hym selfe is not greater in the house then I / and hath kepte nothyng from me / but onely the bycause thou arte his wyfe. How then can I do this great wyckednes, for to synne agaynst God? And after this manner spake she to Jofeph daye by daye: but he hardened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her company.

And it fortuned about the same season, that Jofeph entred in to the house, to do his busyness: and there was none of the householde by in the house. And she caught hym by the garment, sayng: come slepe with me. And he left his garment in her hand, and fled and got hym out. When she sawe that he had leste his garment in her hande, and was fled out, she called vnto the men of the house, and toid them sayenge: Se, he hath brought in an Hebreue vnto vs, to be his wyfe: for he came in to me, for to haue slept with me. But I cryed with a loude voyce. And when he herde that I cryed vnto my voyce and cryed, he leste his garment with me and fled awaye, and got hym out.

And she layde by his garment by her, vntill her loyde came home. And she toid hym accorde to thye wordes sayng. This Hebreue seruante whiche thou hast brought vnto vs came in to me to do me shame. But as soone as I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he leste his garment with me and fled out. When his master herde the wordes of his wyfe which she toid hym sayng: after this manner dyd thy seruante to me, he waxed wroth.

And he toke Jofeph, and put hym in a pyson euen in the place where the kygges pysoners lay bounde. And there contynued he in pyson: but the Lorde was with Jofeph, & he wedd hym mercy, and got hym fauour in the syght of the keper of the pyson, which committed to Jofeph's hande all the pysoners that were in the pyson house. And what so euer was done there, that dyd he. And the keper of the pyson lokyd vnto nothyng that was vnder his hande, bycause the Lorde was with hym, & bycause that what so euer he dyd, the Lorde made it come luckely to passe.

Jofeph expoundeth the dreames of the two pysoners.

C A P I. XL.

And it chaunced after this, that the chefe butler of the kyng of Egypt & his chefe baker had offended the kyng: lord the kyng of Egypt. And Pharaos was angry with them and put them in warde in his chefe marshalls house: euen in the pyson where Jofeph was bounde. And the chefe marshall gaue Jofeph a charge with them: & he serued them. And they contynued a season in warde.

And they dreamed eyther of them in one nyght: bothe the butler and the baker of the kyng of Egypte whiche were bounde in the pyson house, eyther of them his dreame, and eche mannes dreame of a sondre interpretation. When Jofeph came in vnto them in the moynge / and lokyd vpon them: Beholde, they were sadde. And he asked them sayng, wherefore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym: we haue dreamed a dreame / and haue no man to declare it. And Jofeph sayde vnto them. Interpretynge belongeth to god, but tell me yet. And the chefe butler tolde his dreame to Jofeph, and sayd vnto hym. In my dreame me thought there stode a byne before me / and in the byne were thre bryanches, and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms fofte forth: and the grapes thereof waxed rype. And I had Pharaos cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes and wynged them in to Pharaos cuppe, and deliuered Pharaos cuppe in to his hande. And Jofeph sayd vnto hym / this is the interpretation of it. The thre bryanches are thre dayes: for within thre dayes wal Pharaos lyke by thynge deed / and restore the vnto thynge offyce agayne / and thou shalt deliuer Pharaos cuppe in to his hand, after the olde maner, euen as thou dydest when thou wast his butler. But thyng on me when thou art in good case / and we be met vnto me. And make mention of me to Pharaos, and helpe to bynge me out of this house: for I was stolen out of the lande of the Hebreues, and here also haue I done nothyng at all wherefore they wold haue put me in to this dongeon. When the chefe baker sawe that he had well expounded it / he sayde vnto Jofeph: He thought also in my dreame, that I had iii. wyker baskettes on my heed. And in the vppermost basket, of all maner bake meates for Pharaos. And the byrdes ate them out of the basket vpon my heed.

Jofeph answered and sayde: this is the interpretation thereof. The thre baskettes are thre dayes: for this daye thre dayes wal Pharaos take the heed from the / and wal hang the on a tree, and the byrdes shall cate the fleshe from the.

And it came to passe the thurde daye whiche was Pharaos byrth daye / that he made a craft unto all his seruantes. And he lyfled by the heed of the chefe butler and of the chefe baker amonge his seruantes. And reioyced the chefe butler vnto his butlerhpy agayne / and he reached the cup in to Pharaos hande / and hanged the chefe baker : euen as Ioseph had interpreted vnto them. Notwithstandynge the chefe butler remembred not Ioseph / but forgate hym.

Pharaos dreames are expounded by Ioseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes / Manasses and Ephraim. The deeth begynneth in Egypte.

XLI.

And it fortuned at two yeres ende that Pharaos dreamed, and thought that he rode by a ryuers syde / and that there came out of the ryuer. viij. goodly kyne, & fatte fleschyd, and fed in a medowe / & hym thought that. viij. other kyne came by after them out of the ryuer cuple fauored and leane fleschyd, and rode by the other vpon the byrnyke of the ryuer. And the cuple fauored and leane fleschyd kyne, ate by the. viij. wel fauored & fat kyne / and he awoke therewith. And he slept agayne and dreamed the seconde tyme, that. viij. eares of cozne geue vpon one halke ranke & goodly. And that. viij. thynne eares blased with the wynde, sprange by after them / and that the. viij. thynne eares deuoured the. viij. ranke and full eares. And then Pharaos awoke, and se, here is his dreame. When the moynynge came, his spete was troubled. And he sente and called for the sothsayers of Egypte / and all the wyse men therof, and tolde them his dreame : but there was none of them that coude interprete it vnto Pharaos. Then spake the chefe butler vnto Pharaos sayynge. I do remembre my faute this daye. Pharaos was angere with his seruantes, and put in warde in the chefe marshall house, bothe me and the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, & the mans dreame of a sonnydype interpretation.

And there was with vs a yong man an Egiptian bozne, seruant vnto the chefe marshall. And we tolde hym, & he declared our dreames to vs accordynge to eether of our dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs so it came to passe. I was reioyced to myne office agayne, and he was hanged.

Then Pharaos sent and called Ioseph. And they brought hym forthwith out of pylon. And he waucd hym self and chaunged his rayment, & went in to Pharaos. And Pharaos sayd vnto Ioseph, I haue dreamed a dreame and no man can interpretate it / but I haue herde tell of the, that as lone as thou hearest a dreame, thou doest declare it. And Ioseph answered Pharaos sayynge. God shal gyue Pharaos a prosperous answer without me. Pharaos sayde vnto Ioseph : In my dreame me thought I rode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer. viij. fatte fleschyd and wel fauored kyne, and fed in the medowe. And then. viij. other kyne came by after them, poore and very cuple fauored & leane fleschyd : so that I neuer sawe theyr lyke in all the lande of Egypte in cuple fauorednes. And the. viij. leane and cuple fauored kyne ate by the first. viij. fatte kyne. And when they had eaten them by a ma coude not perceyue that they had eaten them : for they were as cuple fauored as they were at the begynnynge. And I awoke. And I saw agayne in my dreame. viij. eares sprynge out of one halke full and good, and. viij. other eares wythered, thyn and blased with wynde, sprynge by after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the. viij. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the sothsayers, but no man can tell me what it meaneth. Then Ioseph sayd vnto Pharaos, bothe Pharaos dreames are one. And god doth shewe Pharaos what he is about to do. The. viij. good kyne are. viij. yeres, and the. viij. good eares are. viij. yeres also / and it is but one dreame. Lyke wise the. viij. thyn and cuple fauored kyne that came out after them, are seuen yeres / and the seuen emptye and blased eares shal be seuen yeres of hunger. This is that whiche I sayde vnto Pharaos, that god dothe shewe Pharaos what he is about to do.

Beholde there shal come. viij. yeres of great plenteousnes throughout all the lande of Egypte. And there shal aryse after them. viij. yeres of hunger : so that all the plenteousnes shal be forgotten in the land of Egypte. And the hunger shal consume the land, so that the plenteousnes shal not be ones prepyed in the lande by reason of that hunger that shal come after, for it shal be exceeding great. And where as the dreame was doubled vnto Pharaos the seconde tyme, it betokeneth that the thynge is certainly prepared of god, & that god wyll shortly byynge it to passe.

Now therefore let Pharaos prouyde for a man of vnderstandynge and wylidome, and set hym ouer the land of Egypte. And let Pharaos make officers ouer the lande, and take by the spite parte of the lande of Egypte in the seuen plenteous yeres, and let them gather all the toothe of these good yeres that come, & laye by cozne vnder the power of Pharaos, that there may be toothe in the cyties, and there let them kepe it, that there may be toothe in store in the lande agaynst the seuen yeres of hunger whiche shal come in the lande of Egypte, and that the lande perishe not thorow hunger.

And the sayng pleased Pharaos and al his seruantes. Then said Pharaos vnto his seruantes where shal we fynde suche a man as this is, that hath the spire of god in hym? wherefore Pharaos sayd vnto Ioseph : forasmuch as god hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstanding or of wylidome like vnto the. Thou therefore walt be & ouer my house, & accordynge to thy wordes shal all my people obey : onely in the kynges seat wyl I be aboue the. And he sayd vnto Ioseph, beholde, I haue set the ouer all the land of Egypte. And he toke of his rymge from his ryngre, & put it vpon Iosephs ryngre / and arayde hym in rayment of syke, and hong a golden cheyne aboute his necke, and set hym vpon the best charret that he had saue one. And proclamation was made, & euery person wolde bowe his knee before hym, as to hym whome Pharaos had set ouer all the lande of Egypte. And

And Pharaos sayd vnto Ioseph. I am Pharaos without thy wyl. Shal no man lyft by eether his hand or tote in all the land of Egypte. And he called Iosephs name & Zaphnath Panea. And he gaue him to wife Asenath the daughter of Putiphar priest of On. Then went Ioseph abode in the land of Egypte. And he was thyrty yere olde when he stode before Pharaos kyng of Egypte. And then Ioseph departed from Pharaos, and wente throughout all the lande of Egypte.

And in the seuen plenteous yeres they made sheues, and gathered by all the increafe of the seuen plenteous yeres whiche were in the land of Egypte, and put it in to the cyties. And he put the toothe of the sheues that geue rounde aboute euery city, euen in the same. And Ioseph layde by cozne in store, lyke to the sande of the see in multitude aboute measure, vntill he left nombyng : for it was without nombyng. And vnto Ioseph were bozne two sonnes before the yeres of hunger came, whiche Asenath the daughter of Putiphar priest of On, bare vnto hym. And he called the name of the first sonne & Manasse / for god said he hath made me forget all my labour, and all my fathers householde. The second called he Ephraim, for god said he hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

And when the seuen plenteous yeres that were in the lande of Egypte were ended, then came the seuen yeres of & deeth, accordynge as Ioseph had sayd. And the deeth was in all landes, but in the lande of Egypte was there yet tode. When now all the land of Egypte began to hunger, then cryed the people to Pharaos for dyed. And Pharaos sayd vnto all Egypte : go vnto Ioseph, and what he sayth to you, that do. And when the deeth was throughout all the lande / Ioseph opened all that was in the cyties and solde vnto the Egyptians. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countreys came to Egypte to Ioseph for to bye cozne : because that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

Iosephs brethren come into Egypte to bye cozne. he knoweth and retheth them. Symeon is put in pylon / the other returne to thei father to seeke Beniamin. His father lothe to let hym go, at last geauntyrd.

XLII.

When Jacob sawe there was cozne to be solde in Egypte, he sayde to his sonnes : Why are ye negligent? Beholde I haue herde that there is cozne to be solde in Egypte. Get you thither & bye vs cozne from thence, that we may lyue and not dye. So went Iosephs ten brethren downe to bye cozne in Egypte / for Jacob wolde not sende Beniamin with his other brethren : for he said, some misfortune myght happen hym.

And the sonnes of Israel came to bye cozne amonge other that came, for there was deeth also in the lande of Canaan. And Ioseph was gouernour in the lande, and solde cozne to all the people of the land. And his brethren came and fell flat on the grounde before hym. When Ioseph sawe his brethren, he knewe them, but made straunge vnto them, and spake roughly vnto them sayynge : whence come ye? and they sayde : out of the lande of Canaan, to bye byrtayle. Ioseph knewe his brethren, but they knewe not hym.

And Ioseph remembred his & dreames whiche he dreamed of them / and sayde vnto them, ye are spyes, and ye come to se where the lande is weak. And they sayd vnto hym : nay my lord, but to bye byrtaile thy seruantes are come. We are all one mans sonnes / and we meane truly / and thy seruantes are no spyes. He said vnto them : nay verily, but euen to se where the lande is weak. Is your commynge. And they sayd : we thy seruantes are. xij. brethren, the sonnes of one man in the lande of Canaan. The yongest is yet with our father / but one no man woteth where he is. Ioseph said vnto the / that is it that I said vnto you, that ye are truly spyes. Whereby ye shal be proued. For by the lyte of Pharaos ye shal not go hence tyl your yongest brother be brought hither. Sende therefore one of you to seeke your brother, and ye shal be in pylon in the meane season. And euey shal your wordes be proued / whether ye be true, or els by the lyte of Pharaos, ye are but spyes. And he put them in warde the dayes.

Then Ioseph sayde vnto them, the thyrde day. This do, and ye shal lyue / for I feare god. Yf ye meane truly, let one of your brethren be bounde in pylon, and go ye and heare necessary tode to your householde, and bynge with you your yongest brother vnto me : that your wordes may be byleued, and that ye dye not. And they dyd so.

Then they sayd one to an other : we haue verily synned agaynst our brother, in that we sawe the angurys of his soule, when he besought vs, and wolde not heare hym : therefore is this trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them sayynge. Sayd I not vnto you that ye wolde not & synne agaynst the chyld? but ye wolde not heare. And now verily se, his blood is & requyred. They were not aware that Ioseph vnderstode them / for he spake vnto them by an interpreter. And he turned from them & wepte, and then turned to them agayne & talked with them, and toke out Symeon from them and bounde hym before thei eyes, and comaunded to sell thei sackes with cozne, and to put euery mans money in his sacke, & to gyue them byrtaile to spende by the waye. And so it was done to them. And they laded thei asses with the cozne and departed thence. And as one of them opened his sacke for to gyue his ass prouender in the inne, he spyed his money in his sackes mouth. And he sayd vnto his brethren : my money is reioyced me agayne, and is in my sackes mouth. Then they heres sayled them, and were assayed, and sayd one to an other / how cometh it that god dealeth thus with vs? And they came to Jacob thei father vnto the lande of Canaan and tolde him all that had happened them sayynge. The lord of the lande spake roughly to vs, and toke vs for spyes to seeke the countrey.

And we sayd vnto hym: we meane truly and are no spyres. We be twelue brethren sonnes of our father / one is awaye, and the pongest is now with our father in the lade of Canaan. Then the lord of the countrey sayd vnto vs: by this wall I knowe ppe meane truly: leaue one of your brethren here with me, and take foode necessarye for your householdes, and get you awaye, and bringe your pongest brother vnto me. And herebye that I knowe that ye are no spyres, but meane truly: So wyl I deliuer you your brother agayne / and ye shall occupye in the lande.

And as they emptied theyr sakes, behold euery mans budell of money was in his sake. And when both they and theyr father sawe the budels of money, they were afraide.

And Jacob their father said vnto them, haue ye robbed me of my chyldren: Joseph is dead, and Symeon is awaye / and ye wyl take Ben Jamin from me. All these thyngs fall vpon me. Ruben answered his father sayinge: Slee my two sonnes, yf I bringe him not to the agayne. Deliuere hym therefore vnto my hande, and I wyl bringe hym to the agayne: But he sayd: my sonne, wai not go downe with you / for his brother is dead, and he is left alone. Forcouer some mysfortune myght happen vpon him by the way which ye go. And so wolde ye bringe my gray hert with you vnto the graue.

When Ben Jamin was broughte they returned with synes Symeon is deliuered out of prison. Joseph goth alide a weper. They least together.

CAPI. XLIII.

And the berth waxed soye in the lande. And when they had eaten by the come whiche they broughte out of the lande of Egypt, theyr father sayd vnto them: go agayne and bye vs a litle fode. Then said Juda vnto him: the man did testifie vnto vs sayinge, * loke ye se not my face, onlesse your brother come with you. Therefore yf thou wylte sende our brother with vs, we wyl go and bye the foode. Yf thou wylte not sende hym, we wyl not go: for the man sayde vnto vs: loke ye se not my face, excepte your brother be with you. And Israel sayd: wherfore delte ye so cruelly with me, to tell the man ye had yet another brother? They sayde: The man asked vs of our kynned, sayinge: Is your father yet alive? haue ye not another brother? And we tolde hym accordyng to these wordes: How coulde we knowe that he wolde byd vs bringe our brother downe with vs? Then sayd Juda vnto Israel his father: Send the lad with me, and we wyl rpe and go, that we maye lye and not dye: both we, thou and also our chyldren. I wyl be suretye for hym / and of my handes requyre hym. Yf I bringe him not to the, and see hym before thyne eyes * let me bere the blame for euer. For onlesse we hadde made this sayinge, by this we had ben there twyle and come agayne.

Then theyr father Israel said vnto them. Yf it must nedes be so now, then do thus, take of the best frutes of the lande in your budels, and eary the ruan a present, a quantitie of bawline and a portion of hony, spices and myrr, dates and almonys. And take as much money more with you. And the money that was broughte agayn in your sakes, take it agayn with you, peraduenture it was some ouersight.

Take also your brother with you, and arpe and go agayne to the man. And God almyghty geue you mercy in the sight of the man and sende you your other brother & also Ben Jamin and I wyl be as a man robbed of his chyldren.

Thus toke they the present & wyle so moche more money with them, and Ben Jamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypt, and presented them selues to Joseph. When Joseph sawe Ben Jamin with them, he sayd to the ruler of his house / bringe these men home, and slep & make redy: for they shall dyne with me at none. And the man did as Joseph bad, and broughte them in to Josephs house.

When they were broughte to Josephs house / they were afraide and sayd, because of the moneye came in our sakes mouthe at the first tyme / are we broughte that they myght ppe a quarrell with vs, and laye some thyng to our charge, to bringe vs in bondage and our allies also. So came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, and spake with him at the doore and sayd.

See, we came hether at the first tyme to bye fode, and as we came to an Inne, and opened our sakes: behold euery mans * money was in his sake with full weyghte: But we haue broughte it agayne with vs, and other money haue we broughte also / our handes, to bye fode but we can not tell who put our money in our sakes. And he sayde: be of good chere / feare not: your God, and the God of your fathers hath put that treasure in your sakes / for I had your money. And he broughte Symeon out to them, & led them to Josephs house, & gaue them water to walche theyr feete, & gaue them asses prouender: And they made redye theyr present, agayn Joseph came at none: for they herde say that they wolde dyne there. When Joseph came home, they broughte the present in to the house to hym, whiche they had in theyr handes, and fell flat in the ground before him. And he welcomed them courteously, sayinge: Is your father that olde man which ye told me of in good helth? and is he yet alive? They answered: thy seruant our father is in good helth and is yet alive. And they bowed them selues and fell to the grounde.

And he lye vp his eyes and behelde his brother Ben Jamin his mothers sonne and sayd: * Is this your pongest brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And sayd: God be mercifull vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast / for his hert did melt vpon his brother: & sought where to wepe, and entred in to his chambie, for to wepe there. And he walched his face and came out and refrayned hym selfe, and bad set byed on the table.

And they prepared for him by hym selfe, & for them by them selues, and for the Egyptians whiche ate with hym by them selues, because the Egyptians make not eate byed with the Hebrewes: for that is an abhominacion vnto

the Egyptians. And they sat before hym: the eldest accordyng vnto his age, and the pongest accordyng vnto his youth. And the men meeuelyd amonge them selues. And they broughte rewardes vnto them from hym: but Ben Jaminis parte was spue tyms so moche as anye of theis. And they ate and dronke, and were mery with hym.

Joseph accuseth his brethren of theft. Juda becometh suretye for Ben Jamin.

CAPI. XLIII.

And he commaunded the ruler of his house sayinge: yf the mens sakes with food, as moche as they can carpe, & put euery mans money in his bagge mouthe, and put my syluer cup in the sakes mouthe of the pongest and his come money also. And he byd as Joseph had sayd. And in the morninge as soone as it was lyghte, the men were let go with their asses. And when they were out of the crite and not yet ferre passe, Joseph sayd vnto the ruler of his house: Arise and purue after the men, and ouertake them, and saye vnto them: Wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cuppe, of whiche my lord dygneth, and dothe he not prophete therein? ye haue euill done, that ye haue done.

And he ouertoke them and sayd the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayth my lord suche wordes? God forbid that thy seruantes shoulde do so. We holde, the money which we founde in our sakes mouthe, we broughte agayne vnto the, out of the lande of Canaan: how then shoulde we steale out of my lordes house, either syluer or golde? with whomsoever of thy seruantes it be founde let hym dye, and let vs also be my lordes bondemen. And he sayde. Nowe therefore accordyng vnto poure wordes be with whome it is founde, walche my seruante: but ye, walche harmelesse.

And forchyd euery man toke to hym his sake to the grounde, and euery man opened his sake. And he scrched / some the eldest, to the pongest. And the cup was founde in Ben Jaminis sake. Then they * rente their clothes, and laded euery man his asse, and went agayne vnto the crite. And Juda and his brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, and they fell before him on the ground. And Joseph sayd vnto them: what dede is this whiche ye haue done? wyl ye not that suche a man as I, can prophete?

Then sayde Juda: what shall we saye vnto my lord, what shall we speake, or what excuse can we make? God hath founde oute the wickednesse of thy seruantes. Weholde, bothe we and he, with whome the cuppe is founde, are thy seruantes. And he answered: God forbid that I shoulde do so, the man with whome the cuppe is founde, he shalbe my seruante: but go ye in peace home to your father.

Then Juda went vnto him and sayde: oh my lord, let thy seruante speake a worde in my lordes eare, and be not wythe with thy seruante: for thou arte euen as Pharao. Rye lord asked his seruante sayinge: haue ye a father or a brother? And we answered my lord * we haue a father that is olde, and a pongest ladde whiche he begat in his age: and the brother of the ladde is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother. And his father toucheth hym. Then sayde my lord vnto his seruantes, bringe hym vnto me, that I may set myne eyes vpon hym. And we answered my lord, that the lad coulde not go from his father, for ye he wylde leaue his father, his father were but a deed man. Then saydelie thou vnto thy seruantes * onles your pongest brother come with you, loke that ye se my face no more.

And when we came vnto thy seruante our father, we shewed hym, what my lord hadde sayd. And when our father sayde vnto vs, go agayne, and bye vs a litle fode: we sayd, that we coulde not go. For we shoulde ppe our pongest brother go with vs, then wyl we go, for we maye not se the mannes face excepte our pongest brother come with vs. Then sayde thy seruante our father vnto vs. Ye knowe that my wyfe bare me two sonnes. And the one went out fro me, and it is sayd that he is * come in peaces, of wylde beasles, & I sawe him not sence. Yf ye shall take this also awaye from me, and some mysfortune happen vpon hym, * ye shall bringe my graye heed, with you vnto the graue.

Now therefore when I come to thy seruante my father, yf the lad be not with me: seynge that his lyte hangeth by the laddes lyfe, then as soone as he seeth that the lad is not come, he shall dye. So shall we thy seruantes, bringe the graye head of thy seruante our father, wth you vnto the graue. For I thy seruante, became suretye for the lad, vnto my father, and sayde: * Yf I bringe hym not to the agayne, I wyl bere the blame all my lyfe longe. Now therefore let me thy seruante, remaine here for the lad, and be my lordes bondman: and let the lad go home with his brethren: For how can I go vnto my father, and the lad not with me: lest I shoulde se the wretchednes that shal come on my father.

Wherfore God sent me afore to make prouision, that ye myght continue in the earth, & to saue your lyues by a greete deliuerance. So now, it was not ye that sent me hither, but God: and he hath made me as a father vnto Pharaos, and lord ouer all his house, & ruler in all the lande of Egypte. Haste you therefore, and go to my father, and tell him, this sayth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me lord ouer all Egypte. Come downe vnto me and tarye not. And thou shalt dwell in the lande of Golan, and be by me: bothe thou, & thy chyldren, and thy chyldrens chyldren: and thy wepe, and beastes, and all that thou hast. There will I make prouision for the: for there remaine yet tyme peres of derth, leaue thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, perche.

Beholde, your eyes do se, and the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, that I speake to you by mouth. Therefore tell my father of all my honoure, whiche I haue in Egypte, and of all that ye haue sene, and make had & bring my father hither.

And he fell on his brother Bens Jamins necke and wept: and Ben Jamin wept on his necke. Moreover he kyssed all his brethren, & wepte vpon them. And after that, his brethren talked with him. And when the tpynges were brought to Pharaos house, that Josephs brethren were come, it pleased Pharaos well, and all his seruautes.

And Pharaos spake vnto Joseph: saye vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade your beastes, & get you hence, And when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan, take your father, and poure householdes, and come vnto me, and I will geue you the beste of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the farte of the lande. And commaunded also. This do ye: take charettes with you, out of the lande of Egypte, for your chyldren, and for your wyues: and bynge your father, and come. Also, regarde not your stuffe, for the goodes of all the lande of Egypte shall be yours.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordyngly, And Joseph gaue them charettes at the commaundement of Pharaos, and gaue them bytyle also, to spende by the waye. And he gaue vnto eche of them, chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin, he gaue thre hundred peces of syluer, and tye chaunge of rayment. And vnto his father he sent tye wyse ten asses laden with good out of Egypte, and ten we asses laden with corne, bread and meat: to serue his father by the waye. So sent he his brethren awaye, and they departed. And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not oute by the waye.

And they departed frome Egypte / and entred the lande of Canaan, and came to Jacob their father, and tolde hym, sayenge. Joseph is yet a lyue, and is gouernour ouer all the lād of Egypte. And Jacobs heart was troubled, but he beleued them not. And they tolde him all the wordes of Joseph, whiche he had sayde vnto them. But when he sawe the charettes whiche Joseph had sent to carpe him, then his spyres recouered. And Israel sayde. I haue y-nough, yt Joseph my sonne be yet alpye: I will go and se hym, or that I dye.

Israel toke his x tourney, with all he had, and came vnto Berseba, and offered offringes vnto the God of his father Isaac. And God sayde vnto Israel in a vyson by nyght, and called vnto him: Jacob Jacob. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: I am that myghty God of thy father, feare not to go downe into Egypte. For I will make of the a great people. I will go downe with thee into Egypte, and I will also bynge the vp agayne, and Joseph shall put his hande vpon thyne eyes.

And Jacob rose vp frome Berseba. And the sonnes of Israel carped Jacob their father, and their chyldren, and their wyues in the charettes, whiche Pharaos had sent to carpe him. And they toke their catell, & the goodes whiche they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, & came into Egypt: both Jacob and all his seed with him, his sonnes, and his sonnes sonnes with hym, his daughters, & his sonnes daughters, and all his seed brought he with hym in to Egypte.

These are the names of the chyldren of Israel, whiche came into Egypte, bothe Jacob and his sonnes: x Ruben Jacobs first sonne. The chyldren of Ruben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezon, and Charai. The chyldren of Simeon: Jemuel, Jamim, Oshad, Jachin, Zohar, and Saul the sonne of a Canaanitish woman. The chyldren of x Levi: Serion, Lahath, and Gierai.

The chyldren of x Juda: Er, Onan, Sela, Pharez, and Zerah. But Er, and Onan, dyed in the lande of Canaan. The chyldren of Pharez, Hezon, and Hamul. The chyldren of Issachar: Tola, Phua, Job and Semlon. The chyldren of Zabulon: Sered, Elon and Jabeleel. These be the chyldren of Lea, whiche she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia, with his daughter Dina. All these soules of his sonnes and daughters, make thyrty and thyr.

The chyldren of Gad: Ziphion, Haggi, Suni, Ezbon, Eri, Acodi, and Arel. The chyldren of x Aser: Imma, Isua, Isui, Biza, and Serah their syster. And the chyldren of Biza, were Weber, and Machiel. These are the chyldren of Silpha, whome Laban gaue to Lea his daughter. And these she bare vnto Jacob, In nymbre thyrtye soules.

The chyldren of Rachel / Jacobs wyfe: Joseph

Joseph and Ben Jamin. And vnto Joseph, in the lande of Egypte, were boyn: Manasses, and Ephraim, whiche x Asnath the daughter of Putiphar, priest of On, bare vnto him. The chyldren of x Ben Jamin: Bela, Becher, Ashbel, Gera, Naeman, Ehi, Ros, Rumim, Rumim, and Ard. These are the chyldren of Rachel, whiche were boyn vnto Jacob, xij. soules all together. The chyldren of Dan: Hushim. The chyldren of Neptali: Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, and Sillem. These are the sonnes of Bilha, whiche Laban gaue vnto Rachel his daughter, and she bare these vnto Jacob, all together. vij. soules. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Nowe am I consent to dye, for almoste as I haue sene the, & thou arte yet alpye.

And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren & vnto his fathers house: I will go and shewe Pharaos, and tell hym: that my brethren and my fathers house, whiche were in the lande of Canaan, are come vnto me, and howe they are shepardes (for they were men of catell) & they haue brought their wepe and their oren, and all that they haue, with them. If Pharaos cal you, and aske you what your occupation is / saye: thy seruantes haue bene occupied aboute catell, frome oure chyldhode vnto this tyme: bothe we and our fathers, that ye may dwell in the lande of Golan. For the Egyptians abhorre all shephardes.

XLVII.

And Joseph went and tolde Pharaos, & sayde: my father and my brethren, their wepe and their beastes, & all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan / & are in the lande of Golan. And Joseph toke a part of his brethren: euen syue of them, and presented them vnto Pharaos. And Pharaos sayde vnto his brethren: what is your occupation? And they sayde vnto Pharaos: shephardes are thy seruantes, bothe we and also our fathers. They sayde moreover vnto Pharaos: for to x sojorne in the lande are we come, for thy seruantes haue no pasture for their wepe, so soze is the famishment in the lande of Canaan. Now therefore let thy seruantes dwell in the lande of Golan.

And Pharaos sayde vnto Joseph: thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the. The land of Egypte is open before the: In the best place of the lande, make bothe thy father and thy brethren dwell: And euen in the lande of Golan let them dwell. Moreover yt thou knowe any men of actiuite amonge them, make the rulers ouer my catell. And Joseph broughte in Jacob his father, and set hym before Pharaos. And Jacob blessed Pharaos. And Pharaos asked Jacob, howe olde art thou? And Jacob sayde vnto Pharaos: the dayes of my pilgrimage, are an hundred and thyrty peces. Fewe and cypil haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not accepted vnto the peres of the lyfe of my fathers, in the dayes of their pilgrimages. And Jacob blessed Pharaos, and wote out frome hym. And Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, and gaue them possessions in the lande of Egypte, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameses, as Pharaos commaunded. And Joseph made prouision for his father, his brethren and all his fathers household, as ponge chyldren are fed with bread.

There was no bread in all the lande, for the derth was excreabyng sore: so that the lande of Egypte, and the lande of Canaan, were famished, by the reason of the derth. And Joseph gathered together all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte, and of Canaan, for the corne whiche they bought: and he layde vp the money in Pharaos house. When money fayled in the lande of Egypte, & of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph, and sayde: geue vs sustenance: wherfore sustrest thou vs to dye before the: for our money is spent. Then sayde Joseph: bynge your catell, and I will geue you for your catell, yt ye be withoute money. And they brought their catell vnto Joseph. And he gaue them bread for horses and wepe, and oren and asses: so he fed them with bread, for all their catell, that yere.

When that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the next yere, and sayde vnto hym: we will not hyde it frome my lord, how that we haue neyther money nor catell, for my lord: there is no more left for my lord, but our bodies, and oure landes. Wherfore lath thou vs dye before thyne eyes, and the lande to go to naught: bye vs and our landes for bread: and let bothe vs and our landes be bonde to Pharaos. Geue vs seed, that we maye lyue / & not dye, and that the lande go not to wast.

And Joseph bought all the lande of Egypt for Pharaos. For the Egyptians tolde euery man his lande, because the derth was sore vpon them: and so the lande became Pharaos. And he appointed the people vnto the cyties / frome one syde of Egypte vnto the other: on ly the lande of priestes bought he not. For there was an ordinaunce made, by Pharaos / for the priestes, that they shuld eate that whiche was appointed vnto them: whiche Pharaos had geuen them, wherfore they solde not their landes.

Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: behold I haue bought you this daye, and poure landes for Pharaos. Take thre seed, and go sowe the f the lande. And off the entreatie, ye shall geue þe ffrste partie vnto Pharaon, and. iiii. partes that be your owne for seed to sowe the felde: and for you, and them of your householdes, and for your children, to eate. And they answered: Thou hast saued our liues. Let vs fynde grace in the syghte of my lord, and let vs be Pharaons seruantes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that men must geue Pharaon the ffrste parte, except the lande of the preastes only, which was not bounde vnto Pharaon.

And Israel dwelte in Egypte: euen in the countrey of Gosen. And they had their possessions therein, and they grew and multiplied exceedingly. Moreover Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte. xliiij. yeres, so that the hole age of Jacob, was an hundred, and. xliiij. yeres.

When the tyme dyeth nye, that Israel must dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto hym: If I haue found grace in thy sight, put thy hande vnder my thye, and deale mercifully and truly with me, that thou burye me not in Egypte: but let me lye by my fathers, and carrie me oute of Egypte, and burye me in their burvall. And he answered: I will do as thou hast sayde. And he sayde: I swere vnto me. And he swore vnto hym. And then Israel bowed vnto the beddes head.

¶ Jacob lyeth by the beddes head. He dyeth, and Joseph buryeth him, and buryeth his sonnes and blesseth them.

CAPI. XLVIII.

After these thyngs, thyngs were brought vnto Joseph, that his father was sicke. And he toke with him his two sonnes, Manasses and Ephraim. Then was it sayde vnto Jacob: beholde, thy sonne Joseph cometh vnto the. And Israel toke his strength vnto hym, and sat vp on the bedde, and sayde vnto Joseph: God almyghty hath appeared vnto me at Luz, in the lande of Canaan, & blesseth me, and sayde vnto me: beholde, I will make the growe, and will multiply the, and will make a great nombre of people of the, and will geue this lande vnto the, and vnto thy seed after the, for an euerlasting possession. Now therefore thy two sonnes Manasses and Ephraim, which were borne vnto the before I came to the into Egypt, walbe nyne euen as Ruben and Symeon that they be vnto me. And the children which thou gettelle after them, walbe thyne owne: but walbe called with the names of their brethren in their inheritances. And after I came from Mesopotamia, Rachel dyed vpon my hande in the lande of Canaan, by the waye: when I had but a felde biced to go vnto Ephraim. And I buried her there in the way to Ephraim, which is now called Bethlehem.

And Israel behelde Josephs sonnes, and sayde: What are these? And Joseph sayd vnto his father: they are my sonnes, which God hath geuen me here. And he sayde: bynge them to me, and let me blesse them. And the eyes of Israel were dimme for age, so that he coude not well se. And he broughte them to hym, and he kyssed them, and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I wolde not haue thoughte, that I wolde haue sene thy face, and yet so. God hath shewed it me, and also thy seed. And Joseph toke them awaye from his lappe, and they fell on the grounde before hym.

When Joseph sawe that his father layde his right hande vpon the head of Ephraim, it displeased hym. And he lyfte vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it from Ephraims head vnto Manasses head, and sayde vnto his father. Not so my father, for this is the eldest. Put thy right hande vpon his head. And his father wolde not, but sayde: I knowe it well my sonne, I knowe it well. He walbe also a people, and walbe greater. But of a truche his yonger brother walbe greater then he, and his seed walbe full of people. And he blesseth them, sayenge: At the ensample of these, the Israelites shall blesse, and saye: God make the, as Ephraim and as Manasses. Thus let he Ephraim before Manasses.

And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: beholde, I dye. And God walbe with you, and bynge you agayne vnto the lande of your fathers. Moreover I geue vnto the, a porcion of the lande about thy brethren, which I gat out of the handes of the Amorites, with my swerde and with my bowe.

¶ Jacob blesseth all his owne sonnes, and sheweth them what is to come. He appointeth where he will be buried: and dyeth.

CAPITVLO.

*Gen. xli. b

THESE ARE THE NAmes of the * chyldren of Israel, whiche came to Egypte with Jacob, euerie man with his hous-
holde: Ruben, Simeon, Leui, Iuda, Iacqar, Zabulon, Beniamin, Dan, Nephthali, Gad and Aser. All these soules pro-ceedinge out of the loynes of Jacob, were. lxx.
where as Joseph was in Egypte all redye.
When Joseph was dead, and at his brethren and all the generation: the * chyldren of Israel grewe, encreased, multiplied, and wa-red very myghty: so that the lande was full of them.

*Ex. vii. c
*Ex. vii. c

Then there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypt whiche knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde the people of the chyldre of Israel are mo & myghty than we. Come, let vs playe wylly with them: lest they mul-tiplye, and so (if there chaunce any waite) they ioyne them selues to oure ennemyes and fghte agaynst vs, and so gette them oute of the lande.

And he set taskemasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burdens. And they buyt vnto Pharao cyties of defense: Pithon and Rameses. But the more they vaxed the, the more they multiplied and grewe: so that they ad-hoised the chyldren of Israel. And the Egyptians helde the chyldren of Israel in bondage withoute mercy, and made their luyes bitter vnto them, with cruell labour in claye, and byrke, and all maner worke in the felde, and in all maner seruite, whiche they caused them to worke, cruelly.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mpdwyses of the Egiptian women, of whiche the ones name was Sephora, and the other Phua: When ye do the office of a mpdwysse, to the women of the Egiptians, & se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, kyll it. But if it be a mayde, let it lye. Notwithstanding the mpd-wyses feared God, and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men chyldren.

Then the kynge of Egypte called for the mpdwyses, and sayde vnto them: why haue ye delt on this maner, and haue saued the me-chyliden? And the mpdwyses answered Pharao: that the Egiptian women were not as the women of Egypte: but were sturdy women, and were deliuered afore the mpdwyses came at them. And god therfore delt well with the mpdwyses. And the people multiplied and waxed very myghty. And because the mpdwyses feared God, he made them houses.

Then Pharao charged all his people, say-enge. All the menchyldren that are borne, calle into the ryuer, and saue the maydechyldren a lyue.

*Ex. i.

Moses is borne, and bynge cast into the flaggies, is taken vp of Pharao daughter. He killeth the Egyptians, he fleeth and taketh a wyfe. The Israelites crye vnto the Lorde.

CAPIT.

II.

And there went a man of * the house of Leui. And toke a daughter of Leui.
And the wyfe conceived & bare a sonne.
And when she sawe that it was a pryncer chylde, she hyd him for thre monethes. But when she coude no longer hyde hym, she toke a basket made of bulrushes, and drowed it with asme and pytche, and layde the chylde therein, and put it in the flaggies by the ryuers bynke.
And his syster stood a fette of, to wytte what twote come of it. * And the daughter of Pharao came to wone to the ryuer to wash her self, and her maydens walked a longe by the ry-uers syde. And when she sawe the basket amonge the flaggies, she sent one of her may-dens, and caused it to be fet. And when she had opened it she sawe the chylde, and beholde: the babe wepte. And she had compassion on it and sayde: it is one of the Egiptians chylde.
Then sayde his syster vnto Pharao daughter: Wyll I go and call vnto the nurse of the Egiptian woman, to nurse the chylde? Pharao daughter answered. So thy waye, And the mayde ran, and called the chylde mother.
Then Pharao daughter sayde vnto her.
Take this chylde awaye, and nurse it for me / and I will rewarde the, for thy labour.
And the woman toke the chylde, and nur-sed it vp.

And when the chylde was growen, she brought it vnto Pharao daughter, & it was made her sonne, and she called it * Moses, because (sayde she) I toke hym out of the water.
And it happened in these dayes, when Moses was waxe great, that he went out vnto his brethren, and looked on their burdens, & spied an Egyptian smyte one of his brethren an Egiptian. And he looked rounde aboute, & when he sawe that there was no man by, he drew the Egyptian, and hyd hym in the sande. And he went forth the next daye: and beholde, two Egiptians stroue together. And he sayde vnto hym that dyd the wronge: Wherefore smyest thou thyne neyghbour? And he answered:
Who hath made the a ruler or a iuge ouer vs?
mynceit thou to kyll me, as thou kyledst yesterdaye the Egyptian? Then Moses feared and sayde: Truly the thinge is knowne. And Pharao herce of it, and wote aboute to kille Moses: but he fled from Pharao, and dwelt in the lande of Madian, and he sat to wone by a wellles syde.

The preast of Madian had. viij. daughters, whiche came and drew water, and fylled the troughes, for to water their fathers shepe.
And the shepherdes came and drew the may-dens awaye: but Moses stood vp, and helped them, and watered their shepe. When they came to * Raguel their father, he sayde: how happened it that ye are come so lone to day?
They answered: An Egyptian deliuered vs from the shepherdes, and so drew vs water, and watered the shepe. And he sayde vnto his daughters: Where is he? why haue ye left the man? So call hym that he may eate bred.

And Moses was content to dwell with the man. And he gaue Moses Zephora his dought-ter which bare a sonne, and he called him Gerson: for he sayde: I haue bene a straunger in a strange lande. And she bare yet another sonne whom he called Eliezer, sayenge: The God of my father is myne helpe, & hath ryd me oute of the handes of Pharao.

And it chaunced in procelle of tyme, that kynge of Egypte dyed, and the chyldren of Israel syghed by the reason of labour, and cry-
ed. And their complaynt ascended vnto God trome the labour. And God remembred his promyse with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.
And God * looked vpon the chyldren of Israel,
and knewe them.

Moses heareth Meye, God appereth vnto him in a bush, and sendeth him to the chyldren of Israel, and to Pharao the oppressour.

CAPIT.

III.

Moses kepte the shepe of Jethro his father in lawe, preast of Madian, and he droue the flocke to the backsyde of the wyldernesse, and came to the mountayne of God, Horeb. And the angell of the Lorde appeared vnto hym, in a flame of fyre, oute of a bush. And he perceaued that the bush burned with fyre, and consumed not. Then Moses sayde: I wyll go hence, & see this great sight, how it cometh that the bush burneth not.
And when the Lorde sawe that he came forth to see, he called hym out of the bush, and sayde: Moses, Moses. He answered, I am at hand.
And he sayde: come not hether, but put thy shoes of thy fere: for the place wheron thou standest is a holy ground. And he sayde: I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hyd his face, for he was afrayd to loke vpon God.

Then the Lorde sayde: I haue surely sene
the trouble of my people which are in Egypt, and haue herde their crye, which they haue of their taskemasters. For I knowe their sorow and am come downe to deliuer them out of handes of the Egiptians, and to bynge them out of that lande, vnto a good lande, and a large, and vnto a lande that floweth with milk and hony: euen vnto the place of the Cananytes, Hethytes, Amorytes, Pherezites, Hivites, & of the Jebusites. Now therfore beholde, the complaynt of the chyldren of Israel is come vnto me, and I haue also sene
the oppression, wherewith the Egyptians op-presseth them. But come, I wil sende the to Pharao, that thou mayest bynge my people the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte. And Moses sayde vnto God: what am I to go vnto Pharao, and to bynge the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte? And he sayde: I wil be with the.
And this shalbe a token vnto the, that I haue sent the: After that thou hast brought the peple oute of Egypte, ye shall serue God vpon this mountayne.

unto the children of Israel, & sape vnto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me vnto you, and they say vnto me, what is his name, what answer shall I geue them? Then sayd God vnto Moses: I am that I am: And he sayde: This shall thou sape vnto the children of Israel: He that is byd sende me vnto you. And God spake further vnto Moses: Thus shalt thou sape vnto the children of Israel: the Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me vnto you: this is my name for euer, and this is my memoꝛiall throughout all generations. So therfore and gather the elders of Israel together, and sape vnto them: The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, appeared vnto me, and sayde: I haue visited and sene both you and that which is done to you in Egypt. And I haue sayd it, that I will bringe you out of the tribulation of Egypt vnto the lande of the Canaanites, Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuytes and Jebusites: a lande that floweth with mylke and honny.

¶ If it come to passe that they heare thy voyce then go, bothe thou and the elders of Israel vnto the kynge of Egypt, and sape vnto him: The Lord God of the Egiptians hath called vs: let vs go therfore this dayes iourney into the wilderness, that we maye sacrifice vnto the Lord oure God. Notwithstanding I am sure that the kynge of Egypte will not let you go, oneles it be with a myghtye hande: I will therfore stretch out myne hande, and smyte Egypte with all my wonders which I will vnto them. And after that, he will let you go. And I will geue this people sauoure in the syght of the Egyptians: so that when ye go, ye shall not go emptye: but euery wyche shall booweneth in her house, Jewels of syluer and of gold and rayment. And ye shall put them on your sonnes and daughters, and shall a spoyle the Egyptians.

CAPI.

IIII.

Moses answered and sayd: Se, they will not beleue me nor herke vnto my voyce but will sape, the Lord hath not appeared vnto the. Then the Lord sayd vnto him: What is that in thyne hande? and he sayde, a rodde. And he sayde cast it on the grounde, he byd cast it, and it turned vnto a serpent. And Moses ranne awaye frome it. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: put forth thyne hande and take it by the tale. And he put forth his hande and caught it, and it became a rodde againe in his hande, and this shall thou saye vnto the Lord, that they maye beleue that the Lord God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob hath appeared vnto the.

thrust thyne hande into thy bosome. And he thrust his hande into his bosome, and toke it out. And beholde, his hande was leperous euen as snowe. And he sayde: put thyne hande into thy bosome againe. And he put his hande into his bosome againe, and plucked it oute of his bosome, and beholde, it was turned againe as his other flesch. If they wil not beleue the, neyther heare the voyce of the first token: yet will they beleue the voyce of the seconde token. But if they wil not beleue the two signes, neyther hearken vnto thy voyce, the Lake of the water of the ryuer, and poure it vpon the drye lande. And the water which thou takest out of the ryuer, shall turne to blood vpon the drye lande.

And Moses sayde to the Lord: oh my Lord, I am not eloquence, neyther in tymes past, ne yet sence thou hast spoken vnto thy seruantes: but I haue an impediment of speche, and am slowe tongued. And the Lord sayd vnto him: who hath made mans mouth or who hath made the domme of the deafe, the legges of the blinde? haue not I the Lord? So therfore, and I will be with thy mouth and teache the what thou shalt sape. But he sayde: oh my Lord, sende I praye the whom thou wilt. And the Lord was angrie with Moses and sayde, I knowe Aaron thy brother the Leuite that he can speake. And mozeouer beholde, he cometh to mee the, and when he seyth the, he will be glad in his heart. And thou shalt speake vnto him, and put the wordes in his mouth, and I will be with thy mouth and with his mouth, and will teache you what ye shall do. And he shall be thy mouth, and thou shalt be his God: and take this rodde in thy hande wherewith thou shalt do myracles.

And Moses went and returned to Jethro his father in lawe againe, and sayd vnto him Let me go (I praye the) and retourn to my brethren which are in Egypt, that I maye see whether they be yet aliv. And Jethro sayde to Moses: go in peace. And the Lord sayde vnto Moses in Madian: retourne againe into Egypt: for they are dead which went aboute to kyll the. And Moses toke his wyfe, and his sonnes, and fate them on an asse, and retourned to Egypt, and toke the rodde of God in his hande.

And the Lord sayde to Moses: when thou arte come to Egypte againe, se that thou do all the wonders before Pharaos which I haue put in thy hande: but I will harden his herte so that he shall not let the people go. And tell Pharaos, thus sayeth the Lord: Israel is myne eldest sonne, and therfore sayth vnto the: Let my sonne go, that he maye serue me. If thou wilt not let hym go: beholde, I will sle thy eldest sonne.

And it chaunced by the waye in the pynne that the Lord met hym, and wolde haue kylld hym. Then Zephora toke a stone and circumcised her sonne, and fell at his fete, and sayde: a bloody husbande arte thou vnto me. And he let hym go. She sayde a bloody husbande, because of the circumcision. The Lord

Lord

Lord vnto Aarō: go meete Moses in the wilderness. And he went and met hym in the mount of God, and kysed hym. And Moses tolde Aaron all the wordes of the Lord, which he hadde sent by hym, and all the tokens which he had charged him with all. So went Moses and Aarō, and gathered all the elders of the children of Israel. And Aaron tolde all the wordes which the Lord had spoken vnto Moses, and byd the myracles in the syght of the people, and the people beleued. And when they herde that the Lord had bysted the children of Israel, and hadde looked vpon their tribulatio, they bowed them selues and worshipped.

¶ Moses and Aaron go vnto Pharaos. The people of Israel are oppressed more and more: and they crye out vpon Moyses and Aaron therefor.

CAPI.

V.

Then Moses and Aaron went and tolde Pharaos, thus sayeth the Lord God of Israel. Let my people go, that they maye kepe holpe daye vnto me in the wilderness. And Pharaos answered: What fellowe is the Lord, that I should heare his voyce so: to let Israel go? I knowe not the Lord, neyther wil let Israel go. And they sayde: the God of the Hebrewes hath met with vs: let vs go (we praye the) this dayes iourney into the desert, that we maye sacrifice vnto the Lord oure God: lest he smyte vs eithen with pestilence, or with sword. Then sayde the kynge of Egypt vnto them: Wherfore to ye, Moyses and Aaron, let the people frome their worke, get you vnto your labour. And Pharaos sayd furthermoze: beholde there is moche people in the lande, and ye make them playe, and let their worke stande.

And Pharaos commaunded the same daye the taskmasters ouer the people, and the officers, sayenge: se that ye geue the people no moze strawe to make bypche with, as ye byd in tyme past: let them go and gather strawe them selues, and the nombre of bypche, which they were wont to make in tyme past, laye vnto theyr charges also, and bympnyshinge no charge therof. For they be ydel, and therfore crye, sayenge: Let vs go and to sacrifice vnto our God. They must haue moze worke layd vpon them, that they maye labour therein, and then will they not turne them selues to false wordes.

Then went the taskmasters of the people and the officers out, and tolde the people sayenge: Thus sayeth Pharaos: I will geue you no moze strawe, but go your selues, and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shall none of your labour be mynysed. Then the people scattered abrode throughout all the land of Egypt, for to gather theym stubble, to be in steede of strawe.

And the taskmasters hastened them forward, sayenge: fulfill your worke daye by daye, euen as when strawe was geuen you. And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaos taskmasters had let ouer them, were beaten. And it was sayde vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfilled your taske in makinge bypche, bothe yesterdaye and to daye, as well as in tymes passe.

¶ When went the officers of the children of Israel, and complained vnto Pharaos, sayenge: Wherfore dealest thou thus with thy seruantes? there is no strawe geuen vnto thy seruantes, and yet they laye vnto vs: make bypche. And lo, thy seruantes are beaten, and thy people is foule increased. And he answered: Ydel are ye, and therfore ye sape: let vs go and to sacrifice vnto the Lord. So therfore and worke, for there shall no strawe be geuen you, and yet se that ye deliuer the hole tale of bypche.

¶ When the officers of the children of Israel sawe them selues in so wrode case (in that he sayde, ye shall mynyshe no charge of your dayly makinge of bypche) then they met Moyses and Aaron, standinge in their waye, as they came out frome Pharaos, and sayd vnto them: The Lord loke vnto you & iudge, for ye haue made the sauoure of vs synke in the sight of Pharaos, and of his seruantes, and haue put a swerde into their handes to sle vs.

¶ Moses returned vnto the Lord, and sayde: Lord, wherfore dealest thou cruelly with this people: and wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence I came to Pharaos to speke in thy name, he hath sared soule with this folke, and yet thou hast not deliuered thy people at all. The Lord sayde vnto Moyses: Howe shalt thou se what I will do vnto Pharaos, for with a myghtye hande, shall he let them go, & with a myghtye hande, shall he dysse them oute of his lande.

¶ The Lord sayde vnto Moyses: I am the Lord, that appeared vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, an almyghty God: but in my name Iehouah, was I not known vnto them. Wherfore I made an appoyntment with them, to geue them the lande of Canaan: the lande of their pilgrimage wher in they were strangers. And I haue also herde the gronnyng of the children of Israel, because the Egyptians kepe them in bondage, & haue remembred my promysse.

¶ Wherfore sape vnto the children of Israel I am the Lord, and will deliuer you frome the burdens of the Egyptians, and will rpe you out of their bondage, and will deliuer you to a stretched oute arme, and with great iudgements. And I will take you for my people, & will be to you a God. And ye shall knowe I am the Lord your God, which deliuer you frome the burdens of the Egyptians. And I will bringe you to the lande ouer which I did a lyft vp my hande to geue it vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and will geue it vnto you for a possession: euen I the Lord. And Moyses tolde the children of Israel euen so: But they hekened not vnto Moyses for anguyshe of spere, and for cruel bondage.

¶ To lyfte up the hande is to promysse by an oth: as in Gen. xiii. d. of Abraham.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: Go and byd Pharaos kynge of Egypte, that he let the children of Israel go out of his land. And Moses spake before the Lorde, saying: beholde, the children of Israel hekenen not vnto me, howe then shall Pharaos heare me: seynge that I haue a vncircumcised lippes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron and gaue them a charge vnto the children of Israel, and vnto Pharaos, kynge of Egypt: to bynne the children of Israel, out of the lande of Egypte. These be the headdes of their families houses. The children of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel, are these: Hanoch, Pallu, Hebron, Charai, these be the householders of Ruben. The children of Symeon are these: Gemuel, Jamin, Oshad, Jachin, Zohar, and Saul the sonne of a Canaanish wyfe: these are the kynnedes of Symeon. These are the names of the children of Leui in their generations: Gerson, Kahath, and Merari. And Leui issued and hundreded and. xxxvi. pere. The sonnes of Gerson: Libni and Schimei in their kynnedes. The children of Kahath: Amram, Jeleaz, Hebron and Eliel. And Kahath issued an hundreded and. xxiij. pere. The children of Merari are these: Mahely and Gush: these are the kynnedes of Leui in their generations.

And Amra toke Jochebed his nece to wyfe which bare hym Aaron and Moses. And Amram issued an hundreded and. xxvi. pere. The children of Jeleaz: Korah, Nepheg and Spichy. The children of Eliel: Eliael, Elzaphan and Sathyl.

And Aaron toke Elizaba daughter of Amiadab and syster of Nabalon, to wyfe: which bare hym Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar and Jethamar. The children of Korah: Asir, Elkana, and Abiasaph: these are the kynnedes of the Korahites. And Eleazar Aarons soune, toke hym one of the daughters of Putuel to wyfe, which bare hym Phinehas: these be the principall fathers of the Leuites / in their kynnedes.

These are that Aaron and Moses to whom the Lorde spake: carpe the children of Israel out of the lande of Egypt, with their armyes. These are the same Moses and Aaron which spake to Pharaos kynge of Egypte, that they myght bynne the children of Israel out of Egypte. And in the daye when the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the lande of Egypte, he spake vnto hym, sayinge, I am the Lorde, se that thou speake vnto Pharaos the kynge of Egypt all that I saie vnto the. And Moses answered before the Lorde: I am of vncircumcised lippes, howe shall Pharaos then geue me audience?

C Tokens. The rodde of Moses is turned to a serpent. The soxers do the same. The waters are turned into bloude.

CAPI. VII.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: behold, I haue made the Pharaos God and Aaron thy brother shall be thy prophete. Thou shalt speke all that I commaunde the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharaos: that he sende the children of Israel out of his lande. But I wyll harden Pharaos herte, that I maye multiplye my myracles and my wonders in the lande of Egypte. And yet Pharaos shall not heken vnto you, that I maye set myne hande vpon Egypte, and bynne out myne armyes, euen my people the children of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, with great iudgements. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde, when I haue stretched forth my hande vpon Egypte, & haue brought out the children of Israel from them.

Moses and Aaron byd as the Lorde commaunded them. And Moses was. lxxx. pere olde, and Aaron. lxxij. when they spake vnto Pharaos. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: When Pharaos speakech vnto you, and sayth: Shewe a wonder, then walte thou saye vnto Aaron: Take the rodde, and caste it before Pharaos, and it shall turne to a serpente. Then wente Moses and Aaron to Pharaos, and byd as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron cast forth his rodde before Pharaos and his seruantes, and it turned to a serpente. Then Pharaos called for the wyle men and enchaunters of Egypte: and they byd in lyke maner with their soxerpe. And they caste towee euery man his rodde, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde ate by their rodde: and yet for all this Pharaos herte was hardened, so that he hekened not vnto them, accordyng as the Lorde had sayde.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto Moses. Pharaos herte is hardened, and he refuseth to let the people go. Get the vnto Pharaos in the morninge, for he wyll come vnto the water, and stonde thou vpon the ryuers bynke, against he come, and the rodde whiche turned to a serpent take in thyn hande. And saie vnto hym: the Lorde God of the Hebrewes hath sent me vnto the, sayinge: let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wilderness: but yfther vnto thou woldeste not heare. Wherefore thus sayth the Lorde: hereby thou shalt knowe that I am the Lorde. Beholde, I will smyte with the staffe that is in myne hande, the waters that are in the ryuer, and they shall turne to bloude. And the fywe that is in the ryuer shall dye, and the ryuer shall drynke, so that it shall geue the Egyptians to drynke of the water of the ryuer.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say vnto Aaron: take thy staffe & stretch out thynne hande ouer the waters of Egypte, ouer their streames, ryuers, poudes, & all pooles of water, that they maye be bloude, and that there maye be bloude in all the lande of Egypt: both in vessels of wodde and also of stone.

And Moses and Aaron byd as the Lorde commaunded. And he lyfte vp the staffe, and smote the waters that were in the ryuer, in the sight of Pharaos, and in the sight of his seruantes, and at the water that was in the ryuer, turned into bloude. And the fish that was in the ryuer dyed, & the ryuer stanke: so that the Egyptians coulde not drynke of the water water of the ryuer. And there was blond thowt out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters of Egypte, byd lyke wyse with their enchauntementes, so that Pharaos herte was hardened, and byd not regarde the, as the Lorde had sayde. And Pharaos turned hym selfe, & went into his house, and let not his herte there vnto. And the Egyptians dygged rounde aboute the ryuer for water to drynke, for they coulde not drynke of the water of the ryuer. And it continued a wyke, after that the Lorde hadde smyten the ryuer.

C The plage of frogges. Moses prayeth for Pharaos. The plage of flies.

CAPI. VIII.

The Lorde spake vnto Moses: Go vnto Pharaos, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde: * Let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, beholde, I wyll smyte all thy lande with frogges. And the ryuer shall scale with frogges, and they shall come vp, & go into thynne house and into thy chaumbre, where thou slepest, and vpon thy bedde, and into the houses of thy seruantes, and vpon thy people, and into thynne ouens, and vpon thy bytapes, whiche thou hast in soxe. And the frogges shall come vpon the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruantes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron: stretche forth thyne hande with thy rodde ouer the streames, ryuers and poudes. And bynne vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the water of Egypte, and the frogges came vp, and couered the lande of Egypte. And the soxers byd lyke wyse with their soxerpe, and the frogges came vp, vpon the lande of Egypte.

Then Pharaos called for Moses, and Aaron, and sayde: praye ye vnto the Lorde that he maye take awaye the frogges from me and from my people, and I wyll let the people go, that they maye do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moses sayde vnto Pharaos: Appoynte thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall pray for the / and thy seruantes, and thy people, to dryue awaye the frogges from the, and thy house, so that they shall remayne but in the ryuer onely. And he sayde to moxowe. And he sayd: euen as thou hast sayd that thou mayst knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lorde our God. And the frogges shall departe from the, and from thynne houses, and from thy seruantes, and from thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer onely.

And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaos, and Moses cryed vnto the Lorde vpon the apoyntment of frogges, whiche he hadde made vnto Pharaos. And the Lorde byd accordyng to the saynge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houses, courtes & feldes. And they gathered them together vpo heapes so that the lande stanke of them.

But when Pharaos sawe that he had relle gyuen hym, he hardened his hert, and berkeued not vnto them, as the Lorde hadde sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rodde, and smyte the dust of the lande, that it maye turne to lyle / in all the lande of Egypte. And they byd so. And Aaron stretched out his hande, with his rodde, and smote the dust of the earth, and it turned to lyle, both in man and beast, so that all the dust of the lande, turned to lyle, thowtwe out all the lande of Egypte.

And the enchaunters assayed lyke wyse with their enchauntementes, to bynne forth lyle, but they coulde not. And the lyle were borthe vpon man and beast. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharaos: It is the fynger of God. Neuerthelasse Pharaos herte was hardened, and he regarded them not, as the Lorde had sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryse vp early in the morninge, and stonde before Pharaos, for he will come vnto the water: and say vnto hym, thus sayth the Lorde: let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let my people go, beholde, I wil sende at maner flies, bothe vpon the, thy seruantes, and thy people, and into thy houses. And the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of flies, and the grounde wheron they are. But I wil separate the same daye, the lande of Golan where my people are, so that there shall no flies be there: that thou mayst knowe, that I am the Lorde vpon the earth. And I will put a dyspulyd, betwene my people and thynne. And euen to moxowe that this miracle be done.

And the Lorde byd accordyngly: and there came noyome flies vnto the house of Pharaos and into his seruantes houses, and into all the lande of Egypte: so that the lande was marred with flies. Then Pharaos sent for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we wylde so offer vnto the Lorde our God, that whiche is an abhominacion vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whiche is an abhominacion vnto the Egyptians before their eyes, & shall they not stone vs? we wyl therfore go thre dayes iourney, into the wilderness, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharaos sayde: I will let you go, that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde your God in the wilderness: onely go not farre away, and se that ye praye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I wyll goo oute frome the, and praye vnto the Lorde, and the flies shall departe frome Pharaos, and from his seruantes and from his people, to moxowe. But let Pharaos frome henceforth beleaue no moare, that he will not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And Moses went oute frome Pharaos, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde byd as Moses had sayd, and toke awaye the flies frome Pharaos, and from his seruantes, and from his people, so that there remaned not one. But for all that, Pharaos hardened his herte euen then also, and wolde not let the people go.

IX.

And the Lorde sayde to Moyses, go to Pharaon and tell him, thus sayth the Lorde God of the Egiptians: let my people go that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, but wilt holde them fast: behold, the hande of the Lorde shall be vpon thy cattell which thou hast in the felde, vpon horses, asses, camels, oxen, & shepe, with a mighty great moztayne. But the Lorde shall make a diuision betwene the bestes of the Israelites, and the bestes of the Egiptians: so that there shall nothinge dye of all that belongeth to the children of Israel. And the Lorde appointed a tyme, sayenge: to morowe the Lorde shall do this thinge in the lande.

And the Lorde dyd the thyng on the morowe, and all the cattell of Egipte dyed: but of the cattell of the children of Israel dyed not one. And Pharaon sent to mete: but there was not one of the cattell of the Israelites dead. Notwithstandinge the herte of Pharaon hardened, and he wolde not let the people go.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses and Aaron: take your handes full of ashes out of the fornace, and let Moyses spynke it vp into the ayre. In the syght of Pharaon, and it shall turne to dust in all the lande of Egipte, and shall make swellynge sores with blaynes, bothe man and beast, in all the lande of Egipte. And they toke ashes out of the fornace, and stode before Pharaon, and Moyses spynkled it vp, into the ayre: And there brake out sores with blaynes, bothe in man and beast, so that the sores could not stonde before Moyses, for there were botches vpon the enchauntes and vpon all the Egiptians, But the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharaon, that he hearkened not vnto them, as the Lorde had spoked by Moyses.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: rse vp early in the mornynge, and stonde before Pharaon, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde God of the Egiptians: let my people go, that they maye serue me, or els I will at this tyme send all my plagues vpon thyne herte, and vpon thy seruantes, & on thy people, that thou mayst knowe that there is none lyke me in all the erthe. For now will I stretch out my hande, and will smyte the, and thy people with pestilence: so that thou shalt perishe from the erthe. Yet in very dede & for this cause haue I snered the vp, for to shewe my power in the & and to declare my name thowout all the worlde.

If it be so that thou stoppest my people that thou wilt not let them go: behold, to morowe this tyme I will sende downe a myghty great hayle: euen suche one as was not in Egipte synce it was founded, vnto this tyme. Seide therefore and set home thy bestes, and all that thou hast in the felde. For vpon all the men & bestes which are founde in the felde, & not broughte home, shall the hayle fall, and they shall dye. And as many as feared the worde of the Lorde, amonge the seruantes of Pharaon made their seruantes and their bestes sit to house: and they that regarded not the worde of the Lorde, lette their seruantes and their bestes in the felde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: stretch forth thyne hande vnto heauen, that there maye be hayle in all the lande of Egipte: vpon man and beast, and vpon all the herbes of the felde of Egipte. And Moyses stretched out his rod vnto heauen, and the Lorde thondered & hayled, so that the fyre ra a longe vpon the ground. And the Lorde so hayled in the lande of Egipte, that there was hayle and fyre mingled with the hayle, so greuous, that there was none suche in all the lande of Egipte, synce people inhabited it. And the hayle smote in the lande of Egipte, all that was in the felde bothe man and beast. And the hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and brake all the trees of the felde: only in the lande of Golan where the chyldre of Israel were, was there no hayle. And Pharaon sent and called for Moyses & Aaron, and sayde vnto them: I haue nowe synned, the Lorde is rightwyse, and I and my people are wicked. Praye vnto the Lorde, that the thunder of God and hayle may cease, and I will let you go, and ye shall eate no longer. And Moyses sayde vnto hym: as I am out of the erthe, I will speeche abrode my handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder shall cease, neyther shall there be any more hayle: that thou mayst knowe howe that the earthe is the Lordes. But I knowe that thou and thy seruantes yet feare not the Lorde God. The flaxe and the barley were smyten, for the barley was shot vp, and the flaxe was boubled: but the where and the eye were not smyt, for they were late sowne.

And Moyses went out of the erthe from Pharaon, and spredd abrode his handes vnto the Lorde: and the thunder and hayle ceased, neyther rained it any more vpon the earth: when Pharaon sawe that the rayne and the hayle & thunder were ceased, he synned agayne & hardened his herte: both he and his seruantes. So was the herte of Pharaon hardened, that he wolde not let the children of Israel go, as the Lorde had sayde to Moyses.

The herte of Pharaon is hardened of God. The grasshoppers. The thicke darkenes.

CAPI.

The Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: go vnto Pharaon: neuerthelesse & I haue hardened his herte, and the hertes of his seruantes, that I myght shewe these my signes amonge them, and that thou tell in the audience of thy sonne, and of thy sonnes sonne, the ballaunt actes which I haue done in Egipte, and the myracles which I haue shewed amonge them: that ye maye knowe that I am the Lorde. Then Moyses and Aaron wente vnto Pharaon, and sayde vnto hym: Thus sayth the Lorde God of the Hebrewes: howe longe shall it be, or thou wilt submytte thy selfe vnto me? & let my people go that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let my people go: behold, to morowe will I bringe grasshoppers into thy lande, and they shall couer couer the erth, so that it can not be seene / and they shall eate the resydue, which remaineth vnto you and escaped the hayle: and they shall eate all your grene trees vpon the seide / and they shall fill thy houses, & all thy seruantes houses / and the houses of all the Egiptians after such a manner as neyther thy fathers nor thy fathers fathers haue seene, synce the tyme they were create vpon the erth vnto this daye. And he turned hym ielic aboute, and went out from Pharaon.

And Pharaons seruantes sayde vnto hym: howe longe shall we be thus curill entreated? let the men go that they maye serue the Lorde thy god: wyle thou not yet knowe that Egipte is destroyed? And then Moyses & Aaron wente broughte agayne vnto Pharaon, & he sayd vnto them: So and serue the Lorde your god, but who are they that shall go? And Moyses answered, we will go with yong and old, yea and with our sonnes and w our daughters / & with our shepe and oxen must we go. For we must holde a feast vnto the Lorde.

And he sayd vnto them: shall it be so? The Lorde be with you: wolde I let you go / and your chyldren also? Take hede, for ye haue some mylchefe in hande. Saye not so, but go ye that are men and serue the Lorde, for that was your desyre. And they thrust them out of Pharaons presence.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: stretch out thyne hande ouer the lande of Egipte for grasshoppers, that they come vpon the lande of Egipte and eate all the herbes of the lande: and all that the hayle lefte vntouched. And Moyses stretched forth his rod ouer the lande of Egipte, and the Lorde broughte an east wynde vpon the lande, all that daye and all nyght. And in the mornynge the east wynde brought the grasshoppers: and the grasshoppers went vp ouer all the land of Egipte and lychted in all quarters of Egipte very greuously, so that before them were there no suche grasshoppers, neyther after them shall be. And they couered all the erthe / so that the lande was darke therewith. And they ate all the herbes of the lande, and all the frutes of the trees which the hayle had left, so that there was no grene thyng lefte in the trees and herbes of the felde through all the lande of Egipte.

Then Pharaon called for Moyses and Aaron in haste and sayd: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde your God, and agaynst you. Forgyue me yet my synne onely this ones, and pray vnto the Lorde your God, that he maye take away from me this death only. And he went out from Pharaon, and prayed vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde turned the wynde in to a myghty stronge west wynde / and it toke awaye the grasshoppers and cast them in to the reed see: so that there was not one grasshopper in all the coostes of Egipte. But the Lorde & hardened Pharaons herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: stretch out thy hand vnto heuen: & let there be darkenes vpon the lande of Egipte, euen that they maye grope the darknes. And Moyses stretched out his hande vnto heuen, and there was a thicke darkenes vpon the lande of Egipte. thre dayes long, so that no man sawe an other neyther rose vp from the place where he was by the space of thre dayes, but all the chyldren of Israel had lycht where they dwelled.

Then Pharaon called for Moyses and sayde: So and serue the Lorde, onely let your shepe and your oxen abyde, but let your chyldren go with you. And Moyses answered: thou muste gyue vs also obrynges and burnt offrynges for to sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God: our cattell therefore shall go with vs / and there shall not one hofe be lefte behynde, for the of must we take to serue the Lorde our God. Moyses saide: we can not knowe wherewith we shall serue the Lorde, till we come thither.

But the Lorde hardened Pharaons herte, so that he wolde not let them go. And Pharaon sayd vnto him: get the from me and take hede to thy selfe that thou se my face no more. For when so euer thou comest in my syght / thou shalt dye. And Moyses sayd: Let it be as thou hast sayd: I will se thy face no more.

The Lorde commaundeth to spoyle the Egiptians. The death of all the first begotten in Egipte.

XI.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: yet will I bringe one plage more vpon Pharaon and vpon Egipte / and after that he will let you go hence. And when he leteyth you go, he shall vterly dyspue you here. But vnto the people that euer man bozowe of his sernde, and euer woman of her neyghbour, iewels of syluer and iewels of golde. And the Lorde gaue the people fauour in the syght of the Egiptians. Moyses & Aaron was verie greute in the lande of Egipte, bothe in the syght of Pharaon, and also in the syght of the people.

And Moyses sayde: thus sayth the Lorde Aboute mydynyght will I go out amonge the Egiptians / and all the fyre borne in the lande of Egipte shall dye: euen from the fyre borne of Pharaon, that syteth on his seate, vnto the fyre borne of the mayde seruante that is in the mylle / and all the fyre borne of the cattell. And there shall be a greute crye thowout the lande of Egipte: so that there was neuer none lyke, nor shall be. And amonge all the chyldren of Israel shall not a dogge moue his tonge / nor yet man or beest: that ye maye knowe howe the Lorde putteth a difference betwene the Egiptians and Israel. And the thre thy seruantes shall come downe vnto me, and fall before me, and saye: get the out and all the people that are vnder the, and then will I departe. And he went out from Pharaon in a great anger.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Pharaon shall not regarde you, that many wonders may be wrought in the lande of Egipte. And Moyses and Aaron dyd all these wonders before Pharaon. But the Lorde hardened Pharaons herte, so that he wolde not let the chyldren of Israel go out of his lande.

XII.

And the Lorde spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying: This moneth shall be your cheere moneth, and of the first moneth of the pere shall it be unto you. Speake ye vnto all the felowship of Israel, saying: that they take the tenth daye of this moneth to euerie household a shepe. If the household be to fewe for a shepe, then let hym and his neighbour that is next vnto his house take accordynge to the nombre of the soules: and counte vnto a shepe accordynge to euerie mans eatynge. A shepe without spot, and a male of one pere olde shall it be: and out of the flocke of the lambes and the gootes shall ye take it.

And ye shall kepe hym in till the xiiii. daye of the same moneth. And euerie man of the multitude of Israel shall kill hym about euen. And they shall take of the blood, and stryke it on the two syde postes, & on the upper doze post of the houses, wherein they eate hym. And they shall eate the fleshe the same nyght, with fyre and with unleuened bread: & with foure herbes they shall eate it. So that ye eate not thereof rawe, nor soden in water: but roast with fyre: both the heede, fete, and putrenance togther. And so that ye let nothinge of it remaine vnto the morning: yf ought remaine burne it with fyre.

Of this maner shall ye eate it: with your loynes girded, and shooes on your fete, & your haues in your handes. And ye shall eate it in haste: for it is the Lordes passouer. For I wyl go aboute in the lande of Egypte this same night: and wyl smyte all the first borne in the lande of Egypte, bothe of man and beest: and vpon all the Goddes of Egypte wyl I the Lorde do execution. And the blood shall be vnto you a token vpon the houses wherein ye are, so: when I se the blood, I wyl passe ouer you, and the plage shall not be vpon you to destroye you: when I smyte the lande of Egypte.

And this daye shall be vnto you a remembrance: & ye shall kepe it holy vnto the Lorde euen throughout your generations after you. Shall ye kepe it holy daye, that it be a custome for euer. Seven dayes shall ye eate unleuened bread: so that euen the first daye ye shall put awaye leuen out of your houses. For who so euer eateth leuened bread from the first daye vntill the seuench day, that soule shall be plucked out from Israel. The first daye shall be a holy feast vnto you: and the vii. also. There shall be no maner of worke doone in them: save aboute that onely which euerie man must eate, that onely maye he do. And so that ye kepe you to unleuened bread. For vpon that same daye I wyl bynne your armyes out of the lande of Egypte: therefore ye shall obserue this daye, and all your chyldren after you, that it be a custome for euer. The first moneth and the xiiii. daye of the moneth at euen, ye shall eate sweete bread vnto the xxi. daye of the moneth at euen agayne. Seven dayes is that there be no leuened bread founde in your houses. For who so euer eateth leuened bread, that soule shall be rooted out from the multitude of Israel: whether he be a stranger, or boyme in the lande. Therefore is that ye eate not leuened bread, but in all your habitacions eate sweete bread.

And Moses called for the elders of Israel, and sayde vnto them: Chose out and take to euerie household a shepe, and kill passouer. And take a bunche of flosse, and dyp it in the blood that is in the basen: and stryke it vpon the upper post, and on the two syde postes, and so that none of you go out at the doore of his house vntill the morning. For the Lorde wyl go aboute & smyte Egypte. And when he seeth the blood vpon the upper doze post, and on the two syde postes, he wyl passe over the doore, and wyl not luse the destroyer to come in to your house to plage you. Therefore let that thou obserue this thyng, that it be an ordinaunce to the and thy sonnes for euer.

And when ye be come in to the lande which the Lorde wyl gyue you accordynge as he hath promysed: so that ye kepe this scrupce. And when your chyldren aske you what maner of scrupce is this ye do? Ye shall say, it is the scrupce of the Lordes passouer, whiche passed ouer the houses of the chyldren of Israel in Egypte, as he smote the Egyptians, and saved our houses. When the people bowed them selues & worshipped. And the chyldren of Israel went and dyd as the Lorde had commaunded Moses and Aaron.

And at mynnyght the Lorde smote all the first borne in the lande of Egypte, from the first borne of Pharaos that sat on his seat, vnto the first borne of the captyue that was in prison, and all the first borne of cattell. When Pharaos arose the same nyght and all the seruantes and all the Egyptians: & there was a great cryng throughout Egypte, for there was no house where there was not one dead.

And he called vnto Moses and Aaron by nyght saying: Ryse vp, and get you hence from my people, bothe ye and also the chyldren of Israel, and go and serue the Lorde as ye haue sayde. And take your shepe and your oxen with you as ye haue sayde, and departe: and blesse me also. And the Egyptians were feareful vpon the people, and made haste to send them out of the lande: for they sayde: we be all dead men.

And the people toke the dough before it was soured whiche they had in store, and bounde it in clothes: and put it vpon their shouldeers. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to the sayng of Moses: and they borrowed of the Egyptians iewels of syluer, and iewels of golde, and rayment. And the Lorde gat the people fauour in the syght of the Egyptians, and so they borrowed and robbed the Egyptians.

Thus toke the chyldren of Israel their iourney from Ramesses to Succoth. Of a hundred thousande thousande men of foote, besyde chyldren. And moche common people went also with them, and shepe and oxen, and cattel exceeding moche. And they baked sweete cakes of the dough whiche they broughte out of Egypte: for it was not soured, because they were thrust out of Egypte and could not tary, neyther had they prepared any other prouysyon of meate.

And the tyme of the dwellinge of the chyldren of Israel whiche they dwelled in Egypte was, iiii. hundred and xxx. yeres. And when the iiii. hundred and xxx. yeres was cummyng, euen the selfe same daye departed all the hoodes of the Lorde out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght to be obserued to the Lorde: because he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght of the Lorde, to be kepte of all the chyldren of Israel and of their generations after them.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses & Aaron: this is the maner of Passouer: there shall no stranger eate therof: but all the seruantes that are bought for money shall ye circumsise, and then let them eate therof. A stranger and a byrd seruant shall not eate therof. In one house shall it be eaten. Ye shall carry none of the fleshe out at the dores: mo: couer & le that ye byke not a bone therof. All the multitude of the chyldren of Israel shall obserue it.

If a stranger dwell amonge you, and wyl holde Passouer vnto the Lorde, let hym circumsise all that he males, & then let hym come and obserue it, as he taken as one that is borne in the lande. No vncircumsised person shall eate therof. One maner of lawe shall be vnto them that are borne in the lande: & vnto the strangers that dwell amonge you. And all the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses and Aaron. And euen the selfe same day dyd the Lorde byng the chyldren of Israel out of the lande of Egypte with their armyes.

The first begotten must be sanctified vnto the Lorde. The memorye of the passouer, why they were rayped through the wilderness. The bones of Joseph. The pylle of the clowde.

CAPI.

XIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: Sanctifie vnto me all the first borne that open all maner matrices amonge the chyldren of Israel as well of men as of beestes: for they are myne. And Moses sayd vnto the people, thinke on this day in which ye came out of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage: for with a myghty hande the Lorde brought you out from thence. So therefore that ye eate no leuened bread. This day come ye out of Egypte, in the moneth of Abib.

When the Lorde hath brought the in to the lande of the Canaanites, Hethites, Amorites, Hitytes and Jebusites, whiche he swore vnto thy fathers that he wolde gyue the a lande wherein mylk and hony floweth, then se that thou kepe this ceremonye in this same moneth. Seven dayes thou shalt eate sweete bread: & the vii. daye shall be feastfull vnto the Lorde. Therefore thou shalt eate sweete bread seven dayes, and so that there be no leuened bread sene nor yet leuen among you in all your quarters.

And thou shalt shew thy sonne at that tyme saying: this is done, because of that which the Lorde dyd vnto me when I came out of Egypte. Therefore it shall be a sygne vnto the vpon thyne hande, and as a remembrance betwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe may be in thy mouth. For with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the out of Egypte, so thou kepe therefore this ordinaunce in his season from pere to pere. Moreover when the Lorde hath brought the in to the lande of the Canaanites, as he hath sworn vnto the and to thy fathers, and hath gyuen it the, then thou shalt appoynt vnto the Lorde all that openeth the matrice, all the first borne amonge the beestes whiche thou hast yf they be males. And all the first borne of the asses, thou shalt redeme with a shepe: yf thou redeme hym not, then bryake his necke. But all the first borne amonge the chyldren shalt thou bye out.

And when thy sonne aske the in tyme to come saying: what is this? thou shalt saye vnto hym: with a myghty hande the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte, out of the house of bondage. And when Pharaos was lothe to let vs go, the Lorde slew all the first borne in the lande of Egypte: as well the first borne of men as of beestes. And therefore I sacrifice vnto the Lorde all the males that open the matrice, but all the first borne of my chyldren I must redeme. And this shall be as a token in thyne hande, and as a thing hanged vp betwene thyne eyes because the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte with a myghty hande.

When Pharaos had let the people go, God eared them not thowow the land of the Philistines, though it were a nye waye, thynkynge that the people myghte happilye repent when they se warre, and so turne agayne to Egypte: therefore god led them about thowow & wilderness that bordeth on the red see. The chyldren of Israel went harnessed out of the lande of Egypte. And Moses toke the bones of Joseph with hym: for he made the chyldren of Israel swear saying: God wyl surely visyte you, take my bones therfore away hence with you. And they toke their iourney from Succoth, and pitched their tentes in Etham in the edge of the wilderness. And the Lorde went before them by day in a pylle of a clowde to leade them the waye: and by nyght in a pylle of fyre to gyde them lyght, that they myght go bothe by day and nyght. And the pylle of the clowde neuer departed by day, nor the pylle of fyre by nyght out of the peoples syght.

Pharaos heart is hardened and foloweth the Israelites with all his host: and is drowned. The Israelites grudge. They go through the red see.

CAPI.

XIII.

Then the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: byd the chyldren of Israel that they turne and pitch their tentes before the enterng of Etham betwene Migdol and the see toward Baalzephon: eue before that they come vnto the see. For Pharaos wyl saye:

God will & the cause of ceremonye be declared at & tyme of the celebration therof. Pharaos saye.

of the chyldren of Israel: they are inuegled in the land: the wyldernes hath shut them in. And I wyll harden his herte, that he shall folowe after them, so that I may get me honoure vpon Pharaon and vpon all his host, that the Egyptians may knowe that I am the Lorde. And they dyd euen so.

B And when it was tolde the kynge of Egypt that the people fled, then Pharaos herte and all his seruantes turned agaynste the people and sayde: why haue we this done, that we haue let Israel go out of our seruyce? And he made redde his charettes and toke his people with hym, a toke of hundred chossen charettes and all the charettes of Egypt, and capteyns vpon all his people. For the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharaon kynge of Egypt, that he folowed after the chyldren of Israel, whiche neuertheles went out thowth an hye hande, and the Egyptians folowed after them, and overtoke them where they pyched by the see with all the hostes and charettes of Pharaon and with his hostesmen and his host: fast by the entreynge of Hyroth before Saal Zephon. And Pharaon dyde nye / and when the chyldren of Israel lyfte by the pyces, and sawe that the Egyptians folowed after them, they were fere afayde, & cryed out vnto the Lorde.

E Then sayd they vnto Moyses. Were there no graues for vs in Egypt, but thou muste bynge vs awaye to dye in the wyldernes? wherefore hast thou serued vs thus, to carie vs out of Egypt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypt sayinge? let vs be in rest and serue the Egyptians? For it hadde ben better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians, then to dye in the wyldernes. And Moyses sayde to the people: feare not but stande still and beholde how the Lorde shall saue you this day: for the Egyptians whome ye se this daye, ye shall neuer se more for euer. The Lorde shall fyght for you, and ye shall be still.

D The Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: Wherefore cryest thou vnto me? speke to the chyldren of Israel to go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretche forth thy hande ouer the see and diuide it asondre, that the chyldren of Israel may go on drye ground, thowth the myddell therof. And beholde, I wyll harden the hertes of the Egyptians that they may folow you. And I wyll get me honoure vpon Pharaon and vpon all his host vpon his charettes, and vpon his hostesmen. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde when I haue gotten me honoure vpon Pharaon, vpon his charettes and vpon his hostesmen.

C And the aungell of god whiche went before the host of Israel, remoued and went behynd them. And the cloude pyll that was before them, remoued and stode behynd them, & went bytwene the host of the Egyptians & the host of Israel. It was a darke cloude, & gaue lycht by nyght: so that all the nyght longe the one coulde not come at the other.

E When Moyses stretched forth his hande ouer the see, the Lorde caried awaye the see with a strong east wynd that blew all nyght, and made the see drye lande, and the water re-upped it selfe. And the chyldren of Israel went in thowth to the myddell of the see vpon the dry ground. And the water was a wall vnto them bothe on their ryght hande and on their left. And the Egyptians folowed, and went in after them to the myddell of the see, with all Pharaos hostes and his charettes & his hostesmen. And in the moynge wathe the Lorde looked vnto the host of the Egyptians out of the fiery and cloude pyll: & troubled theyr host: and smote of theyr charet wheels, and caste them downe to the grounde. Then sayd the Egyptians: Let vs fle from Israel, for the Lorde fyghteth for them agayn vs. Then sayd the Lorde vnto Moyses: stretch forth thynne hande ouer the see, that the water may come agayn vpon the Egyptians, vpon theyr charettes and hostesmen.

E Then stretched forth Moyses his hande ouer the see: and it came agayne to his course early in the moynge: and the Egyptians fled agayn it. Thus the Lorde ouerthrew the Egyptians in the myddell of the see: and the water returned and couered the charettes & the hostesmen: so that of all the host of Pharaon that came i to the see after them, remayned not one. But the chyldren of Israel went vpon dry land in the myddell of the see, and the water was a wall to them, both on the ryght hand of them and also on the left.

E Thus the Lorde deliuered Israel the selfe same daye out of the hande of the Egyptians: and Israel sawe the Egyptians deed vpon the see drye. And when Israel sawe that myghty hande, whiche the Lorde had shewed vpon the Egyptians: they feared the Lorde, and belieued bothe the Lorde, and also his seruant Moyses.

E Moyses and the people with the women synge. For the prayer of Moyses: the dryer waters were sweete God must be heared. They came to Elim.

C A P I. X V.

Then Moyses and the chyldren of Israel sang this songe vnto the Lorde, & sayd. Let vs synge vnto the Lorde: for he is become gloriously the horse and hym that rode vpon hym, hath he ouerthrowne in the see. * The Lorde is my strength and my song, and is become my saluacion.

E He is my God and I wyll glorifye hym: he is my fathers God, and I wyll lye hym vpon hygge. The Lorde is a man of warre almyghty: his name: Pharaos charettes and his host hath he cast in to the see. His toyle captaynes are drownded in the red see: the drye waters haue couered them: they sonke to the bottom as a stone. Thynne hande Lorde is glorious in power: thynne hande Lorde hath all to dalted the enmye. And with thy great gloire thou haste destroyed thynne aduersaries: thou sentest forth thy wyathe, and it consumed them as stubble. With the byrth of thynne anger the water gathered together and the floodes stode still as a roche: and the drye water congeled together in the myddell of the see.

E The enmye sayde: I wyll folowe and ouertake them: and wyll deuoure the people: I wyll

I wyll satysfy my luste vpon them: I wyll drawe my swerde, and myne hande shall de- scope them.

E Thou bluest with thy birch and the see couered them, and they sanke as lead in the myghty waters. Who is lyke vnto the Lorde, amonge goddes: who is like the Lorde, so glorious in holynes, fearfull, laudable, and that sheweth wonders? Thou stretchedest out thy ryght hande, & the earth swallowed them. And thou carpedst with thy mercie this people whiche thou deliueredest, and broughtest them with thy strength vnto thy holy habitation. The nations herte, and were afayde, panges came vpon the Philistynes. Then the dukes of the Edomites were amaled, and tremblinge came vpon the myghtyest of the Moabites, and all the inhabytes of Canaan wared saynt herted. Let feare and dread fall vpon them thowth to the greatnesse of thynne arme, and let them be as still as a stone: whyle thy people passe thowth, & the Lorde, whyle the people passe thowth, whiche thou hast gotten. Synge them in, and plant them in the mountaynes of thynne inheritaunce, the place Lorde whiche thou hast made for to dwell in: the sanctuary Lorde, whiche thy handes haue prepared. The Lorde reygne euer and alwaye. For Pharaon went in on horsebacke with his charettes and hostesmen in to the see, & the Lorde broughte the waters of the see vpon them. And the chyldren of Israel went on drye lande thowth the myddell of the see. And wyll I am a prophete the spier of Aaron, take a tymber in her hand, & all the womne came out after her with tymber in a daunce. And whyle I am sang before them: Sing ye vnto the Lorde, for he is become gloriously in dede: the horse and his ryder bathe he ouerthrowne in the see. Moyses broughte Israel from the red see, and they went out in to the wyldernes of Sur. And they went the daye longe in the wyldernes, and could fynd no water. At last they came to Phara: but could not drynke of the waters for bitternesse, for they were bitter, therefore the name of the place was called Phara. Then the people murmured agaynste Moyses, sayinge: What shal we drynke? And Moyses cried vnto the Lorde, and he shewed hym a tree which he caste in to the waters, and they wared sweete.

E There he made vnto them an ordinaunce and a lawe, and there he proued them, and said: If ye wyll hearken to the voyce of the Lorde your God, and do that which is ryght in his syght, and geue eare to his commaundementes, and kepe all his ordinaunces: I wyll put none of these diseases vpon you, whiche I broughte vpon the Egyptians: for I am the Lorde God your surgeon.

E The Israelites came into the deserte of Sin. It capeth quayles and Quanna. They grudge.

And they came to Elim, where were xij. wellles of water, and. lxx. date trees, & they pyched there by the water. And they toke their iourney from Elim, and all the helle companye of the chyldren of Israel came to the wyldernes of Sin, whiche lyeth bytwene Elim and Sinai, the. xv. daye of the. ii. month after that they were come out of the lande of Egypt. And the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel murmured agaynste Moyses and Aaron in the wyldernes: and sayd vnto them: wolde God we had dyed by the hande of the Lorde in the lande of Egypt, when we late by the flesheportes, & ate bread out of belyes full: for ye haue brought vs out in to this wyldernes to kyll this hole multitude for hunger.

E Then sayd the Lorde to Moyses: beholde, I wyll rayne bread from heuen downe to you, and let the people go out, and gather daye by daye that I may proue them whether they wyll walke in my lawe or no. The. vij. daye let them prepare that whiche they wyll bynge in, and let it be as muche as moche as they gather daye by daye. And Moyses and Aaron sayd vnto all the chyldren of Israel: at euen ye shall knowe that it is the Lorde, whiche broughte you out of the lande of Egypt, and in the moynge ye shall se the gloire of the Lorde: because he hath herde your grudgynges agaynste the Lorde: for what are we that ye wolde murmur agaynste vs. And moztouer Moyses said. At euen the Lorde wyll geue you fleshe to eat, and in the moynge bread ynough, because the Lorde hath herde your murmure which ye murmur agayn hym: for what are we? your murmure is not agayn vs, but agayn the Lorde.

E And Moyses sayd to Aaron: Say to all the companye of the chyldren of Israel, come forth before the Lorde, for he hath herde your grudgynges. And whyle Aaron spake vnto the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel, they looked towarde the wyldernes: and beholde the gloire of the Lorde appeared in a cloude. And the Lorde spake to Moyses sayinge: I haue herd the murmure of the chyldren of Israel, tell them therfore and saye that at euen they shal eat fleshe, and in the moynge they shal be fylled with bread, and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde your God. And at euen the quayles came and couered the grounde where they laye: and in the moynge the dewe laye rounde about the host. * And when the dewe was fallen, beholde it laye vpon the ground in the wyldernes small and rounde and thyn as the hoie frost on the grounde. When the chyldren of Israel saw it, they said one to an other what is this? For they wist not what it was. And Moyses sayd: * this is the breed whiche the Lorde hath geuen you to eat. This is the thynge whiche the Lorde hath remaunded that ye gather euery man ynough for hym to eat: a gomer full for a man accordyng to the nombe of you, and gather euery man for them whiche are in his tente.

E And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and gathered some moxe, some lesse, and dyd mete it with a gomer. * And to hym that gathered moche was no superfluite, and to hym that hadde gathered lesse, was no lacke but euery man had gathered suffycent for his eatynge. And Moyses sayd to them: se that no man let ought remayne offe till the morynge. Notwithstandinge they obeyed not Moses: but some of them lette of it till morynge, and it waxe full of wormes and stanke: and Moses was angry with them.

And they gathered it all morynge: every man as moche as sufficed for his eatynge: for as soone as the * heate of the sonne came it moulte. And the vi. day they gathered twofold so moche breed, that is to wylle, two gomers for one man: and the rulers of the multitude came and told Moses. And he said vnto them, this is that whiche the Lorde hath sayde: to morowe is the Saboth of the holy rest of the Lorde, bake that ye wylle bake, and sethe that ye wylle sethe, and that remayneth laye vp for you, & kepe it till the morynge. And they layde it vp till the morynge as Moses bad, and it stanke not, neither was there any wormes therein. And Moses said: eate this to day: for to daye it is the Lordes Saboth: to daye ye shall fynde none in the felde. Sixe dayes ye shall gather: for the vii. is the Saboth: in it shall be none.

Notwithstandinge there went out of the people in the vii. daye to gather, but they founde none. Then the Lorde sayd to Moses: how long shall it be ere ye wyl kepe my commaundmentes and lawes? * He, because the Lorde hath gyuen you a Saboth, therefore he gyueth you the first daye breed for two dayes. * And the Lorde sayde: eate this to daye, and let no man go out of his place the vii. daye. And the people rested the seventh daye. And the house of Israel called it manna. * And it was lyke vnto Coriander seed, and whyte: and the taste of it was lyke vnto waxes made with honny.

And Moses sayde: this is that the Lorde commaundeth, till a Somer: of it that it may be kept for your chyldren after you, that they may se the breed wherewith he fed you in the wilderness, when he had brought you out of the lande of Egypt. And Moses sayd vnto Aaron: take a cruze, and put a Somer full of manna therein: and laye it vp before the Lorde to be kepte for your chyldren after you, as the Lorde commaundeth Moses. And Aaron layde it vp before the testimony there to be kepte. * And the chyldren of Israel ate manna. xl. yere vntill they came to a lande inhabited. So they ate manna till they came to the borders of the land of Canaan. Truly a Somer is the tenth part of an Epha.

The Israelites come in to Raphidim. They grudge, water is gyuen them out of the rocke. Moses holdeth vp his handes, and they overcome the Amalechites.

CAPI. XVII.

And all the company of the chyldren of Israel went on their journeyes from the wilderness of Sin at the commaundment of the Lorde, and pitched in Raphidim: where was no water for the people to drynke who chode with Moses and sayde: Gyue vs water to drynke. Moses sayde vnto them: Why chydye ye with me, and wherfore do ye tempte the Lorde? So the people chydde for water, and murmured agaynst Moses, and sayde: wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, to kyll vs and our chyldren and our cattell with thirst?

So Moses cryed to the Lorde saying, what shall I do vnto this people? they be almost ready to stone me. Then the Lorde sayd to Moses: go before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel, & thy rod wherewith thou smotest the Egypte take in thyne hande and go. Beholde I wyl stande there vpon a rocke in Horeb: and thou shalt smyte the rocke, and there shall come water out thereof, that the people may drynke.

And Moses dyd so before the elders of Israel: and called the name of the place Massa, and Meriba, because of the chydynge of the chyldren of Israel, and because they tempted the Lorde, sayinge: Is the Lorde amonge vs or not?

Then came Amalech and fought with Israel in Raphidim. And Moses sayd vnto Joshua: chole out men, and go fyghte with Amalech. To morowe I wyl stande on the top of the hyll, and the rodde of God in myne hande. And Joshua dyd as Moses bade hym, & fought with the Amalechites. And Moses, Aaron and Hur wente vp to the toppe of the hyll. And when Moses helde vp his hande, Israel had the better. And when he late his hande downe Amalech had the better.

When Moses handes were weery, they toke a stone and put it vnder hym, and he late downe thereon. And Aaron and Hur stayed vp by his handes, the one on the one syde, and the other on the other syde. And his handes were stedfast vntill the sonne was downe. * And Joshua discomfeted Amalech and his people with the edge of his swerde.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses, write this for a remembraunce in a booke and tell it vnto Joshua, for I wyl put out the remembraunce of Amalech vnder heuen. And Moses made an altar, and called the name of it * Jeonath Nith: for he sayde: the hande is on the syght of the Lorde, that the Lorde wyl haue warre with Amalech throughout all generations.

Jethros counsell is receyued of Moses.

CAPI. XVIII.

Jethro the priest of Madian Moses father in lawe bryde of all that God had done to Moses and Israel his people, how that the Lorde had brought Israel forth of Egypte. And he toke Zippora Moses wyfe, after she was sent backe, and her two sonnes, of which the one was called Gerson: for he sayde: I haue ben an alien in a strange lande. And the other was called Eliezer, for the god of my father was myne helpe, and deliuered me from the swerde of Pharaos. So Jethro Moses father in lawe came with his two sonnes & his wyfe to Moses in the wilderness: where he had pitched his tent by the mountaine of God. And he sent word to Moses: I thy father in lawe Jethro am come to the, and thy wyfe also and her two sonnes with her. And Moses went forth to meete his father in lawe, and dyd obeysaunce and kysed hym: and they saluted eche other and came in to the tent. And Moses tolde his father in lawe all that the Lorde had done vnto Pharaos, and to the Egyptians for Israels sake: and all the trouble that had happened them by the waye, & how the Lorde hadde deliuered them. And Jethro extolled ouer all the good whiche the Lorde had done to Israel: and that he had deliuered them out of the hande of the Egyptians. And Jethro sayd: blessed be the Lorde, which hath deliuered you out of the hande of the Egyptians, and out of the hande of Pharaos, and hath deliuered his people from the power of the Egyptians. Now I know that the Lorde is greater then all Goddes, because they dealt proudly with them. And Jethro Moses father in lawe offered burnt offrynges and sacrifices to God. And Aaron and all the elders of Israel came to eate bread with Moses father in lawe before God.

And it chaunced on the morowe that Moses late to iudge the people: and the people stode aboute Moses from morynge till euen. When his father in lawe sawe all that he dyd vnto the people, he sayd: What is this that thou doest vnto the people? why sittest thou thy selfe, and lettest all the people stande about the horn morynge vnto euen? And Moses sayd vnto his father in lawe, because the people came vnto me to seke counsell of God. For when they haue a matter, they come to me, and I must iudge betwene every man and his neighbour, and must sette them the ordinaunces of God and his lawes.

And his father in lawe sayde to him: It is not well that thou doest. Thou dost vnto thy selfe, and also this people that is with the, because the thyng is to greuous for the, & thou art not hable to do it thy selfe alone. But heare my voyce, and I wyl gyue the counsell, and God shall be with the. Be thou vnto the people to & Godwarde, and byng the causes vnto God: and proude them ordinaunces and lawes: and sette them the way wherem they muste walke, and the wordes that they muste do. Moreover seke out amonge all the people men of aduise, whiche feare God, and men that are true, & hate couetousnes: and make them heedes ouer the people, rulers ouer thousands, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten. And let them iudge the people at all seasons: Yf there be any great matter, let them byng the vnto the, and let them iudge all small causes them selues, and ease thy selfe, and let them beare with the. If thou shalt doo this thyng, then thou shalt be hable to endure that whiche God chargeth the with: all, and all this people shall goo to thy places quickly.

And Moses heede the voyce of his father in lawe, and dyd all that he had sayde, and chose aduise men out of all Israel, and made them heedes ouer the people, captaynes ouer thousands, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, & ouer ten. And they iudged the people at all seasons, and brought the harde causes vnto Moses, & iudged all small matters them selues. And then

Moses let his father in lawe departe, and he went in to his owne lande.

The chyldren of Israel come to the mountaine Sinai. The people of God are holy and roial priesthod. He that toucheth the hill dyeth. God appeareth to Moses on the mount in thonder and lychtenyng.

CAPI. XIX.

The thirde moneth after the chyldren of Israel were gone out of Egypt, the same daye they came in to the wilderness of Sinai. * For they were departed from Raphidim, and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched their tentes in the wilderness. And there Israel pitched before the mountaine. And Moses wente vp to God. And the Lorde called to him out of the mountayne, sayinge thus: I haue sene what I dyd to the Egyptians, and how I toke you vp vpon egles wynges, and haue brought you vnto my selfe. Now therefore pseye wyl heare my voyce, and kepe myne appoyntment, ye shall be mine owne aboute all nations, for all the erth is myne. Ye shall be vnto me a kyngdom of priests, and an holy people, these are the wordes whiche thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel.

And Moses came and called for the elders of Israel, and layde before them all these wordes, whiche the Lorde had commaunded hym. And the people answered all toggyther and sayde: All that the Lorde hath sayd, we wyl doo. And Moses brought the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I wyl come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people may heare when I talke with the, and also belyue the for euer. So Moses shewed the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: God vnto the people, and sanctifie them to daye and to morowe, and let them wash thei clothes, that they may be redye agaynst the thyrde daye. For the thyrde daye the Lorde wyl come downe in the syghte of all the people vpon mountaine Synat. And sette markes rounde aboute the people, and saye: beware that ye go not vp in to the mountaine, and that ye touche not the borders of it: for who so euer toucheth the mountaine, shall surely dye. There shall not an hande touche it, but that he shall either be stoned or els shot thowowe: whether it be best of man, it shall not lyue: when the hoyme bloweth, then let them come vp in to the mountayne.

And Moses went downe from the mountaine to the people, and sanctified them, and they washed thei clothes. And he sayde vnto the people: be redy agaynst the thyrde daye, & see that ye come not at youre wyues. And the thyrde daye in the morynge there was thonder, and lychtenyng, and a thicke cloude vpon mount, and the voyce of the hoyme waxed exceedinge lowde, and all the people that was in the hoise was afraid. And Moses brought the people out of tentes to meete with God, and they stode vnder the hyll.

And mount Sinai was all together on a smoke: because the Lord descended downe upon it in fyre. And the smoke thereof ascended vp, as it had ben the smoke of a hyll, and all the mount was exceeding fearefull. And the voyce of the horne blew, and waxed lowder & lowder. Moses spake, and God answered him and that with a voyce. And the Lord came downe upon mount Sinai, even in the top of the hyll, and called Moses up in to the top of the hyll. And Moses wente up.

And the Lord sayde vnto Moses: Soo downe and charge the people that they please not vnto the Lord to se him, lest so many of them preycie. And let the priests also whiche come to the Lordes presence, sanctifie themselves, lest the Lord smyte them. Then Moses sayde vnto the Lord: the people can not come vp in to the mount Sinai, for thou chargedst vs sayinge: set marches aboute the hyll, and sanctifie it. And the Lord sayd vnto hym: away, and get thee downe, and come vp agayne bothe thou and Aaron with the. But let not the priests and the people presume to come vp vnto the Lord, lest he smyte them. And Moses wente downe vnto the people, and tolde them.

And God spake all these wordes & sayde: I am the Lord thy God, which haue brought the out of the lande of Egypt, and out of the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue none other Goddes in my sight. Thou shalt make the no graven ymage, neither any similitude that is in heuen above, either in the erth beneath, or in the water that is beneath the erth. Be that thou neither bowe thy selfe vnto them neither serue them: for I am the Lord thy God strong & geloued, and vspite the synne of the fathers vpon the chyldren vnto the thyrde and fourth generation of them that hate me, and yet shewe mercy vnto thou- sandes amonge them that loue me and kepe my commandmentes.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vayne: for the Lord wyl not hold hym guiltles that taketh his name in vayne. Remember the Saboth daye that thou sanctifie it. Seve dayes thou shalt labour, and do all that thou hast to do: but the seventh day is the Saboth of the Lord thy God, in it thou shalt do no maner worke: neither thou, nor thy sonne, nor thy daughter, neither thy man seruauant, nor thy mayde seruauant, neither thy cattell, neither the stranger that is within thy gates. For in seve dayes the Lord made both heuen and erth and the see, & all that in them is, and rested the seventh daye: wherefore the Lord blessed the Saboth daye, and halowed it. Honour thy father and thy mother, that thy dayes maye be longe in the lande whiche the Lord thy God giveth the.

Thou shalt not kyll.

Thou shalt not breake wedlocke.

Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt beare no false wytnesse agaynst thy neyghbour.

Thou shalt not covet thy neyghbours house: neither shalt thou covet thy neyghbours wyfe, his man seruauant, his mayde, his oxe, his asse, or ought that is his.

And all the people sawe the thunder and the lyghtenynge, and the noyse of the horne, and how the mountayne smoked. And when the people sawe it, they remoued and stode a farte of, and sayd vnto Moses: talke thou to vs, and we wyl heare, but let not God talke with vs lest we dye. And Moses sayde vnto the people, feare not: for god is come to proue you, and that his feare maye be amonge you that ye synne not.

And the people stode a farte of, and Moses went in to the thicke clowde, where God was. And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: thus thou shalt saye vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye haue seene howe I haue talked with you out of he- uen: ye shall not make thereto with me Goddes of syluer, nor Goddes of golde: in no wise shalt ye do it. An alter of erth thou shalt make me, and thereon offre thy burnt offeringes, and thy peace offeringes, and thy shepe, and thyne oxen. And in all places where I shall put the remembraunce of my name, thither wyl I come to the, and I will bless the. But if thou wilt make me an alter of stone, se thou make it not of hewn stone, for if thou lyt by the tole vpon it, thou shalt curse it. And if his master haue gyuen hym a wyfe, and she haue borne hym sonnes or daughters: then the wyfe and her chyldren shall be her masters, and he shall goo out alone. But if the seruauant saye, I loue my master, and my wyfe and my chyldren, I wyl not goo oute free: Then let his master byng hym to the Lordes, and let hym to the doore of the doore poste, and boze his eare thowhe with a naile, and let hym be his seruauant for euer.

If a man sell his daughter to be a seruauant, she shall not go out as the men seruantes do. If she please not her master, so that he hath gyuen her to no man to wyfe: then shall he let her go free: to sell her vnto a strange nation that he haue no power, because he despised her. If he haue promysed her vnto his sonne to wyfe, he shall deale with her as men doo with their daughters. XXII.

If a man steale an oxe or a shepe and kyll it or sel it, he shall reioyce fyue oxen for an oxe, & foure shepe for a shepe. If a thefe be founde breaking vp, and be smyten that he dye, there shall no blood be shed for him, excepte the sonne be vnto when he is founde, then there shall be blood shed for him.

A thefe shall make restitution: If he haue not wherewith, he shall be soude for his thefe. If the theft be found in his hande alpye (wher it be oxe, asse, or shepe) he shall reioyce double. If a man do hurte feide or bynnyarde / so that he put in his beed to fede in an other mans feide, of the beede of his owne feide, and of the beede of his owne bynnyarde, that he make restitution.

If he breake out and cathe in the thornes, so that the stalkes of corne or the standynge corne or feide be consumed therewith, he shall kyndled the fyre that he make restitution.

If a man deliuer his neyghbour money or stuffe to kepe, and it be stolen oute of his house: If the theft be founde, he shall pay double. If the theft be not founde: then the good- ma of the house shall be brought vnto the goddes and swere, whether he haue put his hande vnto his neyghbours good.

And in all maner of trespass, whether it be oxe, asse, shepe, rayment, or any maner losse byng which an other chalenger to be his, the cause of bothe parties shall come before the Goddes. And whom the Goddes con- demne, the same shall paye double vnto his neyghbour.

If a man deliuer vnto his neyghbour to kepe, asse, oxe, shepe, or what so euer beed it be and it dye, or be hurte, or bynnyed away, and no man fe it, then shall an othe of the Lord go bytwene them, whether he haue put his hand vnto his neyghbours good, and the owner of it shall take the othe, and the other shall not make it good: If it be stolen from him, then he shall make restitution vnto the owner: If it be tozned with wyde beestes, then let hym byng recoide of the fearng, and he shall not make it good. When a man borroweth ought of his neyghbour, if it be hurte or els dye, and if the owner thereof be not by, he shall make it good: If the owner thereof be by, he shall not make it good, nemely if it be an hy- red thyng and came for hye.

If a man begyle a mayde that is not betro- ued and lye with her, he shall endow her, and take her to his wyfe: If her father refuse to gyue her vnto him, he shall paye money, accor- dyng to the dowrye of byrgens.

Thou shalt not suffer a wyfche to lyue. Wo so euer lyeth with a beed, that he shall dye for it. Be that offereth vnto any goddes saue vnto the Lord onely, let him dye withoute redemption. There nor a stranger, neyther oppresse him, for ye were strangers in the lande of Egypt. Ye shall trouble no wydow nor fatherlesse chyld: If ye shall trouble them, they shall crye vnto me, and I wyl surely heare.

Enemies ore

Thou shalt not receyue a bayne tale, neither shalt put thyne hand with the wisked to be an vneyghuous witnes. Thou shalt not folow a multitude to do euyl: neither answere in a mater of plee, lest thou willing to folowe many, turne asyde from the truthe, neither shalt thou paynt a poore mans cause.

* When thou meetest thyne enemies ore or alle goynge astraye, thou shalt byynge them to hym agayne. If thou se thyne enemies alle synke vnder his burthen, thou shalt not passe by and let hym alone: but shalt helpe hym to lyfte hym vp agayne.

Thou shalt not byndre the ryghte of the
poore that are amonge you in theyr lute.

Kepe the fere frome a false mater, and the innocent and ryghtous, se thou slep not: for I wyl not iustifie the wycked. Thou shalt take no gyttes, for gyttes bynde the prudent, and peruerete the wordes of the ryghtous.

Thou shalt not oppresse a straunger, for I knowe the herte of a straunger, because ye were straungers in Egypte. Sixe yerres thou shalt sowe thy land, and gather in the frutes thereof: And the seventh yere thou shalt let it rest and lye fallow, that the poore of thy people maye eate, and what they leaue, the beestes of the felde shall eate: In lyke maner thou shalt do with thy bynepasture and thyne olpue trees.

Six dayes thou shalt do thy worke, and the seventh daye thou shalt kepe holy daye, that thyne ore and thyne alle maye reste, and the sonne of thy mayde, and the straunger maye be refreshed. And in all thynges that I haue sayde vnto you, be circumspecte. And ye shal not sweare by the names of straunge Goddes: neyther let any man heare them out of your mouthes.

Thy seedes thou shalt holde vnto me in a yere. * Thou shalt kepe the seed of swete byed, that thou eate vnto the seed of swete dayes longe, as I commaunded the in the tyme appoynted of the moneth of Abib, for in that moneth thou camest out of Egypte: * and se that no man appeare before me emptye. And the seed of baruch, when thou repest thy seede frutes of thy labours which thou hast sowne in felde. And the seed of ingathering in the ende of the yere: when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the felde.

Thy tymes in a yere shal all thy men chyldren appeare before the Lorde God.

* Thou shalt not offre the bloode of my sacrifice with leuened byed: neither shalt the fat of my seed remayne tpi the morninge.

* The first of the first frutes of thy land thou shalt byynge in to the house of the Lorde thy God: thou shalt also not sette a kydder in his mothers myke.

Beholde I sende myne aungell before the,
to kepe the in the waye, and to bynne the in to the place whiche I haue prepared. Beware of hym, and heare his voyce, and angre hym not: for he wyl not spare poure mysdedes/pea and my name is in hym. But if thou shalt hearken vnto his voyce, and kepe al that I shal tell the, then I wyl be an enemy vnto thyne enemies, and an aduersarye vnto thyne ad-uersaryes. When myne aungell goeth before the, and hath brought the vnto the Amorites, Bethites, Phereytes, Cananites, Deuities, and Jebusites, I shal haue destroyed them:
se thou worshipp not theyr Goddes, neyther serue them, neither doo after the workes of them, but ouerthowe them, & breake downe the places of them. And se that ye serue the Lorde your God, and he shal blesse thy byed, and thy water: and I wyl take all synners, awaye from you.

Whoeuer there shall be no woman chyldlesse or vnfertill in thy land, and the num-bre of thy dayes I wyl full, I wyl sende my seare before the, and wyl kyll all the people wherther thou shalt go. And I wyl make all thyne enemies turne theyr backs vnto the:
and I wyl sende a homerlesse before the, and they shall bynne out the Phereytes, the Cananites, and the Bethites before the. I wyl not caste them out in one yere, lest the lande growe to a wydderne, and the beestes of the felde multiply vpon the. But by lytle and lytle I wyl bynne them out before the, tpi thou be encreased that thou mayste enherite the lande. And I wyl make thy costes frome the red see, vnto the see of the Philistynes, and from the deserte vnto the ryuer. I wyl help the the inhabytors of the lande in to thyne hande: and thou shalt bynne them out before the. * And thou shalt make none appoyntment with them, nor with theyr goddes. Neither shal they dwel in thy land: lest they make the synne agaynst me, for if thou serue theyr Goddes * it wyl surely be thy decaye.

CAPL.

XXIII.

And he said vnto Moses: come by to the Lorde, thou & Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the. lxx. elders of Israel, and wor-shipp a face of. And Moses wente him selfe alone vnto the Lorde, but they came not nye, neither came the people by with hym. * Moses then came and tolde the people al the wor-des of the Lorde, and all the lawes. And all the people answered with one voyce and said:
all the wordes whiche the Lorde hath sayde, wyl we do. Then Moses wrote all the wor-des of the Lorde, and rose vp early, and made an alter vnder the hyll, and. xiiij. pylers accord-yng to the nombre of the. xiiij. tribes of Israel, and sent yong men of the chyldren of Israel to sacrifice burnt offerynges, and. i. offer peace of-ferynges of oren vnto the Lorde. And Moses toke halfe of the bloode, and put it in basens/and the other halfe he spynckled on the alter.

And he toke the boke of the appoyntment, and red it in the audyence of the people. And they sayd: All that the Lorde hath sayde, we wyl do and heare. And Moses toke the bloode, and spynckled it on the people, and sayd: be-holde, this is the bloode of the appoyntment, whiche the Lorde hath made with you vpon
all these wordes.

¶ Then went Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and the. lxx. elders of Israel by, & sawe the God of Israel, and vnder his fete as it were a byche wyke of Saphir, and as it were the facion of beuen when it is clere, and vpon the nobles of the chyldren of Israel he set not his hande. And wen they had seene God, they ate and dronke.

¶ And the Lorde sayde to Moses: come by to me in to the hyll, and be there, and I wyl gyue the tables of stone, and a lawe and commaundement, which I haue wryten to teache them. Then Moses rose vp, and his intynde Josua, and Moses wente by in to the hyll of God, and sayde vnto the elders: carpe ye herte till we come agayne vnto you: And beholde here is Aaron and hys wyth you. Ylany man haue any maters to do, let hym come to them.

¶ When Moses was come by to the mount/a cloude couered the hyll, and the gloze of the Lorde abode vpon mounte Sinai, and the cloude couered it sixe dayes. And the seventh daye he called vnto Moses out of the cloude.
And the facyon of the gloze of the Lorde was lyke consumynge fyre on the toppe of the hyll in the syghte of the chyldren of Israel.
And Moses wente in to the mountayne. And Moses was in the mounte fourty dayes and fourty nyghtes.

¶ The Lorde sheweth Moses the facyon of the holy place and the thynges pertainynge therto.

CAPL.

XXV.

And the Lorde talked with Moses sayynge: Speake to the chyldren of Israel, that they gyue me fyne sutes of very man that gyueh it wyllynge with his herte, ye shall take it. And these thynges he sheweth whiche ye shall take of them: golde, liner and byasse: and Jacynthe coloure, scarlet, purple, bysse, and gores heere: rammes skyn-nes that are redden: and the skynnes of carus and sethim wood, oyle for lyghtes, and spyes for: anoyntynge oyle, and for swete cens. Ony stones, and set stones for the Ephod, and for the byrdell lap.

¶ And they shall make me a sanctuarie that I may dwel amonge them. And I shal shewe the, the facyon of the habitation, and of all the ornamentes therof, euen so se that ye make it in all thynges. And they shall make an arke of sethim wood, two cubites and an halfe long, a cubyte and an halfe brode, and a cubyte and an halfe hye. And thou shalt ouerlaye it with pure golde, bothe within and without, and shalt make a bye vpon it a crowne of golde rourke about. And thou shalt cast four rynges of golde for it, and put them in the four coners therof, two rynges on the one syde of it, and two on the other. And thou shalt make staues of sethim wood, and couer them with golde, and put the staues of the rynges alonge by the sydes of the arke to beare it withall.
And the staues shal abyde in the rynges of the arke, and shal not be taken awaye. And thou shalt put in the arke the wytnes whiche I shal gyue the.

¶ And thou shalt make a mercy seate of pure golde, two cubites and a halfe longe, and a cubyte and a halfe brode. And make two cherubyns of thycke golde on the two endes of the mercy seate, and set the one cherub on the one ende, and the other on the other ende of the mercy seate: so se that thou make them on the two endes therof. And the cherubyns shall stretche theyr wynges abroad ouer on hyghe, and couer the mercy seate with theyr wynges: and theyr faces shal loke one to an other: to the mercy seate warde, shal the faces of the cherubyns be. And thou shalt put the mercy seate aboue vpon the arke, and in the arke thou shalt put the wytnes whiche I wyl gyue the.

¶ Ther I wyl mete the, and wyl common with the vpon the mercy seate, betwene the two cherubyns whiche are vpon the arke of wytnesse, of all thynges whiche I wyl gyue the in commaundement vnto the chyldren of Israel.

¶ Thou shalt also make a table of sethim wood of two cubytes longe, and one cubyte brode, and a cubyte and an halfe hye. And couer it with pure golde, and make there to a crowne of golde rourke aboute. And make vnto that an hoope of four rynges brode, rourke aboute. And make a golden crowne also to the hoope rourke aboute. And make for it four rynges of golde, and put them in the corners that are on the four fete therof, hard vnder the hoope shal the rynges be, to put in staues to beare the table withal. And thou shalt make staues of sethim wood, and ou-erlaye them with golde, that the table maye be borne with them. And thou shalt make

¶ This chapter also describeth the thynges pertainyng to the holy place.

C A P I. XXVI.

And thou shalt make an habitation with tenne curtaynes of twyned bylle, Jacynthe, scarlet, and purple, and purple, and make them with cherubyns of bydded worke. The lengthe of a curtayne shall be xxviij. cubytes, and the bredth foure: and they shall be all of one measure: fyue curtaynes shall be coupled together one to an other: and the o- ther fyue lyke wyse shall be coupled together one to an other.

¶ Then shalt thou make loupes of Jacynthe colour, alonge by the edge of the one curtayne euen in the seluige of the couplynge curtayne. And lyke wyse shalt thou make in the edge of the vntermost curtayne, that is coupled ther- with on the other fyde. Fyfte loupes shalt thou make in the one curtayne, and fyfte in the edge of the other that is coupled therewith on the other fyde: so that the loupes be one ouer agaynst an other. And thou shalt make fyfte buttons of golde, and couple the cur- taynes together with the buttons, that it may be an habitation.

And thou shalt make eleuen curtaynes of goates heere, to be a tente to couer the habi- tation. The length of a curtayne shall be. xxx. cubytes, and the bredth foure: and they shall be all. xi. of one measure. And thou shalt couple fyue by them selues, and the other fyue by them selues, and shalt double the fyte in the fore fronte of the tabernacle. And thou shalt make fyfte loupes in the edge of the vnter- most curtayne on the one fyde, euen in the cou- plynge curtayne: and as many in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other fyde.

And thou shalt make fyfte buttons of brasse, and put them on the loupes, and couple the tent together withall, that there maye be one couerynge.

And the remnant that resteth in the cur- taynes of the tente, the bredth of halfe a cur- tayne, that remaineth shal be left on the backe fydes of the habitation: a cubyte on the one fyde and a cubyte on the other fyde, of that that re- maineth in the length of the curtaynes of the tabernacle, which shall remayne of either fyde of the habitation, to couer it with.

And thou shalt make an other couerynge for the tent of rammes skynnes dyed red, and yet an other aboue all of carus skynnes.

And thou shalt make bozdes for the habi- tation of Sethim wodde to stande bypyghte, ten cubytes longe shall euery bozde be, and a cubyte and a halfe brode. Two fete shall one bozde haue to couple them together with, and so thou shalt make vnto all the bozdes of the tabernacle.

And thou shalt make. xx. bozdes for the ha- bitation on the south fyde, & thou shalt make xi. sockettes of syluer, and put them vnder the xx. bozdes, two sockettes vnder euery bozde for theyr two fete. In lyke maner in the northe fyde of the habitation there shall be. xx. bozdes and. xi. sockettes of syluer: two sockettes vnder euery bozde.

And for the west ende of the habitation shalt thou make fyue bozdes, and two bozdes moe for the two weste corners of the habitation: so that these two bozdes be coupled together benethe, and lyke wyse aboue with clamps. And so shalt thou make in bothe the corners. And so there shall be epyght bozdes in all, and sixtene sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery bozde.

And thou shalt make barres of Sethim- wod, fyue for the bozdes of the one fyde of the tabernacle, and fyue for the other fyde, and fyue for the bozdes of the west ende. And the myddle barre shall goo alonge throughte the myddes of the bozdes, and barre them togy- ther frome the one ende vnto the other. And thou shalt couer the bozdes with golde, and make golden rynges for them to put the bar- res throughte, and shalt couer the barres with golde also. And receyue by the habitation accordyng to the facion therof that was shewed in the mounte.

And thou shalt make a bayle of Jacynthe, of scarlet, purple, and twyned bylle: and shalt make it of bydded worke, and full of che- rubyns. And hange it vpon four pylles of sethim wod couered with golde, and that theyr knoppes be couered with golde also, and stand vpon four sockettes of syluer. And thou shalt hange by the bayle with rynges, and shalt bypyng in within the bayle the arke of testy- mony. And the bayle shall drayde the holy frome the most holy. And thou shalt put the merce- seate vpon the arke of testymony in the holpest place. And thou shalt put the table without the bayle, and candellsticke ouer agaynst the table vpon the south fyde of the habitation, and put the table on the north fyde.

And thou shalt make an hangynge for the doore of the tabernacle, of Jacynthe, of scarlet, of purpul and of twyned bylle wrought with neble worke. And thou shalt make for the hangynge, fyue pylles of Sethim wodde, and couer bothe theym and their knoppes, with golde, and shalt caste fyue sockettes of brasse for them.

¶ Yet mo thynges pertainyng to the holy place.

C A P I. XXVII.

And thou shalt make an altare of Sethim wodde: fyue cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes brode, that it be square, and the cubytes hyghe. And make it bozdes proceedinge out in the foure corners of it, & couer it with brasse. And make his altre- pannes, shoules, basens, fleshyokes, syrep- anes, and all the apperaynances, of brasse, & thou shalt make a grebvern also lyke a net, of brasse: vpon whose foure corners, shalt thou. iij. basen rynges: and the grebvern shall reache vnto the myddes of the altare. And thou shalt make stauies for the altare of Sethim wodde, & couer them with brasse, and let them be put in rynges alonge by the fydes of the altare to drease it with, and make the altare holowe in bozdes: as it was shewed the in the mounte, so let them make it.

And thou shalt make a court vnto the ha- bitation, which shall haue in the southe fyde hangynge of twyned bylle, beyng an hun- dred cubytes longe, and. xx. pylles therof, in thre. xx. sockettes of brasse: but the knoppes of the pylles and their howpes shalt be syluer. In lyke wyse on the north fyde, there shall be hangynge of an hundred cubytes longe, and. xx. pylles with their sockettes of brasse, and. ii. knoppes and the howpes of syluer. And in the breadth of the court westward, there shall be hangynge of fyfte cubytes longe, and ten pylles, with their ten sockettes. And in the breadth of the court eastward, toward the rynges of the soune, shalt hangynge of. i. cubytes.

So there shalt hangynge of. xv. cubytes in the one fyde of it, with thre pylles, and. iij. sockettes: and lyke wyse on the other fyde shalt be hangynge of. xv. cubytes with. iij. pylles and. iij. sockettes.

And in the gate of the court shalt be a bayle of twenty cubites: of Jacynthe, scarlet, purpul and twyned bylle wrought with neble worke and. iij. pylles with their. iij. sockettes. All the pylles rounde aboute the court, shall be howped with syluer, and their knoppes of syl- uer, and their sockettes of brasse. The length of the court shalt be an hundred cubytes, and the breadth. l. and the heygth fyue, and the hangynge shall be of twyned bylle, and the sockettes of brasse. And all the bellies of the habitation to all maner scrupce, and the pyl- nes therof: yee and the pyennes also of the court shalt be brasse.

And commaunde the children of Israel that they geue the pure oyle olīue beaten for the lychtes to put in alwaye into the lampes. In the tabernacle of testymony without the bayle which is before the testymony: and Aaron and his sonnes shall drease it bothe euen and mo- rnyng before the Lorde: and it shalt be a testy- mony for euer vnto poure generacions after you: to be gyuen of the chyldren of Israel.

¶ Aarons apparell, and his sonnes.

C A P I. XXVIII.

And take thou vnto the Aaron thy bro- ther and his sonnes with hym, sort of the chyldren of Israel, that he maye mi- nister vnto me, both Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holy rayment for Aaron thy brother, both honourable & glorious. More- ouer speke vnto al that are wyse hearted, whi- che I haue fylled with the spyrte of wysdome: that they make Aarons rayment to consecrate hym with, that he maye minister vnto me.

These are the garments which they shall make: a byestlappe, Ephod, a tuncle, a sleaue cote, a myter and a gyrdell. And they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy bro- ther, and his sonnes, that he maye minister vnto me.

And they shall take thereto golde, Jacynthe, scarlet, purpul and bylle. And they shall make the Ephod of golde, iacynthe, scarlet, purpul and whyre twyned bylle with broderd worke. The two fydes shall come together, closed by in the edges therof. And the gyrdell of the Ephod shalt be of the same workmanshipp and of the same stuffe, euen of golde, iacynthe, scarlet, purpul and twyned bylle.

And thou shalt take two Onyx stones, and graue in them the names of the chyldren of Israel: sixe in the one stone, and the other sixe in the other stone: accordyng to the order of their byrth. After the worke of a stonegrauer, euen as sygnettes are graued, shalt thou graue the. ii. stones with the names of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt make them to be set in ou- ches of golde. And thou shalt put the two stones vpon the two shoulders of the Ephod, & they shalt be stones of remembrance vnto the chyldren of Israel. And Aaron shall beare their names before the Lorde vpon his two shoul- ders for a remembrance. And thou shalt make hokes of golde and two cheynes of fyne golde: lyke wyse and bydded, and fasten the wy- ched cheynes to the hokes.

And thou shalt make the byestlappe of iud- gement with broderd worke: euen after the worke of the Ephod, shalt thou make it: of golde, iacynthe, scarlet, purple & twyned bylle shalt thou make it. Four square it shalt be, & double, an hande brede longe, and an hande brede brode. And thou shalt fill it with. iij. rowes of stones. In the first rowe shall be a Sardios, a Topas, and an Emeraude. The seconde rowe, a Ruby, Sapphir and Dia- monde. The thiede: Agurios, an Achat and Amatis. The fourth: a Turcas, Onix, and Jaspis. And they shall be set in golde in their inclosures. And the stones shall be grauen, as sygnettes be grauen: with the names of the chyldren of Israel euen with twelue names: e- uery one with his name accordyng to the. xij. tribes.

And thou shalt make vpon the byestlappe,

two fastenynge cheynes of pure golde & wythen worke. And thou shalt make lyketwysse vpon the brestplate two rynges of golde, and put them on the edges of the brestplate, and put the two wythen cheynes of golde, in the two rynges, whiche are in the edges of the brestplate. And the two endes, of the .ij. cheynes, thou shalt fasten in the two rynges, and put them vpon the shoulders of the Ephod on the forsyde out. And thou shalt yet make .ij.
rynges of golde, and put them in the two endes of the brestplate euen in the borders ther-of towards the insyde of the Ephod that is ou-er againste it. And yet two other rynges of golde thou shalt make, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneath ouer againste the brestplate, alowe where the sydes are ioyned together vpon the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod. And they shal bynde the brestplate by his rynges, vnto the rynges of the Ephod, wa lace of Jacinte, that it maye lye close vnto the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod, that the brestplate be not loosed frome the Ephod.

And Aaron shall beare the names of the children of Israel, in the brestplate of iudge-ment, vpon his hert, when he goeth into the holpe place, for a remembraunce, before the Lorde alway. And thou shalt put in the brest-plate of iudgement * Urim and Thumim: & they be vpon Aarons herte, when he goeth in before the Lorde, and Aaron shall beare the ensample of the children of Israel, vpon his herte, before the Lorde alwaye.

And thou shalt make the tynycle vnto the Ephod, all together of Jacinte. And there shalbe an hole for the heed, in the myddes of it, and let there be a bonde of wounen worke ronde aboute the coler of it, (as it were the coler of a parlet) that it rent not. And beneath vpon the hem, thou shalt make pomgranates of Jacinte, of scarlet, and of purple, round about the hem, & belles of golde betwene them ronde about: that there be euer a golden bel and a pomgranate, ronde aboute vpon the hem of the tynycle. And Aaron shall haue it vpon him, when he ministrerth, that the sound maye be herde, when he goeth into the holy place, before the Lorde, and when he cometh out, that he dye not.

And thou shalt make a plate of pure golde,
and graue thereon, (as sygnettes are grauen) the holynesse of the Lorde, and put it on a lace of Jacinte, and tye it vnto the mytre, vpon the forsyde of it, that it be vpon Aarons forcheed: that Aaron beare the * synne of the holp thynges whiche the chyldre of Israel haue halowed in all their holy gyftes. And it shalbe alwayes vpon Aarons forcheed, that they maye be accepted before the Lorde.

And thou shalt make an albe of bylle, and thou shalt make a mytre of bylle, and a gyrdell of noble worke.

And thou shalt make for Aarons sonnes al so cotes, gyrdels and bouettes honourable & glorious: and thou shalt put them vpon Aarons thy brother, and on his sonnes with him and thou shalt annointe them, and fill their handes, & consecrate them that they maye ministrer vnto to me. And thou shalt make them linnen byr-cyes to couer their priuities: frome the loppes vnto the thyres shall they reach. And they shalbe vpon Aaron and his sonnes, whē they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they go vnto the altar to mynistrer in holynes that they beare no synne, and so dye. And it shalbe a law for euer vnto Aaron and his seed after hym.

The consecration of Aaron and his sonnes.

C A P I. XXIX.

This is the thyng that thou shalt do to them when thou halowest them to be my prestes. Take one ore and two rammes that are without blemish, and vnleuended byed, and takes of swete byed tempered with oyle, and wafers of swete byed, annoynted with oyle (of wyeten flour shalte thou make them) and put them in a maunde and bynge them in the maunde with the ore, and the two rammes.

And bynge Aaron and his sonnes, vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and walsh them with water, and take the garmentes, & put vpon Aaron: the tynapre cote, and the tyn-aple of the Ephod, and the Ephod, and the brestplate: and gyde them to him, with the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod. And put the mytre vpon his heed, and put the holy crown vpon the mytre. Then take the annoyntinge oyle, and powre it vpon his heed and anoynt him. And bynge his sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyde them with gyrdels: as wel Aaron as his sonnes. And put the bouettes on them, that the prestes office maye be theirs for a perpetuall lawe.

And fill the handes of Aarons and of his son-nes, and bynge the ore before the tabernacle of wytnesse. * And let Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon his heed, and kyll him before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And take of the bloude of the ore and put it vpon the hornes of the altar, with thy syngar and powre all the bloud vpon the botome of the altar, and take all the fat that couereth the inwardes, and the hall that is on the luer, and the two kyndes with the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpon the altar. But the flesch of the ore & his skynne and his donge shalt thou burne with fyre wout the holle, for it is a synne offeringe.

Then take one of the rammes, and let Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heade of the ram, and cause hym to be slayne and take of his bloude, and sprengel it round about vpon the altar, and cut the ram in pec-ces, and walsh the inwardes of hym and his legges, and put them vnto the peces, and vnto his heed, and burne the holl ram vpon the altar. For it is a burnt offeringe to the Lorde and a swete sauoure of the Loydes sacrifice.

And take the other ram, and let Aaron and his sonnes, put their handes vpon his heed, & let him than be kylld. And take of his bloud and put it vpon the tynple of the right eare of Aaron and of his sonnes, & vpon the thombe of their

of their right handes, and vpon the great too-
of their right fete, and sprengel the bloude vpon the altar round about.

Then take of the bloude, that is vpon the alter, and of the annoyntinge oyle, and sprengel it vpon Aaron, and his beclimentes, and vpon his sonnes, and vpon their garmentes also. Then is he and his clothes holy and his sonnes, and their clothes holy also.

Then take the fat of the ramme, and his compe, and the fat that couereth the inward-es, and the hall of the luer, and the two kyndes neps, and the fat that is vpon them, and the ryght shoulter (for that ram is a full offeringe) and a synnell of byed, and a cake of oyled byed and a wafer oute of the basket of swete byed that is before the Lorde, and put all vpon the handes of Aarons, and on the handes of his son-nes: and waue them in & out a waue offeringe vnto the Lorde. Then take it frome of thier handes, and burne it vpon the altar: euen vpon the burnt offeringe, to be a sauoure of swetenesse before the Lorde. For it is a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Then take the breste of the ram that is Aarons full offeringe, and shalt sanctifie it an offeringe before the Lorde, and let that be thy part. And sanctify the brest of the waue offeringe, and the shoulter of the heue offeringe, whiche is the fullofferinge of Aaron, and of his sonnes. And it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes durie for euer, of the children of Israel, for it is an heue offeringe. And the heue offeringe shall be the Loydes due of the children of Israel:
euen of the sacrifice of their peaceofferings, whiche they haue vnto the Lorde. And the holy garmentes of Aaron, shalbe his sonnes after him, to annoynte them therein, and to fill their handes therein. And that sonne that is preest in his stede after hym, shal put them on seuen dayes: that he go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, to mynistrer in the holy place.

Then take the ram that is the fullofferinge and sette his fleshe in an holy place. And Aaron and his sonnes shall eate the flesch of hym and the byed that is in the basket: euen in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And they shall eate them, because the attonement was made therewith to fill their handes, and to sanctifie them: but a stranger shall not eate ther-of, because they are holy.

Yfought of the fleshe of the fullofferinges,
or of the breed remayne vnto the morninge, thou shalt burne it with fyre: for it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. And se thou do vnto Aaron and his sonnes, euen so in all thynges as I haue commaunded the: that thou fill their handes seuen dayes, and offre euery day an ore for a synne offeringe to reconcele with.
And thou shalt halowe the altar, when thou reconcelst it, and shalt annoynte it, to sanctifie it. Seuen dayes thou shalt reconcele the alter, and sanctifie it, that it maye be an alter most holpe: so that no man may touche it but they that be consecrate.

This is that thou shalt offre vpon the altar two lambes of one yere olde, daye by daye for euer, the one thou shalt offre in the morninge and the other at eue. And vnto the one lambe take a tenth deale of flour mynght with the fourth parte of an hin of beaten oyle, and the fourth parte of an hin of wyne, for a dynkoff-ringe. And the other lambe thou shalt offre at euen, and shalt do thereto accordynge to the meateofferinge and dynkofferinge in the mornyng, to be an odoure of a swete sauoure of sacrifice of the Lorde. And it shalbe a continuall burnt offeringe, amonge your children after you, in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, before the Lorde, where I will mete you, to speke vnto you there. Where I will mete with the children of Israel, and will be sanctified, in myne honour. And I will sanctifie the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the alter: and I will sanctifie also both Aaron and his sonnes to be my prestes. And moreover I will dwell amonge the children of Israel, and will be their God.

And they shall knowe that I am the Lorde their God, that brought them out of the land of Egypte, to dwell amonge them: euen I & Lorde their God.

The altare of incense. The brassen lauer. The annoyntinge oyle.

C A P I. XXX.

And thou shalt make an alter to burne incense therein, of Sethim wodde: a cubyle longe, and a cubyle broade, euen fowresquare shall it be, and two cubyles hye:
with hoznes proceedinge oute of it, and thou shalt ouerlape it with fyne golde, bothe the rosse, and the walles ronde aboute, and his hoznes also, and shalt make vnto it a crowne of golde ronde about, and two golden rynges on epyther syde, euen vnder the crowne, to put stauces therein, for to beare it withall. And thou shalt make the stauces of Sethim wodde and couer them with golde. And thou shalt put it before the bayle, that hangeth before the arcke of wytnesse, and before the mercyseate that is before the wytnesse, where I will mete the.

And Aaron shall burne thereon swete ense euery moynynge, when he dresseth the lam-pes: and lyketwysse at euen, when he setteth vp the lampes, he shall burne ense perpetually before the Lorde, thowtwe oute your ge-neracions. Ye shall put no straunge ense thereon, neyther burnt sacrifice, nor meateof-feringe, neyther poure any dynkofferinge thereon.

And Aaron shall reconcele vpon the hornes of it, once in a yere, with the bloude of the synneofferinge of reconcylinge: euen once in the yere shall he reconcele it thowtwe your ge-neracions. And so is it mooste holpe vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge:
* When thou takeste the summe of the children of Israel, and tellest them, they shal gyue euery man a reconcylinge of his soule vnto the Lorde that there be no plage amonge the when thou tellest them. And thus moost shall euery man gyue that goeth in the nymbre:

the heueringe vnto the Loyde. And all that are nombred of them that are twenty yere old and aboue, shall gyue an heueringe vnto the Loyde. The cyche shal not passe, and the poze shall not goo vnder halfe a shele, when they gyue an heueringe vnto the Loyde, for the attonement of their soules. And thou shalt take the reconcylinge money of the chyldren of Israel, and shalt put it vnto the vte of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and it shall be a memoriall of the chyldren of Israel, before the Loyde, to make an attonement, for their soules.

And the Loyde spake vnto Moyses sayenge: Thou shalt make a lauer of brasse, and his fore also of brasse to walsh the with, and shalt put it betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the alter, and put water thereto: that Aaron and his sonnes may walsh both their handes and their fete therout, when they go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, or when they go vnto the altare, to mynsire and to burne the Loydes offryng, lest they dye. And it shall be an ordinance for euer vnto him & his seed among your chyldren after you.

And the Loyde spake vnto Moyses sayenge: take principall spices: of pure myrrour spure hundred pyles, of sweete cynamome halfe so much two hundred and fiftie pyles: of sweete calamyte, two hundred and fiftie. Of cassia, two hundred and fiftie, after the holy shele, and of oyle olyue, an hyn. And make of them a holy anoyntinge oyle, euen an oyle compounde after the crasse of the apotycary. And annoynce the tabernacle of wytnesse therewith, and the arke of wytnesse, and the table with al his appertenaunce, and the candlesticke with al his ordinaunce, and the altare of incense, and the alter of burnt sacrifice and all his vessels, & the lauer and his fote. And sacrifice them that they may be most holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And annoynce Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them to mynsire vnto me.

And thou shalt speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayeng: This shal be an holy anoyntinge oyle vnto me, thowoe oure poure generacions. No man shal we take any oyle after the makinge of it, for it is holye, se therfore that ye take it for holy: who so euer maketh lyke that, or who so euer putteth any of it vpon a straunger, shall perishe frome his people.

And the Loyde spake to Moyses: Take to the sweete spices: stacte, onycha, stwere galbanum, and pure frankincense, of the lyke moche: and make incense of them compounde after the crasse of the apotycary, myngled together, that it maye be made pure and holy. And beate it to powder, and put it before the wytnesse, in the tabernacle of wytnesse, where I wyll meete the, but let it be vnto you holye. And se that ye make none after the makinge of char, but let it be vnto you holy for the Loyde. And who so euer shall make lyke vnto that, to smelle there to, shall perishe frome his people.

The callinge of Bezaleel and Aholiab the workmen. The Sabbath is commaunded. The tables of stone are gyuen Moyses.

CAPI. XXXI.

And the Loyde spake vnto Moyses, sayeng: Beholde, I haue called by name Bezaleel, the sonne of Ely, sonne to Duth, of the tribe of Iuda. And I haue tyld hym with the spere of God, with wysdome, vnderstandyng and knowledg: euen in all maner worke, to synde oute felle scaptes, to worke in golde, syluer and brasse, and with crasse to graue stoness, to set and to carue in tymber, and to worke in all maner workman-shyp. And beholde, I haue gyuen hym, to be companion, Aholiab, the sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, & in the hartes of all that are wyse harted, I haue put wysdome to make all that I haue commaunded the: the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the arke of wytnesse, and the mercyseate that is there vpon all the ornaments of the tabernacle, and the table with his ordinaunce, and the pure candlesticke with all his apparell, and the alter of incense, and the alter of burnt offerings, with all his vessels, and the lauer with his fote, and the vestimentes to mynsire in, and the holy garments for Aaron the preest, and the garments of his sonnes to mynsire in, & the anoyntinge oyle, and the sweete incense for the landu ser: accordyng to all that I haue commaunded the, shall they do.

And the Loyde spake vnto Moyses sayeng: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: In any wyse, se that ye kepe my Sabbath, for it shall be a signe betwene me and you, in your generacions, for to knowe, that I the Loyde doo sanctifie you. Kepe my Sabbath therfore, that it be an holy thinge vnto you. Be that despyeth it shal be slayne therfore. For who so euer worketh there in, the same soule shal be roted oute frome his people.

Sixte dayes shal men worke, but the seuenth daye is the Sabbath, of the holpe reule of the Loyde: so that who so euer doeth any worke in the Sabbath daye, shall dye for it: wherfore let the chyldren of Israel kepe the Sabbath, that they obserue it thowoe oute their generacions, that it be an appoyntement for euer. For it shal be a signe betwene me and the chyldren of Israel, for euer. For in six dayes the Loyde made heauen and earth, and the seuenth daye he rested and was refreshed.

And when he hadde made an ende of comynge with Moyses vpon the mounte Sinai, he gaue him two tables of wytnesse: which were of stone, and wyrtten with the fyrnges of God.

The Israelites worshyp the golden calfe. Moyses prayeth for them, puttynge God in remembrance of his promise. He breaketh the tables for anger. He chydeth Aaron. The phylaters are slaine. Moyses prayeth God to forgyue them, or to put him out of the booke of lyfe.

CAPI. XXXII.

And

And when the people sawe that it was longe, Moyses came to wone of the mountayne, they gathered them selues together, and came vnto Aaron, and sayde vnto him: * Arise and make vs a God to go before vs: for of this Moyses the felow that brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte, we wote not what is become.

And Aaron sayde vnto them: plucke of the golden earynges, whiche are in the eares of your wyues, your sonnes and of your doughters: and bringe them vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, that were in their eares, and broughte them vnto Aaron. And he receyued them of their handes, and facyoned it with a grauer and made it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: * This is thy God O Israel, whiche broughte the oute of the lande of Egypte.

And when Aaron sawe that, he made an altare before it, and made a proclamation sayenge, To morowe shall be holy daye vnto the Loyde. And they rose vp in the mornynge and offered burnt offerings, and broughte offerings of attonement also. * And than they sat them downe to eate and drinke, and rose vp agayne to playe.

Then the Loyde sayde vnto Moyses: * go get the downe, for the people whiche thou broughtest oute of the lande of Egypte haue married all, they are turned at once out of the waye whiche I commaunded them: * & haue made them a calfe of molten metall, and haue worshypped it, and haue offered thereto, & haue sayde: This is thy God thou Israel, whiche hath broughte the oute of the lande of Egypte. And the Loyde sayde vnto Moyses: beholde, I se this people that it is a stiffe necked people and nowe therfore suffer me that my wyrtthe maye waxe hote vpon them, and that I maye consume them: and then will I make of the a myghty people.

Then Moyses besought the Loyde his God and sayde: O Loyde, why shulde thy wyrtthe waxe hote vpon the people whiche thou haste brought oute of the lande of Egypte to greute power and with a myghty hande? * wherfore shulde the Egyptians speake and say: For a myschefe dyd he bringe them oute: euen to slay them in the mountaynes, and to consume them frome the face of the earth? Turne from thy fereful wyrtthe, and haue compassion ouer the workidnesse of thy people. Remembere Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruantes, to who thou sworedest by thyn owne selfe, and saydest vnto them: * I will multiplye your seed as the starrs of heauen, and all this lande whiche I haue sayde, I will gyue vnto your seed: & they shall inheret it for euer. And the Loyde repayned him selfe frome that cruell, which he sayde he wolde do vnto his people.

And Moyses turned his backe, and wente downe frome the hyll, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande: whiche were wyrtten on bothe the leaues, and were the worke of God, grauen vpon the tables. And when he sawe herde the noyse of the people as they pou ted, he sayde vnto Moyses: there is a noyse of warre in the hoste. And he sayde: it is not the crye of them that haue the masterye, nor of the that haue the worke: but I do heare the noyse of synnginge.

And as sone as he came vnto the host and sawe the calfe and the daunsyng, his wyrtthe waxed hote, and he cast the tables oute of his hande, and brake them euen at the hyll fote. And he toke the calfe which they had made, & burned it with fyre, and stampyt it vnto powder, and strewed it in the water, and made the chyldren of Israel drynke. And than Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast broughte to great a synne vpon them?

And Aaron sayde: let not the wyrtthe of my Loyde waxe fereful, thou knowest the people that they are euen set on myschefe: they sayde vnto me: Make vs a God to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moyses thy felow, that broughte vs oute of the lande of Egypte. And I sayd vnto them: Let them that haue golde, take and bringe it me: And I cast it into the fyre, & therof came out this calfe.

When Moyses sawe that the people were naked (for Aaron had made them naked vnto their shame when they made idollatry) he went and stode in the gate of the hoste, & sayd: Yf any man perterayne vnto the Loyde, let him come to me. And all the sonnes of Leui gathered them selues together, and came vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: Thus sayeth the Loyde of Israel: * Put every man his sword by his syde, and go in and out from gate to gate thowoe oute the host: and slay every man his brother, every man his frende, and every man his neyghboure. And the chyldren of Leui dyd as Moyses had sayde. * And there were slayne of the people the same daye, aboute thre thousande men. Then Moyses sayde: fyll your handes vnto the Loyde this daye, every man vpon his sonne and vpon his brother: to bringe vpon you a blessinge this daye.

And on the morowe, Moyses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue synned a great synne. But now I will goo vp vnto the Loyde, to wyrtte wherther I can make an attonement for your synne.

And Moyses went agayne vnto the Loyde, & sayde: Oh, this people haue synned a great synne, and haue made them a god of gold: yet forgyue them their synne I praye the: Yf not & wyrtte me oute of thy booke whiche thou haste wyrtten. And the Loyde sayde vnto Moyses: I will put him oute of my booke that hath synned against me. But goo and bringe the people vnto the lande whiche I sayd vnto the: beholde, myne angell shall goo before the, & uerthelatter in the daye when I byset. I will byset their synne vpon them. And the Loyde plagued the people, because they made the calfe whiche Aaron made.

The Loyde sendeth an angell before his people. The Loyde denyeth to go vp with the people. The people lament they synne. Moyses talketh with the Loyde and despyeth to se his face: and is commaunded to stande vpon the rocke.

CAPI.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses: bepartte and go hence: both thou and the people which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypt, vnto the lande whiche I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, say-enge: vnto thy seed I will giue it. * And I will sende an angell before the, and will calle vnto the Canaanites, the Amorites, the He-thites, the Hittites, the Iebusites, and the Iebusites: that thou mayest go into a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. But thou wilt not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a stiffnecked people: lest I consume you by the waye. And when the people herde this euill tydings, they sorrowed: and no man dyd put on his best rayment.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, Say vn-
to the children of Israel: ye are a stiffnecked people: I must come once suddenly vpon you, and make an ende of you. But now put your goodly rayment from you, that I maye write what to do vnto you. And the children of Israel sayde their goodly rayment frome theym euen vnder the mount Sine.

B And Moyses toke the tabernacle & pitched it without the doore a farr off frome the hoste, and called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And all that wolde are any question of the Lorde, wente oute vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche was without the host. And when Moyses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euery man in his ier dore, and looked after Moyses, vntill he was gone into the tabernacle. And as sone as Moses was entered into the tabernacle, the clouden pyle descended, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moyses.
And when all the people sawe the clouden pyle stande in the tabernacle doore, they rose vp & worshipped: euery man in his tent doore.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses & saide to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende. And when Moyses turned agayne into the host, the lad Josua his seruante the sonne of Nun bepartte not out of the tabernacle. And Moyses sayde vnto the Lorde: Se, thou saydest vnto me: Leade this people forthe, but thou de-west me not whom thou wilt sende with me.
And hast said moxmore: I knowe the by name
and thou hast also founde grace in my sighte: Now therefore, if I haue founde fauour in thy sighte, then shewe me thy waye, & let me knowe
the: that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte.
And toke on this also, howe that this nacion is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shall go with the,
and I will giue the rest. And he sayde: If thy presence go not with me, saye vs not hence for howe shall it be knowne now that both I and thy people haue founde fauour in thy sighte, but in that thou goest with vs: that bothe I and thy people haue a preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth.
And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: I will do this also that thou hast sayde, for thou hast founde grace in my sighte, and I knowe the

by name.

And he sayde: I beseeche the, shewe me thy glory: And he sayde: I will make all my good go before the, & I will be called in this name Iehouah before the, and will shewe mercy to whome I shewe mercy, and will haue compassion on whome I haue compassion. And he sayde furthermore: thou mayst not see my face, for there shall no man see me and lyue.

And the Lorde sayde, Beholde, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stande vpon a rocke, and while my glory goeth forthe, I will put the in a clyffe of the rocke, and will put myne hande vpon the while I passe by. And then I will take awaye myne hande, and thou shalt see my backe partes: but my face shall not be seene.

The tables are renewed. The mercy of God. To haue fellowship with the gentiles is forbidden, and they yet oblige also. The feast of sweete breade. The feast of begotten. The Sabbath. The feast of the weekes. The fynde frutes. Moyses fast, Moyses face glorified.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: be-the two tables of stone, lyke vnto the first, that I may write in them the wodes which were in the first two tables, which thou brakest. And be ready against the morning that thou mayst come vnto the mount of Sinai and stande me there vpon the topp of the mounte. But let no man come vp with the, neyther let any man be seene thowowe out all the mount, neyther let the shepe nor oxen fede before the hyll.

And Moyses betwixt two tables of stone like vnto the first, and rose vp early in the morning and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai as the Lorde commaunded him, and toke in his hande the two tables of stone. And the Lorde descended in the cloude, & stode with him there: and he called vpon the name of the Lorde. And when the Lorde walked before him, he cryed: Lorde * Lorde God, full of compassion and mercy, whiche arte not lyghtly angrye, but abundant in mercy and truth, and kepest mercy in store for thousands, and forguest wyckednesse, trespass, and synne (for there is no man innocent before the) and visytest the wyckednesse of the fathers vpon the children, & vpon childrens children, euen vnto the thirde and fourth generations. And Moyses bowed him kisse to the earth quicly, and worshipped and sayde: If I haue founde grace in thy sighte, o Lorde, then let my Lorde go with vs (for it is a stubborne people) and haue mercy vpon our wickednes and our synne, and let vs be thyne inheritance.

And he sayde: beholde, I make an appoyntment before all this people, that I wil make vnto the, such as haue not bene doone in all the world, neyther amonge any nacion. And all the people, amonge which thou art, shall see the workes of the Lorde: for it is a terrible thyng that I will do with the: kepe all that I commaunde the this daye: and beholde, I will call out the

out before the: the Amorites, Canaanites, Hittites, Hittites, Hittites, and Jebu-sities. * Take hede to thy selfe, that thou make no league with the inhabitants of the lande whether thou goest, leaue it be cause of eynne amonge you. But ouerthrowe their altars and bryake their pylers, and cut downe their gro-ues, for thou shalt worshyppe no strange God. For the Lorde is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: least if thou make any agreement with the inhabitants of the land when they go a hoorunge after their goddes and to sacrifice vnto their goddes, they call thee and thou eate of their sacrifice: and thou take of their daughters vnto thy sonnes, and whil their daughters go a hoorunge after their god-des, they make thy sonnes go a hoorunge after their goddes also.

Thou shalt make the no goddes of metall,
The feast of sweete breade thou kepe, and seuen dayes thou shalt eate unleuend bred (as I commaunded the) in the tyme appoynted in the mouth of Abib: for in the moneth of A-bib thou camest out of Egypte. All that breaketh vp the matrice shall be myne, and all that bryaketh the matrice amonge thy cattell, if it be male: whether it be ore or a shepe. But if fyrde of the asse thou shalt bye oute with a shepe, or if thou redeme him not: se thou bryake his necke. All the firste boynes of thy sonnes thou must redeme. * And se that no ma appeare before me emptye.

Seuen dayes thou shalt worke, and the seuenth day thou shalt rest: bothe sone earynge & reapynge. * Thou shalt obserue the feast of weekes with the first frutes of wheate heruest and the feast of ingathering at the yeres ende.
Thrice in a yere shall all your men children appeare before the Lorde omnipotent God of Israel: for I will call out the nacrons before the, and will enlarge thy coastes, so that no man shall desire thy lande, while thou goest vp to appeare before the face of the Lorde thy God, thirde in the yere.

* Thou shalt not offer the bloud of my sacrifice with leuend bred: neyther shall ought of the sacrifice of the feast of Passouer be leste vnto the morninge. The firste of the firste frutes of thy lande, thou shalt brynge vnto the house of the Lorde thy God. And se, thou seesthe not a kybbe in his mothers milke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Write these wordes, for vpon these wordes I haue made a couenaunt with the, and with the children of Israel. * And he was there with the Lorde .xl. dayes, and .xl. nyghtes, and neyther ate bred nor dranke water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the couenaunt: euen ten verses.

And Moyses came downe frome mount Sinai, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande, and myne not that his face shone with beames of his commenynge with the Lorde.

And when Aaron and all the children of Israel looked vpon Moyses, and sawe that the shynne of his face shone with beames, they were astryde to come nigh to him. But he called them to hym, and then Aaron and all the chefe of the company came vnto him, & Moses talked with them.

And at last all the children of Israel came vnto him, and he gaue commaundement vnto them of all that the Lorde had sayde vnto him in mount Sinai. And as soone as he hadde made an ende of talkynge with theym, he put a couerynge vpon his face. But when he toke before the Lorde to speake with him, he toke the couerynge of, vntill he came out. And he came out and spake vnto the children of Israel that which he was commaunded. And the children of Israel sawe the face of Moyses, that the shynne of his face shone with bea-mes / but Moyses put a couerynge vpon his face, till he wente in to commen with him.

The Sabbath. The fynde frutes are requyred The rebynes of the people to offer. Bezaleel and Ahaliab are prayled of Moyses and set to worke.

And Moyses gathered all the companye of the children of Israel together, and sayde vnto theym / these are the thynges whiche the Lorde hath commaunded to do. Sixe dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth daye shall be vnto you the holy Sab-both of the Lordes rest: so that who so e-uer toke anye worke therein, shall dye.
Whereouer ye shall kyndle no fyre thowowe out all your habytations, vpon the Sabbath daye.

And Moyses spake vnto all the multitude of the children of Israel saying * this is the thyng whiche the Lorde commaunded, sayynge. Gyue some amonge you fynde frutes vnto the Lorde.

All that are wyllynge in theyr hartes, shall brynge fynde frutes vnto the Lorde:
golde, syluer, brylle, iacynth, scarlett, purple, byss, and gores beare: rammes skynnes red and tawus skynnes and sethim wood: and oyle for lyghtes and spices for the anoynting oyle and for the swete encense: & onyx stones and stones to be set for the Ephod and for the brestplate.

And lette all theym that are wyle harted among you, come and make all that the Lorde hath commaunded: the habytacion and the fence therof with his couerynge and his ringes, boides, barres, pylers, and sockettes, the arke and the stauess therof with the mercyseate and the vayne that couered it / the table and his stauess, with all that pertayneth thereto and the shewbryd / the candlesticke of lyght with his furnyngynge and his lampes, and the oyle for the lyghtes / the incense alter and his stauess, the anoyntynge oyle, and the swete incense and the hangynge before the tabernacle wye / the altare of burnt sacrifices, & his brylen gredyon that lygeth thereto with his stauess and all his ordynance, and the laues

lauer & his fote: the hangynges of the court with his pylles and their lockettes, and the hangynges to the wote of the court: the pylles of the habitation, and the pylles of the court with their boozes: the mynstunge garments to minstre with in holynesse, and the holy vestmentes of Aaron the preast and the vestmentes of his sonnes, to mynstre in.

And all the company of the children of Israel departed from the presence of Moyses. And they went (as many as their spirittes made them wyllynge) and brought heueofferynges vnto the Lozde, to the makynge of the tabernacle of wyntelle, and for all his vles, & for the holy vestmentes. And the men came with the women (euen as many as were wyllynge herted) and brought bracelets, earynges, rynges and gydes, and all maner Jewels of golde. And all the men that waued wauerynges of golde vnto the Lozde and euen with whom was founde Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple, Wyllow or gootes beare or red skynnes of Hammes or Taurus skynnes, brought it. And all þe houe of golde or brasse, brought an heueofferyng vnto the Lozde. And all men with whom was founde Sethim wode mete for anye maner woike / or seruise, brought it.

And all the women that were wyll herted to woike with their handes, span & brought the sponne woike, both of Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple and Wyllow. And all the women that excelled in wylsome of herte, spanne the gootes hayre. And the Lozdes brought Oxir skynes and sections for the Ephod, and for the byestappe, and spye and oyle / bothe for the lychtes and for the annoynting oyle and for the sweete incense. And the children of Israel brought wyllyngeofferynges vnto the Lozde, both men and women / as many as their hertes made them wyllynge to bringe, for all maner woikes which the Lozde had commaunded to make by the hande of Moyses.

And Moyses sayde vnto the children of Israel / behold * the Lozde hath call by name Bezaleel the sonne of Aep the sonne of Hur of the tribe of Juda, and hath spyled hym with the spryte of God, with wylsome, vnderstandynge and knowledge, euen in all maner woike, and to fynde out curyous woikes, to woike in golde, syluer and brasse / & with grauynge of stones to set, and with hertynge in wode, and to woike in all maner of scule woikes. And he hath put in his herte the grace to teache / bothe hym and Aholiab the sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan hath he spyled with wylsome of herte, to woike al maner of grauen woike / they are also bydesters and woikers with needle. In Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple and Wyllow, and are weuers that can make all maner woike, and can deuyse fustell woikes.

* The thynges that Bezaleel and Aholiab made for the hyt place of the Lozde.

And Bezaleel wroughte and Aholiab & all wyll herted men, to whom the Lozde hadde gyven wylsome and vnderstandynge, to knowe howe to woike all maner woike for the holy scrupce, in all that the Lozde commaunded.

And Moyses called for Bezaleel Aholiab, & all the wyll herted men, in whose hertes the Lozde hadde put wylsome, euen as many as their hertes were encouraged to come vnto þe woike to woike it. And they receyued of Moyses all the heueofferynges which the children of Israel hadde brought for the woike of the holy seruise to make it with all. And they brought besyde that wyllynge offerynges euenery moynge.

And all the wyll men that wrought all the holy woike, came eueny man from his woike whiche they made, and spake vnto Moyses sayenge / the people bynge to moche and aboue that is ynoughe to serue for the woike which the Lozde hath commaunded to make. And then Moyses gaue a commaundement, & they caused it to be proclaimed thowt out the hord sayenge / se that neyther man nor woman prepare any moze woike for the holy heueofferynges, and so the people were forbydden to bynge / for the surfe they had, was iustiffed for them vnto all the woike, to make it and to moche.

And all the wyll herted men among them that wroughte in the woike of the habytant made / euen ten coierynes of tyned wyllow, Jacynthe, Scarlet, and Purple, and made them full of Cherubins with bydestell woike. The length of one curtayne was. xxv. cubytes, and the bydestell four, and were all of one syde. And they coupled fyue curtaynes by them selues, and other fyue by them selues. And they made fyfty loupes of Jacynthe aldy by the edge of the furdell curtayne, eue in the seluege of the couplynge curtayne / And lyke wyll they made on the syde of the furdell couplynge curtayne on the other syde, fyfty loupes they made in the one curtayne, and fyfty in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other syde / so that the loupes were one vnto against an other.

And they made fyfty rynges of golde / and coupled the curtaynes one to an other with the rynges / and so was it made a dwelling place.

And they made. xl. curtaynes of goates hayre to be a tent ouer the tabernacle thurpe cubytes longe a pece, and four cubytes bode, & they all. xj. of one syde. And they coupled. v. by them selues, and. vi. by them selues, & they made fyfty loupes alonge by the border of the furdell couplynge curtayne on the one syde / & fyfty in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other syde. And they made fyfty rynges of brasse to couple the tente together that it myghte be one. And they made a couplyng vnto the tente of Hammes skynnes reed, and yet an other of Taurus skynnes as boue all.

And

And they made boztes for the dwelling place of Sethim wode that shode bynght eueny bozde ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and an halfe bode. And they made two feete to eueny bozde of the dwelling place ioyninge one to an other. And they made twenty booztes for the southsyde of the habitation, and. xl. lockettes of syluer vnder the. xx. booztes two lockettes vnder eueny bozde, euen for the two feete of them. And for the other syde of the dwelling place towards the North, they made other twenty booztes with fourty lockettes of syluer, two lockettes vnder eueny bozde. And beynde in the ende of the tabernacle towards the west, they made six booztes and two other bozdes for the corners of the habitation beynde, and they were ioynd close bothe beynde and also aboue with clamps & thus they dyd to bothe the corners: so they were in all eght booztes and. xvi. lockettes vnder eueny bozde two lockettes.

And they made barres of Sethim wode. v. for the bozdes of the one syde of the habitation and fyue for the other, and fyue for the bozdes of the west ende of the habitation. And they made the myddell barre to woote thowt the bozdes: frome the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the bozdes in golde, and made them rynges of golde to thurst the barres thowt, and couered the barres with golde. And they made an hangynge of Jacynthe, of Scarlet, Purple and tyned wyllow with Cherubins of bydestell woike. And made therevnto four pylles of Sethim wode, and ouerlayde them with golde. Their knoppes were also of golde, and they call for them. iij. lockettes of syluer. And they made an hangynge for the tabernacle wode: of Jacynthe, Scarlet, purple and tyned wyllow of needlewoike, and the pylles of it were fyue with their knoppes, and ouerlayde the heades of them and the hoopes with golde, with their fyue lockettes of brasse.

The arche of witness. The mercysente. The table. The candellsticke. The lychtes. The auter and the incense.

And Bezaleel made the arche of Sethim wode two cubytes and an halfe longe and a cubyte and a halfe bode, and a cubyte and an halfe hyghe: and ouerlayde it with fyne golde both within & without, and made a crowne of golde to it round about, and caste for it four rynges of golde for the four corners of it: two rynges for the one syde and two for the other, and made staues of Sethim wode, and couered them with golde, and put the staues in the rynges along by the syde of the arche to beare it with.

And he made the mercysente of pure golde two cubytes and a halfe longe and one cubite and a halfe bode, and made two Cherubins of thicke golde vnto the two endes of the mercysente: One Cherub on the one ende, and an other Cherub on the other ende of the mercysente. And the Cherubins spied out their wynges aboute an hyghe, and couered the mercysente therewith. And their faces were one to an other: towards the mercysente, were the faces of the Cherubins.

And he made the table of Sethim wode. v. cubytes longe and a cubyte bode, and a cubyte and a halfe hyghe, and ouerlayde it with fyne golde, and made there a crowne of gold round about, and made there a hoope of an hande breadth rounde about, and made vnto the hoope a crowne of golde rounde aboute, & cast for it four rynges of golde and put the rynges in the four corners by the sete: euen vnder the hoope to put staues in to beare the table with. And he made staues of Sethim wode and couered them with golde to beare the table with, and made v. vessels that were on the table of pure golde, the bylbes, spoones, flatpetes and pottes to poure with.

And he made the candellsticke of pure thicke golde: both the candellsticke and his staffe: in byaunces, bolles, knoppes and floures proceedinge out of it. Sixe byaunces, proceedinge out of the sydes thereof, thre out of the one syde, and thre out of the other. And on eueny byaunche were thre cuppes lyke vnto almondes with knoppes and floures thowt oute the sixe byaunces that proceeded out of the candellsticke. And vpon the candellsticke felt were four cuppes / after the sayon / of almondes with knoppes and floures: vnder eueny two byaunces a knoppe. And the knoppes, and the byaunces proceeded oute of it, & were all one pece of pure thicke gold. And he made seven lampes therto, and the snouers thereof, and fyrpannes of pure golde. An hundred weyght of pure golde, made bothe it and all that belonged therto.

And he made the altare of incense, of Sethim wode, of a cubyte longe, and a cubyte bode: euen four square, and two cubytes hyghe with hoynes proceedinge out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the toppe and the sydes rounde aboute, and the hoynes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of gold round aboute.

And he made two rynges of golde vnto it, euen vnder the crowne vpon eueny syde of it, to put staues in for to beare it with: & made staues of Sethim wode, and ouerlayde them with golde. And he made the holy annoyntinge oyle and the swete pure incense after þe Apothecaris craft.

The auter of burnt offerynges. The byasen lauer. The sonne of that the people offered to the byldynge of the habytation of the Lozde.

And he made the burnt offeryng altare of Sethim wode, fyue cubytes longe / and fyue cubytes bode: eue iij. square and thre cubytes hyghe. And he made hoynes in the four corners of it proceedinge out of it, and ouerlayde it with brasse. And he made all the vessels of the altare: the cauldrons, shouels, balsyns, flampes, and colespannes, f. y. all all of brylle.

And he made a byason grebyyon of netwoke vnto the altare rounde aboute alowe beneth vnder the compasse of the altare: so that it reached vnto halfe the altare, and cast foure rynges of brylle, for the foure endes of the grebyyon to put naues in. And he made naues of sethim woode, and couered them with brylle, and put the naues in the rynges alonge by the altare syde to beare it, and made the altare holowe with bozdes. And he made the lauer of brylle, and the sole of it also of brylle in the sighte of thepyn that dyd watche before the moze of the tabernacle of wyntesse.

And he made the court with hangynges of twyned bylle, of an hundred cubytes longe, vpon the southsyde, and twenty pylers with twenty sockettes of brylle: but the knoppes of the pylers, and the hoopes were siluer. And on the Northsyde the hangynges were an hundred cubytes longe with twenty pylers, and twenty sockettes of brylle, but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were of syluer. And on the west syde, were hangynges of ffty cubytes longe, and x. pylers with ten sockettes, and the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were siluer. And on the east syde toward the sonne ryng, were hangynges of ffty cubytes: the hangynges of the one syde of the gate were fyfene cubytes long, and their pylers thre with thre sockettes. And of the other syde of the court gate were hangynges also of .xv. cubytes longe, and their pylers thre with thre sockettes. Now all the hangynges of the court rounde aboute, were of twyned bylle, and the sockettes of the pylers were brylle: but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were siluer, and the beedes were ouerlaid with syluer, & all the pylers of the court were hooped aboute with syluer. And the hangyng of the gate of the court was nedlewoke, of Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bylle twenty cubytes longe and fyue in the bredth, accordyng to the hangynges of the court. And the pylers were foure with foure sockettes of brylle, and the knoppes of syluer, and the beedes ouerlaid with syluer and hooped aboute with syluer, and all the pynnes of the tabernacle and of the court rounde aboute were brylle.

This is the summe of the habitatio of wyntesse, which was counted at the commaundment of Moyses: and was the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preeste. And Bezaleel sonne of Uri, sonne to Hur of the tribe of Iuda, made all that the Lozde commaunded Moyses, and with hym Ahiaab sonne of Ahiamach of the tribe of Dan, a conynge grauer, and a woiker of nedlewoke in Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple and bylle.

And all the golde that was occupied vpon all the woike of the holy place (whiche was the golde of the waueofferyng) was. xiiij. hundred myght, and seven hundred and thretye scyles, accordyng to the holy scyle. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was fyue scoze hundred myght, and a thousande seven hundred and. lxxv. scyles of the holy scyle. Every man offerpge halfe a scyle after the myght of the holy scyle among them that went to be nombred from twenty yere old and aboue, among six hundred thousand and threze thousand, and fyue hundred and ffty men.

And the fyue scoze hundred myght of syluer went to the castyng of the sockettes of the sanctuary and the sockettes of the bayle: an hundred sockettes of the fyue scoze hundred myght, an hundred myght to every socket. And the thousande seven hundred and. lxxv. scyles, made knoppes to the pylers, and ouerlaid the beedes and hooped them.

And the brylle of the waueofferyng was. lxx. hundred myght and two thousand, and foure hundred scyles. And therewith he made the sockettes to the moze of the tabernacle of wyntesse, and the bryllen altare, and the byasen grebyyon that longeth therto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sockettes of the court rounde about, and the sockettes of the court gate, and all the pynnes of the habitation, and all the pynnes of the court rounde about.

The makinge of Aaron and his sonnes apparell: And that the Lozde commaunded was offered.

CAPL XXXIX.

And of the Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bylle, they made the vestimentes of migration to do service in that holy place, and made the holy garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses.

And they made the Ephod of golde, Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bylle. And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyres: to woike it in the Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple, and the bylle, with bysset woike. And they made the sydes come together, and closed them vp by the .ij. edges. And the bysset of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stoffe and after the same woike of Golde, Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple and twyned bylle, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses.

And they brought Onix stones, closed in bouches of golde and graued as signettes are grauen with the names of the children of Israel, & put them on the shoulders of the Ephod that they shoulde be a remembraunce of the children of Israel, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses.

And they made the byrlappe of conynge woike, after the woike of the Ephod: euen of Golde, Jacynthe, Scarlet, Purple & twyned bylle. And they made it foure square and double, an hande bysseth long and an hande bysseth brode. And they fylled it with foure rowes of stones (the first rowe Sardios, a Topas, and a Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a Ruby, a Saphir & a Diamonde: the thirde rowe, Agatios, an Achat & an Amatis: the fourth fourth rowe, a Turcas, an Onix and a Jasper) closed in outes of golde in their inclosures. And the .xii. stones were grauen as signettes with the names of the children of Israel, every stone with his name, accordyng to the .xii. tribes.

And they made vpon the byrlappe, two fallenyng cheynes of wythen woike & pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde and two golde rynges, and put the two rynges vpon the two corners of the byrlappe. And they put the two cheynes of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the byrlappe. And the two entes of the two cheynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put them on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the forfrente of it.

And they made two other rynges of golde and put them on the two other corners of the byrlappe a longe vpon the edge, toward the insyde of the Ephod that is ouer agaynst it. And they made yet two other golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the forfrente of it, euen where the sydes goo together, about vpon the bysset of the Ephod, and they drayned the byrlappe by his rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with laces of Jacynthe, that it myght lye faste vpon the bysset of the Ephod, and woulde not be lowshed frome of the Ephod, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses.

And he made the Tunicle vnto the Ephod of woun woike, and all together of Jacynthe, and the head of the Tunicle was in the myddell of it as the coler of a partlet, with a bond rounde aboute the coler, that it woulde not rent. And they made beneth vpon the hem of the Tunicle, Pomegranates of Jacynthe, Scarlet, purple and twyned bylle. And they made scyle beiles of pure golde, and put the amonge the Pomegranates rounde aboute vpon the edge of the tunicle a beile & a Pomegranate, a beile and a Pomegranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the Tunicle, to mynster in: as the Lozde commaunded Moyses.

And they made cootes of bylle of woun woike for Aaron and his sonnes, and a mytter of bylle, and goodly bonettes of bylle, and lynen bysches of twyned bylle, and a gyrdell of twyned bylle, Jacynthe, Scarlet and purple: euen of nedlewoike, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses.

And they made the plate of the holy crown of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it with grauen woike, the holynes of the Lozde: and tped it to a lace of Jacynthe to fasten it an hygher vpon the mytte, as the Lozde commaunded Moyses.

Thus was all the woike of the habitatio of the tabernacle of wyntesse fynished. And the children of Israel dyd accordyng to all that the Lozde hadde commaunded Moyses.

And they brought the habitatio vnto Moyses: the tent and all the furnyre therof: the buttons, boozdes, bannes, pylers and sockettes: and the couerpyng of Rams skynnes red: and the couerpyng of Parus skynnes, and the hangyng bayle, and the arcke of wyntesse with the naues thereof, and the mercyseate: the table and all the ordinaunce therof, and the shewbyrd, and the pure candelsycke, and the lampes prepared therunto, with all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lychtes, and the golden altare, and the annopnyng oyle and the swete incense, and the hangyng of the tabernacle woike, and the byasen altare: and the bysset of byasse longyng thervnto with his bannes and all his vessels, and the lauer with his sole, and the hangynges of the court with his pylers and sockettes, and the hangyng to the court gate, his boozdes and pynnes, and all the ordinaunce that serueth to the habitatio of the tabernacle of wyntesse, and the mynistering vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes of Aaron the preeste and his sonnes raymentes to mynster in: accordyng to all that the Lozde commaunded Moyses: euen so the children of Israel made all the woike. And Moyses behelde all the woike: and se, they hadde done it euen as the Lozde commaunded: and then Moyses blessed them.

The tabernacle is reared vp. The glory of the Lozde appeareth in a cloude couerpyng the tabernacle.

CAPL XL.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge. In the first daye of the first moneth shalt thou set vp the habitatio of the tabernacle of wyntesse, and put therein the arcke of wyntesse, and couer the arcke with the bayle, and bynge in the table and apparel it, and bynge in the candelsycke and put on his lampes, and set the cense alcare of golde, before the arcke of wyntesse, and put the hangyng of the doze vnto the habitatio. And set the burntofferyng altare before the moze of the tabernacle of wyntesse, and set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wyntesse and the altare, and put water therein, and make the court rounde about, and set vp the hangyng of the court gate.

* And take annopnyng oyle and annopnt the habitatio, and all that is therein, and halowe it, and al that belongeth thereto: that it maye be holpe. And annopnt the altare of the burntofferynges, and all his vessels, and sanctifye the altare that it maye be moke holpe. And annopnt also the lauer and his sole and sanctifye it.

Then bynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the moze of the tabernacle of wyntesse, and waashe them with water. And put vpon Aaron the holy vestimentes, and annopnt hym and sanctifye hym that he maye mynster vnto me, that their annopnyng maye be an euerlastyng pteache vnto them thowtwe oute their generacions. * And Moyses dyd acordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded him.

Thus was the tabernacle reared by the first daye, in the first moneth, in the seconde pere. And Moses reared by the tabernacle, and fastened his sockettes, and set by the boardes, and put in their barres, and reared by the pillars, and spred abrode the tent ouer the habitation, and put the couerynge of the tente on hygh above it: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he toke and put the testimony in the arke, and set the staves to the arke, and put thegyrtye on hygh upon the arke, and bioged to the arke into the habitation, and bannd by the bayle and couered the arke of wytnesse, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of wytnesse in the Northsyde of the habitation, without the bayle, and set the bread in orde before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaunded Moses.

And he put the candlesticke in the tabernacle of wytnesse ouer againste the table in the Southsyde of the habitation, and set by it lampes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he put the golden altare in the tabernacle of wytnesse before the bayle, and burnt sweete incense thereon as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And set by the hangynge in the wynde of the habitation, and set the burnt offeringe altare before the wynde of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and offered burnt offeringes and meate offeringes thereon: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

* And he set the laver betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and poured water therein to walsh with. And both Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their handes and their fete thereat: bothe when they went into the tabernacle of wytnesse, and when they went to the altare, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he reared by the court roundabout the habitation and the altare, and set by the hangynge of the court gate: and so Moses finished the worke.

* And the clowde covered the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the gloze of the Lorde, fylled the habitation, so that Moses coude not entre into the tabernacle of wytnesse, because the clowde abode therein, and the gloze of the Lorde fylled the habitation.

When the clowde was taken by some of the habitation, the children of Israel toke their journeyes as ofte as they had to do.

And if the clowde departed not, they journeyed not, till it departed, for the clowde of the Lorde was upon the habitation.

THE THYRDE BOKE OF MOSES, CALLED LEVITICVS.

The order of burnt offeringes, whether it be of small or great cattell or fowles.

CAPL.

I.

And the Lorde called Moses, and spake vnto him out of the tabernacle of wytnesse, sayinge: Speke to the children of Israel, and saye vnto them: who so euer of you shall byynge a gyfte vnto the Lorde shall byynge it of the cattell: euen of the oxen and of the shepe.

If he byynge a burnt offeringe of the oxen, he shall byynge a male without blemyshe, and shall byynge hym to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, that he maye be accepted before the Lorde. And let him put his hand vpon the heed of the burnt sacrifice, and sauoure shall be giuen him to make an attonement for him, and let him kyll the ox before the Lorde. And let the priestes Aarons sonnes byng the bloude, and let them spynkle it rounde aboute vpon the alter, that is before the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let the burnt offeringes be strepped and hewed in peces. And then let the sonnes of Aaron the priest put fyre vpon the alter, and put wod vpon the fyre, and let them laye the peces with the heed and the fat vpon the wod that is on the fyre in the alter. But the intryples and the legges they shall walsh in water, and the priest shall burne all together vpon the alter, that it be a burnt sacrifice, and an offeringe of a sweete odour vnto the Lorde.

If he wyll offre a burnt sacrifice of the shepe, whether it be of lambes or of the goates he shall offre a male without blemyshe. And let hym kyll it on the north syde of the altare before the Lorde. And let the priestes, Aarons sonnes spynkle the bloude of it rounde aboute vpon the altare. And let it be cutte in peces: euen with his heed and his fatte, and lette the priest put them vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre in the altare. But lette hym walsh the intryples and the legges with water, and then byynge all together and burne it vpon the altare: that is a burnt offeringe, and a sacrifice of sweete sauour vnto the Lorde.

If he wyll offre a burnt offeringe of the fowles, he shall offre eyther of the curle doues, or of the pounge pyrgons. And the priest shall byynge it vnto the altare, and wyngge the necke asunder, and burne it on the altare, and lette the bloude runne oute vpon the sydes of the altare, and plucke aswaie his croppe and his fethers, and caste them besyde the altare on the East part vpon the heape of ashes, and breake his wynges, but plucke them not asunder. And then lette the priest burne it vpon the altare: euen upon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre, a burnt sacrifice, and an offeringe of a sweete sauour vnto the Lorde.

The order of meate offeringes, of sweete cakes, of fyne flower, of frankensence, &c. without leuen and without honny, but not without salt.

CAPL.

II.

Yf any soule wyll offre a meate offeringe vnto the Lorde, his offeringe shall be fyne flour, and he shall poure thereon oyle, and put frankensence thereon, and shall byynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the priestes. And one of them shall take thereout his handfull of the flour, and of the oyle with all the frankensence, and burne it for a remembrance vpon the altare: an offeringe of a sweete sauour vnto the Lorde. And the remnant of the meate offeringe shall be Aarons and his sonnes, as a thyng moost holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde.

If anye man byynge a meate offeringe that is baken in the oven, lette hym byynge sweete cakes of fyne flour mingled with oyle, and vneleued waters annoynced with oyle. If the meate offeringe be baken in the fryng panne, then it shall be of sweete flour myngled with oyle. And thou shalt inpynce it small, and poure oyle thereon: and so it is a meate offeringe.

If the meate offeringe be a thyng byried vpon the greddyon, of flour myngled with oyle it shall be. And thou shalt byynge the meate offeringe that is made of these thynges vnto the Lorde, and shalt deliuer it to the priest, and he shall byynge it vnto the altare, and shall beate by parte of the meate offeringe for a memorail, and shall burne it vpon the altare: an offeringe of a sweete sauour vnto the Lorde. And that is lette of the meate offeringe shall be Aarons, and his sonnes, as a thyng that is mooste holy of the offeringes of the Lorde.

All the meate offeringes which ye shall byynge vnto the Lorde, shall be made without leuen. For ye shall neyther burne leuen nor honny in any offeringe of the Lorde: notwithstanding ye shall byynge the first frutes of them vnto the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the altare, to make a sweete sauour.

All thy meate offerings thou shalt salt with salt: neither shalt thou suffice the salt of the couenaunt of thy God to be lackyng from thy meate offeringe: but vpon all thyne offerings thou shalt byynge salt.

If thou offre a meate offeringe of the first ripe frutes vnto the Lorde, then take that which is yet grene, and dype it by the fyre, and beat it small, and so offre the meate offeringe of thy first ripe frutes. And then poure oyle thereon, and put frankensence thereon: and so it is a meate offeringe. And the priest shall burne parte of the beaten corne, and parte of that oyle with all the frankincense, for a remembrance, that is an offering unto the Lord.

The order of pear-offerings, which were offered for the keeping of pear, made of oxen, sheeps, lambs and goats.

CAPL

III.

Yf any man bynge a * pear offering of the oxen: whether it be male or female, he shall bynge such as is without blemish before the Lord: and let him put his hand upon the head of his offering, and kyll it before the door of the tabernacle of witness. And Aarons sonnes the priests shall spynke the bloude vpon the aulter rounde aboute. And they shall offer of the pear offering to be a sacrifice vnto the Lord: the fatte that couereth the inwardes and all the fat is vpon the inwardes: and the two kidneys, with the fatte that lyeth vpon the lynes: and the hall that is on the lyuer they shall take away with the kidneys. And Aarons sonnes shall burne them vpon the aulter with the burnt sacrifice which is vpon the wood on the fire: that is a sacrifice of a sweete sauour vnto the Lord.

Yf a man bynge a pear offering vnto the Lord from the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shall be without blemish. Yf he offer a lambe, he shall bynge it before the Lord, and put his hand upon his offering, and kyll it in the door of the tabernacle of witness, and Aarons sonnes shall spynke the bloude thereof rounde aboute the aulter.

And the of pear offering they shall bynge a sacrifice vnto the Lord: the fatte thereof and the rompe all together which they shall take of, vnto the backe bone: and the fat that couereth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys with the fatte that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the lynes, and the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take away with the kidneys. And the priest shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes offering with.

Yf the offering be a goote, he shall bynge for the Lord, and put his hand vpon the head of it, and kyll it before the tabernacle of witness, and the sonnes of Aaron shall spynke the bloude thereof vpon the aulter rounde aboute. And he shall bynge thereof his offering vnto the Lordes sacrifice: the fatte that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys, and the fat that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the lynes, & vpon the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take away with the kidneys. And the priest shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes sacrifice with, and to make a sweete sauour. And thus shall all the fatte be the Lordes, and it shall be a lawe for euer amonge youre generations after you in your dwelling places: that ye take neyther fat nor bloude.

The offering made for synnes doone of ignorance.

CAPL

IIII.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: when a soule synneth thowto ignorance, and hath done any of those thynges which the Lord hath forbidden in his commandementes to be doone: Yf the priest that is anoynted, synne and make the people to doo amysse, he shall bynge for his synne which he hath done: an ore without blemish vnto the Lord for a synne offering. And he shall bynge the ore vnto the door of the tabernacle of witness before the Lord, and shall put his hand vpon the ore head, & kyll hym before the Lord.

And the priest that is anoynted shall take of the ore bloude, and bynge it in to the tabernacle of witness, and shall byppe his synger in the bloude and spynke thereof seuen tymes before the Lord: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some of the bloude vpon the hornes of the aulter of sweete incense before the Lord, which is in the tabernacle of witness, and shall poure all the bloude of the ore vpon the bottome of the aulter of burnt offerings, which is by the door of the tabernacle of witness. And he shall take away all the fatte of the ore that is the synne offering: the fatte that couereth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is aboute them, and the two kidneys with the fat that lieth vpon them and vpon the lynes, and the hall vpon the lyuer let them take away also with the kidneys: as it was taken from the ore of the pear offering, and let the priest burne them vpon the aulter of burnt offerings. But the synne of the ore, and all his fleshe with his heed, his legges, his inwardes with his donge, shall he carry all together oute of the holle vnto a cleane place: where the ashes are poured out, and burne hym on woodde with fyre: euen vpon the heape of ashes.

Yf the hole commonaltie of the chyldren of Israel syn thowto ignorance, and the thing be hyd from they eyes: so that they haue committed any of these thynges which the Lord hath forbidden to be doone in his commandementes and haue offended, and the synne which they haue synned be afterwarde known, then shall they offer an ore for a synne offering, and shall bynge hym before the tabernacle of witness, and the elders of the multitude shall put theyr handes vpon his heed before the Lord.

And the priest that is anoynted, shall bynge of his bloude in to the tabernacle of witness, and shall byppe his synger in to the bloude, and spynke it seuen tymes before the Lord, euen before the dayle. And shall put of the bloude vpon the hornes of the aulter which is before the Lord in the tabernacle of witness, and shall poure all the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter of burnt offerings, which is by the door of the tabernacle of witness, and shall take all his fatte from hym, and burne it vpon the aulter, and shall do with his ore as he byd with the synne offering ore. And the priest shall make an attonement for them, and so it shall be forgiven them. And he shall bynge the ore without the holle, and burne hym as he burned the kille: so is this the synne offering of the commonaltie.

When a Lord synneth, and committeth thowto ignorance any of these thynges which the Lord his God hath forbidden to be doone in his commandementes and hath so offended: when his synne is shewed vnto hym which he hath synned, he shall bynge for his offering an he goote without blemish, and laye his hand vpon the heed of it, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offerings are kyllid before the Lord: this is a synne offering. Then let the priest take of the bloude of the synne offering with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offering aulter, and poure his bloude vpon the bottome of the burnt offering aulter, and burne all his fatte vpon the aulter, as he dothe the fatte of the pear offerings. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym as concerning his synne, and so it shall be forgiven hym.

Yf one of the common people of the lande synne thowto ignorance, and committe any of the thynges which the Lord hath forbidden in his commandementes to be doone and so hath trespassed, when his synne which he hath synned is come to his knowledge, he shall bynge for his offering a she goote without blemish for his synne which he hath synned, and laye his hand vpon the heed of the synne offering, and kyll it in the place of burnt offerings. And the priest shall take of the bloude with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offering aulter, and poure all the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter, and shall take away all his fat as the fat of the pear offerings is taken away. And the priest shall burne it vpon the aulter for a sweete sauour vnto the Lord, and the priest shall make an attonement for hym, and it shall be forgiven hym.

Yf he byng a lambe, and offer it for a synne offering, he shall bynge a female without blemish, and laye his hand vpon the heed of the synne offering, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offerings are layne. And the priest shall take of the bloude of the synne offering with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offering aulter, and shall poure all the bloude thereof vnto the bottome of the aulter. And he shall take away all the fatte thereof, as the fatte of the shepe of the pear offerings was taken away. And the priest shall burne it vpon the aulter of the Lordes sacrifice, and the priest shall make an attonement for his synne, and it shall be forgiven hym.

Of others. The cleansing of him that toucheth vncleane thynges. The purgation of an oyle and of synne done by ignorance.

When the soule hath synned, and herd the voyce of cursing, and is a wyrmis, whether he hath sene or knowne of it, yf he haue not bethered it, he shall beare his synne. Either when a man toucheth any vncleane thyng: whether it be the carpon of an vncleane beest, or of vncleane catell or vncleane woman, and is not ware of it, he is also vncleane and hath offended. Either when he toucheth any vncleanness of man (what so euer vncleanness it be, that a man is defiled wth) and is not ware of it, and after cometh to the knowledge of it, he is a trespasser.

Either when a soule sweareth, so that he pronounceth with his lippes to do euill, or to doo good (what so euer it be that a man pronounceth with an othe) and the thyng be out of his mynde, and afterwarde cometh to the knowledge of it, then he hath offended in one of these. Then when he hath synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that wherein he hath synned, and shall bynge his trespass offering vnto the Lord for his synne which he hath synned. A female from the flocke, whether it be a lambe, or a she goote, for a synne offering. And the priest shall make an attonement for hym for his synne. But yf he be not hable to bynge a shepe, then let hym bynge for his trespass which he hath synned, two turtle doves, or two yonge pygions to the Lord, one for a synne offering, and an other for a burnt offering. And he shall bynge them vnto the priest, which shall offer the synne offering first, and wyng the necke asunder of it, but plucke it not cleue of. And let hym spynke of the bloude of the synne offering vpon the syde of the aulter, and lette the reste of the bloude blede vpon the bottome of the aulter, and then it is a sinne offering. And let him offer the seconde for a burnt offering as the maner is: and so shall the priest make an attonement for him for the synne which he hath synned, and it shall be forgiven hym.

And yf he be not hable to bynge two turtle doves or two yonge pygions, then let him bynge his offering for his synne: the tenth parte of an Ephah of fyne flour for a synne offering, but put none oyle thereto neyther put any frankincense thereon, for it is a synne offering. And let him bynge it to the priest, and the priest shall take his handfull of it, and burne it vpon the aulter for a remembrance, to be a sacrifice for the Lord: that is a synne offering. And let the priest make an attonement for hym for his synne (what so euer of these he hath synned) and it shall be forgiven. And the remnant shall be the priestes as it is in the meate offering.

And the Lord communed with Moses, sayinge: When a soule trespasseth and synneth thowto ignorance in any of the holre thynges of the Lord, he shall bynge for his trespass vnto the Lord a ramme without blemish out of the flocke valued at two shepes after the shepe of the sanctuary, for a trespass offering.

offerings. And he shall make amends for the bairne that he hath done in the holy thinge, and put the fyre parte moze to, and gyue it vnto the p[re]st. And the p[re]st shall make an attonement for hym with the ramme of the trespass offeringe, and it shall be forgiven hym.

When a soule synneth and committeth any of these thinges whiche are forbidden to be done by the commandementes of the Lorde: though he wyl it not, he hath yet offended and is in synne, and shall byp[er]ge a ram without blemyshe out of the flocke that is offered to be mozte a synne offeringe, vnto the p[re]st. And the p[re]st shall make an attonement for him for the ignorance whiche he dyd, and was not ware, and it shall be forgiven him: This is a trespass offeringe, for he trespasseth agaynst the Lorde.

The offerings for synnes whiche are done wyllyngly. The lawe of burnt offerings. The type must be euermore vpon the altare. The offerings of Aaron and his sonnes.

CAPL VI

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: When a soule synneth, and trespasseth agaynst the Lorde, and denpeth vnto his neyghboure that whiche was taken hym to kepe, or that was put vnder his hand, or that whiche he hath violently taken away, or that whiche he hath disceyued his neyghboure of with subtiltie, or hath founde that whiche was lost and denpeth it, and sweareth falsly in what so euer thinge it be that a man dothe, and synneth therein.

Then when he hath synned or trespassed, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently awaye of the wynges whiche he dyd, or that whiche was disceyued him to kepe, or the lost thinge whiche he founde, or what so euer it be aboute whiche he hath sworne falsly, he shall restore it agayne in the hole summe, and adde the fyfte parte moze thereto, and gyue it vnto him to whome it pertaineth, the same daye that he offereth for his trespass, and shall byp[er]ge for his trespass offeringe vnto the Lorde a ramme without blemyshe out of the flocke that is offered mozt a trespass offeringe vnto the p[re]st. And the p[re]st shall make an attonement for him before the Lorde, and it shall be forgiven him, in what so euer thinge it be that a man doth and trespasseth therein.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge: This is the lawe of the burnt offeringe. The burnt offeringe shall be vpon the bairn of the altar all nyght vnto the morninge, and the fyre of the altar shall burne therein. And the p[re]st shall put on his linnen albe, and his linnen breeches vpon his shewell, and take awaye the ashes whiche the fyre of the burnt sacrifice in the altar hath made, and put them besyde the altar, & then put off his rayment, and put on other, and carpe the ashes out, & out the hood vnto a cleue place.

The fyre that is vpon the altar shall burne therein, and not go out. And the p[re]st shall put woodde on the fyre euer morninge, and put the burnt sacrifice vpon it, and he shall burne thereon the sacrifice of the pear offerings. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the altar, and neuer go out.

This is the lawe of the meat offeringe: Aaron's sonnes shall byp[er]ge it before the Lorde, vnto the altar: and one of them shall take his handfull of the flour of the meat offeringe and of the oyle with all the frankincense whiche is thereon, and shall burne it for a remembrance vpon the altar, to be a sweete savour of the memo[r]y all of it vnto the Lorde. And the rest thereof, Aaron and his sonnes shall eate vnto the altar: it shall be eaten in the holy place: euen in the court of the tabernacle of witnesseth they shall eate it. They parte whiche I haue gyuen them of my sacrifice shall not be taken with leuen, for it is most holy, as is the synne offeringe, and trespass offeringe. All the males amonge the chyldren of Aaron shall eate of it: and it shall be a duty for euer vnto your generations of the sacrifices of the Lorde, neyther shall any man touche it, but he that is halowed.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: This is the offeringe of Aaron and of his sonnes whiche he shall offer vnto the Lorde in the daye when they are anoynted: the tenth part of an Ephah of flour, whiche is a daily meat offeringe perpetually: waile in the morninge and waile at nyght: and in the fryinge panne it shall be made with oyle. And when it is fryed, thou shalt byp[er]ge it in as a baken meat offeringe mynled small, and walte offer it for a sweete savour vnto the Lorde. And the p[re]st of his sonnes that is anoynted in his head shall offer it: and it shall be the Lorde's dutye for euer, and it shall be burnt all together. For all the meat offerings of the p[re]stes shall be burnt all together, and shall not be eaten.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and vnto his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synne offeringe. In the place where the burnt offeringe is kylled, shall the synne offeringe be kylled also before the Lorde, for it is most holy. The p[re]st that offereth it, shall eate it in the holy place: euen in the court of the tabernacle of witnesseth. No man shall touche the fleshe thereof save he that is halowed. And if any rayment be spynckled therewith, it shall be washed in the holy place, & and the cether parte that it is soden in, shall be broken. If it be soden in brasse, then the potte shall be scoured and rynsed in water. All the males amonge the p[re]stes shall eate thereof, for it is most holy. Norwithstandyng no synne offeringe that hath his bloude broughte in to the tabernacle of witnesseth to reconcile with, in the holy place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre.

Trespass offerings. Synne offerings and peace offerings. The fat and the bloude maye not be eaten.

CAPL.

VII.

This is the lawe of the trespass offeringe whiche is most holy. In the place where the burnt offeringe is kylled, the trespass offeringe shall be kylled also: & his bloude shall be spynckled round about vpon the altar. And all the fat that couered the inwardes and the two kynnys with the fat that lyeth on them and vpon the lynes, and the hall on the lyur shall be taken awaye with the kynnys: and the p[re]st shall burne them vpon the altar, to be an offeringe vnto the Lorde, this is a trespass offeringe.

All the males amonge the p[re]stes shall eate thereof in the holy place, for it is most holy. As the synne offeringe is, so is the trespass offeringe, one lawe serueth for bothe. And it shall be the p[re]stes that reconcile therewith. And the p[re]st that offered a mans burnt offeringe shall haue the synne of the burnt offeringe whiche he hath offered. And all the meat offerings that are baken in the oven, & all that is kylled vpon the grebbon and in the fryinge pan, shall be the p[re]stes that offereth them. And all the meat offerings that are mingled with oyle or wyne, shall pertaine vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as moche as an other.

This is the lawe of the pear offerings whiche shall be offered vnto the Lorde. If he wyl to gyue thanks, he shall byp[er]ge vnto his shalke offeringe: sweete cakes mynled with oyle & sweete wafers anoynted with oyle, and cakes mynled with oyle of fyne flower fyed, and he shall byp[er]ge his offeringe vpon cakes made of leuend bread vnto the thanke offeringe of his pear offerings, and of them all, he shall offer one to be an heue offeringe vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the p[re]stes that spynckle the bloude of the pear offerings. And the fleshe of the thanke offeringe of his pear offerings shall be eaten the same daye that it is offered: and there shall none of it be layde vp vntill the morninge.

If it be a vowe of a freewyll offeringe that he byp[er]ge that same daye that he offereth it it shall be eaten, and that remaneth maye be eaten on the morow: but as moche of the offered fleshe as remaneth vnto the thyrde daye, shall be burnt with fyre. For if any of the fleshe of the pear offerings be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shall he that offered it obtayne no fauour, neyther shall it be reckened vnto him, but shall be an abhominacion, and the soule that eateth of it, shall beate the synne thereof.

The fleshe that toucheth any vnclene thinge, shall not be eaten, but burne with fyre: and al that be cleue in the fleshe, maye eate fleshe. If any soule eate of the fleshe of the pear offerings that pertaine vnto the Lorde, and his vnclennes yet vpon hym, the same soule shall p[er]p[et]rate oute of his people. Moreover if a soule toucheth any vnclene thinge, whether it be the vnclennes of man, or of any vnclane beest, or any abhominacion that is vnclane, and then eate of the fleshe of the pear offerings, whiche pertaine vnto the Lorde, that soule shall p[er]p[et]rate some of his people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: ye shall eate no manner fatte of oxen, shepe, or gootes: yet the fatte of the beest that dyeth alone and the fatte of that whiche is tome with wyde breches, maye be occupied in all manner vices: but ye shall in no wyse eate of it. For who so eate the fatte of the beest of whiche men byp[er]ge an offeringe vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it, shall p[er]p[et]rate from his people.

Moreover ye shall eate no manner of bloude where so euer ye dwell, whether it be of soule or of beest. What so euer soule be that eateth any manner bloude, shall p[er]p[et]rate from his people.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: He that offereth his pear offeringe vnto the Lorde, shall byp[er]ge his gyfte vnto the Lorde of his pear offeringe: his owne handes shall byp[er]ge the offeringe of the Lorde: euen the fatte vpon the brest, he shall byp[er]ge with the brest, to waue it a waue offeringe before the Lorde. And the p[re]st shall burne the fat vpon the altar, and the brest shall be Aarons and his sonnes. And the ryght shoulde they shall gyue vnto the p[re]st, to be an heue offeringe, of they pear offerings. And the same that offereth the bloude of the pear offerings and the fatte amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the ryght shoulde vnto his parte, for the wauchiest and the heue shoulde I haue taken of the chyldren of Israel, euen of they pear offerings, and haue giuen it vnto Aaron the p[re]st, and vnto his sonnes: to be a dutye for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the anoyntinge of Aaron, and of the sacrifices of the Lorde, in the daye when they were offered to the p[re]stes vnto the Lorde, whiche the Lorde commaunded to be gyuen them in the daye when he anoynted them, of the chyldren of Israel, & to be adutye for euer amonge they generations. This is the lawe of burnt offerings, of meat offerings, of synne offerings, of trespass offerings, of vnto offerings, of peace offerings, whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses in the mounte Sinai, in the daye when he commaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer they offerings vnto the Lorde in the wilderness of Sinai.

The anoyntinge and consecration of Aaron and his sonnes.

CAPL.

VIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take Aaron and his sonnes with hym, and the vestures and the anoyntinge oyle, and an ore for a synne offeringe, and two rammes and a basket of sweete bread: and gather all the communtie together vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witnesseth. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded.

hym, and the people gathered them selues together, vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moyses sayd vnto the people, this is the charge which the Lorde commaunded to do.

And Moyses brought Aaron and his sonnes and washed them with water, and put vpon him the albe, and girded him with a gyrdell, and put vpon him the tunicle, and put the Ephod thereon, and girded him with the broidered gyrdell of the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therewith. And he put the brestplate thereon, and put in the brestplate iustim and thumim. And he put the mycer vpon his heed, and put vpon the mycer euen vnto the forefront of it the golden plate of the holy crowne, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the tabernacle and all that was therein, and sanctified hym, and sprinkled therof vpon the alter seven tymes, and anoynted the alter and all his vessels, and the lauer with the totte, to sanctifie them. And he poured of anoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons heed, and anoynted hym to sanctifie him. And he brought Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and girded them with gyrdles, and put bonettes vpon thyr heedes: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And the synneofferynge was broughte. And Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the ore of the synneofferynge. And when it was slayne, Moyses toke of the bloude and put it vpon the hornes of the alter rounde aboute with his synge, and purified it, and poured the bloude vpon the bottome of the alter, and sanctified it, and reconciled it. And he toke all the fatte that was vpon the inwardes, and the two kyndes with theyr fatte, and burnt it vpon the alter. But the ore, the hyde, his fleshe and his donge, he burnt with fyre without the holte, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he broughte the ramme of the burntofferynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and it was slayed. And Moyses sprinkled the bloud vpon the alter rounde aboute, and cut the ramme in peces, and burnt the heed, the peces and the fatte, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water, and burnt the ramme cutt vnto the alter. That was a burnt sacrifice of a swete sauour, and an offerynge vnto the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And he broughte the other ram that was the fullofferynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and when it was slayne, Moyses toke of the bloud of it, and put it vpon the tipp of Aarons ryght eare, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the grete too of his ryght foote. Then were Aarons sonnes brought, and Moyses put of the bloude on the tipp of the ryght eare of them, and vpon the thombes of theyr ryght handes, and vpon the grete toes of theyr ryght feete, and sprinkled the bloude

And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the hall of the luer, and the two kyndes with theyr fatte, and theyr ryght shoulder. And out of the basket of swete bzed that was before the Lorde, he toke one swete cake of oyled bzed and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and vpon the ryght shoulder: and put all together vpon Aarons handes, and vpon his sonnes handes, and wauched it a waue offerynge before the Lorde.

And then Moyses toke them from their handes agayne, and burnt them vpon the alter, euen vpon the burntofferynge: These are the fullofferynges of a swete sauour, and a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. And Moyses toke a bzed, and wauched it a waue offerynge before the Lorde, of the ramme of the fullofferynges: and it was Moyses parte, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Moyses toke of the anoyntynge oyle, of the bloud which was vpon the alter, and sprinkled it vpon Aaron, and vpon his vestimentes, and vpon his sonnes and on their vestimentes with him, and sanctified Aaron and his vestimentes, and his sonnes and his sonnes vestimentes also. Then Moyses sayd vnto Aaron and his sonnes: Doye the fleshe in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and there + eate it with the bzed that is in the basket of fullofferynges, as the Lorde commaunded, sayinge: Aaron and his sonnes shall eate it: and that whiche remaineth of the fleshe and of the bzed, burne it with fyre.

And se ye departe not from the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse seven dayes longe, till the dayes of your fullofferynges be at an ende. For seven dayes muste your handes be spyled, as they were this day: euen so the Lorde hath commaunded to do, to thynke to reconceple you. So therefore ye abyde in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse day and night seuen dayes longe: and kepe the watche of the Lorde that ye dye not, for so I am commaunded. And Aaron and his sonnes did all that the Lorde commaunded by the handes of Moyses.

The fyre offerynges of Aaron, for hym selfe and for the people. Aaron blessed the people. The gloire of the Lorde is shewed. The fyre compynge troue aboute consumeth the sacrifice.

CAPL.

IX.

And the ryght daye, Moyses called Aaron and his sonnes, and the elders of Israel, and sayd to Aaron: take a calfe for a synne offerynge, a ram for a burntofferynge: bothe without blemyshe, and byng them before the Lorde. And vnto the chyldren of Israel he spake, sayng: take ye an he goate for a synne offerynge, and a calfe and a lambe bothe two of a yere old, without blemyshe for a burnt sacrifice, and an ore and a ramme for peaxofferynges, to offere before the Lorde, and a meatofferynge myngled with oyle, for to daye the Lorde wyll appere vnto you.

And

And they broughte that whiche Moyses commaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse and all the people came and stode before the Lorde. And Moyses sayde: this is that the Lorde commaunded ye shoulde do: and then the gloire of the Lorde shall appere vnto you. And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron: Soo vnto the alter, and offere thy synneofferynge, and make an attonement for the and the people: and then offere the offerynge of the people, and reconceple them also: as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

And Aaron went to the alter, and stewe the calfe that was his synneofferynge. And the sonnes of Aaron broughte the bloude vnto hym, and he dyppe his synge in the bloude, and put it vpon the hornes of the alter, and poured the bloude vnto the bottome of the alter. And the fatte and the two kyndes, with the hall of the luer of the synne offerynge he burnt vpon the alter, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses: but the fleshe and the hyde, he burnt with fyre without the holte. Afterwarde he stewe the burntofferynge, and Aarons sonnes broughte the bloud vnto hym, and he sprinkled it rounde aboute vpon the alter. And they broughte the burntofferynge vnto hym in peces, and the heed also, and he burnt it vpon the alter, and dyd walsh the inwardes, and the legges, and burnt them also vnto the burnt offerynge in the alter.

And then he broughte the peoples offerynge and toke the goote that was the peoples synofferynge, and stewe it, and offered it for a synneofferynge: as he dyd the first. And then broughte the burntofferynge, and offered it as the manner was, and broughte the meatofferyng and fylled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon the alter, beside the burnt sacrifice in the moxpyng.

Then he stewe the ore and the ramme that were the peoples peaxofferynges, and Aarons sonnes broughte the bloude vnto hym, and he sprinkled it vpon the alter rounde aboute, and toke the fat of the ore and of the ramme: the rompe and the fat that couereth the inwardes and the kyndes and the hall of the luer, and put them vpon the vessels and burne it vpon the alter: but the vessels and the ryght shoulders Aaron wauched before the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people and blessed them, and came downe from offerynge of synofferynges, burntofferynges and peaxofferynges. Then Moyses and Aaron went in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the gloire of the Lorde appeared vnto all the people. And there came a fyre out from the Lorde, and consumed vpon the alter, the burntofferynge and the fat. And all the people sawe it, and woted, and fel on theyr faces.

Nadab and Abihu are slayne. Israel mourneth for them. The Priestes are forbidden wyne. The sacrifice of the sacrifice the Priestes eate.

And Nadab and Abihu the sonnes of Aaron toke either of them his censoz, and put fyre therein, and put cens vpon, and broughte draung fyre before the Lorde: which he commaunded them not: and there wente a fyre out from the Lorde, and consumed them, and they dyed before the Lorde. Then Moyses sayd vnto Aaron: this is that the Lorde spake saying: I wyll be sanctified in them that come nye me, and before all the people I wyll be glorified. And Aaron helde his pear. And Moyses called Elisael and Elisaphan the sonnes of Eliel the vncle of Aaron, and said to them: Go and carpe youre brethren frome the holte place out of the holte. And they went to them and carped them in theyr albes out of the holte as Moyses bad.

And Moyses sayd vnto Aaron and Elisazar, and Jthamar his eldest sonnes: vncouer not your heed, neyther rent your clothes, lest ye dye, and wach come vpon all the people, let your brethren the hole house of Israel betwepe the burninge whiche the Lorde hath burnt. But go ye not out by the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye: for the anoyntynge oyle of the Lorde is vpon you, and theyr dyp as Moyses bad.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron, sayinge: Drynke no wyne ne strouge drynke, neyther thou nor thy sonnes with the: when ye go in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye. And let it be a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldren after you: that ye maye put difference betwene holy and unholy, betwene vncleane and cleane, and that ye maye teache the chyldren of Israel all the ordinaunces whiche the Lorde hath commaunded them by the handes of Moyses.

And Moyses sayde vnto Aaron, and vnto Elisazar and Jthamar his sonnes that were left. Take the meatofferynge that remaineth of the sacrifices of the Lorde, and eate it without leuen beside the alter, for it is mooste holy: eate it therfore in the holy place, because it is thy durpe and thy sonnes durpe of the sacrifice of the Lorde: for so I am commaunded. And the wauched and heue shoulder eate in a cleane place: bothe thou and thy sonnes, and thy daughters with the. For it is thy durpe, and thy sonnes durpe with the, of the peaxofferynges of the chyldren of Israel. For the heue shoulder, and the wauched whiche theyr byng with the sacrifice of the fatte, to waue it before the Lorde, shall be thyne, and thy sonnes with the: and be a lawe for euer, as the Lorde hath commaunded.

And Moyses sought for the goote that was the synneofferynge, and se it was burnt. And he was angry with Elisazar and Jthamar the sonnes of Aaron, whiche were left alpyr, saying: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offerynge in the holy place, for it is mooste holy: and for as moche as it is gyuen you to bere the synne of the people, and make agreement for them before the Lorde? Beholde, the bloude of it was not wroughed in within the holy place, therfore shoulde ye haue eaten it in the the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron said vnto Moses: behold, this day haue they offered thei synnecofferinge and they burnt offeringe before the Lorde, and it is chaunced me after this maner. Yf I holde rate of the synnecofferinge to day, wolde the Lorde be content withall? And when Moses herde that, he was content.

Of beastes whiche be cleane and whiche be vncleane.

CAPL.

XI.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say: these are the beestes whiche ye shall eate amonge all the beastes that are on the erth: what so euer hath hoofs and cleueth it in to two clauies, and cheweth cud among the beastes, that shall ye eate. But these shall ye not eate of them that chewe cud and haue hoofs. The Camell, for he cheweth cud, but he cleueth not the hoofs in to two clauies, therefore he shall be vncleane vnto you. And the Conye, for he cheweth the cud, but cleueth not the hoofs in to two clauies, therefore he is vncleane to you. And the Hare, for he like wyse cheweth the cud, but cleueth not the hoofs in to two clauies, he is therefore vncleane to you. And the swyne, for though he cleueth the hoofs in to two clauies, yet he cheweth not the cud, and therefore is vncleane to you. Of their fleshe ye eate not, and their carkasses se ye touche not, for they are vncleane to you.

The Camell.

The Conye.

The Hare.

The swyne.

Whiche shall ye eate, of all that are in the waters: what so euer haue synnes and scales in the waters, seas and ryuers, that shall ye eate. And all that haue not synnes and scales in the seas and ryuers of all that moue and lye in the waters shall ye abhorre. Se ye eate not of thei fleshe, and also that ye abhorre their carkasses: for all that haue no synnes nor scales in the waters, shall be abhominacion vnto you. These are the foules whiche ye shall abhorre, and whiche shall not be eaten, for they are abhominacion. The eagle, the goshawk, the osprey, the kite, the vulture and all his kynde, and all kynde of rauen, the osprey, the nightow, the cuckow, the sparowhawk, and all the kynde: and the ylle oule, the docke, the heron, the fawc, the pellicane, the ppe, the heron, the fawc with the kynde, the lapwing, and the swallowe. And all foules that crepe and go vpon all foure, shall be an abhominacion vnto you.

Fowles.

Fowles.

Yet these may ye eate of all the foules that moue and go vpon four fete: euen those that haue no knees aboue vpon thei fete to leape withall vpon the carthe: euen these of them ye may eate: the Arde and all his kynde: the Selaam with all his kynde: the Wagol and all the kynde, the Dagab and all his kynde. All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shall be abhominacion vnto you. In such ye shall be vncleane who so euer touche the carkasse of them, shall be vncleane vnto the euen: and who so euer beareth the carkasse of them shall waiche his clothes, and so shall be vncleane vnto you.

Amonge all maner beastes that haue hoofs and cleueth them not in to two clauies, or that chewe not the cud, shall be vncleane vnto you: and all that toucheth them shall be vncleane. And all that goeth vpon his hands amonge all maner beastes that go on all foure fete, are vncleane vnto you: and as many as touche thei carkasses, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth the carkasse of them, shall waiche his clothes, and be vncleane vnto the euen, for such are vncleane vnto you.

And these are also vncleane to you amonge the thynges that crepe vpon the carthe: the weasel, the mouse, the toad, and all his kynde, the hedgehogge, the lio, the lio, the snake, and the moule: these are vncleane to you amonge all that moue, and al that touche them when they be ded, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And what so euer any of the ded carkasses of them fall vpon, shall be vncleane: what so euer befall of mod it be, or rament, or skynne, or bagge, or what so euer thyng it be that any moue is wrought withall. And they shall be plunged in the water, and be vncleane tyll the euen, and then they shall be cleane agayne.

All maner of erthen vessel wherinto any of them falleth is vncleane with al that therein is: and ye shall breake it. All maner meate that is eaten, if any such water come vpon it, it shall be vncleane. And all maner drynke that is dronke in all maner such vessels shall be vncleane. And whether it be ouen or kettel it shall be broken. For they are vncleane, and shall be vncleane vnto you. Howbeit the fountaynes and welles, and pntes of water, shall be cleane tyll. But who so euer toucheth thei carkasses, shall be vncleane.

If the ded carkasse of any such fall vpon any seed sowed to sow, it shall yet be cleane tyll: but if any water be poured vpon the seed, and afterwards the ded carkasse of them fall thereon, then it shall be vncleane vnto you.

If any beest of which ye may eate, dye, he shall toucheth the ded carkasse shall be vncleane tyll the euen. And he that eateth of any such ded carkasse, shall waiche his clothes, and remayne vncleane tyll the euen. And he also that beareth the carkasse of it, shall waiche his clothes and be vncleane tyll the euen.

All that scrawleth vpon the carthe, is abhominacion, and shall not be eaten. And what so euer goeth vpon the bze, and what so euer goeth vpon foure or mo fete, amonge all that scrawleth vpon the erth, of that se ye eate not: for they are abhominable.

Make not your foules abhominable with nothing that creepeth, neither make your foules vncleane with them: that ye wolde be defiled thereby. For I am the Lorde your God, ye be sanctified therefore that ye may be holy, or I am holy: and despite not your foules with any maner thyng that creepeth vpon the erth. For I am the Lorde that brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God: be holy therefore, for I am holy.

This

This is the lawe of beest and foule, and of all maner thyng that lyueth and moueth in the water, & of all thynges that crepe on the earth, that ye may put difference betwene vncleane and cleane, and betwene the beestes that are eaten, and the beestes that are not eaten.

The lawe howe women shuld be purged after theyr deliuerance.

CAPL.

XII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and sayd: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and say: when a woman hath conceived, and hath borne a man chyld, she shall be vncleane seven dayes: euen in lyke maner as when she is put apart in tyme of her naturall disease. And in the eighth daye the fleshe of the chyldes foreskynne shall be cut awaye. And she shall continue in the bloude of her purifyinge xxxij. dayes, she shall touche no halowed thyng, nor come in to the sanctuary, vntill the tyme of her purifyinge be out. Yf she beare a maydechyld, then she shall be vncleane two weekes, as when she hath her naturall disease. And she shall continue in the bloude of her purifyinge lxxij. dayes.

And when the dayes of her purifyinge are out: whether it be a sonne or a daughter, she shall bring a lambe of one yere olde for a burnt offeringe, and a ponge pignon or a turtle doue for a synne offeringe vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness, vnto the priest: which shall offer them before the Lorde, and make an attonement for her, & so she shall be purged of her flue of bloude. This is the law for her that hath borne a chyld, whether it be male or female. But yf she be not hable to bring a wyfe then let her drynge two turtles, or two pong pygions: the one for the burnt offeringe, and the other for the synnecofferinge. And the priest shall make an attonement for her, and she shall be cleane.

The Priests are appoynted to iudge who are Lepers.

CAPL.

XIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and vnto Aaron, sayinge: when there appeareth a ryling in a mans fleshe either a scabbe or a glystering whete: as though the plague of leprosy were in the skyn of his fleshe, let him be brought vnto Aaron the priest, or vnto one of his sonnes the priestes, and lette the priest loke on the soze that is in the skynne of his fleshe. Yf the heere in the soze be turned vnto whete, & the soze also seme to be lower then the skynne of his fleshe, then it is surely a leprosy, and let the priest loke on hym, and iudge him vncleane.

If there be but a whete plecte in the skyn of his fleshe, and seme not to be lower then the other skyn, nor the heere thereof is turned vnto whete, then let the priest shut him vp seven dayes. And let the priest loke vpon hym the seventh day: yf the soze seme to hym to abyde still, and to go no further in the skynne, then let the priest shut him vp yet seven dayes mo. And let the priest loke on him agayne the seventh daye. When yf the soze be waxed blacker, and is not grown abrode in the skynne, let the priest make him cleane, for it is but a thurf. And let him waiche his clothes, and then he is cleane: But yf the scabbe growe in the skynne after that he is sent of the priest agayne: if the priest se that the scabbe be grown abrode in the skynne, let him make hym vncleane: for it is surely a leprosy.

If the plague of leprosy be in a man, let him be brought vnto the priest, and let the priest se him. Yf the ryling appeare whete in the skyn, and haue also made the heere whete, and there be rawe fleshe in the soze also: then it is an olde leprosy in the skyn of his fleshe. And the priest shall iudge him vncleane, and shall not shut hym vp, for he is vncleane.

If a leprosy breake out in the skyn, and couer all the skynne from the heere to the foote ouer all where so euer the priest loketh, then let the priest loke vpon hym. Yf the leprosy haue couered all his fleshe, let him iudge the disease cleane, for in as moche as he is all toged the whete, he is cleane. But yf there be rawe fleshe on hym when he is sent, then he shall be vncleane. Therefore when the priest seeth the rawe fleshe, let him iudge him vncleane. For in as moche as his fleshe is rawe, he is vncleane: and it is surely a true leprosy. But if the rawe fleshe depart agayne and chaunge in to whete, then let him come to the priest, and let the priest se hym. Yf the soze be chaunged vnto whete, let the priest iudge the disease cleane, and then he is cleane.

When there is a pyle in the skynne of any mannes fleshe, and is healed and after in the place of the pyle there appeare a whete ryling either a synnecoffering whete, somewhat redyshe, let him be sent of the priest. Yf when the priest seeth hym, it appeare lower then the other skynne, and the heere thereof be chaunged vnto whete, let the priest iudge hym vncleane: for it is a very leprosy, that is broken out in the place of the pyle. But if when the priest loketh on it there be no whete heeres therein, neither the scabbe lower then the other skynne, and be somewhat blackyshe, then the priest shall shut him aparte seven dayes. Yf it spread abrode in the meane season, then let the priest iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosy. But yf the glystering whete abyde still in one place, and goo no further, then it is but the pynne of the pyle, and the priest shall iudge him cleane.

When the skyn of any mans fleshe is burnt with fyre that it be rawe, and there appeare in the burnynge a glystering whete that is somewhat redyshe or all together whete, let the priest loke vpon it. Yf the heere in that brightnesse be chaunged to whete, and it also appeare lower then the other skynne, then it is a leprosy that is broken out of the place of the burnynge. And the priest shall iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosy. But yf when the

the diſeaſe the ſeuenth daye: and if the brea-kynge out be gone no further, neyther be any golden heeres therein, neyther the ſcabbe be lower then the other ſkynne, then let hym be ſhaue, but let him not ſhaue the ſcabbe: and let the prieſt ſhut hym by ſeven dayes mo. And let the prieſt loke on the breaking out the ſeuente daye agayne: if the breakynge out be gone no further in the ſkynne, nor more lower then another ſkynne, then let the prieſt iudge him cleane, and let hym waſhe his clothes, and then he is cleane.

If the breakynge out growe in the ſkynne after he be once iudged cleane, let the prieſte ſe hym. If it be growen abrode in deede in the ſkynne, let the prieſt ſe no further for any golden heeres, for he is vncleane. But if he ſe the ſcabbe ſtande ſtill, and that there is blacke heere growen by therein, then the ſcabbe is healed, and he is cleane: and the prieſte ſhall iudge hym cleane. If there be founde in the ſkynne of the ſkinne of man or woman a glyſterynge whyte, let the prieſt ſe it. If there appeare in the ſkinne a glyſ-terynge whyte, ſomewhat blackiſhe, then it is out freckles growen by in the ſkynne: and he is cleane.

If a mans heere fall of his heed, then he is heerebaule and cleane. If his heere fall before in his forehead, then he is foreheadbaule and cleane. If there be in the baule heere, or baule forehead a redde whyte ſcabbe, then there is leproſye ſpynge by in his baule heere, or baule forehead. And let the prieſt ſe it: and if the rypſing of the ſcabbe be redde whyte in his baule heere or forehead after the manner of a leproſye in the ſkynne of the ſkinne, then he is a leper, and vncleane: and the prieſt ſhall iudge him vncleane, for the plague is, ſhall haue his clothes rent, and his heed bare, and his mouth moſt, and ſhall be called vncleane.
And as long as the diſeaſe laſteth vpon hym,
he ſhall be vncleane, for he is vncleane: ſhall

therefore dwell alone, and euen without ſhall his habitation be.

When the plague of leproſye is in a clothe:
whether it be in linen or wollen, yea and whether it be in the warpe or wolfe of the linen, or of the wollen: either in a ſkynne, or any thyng made of ſkynne, if the diſeaſe be pale or ſomewhat redde in the clothe or ſkynne:
whether it be in the warpe or wolfe, or any thyng that is made of ſkynne, then it is a be-re leproſye, and muſt be ſhewed vnto the prieſt.
And when the prieſt ſeeth the plague, let hym ſhut it by ſeven dayes, and let hym loke on the plague the ſeuenth daye. If it be increaſed in the clothe, whether it be in the warpe or wolfe or in a ſkynne, or in any thyng that is made of ſkynne, then the plague is a creeping leproſye, and it is vncleane: and that clothe ſhall be burnt, either warpe or wolfe, whether it be wollen or linen, or any thyng that is made of ſkynne wherein the plague is, for it is a creeping leproſye, and ſhall be burnt in the fyre.

If the prieſt ſe that the plague hath crept no further in the clothe: either in the warpe or wolfe, or in what ſo euer thyng of ſkynne it be, then let the prieſt commaunde them to waſhe the thyng wherein the plague is, and let hym ſhut it by ſeven dayes and mo. And let the prieſt loke on it agayne after that the plague is waſhed. If the plague haue not chaunged his faſhion, though it be ſpied no further abrode, it is yet vncleane. And ſe ye burne it in the fyre, for it is great inward: whether in part or in all. But if the prieſt ſe it ſomewhat blackiſhe after it is waſhed, let hym rent it out of the clothe, or out of the ſkynne, or out of the warpe or wolfe.

And if it appeare any more in the clothe ether in the warpe, or in the wolfe, or in any thyng made of ſkynne, then it is a warpe plague. And ſe ye burne that with fyre where the plague is. Whereouer the clothe either warpe or wolfe, or what ſo euer thyng of ſkynne it be which thou haſt waſhed, and the plague be re-parted from it ſhall be waſhed ones agayne, and then it is cleane. This is the lawe for the plague of leproſye in a clothe, whether it be wollen or linen: either whether it be in a warpe or wolfe, or in any thyng made of ſkynnes, to iudge it cleane or vncleane.

The cleaſynge of the leper, and of the houſe that he is in.

CAPL.

XIII.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes, ſaying: * this is the lawe for a leper when he ſhall be cleaſed: he ſhall be brought vnto the prieſt, and the prieſt ſhall go forth without the hood and loke vpon hym. If the plague of leproſye be healed in the leper, then ſhall the prieſt commaunde that there be brought for hym that ſhall be cleaſed two lyuynge bydes that are cleane, and cedar wood, and a peece of purple cloth and ſpoe. And the prieſt ſhall commaunde that one of the bydes be killed

killed in an eithen beſſell with cennynge water. And the prieſte ſhall take the lyuynge byde and the cedar wood and the purple and the ſpoe, and ſhall ſpye them and the lyuynge byde in the bloude of the ſlayne byde, and in the cennynge water and ſpynke it vpon him that muſt be cleaſed: or his leproſye ſeuen tymes and cleaſe him, and ſhall let the lyuynge byde goe free in to the felde.

And he that is cleaſed ſhall waſhe his clothes, and ſhaue of all his heere, and waſh him ſelfe in water, and then he is cleane. And after that he ſhall come in to the hood, but ſhall take without his ſeuen dayes. When the ſeuenth daye is come, he ſhall ſhaue of all his heere, bothe vpon his heed, and his beere, and on his browes: and euen all the heere that is on him, ſhall be ſhaue of. And he ſhall waſhe his clothes and his ſkynne in water, and then he ſhall be cleane.

And when the eighth daye is come, let hym take two lammes without blemiſhe, and a yewlambe of a yere olde without blemiſhe, and three tenth deales of fine flour, for a meat offering myngled with oyle, and a logge of oyle. Then let the prieſte that maketh him cleane, bynne the man that is made cleane with theſe thynges before the Lorde vnto the moſe of the tabernacle of wytnelle. And let the prieſt take one of the lammes, a oyle hym for a treſ-pacoſſering, and the logge of oyle: and waue them before the Lorde. And then let them ſee the lambe in the place where the ſynne offering and the burnt offering were ſlayne: euen in the holy place. For as the ſynne offering is, euen ſo is the treſpacoſſering of the prieſtes for it is moſt holy.

Then let the prieſt take of the bloude of the treſpacoſſering, and put it vpon the ryp of the right eare of him that is cleaſed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the great too of his right ſote. Then let the prieſt take of the logge of oyle, and poure it in to the palme of his left hande, and dyp his right fynger in the oyle that is in the palme of his left hande, and let hym ſpynke it with his fynger ſeuen tymes before the Lorde. And of the reſte of the oyle that is in his hande, ſhall the prieſt put vpon the ryp of the right eare of hym that is cleaſed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the great too of his right ſote: euen vpon the bloude of the treſ-pacoſſering. And the reſt of the oyle that is in the prieſtes hande, he ſhall poure vpon the heed of hym that is cleaſed: and ſo ſhall the prieſt make an attonement for hym before the Lorde.

Then let the prieſt offer the ſynne offering and make an attonement for hym that is clea-ſed for his vncleaneſſe. And then let the burnt offering be ſlayne, and let the prieſt put bothe
the burnt offering and the meat offering vpon the aulter: and make an attonement for hym and then he ſhall be cleane. If he be poore and can not get ſo moche, then let hym bynne one lambe for a treſpacoſſering to waue it, and to make an attonement for hym, and a true deale of fine flour myngled with oyle for a meat offering, and a logge of oyle, and two turtle doves or two yonge pigeons which he is able to get, and let thone be a ſynne offering, and choſer a burnt offering. And let hym bynne them the eighth daye for his cleaſing vnto the prieſt to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnelle before the Lorde.

And let the prieſt take a lambe that is the treſpacoſſering, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And when the lambe of the treſpacoſſering is killed, the prieſt ſhall take of the bloude of the treſpacoſſering, and put it vpon the ryp of his right eare that is cleaſed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the great too of his right ſote. And the prieſt ſhall poure of the oyle in to his right hande, and ſhall ſpynke with his fynger of the oyle that is in his left hande ſeuen tymes before the Lorde.

And the prieſt ſhall put on the oyle that is in his hande (vpon the ryp of the right eare of hym that is cleaſed, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the great too of his right ſote: euen in the place where the bloude of the treſpacoſſering was put. And the reſte of the oyle that is in his hande, he ſhall poure vpon the heed of hym that is clea-ſed: to make an attonement for hym before the Lorde. And he ſhall offer one of the turtle doves, or of the yonge pigeons, ſuche as he can get: the one for a ſynne offering, and the other for a burnt offering vpon the aulter. And ſo ſhall the prieſt make an attonement for hym that is cleaſed before the Lorde. This is the lawe of hym that hath the plague of leproſye, whoſe hande is not able to get that belongeth to his cleaſynge.

And the Lorde ſpake vnto Moſes and Aaron ſaying: when ye come vnto the land of Canaan which I giue you to poſſeſſe: if I put the plague of leproſye in the houſe of the lande of your poſſeſſion, let hym that oweth ſhall go and tell the prieſt, ſaying: me thynke that there is as it were a leproſye in the houſe. And the prieſt ſhall commaunde them to eyde all thynges forth of the houſe, before the prieſt, enter to ſe the plague: that he make not all that is in the houſe vncleane, and then the prieſt ſhall go in, and ſe the houſe.

If the prieſt ſe that the plague is in the walles of the houſe, and that there be holow ſtrakes pale or reade which ſeme to be lower then the other parties of the wall, then let the prieſt go out at the houſe doores, and ſhut up the houſe for ſeven dayes. And let the prieſt come agayne the ſeuenth daye and ſe it, if the plague be increaſed in the walles of the houſe, let the prieſt commaunde them to take away the ſtones in which the plague is, and let them caſte them in a ſoule place without the cite, and ſcrape the houſe within rounde about: and poure out the duſt withoute the cite in a ſoule place. And let them take other ſtones, and put them in the places of thoſe ſtones, and other morter, and pla-ſter the houſe with. If now the plague come agayne, and break out in the houſe, after that

that they haue taken away the stones, and scraped the house, and after that the house is plastered anew: let the priest come and see it. And if then he perceiue that the plague hath eaten further in the house, it is a fretting leprose that is in the house, and it is vncleane. Then they shall breake downe the house: bothe stones, tymber, and all the moite of the house, and carie it forth of the cite vnto a foule place. Moreover he that goeth in to the house all the while it is shut vp, shall be vncleane eyll night. And he that sleepeth in the house shall walsh his clothes, and he also that eateth in the house, shall walsh his clothes.

But if the priest come and see that the plague hath spread no further in the house after it is newe plastered, then let hym make it cleane, for the plague is healed. And lette hym take to cleanse the house with: two bydes, cedar wodde, and purple clothe and psope. And let hym kyll one of the bydes in an earthen vessel with runninge water: and take the cedar wodde, the psope, the purple and the luyunge byde, and dyppe them in the bloude of the slayne byde, and in the runninge water, and sprynkle vpon the house seuen tymes, and cleanse the house with the bloude of the byde, and with the runninge water, and with the luyunge byde, and with the cedar wodde, and the psope, and the purple clothe. And he shall let the luyunge byde see forth of the towne in to the wyde felde, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the lawe for all manner plague of leprose and breakynge out, and of the leprose of clothe and house, and of rynges, scabbes, and glistering white, to teache when a thyng is vncleane or cleane. This is the lawe of leprose.

The manner of purgynge the vncleannes bothe of men and women.

CAPL. XV.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyld of Israel, and say vnto them: euery man that hath a runninge pisse in his fleshe, is vncleane by reason of his pisse. And hereby shall it be knowne when he is vncleane. If his fleshe runne, or if his fleshe congele by the reason of his pisse, then he is vncleane. Euery couche wheron he lyeth, and euery thyng wheron he sitteth shall be vncleane. He that toucheth his couche shall walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe with water, and be vncleane tyll the euen.

He that sitteth on that wheron he sate, shall walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe with water, and be vncleane vntill the euen. And he that toucheth his fleshe, shall walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. If any such spyt vpon hym that is cleane, he muste walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vntill euen.

And what so euer sabel that he rideth vpon shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth any thyng that was vnder hym, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any suche thynges, shall walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: and what so euer he toucheth, if he haue not spytte walshed his handes in water, must walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And if he touche a vessel of erth, it shall be broken: and all vessels of wod, shall be rynged in water.

When he that hath an issue is cleansed of his pisse, let hym nombe seuen dayes after he is cleane, and walsh his clothes, and bathe his fleshe in runninge water, and then he is cleane. And the eyght daye lette hym take two turtle doves, or two yonge ppysons, and come before the Lord vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and gyue them vnto the priest. And the priest shall offer them: the one for a synne offeringe, and the other for a burnt offeringe: and make an attonement for hym before the Lord concerninge his pisse.

If any mans seed departe frome hym in his slepe, he shall walsh his fleshe in water, and be vncleane vntill euen. And all the clothes or furrer wheron suche seed chaunceth, shall be walshed with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And if a woman lye with suche person, they shall walsh euen selues with water, and be vncleane tyll euen.

When a womans naturall course of blood runneth, she shall be put aparte seuen dayes: and who so euer toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth or sitteth vpon as long as she is put aparte, shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth her couche, shall walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe with water, and be vncleane vnto the euen. And who so euer toucheth any thyng that she sate vpon, shall walsh his clothes, and walsh hym selfe also in water, and be vncleane vnto the euen: so that whether he touch her couche or any thyng wheron she hath spytten, he shall be vncleane vnto the euen: and if a man lye with her in the meane tyme, he shall be put aparte as well as she, and shall be vncleane seuen dayes, and all his couche wheron he slepeth shall be vncleane.

When a womans bloude runneth longe tyme, beyonde the tyme of her naturall course: as long as her vncleannesse runneth, she shall be vncleane, after the manner as when she is put aparte. All her couches wheron she lyeth (as long as her pisse lasteth) shall be vnto her as her couche, when she is put aparte. And what so euer she sitteth vpon, shall be vncleane as is her vncleannesse when she is put aparte. And who so euer toucheth them, shall be vncleane, and shall walsh his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto euen.

But if she be cleane of her pisse, lette her count her seuen dayes, after that she is cleane. And the eyght daye let her take two turtles or two yonge ppysons and byrge them vnto the priest vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shall offer the one for a synne offeringe, and the other for burnt offeringe: and he shall make an attonement for her before the Lord, concerninge her vncleane issue. Make the chyldren of Israel to kepe euen selues frome the vncleannes, that they dye not in their vncleannes: when they haue despyled my habitation that is amonge them.

This is the lawe of hym that hath a runninge soze, and of hym whose seed runneth frome hym in his slepe and is defiled therewith, and of her that hath an issue of bloude as long as she is put aparte, and of whoeuer hath a runninge soze whether it be man or woman, and of hym that slepeth with her that is vncleane.

What Aaron muste doo he entre in to the holy place. The cleansing of the sanctuary or holy place. The feast of cleansing. Aaron cleanse the inner oyle the chyldren of Israel ouer the lyeure gote and put a hy them vpon his heade.

CAPL. XVI.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses after the death of the two sonnes of Aaron, when they had offered before the Lord and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moses: I speake vnto thee thy brother that he go not at all tymes into the holy place, that is within the bayle that hangeth before the mercysseate which is vpon the arche that he dye not: for I will appeare in a clowde vnto the mercysseate.

But on this manner shall Aaron go into the holy place: with a bullocke for a synne offeringe and a ram for a burnt offeringe. And he shall put the holy linnen aibe vpon him, and shall haue a linnen byrche vpon his fleshe, and shall gyrdle hym with a linnen gyrdell, and put the linnen miter vpon his heade: for they are holy raymentes. And he shall walsh his fleshe with water, and put the linnen on, and he shall take of the multitude of the chyldren of Israel two goates for a synne offeringe and a ram for a burnt offeringe.

And Aaron shall offer the bullocke for his synne offeringe and make an attonement for hym and for his house. And he shall take the two goates and present them before the Lord in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two goates: one lot for the Lord, and an other for a scapegoate. And Aaron shall byrge the goate vpon which the Lordes lot fell, and offer hym for a synne offeringe. But the goate on which the lot fell to scape, he shall set a lye before the Lord to reconyle with and to let hym go fre into the wyldernesse. And Aaron shall byrge the bullocke of his synne offeringe, and make attonement for hym selfe and for his householde, and kyll hym.

And then he shall take a cense full of burninge coles out of the altare that is before the Lord, and his handfull of swete incense beaten small and byrge them within the bayle, and put the incense vpon the fyre before the Lord: that the clowde of the incense maye couer the mercysseate that is vpon the wytnesse that he dye not. And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke and spynke it with his synger before the mercysseate eastward: euen seuen tymes.

Then shall he kyll the goate that is the peoples synne offeringe, & byrge his bloude within the bayle, and with his bloude as he dyd with the bloude of the bullocke, and let hym spynke it toward the mercysseate, and before the mercysseate: and reconyle the holy place frome the vncleannes of the chyldren of Israel, and frome their trespasses and all their synnes. And so let hym do also vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse that dwelleth with them, euen amonge their vncleannes.

And there shall be no person in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, tyll he come forth agayne. And he shall make attonement for hym selfe and his householde, and all the multitude of Israel. Then he shall go forth vnto the altare that standeth before the Lord, and cleanse it, and shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and the goate, and put vpon the hornes of the altare rounde aboute, and spynke of the bloude vpon it with his synger seuen tymes, and cleanse it, and halowe it frome the vncleannes of the chyldren of Israel.

And when he hath cleansed the holy place of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the altare, let hym byrge the lyeure gote, and let Aaron put bothe his handes vpon the head of the lyeure gote, and confesse ouer hym all the misdoes of the chyldren of Israel, and their trespasses, & all their synnes: and let hym put the lyeure vpon the head of the goate, and sende hym away by the handes of one that is acquainted in the wyldernesse. And the goate shall beare vpon hym all their misdoes into the wyldernesse, and he shall let the goate go fre in the wyldernesse.

And let Aaron go into the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and put of the linnen clothes which he put on when he went into the holy place, and leaue them there. And let hym walsh his fleshe with water in the holy place, and put on his owne rayment, and then come out and offer his burnt offeringe and the burnt offeringe of the people, and praye for hym selfe and the people, and the fat of the synne offeringe let hym burne vpon the altare. And let hym that carryed forth the scapegoate, walsh his clothes and bathe his fleshe in water, and then come into the holle agayne.

And the bullocke of the synne offeringe and the goate of the synne offeringe (whose bloude was brought in to make an attonement in the holy place) let one carie forth withoute the holle and burne with fyre: bothe their synnes, their fleshe and their tonge. And let hym that burneth them, walsh his clothes and bathe his fleshe in water, and so come into the holle agayne. And this shall be an ordinaunce for euer vnto you. And euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, ye shall humble your sones and shall do no worke at al: whether it be one of your selues or a stranger that sojourneth amonge you, for that day shall an attonement be made for you to cleanse you from all your synnes before the Lorde, and ye shall be cleane. It shall be a Sabbath of rest vnto you, and ye shall humble your selves, and it shall be an ordinance for euer.

And the priest that is anointed and whose hande was layed to mynstre in his fathers seide, shall make the attonement and shall put on the holy linnen clothes and holy be-shementes, and shall repourge the holy sanctuary and the tabernacle of witness and the altare, and shall make attonement also for the priests and all the people of the congregation. And this shall be an eueryday ordinance vnto you to make attonements for the chyldren of Israel for all theyr synnes ones a yere. and it was done euen as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

All sacrifice must be brought to the doze of the tabernacle. To druples may they not offer. Bloude and all haren is forbydden them.

CAPL.

XVII.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake to Aaron and his sonnes, and vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and tell them, this is the thyng which the Lorde charged, sayinge: what so euer he be of the house of Israel, that kyleth an oxe, lambe or goat, in the hode or out of the hode, and byn-gerth them not vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness, to offer an offering vnto the Lorde, before the dwelling place of the Lorde, bloude shall be imputed vnto that man, as though he had shed bloude, and that man shall perishe from his people.

Wherefore let the chyldren of Israel bring theyr offerings that they offer in the wyde felde, vnto the Lorde: euen vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness, and vnto the priest, and offer them for the peccofferynges vnto
the Lorde. And the priest shall spynke the bloude vpon the auter of the Lorde in the doze of the tabernacle of witness, and burne the fat to be a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And let them no more offer theyr offeringes vnto drupis, after whome they go an offering. And this shall be an ordinance for euer vnto you, thowme out your generations.

And thou shalt say vnto them: what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you, that offereth a burnt offering, or any other offering, and byngeth it not vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness to offer vnto the Lorde, the same shall perishe from his people. And what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you that eateth any maner of bloude, I will sette my face agaynst that soule that eateth bloude, and will defrope him out of his people, for the lyfe of the fleshy is in the bloude, and I haue gyuen it vnto you vpon the auter, to make attonement for your sonnes, for bloude shall make attonement for the soule. And therefore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: is no soule of you eat bloude, ne any stranger that sojourneth amonge you.

Whosoever man it be of the chyldren of Israel or of the strangers that sojourn amonge you: that hunteth and catcheth any beeste of soule that maye be eaten, he shall poure out the bloude and couer it with earth, for the lyfe of al fleshe is in the bloude, therefore I sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: ye shall eat the bloude of no maner of fleshe, for the lyfe of all fleshe is in his bloude, and whosoever therfore eateth it, shall perishe. And whosoever soule it be that eateth that which dyed alone or that which was kylled with wyde beastes: whether it be one of your selues or a stranger, he shall wash his clothes and bathe him selfe in water and shall be vncleane vnto the euen, and then is he cleane. But if he wathe them not nor wash his clothes, he shall beate his synne.

What degrees of hyured maye marie to gythe and what not.

CAPL.

XVIII.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and weete them, I am the Lorde your god. Wherefore after the doynges of the lande of Egypte wherin ye dwelte, se ye doo not: after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, wherein I will bynge you: neyther walke ye in theyr ordinances, but do after my iudgements, and kepe myne ordinances, to walke therein. For I am the Lorde your God. Kepe therefore myne ordinances, and my iudgements, which I set a man doo, he shall lyue thereby: for I am the Lorde.

Se ye goo to none of your neyghbours kynred, for to vncover theyr secrettes, for I am the Lorde. The secrettes of thy father, and thy mother, se thou vnhyllie not: he is thy mother, therefore shalt thou not vncover her secrettes. The secrettes of thy fathers wyfe shalt thou not vncover, for they are thy fathers secrettes. Thou shalt not vncover the pryncie of thy sister the daughter of thy father or of thy mother: whether she be hoyme at home or without. Thou shalt not vncover the secrettes of thy sons daughter or thy daughters daughter, for that is thyne owne pryncie:
Thou shalt not vncover the secrettes of thy fathers wyfes daughter, which she bare to thy father, for she is thy sister: Thou shalt therefore not vncover her secrettes. Thou shalt not vncover the secrettes of thy fathers syster, for she is thy fathers nexte kynswoman.
Thou shalt not vncover the secrettes of thy mothers syster, for she is thy mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalt not vncover the secrettes of thy

thy fathers brother: that is, thou shalt not go in, to his wyfe, for she is thyne awnte.

Thou shalt not vncover the secrettes of thy daughter in lawe, she is thy sonnes wyfe: therefore vncover not her secrettes. Thou shalt not vncover the secrettes of thy brothers wyfe, for that is thy brothers pryncie. Thou shalt not vncover the pryncies of the wyfe and her daughter also, neyther shalt thou take her sonnes daughter or her daughters daughter to vncover theyr secrettes, they are her nexte kynne, it were therfore wyckednesse.
Thou shalt not take a wyfe and her syster thereto, to beare her that thou wouldest open her secrettes as longe as she lyueth. Thou shalt not goo vnto a woman to vncover her pryncie, as longe as she is put aparte for her vn-cleannesse. Thou shalt not lye with thy neighboures wyfe, to defyle thy selfe with her. Thou shalt not geue of thy seed to ouer it vnto Moloch, for thou shalt not the name of thy God, for I am the Lorde.

Thou shalt not lye with mankynde as with womankynde, for that is abhominacion.

Thou shalt lye with no maner of beaste to defyle thy selfe therewith, neyther shall any woman shewe before a beaste to lye with her thereto, for that is abhominacion.

Defyle not your selues in any of these thin-ges, for with all these thynges are these nations defyled which I cast out before you: and the lande is defyled, and I will visit the wyckednesse thereof vpon it, and the lande shall spewe out her inhabitants. Kepe ye therefore myne ordinances and iudgements, and se ye do none of these abhominacions: neyther any of you nor any stranger that sojourneth amonge you (for all these abhominacions haue the men of the lande done which were there before you, and the lande is defyled) lest the lande spewe you out when ye haue defyled it, as it spewed out the nations that were there before you. for who so euer shall commit any of these abhominacions, the same soules that to them shall perishe frome there people. Therefore se ye kepe myne ordinaun-ces, that ye commit none of these abhominaciones which were committed before you: that ye defyle not your selues therewith for I am the Lorde your God.

The repetition of certayne lawes pertaynyng to the ten commaundementes. A consideration for the poore. Howe we oughte to iudge rightously. Howe we oughte not to be auenged. Withcraft is forbydden.

CAPL.

XIX.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake to all the multitude of chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto the.
Be holy for I the Lorde your God am holy. Se ye feare euery man his father and his mother, and that ye kepe my Sabbotbes, for I am the Lorde your God. Ye shall not turne vnto ydols nor make you goddes of metall:
I am the Lorde your God.

When ye offer your peccofferynges vnto the Lorde, ye shall offer them that ye may be accepted. And if shalbe eaten the same daye ye offer it and on the morowe, but what so euer is left on the thirde daye shalbe burnt in the

fyr. If it be eaten the thirde daye, it shalbe vncleane and not accepted. And he that eateth it shall beate his synne, because he hath defy-led the halowed thynges of the Lorde, & that soule shall perishe frome his people.

When ye scape to wone the type come of your lande, ye shall not scape to wone the vttermost borders of your felde, neyther shalt thou gather that is left behynde in thy haruest. Thou shalt not plucke in all thy vyne-yarde cleane, ne gather in the grapes that are ouerscaped. But thou shalt leaue them for the poore and stranger. I am the Lorde your God.

Ye shall not steale neyther lye, neyther deale falsely one with another. Ye shall not sweare by my name falsely / that thou defylest not the name of thy God, I am the Lorde. Thou shalt not begyle thy neyghbour with can-tilacions, neyther robbe him violently, neyther shalt thou the workmans labour abyde with the vntyll the morynge. Thou shalt not curse the deafe, neyther put a stumbling blocke before the blynde / but shalt feare thy God. I am the Lorde. Ye shall do no vneighbourlynes in iudgement. Thou shalt not fauour the poore nor honour the myghty, but shalt iudge thy neyghbour righteously.

Thou shalt not go by and do wone a pryue accuser amonge thy people, neyther shalt thou helpe to shewe the bloude of thy neyghbour:
I am the Lorde. Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thyne harte, but shalt in any wyse rebuke thy neyghbour: that thou beest not synne for his sake. Thou shalt not auenge thy selfe nor beare hate in thy mynde agaynst the chyldren of thy people, but shalt loue thy neyghbour as thy selfe, I am the Lorde.

Kepe myne ordinances. Let none of thy catell geuoye with a contrary kynde, neyther sowe thy felde with myngled seed, neyther shalt thou put on any garment of linnen and wollen.

If a man haue to do with a woman that is bonde and hath bene mebled with all of an other man which neyther is bought nor free-dome gyuen her, there shalbe a payne vpon it, but they shall not dye, because she was not made free. And he shall bynge for his tres-passofferinge vnto the Lorde / euen vnto the doze of the tabernacle of witness, a Ram for a trespassofferinge. And the priest shall make attonement for him with the Ram of the tres-passofferinge before the Lorde, for his synne which he hath done / and it shall be forgyuen him, concernyng the synne which he hath done.

And when ye come to the lande and haue planted all maner of trees wherof men eat ye shall holde them vncircumcised as concernyng their frute / euen thye yere shal they be vncircumcised vnto you and shall not be eat of, and the fourth yere all the frute of theym shall be holy and acceptable to the Lorde.
And the fifth yere maye ye eat of the frute of theym

I the, & gat her in the increase of them: I am the Lord your God. * Ye shall eat nothing with the bloud, ye shall use no witchcraft, nor observe dymall dayes, ye shall not round the lockes of your heedes, neyther shall thou marre the tuftes of thy beere.

Ye shall not rent your fleshe for any soules sake, nor printe any markes vpon you: I am the Lord. Thou shalt not pollute thy daughter, that thou wouldest maynteyne her to be an hoore: leaue the lande fall to whoredome, and waxe full of wickednesse. Se ye kepe my Sabbothe & feare my sanctuary: I am the Lord. Turne not to them that observe dymall dayes: ne regard them, that observe dymall dayes: that ye be not defyled by them, for I am the Lord your God.

Thou shalt kepe by before the hoored, & recurrence the face of the olde man, and dread thy God, for I am the Lord. * Ye a stranger get sojourne by the in your lande, se ye vnto him nor: But let the stranger that dwelleth with you, be as one of your felous, and love him as thy selfe, for ye were strangers in the lande of Egypt. I am the Lord your God.

Ye shall woe no vneyghtrouines in iudgement neyther in meesure, weyghte or mesure. But ye shall haue true balances, true weyghtes, A true Ephra, and a true Ekin. I am the Lord your God which brought you forth of the land of Egypt, that ye shoulde observe all myne ordinaunces and iudgements and kepe them: I am the Lord.

They that geue of theyr seed to Moloch shall dye therfore. Other goodly lawes necessarye to be vied in common wealthes.

CAPL.

XX.

And the Lord talked with Moses, sayinge: tell the children of Israel, whoso euer he be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that dwell in Israel, that geueth of his seed vnto Moloch he shall dye for it: the people of the lande shall stone him to death. And I will set my face vpon that fellow, and will destroye him from his people: because he hath giuen of his seed vnto Moloch, to defyle my sanctuary and to pollute my holy name. And though the people of the lande fynde their eyes from that fellow, when he geueth of his seed vnto Moloch, so that they kyll him not: yet I will put my face vpon that man and vpon his generation, and will destroye him and all that goo a hooryng with him and commit hooredome with Moloch to their people.

Ye any soule turne him to enchaunters or expounders of tokens and go a hooryng after them, I will put my face vpon that soule and will destroye him from his people. Sanctifye your felous therfore, and be holy, for I am the Lord your God. And se ye kepe myne ordinaunces and do them. For I am the Lord which sanctifye you.

Who so euer curseth his father or mother, shall dye for it, his bloud on his head, because he hath curset his father or mother.

He that breaketh wedlocke with an others mans wyfe shall dye for it, because he hath broke wedlocke with his neyghbours wyfe, & so shall the lyche wyfe.

If a man lye with his fathers wyfe & uncover his fathers secrettes, they shall bothe dye for it, their bloud be vpon their heedes.

If a man lye with his daughter in lawe they shall dye both of them: they haue wrought abhominacion, their bloud vpon their heedes.

If a man lye with mankynde after the maner as with woman kynde, they haue bothe committed abhominacion and shall dye for it. Their bloud be vpon their heedes.

If a man take a wyfe and her mother together, it is wickednesse. Then shall burne with fyre both him and them, that there be no wickednesse amonge you.

If a man lye with a beast he shall dye, and ye shall slay the beast.

If a woman go vnto a beast and lye twine thereto: thou shalt kyll the woman and the beast also, they shall dye, and their bloud be vpon their heedes.

If a man take his sister, his fathers daughter or his mothers daughter, & se her secrettes and he se his secrettes also: it is a wicked thinge. Therefore let them perishe in the sight of their people, he hath sene his sisters secrettes, he shall therfore beate his synne.

If a man lye with a woman in synne of her flowers and uncover her secrettes and open her fountayne, and she also open the fountayne of her bloud, they shall both perishe from the people.

Thou shalt not uncover the secrettes of thy mothers sister nor of thy fathers syster, for he that doth so, vncouereth his nexte kyn: & they shall beate their mysdoynge.

If a man lye with his vncles wyfe, he hath vncouereth his vncles secrettes: they shall beate their synne, and shall dye childlesse.

If a man take his brothers wyfe, it is an vncleane thyng, he hath vncouereth his brothers secrettes, they shall be childlesse therfore.

* Se ye kepe therfore all myne ordinaunces and all my iudgements, and that ye do them: that the lande whither I bringe you to dwell therein, spewe you not out. And se ye walke not in the maners of the nacions which I cast out before you: for they committed all these thinges, and I abhorred them.

But I haue sayde vnto you that ye shall enioye their lande, and that I will geue it vnto you to possesse it: a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. I am the Lord your God, which haue dryed you from other nacions:

* that ye shoulde put difference betwene cleane beastes and vncleane, and betwene vncleane soules and them that are cleane. Make not your soules therfore abhominable with beastes and foules, and with all manner thinge that creepeth on the ground, which I haue seuered vnto you to holde them vncleane. Be holy vnto me, for I the Lord am holy, and haue seuered you frome other nacions: that ye shoulde be myne.

* Ye

* If there be a man or woman that worke with a spirite or that expoundeth tokens, they shall dye for it. Then shall stone them with stones, and their bloud shall be vpon them.

The priest is forbidden to be at the death of any of his people, a fewe of his kynne excepts. Priests maye not be shaven neyther on the heade nor on the beards. The priestes wyfe must be a mayde. The priestes daughter maye not be an harlot.

CAPL.

XXI.

And the Lord sayd vnto Moses: speake vnto the priestes the sonnes of Aaron and saye vnto them. A priest shall not defyle him selfe at the death of any of his people, but vpon his kynne that is nyghe vnto him: as his mother, father, sonne, daughter and brother: and on his syster as long as she is a mayde and dwelleth nyghe him and was neuer giuen to man: on her he maye defyle him selfe. But he shall not make him selfe vncleane vpon a ruler of his people to pollute him selfe withall.

They shall make them no baldnesse vpon their heedes or shawe of the lockes of their beards, nor make any markes in their fleshe. They shall be holy vnto their God, and not pollute the name of their God, for the sacrifices of the Lord and the bread of their God they to offer: therfore they must be holy.

They shall take no wyfe that is an hoore or polluted, or put frome her husband: for a priest is holy vnto his God. Sanctifye hym therfore, for he offereth by the bread of God: he shall therfore, be holy vnto the, for I the Lord which sanctifye you, am holy.

If a priestes daughter fall to play the hoore she polluteh her father: therfore she shall be burnt with fyre.

He that is the beghe priest amonge his brethren vpon whose head the annoyntinge oyle was powred and whose hande was spiled to put on the vestimentes, shall not uncover his head nor rent his clothes, neyther shall go to any lech body nor make him selfe vncleane: not on his father or mother, neyther shall go out of the sanctuary, that he defyle not the holy place of his God, for the crowne of the annoyntinge oyle of God, is vpon him. I am the Lord. He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe: but no widow nor deuorced nor defyled hoore. But he shall take a mayde of his owne people to wyfe, that he defyle not his seed vpon his people: for I am the Lord which sanctifye hym.

And the Lord spake to Moses, sayinge / speake to Aaron, and saye: No ma of thy seed in their generacions that hath any deformitie vpon him, shall prece to offer the bred of his God: for none that hath any blempe shall come nere: whether he be blynde, lame, spotted, or that hath any mishappen membre, or broken forced, or broken handed, or stroke barked, or perleyed, or gogelced, or maungye, or shauide, or hath his bones broken.

No man that is deformed of the seed of Aaron the priest, shall come nyghe to offer the sacrifices of the Lord. If he haue a deformitie, he shall not prece to offer the bred of his God. Notwithstandinge he shall eate of the bred of his God: euen as well of the most holy, as of the holy: but shall not go in, vnto the dayle, nor come nyghe the altare, because he is deformed that he pollute not my sanctuary: for I am the Lord that sanctifye them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to his sonnes and vnto all the children of Israel.

What maner personnes ought to abstayne from carryinge the thynges that were offered. How, what, and when they shoulde be offered.

CAPL.

XXII.

And the Lord comendeth with Moses, sayinge: byd Aaron and his sonnes that they absteyne frome the halowed thynges of the children of Israel which they haue halowed vnto me, that they pollute not my holy name: for I am the Lord. Saye vnto them: who so euer he be of all youre seed amonge your generation after you, that goeth vnto the halowed thynges which the children of Israel shall haue halowed vnto the Lord, his vncleannes shall be vpon hym: and that soule shall perishe forth of my sight. I am the Lord.

None of the seed of Aaron that is a leper or that hath a runnyng sore, shall eate of the halowed thynges tyll he be cleane. And who so euer toucheth any vncleane soule, or man whose seed runneth frome him by nyghte, or who so euer toucheth any womne that is vncleane to him, or man that is vncleane to him what so euer vncleannes he hath: the same soule that hath any suche thyng, shall be vncleane vntill euen, and shall not eate of the halowed thynges vntill he haue washed his fleshe with water. And then when the sonne is downe, he shall be cleane and shall afterwarde eate of the halowed thynges: for they are his fode. * If a beast that byeth alone or is rent with wyld beastes, he shall not eate, so defyle him selfe therewith: I am the Lord. But let them kepe therfore myne ordinaunce leaue they lade synne vpon them and dye therein, when they haue defyled them felous: for I am the Lord which sanctifye them.

There shall no stranger eate of the halowed thynges, neyther the priestes geir, or his byrded seruant. But if the priest dye any person with money, he maye eate of it, and he also that is borne in his house, maye eate of his bred. If the priestes daughter be maried vnto a stranger, she maye not eate of the halowed breuicostinges. Notwithstandinge if the priestes daughter be a widow or deuorced, and haue no childe but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fathers bred as well as she dyd in her youth. But there shall no stranger eate thereof. If a man eate of the halowed thynges vntill in gly, he shall put the fyfte parte thereof, and make good vnto the priest the halowed thyng. And let the priestes se, that they defyle not the halowed thinges of the chyldren of Israel which they haue offered vnto the Lorde, least they lade them selues with mistynge & trespass in eatynge their halowed thinges, for I am the Lorde which halowe them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayenge: speake to Aaron and his sonnes and to all the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them, whatsoeuer he be of the house of Israel or stranger in Israel that will offer his offering: what so euer he be of the flocke or of the oxen, what they will offer vnto the Lorde for a burnt offering to reconcyle them selues, it must be a male without blempe of the oxen, shepe, or gootes, let them offer nothing that is defoymed for they shall gette no sauoure.

If a man will offer a peace offering vnto the Lorde and separte a vowe of a fectyll offering of the oxen or the flocke, it must be without defoymete, that it maye be accepted.

There maye be no blempe therein: whether it be blynde, broken, wounded or haue a wen, or be maulynge or scabbed, sepe offer no such vnto the Lorde, nor put an offering of any such vpon the altare vnto the Lorde.

An oxe or a shepe that hath any membre out of proportion, maye thou offer for a fectyll offering: but in a vowe it shall not be accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the Lorde that is blynde, broken, plucked out or cut as to aape, neyther shalt thou make any such in your lande, neyther of a strangeres hande shall ye offer an offering to your God of any such. For they make al in that they haue defoymetes in them, and therefore can not be accepted for you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayenge: when an oxe, a shepe, or a goote is broughte forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder the dame. And frome the eighth daye forth, it shall be accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And whether it be oxe or shepe, ye shall not kyll it and her younge bothe in one daye.

When ye will offer a thanke offering vnto the Lorde, ye shall so offer it that ye maye be accepted. And the same daye, it must be eaten vp, so that ye leaue none of it vnto the morow. For I am the Lorde, kepe now my commaundementes and do them, for I am the Lorde. And polure not my holy name, that I maye be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel. For I am the Lorde which halowe you, and broughte you out of the lande of Egypt, to be your God: for I am the Lorde.

Of the holy dayes, as the Sabbath, Ester, whittsonyde, the feast of the fyfte frutes. The feast of cleansynge. The feast of Tromptes. The feast of the tabernacles.

CAPL. XXIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them. These are the feastes of the Lorde which ye shall call holy feastes. Syxe dayes ye shall worke, and the seuenth is the Sabbath of reaste an holge feaste: so that ye maye haue no worke therein, for it is the Sabbath of the Lorde, wherof euer ye dwell. These are the feastes of the Lorde which ye shall proclayne holpe in theyr seasons. * The xij. daye of the fyfte moneth at euen is the Lorde * Passouer. And the fyfte daye of the same moneth is the feaste of swete bryde vnto the Lorde seuen dayes ye muste eat vnto the bryde. The fyfte daye shall be an holy feaste vnto you, so that ye maye do no laborious worke therein. But ye shall offer sacrifices vnto the Lorde seuen dayes, and the seuenth daye also shall be an holy feaste, so that ye maye do no laborious worke therein.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: when ye be come in to the lande which I gyue vnto you and repe doune your harvest / ye shall brynge a shefe of the fyfte frutes of your harvest vnto the preece, and he shall waue the shefe before the Lorde to be accepted for you: and turne the morowe after the Sabbath the preece shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye when he waue the shefe, a lambe without blempe of a yere olde for a burnt offering vnto the Lorde: and the meat offering thereof, two tenth deales of fyne flour mingled with oyle to be a sacrifice vnto the Lorde of a swete sauoure: and the drynk offering thereto, the fourth deale of an hyrn of wyne. And ye shall eate neyther breade, nor parched corne, nor fryment of new corne: vntyl the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offering vnto your God. And this shall be a lawe for euer vnto your chyldren after you, wherofeuer ye dwell.

And ye shall counte frome the morowe after the Sabbath: euen frome the daye that ye brought the shefe of the waue offering. vij. weekes complete: euen vnto the morowe after the seuen weekes, ye shall nombr. i. dayes. And then ye shall brynge a newe meat offering vnto the Lorde. And ye shall brynge out of your habitacions two wauelours made of two tenth deales of fyne flour leuened and baken, for fyfte frutes vnto the Lorde. And ye shall brynge with the bryed seuen lambes without defoymete of one yere of age, and one younge oxe, and two rammes, which shall serue for burnt offerings vnto the Lorde, with meat offerings, and drynke offerings longynge to the same, to be a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

And ye shall offer an he goate for a syme offering: and two lambes of one yere olde for peace offerings. And the preece shall waue them in the bryad of the fyfte frutes before the Lorde and with the two lambes. And they shall be holy vnto the Lorde, and be the preece. And ye shall make a proclamation the same daye, that it be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall do no laborious worke therein: And it shall be a lawe for euer thowout all your habitacions vnto your chyldren after you.

* When ye reape doune your harvest, thou shalt not make cleane ryddance of thy feloe, neyther shalt thou make any aftergatheringe of thy harvest: but shalt leue them vnto the poore and the stranger. I am the Lorde your God.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye. The first daye of the seuenth moneth shall be a rest of remembraunce vnto you, to blowe boznes in, an holy feast it shall be, and ye shall do no laborious worke therein, and ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayenge: also the tenth daye of the selfe seuenth moneth, is a daye of attonement, and shall be on holy feast vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules and offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Mo- reouer ye shall do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of attonement to make an attonement for you before the Lorde your God. For what so euer soule it be that humblyth not him selfe that daye, he shall be destroyed frome his people. And what so euer soule do any manner worke that daye, the same I will destroye frome his people. Sepe do no manner worke therfore. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto your generations after you in all your dwellynge. A Sabbath of reffe it shall be vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules. The ix. daye of the moneth at euen and so forth to euen to euen agayne, ye shall kepe your Sabbath.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayenge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: the x. daye of the same seuenth moneth, shall be the feaste of tabernacles. vij. dayes vnto the Lorde. The first daye shall be an holy feast, so that ye shall do no laborious worke therein. Seuen dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde, and the viij. daye shall be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. It is the ende of the feaste, and ye shall do no laborious worke therein.

These are the feastes of the Lorde which ye shall proclayne holy feastes, for to offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde, burnt offerings, meat offerings and drynke offerings euer daye: besyde the Sabbaths of the Lorde, and besyde your gyftes, and all your vowe, and al your frewill offerings which ye shall gyue vnto the Lorde.

Moreouer in the x. daye of the seuenth moneth after that ye haue gathered in the frutes of the lande, ye shall kepe holy daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes longe. The first daye shall be a daye of reffe, and the eighth daye shall be a daye of reffe. And ye shall take you the first daye, the frutes of goodly trees and y braunches of palme trees and the bowes of thyche trees, and topiowes of the brooke: and shall reioyse before the Lorde seuen dayes. And ye shall kepe it holy daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes in the yere. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto your chyldren after you, that ye kepe that feast in the seuenth moneth. And ye shall dwell in boozes seuen dayes: euen all that are Israelites borne, shall dwell in boozes, that your chyldren after you maye knowe howe I made the chyldren of Israel dwell in boozes, when I brought them oute of the lande of Egypt: for I am the Lorde your God. And Moyses tolde all the feastes of the Lorde vnto the chyldren of Israel.

The oyle for the lampes and lyghtes of the bryde of remembraunce of the bryde. The churche must be floued. The that hyllyth shall be hyllyd. &c.

CAPL. XXIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayenge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel that they brynge vnto the, pure oyle olyue beaten for lyghtes to putte into the lampes alwaye, without the bayle of wyntelle within the tabernacle of wyntelle. And Aaron shall bryse them bothe euen and morninge before the Lorde alwayes. And it shall be a lawe for euer amonge your chyldren after you. And he shall bryse the lampes vpon the pure candelsticke before the Lorde perpetually.

And thou shalt take fyne flour and bake it. waffels therof, two tenth deales shall euer waffell be. And make two rowes of the, fire on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lorde, and put pure frankincense vpon the rowes. And it shall be bryed of remembraunce, and an offering to the Lorde. Euer Sabbath he shall put them in rowes before the Lorde euermore, gyuen of the chyldren of Israel, that it be an euertlasting couenaunte. And they shall be Aarons and his sonnes, and they shall eate them in the holpe place. For they are mooste holpe vnto him of the offerings of the Lorde, and shall be a duty for euer.

And the son of an Israelitish wyfe whose father was an Egyptian, went oute amonge the chyldren of Israel. And this sonne of the Israelitish wyfe and a man of Israel, stroue together in the holse. And the Israelitish woman sonne blasphemed the name of the Lorde and cused, and they brought him vnto Moyses. And his mothers name was Samsyth, the daughter of Dibzy of the tpye of Dan: and they put him in ward, that Moyses shoulde declare vnto them what the Lorde sayde thereto.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses sayenge, brynge him that blasphemed without the host and let all that herde him, put theyr handes vpon his heed, and let al the multitude stoune him. And speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayenge. Who so euer cursyth his God, shall beare his synne: And he that blasphemeth the name of the Lorde, shall dye for it: all the multitude shall stoune him to deathe. And the stranger as well as the Israelite, if he curse the name, shall dye for it.

He that kyllyth any man, shall dye for it, but he that kyllyth a beaste shall paye for it, beest for beest. If a man maye his neryghbour, euen as he hath done, so shall it be done to hym agayne: broke for broke, eye for eye and tothe for tothe: euen as he hath maymed a man, so shall he be maymed agayne.

the heauen ouer you as harde as yron, & your lande as harde as yaffe. And so your labour shall be spent in vayne. For your lande shall not geue you increase, neither the trees of the lande shall geue their fruites.

And yf ye walke contrary vnto me and will not hearken vnto me, I will bringe seuen tymes moe plagues vpon you accordinge to your synnes. I will sende in, wythe beastes, vpon you, which shall spoyle you of your children and destroye your catel, and make you so fewe in number that your highe wayes shall growe to a wyldrenesse.

And yf ye will not be lerned yet, for all this, but shall walke contrary vnto me, then will I also walke contrary vnto you, and will punnysh you yet seuen tymes for your synnes. I will sende a sword vpon you, that shall auenge my testament with you. And when ye are fled vnto your ctytes, I will sende the pestilence amonge you, ye shall be geuen into the handes of your enemyes. And when I haue broken the staffe of your bred / that is, wyues shall bake your bred in one oven and men shall deliuer you your breed as gayne by weyght, then shall ye eate and shall not be filled.

And yf ye will not yet for all this, hearken vnto me, but shall walke contrary vnto me, then I will walke contrary vnto you also, wrathfully and will also punnysh you seuen tymes for your synnes: so that ye shall eate the flesh of your sonnes and the flesh of youre woughtes. And I will destroye your altars built vpon hyghes bylles, & ouerthrowe your pynges, and cast your carnales vpon the bowdes of your wylles, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I will make your ctytes desolate, & bringe your sanctuaries vnto nought, and will not smel the sauours of your sweete olures.

And I will bringe the lande vnto a wyldrenesse: so that your enemyes which dwell therein, shall wonder at it. And I will strake you amonge the heathen, and will dyatme out a sworde after you, and your lande shall be wast, and your ctytes desolate. Then the land shall rest in her Sabboties, as long as it lyeth vnder you and ye in your enemyes lande euen then shall the lande kepe holy daye and rest in her Sabboties. And as long as it lyeth vnder you it shall rest, for that it coulde not rest in your Sabboties, when ye dwelte therein.

And vpon them that are left alpye of you I will sende a fagynelle in to their hertes in the lande of their enemyes: so that the sound of a lute that falleth, shall chase them & they shall flee as though they fled a sword, and shall fall no man followinge them. And they shall fall one vpon another, as it were before a sword no man pursuing them, and ye shall haue no power to stande before your enemyes: And ye shall perishe amonge the heathen, and the lande of your enemyes shall eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, shall pynne awaye in their dayntynesse, euen in their enemyes lande, and also in the misdeades of their fathers shall they consume. And they shall confesse their misdeades, and the misdeades of their fathers in their trespasses which they haue trespassed against me, and for that also that they haue walked contrary vnto me. Therefore I also will walke contrary vnto them, and will bringe them into the lande of their enemyes. And then at leest waye their vncircumcised hertes shall be tamed, & then they shall make attonement for their misdeades.

And I will remember my bonde with Jacob and my covenant with Isaac, and my testament with Abraham, and will thinke on the lande. For the lande shall be left of them and shall haue pleasure in her Sabboties, while she lyeth wast without them, and they shall make an attonement for their misdeades, because they despised my lawes and their soules refused myne ordinaunces. And yet for all that when they be in the lande of their enemye, I will not so cast them awaye nor my soule shall not so abhorre them, that I will utterly destroye them, and breake myne appointment with them: for I am the Lord their God. I will therefore remember vnto them the little covenante made when I broughte them out of the lande of Egypte in the sight of the heathen to be their God: for I am the Lord.

These are the ordinaunces, iudgements, and lawes which the Lord made betwene hym and the children of Israel in mount Synai by the hande of Moses.

Of diuerse bowes and the redempcyng of the same of ctytes. &c.

CAPL. XXVII.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, sayinge, speake vnto the children of Israel and saye vnto them: Yf any man will geue a singuler bowe vnto the Lord accordinge to the value of his soule, then shall the male frome twenty pence vnto. lx. be set at. l. syles of syluer, after the sytle of the sanctuary, and the female at. xxx. syles. And frome b. pence to. xx. the male shall be set at. xx. syles, and the female at. x. syles. And frome a moneth vnto. v. pence, the male shall be set at. v. syles of syluer, and the female at thye. And the man that is. lx. and about, shall be valued at. xv. syles, and the woman at. x. Yf he be to poore so to be set, the let him come before the pceast: and let the pceast value him, accordinge as the hande of him that vowed is habile to get.

Yf it be of the beastes of which men bringe an offeringe vnto the Lord: all that any man geueth of such vnto the Lord, shall be holy. He maye not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. Yf he chaunge beest for beest, then both the same beest and it also wherewith it was chaunged shall be holy. Yf it be any manner of vncleane beest of which men maye not offer vnto the Lord, let hym bringe the beest before the pceast and let the pceast value it. And whether it be good or bad as the pceast setteth it, so shall it be. And yf he will buye it agayne, let him geue the fyfte parte more to that it was set at.

Yf any man dedicate his house, it shall be holy vnto the Lord. And the pceast shall set it, whether it be good or bad, and as the pceast hath set it, so it shall be. Yf he that sanctified it, will redeeme his house, let him geue the fyfte parte of the money that it was laged at thereto, and it shall be his.

Yf a man halowe a pce of his enherited lande vnto the Lord, it shall be set accordinge to that it beareth. Yf it beare an homer of barley, it shall be set at fyfte syles of syluer. Yf he halowe his lande forthwith from the pce of Jubyle, it shall be worthe accordinge as it is esteemed. But yf he halowe his felde after the trumpet pce, the pceast shall recken the pce with him accordinge to the pcees that remaine vnto the trumpet pce, and thereafter, it shall be lower set.

Yf he that sanctified the felde will redeeme it agayne, let him put the fyfte parte of the pce that it was set at therunto, and it shall be his, yf he will not, it shall be redeemed no more. But when the felde goeth out in the pce of Jubyle, it shall be holy vnto the Lord: euen as a thinge dedicated, and it shall be the pceastes possession.

Yf a man sanctifie vnto the Lord a felde, which he hath boughte and is not of his enheritance, then the pceast shall reken with hym what it is worthe vnto the pce of Jubyle, and he shall geue the pce that it is set at the same daye, and it shall be holy vnto the Lord. But in the yere of Jubyle, the felde shall retorne vnto him of whome he boughte it, whose enheritance of lande it was.

And all settinge shall be accordinge to the holy sytle. One sytle maketh. xx. Geras.

But the first borne of the beastes that pertaine vnto the Lord, maye no man sanctifye: whether it be ox or shepe, for they are the Lordes alrcdy. Yf it be an vncleane beaste, then let him redeeme it as it is set at, and geue the fyfte parte more thereto. Yf it be not redeemed then let it be solde as it is rated.

Notwithstandinge no dedicated thinge of a man dedicated vnto the Lord, of all his good, whether it be man or beest or lande of his enheritance, shall be solde or redeemed: for all dedicate thinges are moore holy vnto the Lord. No dedicate thinge therefore that is dedicate of man, may be redeemed, but must needs dye.

All these tythes of the lande, whether it be of the come of the felde or frute of the trees, shall be holy vnto the Lord. Yf any man will redeeme ought of his tythes, let him adde the fyfte parte more thereto. And the tythes of oxen and shepe and of all that goeth vnder the herdmans keepinge, shall be holy tythes vnto the Lord. When shall not take yf it be good or bad nor shall chaunge it. Yf any man chaunge it then both it and that it was chaunged with all, shall be holy and may not be redeemed.

These are the commandementes which the Lord gaue Moses in chargeto geue vnto the children of Israel in mount Synai.

Nephtali lxxij. thousand and fye hundred.

These

These are the nombres whiche Moyses and Aaron numbred with the twelue pynces of Israel: of euery house of their fathers a man.
And all the nombres of the chyldren of Israel, in the houses of theyr fathers, frome twenty yere and above, what so euer was apte for the warre in Israel, bytwene vnto the somme of six hundred and thye thousand, fye hundred and fiftie. But the Leuites in the tribe of theyr fathers, were not numbred amonge them.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses, sayinge:
onlye se thou numbre not the tribe of Leui, ne take the somme of them amonge the chyldren of Israel. But thou shalt appoynte the Leuites vnto the habitation of witness, and to all the garnishment therof, and vnto all that longeth thereto. For they shall beate the tabernacle, and all the ordinaunce therof, and they shall minstre it, and shall pryche theyr sences rounde aboute it. And when the tabernacle goeth to the, the Leuites shall take it downe: and when the tabernacle is pryched, they shall set it up: for ye any straunger come nere, he shall dye. And the chyldren of Israel shall pryche theyr sences euery man in his owne compaigne, and euery man by his owne standard theyr out all theyr howses. But the Le-uites shall pryche rounde aboute the habitation of witness, that there shal no wrauth vpon the congregation of the chyldre of Israel, and the Leuites shall warpe vpon the habitation of witness. And the chyldren of Israel shal acordege to all that the Lord commaunded Moyses.

The order of the prychege of the sences rounde about the tabernacle of witness. The headres and theyr lordes of the kyndes of Israel are named.

II.

And the Lord spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, sayinge: The chyldren of Israel shall pryche: euery man by his owne standerd, with the armes of his fathers houses, awaye frome the presence of the tabernacle of witness.

On the east syde toward the ryngge of the sonne, shall they of the standerd of the house of Iuda pryche with theyr armyes: And Nahes-son the sonne of Aminadab shall be captayne ouer the sonnes of Iuda. And his howse and the nombre of them thye score and fourtene thousand, and six hundred. And nexte vnto hym, shall the tribe of Issachar pryche, and Nathanael the sonne of Zuar, captayne ouer the chyldren of Issachar, his howse and the nombre of them. lxxij. thousand and four hundred.

And then the tribe of Zabulon: with Eliab
the sonne of Helon, captayne ouer the chyldre of Zabulon, and his howse in the nombre of them lxxij. thousand, and four hundred. So that all they that pryche vnto the howse of Iuda, are an hundred thousand. lxxvi. thousand and four hundred in theyr compaignes:
and these shall go in the forefront, when they journey.

And on the southe syde, the standerd of the house of Ruben shall lye with theyr companyes, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ruben, Eliazar the sonne of Sedeur, and his howse and the nombre of them. xlvj. thousand, and fye hundred.

And last by hym shall the tribe of Simcon pryche, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Simcon, Salumiel the sonne of Surt Sabai and his howse, and the nombre of them
lxv. thousand, and thye hundred. And fytte of Gad also: And the captayne ouer the son-nes of Gad, Elizaphan the sonne of Deguel and his howse, and the nombre of them. xlv. thousand, fye hundred, and fiftie. So that all the nombre that appertayne vnto the house of Ruben, are an hundred and li. thousande, four hundred and fiftie, with theyr compaignes, and they shall be the seconde in the journey.

And the tabernacle of witness with the host of the Leuites, shall go in the myddes of the hostes: as they lye in theyr tentes, eue so shal they pced in the journey, euery man in his quarter about the standerdes.

On the west syde, the standerd and the howse of Ephraim shall lye with theyr compaignes.
And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ephraim, Elisama the sonne of Amihud: and his howse, and the nombre of them forty thousand and fye hundred.

And last by hym the tribe of Manasse, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Manasse, Samalcel the sonne of Pedajur and his howse, and the nombre of them were. xxxij. thousand and two hundred. And the tribe of Ben Jamin also: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Beniamin, Abidan the sonne of Sedoni, and his howse, and the nombre of them. lxxv.
thousand, and four hundred. All the nombre that belouged vnto the howse of Ephraim, were an hundred thousand, eight thousand and an hundred in theyr howses: and they shal be the thyrde in the journey.

And the standerd and the howse of Dan shal lye on the north syde with theyr compaignes:
and the captayne ouer the chyldren of Dan, Ahiezzer the sonne of Amini Sadai: and his howse, and the nombre of them thye score and two thousand and seuen hundred. And laste by hym shall the tribe of Aser pryche: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Aser, Pagiel the sonne of Ocran: and his howse, and the nombre of them. lxij. thousand and fye hundred. And the tribe of Nephtali also, and the captayne ouer the chyldren of Nephtali: Ahira the sonne of Enan: and his howse, and the nombre of them. lxxij. thousand and four hundred. So that the hole nombre of all that pryched vnto the howse of Dan, was an hundred. lxxij. thousand and fye hundred. And they shal be the last in that journey with their standerdes.

These are the summes of the chyldren of Israel in the houses of theyr fathers: euen all the nombres of the hostes with theyr com-paignes six hundred thousand thye thousand fye

fyue hundred and fiftye. And yet the Levites were not nombred amonge the chyldren of Israel as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the chyldren of Israel byd accorde to all that the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and pitched with their standerdes, and they journeyed every man in his kynred, and in the householde of his father.

The levites are not nombred to go to battell, but to worshippe to the holy place of sanctuary. They muste all o pitch theyr tentes next to the habitation.

CAPL

III.

These are the generacions of Aaron and Moyses, when the Lorde spake unto Moyses in mount Sinai. And these are the names of the sonnes of Aaron: Nadab the eldest sonne, and Abihu, Eleazar and Jehamar. These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron, whiche were pyestes appointed, and they have dyed before the Lorde, as they brought strange fyre before the Lorde in the wyldernesse of Sinai, and had no chyldren. And Eleazar and Jehamar ministered in the sight of Aaron their father.

*Leuit. x. a.
Num. xvi. 5.

And the Lorde spake unto Moyses, sayinge: bypunge the tybe of Levi, and set them before Aaron the pyeste, and let them serve hym and wayte upon hym, and upon all the multitude before the tabernacle of wytnesse, to do the service of the habitation. And they shal wayte upon all the garnishment of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and upon the chyldren of Israel, to do the service of the habitation. And thou shalt give the Levites unto Aaron and his sonnes, for they are given unto hym of the chyldren of Israel. And thou shalt appoint Aaron and his sonnes to wayte on their pyestes office: and the stranger that cometh nye shall dye for it.

And the Lorde spake unto Moyses, sayinge: Beholde * I have taken the Levites of the chyldren of Israel for all the fyrboorne that openeth the matre amonge the chyldren of Israel, so that the Levites shall be myne: because all the fyrboorne are myne: for the same daye that I smote all the fyrboorne in the lande of Egypte, I halowed unto me all the fyrboorne in Israel, bothe man and beest, and myne they shall be: for I am the Lorde.

*Exod. xiii. a.
Rume. viii. c.

And the Lorde spake unto Moyses in the wyldernesse of Sinai, sayinge: Nombze the chyldren of Levi in the houses of their fathers and kynredes, all that are males from a moneth olde and above. And Moyses nombred them at the worde of the Lorde, as he was commaunded. And these are the names of the chyldren of Levi: Gerson, Kahath, and Merari. And these are the names of the chyldren of Gerson in their kynredes: Libni and Sermer. And the sonnes of Kahath in their kynredes were: Amram, Jechiar, Hebron and Oziel. And the sonnes of Merari in their kynredes were: Maheli and Musi. These are the kynredes of Levi in the houses of their fathers.

And of Gerson came the kynred of the Libnites and the Sermeres, whiche are the kynredes of the Sermerites. And the sum of them (when all the males were told) from a moneth olde and above were seven thousand and fyue hundred. And the kynredes of the Sermerites pitched behynde the habitation westward. And the captayne of the moost auncient house amonge the Sermerites, was Eliafah the son of Lael.

And the office of the chyldren of Gerson in the tabernacle of wytnesse was to kepe the habitation, and the tent with the covering therof, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the hangynge of the court, and the curtayne of the doze of the court: whiche court wente rounde aboute the dwelling, and the aulter, and the cordes that perteyned unto all the service therof.

And of Kahath came the kynred of the Amramites and the Jecherites, and of the Ozielites. And these are the kynredes of the Kahathites. And the nombze of all the males from a moneth olde and above, was eght thousande, and fyve hundred: whiche wayted on the holy place.

And the kynred of the chyldren of Kahath pitched on the southsyde of the dwelling. And the captayne in the moost auncient house of the kynredes of the Kahathites, was Eliafah the sonne of Oziel, and theyr office was to kepe the arke, the table, the candelsycke, and the aulter, and the holy vessels to minister with, and the vayle with all that served thereto. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the pyeste, was captayne over all the Levites, and hadde the oversight of them that wayted upon the holpe tynges.

And of Merari came the kynredes of the Mahelites, and of the Musites: and these are the kynredes of the Merarites. And the nombze of them (when all the males from a moneth olde and above was tolde) bytweyn to fyve thousande, and two hundred. And the captayne of the moost auncient house amonge the kynredes of the Merarites, was Zuriel the sonne of Abihail whiche pitched on the north syde of the dwelling.

And the office of the sonnes of Merari was to kepe the bozdes of the dwelling, and the barres, pylers with the sockettes therof, and all the instrumentes therof, and all that served thereto: and the pylers of the court rounde aboute, and theyr sockettes with their pynges and cordes. But on the forefront of the habitation, and before the tabernacle of wytnesse eastward, shal Moyses & Aaron and his sonnes pitch, and wayte on the sanctuary in the sight of the chyldren of Israel. And the stranger that cometh nye, shall dye for it. And the hole summe of the Levites whiche Moyses and Aaron nombred, at the commaundement of the Lorde to doo cut their kynredes, even of all the males of a moneth olde and above, was

xxx. thousande.

And the Lorde sayd unto Moyses: Nombze all the first boorne that are males amonge the chyldren of Israel, frome a moneth olde and above, and take the nombze of theyr names. And thou shalt appoynte the Levites to me the Lorde, for all the firstboorne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and the cattell of the Levites for the firstboorne of the chyldren of Israel. And Moyses nombred as the Lorde commaunded hym all the firstboorne of the chyldren of Israel. And all the firstboorne males in the summe of names, frome a moneth olde and above, were nombred two and twenty thousande, two hundred, and thye scoze and thye tene.

And the Lorde spake unto Moyses, sayinge: Take the Levites for all the firstboorne of the chyldren of Israel, and the cattell of the Levites for theyr cattell: and the Levites shall be myne whiche am the Lorde. And for the redempcyon of the two hundred and thye scoze and thye tene, whiche are moost then the Levites in the firstboorne of the chyldren of Israel, take .v. cycles of every pecce, after * the cycle of the holy place, twentye geras the scile. And give the money wherewith the olde nombze of them is redemed, unto Aaron and his sonnes.

And Moyses toke the redempcyon money of the overplus that were moost then the Levites, amonge the firstboorne of the chyldren of Israel, and it came to a thousande, thye hundred, and thye scoze and fyve cycles, of the holy cycle. And he gaue that redempcyon money unto Aaron & his sonnes at the worde of the Lorde, lyke as the Lorde commaunded Moyses.

The offices of the Levites, every one after the sorte that he came of.

CAPL

IIII.

And the Lorde spake unto Moyses and Aaron, and had them take the summe of the chyldren of Kahath for the sonnes of Levi in their kynredes and houses of their fathers frome thyrtye yere and above, untill fyfetye all that were hable to warre to do the worke in the tabernacle of wytnesse. This shall be the office of the chyldren of Kahath in the tabernacle of wytnesse whiche is moost holy. And when the holte remoueth, Aaron and his sonnes shal come and take downe the vayle, and cover the arke of wytnesse therewith, and shal put thereon a covering of taxus skynnes, and shal spread a clothe that is all together of Jacincte above all, and put the flaves therof in. And upon the shewe table they shal spread above a clothe of Jacincte, and put thereon the dysches, spones, flat peces, and pottes to poure with, and the dayly bread shal be thereon: and they shal spread upon them a covering of purple, and cover the same with a covering of taxus skynnes, and put the flaves therof in.

And they shal take a clothe of Jacincte and cover the candelsycke of lyghte, and her lampes and her incenses, and fyve pannes, and all her oyle vessels whiche they occupy about it, and shal put upon her and on all her instrumentes, a covering of taxus skynnes, and put it upon flaves. And upon the golden aulter they shal spread a clothe of Jacincte, and put on her flaves.

And they shal take all the thynges whiche they occupy to minstre within the holy place, and put a clothe of Jacincte upon them and cover them with a covering of taxus skynnes, and put them on flaves. And they shal take awaye the ashes out of the aulter, and spread a scarlet clothe thereon: and put aboute it, the fyve pannes, the flasse hokes, the howels, the basons, and all that belongeth unto the aulter, and they shal spread upon it a covering of taxus skynnes, and put on the flaves of it.

And when Aaron and his sonnes have made an ende of covering the sanctuary and all the thynges of the sanctuary, agaynste that the holte remoueth, then the sonnes of Kahath shal come in to beate, and so lette them not touch the sanctuary lest they dye. And this is the charge of the sonnes of Kahath in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the pyeste, shal have the charge to prepare oyle for the lyghtes and shewe cens, and the dayly meat offering and the anoynting oyle, and the oversight of all the dwelling and of all that therein is, bothe over the sanctuary and of all that pertayneth thereto.

And the Lorde spake to Moyses and Aaron, sayinge: Destroye not the tybe of the kynredes of the Kahathites, frome amonge the Levites. But thus doo unto them that they maye lyve and not dye, when they goo unto the moost holy place. Aaron and his sonnes shal go in and put them every man unto his service and unto his burthen. But lette them not go in, to se when they cover the sanctuary, lest they dye.

And the Lorde spake to Moyses, sayinge: Take the summe of the chyldren of Gerson, in the houses of their fathers and in their kynredes: frome thyrtye yere and above, untill fyfetye all that are hable to go forth in warre, to do service in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And this is the service of the kynred of the Gersonites, to serve and to beate. They shal beate the curtaynes of the tabernacle, and the robe of the tabernacle of wytnesse and his covering, and the covering of taxus skynnes that is on hygh above upon it, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse: and the hangynge of the court, and the hangynge of the gate of the court that is rounde about the dwelling and the aulter, and the cordes of them, and all the instrumentes that serve unto them, and all that is made for them. And at the mouth of Aaron and his sonnes, shal all the service of the chyldren of the Gersonites be doone, in all their charges, and in all their service, and ye shal appoynte them unto all their charges, that they shal wayte upon. And this is the service of the kynred of the chyldren of the Gersonites in the tabernacle of wytnesse.

and they shall be under the hande of Jethamar the sonne of Aaron the priest.

And thou shalt number the sonnes of Merari in theyr kyndredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, from theyr yeres and aboue vnto fyfte: euen all that is able to go forth in warre, to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And this is the charge that they muste waite vpon in all that they muste see in the tabernacle of wytnesse: the barres, pylers and sockettes therof, and the pylers of the court rounde aboute, and theyr sockettes, pyntes, and cordes, with all that pertaineth and serueth vnto them.

And by name ye shall reken the thynges that they muste waite vpon to beate. This is the seruyce of the kyndredes of the sonnes of Merari in all theyr seruyces in the tabernacle of wytnesse vnder the hande of Jethamar the sonne of Aaron the priest.

And Moses and Aaron and the pyntes of the multitude nombred the sonnes of the Aharathites in theyr kyndredes and houses of theyr fathers from theyr yeres and aboue vnto fyfte, all that were able to go forth in the hoste, and to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them in theyr kyndredes, were two thousande, seven hundred, and fyfte. These are the nombres of the kyndredes of the Aharathites, of all that dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche the wyrtes and Aaron dyd nombre at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

And the sonnes of Gerson were nombred in theyr kyndredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, from theyr yeres vnto fyfte, all that were able to go forth in the hoste to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them in theyr kyndredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, was two thousande, fyve hundred, and thyrtye. This is the nombre of the kyndredes of the sonnes of Gerson, of all that dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche Moses and Aaron dyd nombre at the commaundement of the Lorde.

And the kyndredes of the sonnes of Merari were nombred in theyr kyndredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, from theyr yeres vnto fyfte, all that were able to go forth with the hoste, to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them was in theyr kyndredes thre thousande and two hundred. This is the nombre of the kyndredes of the sonnes of Merari, whiche Moses and Aaron nombred at the commaundement of the Lorde, by the hande of Moses.

The hole summe whiche Moses, Aaron and the lordes of Israel nombred amonge the Leuytes in theyr kyndredes and householdes of theyr fathers, from theyr yeres vnto fyfte, euer man to do his offyce and seruyce, and to beare his burthen in the tabernacle of wytnesse was eynghth thousande, fyue hundred and foure score whiche they nombred at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses, euer man vnto his seruyce and burthen: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Who they be that oughte to be cast out of the hoste. The knowyngge of synne. The cleynge of synne done of ignorance. The lawe of the fyfte frutes, and of gelouyse.

CAP. V.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: I commaunde the chyldren of Israel they put forth of the hoste, all lepers, and all that haue yllnes, and all that are oyled vpon the head, whether they be males or females ye shall put them out of the hoste, that they be not vnto the tentes amonge which I dwell. And the chyldren of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoste, as the Lorde commaunded Moses to do the chyldren of Israel.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: whether it be man or woman, when they haue spened anye maner synne whiche a man doth wherewith a man trespasseth agaynst the Lorde: so that the soule hath doone amylle: then they knowe lege they synne whiche they haue done, and reioyce agayne the lute that they haue done in the hoste, and put the fyfte parte of it more thereto, and geue it him whom he hath trespassed agaynst. But ye be that maketh the amende, he haue no man to doo it to, then the amende that is made shall be the Lordes, and the priestes, besyde the ramme of the attonement offeringe, wherewith he maketh attonement for him selfe. And all the fyfte frutes whiche the chyldren of Israel bynge vnto the priest, shall be the priestes, and euer mannes halowed thynges shall be his owne, but what so euer any man geueth the priest, it shall be the priestes.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: Speake to the chyldren of Israel, and seme them. Ye any mannes wyfe goo a lyde and trespass agaynst hym, so that an othe may be with her chelye and the thyng be dyd from the eyes of her husbunde and is not come to lychte that she is defyled: for there is no wytnesse agaynst her: in as moche as she was not taken with the maner, and the spyte of gelouyse cometh vpon her, and he is gelouse ouer his wyfe, and he is defyled, or happely the spyte of gelouyse cometh vpon hym, and he is gelouse ouer his wyfe, and he is defyled. Then let her husbunde bynge her vnto the priest, and bynge an offeringe for her: the tynce parte of an Ephah of barley meele, but he shall poure none oyle thereto, nor put frankensce theron: for it is an offeringe of gelouyse, and an offeringe that maketh remembrance of synne.

And let the priest bynge her and sette her before the Lorde, and let him take holy water in an earthe vessel and of the dust that is in the flour of the habitation, and put it in to the water. And the priest shall see the wyfe before the Lorde and vncouer her heade, and put the memoriall of the offeringe in her handes to hye whiche is the gelouyse offeringe, and the priest shall haue bitter and cuning water in his hand and he shall couure her, and shall sape vnto her. Ye no man hath lyen with the, neyther hath gone a lyde and defyled thy selfe behynde thy husbunde, then haue thou no harme of this bitter cuning water.

But ye thou hast gone a lyde behynde thyne husbunde, and art defyled, and some othe may hath lyen with the besyde thyne husbunde (and let the priest couure her with the couuration of the curse, and sape vnto her) the Lorde make the a curse and a couuration amonge the people: so that the Lorde make thy thyng rotte, and thy hely swell, and this bitter cuning water goe in to the bowels of the, that thy hely swell, and thy thyng rotte, and the wyfe shall sape: Amen Amen.

And the priest shall wyte this curse in a byll and walthe it oute in the bitter water. And when the cuning water is in her, then lette the priest take the gelouyse offeringe out of the wyres hande, and waue it before the Lorde, and bynge it vnto the altare: and he shall take an handfull of the memoriall offeringe, and burne it vpon the altare, and then make her drynke the water, and when he hath made her drynke the water: Ye she be defyled, and haue trespassed agaynst her husbunde, then shall the cuning water goe in to her and be so bitter that her hely shall swell, and her thyng shall rotte, and she shall be a curse amonge the people: That ye she be not defyled but is cleane, then she shall haue no harme, but that she may conceiue.

This is the lawe of gelouyse, when a wyfe goeth a lyde behynde her husbunde and is defyled, or when the spyte of gelouyse cometh vpon a man, so that he is gelouse ouer his wyfe, then he shall bynge her before the Lorde, and the priest shall minstre all this lawe vnto her, and the man shall be guiltlesse, and the wyfe shall beare her synne.

The lawe of the Nazarres that toke vpon them abstinence. The maner of blessinge the people.

CAP. VI.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and sape vnto them: when a man or woman appoynteth to vowe a vowe of abstinence for to absteyne vnto the Lorde, he shall absteyne from wyne and stronge drynke, and shall bynke no bynnyngre of wyne or of strong drynke, nor shall bynke what so euer is pressed out of grapes: and shall eate no flesch gras, neyther yet dryed as longe as his abstinence endureth. And euer he shall eate nothing that is made of the vyne tree, not so moche as the kynde of the huske of the grape.

And as long as the vowe of his abstinence endureth, these shall no calure nor weetes come vpon his flesch, vntill his dayes be runne out whiche he fasteth vnto the Lorde, and he shall be holpe, and shall let the lockes of his heere growe. As longe as he absteyneth vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no deed bodie he shall not make hym selfe vnclene at the deathe of his father, mother, brother or sister: for the abstinence of his God is vpon his heed. And therfore as longe as his abstinence lasteth, he shall be holpe vnto the Lorde.

And if it fortune that any man by chaunce be sodenly before him, and defile the heed of his abstinence, euen muste he waue his heed the daye of his cleynge: euen the seuen daye he shall waue it. And the eynghth daye he shall bynge two turtles, or two yonge pyngons to the priest, vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the priest shall offere thone for a synnofferinge and thotuer for a burnt offeringe, and make attonement for hym in that he synned vpon the heed, and shall also haue his heed the same daye, and shall absteyne vnto the Lorde the tyme of his abstinence, and shall bynge a lambe of a yere old for a trespass offeringe: but the dayes that were before are loste, because his abstinence was defiled.

This is the lawe of the absteyner, when the tyme of his abstinence is runne oute, he shall be broughte vnto the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bynge his offeringe vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without spotte for a burnt offeringe and a she lambe of a yere olde without blemyshe for a synnofferinge, a ramme without blemyshe also for a trespass offeringe, and a basket of swete breed of fyne flour mingled with oyle and waers of swete breed anoynted with oyle with meat offeringes and drynkofferinges that be longe therto.

And the priest shall bynge him before the Lorde and offere his synnofferinge and his burnt offeringe, and shall offere that ramme for a trespass offeringe vnto the Lorde with a basket of swete breed, and the priest shall offere also his meat offeringe and his drynkofferinge. And the absteyner shall waue his heed in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall take the heere of his sobe heed and put it in that fyre whiche is vnder the peacock offeringe.

Then the priest shall take the sodden shoulde, of the ramme and one swete waite take oute of the basket, and one swete waite also, and put them in the hande of the absteyner after he hath waue his abstinence of, and the priest shall waue them vnto the Lorde, whiche offeringe shall be holy vnto the priest, with the wauchied and heue shoulde: e then the absteyner may drynke wyne.

This is the lawe of the Nazarre whiche hath vowed his abstinence vnto the Lorde for his abstinence, besydes that his hande can gette. And accordyng to the vowe whiche he vowed, so he muste do in the lawe of his abstinence.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: Speake to Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: of this wyse ye shall blesse the chyldren of Israel sayinge vnto them.

The Lorde blesse the and kepe the.

The

and let them wash their clothes, and then they shall be cleane. And let them take a bullock and his meat offering fine flour mingled with oyle: and an other bullocke salt thou take to be a synofferynge.

Then bynge the Leuytes before the tabernacle of witness, and gather the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel together. And bynge the Leuytes before the Lozde, and let the chyldren of Israel put their handes upon the Leuytes. And lette Aaron heue the Leuytes before the Lozde for an heue offeringe gyuen of the chyldren of Israel, and then let them be appoynted to waite vpon the seruite of the Lozde.

And let the Leuytes put their handes vpon the herdes of the bullockes, and then offer the: the one for a synofferynge, and the other for a burnt offeringe before the Lozde, to make attonement to the Leuytes. And make the Leuytes stande before Aaron and his sonnes, and heue them to be an heue offeringe vnto the Lozde. And thou shalt separat the Leuytes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, that they be myne: and after that let them goo and doo the scrupce of the tabernacle of witness.

Num. iiii. Exod. xlii. Clense them, and bawm them, for they are gyuen me frome amonge the chyldren of Israel for I haue taken them vnto me for all the firstborne that open the matrice amonge the chyldren of Israel.

Num. iiii. For all the firstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel are myne bothe man and beaue, because the same tyme that I smote the first borne in the lande of Egypt, I sanctified them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Leuytes for all the firstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and haue gyuen them vnto Aaron and his sonnes for the of the chyldren of Israel, to doo the scrupce of the tabernacle of witness, and to make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel, that there be no plage amonge the chyldren of Israel, if they come nye vnto the sanctuary.

Num. iiii. And Moses and Aaron and all the congregation of the chyldren of Israel byd vnto the Lozde accordynge vnto all that the Lozde commaunded Moses. And the Leuytes censed them selues, and washed their clothes. And Aaron offered them before the Lozde, and make an attonement for them to clense them. And after that, they went in to doo their scrupce in the tabernacle of witness, before Aaron and his sonnes. And accordynge as the Lozde had commaunded Moses concerning the Leuytes, euen so they byd vnto them.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: This shall be the maner of the Leuytes: frome. xxi. yere vnto the place of the tabernacle of witness, and at fifty they shall cease waityng vpon the scrupce of therof, and shall labour no more, but shall minstre vnto the chyldren in the tabernacle of witness, and there waite but shall do no more scrupce. And se thou doo after this maner vnto the Leuytes, in their waityng tymes.

The offer of passouer offeringe of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude couerunge the tabernacle leade the hoste.

CAP. I.

IX.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first moneth of the seconde yere after they were come out of the lande of Egypt, sayinge: let the chyldren of Israel offer Passouer in his season, euen the xiiij. daye of this moneth at euen, they shall kepe it in his season, accordynge to the ordinaunces and maners therof. And Moses had the chyldren of Israel that they shoulde offer Passouer, and they offered Passouer the xiiij. daye of the first moneth at euen in the wilderness of Sinai: and byd accordynge to all that the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And it chaunced that certayne men which were defiled with a deed cosse, so that they myghte not offer Passouer the same daye, came before Moses and Aaron the same tyme and sayde: We are defiled vpon a deed cosse, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offer an offeringe vnto the Lozde in the due season, amonge the chyldren of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto them: tarpe, that I maye heare what the Lozde will commaunde you. And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye. If any man amonge you or poure chyldren after you, be vncleane by the reason of a cosse, or is in the waie scere of, then let hym offer Passouer vnto the Lozde, the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth at euen, and cate it with swete breede and four herbes, and let them leaue none of it vnto the morrowe, nor breake any bone of it. And accordynge to all the ordinaunce of the Passouer lette them offer it.

But if a man be cleane and not lette in a journey, and yet was negligent to offer Passouer: the same shoulde shall perspe frome his people, because he broughte not an offeringe vnto the Lozde in his due season: and he shall heare his synne. And when a stranger dwelth amonge you, and will offer Passouer vnto the Lozde, accordynge to the ordinaunce of Passouer and maner therof shall he offer it. And ye shall haue one lawe both for the straunger, and for hym that was borne at home in the lande.

And the same daye that the habitation was reared vp, a cloude couered it an hye vpon the tabernacle of witness: and at euen there was vpon the habitation, as it were the lyght of fyre vntill the morrowe. And so it was alwaye, that the cloude couered it by daye and the lyght of fyre by night. And when the cloude was taken vp frome the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israel journeyed: and where the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Israel pitched their tentes. At the mouth of the Lozde the chyldren of Israel journeyed, and

and at the mouth of the Lozde they pitched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitation, they laye still, and when the cloude tapered off vpon the habitation longe tyme, the chyldren of Israel waityed vpon the Lozde and journeyed not.

If it chaunced that the cloude abode anye space of tyme vpon the habitation, then they kepte their tentes at the mouth of the Lozde: and they journeyed also at the commaundment of the Lozde. And it happened that the cloude was vpon the habitation some tyme vnto morninge, and was taken vp in that morninge, then they journeyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyght that the cloude was taken vp, they journeyed. But when the cloude tapered two dayes, or a moneth, or a longe season vpon the habitation, as longe as it tapered thereon, the chyldren of Israel kepte their tentes, and journeyed not. And as soone as the cloude was taken vp they journeyed. At the mouth of the Lozde they rested, and at the commaundment of the Lozde they journeyed. And thus they kepte the watche of the Lozde, at the commaundment of the Lozde by the hande of Moses.

The Trompettes of syluer, and the vse therof. The Israelites departe frome Sinai. The captaynes of the hoste are nombred. Hobab recureth to go with Moses.

CAP. I.

X.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Make the two trompettes of beaten syluer, that thou mayst vse them to call the company together, and when the host shall iourney. When they blowe with them, all the company shall resorte to the vnto the doore of the tabernacle of witness. If but one trompett blowe onely, then the pynces which are herdes ouer thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. And when ye trompe the first tyme, the hostes that lye on the east partes shall go forwarde.

And when ye trompe the seconde tyme, then the hostes that lye on the south syde shall take their iourney: for they shall trompe when they take their iourneys. And in gatheringe the congregation together, ye shall blowe and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron the pynces shall blowe the trompettes, and shall haue them, and it shall be a lawe vnto you for euer, and amonge poure chyldren after you.

And when ye shall goo to warre in poure lande agaynst poure enemyes that beere you ye shall trompe with the trompettes, and ye shall be remembered before the Lozde your god and saved frome poure enemyes. Also when ye be in poure feild dayes, and in the first dayes of poure monethes, ye shall blowe the trompettes ouer your burnt sacrifices & peag-offerynges, that it may be a remembraunce of you before poure God. I am the Lozde your God.

And it came to passe the twentye daye of the seconde moneth in the seconde yere that the cloude was take vp from the tabernacle of witness. And the chyldren of Israel took their iourney out of the wilderness of Sinai, and the cloude rested in the wilderness of Pharan. And they firste took their iourney at the mouth of the Lozde by the hande of Moses: euen the standarde of the hoste of Iuda remoued with their armyes, whose captayne was Phasalon sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Iachar, was Nathanael the sonne of Zuar. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Zabulon was Eliahu the sonne of Helon. And the habitation was taken downe: and the sonnes of Ozeron and Merari went forth bearyng the tabernacle.

Then the standarde of the hoste of Ruben went forth with their armyes, whose captayne was Elizur the sonne of Sedcur. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Symeon: was Samucl the sonne of Surai Sadaai. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Gad: was Eliasaph the sonne of Deuel. Then the Leuytes went forwarde and bare the holy thynges, and the other byd set vp the habitation agaynst their commynge.

Then the standarde of the hoste of the chyldren of Ephraim went forth with their armyes whose captayne was Elisama the sonne of Amiad. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Gamaliel the sonne of Pedasur. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the sonnes of Beniamin, was Abidan the sonne of Geron.

And hyndermoost of all the hoste, came the standarde of the hoste of the chyldren of Dan with their armyes whose captayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Sadaai. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Aser was Pagiel the sonne of Ochyian. And ouer the hoste of the tribe of the chyldren of Nephtali, was Ahira the sonne of Enan: In this maner were the iourneys of the chyldren of Israel with their armyes when they remoued.

And Moses sayd vnto Hobab the sonne of Raguel the Midianyte, Moses father in lawe: We goo vnto the place of which the Lozde sayde, I will geue it you. Goo with vs, and we will do the good: for the Lozde hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he sayd vnto hym: I will not, but will go to myne owne lande, and to my kyned. And Moses sayde: oh hays, leaue vs not, for thou knowest where is best for vs to pitch in the wilderness, and thou shalt be our guyde. And if thou goo with vs, loke what goodnesse the Lozde sheweth vpon vs, the same we will shewe vpon the.

And they departed frome the mounte of the Lozde thre dayes iourney, and the arke of the testament of the Lozde went before them in the thre dayes iourney, to serche out a resting place for them. And the cloude of the Lozde was ouer them by day when they went forth of the tentes.

And when the Arke wente forth, Moses sayde larde, kysse by Lorde, and let thynne enemyes be scattered, and let them that hate the, flee before the. And when the arke rested, he sayd: retorne (Lorde) unto the manye thousandes of Israel.

The people murmured and murmured with fire. They despise fleshe. They loathe Manna. The murmurynge and weepingynge sayde of Moses. The Lorde bypsethe the burden of Moses to seueren of the angyntes, and they prophesye. Eldad and Medad doo also prophesye in the holle. It rayneth quayles. The fleshe rauens are purged.

CAPL.

XI.

And the people complained, and it displeased the eares of the Lorde. And when the Lorde herd it, he was wroth, and the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them, and consumed the uttermost of the holle. And the people cryed vnto Moses, and he made sue vnto the Lorde, and the fire quenched. And they called the name of the place Thabarab, because the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them.

And the common sorte of people that was amonge them fell a lusinge. And the chyldren of Israel also wente to, and wepte and sayde: who shall gyue vs fleshe to eate? we remembre the fleshe whiche we wolde eate in Egypte for noughte, and of the Cucumbers and melons, lokes, onyons, and garlyke. But now ouer soules are dyed amaye, for our eyes loke on nothyng els, saue vpon Manna.

The Manna was as it hadde ben Coriander seed, and in appaunce lyke Bedellion. And the people meate aboute and gathered it, and grounde it in mylles, or beat it in morters and baked it in pannes, and made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an oyle cake. And when the dew fell aboute the holle in the nyght, the Manna fell therewith.

And when Moses herde the people wepe in thair holdes, euer man in the doore of his tente, then the wretche of the Lorde wared hote exceedingly: and it grieved Moses also. And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: wherefore dealest thou so cruelly with thy seruaunt? wherefore doo I not fynde fauour in thy syghte, synens thou puttest the wyghte of this people vpon me? Haue I conceived all this people? or haue I begot them, that thou shouldest saye vnto me, carrie them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckynge child) vnto the lande whiche thou swarest vnto their fathers? where shouldest thou haue fleshe to gyue vnto all this people? for they wepe vnto me, sayinge: gyue vs fleshe that we may eate. I am not hable to beare all this people alone, for it is heuie for me. Wherefore pfe thou deale thus with me, heyl me. I praye the, pf I haue founde fauour in thy syghte, and let me not se my wyghte chedne.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: gather vnto me thre scoze and ten of the elders of Israel, whiche thou knowest that they are the elders of the people, and officers ouer them. & bynge them vnto the tabernacle of tynelle, and let them stande there with the. And I wil come downe and talke with the there, & take of the sperte which is vpon the, and put vpon the and vpon them, and they shall beare with the in the burthen of the people, and so shalt thou not beare alone.

And saye vnto the people: halow your selues agayn to morow, that ye may eate fleshe, for ye haue whyned in the eares of the Lorde sayinge: who shall gyue vs fleshe to eate, for we were happy whil we were in Egypt: therefoze the Lorde wyll gyue you fleshe, and ye shall eate. Ye shall not eate one daye onely, either two or thre dayes, either ten or twente dayes: but euen a moneth longe, and vntill it come out at the nostrils of you, that ye be redde to prebake: because ye haue caste that Lorde asyde, whiche is amonge you, and haue wepte before hym, sayinge: why came we out of Egypt.

And Moses sayde: fire hundred thousande fooles men are there of the people, amonge whiche I am. And thou hast sayd: I wil gyue them fleshe, and they shall eate a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the oren be slayne for them to fynde them? Orther shall all the fowle of the see be gathered together to serue them? And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Is the Lorde hande wared wote? Thou shalt se whether my woide shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

And Moses went forth, and tolde the people the sayinge of the Lorde, and gathered the thre scoze and ten elders of the people, and sette them rounde aboute the tabernacle. And the Lorde came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the sperte that was vpon hym, and put it vpon the thre scoze and ten elders. And as the sperte rested vpon them they prophesied and byd noughte elles. But there remayned two of the men in the holle: the one called Eldad, and the other Medad. And the sperte rested vpon them for they were of them that were wyrtten, but they went not out vnto the tabernacle: and they prophesied in the holle.

And there ran a yonge man and tolde Moses, and sayd: Eldad, and Medad do prophesye in the holle. And Josua the sonne of Nun the seruaunt of Moses whiche he had chosen out answered and sayde: Master Moses, forbyd them. And Moses said vnto him: enuied thou for my sake? wolde God that all the Lorde people coulde prophesye, and that the Lorde wolde put his sperte vpon them. And then both Moses and the elders of Israel, gat them in to the holle.

And there wente forth a turde frome the Lorde and brought quayles from the see, and let them fall about the holle, euen a days iourney rounde aboute on euery syde of the holle. And two cubytes hye vpon the erthe. And the people stode vp at that day and all that nyght, and on the morowe, and gathered quayles. And he that gathered lesse, gathered tenne homers homers full. And they kyled them rounde about the holle.

And while the fleshe was yet bytwene they, teth, afoze it was chewed by, the wretche of the Lorde wared hote vpon the people, and the Lorde steme of the people an exceedingly myghty slaughter. And they called the name of the place Phagorath Bathavah: because they burped the people that lused there.

And the people toke they iourney frome Phagorath Bathavah vnto Pazereth, and abode at Pazereth.

Aaron and Mary grudge agayn Moses. Mary was seychen with the sepe and healed at the pray-er of Moses.

CAPL.

XII.

And Mary and Aaron spake agayn Moses, because of his wyfe of Jude whiche he hadde taken: for he hadde taken to wyfe one of Jude. And they sayde, dorthe the Lorde spake onely thowow Moses? dorthe he not spake also by vs? And the Lorde herde it. But Moses was a very meke man about all the myght of the earth. And the Lorde spake attonce vnto Moses, vnto Aaron, and vnto Mary: Come oute ye thre vnto the tabernacle of wyrtelle: & they came thither.

And the Lorde came downe in the pylles of the cloude, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Mary. And they wente out bothe of them. And he sayde, heare my woide: pf there be a prophete of the Lorde amonge you, I wil shewe my self vnto hym in a vyson, and wyll speake vnto hym in a dreame. But my seruaunt Moses is not so: whiche is saythfull in all myne house vnto hym I speake mowthe to mowthe, and he seeth the syght and the faspion of the Lorde and not thowow ydele. Wherefoze then were ye not affrayde to speake agayn my seruaunt Moses.

And the Lorde was angrie with them, and went his way: and the cloude departed from the tabernacle. And beholde, Mary was become leprous, as it were snowe. And when Aaron toke d vpon her and sawe that she was leprous, he sayde vnto Moses: Oh I beseeche the my Lorde, put not the synne vpon vs whiche we haue folysly committed and synned. Oh, let her not be as one that come deeth forth of the mothers wombe: for halfe her fleshe is eaten awaye.

And Moses cryed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: Oh God, heale her. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Yf her father had spytte in her face, shouldest thou not be ashamed seven dayes, let her shutte forth of the holle seven dayes, and let that let her be receyued in agayne. And Mary was shut out of the holle seven dayes and the people remoued not, tyll she was brought in agayne. And afterwarde, they moved from Pazereth, and pitched in the wilderness of Pharan.

Certaine are sende to searche the lande of Canaan: whiche bynge with them a cluster of grapes for a signe of fructuallite.

CAPL.

XIII.

And the Lorde spake there vnto Moses sayinge: * Sende men oute to searche the lande of Canaan, whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel: of euery tribbe of they fathers a man: and let them all be such as are rulers amonge them. And Moses at the commaundement of the Lorde sent forth of the wilderness of Pharan, luche men as were al heedes among the chyldren of Israel, whose names are these.

In the tribbe of Ruben: Sammus the sonne of Zatur: In the tribbe of Symeon: Naphat the sonne of Noy: In the tribbe of Iuda, Caleph the sonne of Iephune. In the tribbe of Isachar, Igeal the sonne of Joseph. In the tribbe of Ephraim, Hosa the sonne of Nun. In the tribbe of Benjamin, Daltay the sonne of Kaphu. In the tribbe of Zabulon, Gadiel the sonne of Gadi. In the tribbe of Joseph: that was of Manasse, Gadiel the sonne of Suli. In the tribbe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Semai. In the tribbe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michael. In the tribbe of Nephthali, Nadebi the sonne of Naphthali. In the tribbe of Gad, Guel the sonne of Machi: These are the names of the men whiche Moses sent to espye out the lande. And Moses called the name of the sonne of the sonne of Josua.

And Moses sent them forth to espye oute the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you southwarde, and go vp in to the high countrey, and se the lande what maner thinge it is, and the people that dwell therein: whether they be stronge or myghte, fewe or manye and what the land is that they dwell in, whether it be good or bad, & what maner of cities they dwell in, whether in tentes or walled townes, and what maner of lande it is: whether fatte or leane, and whether there be trees therein or not. And be of good courage, and bynge of the frutes of the lande. And it was aboute the tyme that grapes are firste ripe.

And they went by and serched out the lande from the wilderness of Z to vnto Hebron, as men go to Hemath, and thei ascended vnto the south and came vnto Hebron, where Abimam was and Sefai, and Thaimant the sonnes of Enache. Hebron was buyt seven yere before Zoan in Egypt. And they came vnto the riuer of Escol, and they cut downe there a braunche with one cluster of grapes, and bare it vpon a staffe bytwene twayne, and also of the pomegranates, and of the sygges of the place. The ryuer was called Hebel, Escol, because of the cluster of grapes whiche the chyldren of Israel cut downe there.

And they turned backe agayne frome searchinge the lande at fourtye dayes ende. And they wente and came to Moses and Aaron and vnto all the companye of the chyldren of Israel, vnto the wilderness of Pharan, euen unto Cades, and broughte them woide and also unto all the congregacion, and shewed them the frute of the lande. And they tolde him, sayinge: we came unto the lande wher thou sendest vs, and surely it is a lande that floweth with mylke and honye, and here is of the frute of it. Nevertheless the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the cities are walled and exceedinge greafe, and moreover we sawe the chyldren of Enache there.

The Amaleckes dwell in the south countrey, and the Hethytes, Jebusytes and the Amozytes dwell in the mountayns, and the Cananites dwell by the see, and alonge by the coste of Jordan.

And Caleb spyled the murmure of the people agaynst Moyses, sayinge: let vs go by and conquere it, for we be hable to overcome it. But the men that went by with him, said: We be not hable to go by agaynst the people, for they are stronger then we: And they broughte up an euill report of the lande which they had searched vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The lande whiche we haue gone thowme to seeke it out, is a lande that eateth vp the inhabitants therof, and the people that we sawe in it are men of stature. And there we sawe also gyauntes, the chyldren of Enache whiche are of the gyauntes. And we seemed in our sighte as it were gressoppers, and so we byd in theyr sight.

The people be hearing of comyng to the lande promysed, do murmure agaynst God, and wolde haue stoned Caleb and Josue, the searchers of the lande. Amalech hylth the Israelites.

CAPL. XIII.

And all the companie cryed out, and the people wept thowme out that nyght, and all the people of Israel murmured agaynst Moyses and Aaron: sayinge. Wolde God we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, either we wolde we hadde dyed in this wyldernesse. Wherefore hath the Lorde broughte vs vnto this lande to fall vpon the swerde, that both our wyues, and also our chyldren wolde be a praye? is it not better that we returne to Egypte agayne? And they sayd one to another: let vs make a Capitayne, and returne to Egypte agayne.

And Moyses and Aaron hearing this fel on their faces before all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, and Caleb the sonne of Iephone whiche were of them that searched the lande, rent their clothes and spake vnto all the company of the chyldren of Israel, saying. The lande which we walked thowme to seeke it, is a very good lande. If the Lorde haue luf to vs, he will byng vs in to this lande, and geue it vs, which is a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not agaynst the Lorde. Moreouer feare ye not the people of the lande, for euen as bredd, so may we deuoure them. Their wyldernesse is departed from them, and the Lorde is with vs: feare them not therefore.

And all the people baded stone them with stones. But the gloire of the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle of witnesse vnto all the chyldren of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moyses: Howe longe shall this people rayle vpon me, and howe longe will it be ere they beleue me? for all my signes whiche I haue shewed amonges them: I will smyte them with the pestilence and destroye them, and will make of the a greater nation, and a myghtier then they.

And Moyses sayd vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for thou broughtest this people with thy myghte from them. And it will be tolde to the inhabitants of this lande also, for they haue herde iphewyse that thou the Lorde arte amonge this people, and that thou arte sene face to face, and that thy cloud standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by daye tyme in a pyllet of a cloude, and in a pyllet of fire by nyght.

If thou walte kyll all this people, as they were but one man, then the nations whiche haue herde the fame of thy myghte, sayinge: because the Lorde was not hable to byng in this people in to the lande which he swore vnto them, therefore he slew them in the wyldernesse.

So now let the power of my Lorde be great accordyng as thou hast spoken, sayinge: the Lorde is longe ere he be angere, and ful of mercye, and suffereth synne and treypace, and leaueyth no man innocent, and visiteth the iniquity of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen vpon the thyrde and fourth generation, be mercifull I beseeche the therefore vnto the synne of this people, accordyng vnto the great mercye, and accordyng as thou hast forgyuen this people from Egypte, euen vnto this place.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue forgyuen it, accordyng to thy request. But as cruell as I lye, all the earth shall be fylled with my gloire. For of all those men whiche haue sene my gloire, and my myghtes whiche I dyd in Egypte, and in the wyldernesse, and yet haue tempted me now this tenth tyme, I haue not hearkened vnto my voyce, these shall not see the lande whiche I swore vnto theyr fathers: neyther shall any of them that rayled vpon me, see it. But my seruant Caleb: because there is an other maner spiryte with hym, and because he hath folowed me: I will byng in to the lande whiche he hath walked in, and his seed shall conquere it, and also the Amaleckites and Cananites whiche dwell in the lowe countreys. So now turne you and get you in to the wyldernesse: euen the waye towards the red see.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses and Aaron, sayinge: howe longe shall this euill multitude murmure agaynst me? I haue herd the murmures of the chyldren of Israel, which they murmure agaynst me. Tell them that the Lorde saythe: as cruell as I lye, I will doo vnto you euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Your carcasses shall lye in the wyldernesse: neyther shall anye of these nombers whiche were nombred frome twenty yere and aboute of you whiche haue murmured agaynst me come into the lande ouer which I lifted myne hande to make you dwell therein, saue Caleb the sonne of Iephone, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

And your chyldren whiche ye sayde shal be a praye, them I will byng in, and they shall knowe the lande whiche ye haue refused, and your carcasses shall lye in this wyldernesse. And your chyldren shall wandre in this wyldernesse. xl. yeres and suffer for your iniquitye vntill your carcasses be washed in the wyldernesse, after the nombre of the dayes in which ye searched out the lande. xl. dayes, and euer day a yere: so that they shal beate your iniquityes. xl. yere, and ye shall see my vengeance. I the Lorde haue sayde that I will doo it vnto all this euill congregacion that are gathered together agaynst me: euen in this wyldernesse ye shal be consumed, and here ye shall dye.

And the men whiche Moyses sent to seeke the lande, and whiche (when they came agayne) made all the people to murmure agaynst it in that they broughte up a sleaunders vpon the lande: dyed for their bynggynge by that euill sleaunders vpon it, and were playd before the Lorde. But Josua the sonne of Nun and Caleb the sonne of Iephone whiche were of the men that went to enseeke the lande, luyed vnto Moyses tolde these saynges to all the chyldren of Israel, & the people toke great sorowe.

And they rose by early in the mornynge and gat them into the toppes of the mountayns, sayinge: so we be here, and will go by vnto the place of whiche the Lorde sayde, for we haue sinned. And Moyses sayd: wherfore will ye go on this maner beyonde the woide of the Lorde? it will not come well to passe, go not by (for the Lorde is not amonge you) leaue ye be slayne before your ennemyes. for the Amaleckites and the Cananites are there before you, and ye will fall vpon the swerde, because ye are turned away from the Lorde, & therefore the Lorde will not be with you.

But they were bynded to goo by in to the hyll toppes: Nevertheless, the arche of the testament of the Lorde and Moyses departed not out of the holle. Then the Amaleckites and the Cananites whiche dwell in that hil, came towarde and smote them and detred them: euen vnto Hozma.

The bynggynge of them that enter in to the lande the punishment of hym that synneth of arrogancy of pryde. The man is stoned that gathered thyres on the Saboth. Garbros must be made vpon the quarters of theyr garments.

CAPL. XV.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye be come into the lande of your habitation which I geue vnto you, and will offer an offeringe vpon the fyre vnto the Lorde, whether it be a burnt offeringe or a speccall bolle or feteuill offeringe, or if it be in your principall feastes to make a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of oxen or of the flocke.

Then, let him that offereth his offeringe vnto the Lorde, byngge also a meate offeringe of a tenth deale of flour, myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of oyle, and the fourth part of an hin of wyne for a bynggynge, and offer with the burnt offeringe or any other offeringe when it is a lambe. And vnto a Ram thou shalt offer a meate offeringe of .v. tenth deales of flour, myngled with the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle, and to a bynggynge thou shalt offer the thyrde parte of an hin of wyne, to be a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

When thou offerest an ore to a burnt offeringe or in any special bolle or peaceoffering vnto the Lorde, then thou shalt byngge vnto an ore, a meate offeringe of the tenth deales of flour myngled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou shalt byngge for a bynggynge halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. This is the maner that shalbe done vnto one ore, one Ram a lambe or a kybbe. And accordyng to the number of such offerings, thou shalt encrease the meate offerings and the bynggynge.

All that are of your selues shall do these thynges after this maner, when he offereth an offeringe of sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And if there be a stranger with you or be amonge you in your generations, and will offer an offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde: euen as ye do, so he shall do. One ordinance shall serue both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger. And it shalbe an ordinance for euer amonge your chyldren after you, that the stranger and ye shalbe lyke before the Lorde. One lawe and one maner shall serue, bothe for you and for the stranger that dwelleth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: When ye be come into the lande wherether I will byng you, then when ye wil eate of the bread of the lande, ye shal geue an heueofferinge vnto the Lorde. Ye shall geue a hake of the first of your wyne vnto an heueofferinge: as ye to the heueofferinge of barne euen so ye shall geue it. Of the first of your bowe ye must geue vnto the Lorde an heueofferinge, thowout your generations.

If ye ouerle your selues and obserue not all these commaundementes whiche the Lorde hath spoken vnto Moyses, and all that the Lorde hath commaunded you by the hande of Moyses, frome the first daye forwarde that the Lorde commaunded amonge your generation: when ought is committed ignorantly before the eyes of the congregacion, then of the multitude shall offer a calfe for a burnt offeringe to be a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde, and the meate offeringe and the bynggynge thereto, accordyng to the maner: and an he geote for a synneofferinge. And the preast shall make an atonement for all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel, and it shalbe forgyuen them.

them for it was ignorance. And they shall bypunge euer gyftes unto the offering of the Lozde, and their synnofferinge before the Lozde for their ignorance. And it shalbe forgyuen unto all the multitude of the children of Israel, and unto the stranger that dwelleth amonges you: for the ignorance petyrnerly unto all the people.

D If any one soule synne thowgh ignorance, he shall bypunge a the gode of a yere olte for a synnofferinge. And the preste shall make an attonement for the soule that synned bywetyngipe with the synnofferinge before the Lozde and make him at one, and it shalbe forgyuen him. And both thou that art byrne one of the children of Israel & the stranger that dwelleth amonge you, shall have bothe one lawe, yf ye synne unwittingly.

And his soule shall be dyspyled out of his people, because he hath dyspyled the woide of the Lozde and hath broken his commaundementes, that soule therfore shall perysh and his synne shal be upon him.

G And whyle the children of Israel were in the wyldernesse, they founde a man gathering stickes upon the Saboth daye. And they that founde him gatheringe stickes, brought him unto Moses and Aaron and unto all the congregation: and they put hym in ward, for it was not declared what shoulde be done unto hym. And the Lozde sayde vnto Moses: the man shall dye: let al the multitude stone him with stones forth of the host. And all the multitude brought him without the hode & stoned him with stones, and he dyed as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

sonne of Zabab.

A And Corah the sonne of Jesebar, the sonne of Zabab, the sonne of Levi, & Dathan, and Abiram the sonne of Ruben: rode up before Moses, with other of the children of Israel. 6 hundred and fiftie heades of the congregation, and counsailours and men of fame, and they gathered them selues together against Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: ye haue done ynoughe. For all the multitude are holy euerie one of them, and the Lozde is amonge them. Why therfore auaunce ye your selves aboue the congregation of the Lozdes.

When Moses herde it, he fell vpon his face and spake vnto Corah and vnto all his companye, sayenge: to morowe the Lozde will shewe who is his, and who is holy, and will take them vnto him, & whome so euer he hath chosen, he will cause to come to him. This daye take fyrepannes, thou Corah and all thy companye, and do fyre therein and put cens therin before the Lozde to morowe. And then who so euer the Lozde wylde chose, the same is holye. Ye make ynoughe to wote children of Levi.

And Moses sayde vnto Corah: heare ye children of Levi, Semeth it but a smal thinge vnto you, that the God of Israel hath senteed you from the multitude of Israel to bring you to him, to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of the Lozde, and to stande before the people to ministrate vnto them? he hath taken the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Levi with the, and ye seke thoffice of the preast also. For which cause both thou and all thy companye are gathered together against the Lozde: for what is Aaron, that ye shoulde murmure against hym.

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and they answered, we will not come. Semeth it a small thinge vnto the that thou hast brought vs out of a lande that floweth with mylke and honny, to bryll vs in the wyldernesse? but that thou wouldest saye ouer vs also: wote ouer thou hast brought vs vnto no lande that floweth with mylke and honny, neyther haue gyuen vs possessions of felde or of vyne. Wether wylte thou pull out the eyes of these men? we will not come.

And Moses waxed verie angrie and sayde vnto the Lozde: Turne not vnto their offynses. I haue not taken so moche as an asse fro them, neyther haue vexed any of them. Then Moses sayde vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy companye before the Lozde: bothe thou thy and Aaron to morowe. And take euery man his censer and put cens in them, and come before the Lozde euery man with his censer: two hundred and fiftie censers, and Aaron with his censer. And they toke euery man his censer and put fyre in them and layde cens thereon, and rode in the wye of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered all the congregation against them vnto the wye of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glory of the Lozde appeared vnto all the congregation. And the Lozde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayenge: seuer your selues from this congregation, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpon their faces, and sayde. * O most myghty God of the spirites of all flesh, one man hath synned and wylte thou be wrothe with all the multitude? And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, say-enge: speake vnto the congregation and say: Ser you away fro yeres of Corah, Dathan & Abiram. And Moses arose up and went vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel followed him. And he spake vnto the congregation, sayenge: departe from the tentes of these vngodly men, and touche not linge of theirs: leaue ye perysh in all their synnes. And they gat theym from the tentes of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came out and rode in y wye of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their children.

And Moses sayde: Wether ye shall knowe that the Lozde hath sent me to do all these wykes, and that I haue not done them of myne owne hed: Yf these men dye the comen death of all men, or yf they be dysced after the vylification of all men, then the Lozde hath not sent me. But yf the Lozde make a newe thinge, and the earth open hir mowthe and swallowe them, and all that pertaine vnto them, so that they go downe quychly into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these men haue rayed vpon the Lozde.

And as sone as he had made an ende of spekyng all these wordes, the grounde cloue a sonder that was vnder them, and the earthe opened her mowthe and swallowed them and their houses and all the men that were with Corah and all their goodes. And they and al that pertaine vnto them, went downe alpye vnto hell, and the earthe closed vpon them, and they peryshed awaye from the congregation. And al Israel that were aboute them fled at the crye of them. For they sayde: The earth mighte happely swallowe vs also. And there came out a fyre from the Lozde and consumed the two hundred and fiftie men that offered incens.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast and let him take vp the censers out of the burninge and scatter the fyre here & there, for the censers of these synners are basowed in their dearyes: and let them be beaten into thynne plates and fastened vpon the altare. For they offered them before the Lozde, & therfore they are holpe and they shalbe a signe vnto the children of Israel.

And Eleazar the preast toke the brassen censers, which they that were burnt had offered, and beat them and fastened them vpon the altare, to be a remembraunce vnto the children of Israel, that no stranger whiche is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer incense before the Lozde, that he be not made lyke vnto Corah and his companye: as the Lozde sayd vnto him by the hande of Moses.

And on the morowe all the multitude of children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron, sayenge: ye haue kyled the people of the Lozde. And when the multitude was gathered against Moses and Aaron, they looked towarde the tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde, the cloude had covered it and the glory of the Lozde appeared. And Moses and Aaron went before the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Set you from this congregacion, that I may consume them quychly. And they fell vpon their faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therein out of the altare, and powre on incens, and go quickly vnto the congregacion and make an attonement for them. For there is wrothe gone out from the Lozde and there is a plage begonne. And Aaron toke as Moses commaunded him, and ran vnto the congregacion: and beholde, the plage was begonne among the people, and he put on incens, and made an attonement for the people. And he stode betwene the deed, and them that were alpye, and the plage ceased. And the nombze of them that dyed in the plage, were. xiiij. thousande and seuen hundred: besyde them that dyed about the bysynes of Corah. And Aaron went agayn vnto Moses vnto the wye of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the plage ceased.

Aarons rodde buddeth and beareth blossomes.

CAP. XVII.

A And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the children of Israel and take of them, for euery principall house a rod, of their pynces ouer the houses of their fathers: euen. xij. rodde, and wyte euery mans name vpon his rod. And wyte Aarons name vpon the staffe of Levi: for euery heede ouer the houses of their fathers shall haue a rod. And put them in the tabernacle of wytnesse where I will mete you. And his rod whome I chose, shall blossom: So I will make cease from me the grudginges of the childre of Israel which they grudge against you.

And Moses spake vnto the children of Israel, & all the pynces gaue him for euery pynce ouer their fathers houses, a rod: euen. xij. rodde, and the rodde of Aaron was amonge the rodde. And Moses put the rodde before the Lozde in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle: and beholde * the rod of Aaron of the house of Levi was budded and bare blossomes and almondes. So Moses brought out all the rodde whiche were before the Lozde, vnto all the children of Israel, and they looked vpon them, and toke euery man his rodde.

And the Lozde sayde vnto Moses: bypunge Aarons rod agayne before the wytnesse to be kept for a token vnto the children of rebellio, that their murmurpings may cease from me, that they dye not. And Moses dyd as the Lozde commaunded him. And the children of Israel spake vnto Moses, sayenge: beholde, we are destroyed and all come to noughte: for who so euer commeth ngye the dwellinge of the Lozde, dyeth. Shall we utterly consume a waye?

The office of the Levites. The tythes and first fruits must be given them. Barons heriage.

CAPL XVIII.

And the Lord spake unto Aaron. Thou and thy sonnes and thy fathers house with the, shall beare the faulte of that which is done amysse in the holy place. And thou and thy sonnes with the, shall beare the faulte of that which is done amysse in your priesthode. And thy brethren also the tribe of Levi, the tribe of thy father take with the, & let them be joynd unto the and minister unto the. And thou & thy sonnes with the, shall minister before the tabernacle of testimony. And let them waite upon the and upon all the tabernacle: only let them not come nysse the holy vessels and the altare, that bothe they & ye also be not. And let them be by the, and waite on the tabernacle of testimony, and on all the service of the tabernacle, and let no stranger come nysse unto you.

Waite therefore upon the holy place & upon the altare, that there fall no more wrath upon the children of Israel: behold, I have taken your brethren the Levites for the children of Israel, to be yours, as gyftes given unto the Lord to be in the service of the tabernacle of testimony. And let that both thou and thy sonnes with the take heed unto your priesthes office, in all thinges that pertaine unto the altare and within the bayle. And let ye serve, for I have given your priesthes office unto you for a gyfte to me service: and the stranger that cometh nysse, shall dye.

And the Lord spake unto Aaron: behold, I have given the the keprage of myne heueroffringes in all the halowed thinges of the children of Israel. And unto the I have gyfte the unto accomptinge and to thy sonnes: to be a duepe for euer. This shall be thyne of mooste holy sacrifices. All their gyftes, thow out all their meatoffringes, spenneoffringes, and trespassoffringes which they bringe unto me. They shall be most holy unto the and unto thy sonnes. And ye shall eat it in the most holy place: all that are males shall eat of it, for it shall be holy unto the.

And this shall be thyne: the heueroffringes of their gyftes, thow out all the waucroffringes of the children of Israel, for I have gyuen them unto the, and thy sonnes, and thy daughters with the to be a duepe for euer: & all that are cleane in thy house, shall eat of it, all the fat of the oyle, of the wyne and of the come: their first fruits which they give unto the Lord, have I given unto the. The first fruits of all that is in their landes, whiche they bringe unto the Lord, shall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne house, shall eat of it.

All dedicate thinges in Israel, shall be thyne. All that breaketh the matrice of all fleshe & men bringe unto the Lord, both of man and beast, shall be thyne. Reuerence the first borne of man shall be redeemed, and the first borne of uncleane beastes shall be redeemed. And their redemptions shall be at a moneth olde, valued at fyne cycles of silver, of the holy cycle. A cycle maketh twente sixes. But the first borne of oxen, shepe and gootes shall not be redeemed. For they are holy, and thou shalt sprinkle theyr bloude upon the altare, & shalt burne their fat to be a sacrifice of a sweete savoure unto the Lord.

And the fleshe of them shall be thyne, as I have charged and all the right shoulder is thyne all the holy heueroffringes which the children of Israel have unto the Lord, I give the & thy sonnes and thy daughters with the to be a duepe for euer. And it shall be a sacred countenance for euer, before the Lord: unto the & to thy seed with the.

And the Lord spake unto Aaron: thou shalt have none inheritance in their land nor parte amonge them. For I am thy parte and thy inheritance amonge the children of Israel. And behold, I have given the children of Levi, the tenth in Israel to enherite, for the service which they see in the tabernacle of witness, that the children of Israel henceforth come not nysse the tabernacle of testimony, & beare synne and dye. And the Levites shall do the service in the tabernacle of testimony and beare their synne, and it shall be a lawe for euer unto your children after you: But amonge the children of Israel they shall enherite none inheritance. For the tribes of the children of Israel whiche they have unto the Lord, I have given the Levites to enherite. Wherfore I have sayde unto the: Amonge the children of Israel, ye shall enherite none inheritance.

And the Lord spake to Moses, sayenge: speake unto the Levites, and saye unto them: when ye take of the children of Israel the tythes which I have given you of them to your inheritance, ye shall take an heueroffring of that same for the Lord: even the tenth of the tythe. And it shall be reckened unto you for your heueroffring, even as though ye gave come out of the barnes of a full offering fro the wyne presse.

And in this maner ye shall have an heueroffring unto the Lord, of all your tribes whiche ye receyve of the children of Israel, and ye shall give thereof the Lordes heueroffring unto Aaron the priest. Of all your gyftes, ye shall take out the Lordes heueroffring: even the fat of all their halowed thinges.

And thou shalt saye unto them: when ye have take away the fat of it frome it, it shall be counted unto the Levites, as the increase of come and wyne. And ye shall eat it in all places both ye and your householdes, for it is your reward for your service in the tabernacle of testimony. And ye shall beare no synne by the reason of it, when ye have taken frome it the fat of it: neyther shall ye unhalowe the halowed thinges of the children of Israel, and so shall ye not dye.

Of the redde howe The lawe of him that dyeth in the tabernacle: and of him also that toucheth any uncleane thyng.

CAPL XIX.

And

And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron sayenge: this is the ordinaunce of the lawe which the Lord commaundeth, sayenge: speake unto the children of Israel and let them take the a red howe without spot whiche never bare pocke upon her. And ye shall give her unto Eleazar the priest and he shall bynge her without the host and cause her to be layne before him.

And Eleazar the priest shall take of her bloude upon his synger, & sprinkle it streight towards the tabernacle of witness. by tymes. And he shall cause the howe to be burne in his sight: both thyne, fleshe and bloude, with the wunge also. And let the priest take Cedar wood, and flospe and purple clothe, and cast it upon the howe as he burneth. And let the priest walke his clothes and bathe his fleshe in water, and then come into the host, & the priest shall be uncleane unto the euen.

And he that burneth her, shall walke his clothes in water and bathe his fleshe also in water, and be uncleane untill euen. And one that is cleane, shall go and take up the ashes of the howe, and put them without the hoste in a cleane place, where they shall be kept to make spynklynge water for the multitude of the children of Israel: for it is a synneoffring. And let him that gathered the ashes of the howe, walke his clothes, and remayne uncleane untill euen. And this shall be unto the children of Israel and unto the stranger that dwelleth amonge them, a lawe for euer.

Ye that toucheth any dead persone, shall be uncleane seven dayes. And he shall purify himselfe with the ashes the thyrde daye, and so he shall be cleane the seventh daye. And if he purifye not himselfe the thyrde daye, then the seventh daye, he shall not be cleane. Whosoever toucheth any persone that dyeth and spynkleth not himselfe, despyeth the dwelling of the Lord: and therefore that soule shall perishe out of Israel, because he hath not spynkled the spynklynge water upon him, he shall be uncleane, and his uncleanesse shall remaine upon him.

This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tent: all that come into the tent and all that is in the tent, shall be uncleane seven dayes. And all the vessels that be open whiche have no lye nor couerynge upon them, are unclean. And who so euer toucheth one that is layne with a sword in the felde, or a dead persone, or a bone of a dead man, or a grave: shall be uncleane seven dayes.

And they shall take for an uncleane person of the want ashes of the synneoffring, and put runninge water thereto into a vessel. And a cleane persone shall take flospe and dyppe it in the water, and spynkle it upon the tent & upon all the vessels and on the soules that were there, and upon him that touched a bone or a layne persone or a dead body or a grave. And the cleane person shall spynkle upon the uncleane the. iij. daye and the. iij. daye. And the. vij. daye he shall purify himselfe walke his clothes and bathe him selfe in water, and shall be cleane at euen.

If any be uncleane and spynkle not hym selfe the same soule shall be destroyed forth of the congregation: for he hath despyed the holy place of the Lord and is not spynkled with spynklynge water, therefore is he uncleane. And this shall be a perpetual lawe unto them. And he that spynkleth the spynklynge water, shall walke his clothes.

And he that toucheth the spynklynge water, shall be uncleane untill euen. And what so euer the uncleane person toucheth, shall be uncleane. And the soule that toucheth it, shall be uncleane untill the euen.

The people murmure. They have water euen out of the rocke. Whom denyeth the Israelites passage thow to his realme. The death of Aaron in whose roune Eleazar succeedeth.

CAPL XX.

And the hole multitude of the children of Israel, came into the deserte of Sin in the first moneth, & the people dwelt at Cadis. And there dyed Marpe, and was buried there. Wherfore there was no water for the multitude, wherfore they gathered them selves together againste Moses and Aaron. And the people chode with Moses and spake, sayenge: wolde God we had perished, when our brethren perished before the Lord. Why have ye brought the congregacion of the Lord unto this wyldernesse, that both we and our cattell shuld dye here? Wherfore brought ye us out of Egypte to bringe us into this vngacious place, which is no place of seed nor of fygges nor bynes nor of pomgranates, nei ther is there any water to drynke?

And Moses and Aaron went frome the congregation unto the moze of the tabernacle of testimony, and fell on their faces. And the glory of the Lord appeared unto them. And the Lord spake unto Moses, sayenge: Take the staffe, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacion together, and saye unto the rocke before their eyes, that he geue forth his water. And thou shalt bynge them water out of the rocke and shall geue the company drinke and their beastes also.

And Moses took the staffe frome before the Lord, as he commaunded him. And Moses & Aaron gathered the congregacion together before the rocke, and he sayde unto the, heare ye rebellions, muste we get you water out of this rocke? And Moses lyfte up his hande to his staffe and smote the rocke. ij. tymes, and the water came out abundantly, and the multitude drank and their beastes also.

And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron because ye beleued me not, to sanctifie me in the eyes of the children of Israel, therefore ye shall not bringe this congregacion into the land which I have given them. This is the water of strepe, because the children of Israel stroue with the Lord, and he was sanctified upon them.

And Moses sent messengers frome Cadis unto the kynge of Edom. Thus sayth the Lord thyne Israel: Thou knowest all the travailles hath happened vs, howe sure fathers went downe into Egypte, and howe we haue dwelt in Egypte a longe tyme, and howe the Egyptians bered bothe vs and our fathers. Then we reped vnto the Loide, and he herde oure voyces, and sent an aungell and hath set vs out of Egypte. And beholde, we are in Labes a cyp harde by the borders of thy countrey, let vs go we pray the thowth thy countrey we will not go thowth the felde noz thowth thyne paydes, neither will we drinke of the water of thy fountaynes, but we will go by the hye way & neither turne vnto the right hand noz to the left, vntill we be past thy countrey. And Edom answered him: Se thou come not by me, lest I come out agaynst the with the swerde. And the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto him: we will go by the beaten way: and yf euer we oz oure cattell drynke of thy water, we will paye for it, we will do no moze but passe thowth by fore onely. And he sayde: ye shall not go thowth. And Edom came out agaynst him with moche people and with a myghty power. And thus Edom denyed to geue Israel passage thowth his countrey. And Israel turned awaye frome him.

And the chyldren of Israel remoued frome Labes and wente vnto mount Hoz with all the companie. And the Loide spake vnto Moses and Aaron in mount Hoz, whiche is vpon the borders of the lande of Edom, sayinge: let Aaron be put vnto his people, for he shall not come into the lande whiche I haue giuen vnto the chyldren of Israel: because he disobeyed my mouth at the water of Merse. Take Iard and Eleazar his sonne, and bunge euerym vnto mount Hoz, and streppe Aaron out of his vestimentes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and let Aaron be put vnto his people and dye there.

And Moses dyd as the Loide commaunded: and they went vnto mount Hoz in sight of all the multitude. And Moses toke of Aarons clothes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and Aaron dyed there in the toppe of the mount. And Moses & Eleazar came down out of the mount. And all the house of Israel mourned for Aaron. xxx. dayes.

Israel vanquished hyng Arad. The fyre serpentes stryge them: but when they loke at the brassen serpent whiche the Loide commaunded Moses to lyft vp, they are healed. The kynges, Sehon and Og are ouercome in battell.

CAP. I. XXI.

And when kyng Arad the Cananite, whiche dwelt in the south partes, herde tel that Israel came by the way that the egyptes had founde out, he came and foughte with Israel and toke some of them prissoners. Then Israel bowed a votue vnto the Loide, and sayde: Yf thou wilt geue this people into our handes, we will destroye their cities. And the Loide herde the voyce of Israel, and deliuered vnto them the Cananites. And they destroyed both them and their cities, and called the place Hozma.

Then they departed frome mount Hoz to make the red see: to compasse the lande of Edom. And the soules of the people saynted by the waye. And the people spake agaynst God and agaynst Moses: Wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, for to dye in the wilderness, for here is neither bread nor water, and oure soules lothe this & lighte dyed.

Then the Loide sent fyre serpentes among the people, which longe them: so that moche people dyed in Israel. And the people came to Moses, and sayde: we haue synned, for we haue spoken agaynst the Loide and agaynst the, make intercession to the Loide, that he take awaye the serpentes frome vs. And Moses made intercession for the people. And the Loide sayde vnto Moses: make the a serpent and hange it vp for a signe, and let as many as are bitten loke vpon it, and they shall lyue. And Moses made a serpent of brasse, and set it vp for a signe. And when the serpentes had bitten any man, he went and behelde the serpent of brasse and recovered.

And the chyldren of Israel remoued & pitched in Oboth. And they departed frome Oboth and laye at Egerath in the wilderness whiche is before Moab on the eastside. And they remoued thence, and pitched vpon the ryuer of Zared. And they departed thence & pitched on the other syde of Arnon, whiche ryuer is in the wilderness, and cometh out of the colles of the Ammozites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Ammozites. Wherfore it is spoken in the booke of the warre of the Loide: god with a violence, both on the ryuer of Arnon and on the ryuers heed, whiche wooreth wnto dwell at Ar, and leaneth vpon the colles of Moab.

And frome thence they came to War, whiche is the well, wherof the Loide spake vnto Moses: gather the people together, that I may geue them water. The Israel sang this songe: Aspe vp well, syng therto: The well whiche the rulers dygged and the captyues of the people with the helpe of the lawgutter and with their Rares.

And frome this wilderness they went to Matana, and frome Matana to Nabaliel, & frome Nabaliel to Bamoth, and frome Bamoth to the balay that is in the felde of Moab in the toppe of Phasgah which boweth towards Jerusalem. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kyng of the Ammozites, sayinge: let vs go thowth thy lande: we will not turne into thy felde noz into thy bynnyardes, ne drinke of the water of the welles: but go alonge by the common waye, vntill we be past thy countrey. And Sehon wolde geue Israel no licence to passe thowth his countrey, but gathered all his people together and made out agaynst Israel into the wilderness. And he came to Jahesa and foughte with Israel.

And Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde and conquered his lande, frome Arnon vnto Iabock: euen vnto the chyldren of Ammon. For the borders of the chyldren of Ammon, mon, are Arounge. And Israel toke all these cities, and dwelt in all the cities of the Ammozites, in Hesbon, and in all the towncs thertvnto belonging. For Hesbon was the cite of Sehon the kyng of the Ammozites, who had fought before with the kyng of the Moabites, and had taken all his lande forth of his hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore it is a prouerbe, go to Hesbon and let the cite of Sehon be buyt and made redy, for there is a fyre gone forth of Hesbon and a flame from the cite of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and the men of the bylles of Arnon. Wo to the Moab: a people of Chamos ye are knowen. His sonnes are put to flight, and his daughters brought captiue vnto Sehon kyng of the Ammozites. Their light is one frome Hesbon vnto Dibon, and he made a wilderness euen vnto Popha whiche reacheth vnto Mediba. And thus Israel dwelt in the lande of the Ammozites. And Moses sent to scche out Iazer, and they toke the towncs belonging therto, and conquered the Ammozites that were there.

And then they turned and went by toward Balan. And Og the kyng of Balan came out agaynst them, bothe he and all his people, to warre at Abzei. And the Loide sayd vnto Moses: feare him not, for I haue deliuered him into thy handes with all his people and his land. And thou shalt to with him as thou dyest with Sehon the kyng of the Ammozites, whiche dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote him and his sonnes and all his people, yll there was nothinge left him. And they conquered his lande, and the chyldren of Israel remoued & pitched in the felde of Moab, on the other syde of Jordan, by Irticho.

kyng Balac sendeth for Balam, to curse Israel: but Balam can do nothinge agaynst the will of the Loide, Balamas alle speaketh to him in the waye.

CAP. I. XXII.

And Balac the sonne of Ziphor saue al that Israel had done to the Ammozites, and the Moabites were soe amazed of the people, because they were many, and aboyced the chyldren of Israel: And Moab sayd vnto the elders of Moabian, now shall this company lycke vp al that are roundabout vs as an ore lycketh vp the grasse of the felde. And Balac the sonne of Ziphor was kyng of the Moabites at that tyme.

And he sent messengers vnto Balam the sonne of Beor, the interpreter which dwelt vpon the ryuer of the lande of the chyldren of his folke, to call him, sayinge: Behold, there is a people come out of Egypte whiche couereth the face of the earth and lyeth euen hard by me. Loue nowe I praye the, and curse me this people. For they are to myghty for me: so peradventure I myghte be hable to smyte them, and to dyspue them out of the lande. For I wote that whom thou blessest, shall be blessed, and whome thou cursest shall be cursed.

And the elders of Moab went with the elders of Moabian, hauinge the reward of the sothesayinge in their handes. So they came vnto Balam and tolde him the wordes of Balac. And he sayde vnto the, saye here al night and I will bunge you wordes, euen as the Loide shall saye vnto me. And the lordes of Moab abode with Balam.

And God came vnto Balam & sayd: What men are these which are with the? And Balam sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of Ziphor kyng of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayinge: Beholde, there is a people come forth of Egypte and couereth the face of the earth: come now thertoe and curse me them, that so peradventure I may be hable to ouercome them in battell, and to dyspue them out. God sayde vnto Balam: thou shalt not go with them, neyther curse the people for they are blessed.

So Balam rose vp in the morninge & sayd vnto the lordes of Balac: Get you vnto your lande, for the Loide will not suffer me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp & went vnto Balac and sayd. Balam wold not come with vs. And Balac sent agayne a greater company of Lozdes, and moze honorable then they. And they came to Balam and tolde him: Thus sayth Balac the sonne of Ziphor Oh, let nothinge let the, to come vnto me, for I will hyghly auance the vnto great honour, and will to what so euer thou sayest vnto me, come thertoe I praye the, curse me this people.

And Balam answered and sayde vnto the seruantes of Balac. Yf Balac wold geue me his house full of siluer and golde, I can go no further, then the word of the Loide my God, to do lesse oz moze. Neuerthelesse I saye ye here al night: that I maye wote, what the Loide wil saye vnto me ones moze. And God came vnto Balam by night and sayde vnto him: Yf the men come to fet the, arylt vp and go with them: but what I say vnto the, that onely thou shalt do.

And Balam arose vp early, and saddled his asse, and went with the Lozdes of Moab. But God was angye because he went. And the aungell of the Loide rode in the waye agaynst him. And he ryd vpon his asse and two seruantes with him. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Loide stande in the waye & his swerde drawn in his hande, he turned a syde oute of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

And the aungell of the Loide went & rode in a path betwene bynnyardes, where was a wall on the one syde and an other on the other. When the asse sawe the aungell of the Loide, he wrenched vnto the wal and thrust Balam's fore vnto the wal, and he smote her agayne. But the aungell of the Loide wente further, & rode in a narrow place, where was no waye to turne, eyther to the right hand oz to the lyft. And when the asse sawe the aungell of the Loide, he fell to the ground vnder Balam: & Balam was wroth and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Loide opened the mouth of the asse, and he sayde vnto Balam: What haue I done to thee, that thou hast smote me with a staffe these thre tymes? And he sayde vnto the asse: I haue done nothinge to thee, thou art the cause of this.

(speaker).

the alle, and the sayde unto Balam: What haue I done vnto the, that thou saydest me thus thyne? And Balam sayde vnto the alle: because thou hast mocked me? I wolde that I hadde a sword in myne hande, that I myght now kill the. And the alle sayde vnto Balam: am not I thyne alle which thou hast spoken vpon speches thou wast bozne vnto this daye? Was I euer wont to go vnto the? And he sayde, naye.

And the Lozde opened the eyes of Balam, that he sawe the angell of the Lozde standing in the waye, with his sword drawn in his hande. And he bowed him self and fell flat on his face. And the angell of the Lozde sayde vnto him: Wherefore sayest thou thyne alle thus thyne? Beholde I came out to refute the, for thy waye is frowarde and contrary vnto me, and the alle sawe me and auoyded me three tymes: or else (hadde he not turned frome me) I had surely slayne the and saved hys alme. And Balam sayde vnto the angell of the Lozde: I haue sinned: for I wold not that thou shouldest in the waye against me. Now therefore if it displease thyne eyes, I will tume agayne. And the angell sayde vnto Balam, go with the men: but in anye wyse, what I saye vnto the, that saye. And Balam went to the lozdes of Balac.

And when Balac herde that Balam was come, he went out against him vnto a cite of Moab that stode in the border of Arnon, whiche was the uttermost parte of his countrey. And Balac sayde vnto Balam: byd I not send for the, to call the? wherefore camest thou not vnto me? thinkest thou I am not hable to promote the vnto honoure? And Balam sayde vnto Balac: Lo I am come vnto the. But I can saye nothinge at all, save what God putteeth in my mouthe, that muste I speake. And Balam went with Balac, and they came vnto the large cite. And Balac offered oren and shepe, and sent for Balam and for the lozdes that were with him.

Balam blesteth the people, where he was requy-red to curse them and prophesied that they shall be a greite people.

CAPL XXIII.

And on the morrowe, Balac toke Ba-lam, and brought him vp into hygh place of Baal, and thence he sawe vnto the uttermost parte of the people. And Ba-lam sayde vnto Balac: buyde me here seven altars and proupe here seven bullockes and seven Hammes. And Balac byd as Balac sayd So Balac and Balam offered on euery altare a bullocke and a Ram. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: stande by the sacrifice, whyle I go to wete whether the Lozde will come and mete me, and what so euer he sheweth me, I will tell the, and he wente forthwith. And God came vnto Balam, and Balam sayd vnto him I haue prepared seven altars, and haue offered vpon euery altare, a bullocke and a ram.
And the Lozde put a saying in Balamis mouth and sayde: goo agayne to Balac and saye on this wyse. And he went agayne vnto him and so, he stode by his sacrifice, both he and al the lozdes of Moab. And he began his parables sayde: Balac the kynge of Moab hath set me frome Mesopotamia out of the mountaynes of the East, sayenge: Come and curse me Jacob, come and desyre me Israel. Nowe shall I curse whome God curseth not, and howe shall I desyre whome the Lozde desyeth not? from the toppe of the rockes I se him and from the hylls I beholde him: loo, the people shall dwell by him selfe and shall not be reckened amonge other nations. Who can tell the butt of Jacob, and the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel. I praye God my soule maye dye the death of the righteous, and that my last ende maye be lyke his. And Balac sayde vnto Ba-lam, What hast thou done vnto me? I byd set the to curse myne enemies: and beholde thou blestest them. And he answered and sayde:

must I not kepe that and speake it, whiche the Lozde hath put in my mouthe? And Balac sayde vnto him: Come I praye the with me vnto an other place whence thou shalt se the and shalt se but the uttermost parte of them and shalt not se them all, and curse me them there. And he brought him into a playne field, where men myght se farre, euen to the toppe of Phasgab, and buyde seven altars and offered a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare.
And he sayde vnto Balac: stande here by the sacrifice, whyle I go proude. And the Lozde met Balam, & put wordes in his mouth, and sayde: go agayne vnto Balac, and thus saye.
And when he came to him: beholde, he stode by his sacrifice and the lozdes of Moab with him. And Balac sayde vnto him: What sayest the Lozde?

And he toke vp his parable and sayde: ryle
by Balac and heare, and hearken vnto me thou sonne of Ziphor. The Lozde is not a man, he can lye, neyther the sonne of man, that he can repent: wylde he save and nor wylde he spake and nor make it good? Beholde, I haue begon to blese and haue blest, and can not go backe therfro. He beholde no wickednesse in Jacob nor sawe I wickednesse in Israel:
The Lozde his God is with him, and the triumphe of a kynge amonge them. God that brought the out of Egypte, is as the strength of an unicorn vnto them, for there is no for-recer, in Jacob, nor sorblayer in Israel. Whilthe tyme cometh, it will be sayde of Jacob and of Israel, what God hath wrought. Be-holde, the people shall ryle vp as a lyoness heue vp him selfe as a lyon, and shall not lye downe agayne, vntill he haue eaten of the praye and yonke of the bloude of them that are slayne.

And Balac sayde vnto Balac: neyther curse them nor blese them. And Balam answered and sayde vnto Balac: tolde not I the say-enge? all that the Lozde bydeth me, that I muste do? And Balac sayde vnto Balam: come I praye the, I will bringe the yet vnto an other place, so peradventure it shall please God that thou mayst curse them there. And Balac broughte Balam vnto the toppe of Phasgab
that

that boweth forwarde the wilderness. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: make me here, vif.
altars, and prepare me here, vif. bullockes & vif. Hammes. And Balac byd as Balam had sayde, and offered a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare.

Balam prophesied of the kyngdome of Israel and of the commynge of Chylye. Balac is angrie with Balam. The destruction of the Amelchites and of the kenytes.

CAPL XXIII.

When Balam sawe that it pleased the Lozde that he shoulde blese Israel, he went not as he byd twyse before to set sothsayenge, but set his face forwarde the wil-dernes, and lyeft vp his eyes and looked vpon Israel as he laye with his trybes, & the spyrte of God came vpon him. And he toke vp his parable and sayde: Balam the sonne of Beor hath sayde, and the man whose eye is open hath sayde: he hath sayde which heareth the wordes of God, and seeth the visions of the almighty, which falsedh wyne and his eyes are opened.

Howe goodly are the tentes of Jacob and thyne habitation Israel, euen as the hynde daleys and as gardens by the ryuers syde, as the tentes which the Lozde hath pitched, and as Cypress trees vpon the water. The water shall flowe out of his bounke and his feed shall be many waters, and his kynge shall be higher then Agag. And his kyngdome shall be exalted.
God that brought him out of Egypte, his strength is as the strength of an unicorn, and he shall cate the nations that are his enemies and breake their bones & perce them thozowe with his arrowes. He couched him selfe as a lyon as a lyon and as a lyoness, who shall flee him? he is blessed is he that blesteth the, & curseth is he that curseth the.

And Balac was wrothe with Balam, and smote his handes together, and sayde vnto him: I sent for the to curse myne enemies: & beholde, thou hast blest them this three tymes, and now get the quickly vnto thy place.
I thought to haue auailed the vnto honoure, but the Lozde hath kept the backe frome worshipp. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: tolde I not thy messengers whiche thou sentest vnto me sayenge. * Yf Balac wolde geue me his house full of silver and golde, I can not passe the mouth of the Lozde, to do euer good or bad of myne owne mynde. What the Lozde sayeth, that must I speake. And now beholde, I go vnto my people: come let me welue the,
what this people shall do to thy foike in the later dayes. And he began his parable & sayd: Balam the sonne of Beor hath sayde, and the man that hath his eye open hath sayde, & he hath sayde that heareth the wordes of God, and hath the knowlege of the moste hygh, & beholde the vision of the almighty, and wher he falsedh the: hath his eyes opened I se him but not hold. I beholde him but not speke. There shall come a sterre of Jacob & a scepter of Israel, which shall smyte the coles of Moab, and undermyne all the children of Seir. And Edom shall be his possession, and the possession of Seir shall be their enne-myes, and Israel shall to manfully. And out of Jacob shall come he that shall destroye the residue of the cyties.

And he looked on Amalek and began his parable and sayde: Amalek is the first of the nations, but his latter ende shall perishe vntoly. And he looked on the Kenites and toke his parable and sayde: Stronge is thy dwellinge place and put thy nest vpon a rocke, & reuerthe lesse thou shalt be a burninge to Kain, vntill Assur take the pysonner: And he toke his parable and sayde: Alas, who shall lye when God weth this? The wyppes shall come out of the colle of Chittim, and subdue Assur, and subdue Eber, and he hym selfe shall peryshe at the last. And Balam rose vp & went and dwelt in his place: and Balac also went his waye.

The people commyteth fornicacyon with the daughters of Moab. Phinehes killeth samri and Lozvi. God commaundeth to kill the Midianites.

CAPL XXV.

And Israel dwelte in Sittim, and the people bega to commit fornicacyon with the daughters of Moab, whiche called the people vnto the sacrifice of their goddes.
And the people ate and worshipped their god-des, and Israel coupled him selfe vnto Baal Peor. When the Lozde was angrie with Israel, and sayde vnto Moses: take all the he-des of the people, and hange them by vnto the Lozde against the sonne, that the wrath of the Lozde maye tume awaye frome Israel. And Moses sayde vnto the iudges of Israel: go and slep those men that logned them selues vnto Baal Peor.

And beholde, one of the children of Israel came and brought vnto his brethren, a Midianite wyse in the sight of Moyses and in the sight of all the company of the children of Israel, as they were weppenge in the wyse of the tabernacle of wyntuene. And when Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast sawe it, he rose vp out of the companye and toke a weapon in his hande, and wet after the man of Israel into the house, and thrust them thozow: bothe the man of Israel and also the woman euen thozow the belly of her. And the plague ceased frome the children of Israel. And there dyed in the plague. xiiij.
thousande.

And the Lozde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast, hath turned myne anger away frome the children of Israel, because he was gelous for my sake amonge them, that I had not consumed the children of Israel in my gelousye. Wherefore saye: Beholde, I geue vnto him my couenaunt of peax, and he shall haue it, and his seed after him, euen the counaunt of the preastes office for euer, because he was gelous for his Gods sake and made and out before them, and to lead them in & out that the congregacion of the Lorde be not as a flocke of shepe without a shephearde. And the Lorde saye vnto Moyses: take Joshua the sonne of Nun in whome there is a spūite, & put hyne handes vpon him, and set him before Eleazar the p̄east and before all the congregacion and geue him a charge in their sight. And put thy p̄apie vpon him, that all the company of the chyldren of Israel may heare. And he shall stand before Eleazar the p̄east whiche shall aske counsell for him after the iudgement of Urim before the Lorde: And at the mouth of Eleazar shall bothe he and all the chyldren of Israel with him and all the congregacion, go in and out.

And Moyses dyd as the Lorde commaunded him, and he toke Joshua and set him before Eleazar the p̄east and before all the congregacion, and put his handes vpon him and gaue him a charge, as the Lorde commaunded thow the hande of Moyses.

What must be offered on every feast daye.

CAP. XXVIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moyses, sayinge: Geue the chyldren of Israel a charge and saye vnto them, that they take hede to offer vnto the offeringe of my b̄yrd in the sacrifice of sweete sauoure, in his due season. And saye vnto them. This is the offeringe which ye shall offer vnto the Lorde two lambes of a yere olde with out spot day by daye to be a burnt offeringe perpetually. One lambe thou shalt offer in the morninge, and the other at euen, and thereto the tenth parte of an Ephah of flour for a meat offeringe myngled with beaten oyle, the fourth parte of an hin: which is a daily offeringe offered in the mount Sinai for a sweete sauoure in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And the drynke offeringe of the same: the fourth parte of an hin vnto one lambe, and poure the drynke offeringe in the holy place, to be good drynke vnto the Lorde.

And the other lambe thou shalt offer at euen, with the meat offeringe and the drynke offeringe after the maner of the morninge: a sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And on the Sabbath daye two lambes of a yere olde a pece and without spot, and two tenth deales of flour for a meat offeringe myngled w oyle, & the drynke offeringe thereto. This is the burnt offeringe of every Sabbath, besydes the daily burnt offeringe and his drynke offeringe.

And in the first daye of your monethes, ye shall offer a burnt offeringe vnto the Lorde: ii. younge bullockes, and a ram, and seven lambes of a yere olde without spot, and ii. tenth deales of flour for a meat offeringe myngled with oyle vnto one bullocke, and two tenth deales of flour for a meat offeringe myngled with oyle vnto one Ram. And euenmore, a tenth deale of flour myngled with oyle, for a meat offeringe vnto one lambe. This is a burnt offeringe of a sweete sauoure in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And their drynke offeringes shalbe half an hin of wyne vnto one bullocke and the thyrde part of an hin of wyne vnto a Ram, and the fourth parte of an hin vnto a lambe. This is the burnt offeringe of every moneth thowout all the monethes of the yere, and one he goote for a synne offeringe vnto the Lorde, which shalbe offered with the daily burnt offeringe and his drynke offeringe. And the xij. daye of the first moneth shalbe Pasche ouer vnto the Lorde. And the xv. daye of the same moneth shalbe a feast, in which seven dayes men must eate unleuened bred. The first daye shalbe an holy feast, so that ye shall do no maner laborious worke therein. And ye shall offer a burnt offeringe vnto the Lorde. ii. younge bullockes, one Ram, and seven lambes of a yere olde without spot, & their meat offeringe of flour myngled with oyle. ii. tenth deales vnto a bullocke, and two tenth deales vnto a Ram, and euenmore one tenth deale vnto a lambe, thowout the. vij. lambes: & an he goote for a synne offeringe to make attonement for you.

And ye shall offer these, besyde the burnt offeringe in the morninge that is alwaye offered. And after this maner ye shall offer thowout the seven dayes, the fode of the sacrifice of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And it shalbe done besyde the daily burnt offeringe and his drynke offeringe. And the seuen day shalbe an holy feast vnto you, so that ye shall do no laborious worke therein. And the day of your first frutes when ye bynge a new meat offeringe vnto the Lorde in your weekes, shall be an holy feast vnto you: so that ye shall do no laborious worke therein. And ye shall offer a burnt offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde two younge bullockes, and a Ram, & seven lambes of a yere olde a pece, with their meat offerings of flour myngled with oyle. ii. tenth deales vnto a bullocke, & tenth deales to a Ram, and euenmore one tenth deale vnto a lambe thowout the seven lambes, & an he goote to make attonement for you. And this ye shall do besydes the daily burnt offeringe and his meat offeringe: and they shalbe with out spot, with their drynke offerings.

What muste be offered the eghtt sp̄itic dayes of the seuenth moneth

CAP. XXIX.

And the first daye of the seuenth moneth shalbe an holy feast vnto you & and ye shall do no laborious worke therein. It shall be a daye of trumpet blowinge vnto you. And ye shall offer a burnt offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde: one younge bullocke, and one Ram and seven lambes of a yere olde a pece & are pure. And their meat offerings of flour myngled with oyle thre tenth deales vnto the bullocke, and two vnto the ram, and one tenth deale vnto one labe thowout the seven lambes. And an he goote for a synne offeringe to make an attonement for you besyde the burnt offeringe of the moneth and his meat offeringe and besyde the daily burnt offering, and his meat offering, and the drynke offerings of the same: according to the maner of them, for a sauoure of sweete smell in the sacrifice of the Lorde.

* And the tenth daye of that same seuenth moneth shalbe an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall humble your soules, and shall do no maner worke therein. And ye shall offer a burnt offeringe vnto the Lorde of a sweete sauoure: one bullocke, a ramme, and seven lambes of a yere olde a pece without fault, and their meat offerings of flour myngled with oyle thre tenth deales to a bullocke, and two to a ram, and alwaye a tenth deale vnto a lambe thowout the seven lambes. And one he goote for a synne offeringe, besyde the synne offeringe of attonement, and the daily burnt offeringe, and the meat and drynke offerings that belonge to the same.

* And the fiftie daye of the seuenth moneth shalbe holy day, and ye shall do no laborious worke therein, and ye shall kepe a feast vnto the Lorde of seven dayes longe. And ye shall offer a burnt offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde, thirtene bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene lambes, which are percynges and pure, with oyle thre tenth deales vnto euey one of the thirtene bullockes, two tenth deales to euey of the rammes, and one tenth deale vnto euey of the fourtene lambes. And one he goote vnto a synne offeringe, besyde the daily burnt offeringe, with his meat and drynke offerings.

And the seconde daye twelue yonge bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene percyng lambes without spotte: and theyr meat offerings and drynke offerings vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, according to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an he goote for a synne offeringe, besyde the daily burnt offeringe, and his meat and drynke offerings.

And the thyrde daye eluen bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene percyng lambes, without spotte: and theyr meat and drynke offerings vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, after the nombre of them, and according to the maner. And an he goote for a synne offeringe, besyde the daily burnt offeringe, and his meat and drynke offerings.

And the fourth daye ten bullockes, two rammes, and. xiiij. lambes percynges pure, and theyr meat and drynke offerings vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, according to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an he goote for a synne offeringe, besyde the daily burnt offeringe and his meat and drynke offerings.

And the fiftie daye, nyne bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene lambes of one yere olde a pece, without spotte. And theyr meat and drynke offerings vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, according to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an he goote for a synne offeringe, besyde the daily burnt offeringe and his meat and drynke offerings.

And the sixte daye, eghte bullockes, two rammes, & fourtene percyng lambes without spotte. And theyr meat and drynke offerings vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, according to the maner. And an he goote for a synne offeringe, besyde the daily burnt offeringe, and his meat and drynke offerings.

And the seuenth daye, seven bullockes, two rammes, and thirtene lambes that are percynges and pure. And theyr meat and drynke offerings vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, according to theyr nombre, and to the maner. And an he goote for a synne offeringe, besyde the daily burnt offeringe, and his meat and drynke offerings.

And the eghte daye shall be the conclusion of the feast vnto you, and ye shall do no maner laborious worke therein. And ye shall offer a burnt offeringe of a sweete sauoure vnto the Lorde: one bullocke, one ramme, and seven percyng lambes without spotte. And the meat and drynke offerings vnto the bullocke, ramme, and lambes, according to their nombres, and according to the maner. And an he goote for a synne offeringe, besyde the daily burnt offeringe, and his meat and drynke offerings.

These thynges ye shall do vnto the Lorde in your feast: besyde your bowes and freewill offerings, in your burnt offerings, meat offerings, drynke offerings, and pear offerings. And Moyses tolde the chyldren of Israel, according to all that the Lorde commaunded him.

Of bowes when they shall be kepte, and when not.

CAP. XXX.

And Moyses spake vnto the heades of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: this is the thyng whiche the Lorde commaundeth. If a man bowe a vowe vnto the Lorde, or sweare an othe, and bynde his soule, he shal not go backe with his word but shall fulfill all that procedeth out of his mouth.

If a damosell bowe a vowe vnto the Lorde, and bynde her selfe bynge in her fathers house and unmarried: if her father heare the vowe and bonde, whiche she hath made vpon her soule, and holde his peace thereto: then all her bowes and bondes whiche she hath made vpon her soule, shall stande good. But if her father forbydde her the same daye that he heareth it, none of her bowes ne bondes whiche she hath made vpon her soule, shall be of value, and the Lorde shall forgive her, because her father forbad her.

If she hadde an husbnde when she bowed or pronounced oughte out of her lippes, wherwith she bounde her soule, and her husbnde, and herde it, and helde his peace there at the same daye he herde it: Then her bowes and her bondes wherwith she bounde her her soule, shall stande. But if her husbande forbadde her the same daye he herde it, then hadde he made her vowe which she had vpon her, of none effecte, and that also which she pronounced with her lippes, wherewith she bounde her soule, and the Lorde shall forgive her.

The vowe of a wedowe, and of her that is deuorced, and all that they haue bounde their soules with, shall stande.

If she vowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an othe, and her husbande herde it, and helde his peace and forbade her not: then all her voves and bondes wherewith she bounde her soule, shall stande. But if her husbande disanulled them the same daye he herde them, then nothinge that proceeded oute of her lippes in voves and bondes wherewith she bounde her soule shall stande: for her husbande hath looked them and the Lorde shall forgive her.

All voves and othes that bynde to humble the soule, maye her husbande stablish or bryake. But if her husbande holde his peace frome one daye vnto another, then he stablisheth all her voves and bondes which she had vpon her, because he helde his peace the same daye he herde them. And if he afterwarde bryake them, he shall beare her synne hym selfe.

These are the ordynaunces which the Lorde commaunded Moyses, betwene the man and his wyfe, and betwene the father and his daughter, beyng a damsell in her fathers house.

The Madianites and Salam are slayne. The praye was brought to Moyses and equally diuided a present gyuen of Israel because none of the men were slayne.

CAPL. XXXI.

And the Lorde spake to Moyses, sayinge: * Kenge the chyldren of Israel of the madianites, and afterwarde be gathered vnto thy people. And Moyses spake vnto the folke, sayinge: Warnesse some of you vnto warre, and lette them goo vpon the Madianites, and aueng the Lorde of the Madianites.

Ye shall sende vnto the warre a thousande of euery tribe thowowe oute all the tribes of Israel. And there were taken oute of the thousandes of Israel, twelue thousande prepared vnto warre, of euery tribe a thousande. And Moyses sente them a thousande of euery tribe, with Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the pcesse to warre, and the holie vessels and the trumpettes to blowe in his hande.

* And they warred agaynst the Madianites, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses, and slawe all the males. And they slawe the kynge of Madian, amonges other that were slayne: Sur, Rehun, Zur, Hur, and Reba: five kynge of Madian. And they slawe Balaam the sonne of Beor: with the Madianites.

the chyldren of Israel toke all the women of Madian prisoners, and they chyldren, and spoiled all their catell, their substance and their goodes. And they burnt all their cities wherewith they dwelte, and all their castels with fire. And they toke all the spoyle, and all they coulde cathe, bothe of men and beestes, and brought the captiues, and that which they hadde taken, and all the spoyle vnto Moyses and Eleazar the pcesse, and vnto the companye of the chyldren of Israel, even vnto the hollie, in the felde of Moab by Jordan nere to Jericho.

And Moyses and Eleazar the pcesse, and all the lordes of the companye wente out of the hollie agaynst them. And Moyses was angry with the officers of the hollie, with the capitaynes oure thousandes and oure hundredes, which came frome warre and battayle, and sayde vnto them: Haue ye saved the women aloue? beholde, * these caused the chyldren of Israel thowowe * Salam, to commit trespass agaynst the Lorde, by reason of Peor, and there folowed a plague amonge the congregation of the Lorde.

Nowe therfore * see all the men chyldren and the women that haue lpen with men aschelype: But all the women chyldren that haue not lpen with men, kepe aloue for youre selues. And lodge withoute the hollie seven dayes, all that haue kyllid anye person, * and all that haue touched anye deade bodie, and purifie boche youre selues and youre prisoners, the chyldre daye and the seuenth. And spraye all youre raimentes, and all that is made of skynnes, and all woike of gootes here, and all thynges made of wodde.

And Eleazar the pcesse sayde vnto the men of warre which wente oute to battayle: this is the ordynance of the lawe which the Lorde commaunded Moyses: Solde, syluer, brasse, yron, coppe, and ledde, and all that maye abyde the fyre, ye shall make it go thowowe the fyre, and then it is cleane. Reuer thelesse, it shall be sprayed with spraye of lunge water. And all that suffereth not the fyre, ye shall make go thowowe the water. And make the foure clothes the seuenth daye, and then ye are cleane. And afterwarde come in to the hollie.

And the Lorde spake to Moyses, sayinge: take the somme of the praye that was taken, bothe of women and of catell, thou and Eleazar the pcesse, and the heades of the people. And diuide it in to two partes, blwene them that toke the warre vpon them, and wente oute to battayle, and all the congregation. And take a portion vnto the Lorde of the men of warre which wente oute to battayle: one of fyue hundred, of the women and of the oxen and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shall take it of their halfe and gyue it vnto Eleazar the pcesse, an heur offeringe vnto the Lorde. And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israel, take one of fiftie, of the women, of the oxen, of the asses, and of the shepe, and of all maner of beastes, and gyue them vnto the the Leuites which attende vpon the habitation of the Lorde.

And Moyses and Eleazar the pcesse byd as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the bothe and praye which the men of warre had caught was fyue hundred thousande, and the shepe and fiftene thousand shepe: and the shepe and twelue thousande oxen, the shepe and one thousande asses: and, xxx. thousande women that had lpen by no man.

And the halfe which was the parte of them that wente oute to warre was thye hundred thousande, and, xxxij. thousande, and fyue hundred shepe: And the Lordes parte of the shepe was fyue hundred and thye shepe and fiftene. And the oxen were, xxxvi. thousand, of which the Lordes parte was thye shepe and twelue. And the asses were thye thousande, and fyue hundred, of which the Lordes parte was thye shepe and one. And the women were fiftene thousande, of which the Lordes parte was, xxx. soules.

And Moyses gaue that somme which was the Lordes heur offeringe vnto Eleazar the pcesse, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the other halfe of the chyldren of Israel which the Moyses seuered frome the men of warre, (that is to wete, the halfe that pertayned vnto the congregation) was thye hundred thousande, and, xxxvj. thousande, and fyue hundred shepe: and, xxxvi. thousande oxen: and thye thousande asses and fyue hundred: and fiftene thousande women.

And Moyses toke of this halfe that pertayned vnto the chyldren of Israel: one of euery fiftie bothe of the women and of the catell, and gaue them vnto the Leuites which gaue them attendance vpon the habitation of the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the officers of thousandes of the hollie, the capitaynes oure the thousandes, and the capitaynes oure the hundredes came forth and sayde vnto Moyses: Thy seruantes haue taken the somme of the men of warre, which were vnto oure hande, and there lacked not one man of them. We haue therfore brought a present vnto the Lorde whar euery man found of Jewels of golde, theynes, bracelets, ringes, earynges and spangles to make an attornment for oure soules before the Lorde.

And Moyses and Eleazar toke the golde of them: Jewels of all maner facions. And all the golde of the heur offeringe of the Lorde, of the Capitaynes oure thousandes, and hundredes: was fiftene thousande, seven hundred, and fiftie syles: for the men of warre hadde spoiled euery man for hym selfe. And Moyses and Eleazar the pcesse, toke the golde of the Capitaynes oure the thousandes and oure the hundredes, and brought it in to the tabernacle of wytnesse: to be a me-morail vnto the chyldren of Israel, before the Lorde.

To Ruben and Gad and to halfe the tribe of Manasse, is promysed the possession beyonde Jordan eastward: if they bryng their brethren in to the lande of promys.

The chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad hadde a verye greete multitude of catell. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer, and the lande of Galaad that it was a good soyle for catell, they came and spake vnto Moyses and Eleazar the pcesse, and vnto the Lordes of the congregacion, sayinge: The lande of Ataroth, and Eibon, and Jazer, and Nemrah, and Hesbon, and Elealeh, and Sabam, and Nebo, and Beon which the countrey the Lorde smote before the people of Israel: is a lande good for catell, and we thy seruantes haue catell: Wherfore (sayde they) if we haue founde grace in thy syghte, lette this lande be gyuen vnto thy seruantes to possesse, and byngge vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moyses sayde to the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben: Shall your brethren goo to warre, and ye carpe here? Wherfore discorage ye the herdes of the chyldren of Israel, for to go ouer in to the lande which the Lorde hath gyuen them. * This byd your fathers, when I sent them from Cabot barne to se the lande. And they wente by euen vnto the ryuer of Escol, and sawe the lande and discouraged the herdes of the chyldren of Israel, that they wolde not go in to the lande which the Lorde hadde gyuen them.

And the Lorde was wrothe the same tyme and swate, sayinge. * None of the men that came oute of Egypte frome twentye yere olde and aboue, shall se the lande which I swate vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, because they haue not continually folowed me: save Caleb the sonne of Iephune the Kenesye, and Josua the sonne of Nun, for they haue folowed me continually. And the Lorde was angry with Israel, and made them wander in the wyldernesse fortye yere, vntill all the generacion that hadde doone cupil in the syghte of the Lorde, were consumed.

And beholde, ye are tpsen by in your fathers steade. so the increase of synfull men, and to augemente the scars wyathe of the Lorde towards Israel. For if ye do tounne awaye from him, he will yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, so shall ye destroye all this folke.

And they wente nere hym and sayde: we will buyde theseloues here for oure shepe and for oure catell, and cytes for oure chyldren: But we oure selues will goo eche armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntill we haue broughte them vnto their place. And oure chyldren shall dwell in the fenced cytes, because of the inhabytors of the lande. And we will not retourne vnto oure houses, vntill the chyldren of Israel haue entered: euery man his enheritaunce. for we will not enheryte with them on yonder syde Jordan eastward, because oure enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordane East Eastward.

*Iosua.ii.

And Moses said vnto them: *Yf ye wyl do this thing, that ye wyl go al harnessed before the Loide to warre, and wyl goo all of you in harnesse ouer Jordan before the Loide, vntill he haue caste oute his enemyes before you, and vntill the lande be subdued before the Loide, then ye shall retorne and be without synne agaynst the Loide and agaynst Israel, and this Lande shall be your possession before the Loide.

But if ye wyl not doo so: beholde, ye synne agaynst the Loide: and be sure your synne wyl synde you out, buyde your eyes for your chyldren, and fooldes for your wepe, and se ye too that ye haue spoken. And the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruantes wyl doo as my Loide commaundeth. Our chyldren, our wyues, our substance, and all our cattell shall remaine here in the cyties of Galaad. But *we thy seruantes wyl go all harnessed for the warre vnto barabie before the Loide, as my Loide hath sayd.

And Moses commaunded Eleazar the p'rest, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient headres of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, and said vnto them: Yf the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben wyl go with you ouer Jordan al prepared to fyght before the Loide, then when the lande is subdued vnto you, gyue them the lande of Galaad to possesse, but if they wyl not go ouer with you in harnesse then they shal haue their possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaan. And the chyldren of Gad and Ruben answered, sayinge: that whiche the Loide hath sayde vnto thy seruantes we wyl doo. *We wyl go harnessed before the Loide in to the lande Canaan and the possession of our inheritance shall be on this syde Jordan.

And Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben, and vnto valse the trybe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kyngdome of Sehon kyng of the Amoytes, and the kyngdome of Og kyng of Basan, the land that belongeth vnto the cyties thereof in the colles of the countrey rounde aboute. And the chyldren of Gad buylt Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, Kerioth, Saphan, Jaser, Jegabba, Bethnuna, and Betharan ten cittyes, and they buylt fortres for the wepe. And the chyldren of Ruben buylt Hesbon, Eleale, Kiriataim, Nabo, Baal, Seon, and turned their names, & Sibama also: and gaue names vnto the cyties whiche they buylt.

And the *chyldren of Machir, the sonne of Manasse wente to Galaad and toke it, and put oute the Amoytes that were there. And Moses gaue Galaad vnto Machir, the sonne of Manasse: and he dwelleth therein.

And *Josua the sonne of Manasse, wente and toke the small townes thereof, and called them the townes of Zabir. And Nobah went and take Kenath with the townes belonnginge thereto, and called it Nobah after his owne name.

The Iourneys and departynge frome place to place of Israel are nombred. They are commaunded to hyl the Canaanites.

CAPL XXXIIL

These are the Iourneys of the chyldren of Israel, whiche went out of the lande of Egypt with theyr armyes vnder Moses and Aaron. And Moses wrote theyr goynge out by theyr Iourneys at the commaundement of the Loide: such these are the Iourneys of theyr goynge out. The chyldren of Israel departed frome Kadesh the fiftene daye of the firste moneth, on the moztwe after *Passouer, and went out with an bygde bande in the syghte of all Egypte, whyle the Egyptians buryed all theyr firste bozne whiche the Loide hadde smytten amonge them. And vpon theyr Soddes also the Loide dyd execution. And the chyldren of Israel remoued frome Kadesh, and pitched in Socoth.

And they departed from *Socoth and pitched their tentes in Echan, whiche is in the edge of the wyldernesse. And they remoued frome Echan, and tourned in to the entrynge of *Piorth whiche is before Baal Zephon, and pitched before Migdol. And they departed frome before Piorth, and *wente thowme the myddes of the see in to the wyldernesse, and wente the dayes Iourneys in the wyldernesse of Echan, and pitched in Harah. And they remoued from Harah, & wente vnto *Elim, where were twelue fountayns and thre scoie and ten paulme trees, and they pitched there.

And they remoued frome Elim, and lape falk by the redde see. Frome whence they remoued, and lape in the *wyldernesse of Sin. And they toke theyr Iourney oute of the wyldernesse of Sin, and sette vp theyr tentes in Daphka, from whence they departed, and lape in Alus, and they remoued frome Alus, and lape at *Kaphedim where was no water for the people to drynke. And they departed from Kaphedim, and pitched in the wyldernesse of Sinai.

And from thence they remoued, and lodged at the *graures of Iuse. And they departed from the sepulchres of Iuse, and lape at *Haracroth. And frome Haracroth, and pitched in Kiphma. And departed frome Kiphma, and pitched at Rimon Parez. And they departed from Rimon Parez, and pitched in Libna. And they remoued frome Libna, and pitched at Kisha. And they Iourneyed from Kisha, and pitched in Kehelatha. And so preched in mount Sapher, and they remoued fro mount Sapher and lape in Harada. And they remoued frome Harada, and pitched in Jaiheboeth.

And remouynge frome Jaiheboeth, and lape at Zabarath, and they departed frome Zabarath, and pitched at Tharath. And they remoued frome Tharath, and pitched in Mitha. And they wente frome Mitha, and lodged in Harmona. And they departed from Harmona and lape at Moseroth. And they departed from Moseroth, and pitched in Wane Zahan, and lape at Doy gadgad. And they went from Doy gadgad, and pitched in Jathbatha. And they remoued from Jathbatha, and lape at Abzona. And they departed frome Abzona, and lape at Eron Gader. And they remoued fro Eron Gader, & pitched in the *wyldernesse of Sin, whiche is Kades. And they remoued from Kades, and pitched in mount Doy in the edge of the lande of Edom.

*And Aaron the p'rest wente vp in to mount Doy at thappoyment of the Loide, And dyed there, euen in the fortyeth yere after the chyldren of Israel were come oute of the lande of Egypte, and in the firste daye of the fift moneth. And Aaron was an hundred & thirte and thre yere olde, when he dyd in mount Doy. And kynge Erad the Canaanite, whiche dwelte in the south of the lande of Canaan, herde that the chyldren of Israel were come.

And they departed frome *mount Doy, & pitched in Zalmona. And they departed from Zalmona, and pitched in Phimon. And they departed frome Phimon, and pitched in Oboth. And they departed frome Oboth, and pitched in Iehabarim in the borders of Moab. And they departed frome *Iehabarim, and pitched in Dibon Gad. And they remoued from Dibon Gad, and lape in Almon Diblathama. And they remoued frome Almon Diblathama, and pitched in the mountaynes of Abarim before Raabo. And they departed frome the mountaynes of Abarim, and pitched in the felde of Moab falk by Jordan, nygh to Jericho. And they pitched vpon Jordan, frome Beth Bailemoth vnto the piapne of Abel Satim in the felde of Moab.

And the Loide spake vnto Moses in the felde of Moab by Jordan nygh vnto Jericho, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye are come ouer Jordan in the Lande of Canaan, se ye vyue oute all thimbabytauntes of the lande before you, and destroye theyr cha-pelles, and all theyr Images of metall, and plucke downe all theyr altiers buylte on pylles: And possesse the lande and dwell therein, for I haue gyuen you the lande to enioye it. And ye shall drynke the enherptaunce of the lande by lotte amonges your kynredes, and gyue to the moo the moze enherptaunce, and to the fewer, the lesse enherptaunce. And your enherptaunce shall be in the trybes of your fathers, in the place where euery mans lotte fallery.

That yf ye wyl not dryue oute the inhabitants of the lande before you, then those whiche ye lette remaine of them, shall be thornes in your eyes, and darts in your sides, and shall bere you in the lande wherein ye dwell. *Moreouer it wyl come to passe, that I shall doo vnto you, as I thoughte to doo vnto them.

The Lottes and borders of the lande of promise. Certayne are assigned to diuide the lande.

CAPL XXXIIII.

And the Loide spake vnto Moses, sayinge: *Commaunde the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye come in to the lande of Canaan, this is the lande that shall fall vnto your enherptaunce the lande of Canaan with all her colles.

And *your southe quarter shall be frome the wyldernesse of Sin alonge by the colse of Edom, so that your southe quarter shall be frome the syde of the salte see eastward, and shall set a compasse frome the south by to Acrabim, and reache to Zinna. And it shall goo oute on the south syde of Kades Barne / and go oute also at Hazer Abar, and go alonge to Azmon. And shall sette a compasse frome Azmon vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and shall goo out at the see.

And your west quarter shal be the great see, & whiche colse shall be your west colse.

And this shall be your nozthe quarter: ye shall compasse frome the great see vnto mount Doy. And frome mount Doy, ye shall compasse and go vnto Hemath: and the ende of the colse shall be at Zedaba, and the colse shall reache oute to Ziphzion and goo oute at Hazer Enan. And this shall be your nozthe quarter.

And ye shall compasse your East quarter, from Hazer enan to Sepham. And the colse shall goo downe frome Sepham to Ribia on the East syde of Ain. And then descende and goo oute at the syde of the see of Cene-reth eastward. And then goo downe alonge by Jordan, and leaue at the salte see. And this shall be your lande with all the colles therof rounde aboute.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: this is the lande whiche ye shall enherpte by lotte, and whiche the Loide commaunded to gyue vnto nyne trybes and an halfe: *for the trybe of the chyldren of Ruben haue receyued in the householdes of theyr fathers, and the trybe of the chyldren of Gad, in theyr fathers householdes / and halfe the trybe of Manasse, haue receyued theyr enherptaunce / that is to wete, two trybes and an halfe haue receyued theyr enherptaunce on the othre syde of Jordan by Jericho eastward, towarde the sonne ry-synge.

And the Loide spake vnto Moses, sayinge: These are the names of the men, whiche shall drynke you the lande to enherpte, Eleazar the p'rest / and *Josua the sonne of Nun. And ye shall take also a lozbe of euery trybe to de vyde the lande, whose names are these: In the trybe of Iuda, Caleb the sonne of Iephune. And in the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon, Samuel the sonne of Amud. And in the trybe of Benjamin, Elidad the sonne of Elion. And in the trybe of the chyldren of Dan / the lozbe Bucki the sonne of Jagli.

And

And amonge the chyldren of Joseph: in the tribe of the chyldren of Manasse, the loyde Daniel the sonne of Ephod. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Ephraim, the loyde Samuel the sonne of Siphren. And in the tribe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the loyde Elzaphan the sonne of Phurnach. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Issachar, the loyde Paltiel the sonne of Man. And in the tribe of the sonnes of Aser, the loyde Abihud the sonne of Salomi. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Naphtali, the loyde Beda El the sonne of Amihud. These are they whiche the loyde commaunded to dwelle the inheritance vnto the chyldren of Israel, in the lande of Canaan.

¶ Into the Leuites must be given Cities and suburbs. The Cities of refuge of sanctuaries. The lawe of manuellpuge. For one mannes witnesse shall no man be condemned.

CAPL XXXV.

And the Lozde spake to Moses in the feldes of Moab by Jordane ouer agaynst Jericho, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, that they gyue vnto the Leuites of the inheritance of theyr possession: cities to dwell in. And ye shall gyue also vnto the cities of the Leuites, suburbs rounde aboute them. The cities shall be for them to dwell in, and the suburbs for theyr cattle, possession, and all maner beastes of theyr.

And the suburbs of the cities whiche ye shall gyue vnto the Leuites, shall reache from the wall of the city outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde aboute. And ye shall measure withoute the cite, and make the uttermost border of the east syde, two thousande cubytes. And the uttermost border of the south syde, two thousande cubytes. And the uttermost border of the west syde, two thousande cubytes: and the uttermost border of the north syde, two thousande cubytes also: and the city shall be in the myddes. And these shall be the suburbs of theyr cities.

And amonge the cities whiche ye shall gyue vnto the Leuites, there shall be six cities of franchises, whiche ye shall gyue so that in that, that he whiche killeth maye see theyr. And to them ye shall adde fourtye and two cities moore: so that all the cities whiche ye shall gyue the Leuites, shall be fourtye and syght with theyr suburbs.

And of the cities whiche ye shall gyue out of the possessions of the chyldren of Israel, ye shall gyue manye out of theyr possessions that haue moche, and some out of theyr possessions that haue litle: so that euerye tribe shall gyue of his cities vnto the Leuites, accordyng to the inheritance whiche he enheriteth.

And the Lozde spake to Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: when ye be come ouer Jordane into the lande of Canaan, ye shall buyde cy-ties, whiche shall be privileged townes for you: that he whiche sleeth a man vnwares, maye flee thither. And the cities shall be to flee from the reuenger of bloude, that he whiche killeth dye not, vnles he stande before the congregation in iudgement.

And of these six free cities whiche ye shall gyue, three ye shall gyue on this syde Jordane, and three in the lande of Canaan. And these six free cities shall be for the chyldren of Israel, and for the stranger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you, that all they whiche kille vnwares, maye flee thither.

If any man smyte an other with a weapon of yron that he dye, then he is a murderer: and shall dye for it.

If he smyte hym with a chynnyng stone that he dye therewith, then he shall dye, for he is a murderer, and shall be slayne therfor.

If he smyte hym with a hande weapon of wood that he dye therewith, then he shall dye: for he is a murderer, and shall be slayne therfor.

The iudger of bloude shall see the murderer, as soone as he synnderth hym: If he thynk at hym of hate, or hurle at hym with lynges awaye that he dye, or smyte hym with his hande of malice that he dye, he that smote hym shall dye, for he is a murderer. The iudger of bloude shall see hym as soone as he synnderth hym.

But if he pussed hym by chaunce, and not of hate, or caste at hym with anye maner of stynge, and not lynges of wapte: or caste anye maner of stone at hym that he dye therewith, and sawe hym not: And he caste it vpon hym and he dye, but was not his enemye, neither soughte hym anye harme: then the congregation shall iudge bytwene the flier, and the reuenger of bloude in suche cases. And the congregation shall deliuer the flier out of the hande of the reuenger of bloude, and shall restore hym agayne vnto the franchised cytye whither he was fledde. And he shall remayne there vnto the death of the hygge preele whiche was anoynted with holy oyle.

But if he came withoute the symptes of his privileged cite whither he was fledde, if the auenger of bloude fynde hym withoute the preele, of his free towne, he shall see the murderer, and be gylelesse: because he shoulde haue kepte hym selfe in his free towne vntill the death of the hygge preele, and after the death of the hygge preele, he shall retorne agayne vnto the lande of his possession. And this shall be an ordynance and a lawe vnto you, amonge youre chyldren after you, in all youre habitacions.

Who so euer sleeth, shall be slayne by the mouth of wytnesses. For one wytnesse shall not psonifye agaynst one person to put him to death. Wherfore ye shall take none amercies for the sle of the murderer whiche is worthy to dye: but he shall be put to death. Also ye shall take none attonement for him that is fledde to a free cite, that he shoulde come agayne and dwell in the lande before the death of

of the hygge preele. And se ye despyle not the lande whiche ye are in: for bloude despyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwyse be cleansed of the bloude that is shedde therein, but by the bloude of hym that shedde it. Despyle not therfore the lande whiche ye inhabyte, and in the myddes of whiche, I also dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel.

¶ An order for the marriage of the daughters of Zelaphead. One of the tribes maye not marie with an other: but euerye one muste take him a wyfe of his owne tribe.

CAPL XXXVI.

And the heedes of the chyldren of Gad the sonne of Gad the sonne of the hynde of the chyldren of Joseph, came forth and spake before Moses and the princes which were ancient vnto amonge the chyldren of Israel, and sayd: The Lozde commaunded my loyde to gyue the lande to inherite by lotte to the chyldren of Israel. And then my loyde commaunded in the name of the Lozde, to gyue the inheritance of Zelaphead our byother vnto his daughters.

¶ And when any of the sonnes of the tribes of Israel take them to wyues, then shall theyr inheritance be taken from the inheritance of our fathers, and shall be put vnto the inheritance of the tribe in whiche they are, and shall be taken from the lotte of our inheritance. And when the yere of Jubilee cometh vnto the chyldren of Israel, then shall theyr inheritance be put vnto the inheritance of the tribe wherin they are and so shall theyr inheritance be taken away from the inheritance of the tribe of our fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel at the mouth of the Lozde, sayng: the tribe of the chyldren of Joseph haue sayd well. This thynge dothe the Lozde commaunde the daughters of Zelaphead, sayng: Let them be wyues to whom they them selfe thinke beste, but in the kyned of the tribe of theyr father shall they mary, that the inheritance of the chyldren of Israel coule not from tribe to tribe. But that the chyldren of Israel maye abyde euerye man in the inheritance of the tribe of his fathers.

And euery daughter that possesse anye inheritance, amonge the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, shall be wyfe vnto one of the kyned of the tribe of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euerye man the inheritance of his father, and that the inheritance goe not from one tribe to an other: but that the tribes of the chyldren of Israel maye abyde euerye man in his owne inheritance.

And as the Lozde commaunded Moses, to gyue to byd the daughters of Zelaphead: Bela, Shira, Hagla, Milcha, and Noa, and were married vnto theyr fathers byother sonnes, of the kyned of the chyldren of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, and so they hadde theyr inheritance in the tribe of the kyned of theyr father. These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lozde commaunded thowme Moyses vnto the chyldren of Israel in the feldes of Moab vpon Jordane nere vnto Jericho.

THE FIFTE BOOKE OF MOSES CALLED DEUTERONOMIUM.

A briefe rehearsal of thynges done before, frome the ppechinge at mount Horeb vntill they came to Cades barne.

CAP. I.

THese be the wordes which Moles spake vnto al Israel on the other syde Jordan in the wyldernes in the feltes by the red see, betwene Pharan & Thophel, Laban, Hazereth, and Disahab xi. dayes journey frome Horeb vnto Cades barne, by the way that ledeh vnto mount Seir. And it happened the first daye of the xi. moneth, in the xi. yere that Moles spake vnto the chyldren of Israel according vnto all that the Loyde had gyuen him in commaundement vnto them after he had smyten Sehon the kynge of the Amorytes which dwelt in Heshon and Og kynge of Basan, whiche dwelt at Asaroth in Ediat.

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, Moles began to declare this law, sayinge: the Loyde oure God spake vnto vs in Horeb, saying: Ye haue dwelt long ynough in this mount: departe therfore and take your iourney and go vnto the hylls of the Amorytes, and vnto all places vnto there vnto: both feltes, hylls and dales: and vnto the southe and vnto the sees syde of the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set the lande before you: go in therfore and possesse the lande whiche the Loyde swaue vnto your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to gyue vnto them, and they lede after them.

And I sayd vnto you the same season: I am not habile to beare you my selfe alone, for the Loyde your God hath multiplied you: so that ye are this daye as the sterres of heuen in nomber. The Loyde God of your fathers make you a thousande tymes so many mo as ye are, and blesse you as he hath promysed you. How said I can? I my selfe alone beare the acerbitye charge and strepe that is amonyes you: byng therfore men of wyldome and of vnderstandynge and of experience, knowne among your trybes, that I maye make them rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and sayd, that which thou hast spoken is good to be done. And then I toke the herdes of your trybes men of wyldome and experience, and made them rulers ouer you: capitaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, and ouer ten, and officers amonge your trybes.

And I chargede your Iudges the same tyme, sayinge: beare your brethren, and iudge righteously betwene euery man and his brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Se ye know no mans personage in iudgement, but beare the small as well as the greace, and be asfearde of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is to harde for you, bringe vnto me, and I wyll heare it. And I commaunded you the same season al thynges whiche ye shoulde do. And then we departed frome Horeb, and walked thowt all that great and terrible wyldernes as ye haue sene alonge by the waye that leadeh vnto the hylls of the Amorytes, as the Loyde oure God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne. And there I sayd vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hylls of the Amorytes whiche the Loyde oure God dothe gyue vs.

Beholde, the Loyde thy God hath set the lande before, goe vp and conquire it, as the Loyde God of thy fathers saythe vnto the: feare not, neyther be discouraged. And then ye came vnto me euery one, and sayde. Lette vs sende men before vs, to intercheute the lande, and to byngge vs wordes agayne, bothe what waye we shall goe vs by, and vnto what trytes we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I take twelue men of you, of euery trybe one. And they departed and wente vp in to the hygge countrye, and came vnto the ryuer Scith, and serched it ouer, and toke of the frute of the lande in theyr handes, and broughte it bothe vnto vs, and broughte vs wordes agayne and sayd: It is a good lande whiche the Loyde oure God dothe gyue vs.

Notwithstandynge ye wolde not consent to goe vp, but were disobediente vnto the mouth of the Loyd your God, and murmured in your tentes, and sayde: bycause the Loyde hateth vs, therfore he hath broughte vs oute of the lande of Egypte, to deliuer vs into the handes of the Amorytes, and to deliue vs. Howe shall we goe vp? Sure brethren haue discouraged our hertes. sayinge: The people is greater and taller then we, and the cities are greace and walled, euen vnto heuen: and more ouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there.

And I sayde vnto you: dyed not, neyther be asfearde of them. The Loyde your God which goeth before you, he shall fyghe for you according to all that he dyd vnto you in Egypte, before your eyes, and in the wyldernes, as thou hast sene how the Loyde thy God bare the as a man shoulde beare his sonne thowt out all the waye whiche ye haue gone, tyll ye came vnto this place. And yet for all this, ye dyd not byleue the Loyde your God, whiche goeth the waye before you, to serche you oute a place to ppeche your tentes in, in the bynght, that ye myght se what waye to goe and in a cloude by daye.

And the Loyde herde the voyce of your wordes, and was wrothe and swaue, sayinge: there shall not one of these men of this feowarde generation se that good lande whiche I swaue to gyue vnto your fathers, save I swaue the sonne of Zephune, he shall se it: and to hym wyll I gyue the lande whiche he hath walked in, and to his chyldren bycause he hath continually folowed the Loyde.

Arke wyll the Loyde was angrie with me for your sake, sayinge: thou also walte not good in this. But Josua the sonne of Nun whiche standeth before the, he shall go in thither. Bolden him therfore for he shall diuylde the heritage vnto Israel.

Moreover your chyldren whiche ye sayd shoulde be a praye, and your sonnes whiche knowe neyther good nor bad this daye, they shall goo in thither, and vnto them I wyll gyue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne backe and take your iourney in to the wyldernes: euen the waye to the redde see. Then ye answered and sayde vnto me: We haue sinned agaynst the Loyde: we wyll goo vp and fyghe, accordinge to all that the Loyde oure God commaunded vs.

And when ye hadde gyde on euery man his weapons of warre, and were redde to goe vp in to the hylls, the Loyde sayd vnto me: saye vnto them, se ye go not vp and that ye fyghe not, for I am not amonyes you: I se ye be couged before your ennemyes. And when I told you ye wolde not heare: but disobeyed the mouth of the Loyde, and wente presumptuously vp in to the hylls.

Then the Amorytes whiche dwelt in those hylls, came out agaynst you and chased you as bees do, and bewed you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came agayne and wept before the Loyde: but the Loyd wold not heare your voyce, nor gyue you audience. And so ye abode in Cades alonge season.

A rehearsal of that which was done frome the tyme that they departed frome Cades barne, vnto the battell agaynst the kynge Sehon and Og.

CAP. II.

II.

Then we turned and toke oure iourneys in to the wyldernes, euen the waye to the redde see as the Loyde commaunded me. And we compassed the mountaynes of Seir a long tyme. Then the Loyde spake vnto me sayinge: Ye haue compassed this mountaynes longe ynough, turne you northwarde. And warne the people, saying: Ye shall go thowt the colles of your brethren the chyldren of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir, and they shall be asfearde of you: But take good hede vnto your selues, that ye prouoke them not, for I wyll not gyue you of theyr lande, no not so moche as a foote breade: bycause I haue gyuen mounte Seir vnto Esau to possesse. Ye shall bye meate of them for money to eate: and ye shall bye water of them for money to drynke. For the Loyde thy God hath blessed the in al the wayes of thyne hand, and knowe the as thou wentest thowt his great wyldernes. Moreover the Loyde thy God hath ben with the this fourtye yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothinge.

And when we were departed from our brethren the chyldren of Esau whiche dwelt in Seir by the felde waye from Elath and Ezion Gaber, we turned and wente the waye to the wyldernes of Moab. Then the Loyde sayd vnto me, se that thou be not the Moabites, neyther prouoke them to battayle, for I wyll not gyue the of theyr lande to possesse: bycause I haue gyuen it vnto the chyldren of Lot to possesse. The Emims dwelt therein in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: whiche also were taken for gyantes as the Enakims: And the Moabites called them Emims.

In lyke maner the Emims dwelt in Seir before tyme whiche the chyldren of Esau cast out, and destroyed them before them & dwelt there in theyr sede: as Israel dyd in the lande of his possession whiche the Loyde gaue them. Nowtyle by sayd I and get you ouer the ryuer Zared: and we wente ouer the ryuer Zared. The space in which we came from Cades Barne, vntill we were come ouer the ryuer Zared was xxxviij. yeres, vntill all the generation of the men of warre were wasted oute of the hode as the Loyde swaue vnto them. For in dew the hand of the Loyde was agaynst them to destroye them oute of the hode, tyll they were consumed.

And as soone as all the men of warre were consumed and deed for the of the people, then the Loyde spake vnto me, sayinge. Thou walte go thowt the colles of Moab this daye, and walte come nre vnto the chyldren of Ammon: se thou beere them not, nor yet prouoke them. For I wyll not gyue the of the lande of the chyldren of Ammon to possesse, bycause I haue gyuen it vnto the chyldren of Lot to possesse. That also was taken for a land of gyantes, and gyantes dwelt therein in olde tyme, and the Ammonites called them Zanzumims. A people that was greace, many and tall, as the Enakims. But the Loyde destroyed them before the Ammonites, and they caste them out, and they dwelt there in theyr sede: as he dyd for the chyldren of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Emims before them, and they caste them oute and dwell in theyr sede vnto this daye. And the Emims whiche dwelt in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims whiche came out of Caphthor, destroyed them and dwelt in theyr rowmes.

Kyle by, take your iourneys and goe ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, I haue gyuen in to thy hande Sehon the Amoryte, kynge of Heshon and his lande. Go and conquire, and prouoke hym to battayle. This daye I wyll begyn to sende the feare and dred of the vpon all nations that are vnder al portes of the heauen: so that when they heare speake of the, they shall tremble and quake for feare of the.

Then I sente messengers oute of the wyldernes of the east vnto Sehon kynge of Heshon with wordes of pear, sayinge: Let me goo thowt the lande. I wyll goo alwayes alonge by the bye waye, and will neither turne vnto the right hand nor to the left. Sell me meate for money to eate, and gyue me drynke for money to drynke. I wyll go thowt by foote onely (as the chyldren of Esau dyd vnto me whiche dwell in Seir, and the Moabites whiche dwell in Ar) vntill I be come ouer the ryuer Jordan.

Jordan in to the lande whiche the Lorde our God geueth vs.

But Sehon the kyng of Hesbon wolde not let vs passe by him, for the Lorde thy God had hardened his spyrte, and made his herte tough because he wolde deliuer him in to thy handes, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: beholde I haue begon to let Sehon and his lande þe-fore the: go to and conquire, that thou mayst possesse his lande. When bothe Sehon and all his people came out agaynst vs vnto batayle at Jahaza. And the Lorde set him before vs, and we smote hym and his sonnes and all his people.

And we toke all his cityes the same season and destroyed all his cityes, with men, women and chyldren, and let nothinge remayne save the catell onely we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cityes whiche we toke, frome Aroer vpon the bynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and the cite in the ryuer, vnto Galaad: there was not one cite to stronge for vs. The Lorde our God deliuered all vnto vs: onely vnto the lande of the chyldren of Ammon ye came not, nor vnto all the coste of the ryuer Jaboche, nor vnto the cityes in the mountaynes, nor vnto what so euer the Lorde our God forbad vs.

Then we turned and wente by the waye to Basan: And Og the kyng of Basan came out agaynst vs: bothe he and all his people to battell at Edjai. And the Lorde sayd vnto me: feare hym not, for I haue deliuered him and all his people and his lande in to thy hande, and thou shalt deale with hym as thou dealest with Sehon kyng of the Amoytes whiche dwelte at Hesbon. And so the Lorde oure God deliuered in to our handes, Og also the kyng of Basan, and all his folke. And we smote hym, tyll noughte was lefte hym.

And we toke all his cityes the same season (for there was not a cite which we toke not from them, euen thye scoze cityes, all the region of Argob, the kyngdom of Og in Basan. All these cityes were made stronge with hye walles, gates, and barres: besyde buttressed townes a greate meyn. And we utterly destroyed them as we played with Sehon kyng of Hesbon, bynginge to noughte all the cytys with men, women, and chyldren. But all the catell and the spoyle of the cityes, we pre serued for our selues.

And thus we toke the same season, the lande oute of the hande of two kynges of the Amoytes on the other syde Jordan, frome thye ryuer of Arnon vnto mounte Hermon, (whiche Hermon the Sidons call Sion, but the Amoytes call it Senir) all the cityes in the plaine, and all Galaad, eall Basan vnto Salecha and Edjai, cityes of the kyngdom of Og in Basan. For onely Og kyng of Basan remayned of the rest of the gyautes/beholde his ryon beo is yet at Iabab among the chyldren of Ammon, nyne cubytes longe, and four cubytes brode, of the cubytes of a man.

And when we had conquered this land the same tyme, I gaue from Aroer, which is vpon the riuer of Arnon, and halfe mounte Salaad, and the cytes therof vnto the Rubenites, and Gadites. And the rest of Salaad and all Basan, the kyngdom of Og I gaue vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse, all the region of Argob withall. Basan was called the lande of gyautes. For the sonne of Manasse toke all the region of Argob vnto the coles of Othuri and Maachari, and called them after his owne name: Basan þe Hauoth Jar vnto this daye. And I gaue halfe Salaad vnto Gad. And vnto Ruben and Gad I gaue fro Galaad vnto the ryuer of Arnon, and halfe the balley and the coste, euen vnto the ryuer Jaboche, whiche is the bozder of the chyldren of Ammon, and the feldes and Jordan with the toll from Gilead vnto the see in the felde, whiche is the salt see vnder the spynges of Iabab eastward.

And I commaunded you the same tyme (ye Ruben and Gad) sayinge: the Lorde your God hath geuen you this lande to enioye: use you goo harnessed before poure brethzen the chyldren of Israel all that are men of warre amonges you. Your wyues onely, poure chyldren and poure catell (for I wote that ye haue moche catell) shall abyde in poure cityes which I haue geuen you, vntill the Lorde haue geuen rest vnto poure brethzen as well as vnto you, and vntill they also haue conquered the lande which the Lorde your God hath geuen them beyonde Jordan: and then recourne agayne euery man vnto his possession which I haue geuen you.

And I warned Josua the same tyme, sayinge: thyne eyes haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so the Lorde will doo vnto all kyngdomes whither thou goest. Feare them not, for the Lorde your God it is, that fygtheth for you.

And I besought the Lorde the same tyme, sayinge: O Lorde God, thou hast begon to shewe thy seruaunt thy greatnesse & thy myghte by thine hande, for there is no God in heuen nor in erth that can doo after thy workes, and after thy power: let me goo ouer and se the good land that is beyonde Jordan, that goodly bycountrie, and Libanon. But the Lorde was angry with me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayde vnto me: be content, and speake hence forth no more vnto me of this matter. ¶ Get the vp in to the top of Phalsgab and lyfte by thine eyes west, north, south and east, and beholde it with thine eyes: for thou shalt not goo ouer this Jordan. Wherefore charge Josua and encourage him, and bolden him, for he shall go ouer before his people, & he shall drye the lande, whiche thou shalt se. vnto them. And so we abode in the balley beynde Bethphero.

CAPL.

III.

Ad nowe hearken Israel vnto the ordynaunces and lawes which I teache you for to doo them, that ye maye lyue and go and conquire the lande whiche the Lorde God of your fathers geueth you. Ye shall put nothinge vnto the word whiche I commaunde you, neyther do oughte thereto, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde your God, whiche I commaunde you. ¶ Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd to Baal Peor: for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lorde your God hath destroyed amonge you. But ye that claued vnto the Lorde your God are alijue euery one of you this daye. Beholde, I haue taught you ordynaunces and lawes suche as the Lorde my God commaunded me that ye shoulde do in the lande whither ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therefore and do them, for that is your wylsome and vnderstandynge in the sight of the nations: whiche when they haue herde all these ordynaunces, shall saye: What a wyse and vnderstanding people is this grete nation. For what nation is so grete that hath Goddes so nye vnto him: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs in all thynges, when we call vnto him? Yea, and what nation is so grete, that hath ordynaunces and lawes so ryghteous, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye.

Take heede to thy selfe therefore onely, and kepe thy soule diligently, that thou forget not the thynges whiche thine eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thine herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teache them thy sonnes, and thy sonnes sonnes. The daye that I shal before the Lorde your God in Horeb when he sayd vnto me, gather me þe people together, that I may make them heare my wordes to thintent they may lerne to feare me as long as they lyue vpon the erth, and that they may teache the: chyldren: ye came and shode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnt with fire: euen vnto the myddes of heuen, & there was thynnes cloudes and mist. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the fire, and ye bred the voyce of the wordes: but saw no ymage, save herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt, whiche he commaunded you to doo, euen ten saynges, and wrote them in to tables of stone. And the Lorde commaunded me that same season to teache you ordynaunces and lawes, for to doo them in the lande whither ye goo to possesse it.

Take heede vnto poure selues diligently, concerninge poure soules, for ye shalve no matter of ymage the day whē the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the fire, lest you marre your selues, and make you grauen ymages after what so euer lykenesse it be: whither after the lykenes of man or woman, or anye maner beest that is on the erth, or of any maner fowle that flieth in the ayre, or of any maner worme that creepeth on the erth, or of any maner fysh that is in the water benethe the erth: yea and lest thou lyfte by thine eyes vnto heuen, and when thou seest the sonne and the moone and the steres, and what so euer is coneyned in heuen, shouldest be discipled, and shouldest bowe thy selfe vnto them, and serue þe thynges whiche the Lorde thy God hath dyscrebuted vnto all nations, that are vnder all quarters of heuen.

For the Lorde toke you and broughte you out of the ryon forname of Egypte, to be vnto him a people of enclerstaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. Furthermore, the Lorde was angrye with me for your sakes and swore, that I shoulde not goo ouer Jordan, and that I shoulde not go vnto that good lande, whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the to enheritaunce. For I muste dye in this lande, and shall not goo ouer Jordan. But ye shall goo ouer and conquire that good lande.

Take heede vnto poure selues therefore that ye forget not the appoyntment of the Lorde your God whiche he made with you, and that ye make you no grauen ymage of what so euer it be that the Lorde thy God hath forbydden the. For the Lorde thy God is a consuming fire and a gelous God.

¶ Ye after thou hast gotten chyldren, and chyldrens chyldren, and haue dwelte longe in the lande, ye shall marre poure selues and make grauen ymages after the lykenesse of what so euer it be, and shalt worke wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke him, I call heuen and earthe to recorde vnto you this daye, that ye shall wyckedly perseyue forthe of the lande whither ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it: ye shall not prolonge poure dayes therein, but shall shortly be destroyed. And the Lorde shall shatter you amonges nations, and ye shall be sette fewe in nombre among the people whither the Lorde shall bynge you: and there ye shal seee goddes whiche are the workes of mannes hande, wodde and stone whiche neyther se, nor heare, nor cate, nor smell. ¶ Remember the lorde, ye shall seeke the Lorde your God euen there, and shall fynde hym, ye shall seeke hym with all thine herte, and with all thy soule. In thy tribulacion, and when all these thynges are come vpon the euen in the latter dayes; thou shalt tourne vnto the Lorde thy God, and shalt hearken vnto his voyce. For the Lorde thy God is a purfull God: he will not forsake the, neyther destroye the, nor forget the appoyntment made with thy fathers whiche he swore vnto them.

For alke I praye the, of the dayes that are past whiche were before the, frome the daye that God created man vpon the earthe, and frome the one syde of heuen vnto the other, whether any thyng hath ben lyke vnto this grete thyng, or whether anye such thinge hath ben herde as it is, that a nation hath heerde the voyce of God speakynge out of fyre as thou haste herde and yet spued? Either wherfore God allayed to goo and take hym a people among nations, choosyn temptations and signes and wonderes, and choosyn warre and with a myghtye hande and a * stretched out arme, and with myghtye terrible lighes, accordynge vnto all that the Lorde your God byd vnto you in Egypt befoze your eyes.

And because he loued thy fathers, therefore he chose theise seed after them, & brought the out with his presence, and with his myghtye power of Understande therefore this daye and turne it to thyne herte, that the Lorde he is God in heauen aboue, and on the earth benethe, there is no mo: kepe therefore his ordynaunces, and his commandementes whiche I commaunde the this daye, that it maye goo well with the and with thy chyldren after the, and that thou mayest prolonge thy dayes vpon the earth whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the thy lyfe longe.

* Deut. x. c. * Then Moses sencerd the cytes on the other syde Jordan toward the sonne rysynge that he wolde see thether whiche had kyled his neyghboure vntowares, and hated hym not in tyme past, and therefore wolde see vnto one of the same cytes and lyue: Wether in the wilderness, in the playne countrey amonge the Kubyntes: and Ramoth in Galaad amonge the Saddytes, and Holan in Basan amonge the Manassites.

This is the lawe whiche Moses sette befoze the chyldren of Israel, and these are the wytnesses, ordynaunces and statutes whiche Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel after they came oute of Egypte, on the other syde Jordan in the balley besyde Beth Shear: in the lande of Sehon kynge of the Amorytes whiche dwelte at Hesbon, whom Moses and the chyldren of Israel * smote after they were come forth of Egypte, and conquered his lande and the lande of Og kynge of Basan two kinges of the Amorytes on the other syde Jordan toward the sonne rysynge: frome Arnon vpon the bancke of the ruer Arnon, vnto mounte Syon whiche is called Hermon, and all the felde on ebother syde Jordan eastward: vnto the fer in the felde vnder the spynnes of Phasgath.

CAPL. V.

* Deut. x. c. And Moses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Heare (Israel) the ordynaunces and lawes whiche I speake in thyne eares this daye, and lette them, and sepe do them. The Lorde our God made an appointment with vs in Horeb. The Lorde maie not this bonde with oure fathers, but with vs: we are they whiche are al here alvys this daye. The Lorde talked with you face to face in the mount oute of the fyre. And I stode bytweene the Lorde and you the same tyme, to shewe you the sayinge of the Lorde. For ye were a feyre of the fire, and therefore went not vp in to the mounte, and he sayd. * I am the Lorde thy God, whiche broughte the oute of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue therefore none other goddes in my presence.

Thou shalt make the no grauen ymage of anye maner lykenesse that is in heuen aboue, or in erth benethe, or in the water benethe the erth. * Thou shalt nether bowe thy selfe vnto them nor serue them: for I the Lorde thy God am a gelouise God, visitinge the wickednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, even in the thyrd and fourth generacion, amonge them that hate me: and shewe meercy vpon thousandes amonges them that loue me, and kepe my commandementes.

* Thou shalt not take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne: for the Lorde wil not holde him guiltlesse that taketh his name in vayne.

* Kepe the Saboth daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the Lorde thy God hath commaunded the. Sixe dayes thou shalt labour, and do all that thou hast to do, but the seuen daye is the Saboth of the Lorde thy God: thou shalt doo no maner worke, nether thou nor thy sonne, nor thy daughter, nor thy seruaunt, nor thy mayde, nor thyne oxe, nor thyne asse, nor any of thy cattell, nor the stranger that is within thy cye, that thy seruaunt and thy mayde maye rest as well as thou. And remember that thou wast a seruaunt in the lande of Egypte, and how that the Lorde God brought the oute thence with a myghtye hande, and a stretched out arme. For whiche cause the Lorde thy God commaunded the to kepe the Saboth daye.

* Honour thy father and thy mother, as the Lorde thy God hath commaunded the: that thou mayest prolonge thy dayes, and that it maye go well with the on the lande whiche the Lorde thy God geueth the.

* Thou shalt not fire. Thou shalt not commyt aduoultre. Thou shalt not slea. Thou shalt not beare false witnesse against thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not luste after thy neyghbours wyfe: thou shalt not couet thy neyghbours house, felde, seruaunt, mayde, oxe, asse, nor ought that is thy neyghbours.

These wordes the Lorde spake vnto all poure multitude in the mounte, oute of the fyre, cloude, and darkenesse, with a loude voyce, and added no moze thereto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and deliuered them vnto me.

But as soone as ye herde the voyce, oute of the darkenesse, and sawe the hyl burne with fyre, ye came vnto me all the heades of your tribes and your elders: and ye sayd, Behold, the Lorde our God hath shewed vs his glorye and his greatnesse, and * we haue herde his voyce oute of the fyre, & we haue sene this daye that God maye talke with a man and he yet lyue. And now wherfore shal we dye? this grete fyre shal consume vs: If we shal heare the voyce of the Lorde our God anye moze, we shal dye. For what is any fleshe that he shal heare the voyce of the lypynge God speakynge oute of the fyre as we haue done and shal yet lyue: So thou and heare all that the Lorde our God sayth, & tell thou vnto vs all that the Lorde our God sayeth vnto the, and we will heare it and do it.

And the Lorde herde the voyce of your moynes when ye spake vnto me, and he sayde vnto me: I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of this people whiche they haue spoken vnto the, they haue well sayde al & they haue sayd. * Oh that they had suche an herte with them to feare me and kepe all my commandementes alwaye, that it myght go well with them and with their chyldren for ever. So and say vnto them: Set you into your tentes agayne but stande thou here befoze me and I will tell the all the commandementes, ordynaunces, and lawes whiche thou shalt teach them, that they maye do them in the lande whiche I geue them to possesse.

Take heede therefore ye to, as the Lorde your God hath commaunded you, and * turne not asyde: eether to the right hande or to the left: but walke in all the wayes whiche the Lorde your God hath commaunded you, that ye maye lyue, and that it maye go well with you, and that ye maye prolonge your dayes in the land whiche ye shall possesse.

The same must be earnestly printed in theyr hartes and to kepe it in memozye they must write it on the doores and postes of theyr houses: And teache it vnto theyr chyldren.

CAPL. VI.

These are the commandementes, ordynaunces & lawes whiche the Lorde your God commaunded to teache you, that ye myghte do them in the lande whiche ye go to possesse it: that thou myghtest feare the Lorde thy God, to kepe all his ordynaunces and his commandementes whiche I commaunde the, both thou and thy sonne and thy sonnes sonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therefore Israel and take heede that thou do thereafter, that it maye go well with the, and that ye maye increase mightely euen as the Lorde God of thy fathers hath promysed the, a lande that floweth with mylke and honny.

Heare Israel, the Lorde thy God is Lorde only and thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne harte, with all thy soule and with all thy myght. And these wordes whiche I commaunde the this daye, shalbe in thyne herte and thou shalt whet theym on thy chyldren, and shalt talke of them when thou arte at home in thyne house, and as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lyest downe and when thou rysist vp: and thou shalt bynde them for a signe vpon thyne hande. And they shalbe papers of remembraunce betwene thyne eyes, and shalt write them vpon the postes of thy house and vpon thy gates.

And whē the Lorde thy God hath broughte the into the lande whiche he sware vnto thy fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to geue the: with great and goodly cyties whiche thou buyldedst not, and houses full of all goodes whiche thou fylledst not, and welles dygged whiche thou dyggedst not, and bynes & olvyne trees whiche thou plantedst not, and when thou hast eaten and arte full: Then beware lest thou forget the Lorde whiche brought the oute of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. But feare the Lorde thy God & serue him, and sweare by his name, and sepe walke not after strange goddes of the nations whiche are aboute you. For the Lorde thy God is a gelouise God amonge you, lest the wyche of the Lorde thy God ware hote vpon the and despoyle the frome the earth.

Ye shall not tempte the Lorde your God, as ye byd at * Haba. But sepe kepe the commandementes of the Lorde your God, his wytnesses and his ordynaunces whiche he hath commaunded the, and se thou do that is right and good in the sight of the Lorde: that thou mayest prospere, and that thou mayest goo and conquere that good lande whiche the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers, and that the Lorde maye cast out all thyne ennemyes befoze the, as he hath sayde.

When thy sonne asketh the in tyme to come, saynge: What meaneth the enemibraunces, ordynaunces and lawes whiche the Lorde our god hath commaunded you? Thou shalt saye vnto thy sonne: We were bondme vnto Pharaon in Egypte, but the Lorde brought vs out of Egypte with a myghtye hande. And the Lorde shewed signes and wonderes bothe great and euill vpon Egypte, Pharaon & vpon all his householde, befoze our eyes & brought vs from thence: to byrge vs in, and to geue vs the land whiche he sware vnto our fathers. And therefore: commaunded vs to do all these ordynaunces & to feare the Lorde our God, for our welthe & escapes, and that he myghte saue vs, as it is come to passe this daye. Woe ouer it shall be erygrouns vnto vs befoze the Lorde our God if we take heede to kepe all these commandementes as he hath commaunded vs.

The Israelites may make no leage or couenaunt with the Gentiles. They must destroy theyr idols. Them that kepe the commandementes both God loue and blisse, and the contrarye hateth and punyssheth. Idolaters must be slayne.

Also thou shalt make no maelages with the, ne geue thy daughter vnto his sonne: nor take his daughter vnto thy sonne. for they will make your sonnes departe frome me and serue strange goddes, and then will the wrath of the Lozde waxe hote vpon you, and destroe you shortly.

Exod. xxi. d.

Deute. xxi. a. and xxi. d.

But thus ye shall deale with them: ouerthrowe their altars, breake downe their pylers, cut downe their groues, and burne their ymages with fyre. for thou arte an holy nation vnto the Lozde thy God, the Lozde thy God hath chosen the, to be a scruerall people vnto him selfe, of all nations that are vpon the carthe. It was not because of the multitude of you aboue all nations, that the Lozde had luff vnto you and chose you. for ye were fewe of all nations. But because the Lozde loued you, and because he wold kepe the othe which he had sworne vnto your fathers, therefore he brought you out of Egypte with a myghty hande, and deliuered you forth of the house of bondage: euen frome the hande of Pharaon, kynge of Egypte.

Understande therefore, that the Lozde thy God is God, and that a true God, whiche heareth appoyntement and mercy vnto them that loue him and kepe his commaundmentes, euen thowout a thousande generations, & rewardeth them that hate him before his face so that he bringeth them to noughte, & wyl not disceire þe tyme vnto him that hateth him: but wyl reward him before his face. Kepe therefore the commaundmentes, ordinaunces and lawes which I commaunde you this day, that ye do them.

If ye shall hearken vnto these lawes & shall fulfill and do them, then shall the Lozde thy God kepe appoyntement with the & the mercy which he swore vnto thy fathers, and wyl loue the, blesse the, and multiplie the: he wyl blesse the frute of thy wombe, & the frute of thy felde, thy cozne, thy wyne, and thyne oyle the frute of thyne oxen, and the flockes of thy shepe in the lande which he swore vnto thy fathers to geue þe. Thou shalt be blessed aboue all nations, there shalbe nerther mā nor woman vnfructfull amonge you, nor any thing vnfructfull amonges your cattell. Thou shalt bringe to nought all nations, whiche the Lozde thy God deliuereth the, thyne eye shall haue no pync vpon them, nerther shalt thou serue their goddes, for that shalbe thy decaye. If thou shalt saie in thine herte, these nations are mo than I, how can

I cast them out? feare them not, but remembre, what the Lozde thy God dyd vnto Pharaon, and vnto all Egypte, and the greates tations which thine eye hath seene, and the signes and wonderes and myghty handes & stretched arme / wherewith the Lozde thy God, brought the out: euen so shall the Lozde thy God do vnto all the nations of whiche thou arte afrayde.

Therto, the Lozde thy God wyl sende hopnettes amonge them vntill they that are left and hyde them selues frome the, be destroyed. Se thou feare them not, for the Lozde thy God is amonge you a myghty God and a terrible. The Lozde thy God wyl put out these nations before the by lytle and lytle, thou mayst not consume them at ones: least the beastes of the felde encrease vpon the. And the Lozde thy God shall deliuer them vnto the and slyte by a myghty tempest amonge them vntill they be brought to nought. And he shall deliuer their kynge into thine hande, & thou shalt destroe their names awaye vnder heauen. Where shall no man stande before the, vntill thou haue destroyed them. The ymages of their goddes thou shalt burne with fyre, & se thou couldest not the * spluer or golde that is on them: nor take it vnto the, least thou be snared therewith. for it is an abhominacion vnto the Lozde thy God. Wyngre not therefore the abhominacion to thine house, lest thou be accursed as it is: but vterlye desyre it, and abhorre it / for it is a thinge that must be destroyed.

Wholes putte the Israellites in remembrance of the afflictions and benyffes that they hadde the forye yere whiche they were in the wilderness.

CAP. VIII.

AL the commaundmentes whiche I commaunde the this daye, ye shal kepe to w them, that ye maye lyeue and multiplye and go and possesse the lande which the Lozde swore vnto your fathers. And thinke on all the waye which the Lozde thy God led the this. xl. yere in the wilderness, for to blyle the and to proue the, to wete what was in thine herte, whether thou wouldest kepe his commaundmentes or no. He humbled the & made the hongre, and fed the with Manna, which nerther thou nor thy father knewe of, to make the knowe that a man must not lyue by bread only: but by all that procedeth oute of the mouth of the Lozde must a man lyue. Thy rayment waxed not olde vpon the, neyther dyd thy fete swell this. xl. yere.

Understande therefore in thine herte that as a man nourieth his sonne, euen so the Lozde thy God nourieth the. Kepe therefore the commaundmentes of the Lozde thy God that thou walke in his wayes, and that thou feare him. For the Lozde thy God bringeth the to a good lande, a lande of ryuers of water, of fountaynes & of springes that springe out bothe in dales and hylls: a land of wheat and of barley, of vnyces, figgetrees and pomgranates, a lande of olyuetrees of oyle and of

of hony: a lande wherein thou shalt not cate bred in scarcenesse, and where thou shalt lack nothinge, a lande whose stones are yron, and out of whose hylls thou shalt digge brasie. When thou hast cate therfore and fylled thy selfe, then blesse the Lozde for the good lande which he hath gyuen the.

But beware thou forget not the Lozde thy God, that thou wold not kepe his commaundmentes, lawes and ordinaunces whiche I commaunde the this day: yee and when thou hast eaten and fylled thy selfe and hast buylt goodly houses and dwelte therein, and when thy beastes and thy shepe are waxed manye & thy syluer and golde is multiplied and al that thou hast increased, then beware lest thine herte tye and thou forget the Lozde thy God which brought the out of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage, and which led the in the wilderness both great and terrible with fyre serpentes and Scorpions, & drouth where was no water which brought the water oute of the rocke of Synt: which led the in the wilderness with Manna, whereof thy fathers knewe not, for to humble the, and to proue the, that he myghte wo the good at thy latter ende.

And beware thou saie not in thine herte, my power and the myght of myne owne had hath done me all these actes: But remembre the Lozde thy God, that it is he which gaue the power to do manfullye, for to make good the promise which he swore vnto thy fathers as it is come to passe this daye.

For if thou shalt forget the Lozde thy God and shalt walk after strange goddes & serue them and worship them, I tell the vnto you this daye, that ye shall surely perishe. As the nations whiche the Lozde destroyeth before the, so ye shall perishe, because ye wolde not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lozde your God.

They are forbidden to trust in theyr own strength & to relye on the strength of theyr owne strength that were done after the lawe was gyuen, vnto the murmuringe at the Graues of Aule.

CAP. IX.

HEare Israel, thou goest ouer Jordā this daye, to go and conqueere nations greater and myghter then thy selfe, and cities great and walled vp to heauen, & people great and tall. euen the children of the Enakims, which thou knowest & of whome thou hast herd saie, who is hable to stande before the children of Enak? But understande this daye that the Lozde thy God which goeth before the, a consuming fyre, he shall destroye them, and shall subdue them before the. And thou shalt cast them out, & wyngre them forth and destroye quychely as the Lozde hath sayd vnto the.

Speake not in thine herte, after that the Lozde thy God hath cast them out before þe, saying: for my righteounesse the Lozde hath brought me in, to possesse this lande. Naye, for the wychednesse of these nations, the Lozde wyl cast them out before the. It is not for thy righteounesse and righte herte that thou goest to possesse their lande: But partly for the wychednesse of these nations, the Lozde thy God wyl cast them out before the, & partly to performe that the Lozde thy God swore vnto thy fathers / Abraham / Isaac and Jacob.

Understande therefore that it is not for thy righteounesse, that the Lozde thy God wyl geue the this good lande to possesse, for thou arte a synfult people. Remembre and forget not, how thou prouokedst the Lozde thy God in the wilderness: for sythens the daye that thou camest out of the lande of Egypte vntill ye came vnto this place, ye haue rebelled against the Lozde. * Also in Horeb ye angered the Lozde, so that the Lozde was wroth with you, euen to haue destroyed you, after þe I was gone vp into the mount, to set the tables of stone, the tables of appoyntement which the Lozde made with you. And I abode in the hyll. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes & nyether ate bread nor dranke water. * And the Lozde deliuered me two tables of stone wyrtu with the synger of God, and in them was contayned accordyng to all the wordes which the Lozde sayde vnto you in the mounte, out of the sye in the daye, when the people were gathered together.

And when. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes were ended, the Lozde gaue me the two tables of stone, the tables of the testamēt, and sayde vnto me. * Arise, and get the wyne quychely from hence, for thy people which thou hast brought oute of Egypte, haue married thym selues. They are turned attonce out of the waye, which I commaunded them, and haue made them a God of metall. Furthermore the Lozde spake vnto me, sayinge: I se this people, howe it is a synfult people, let me alone that I maye destroye them and put out the name of them vnder heauen, and I wyl make of the, a nation bothe greater and mo than they.

And I turned away and came towne from the hyll (and the hyll burnt with fyre) & had the two tables of the appoyntement in my handes. And when I looked and sawe that ye had synned against the Lozde your God, and had made you a caste of metall, and had turned all together out of the waye whiche the Lozde had commaunded you. * When I toke the two tables, and cast them out of my two handes, and brake them before your eyes. * And I fell before the Lozde: euen as at the first tyme. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes, and nyether ate bread nor dranke water, ouer al your synnes whiche ye had synned in wyngre wyckedly in the sight of the Lozde and in prouoking hym. for I was afrayd of the wrath and fearfullnesse wherewith the Lozde was angry with you, euen for to haue destroyed you. But the Lozde herde my petition at þe tyme also.

The Lozde was very angry with Aarō also, euen for to haue destroyed him: But I made intercession for Aarō also the same tyme. And I

And I toke your synne, the calf which ye had made and burnt him with fyre, and stamped him and grounde him a good, even unto smal dust. And I caste the dust thereof in the brooke & descended out of the mount. Also at * Thabebah, and at * Masah, and at the sepulchres of Iude ye displeased the Lorde, ye and when the Lorde sent you from * Ades Barne, sayinge: go vp and conquere the lande which I haue gyven you, ye disobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde your God, & neyther belueed him, nor hearkened vnto his voyce. Thus ye haue bene disobedient vnto the Lorde, sithens the daye that I knewe you.

And I fell before the Lorde. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes which I laye there, for the Lorde was mynded to haue destroyed you. But I made intercession vnto the Lorde and sayde. * O Lorde God, destroye not thy people and thyne inheritaunce which thou hast deliuered thowse thy greatnesse, and whiche thou hast brought out of Egypte with a myghty hande. Remember thy seruantes Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and loke not vnto the stubburnesse of this people, nor vnto their wickednesse and synne: leaue the lande whence thou broughtest them saye: Because the Lorde was not hable to bringe them into the lande whiche he promysed them, and because he hated them, therfore he caried them out to destroye them in the wilderness. Wherouer they are thy people, and thyne inheritaunce, which thou broughtest forth with thy myghty power and with thy stretched arme.

CAP. X.

In the same season the Lorde sayd vnto me * I haue the two tables of stone lyke vnto the first, and come vp vnto me into the mount and make the an arke of wood, and I will wyte in the tables, the wordes that were in the first tables whiche thou brake, and thou shalt put them in the arke. And I made an arke of Setim woode, and betwixt two tables of stone lyke vnto the first, and went vp into the mountayne, and the two tables in myne hande.

And he wrote in the tables, accordyng to the first wytyng (the ten wordes whiche the Lorde spake vnto you in the mount of the fire) in the daye when the people gathered togyther and gaue them vnto me. And I departed and came towne frome the hill, and put the tables in the arke whiche I hadde made: and there they remayned, as the Lorde commaunded me.

And the children of Israel toke their journey from Beroth of the children of Jakan to * Horeb, where Aaron dyed & where he was buried, and Eleazar his sonne became pearch in his heade. And frome thence they departed vnto * Gadgad: and frome Gadgad to * Jathbath a lande of founteyns of water. And same season the Lorde sented the spyde of Lemi to beare the arke of the appoyntement of the Lorde, and to stande before the Lorde, and to minisere vnto him, and to blesse in his name vnto this daye. Wherfore the Lemies haue no part nor inheritaunce with their brethren. The Lorde he is their inheritaunce, as the Lorde thy God hath promysed them.

And I taried in the mount, even as at the first tyme. xl. dayes and. xl. nyghtes, and the Lorde hearkened vnto me at that tyme also, so that the Lorde wolde not destroye the. And the Lorde sayde vnto me: Arise and go forth in the iourney before the people, and let them go in, and conquere the lande which I swaie vnto their fathers to gyue them.

And now, Israel, what is it that the Lorde thy God requirerth of the, but to feare the Lorde thy God, & to walke in all his wayes, and to * loue him, and to serue the Lorde thy God with all thyne herte, and with all thy soule, that thou kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde and his ordinaunces whiche I commaunde the this daye, for thy wealth. Beholde, heauen and the heauen of heauens, is the Lordes thy God, and the earth with all that therein is: onely the Lorde had a iud vnto thy fathers to loue them, and therfore chose you thei seed after them of all nations, as it is come to passe this daye.

Circumscise therfore the foreskynne of your hertes, and be no longer spencerked. For the Lorde your God, he is God of Goddes, and Lorde of Lordes, a great God, a myghty and a terrible, whiche regardeth no mans person, nor taketh giftes: but with ryghte vnto the fatherlesse and wydowe, and loweth the stranger, to gyue him sode and saynt. Howe therfore the stranger, for ye were strangers your selues in the lande of Egypte. Thou shalt feare the Lorde thy God, and serue him, and cleaue vnto him, and sweere by his name, for he is thy prayse, and he is thy God that hath done these greates and terrible thynges for the, whiche thyne eyes haue sene. Thy fathers went downe into Egypte with. lx. soules, & now the Lorde thy God hath made the as * fardes of heauen in multitude.

An exhortacion to regarde the Lawe, and howe they ought to haue it in thei hertes alwayes and before thei eyes, and to talke of it when they sit, when they ly downe and when they walke by the waye.

CAP. XI.

XII.

Loue the Lorde thy God, and kepe his obseruaunces, his ordinaunces, his lawes and his commaundementes alwayes. And call to mynde this daye that which your children haue neyther known nor sene: euen the nouerture of the Lorde your God, his greatnesse, his myghty hand, and his stretched out arme: his mygacles, and his actes whiche he dyd amonges the Egyptians, euen vnto Pharaon the kynge of Egypte, & vnto all his land: and what he dyd vnto the host of the Egyptians, vnto thei hoyses and charrettes, howe

he broughte the water of the red see vpon the as they chased you, and howe the Lorde hath brought them to nought vnto this daye: and what he dyd vnto you in the wilderness, vntill ye came vnto this place: and what he dyd vnto * Nathan and Abieam the sonnes of Eliah the sonne of Ruben, howe the ethe opened her mouth and swallowed them with thei householdes and thei centes, and all thei substance that was in thei possession, in the myddes of Israhel.

For your eyes haue sene all the greates deades of the Lorde which he dyd. Kepe therfore all the commaundementes whiche I commaunde the this daye that ye maye be stronge and go and conquere the lande whether ye go to possesse it, and that ye maye prolonge your dayes in the lande which the Lorde swaie vnto your fathers to gyue vnto them, & to thei seed, a lande that floweth with mylke & honny. For the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypte whence thou camest out, where thou sowdest thy seed and watered it with thy fete as a garden of herbes: but the lande whiche ye go ouer to possesse, is a lande of hilles and valeys and dynterth water of the rayne of heauen, and a lande whiche the Lorde thy God careth for. The eyes of the Lorde thy God are alwayes vpon it, frome the beginninge of the yere vnto the laste ende of the yere.

If you shall hearken therfore vnto my commaundementes whiche I commaunde you this daye, that ye loue the Lorde your God and serue him with all your hertes, and with all your soules: then he will gyue rayne vnto your lande in due season, both the first & rayne and the later, and thou shalt gather in thy corne thy wyne and thyne oyle. And he will sende graffe in thy felde for thy cattell: & thou shalt eate and fyll thy selfe. But take heed to your selves, that ye be not treyued that ye turne a syde and serue strange Goddes & worship them, & so the wrath of the Lorde waxe hotte vpon you, and thus by the heauen that there be no rayne and that your lande yeelde not her increase and that ye perishe shortlye frome the good lande which the Lorde gyueth you.

But by therfore these my wordes in your hertes and in your soules, and bynde them for a signe vnto your handes, and let them be as papers of remembraunce betwene your eyes, and * teache them your children: so that thou talke of them when thou sittest in thy house and when thou walkest by the waye, & when thou lyest downe, and when thou rised vp: ye and imyte them vpon the wyppes of thyne house and vpon thy gates, that your dayes maye be multiplied, and the dayes of your children vpon the earth which the Lorde swaie vnto your fathers to gyue them, as long as the dayes of heauyn endure vpon the earth. For ye shall kepe all these commaundementes whiche I commaunde you, so that ye do them, and loue the Lorde your God, and walke in all his wayes and cleaue vnto him: The will the Lorde call out all these nations, & ye shall conquere them whiche are both greater and myghtier then your selues. * All the places where on the soles of your fete shall treade, walke yours, euen frome the wilderness and frome mount Libanon, and frome the ryuer Euphrates, vnto the uttermoste see shall your costes be. There shall no man be hable to stande before you: the Lorde your God shall call the feare and dread of you vpon all landes wherher ye shall come, as he hath sayde vnto you.

* Beholde I set before you this day, a blessinge and a curse: a blessinge: if ye hearken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde your God, whiche I commaunde you this daye. And a curse: if ye will not hearken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde your God: but turne out of the waye (whiche I commaunde you this daye) to walke after other goddes whome you knowe not.

When the Lorde thy God hath brought the into the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, then put the blessinge vpon mounte Gerisim, and the curse vpon mounte Ebal, which are beyonde Jordan on the backe syde of the waye towards the goynge towne of * sonne in the lande of the Canaanites whiche dwell in the felde ouer against * Gailgal beynde the oke groue of Mozeb. For ye shall go ouer to take seasin of the lande which the Lorde your God gyueth you, and shall conquere it, and dwell therein. Take heed, therfore, that ye do all the lawes, both ecclesiasticall & temporal whiche I set before you this daye.

Idolatre muste the Israelites despoile and flee fro. They must eate no bloude. They muste onely to that thyng whiche God commaundeth.

CAP. XII.

XIII.

These are the ordinaunces and lawes whiche ye shall obserue and do thereafter in the lande whiche the Lorde God of thy fathers gyueth the to possesse, as long as ye lyue vpon the earth. * Ye shall destroye all places where the nations whiche ye shall conquer serue their goddes, whether it be vpon hygh mountaynes or on hygh hylls or vnder any greene tree, ouerthrowe their altars and breake their pylers and burne their groves with fire and hewe downe the ymages of their goddes, and bynge the names of them to nought out of that place. Se ye too not so vnto the Lorde your God, but ye shall enquire the place whiche the Lorde your God shall haue chosen out of all your tribes, to put his name there and thre to dwell. And * whither thou shalt come, and whither ye shall bynge your burnt sacrifices and your offerings, your fethes and beuicoffinges of your haches, your bowes and fethwill offerings & the first borne of your oren and of your shepe. And there ye shall eate before the Lorde your God, and reioyse in al that ye pour lap handes on, both ye and your householdes, because the Lorde thy God hath blessed the.

* Ye shall do after nothing that we haue here this daye, euerie man as lyeth vnto him. For ye are

God temteth you to wote whether ye loue the Lorde your God with all your heartes & with all your soules. For ye must walke after the Lorde your God, and feare him and kepe his commandementes and becke vnto his voyce and serue him and cleaue vnto him. And that prophete or dreame of dreames shall beare because he hath spoken to turne you away from the Lorde your God whiche brought you out of the land of Egypte and deliuered you out of the house of bondage, to trust the out of the way which the Lorde thy God co mmanded the to walke in: and so thou shalt not cull away from the.

ple. And he shalbe stoned to death, because he hath gone about to thurst the awaye frome: þe Royle thy God whiche brought the forth of Egypte the house of bondage. And all Israel shall heare and feare, and shal do no more any such wickednesse as this is, amonges them.

lers of that ctyte with the edge of the swerde, and destroye it with the swerde, and all that is therin, yea euen the beest cattell thereof with the edge of the swerde. And gather all the spoyle of it into the myddes of the Creatres thereof, & burne with fyre both the ctyte and all the spoyle thereof euery whit vnto the Lorde thy God.
And it shall be an heape for euer, and shall not be buylt agayne. And so there cleane nought of the damned thinge in thyne hande that the Lorde maye turne from his fierce wrath / & commandementes which I commaunde the this daye so that thou do that is right in the eyes of the Lorde thy God.

CAPL. XIIIIL

YE are the children of the Lorde your God, cut not your selves, nor make poison and balnes betwene the eyes for any mans death. For thou art an holy people believing in the Lorde thy God, and the Lorde hathe chosen thee to be a seuerall people unto himselfe, of all the nations that are vpon the earth.
Ye shall eat no manner of abominacion.

These are the beastes whiche ye shall eate of: oxen, shepe and gootes, kerse, roo and bugle, myllegote, unicorn, origen and Camelion: And all beastes that cleane the hofse and spre it in to two clawes and chewe the cud, then ye shall eate. Neuertheless, these ye shall not eate, of them that chewe cud / and haue not their hofse spre in two clawes as be the camel the harr and the conye. For they chewe cud, but deuere not the hofse: and therefore are uncleane vnto you: a also the swyne, for though he drupbe the hofse, yet he cheweth not cud, a therefore is uncleane vnto you: ye shall not eate of the fowle of them, nor touche the deed carcases of them.

* These ye shall eate, of all that are in the waters: All that haue synnes and scales. And whatsoeuer hath not synnes & scales, of that ye may not eate, for it is uncleane vnto you.

are they, of which ye may not eate: the Eagle of Hauens, the Estrich, the Fyghtcrowe, the Kuckoo, the Sparouhauke and all her kynde the lytle Oule, the great Oule, the Bache, the Bytture, the Pye, the Stork, the Heron, the Jay in his kynde, the Lapyng, the Swa-

low. And all creppinge foules are vncleane vnto you and may not be eaten: but of all cleane foules ye may well eate. Ye shall rate of no-thinge þe byeth alone: But thou mayst geue it vnto the straunger that is in thy cite þe eate it, or mayst sell it vnto an Alian. For thou art an holy people vnto the Lorde thy God.

what so euer thy soule listeth offer: of steepe shepe, wyne and good drinke, & of whatsoeuer thy soule desireth, & eate there before þ Lord thy God and be merc: bothe thou and thine householde and the Leuite that is in thy cite.
So thou forsake not the Leuite, * for he hath neither part noz inheritaunce with the.

At the ende of this pere. thou shalt bringe forth all the tythes of thyne increase & same pere and laye it vp within thyne owne cytie /

Exod. xiii. a agayne: but of thy brother thou shalt clamen no der: and se in any wyse there be no begger amonges you. For the Lord shall blesse the lande whiche he giveth thee, an inheritance to possesse: so that thou herke unto the voyce of the Lord thy God, to make and to all these commandmentes which I commaunde you this day: yea & then the Lord thy God shall blesse the as he hath promysed thee, and thou shalt lende unto manye nations, and shalt borrowe of no man, and shalt sayne ouer many nations, but none shall sayne ouer thee.

1. John. iiii. c When one of thy brethren amonge you is waxed poore in any of the cyties within thy lande whiche the Lord thy God giveth thee, se thouarken not thyne heart nor put to thine hande frome thy poore brother: but opene thine hande unto him and lende him sufficient for his need whiche he hath. And beware there be not a poynt of Selial in thyne heart, that thou wouldest saye: The seventh yere, the yere of freedomme is at hande, and therefore I gevee the to loken on thy poore brother, and so givest him nought and he then crye unto the Lord against thee, and it shall be layde unto thy charge.
But gevee hym, and let it not gevee thyne heart to geve: Because for that charge, the Lord thy God shall blesse thee, in all thy workes, and in all thou puttest thyne hande to. For the lande shall never be without poore. Wherefore I commaunde thee, sayenge: opene thine hand unto thy brother that is needy and poore in thy lande.

Exod. xxi. a If thy brother an Hebrewe sell him selfe to thee, or an Hebrewe, he shall serve the fixe yere, and the seventh yere thou shalt let hym go free frome thee. And when thou sendest him out free frome thee, thou shalt not let him goe away empty: but shalt gevee him of thy shepe and of thy corne, and of thy wyne, and gevee him of that, wherewith the Lord thy God hath blessed thee. And remember that thou wast a servaunt in the lande of Egypt, & the Lord thy God delivered thee thence: wherfore I commaunde thee this thinge to do.

Exod. xxi. b That if he saye unto thee, I will not goe awaye frome thee, because he loveth thee & thyne house and is well at ease with thee: then take a naule and naile his eare to the wythe and let him be thy servaunt for ever, and vnto thy mayde servaunt thou shalt do lyke wyse.
And let it not gevee thyne eyes to let him goe out frome thee, for he hath bene worth a tou-ble byed servaunt to thee in his service. In peres. And the Lord thy God shall blesse thee in all that thou doest.

Exod. xxi. c All the first borne that come of thyne oxen, and of thy shepe that are males, thou shalt halowe unto the Lord thy God. Thou shalt not plough with the first borne ox, nor shalt not tye thy first borne shepe: but shalt eate them before the Lord thy God, yere by yere in the place whiche the Lord hath chosen, both thou and thyne household. If there be any defoymite therein, whether it be lame or blind or what so ever euill fauourednes it hath, thou shalt not offer it unto the Lord thy God: but shalt eate it in thyne owne cytie the uncleane and the cleane indifferently, as the roo and the heer. Only eate not the bloude thereof, but poure it upon the grounde as water.

nacles, what offerynges ought to be offered.

CAP. I.

XVI.

Offer the moneth of Abib, and offer paschevnto the Lord thy God. For in the moneth of Abib, the Lord thy God brought thee out of Egypt by nyght.
Thou shalt therefore offer paschevnto the Lord thy God, and shepe & oxen in the place whiche the Lord shall chuse to make his name dwel there. Thou shalt eate no leuened bred therewith: but shalt eate therewith the bred of tribulation. By dayes longe. For thou camest out of the lande of Egypt in hast, that thou mayst remember the daye when thou camest out of the lande of Egypt all dayes of thy lyfe. And se there be no leuened bred sene in all thy coles. By dayes longe, and that there remayne nothinge at the festiue whiche thou hast offered, the firste daye at euen, vntill the morninge.

Thou maydest not offer paschevnto in anye of thy cyties whiche the Lord thy God giveth the: but in the place whiche the Lord thy God shall chuse to make his name dwell in,
there thou shalt offer paschevnto at euen about the goinge downe of the sonne, euen in the season that thou camest out of Egypt. And thou shalt sette and eate it in the place whiche the Lord thy God hath chosen, and departe on the morrow and get the vnto thy tent. By dayes thou shalt eate sweete bred, and the by daye is for the people to come together to the Lord thy God, that thou mayst do no wyse.

Then taken the by wythes, and begyn to re-ken the. By wythes whiche the sickel begynneth in the corne, and kepe the feast of wythes vnto the Lord thy God, that thou geuee a testimo-nyng of thyne hande vnto the Lord thy God, accordyng as the Lord thy God hath blessed thee. And reioyse before the Lord thy God both thou, thy sonne, thy daughter, thy seruaunt and thy mayde, and the Leuite that is within thy gates, and the stranger, the thelelle and the wythe that are amonge you, in the place whiche the Lord thy God hath chosen to make his name dwell there. And remember thou wast a servaunt in Egypt, that thou observe and to these ordinaunces.

Thou shalt observe the feast of tabernacles by dayes longe, after thou hast gathered in thy corne and thy wyne. And thou shalt re-ioyse in that thy feast, both thou thy sonne thy daughter, thy seruaunt, thy mayde, & Leuite, the stranger, the thelelle and the wy-the that are in thy cyties. Seven dayes thou shalt kepe holy daye vnto the Lord thy God, in the place whiche the Lord shall chuse for the Lord thy God shall blesse thee in all thy frutes and in all the workes of thyne hande des, and therefore shalt thou be gladd.

Exod. xxi. e The tymes in the pere shall all your males appeare before the Lord thy God in the place whiche he shall chuse: In the feast of sweete bred, in the feast of wythes, and in the feast of tabernacles. And they shall not appeare before the Lord empty: but every man with the gyfte of his hande, accordyng to the blessing of the Lord thy God, whiche he hath geuen
the.

Judges and officers thou shalt make the in all thy gates whiche the Lord thy God gyveth thee, choosynge out thy trybes: & let them iudge the people righteously. Wher not the lawe nor knowe any person neyther take any reward: for gyftes blynde the wyse and peruerthe the wordes of the righteous. But in all thinge folowe righteously, that thou mayst lye and enioye the lande whiche the Lord thy God giveth thee.

Thou shalt plant no grove of whatsoever trees it be, nether vnto the altare of the Lord thy God whiche thou shalt make the. Thou shalt set the by no pylle, whiche the Lord thy God hateth.

Exod. xxi. f The payne and punishment for Idolatrye. The doubtfull sentence must be entered vnto the great Judges. The punishment of a rebell or presumptuous wylfulder of the law. The Antithesis of a hyng.

CAP. I.

XVII.

Thou shalt offer vnto the Lord thy god no ore nor shepe wherein is any defoymi-te, what so ever euill fauourednes it be:
for that is abhominacion vnto the Lord thy God.

Wher be founde amonge you in any of thy cyties whiche the Lord thy God giveth thee man or woman that hath wrought wyched-nesse in the sighte of the Lord thy God, that they haue gone beyond his appointment, so that they haue gone and serued strange gods and worshipped them, whether it be the sonne of man or any thinge contained in heauen which I forbade, and it was tolde thee and thou hast herde of it: then thou shalt enquire diligently. And if it be true and the thinge of a surte that suche abhominacion is wrought in Israel, then thou shalt hyng forth that man or that woman whiche haue committed that wyched thinge, vnto the gates, and shalt stone them with stones, and they shall dye.

At the mouth of two or thre wytnesses shall he that is worthy of deathe, dye: but at the mouthe of one wytnesse he shall not dye.
And the handes of the wytnesses shall be firste vpon him to kyll him, and afterwarde the han-des of all the people: so shalt thou put wychednesse awaye frome thee.

If a mase be to hard for the in iudgement betwene bloude and bloud, plee & plee, plage & plage in maters of streyfe within thy cyties.
Then shalt thou get the by vnto the place whiche
the Lord thy God hath chosen, and go vnto the prestes the Leuites, and vnto the iudge that shall be in those dayes, and aske, and they shall shewe the how to iudge. And se thou do accordyng to that whiche they of that place (whiche the Lord hath chosen) shewe thee, & se thou observe to do accordyng to all that they enfoyme thee. Accordyng to the lawe whiche they teach thee, and maner of iugement whiche they tell thee, se thou do and that thou do not come that whiche they shewe thee, neither to the right hande nor to the left.

And that man that will be obstinate, so he will not hearken vnto the prest that standeth there to minstre vnto the Lord thy God or vnto the iudge, shall dye: and so thou shalt put awaye euill frome Israel. And all the people shall feare and shall feare, and shall do no more presumptuously.

When thou art come vnto the lande whiche the Lord thy God giveth thee and enioyest it and dwellest therein: If thou shalt saye, I will set a kynge ouer me: lyke vnto all the nations that are about me: When thou shalt make him kynge ouer thee, whome the Lord thy God shall chuse. One of thy brethren must thou make kynge ouer thee, and mayst not set a stranger ouer thee whiche is not of thy brethren. But in any wyse let him not holde to many wythes, that he hyng not the people a-gayne to Egypte wher the multitude of wythes, for as moche as the Lord hath sayde vnto you: ye shall henceforth goo no more a-gayne that waye. Also he shall not haue to many wythes least his heart turne awaye, nether shall he gather hym syluer and golde to moche.

And when he is set vpon the seate of his kingdome, he shall wyte hym forth this second lawe in a booke takinge a cople of the prestes the Leuites. And it shall be with him, and he shall reade therein all dayes of his lyfe that he may lerne to feare the Lord his God to kepe all the wordes of this lawe, and these ordinaunces, to do them: that his heart aspye not aboue his brethren and that he turne not fro the commandement: eyther to the right hand or to the left, that both he and his children maye prolonge their dayes in his kingdome in Israel.

Exod. xxi. g The Leuites might haue no possessions. Idolatrye must be fled. The prophete whiche is promysed.
A false prophet must be slayne, and how he may be knowen.

CAP. I.

XVIII.

The prestes the Leuites, all the trybe of Levi shall haue no parte nor inheritaunce with Israel. The offerynges of the Lord and his inheritance they shall eate but shall haue inheritance amonge their brethren: the Lord is their inheritance, as he hath sayde vnto them. And this is the duetye of the prestes of the people and of the that offer, whether it be ore or shepe: They must geue vnto the prest, the shoulder and the two chekes and the mawe, the firste frutes of the corne, wyne and oyle, and a poyr-on of mull of the shepe wherynge muste thou geue him. For the Lord thy God hath chosen him out of all the trybes to stand, and to Stubburne

childe.

If any man haue a sonne that is stubburne and disobedient, so that he will not hearken to the voyce of his father and voyce of his mother, and they haue taught him nurture, but he will not hearken vnto them: Then let his father and his mother take him, and bynne him out vnto the elders of that cite, & vnto the gate of that same place, and sape vnto the elders of the cite. This our sonne is obstinate and disobedient, and will not hearken vnto our voyce, he is a spote and a bynne.

Then let all the men of that cite stone hym vnto deathe. And thou shalt put euill awaye from the, and all Israel shall heare & feare.

ged. Whiche not for lande & treasure, which Lorde thy God geueth the to encrease.

What thou oughtest to do when thou syndest thy neighboures beate goinge a treape. A man shall not weare womens clotheinge of a woman mannes clo-theinge. To weare a coate of wolles and of flax is also forbidden. The punishment of hym that accuseth a

CAPL.

XXII.

Exod. 22. 1. a

Yf thou se thy brothers oxe or shepe goe a treape, thou shalt not withdawe thy selfe frome them: But shalt bynne the home agayn vnto thy brother. Yf thy brother be not nigh vnto the, or yf thou knowe him not, bringe them vnto thyne owne house and let them be with the, till thy brother aske after them, and then deliuer him them agayne.
In lyke maner shalt thou do with his asse,
with his rayment and with all lyke thynges of thy brother wyche he hath lost, and thou hast founde, and thou mayst not withdawe thy selfe.

If thou se that thy brothers asse or oxe is selle wone by the waye, thou shalt not with-dawe thy selfe frome them: but shalt helpe him to haue them vpon agayne.

The woman shall not weare that perteyneth vnto the man, neyther shall a man put on womans rayment. For all that too so, are abomination vnto the Lorde thy God.

If thou chaunce vpon a bydes nest by the waye, in what so euer cite it be or on ground together they be younge or egges, & the dame sittinge vpon the younge or vpon the egges:
Thou shalt not take the mother with y^e y^e But shalt in any wyse let the dame go, and take the younge, that thou mayest prosper & prolonge thy dayes.

When thou buydest a newe house, thou shalt make a baryment vnto the house, that thou take not blood vpon thyne house, yf any man fall therof.

Thou shalt not solue thy bynne with spurs: lest he both be halowed the feth whiche thou hast sowne, with the fruite of thy bynne.

Thou shalt not plowe with an oxe and an asse together. Thou shalt not weare a garment made of linsye wolle.

Thou shalt put gardes vpon the four quarters of thy beuere, wherewith thou co-uerest thy selfe.

If a man take a wyfe, and when he hath lyen with her, have her / and laye shamefull thynges vnto her charge, and bynne vpon an euil name vpon her, and sape: I toke this wyfe, and when I came to her, I founde her not a mayde. Then let the father of the damsell and the mother bynne for the tokens of the damsell virginite vnto the elders of the cite, euen vnto the gate. And let the dāfels father saye vnto the elders. I gaue my daughter vnto this man to wyfe, and he hath sayd: and so he layeth shamefull thynges vnto her charge sayinge: I founde her not a mayde.

And yet these are the tokens of my daughters virginite. And let them sprede the beuere before the elders of the cite. Then let the elders of that cite take that man, and chāse him, and amerce him in an hundred sicles of silver and geue them vnto the father of the damsell, because he hath brought vp an euil reapport vpon a mayde in Israel, and the man be his wyfe, and he may not put her awaye all his dayes. But yf the thinge be of a trouthe that the damsell be not founde a virgin, let them bynne her vnto the doze of her fathers house, and let the men of that cite stone her with stones to leth, because she hath wrought folye in Israel, to playe the hoore in her fathers house, and so thou shalt put euill awaye from the.

If a man be founde lyinge with a woman that hath a wedded husbāde, then let them bothe of them, as well the man that laye with the wyfe, as also the wyfe, so thou shalt put awaye euill from Israel.

If a mayde be betrothed vnto an husband and after a man synde her in the towne or lye with her, then ye shall bynne them both forth vnto the gates of that cite and shall stone the to deathe. The damsell because she cryed not inge in the cite, and the man because he hath defiled his neighbours wyfe, and thou shalt put awaye euill from the.

But yf a man synde a betrothed damsell in the feilde, and force her and lye with her:
Then the man that laye with her shall dye alone, and vnto the damsell thou shalt do no harme, because there is in the damsell no cause of deathe. For lyke as when a man spyleth agaynste his neighbour and sleeth him, euen so is this matter. For he founde her in the feilde, and the betrothed damsell cryed, but there was no man to rescue her. Yf a man synde a mayde that is not betrothed and take her,

her, and lye with her and be founde. Then the man that laye with her, shall geue vnto damsells father syle syles of silver. And the shall be his wyfe because he hath defoured her maydenhed, and he maye not put her awaye all his dayes.

No man shall take his fathers wyfe, nor nor bynne his fathers secretes.

What maner of men maye not be admyt in to the church. Solutions that happe in the night. Usury.

CAPL.

XXIII.

NOne that is gelded, or hath his pzeupe members cut of, shall come in to the congregation of the Lorde. And he that is boyme of a concubine, shall not come in to the congregation of the Lorde, no in the tenth generation he shall not enter in to the congregation of the Lorde. The Ammonytes and the Moabites shall not come in to the congregation of the Lorde, no not in the tenth generation, no they shall neuer come in to the congregation of the Lorde because they met you not with bread, and water in the waye, when ye came out of Egypte, and because they byred agaynste the Balaam the sonne of Beor, the interpreter oute of Mesopotamia, to curse the.

Neuertheless the Lorde thy God wold not hearken vnto Balaam, but turned the curse to blessinge vnto the, because the Lorde thy God loued the. Thou shalt neuer therefore like that whiche is prosperous or good for them all thy dayes for euer. Thou shalt not abhorre an Edomite, for he is thy brother, neither shalt thou abhorre an Egyptian, because thou wast a stranger in his lande. The chyldren that are begotten of them shall come in to the congregation of the Lorde in the thirde generation.

When thou goest oute with the hoste a-gayn thyne ennemys, kepe the from all wile kynesse. Yf there be any man that is vnclene by reason of vnclennesse that chaunceth hym by nyght, let him goo oute of the hoste, and not come in agayne, vntill he haue washed hym selfe with water before the euen: & then when the sonne is downe, let hym come in to the host agayne.

Thou shalt haue a place without the host wherewith thou shalt resort to for necessite, and thou shalt haue a woman vnder thy gy-rell: and when thou wilt take thy selfe, digge therewith and turne and couer that whiche is departed from the. For the Lorde thy God walketh in thyne host, to ryd the and let thyne ennemys before. Let thyne host be pure, that he be no vnclene thyng amonge you and turne from you.

Thou shalt not deliuer vnto his master the seruante whiche is escaped from his master vnto the. Lette him dwell with the, euen amonge you in what place he hym selfe liketh best, in one of the cityes where it is good for hym, and here him not.

There shall be no hoore of the daughters of Israel, nor hooremonger of the sonnes of Israel. Thou shalt neyther bynne the wyfe of an hoore, nor the wyfe of a dogge in to thy house of the Lorde thy God in no maner of wyse, for bothe of them, are abomination vnto the Lorde thy God.

Thou shalt be no vsurer vnto thy brother neither in money nor in fode, nor in any maner thyng that is lent vpon vsure. Vnto a stranger thou mayst lende vpon vsure, but not vnto thy brother, for thou shalt lende him in his nede, that the Lorde thy God maye bless the
in all thou sette thyne hande to in the lande wherewith thou goest to conquire it.

When thou hast bowed a bowe vnto the Lorde thy God, so thou be not slacke to per-forme it, for he will surely requyte it of the,
and it shall be layd vnto the. Yf thou shalt leane bowynge, it shall be no synne vnto the:
but that whiche is ones gone oute of thy lyp-pes, thou must kepe and doo, accordynge as thou hast bowed vnto the Lorde thy God of a free will whiche thou hast spoken with thy mouthe.

When thou comest into thy neighbours vine yarde, thou mayest eate grapes thy help-full at thy pleasure: but thou shalt put none in thy bagge.

When thou goest in to thy neighbours coyne, & thou mayst plucke the eares of thynne hande, but thou mayest not moue a syle vnto thy neighbours coyne.

Cursed be he that lyeth with his fathers wyfe, because he hath uncovered his fathers bed, and all the people shall say: Amen.

Cursed be he that lyeth with any manner best, and all the people shall say: Amen.

Cursed be he that lyeth with his father, whether he be the daughter of his father or of his mother, and all the people shall say: Amen.

Cursed be he that lyeth with his wives mother, and all the people shall say: Amen.

Cursed be he that secretly his neighbour priuily, and all the people shall say: Amen.

* Cursed be he that taketh a reward to see innocent bloude, and all the people shall say: Amen.

Cursed be he that sleepeth with his neighbours wyfe, and all the people shall say: Amen.

Cursed be he that contumeth not in all the wordes of this lawe to doo them, and all the people shall say: Amen.

The promyses of the blessinges vnto them that regard the commandmentes: and the curses to the contrary.

CAPL. XXVIII.

Yf thou walte hearken diligently vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to observe and do all his commandmentes which I commaunde the this daye, the Lorde will let the aboue all nations of the earth. And all these blessinges shall come on the and ouertake the, yf thou walte hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God. Blessed shalt thou be in the towne, and blessed in the felde, blessed shalt thou be in the fruit of thy body, the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattell, the fruit of thy oxen, and the fruit of thy sheepe, blessed shalt thou be in thy wayes, and thy wayes, blessed shalt thou be, when thou goest out, and blessed when thou comest in. * The Lorde shall smyte thyne enemies that are agaynste the before thy face. They shall come out agaynste the one waye, and they shall be scattered amonge all the kyngdomes of the earth. And thy cartell shall be made vnto all manner foules of the ayre, and vnto the beastes of the erthe, and no man shall fraye them awaye.

* And the Lorde shall smyte the with the botches of Egypte, and the eruptions, scallie and maungynesse, that thou shalt not be healed thereof. And the Lorde shall smyte the with madness, blindness, and dasyng of heere. And thou shalt grope at noon dayes as the blind gropeth in darcknesse, and shalt not come to the eyght waye. And thou shalt suffer wronge onely and be oppressed euermore, and no man shall sucker the, thou shalt weep a while and an other shall lye with thee. * Thou shalt buy an house and an other shall dwell therein. Thou shalt plant a vineyard, and shalt not gather the fruit thereof. Thyne oxen shall be slain before thyne eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof. Thyne asse shall be violently taken awaye even before thy face, and thou shalt not be redressed the agayne. Thy sheepe shall be given vnto thyne enemies, and no man shall helpe the.

* The Lorde shall open vnto the his good treasure, even the heuen, to geue raine vnto thy lande in due season, and to blesse all the labours of thyne hande. And thou shalt lende vnto many nations, but thou shalt not neede to borrowe.

* The Lorde shall open vnto the his good treasure, even the heuen, to geue raine vnto thy lande in due season, and to blesse all the labours of thyne hande. And thou shalt lende vnto many nations, but thou shalt not neede to borrowe.

same thy selfe. And the Lorde shall set the before and not behynde, and thou shalt be a house onely, and not benethe: yf thou hearken vnto the commandmentes of the Lorde thy God which I commaunde the this daye to kepe and to doo. And thou shalt not come out of these wordes which I commaunde the this daye, eyther to the eyght hande or to the left, that thou wouldest goo after strange goddes to serue them.

But yf thou wyldest not hearken vnto the wordes of the Lorde thy God to kepe and to doo all his commandmentes and ordinances which I commaunde the this daye: then shall all these curses that I commaunde the this daye come vnto thee. Cursed shalt thou be in the towne, and cursed in the felde: cursed shalt thou be in the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy land, and the fruit of thyne oxen and the flockes of thy sheepe. And cursed shalt thou be when thou goest out, and when thou goest in. And the Lorde shall send vnto thee cursynge, destruction, and compaignynge in all that thou shalt doo. Thyne hande shall be stretched out, and thou shalt be destroyed, and brought to nought quickly, because of the wickednes of thyne owne deuites in that thou hast forsaken the Lorde. And the Lorde shall make the pestilence cleare vnto the, vntill he hath consumed the from the lande whither thou shalt go to enioye it. * And the Lorde shall smyte the with smellynge, with scabbes, with burninge, with scurfe, with itchyng, and with blisynge. And they shall followe the till thou perishe.

* And the heuen that is ouer thy head shall be braide, and the erthe that is vnder the yon. And the Lorde shall tourne the rayne of the lande vnto powder and dust: even from heauen almes shall come downe vpon the, vntill thou be brought to nought. And the Lorde shall plague the before thyne enemies. Thou shalt come out one waye agaynste them, and thou shalt be scattered amonge all the kyngdomes of the earth. And thy cartell shall be made vnto all manner foules of the ayre, and vnto the beastes of the erthe, and no man shall fraye them awaye.

* And the Lorde shall smyte the with the botches of Egypte, and the eruptions, scallie and maungynesse, that thou shalt not be healed thereof. And the Lorde shall smyte the with madness, blindness, and dasyng of heere. And thou shalt grope at noon dayes as the blind gropeth in darcknesse, and shalt not come to the eyght waye. And thou shalt suffer wronge onely and be oppressed euermore, and no man shall sucker the, thou shalt weep a while and an other shall lye with thee. * Thou shalt buy an house and an other shall dwell therein. Thou shalt plant a vineyard, and shalt not gather the fruit thereof. Thyne oxen shall be slain before thyne eyes, and thou shalt not eat thereof. Thyne asse shall be violently taken awaye even before thy face, and thou shalt not be redressed the agayne. Thy sheepe shall be given vnto thyne enemies, and no man shall helpe the.

Thy sonnes and thy daughters shall be given into an other nation, and thyne eyes shall be and bane vpon them all daye longe, but thou shalt haue no myght in thyne hande. The fruit of thy lande and all thy labours shall a nation which thou knowest not, eate; and thou shalt suffer violence, and be oppressed alwaye: that thou shalt be cleane beyde thy selfe for the sight of such thynges as thou shalt see.

The Lorde shall smyte the with a myschance, thou shalt be in the knees and legges, so that thou shalt not be healed: even from the sole of the foot vnto the top of the head.

* The Lorde shall bynne bothe the, and thy kynge whiche thou hast set ouer the vnto a nation whiche neyther thou nor thy fathers haue knowne: and there thou shalt see strange goddes: euen wodde and stone. And thou shalt goo to waste, and be made a praye, and a preyng stocke vnto all nations whiche the Lorde shall carpe the. Thou shalt carry moche seed out in to the felde, and shalt gather but litle in, for the grechoppers shall destroy it. Thou shalt plant a vineyard and distill it, but shalt neyther drynke of the wine ne gather of the grapes, for the wormes shall eate it. Thou shalt haue olyue trees in all thy cootes, but shalt not be anoynted with the oyle, for thyne olyue trees shall be rooted out. Thou shalt gette sonnes and daughters, but shalt not haue them: for they shall be carryed awaye prisoners. All thy trees and fruite of thy lande shall be marred with blasphe.

The strangers that are amonge you shall clymme aboue the, and thou shalt come downe alowe. He shall lende the, and thou shalt not lende hym, he shall be before, and thou behynde.

Moreover all these curses shall come vpon the, and thou shalt followe the and imbrace the, till thou be destroyed: because thou hast hearkened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commandmentes and ordinances which he hath commaunded the, and they shall be vpon the as meruailes and wonders, and vpon thy seed for euer. And because thou seruedst not the Lorde thy God with ioyfullnesse, and with a good heart, for the abundance of all thynges therefore thou shalt see thyne enemy whiche the Lorde shall sende vpon the: in hunger and thirst, in nakednesse, and in neede of all thynges. And he shall put a yoke of yron vpon thy necke, till he haue brought the to nought.

And the Lorde shall bynne a nation vpon the from farre, even from the ende of the world, as smythe as an Egyle flecth: a nation whose tongue thou shalt not vnderstande: a hard hearted nation which shall not regarde the person of the olde, nor haue compassion on the yonge. And he shall eate the fruite of thy land, and the fruite of thy cattell vntill he haue destroyed the: so that he shall leave the neyther coye, wyne, nor oyle, neyther the increase of thyne oxen, nor the flockes of thy sheepe, vntill he haue brought the to nought. And he shall kepe the in, in all thy dayes, vntill thy and strange wailles be come downe vnto the: and thou shalt crye, because thou shalt haue all the lande. And thou shalt be as a bynne in all thy dayes, because thou shalt haue all the lande whiche the Lorde thy God hath given the.

* And thou shalt eate of the fruite of thyne owne bodie: the fleshe of thy sonnes and of thy daughters whiche the Lorde thy God hath geuen the, in that straghtnesse and large wyrdeth thyne enemye shall besiege the, so that it shall geue the man that is tender and berpe helycate amonge you, to lye on his brother, and vpon his wyfe that lyeth in his bosome, and on the rest of his children whiche he hath yet left, for feare of greynge vnto anye of them of the fleshe of his children, whiche he eateth because he hath noughte left hym in the straghtnesse and large wyrdeth thyne enemye shall besiege the in all thy dayes.

Yea and the woman that is so tender and helycate amonge you that she dare not adventure to set the sole of her foote vpon the grounde for softnesse and tendernesse, shall be geued to lye on the husbande that lyeth in her bosome, even to the fleshe of her sonne and of her daughter the after byrthe that is come because of her children whiche she hath borne, she wold eate them that same hour for neede of all thynges secretly, in the straghtnesse and large wyrdeth thyne enemye shall besiege the in all thy dayes.

Yf thou wyldest not be diligent to do all the wordes of this lawe that are written in this booke, to feare this glorious & fearefull name of the Lorde thy God: the Lorde will smyte bothe the and thy seed with wonderfull plagges and with great plagges and of longe continuance, and with euill synchelles & of longe duraunce. Moreover he will bynne vpon the all the diseases of Egypte whiche thou wast afraid of, and they shall cleave vnto the. Thereto all manner synchelles and all manner plagges, whiche are not written in the booke of this lawe, will the Lorde bynne vpon the, till thou be brought to nought. And ye shall be left seme in nombe, where before ye were as the * sterres of heuen in multitude: because thou wouldest not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God.

* And as the Lorde reioysed ouer you to do you good, and to multiplye you: euen so he will reioyce ouer you, to destroye you, and to bynne you to nought. And ye shall be wasted oute of the lande whiche thou goest to enioye it. And the Lorde shall scatter the amonge all nations, from the one ende of the world vnto the other, and there thou shalt see strange goddes, whiche neyther thou nor thy fathers haue knowne: euen wodde and stone.

And amonge these nations thou shalt haue no quyetnes, neyther shalt there be anye rest to the sole of thy foote. For the Lorde shall geue the there a tremblng heart, and dasyng eyes, and some of mynde. And thy lyfe shall hang before the, and thou shalt feare daye and nyghte, and shalt haue no trust in thy thy lyfe. In the morning thou shalt say, wolde God it were nyght. And at nyght thou shalt say, wolde God it were morning, for feare of thine heet which thou shalt fear, and for the sight of thine eyes which thou shalt see.

And the Lorde shall bynge the into Egypt agayne with hyppes, by the waye whiche I had the thou shouldest se it no more. And there ye shall be solde vnto your enemies, for bondmen and bondwomen, and yet no man shall bye you.

The people are exhorted to observe the commandments, for the consideration of benefits received: which if they breake they are threatened to be plagued.

CAPL. XXIX.

These are the wordes of the appoyntment whiche the Lorde commaunded Moyses to make with the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Moab, besyde the appoyntment whiche he made with them in Horeb. And Moyses called vnto all Israel and sayd vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the Lorde dyd before your eyes in the land of Egypt, vnto Pharaon and vnto all his seruantes, and vnto all his lande, and the great temptations which thine eyes haue sene, and those great myracles and wonders: and yet the Lorde hath not gyuen you an heere to perceyue, nor eyes to se, nor eares to heare vnto this daye.

* And at laste ye came vnto this place, and Sehon the kynge of Heshen, and Og kynge of Basan came forth agayn vnto batayle, as we smote them and toke theyr land, and gaue it an inheritaunce vnto the Rubenytes, and Gadites, & to the halfe tribe of Manasse. Kepe therefore the wordes of this appoyntment, & wch them, that ye may vnderstand al that ye ought to do. * Ye stande here this daye euery one of you before the Lorde your God: bothe the heedes of your trybes, your elders, your officers, and all the men of Israel: your chyldren, your wyues, and the straunger that sojourneth in thine house, from the betwex of thy wod, vnto the diuises of thy water: that thou shouldest come vnder the appoyntment of the Lorde thy God, and vnder his othe whiche the Lorde thy God maketh with the this daye, to make the a people vnto hym selfe, and that he maye be thy God, as he hath sayde vnto the, and as he hath sworn vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Letther I make this bonde, and this othe with you onely: but heuily with hym that standeth here with vs this daye before the Lorde our God, and also with hym that is not here with vs this daye. For ye knowe how we haue dwelt in the land of Egypt, and how we came thowto the myrcles of the nations whiche we passed by. And ye haue sene theyr abhominations and theyr ydolles: woodde, stone, silver and golde whiche they worshipped.

Letther there be amonge you man of woman kynned of thyne that turneth away in his heart this daye from the Lorde our God, to go and serue the Goddesses of these nations: and letther there be amonge you some roote that beareth gall and wormewood, so that when he heareth the wordes of this curse, he blesse hym selfe in his heart, saying. I shall haue peace. I will therefore worke after the lust of myne owne heart, that the byrken maye peryshe with the this daye. And so the Lorde will not be mercifull to hym, but then the wyche of the Lorde and his geuyls shall come agayn vnto that man, and all the curses that are wyrtten in this booke, shal be vpon hym, and the Lorde do our his name vnto heuen, and separate hym vnto euill out of all the trybes of Israel, accordyng vnto all the curses of the appoyntment that is wyrtten in the booke of this lawe.

So that the generation to come of your chyldren that shall tye vp after you, and the straunger that shall come from fere saye vnto the, they se the plagges of that lande, and the diseases wherewith the Lorde hath smyten yt, how all the lande is burnt vp with bymston and felle, and that it is neyther sowne nor beareth nor anye grasse groweth therein, accordyng to the ouerthrowynge of Sodome, Gomorrah, and Zebolim: whiche the Lorde ouerthrowe in his wyche and angre.

And then shall all nations also saye: * wherfore hath the Lorde doone in this wyse vnto this lande? O how fere is this great wylde! And men shall saye: because they left the testiment of the Lorde, God of theyr fathers: whiche he made with them when he brought them out of the lande of Egypt. And they were and serued strange goddesses and worshipped them: goddesses which they knewe not, a which hadde gyuen them noughte. And therefore the wyche of the Lorde waxed hote vpon that lande to bynge vpon it all the curses that are wyrtten in this booke. And the Lorde call them out of theyr lande in angre, wyche, and great fury, and call them in to a strange lande, as it is come to passe this daye. The ceteres of the Lorde our God are opened vnto vs and our chyldren for euer, that we do al the wordes of this lawe.

The wordes of God is not fere from them that seke for it, but in theyr mouthes and hertes.

CAPL. XXX.

When al these wordes shall come vpon the, whether it be the blessing or the curse whiche I haue set before the, yet if thou turne vnto thine heart among all the nations wherewith the Lorde thy God hath the this daye, and come agayne vnto the Lorde thy God and hearken vnto his voyce, accordyng to all that I commaunde the this daye: bothe thou, and thy chyldren with all thine herte, and all thy soule: Then the Lorde thy God will counte thy captiuitie, and haue compassion vpon the, and go and set the agayne frome all the nations amonges which the Lorde thy God hath hath scattered the. Though thou wast cast vnto the extreme partes of heuen: euen frome thence will the Lorde thy God gather the, and from thence let the & bynge the in to the land whiche thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt enioye it. And he will shewe the kyndnesse & multiply the about thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God will circumcise thine heart, and hee shall be thy seed for to loue the Lorde thy God with all thine heart, & all thy soule, that thou maist lue. * And the Lorde thy God will put all these curses vpon thine enemies and on them that hate and pursue the.

But thou shalt turne and hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde and do all his commandments whiche I commaunde the this daye. And the Lorde thy God will make the plentiful in all the wordes of thine hand, and in the fruite of thy body, in the fruite of thy catel, and fruite of thy land, and in riches. * For the Lorde will turne agayne and reioyce ouer the, to do good as he reioyced ouer thy fathers. If thou hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commandmentes and ordinaunces, whiche are wyrtten in the booke of this lawe, if thou come vnto the Lorde thy God with all thine herte, and all thy soule.

* For the commandment whiche I commaunde the this daye, is not byd from the, ne fere of. It is not in heuen that thou needest to saye: who shall go vp for vs to heuen, and see vnto, that we maye heare it and do it. Neither is it beyonde the see: that thou shouldest saye: who shall go ouer see for vs to set it vnto that we maye heare it and do it. But the wordes is beynde vnto the, euen in thy mouth & in thine heart that thou do it.

Beholde, I haue set before you this daye lyfe and good, death and euill: in that I commaunde the this daye to loue the Lorde thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commandmentes, his ordinaunces and his lawes: that thou mayest lue and multiplye, and that the Lorde thy God maye blesse the in the lande wherewith thou goest to possesse it.

But if thou hert turne away, so that thou wilt not heare: but wilt go astraye and worshipping strange goddesses, and serue them, I curse the this daye, that ye shall surely peryshe, and that ye shall not prolong your dayes vpon the land wherewith thou passedst ouer Jordan to go and possesse it.

* I call to recorde this daye vnto you heuen and erth, that I haue set before you lyfe and death, blessing and cursynge: but chose lyfe, that thou and thy seed may lue, in that thou louest the Lorde thy God, hearken vnto his voyce, and cleauest vnto hym. For he is thy lyfe and the lengthe of thy dayes, that thou mayest dwell vpon the earth whiche the Lorde swaue vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to geue them.

Moyses being ready to dye, ordeyth Josue to rule the people in his stede. This booke Deuteronomye is written and layde in the tabernacle besyde the ark. The Leuytes are charged to recorde it to the people.

Ad Moyses went and spake these wordes vnto all Israel and sayd vnto them. I am an hundred and twentye yere olde this daye, and can no more go out and in. Also the Lorde hath sayd vnto me, thou shalt not goo ouer this Jordan. The Lorde your God he will go ouer before the, and he will destroy these nations before the, and thou shalt conquer them. And Josua shall goo ouer before the, as the Lorde hath sayde. And the Lorde shall goo vnto them, as he dyd to Sehon and Og kynge of the Amorytes, and vnto their landes, whiche kynge he destroyed. And when the Lorde hath deliuered them to you, se ye vnto them accordyng vnto all the commandmentes whiche I haue commaunded you. Plucke vp your herres and be stronge, dyde not, nor be afraide of them: for the Lorde thy God him selfe will go with the, and will neither let the go, nor forsake the.

And Moyses called Josua and said vnto him in the sight of all Israel. * We stronge & bold: for thou mustt goo with this people vnto the land whiche the Lorde hath sworn vnto their fathers to geue them, and thou shalt geue it them to inherite. And the Lorde shall goo before the, and he shall be with the, and will not let the goo, nor forsake the: feare not therefore, nor be discomforted.

And Moyses wrote this lawe and deliuered it vnto the preestes the sonnes of Leui, whiche bare the arke of the testiment of the Lorde, and vnto all the elders of Israel, and commaunded them saying. * At the ende of eue. vii. yere, in the tyme of the fere yere, in the feast of the tabernacles, when al Israel is come to appeere before the Lorde thy God, in the place whiche he shall chiose: se thou rede this lawe before all Israel in their eares. Charge the people toge ther, men, women, and chyldren, and the straungers that are i thy citys, that they may heare lerne and feare the Lorde your God, and be diligent to kepe all the wordes of this lawe, and that their chyldren which knowe nothing may heare, and lerne to feare the Lorde your God, as long as ye lue in the lande whiche ye go ouer Jordan to possesse it.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses. Beholde, thy dayes are come, that thou mustt dye. Call Josua and stande in the tabernacle of witness, that I may geue hym a charge. And Moyses and Josua went and stode in the tabernacle of witness. And the Lorde appered in the tabernacle, euen in the pylle of the cloude. And the pylle of the cloude stode ouer the doore of the tabernacle. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moyses: beholde thou mustt sleepe with thy fathers, and this people will tye vp and go a hooring after strange goddesses of the land whiche they go, and will forsake me and breake the appoyntment whiche I haue made with them. And then my wyche will waxe hote agayn vnto them, and I will forsake them, and will hyde my face from them in that daye, and they shall be consumed. And when moche aduersite and tribulation is come vpon them, then they will saye: by

The booke is put in the arch. When Moses hadde written the wordes of this lawe in a booke, vnto the end of them, he commaunded the Leuites which bare the arke of the testament of the Loyde, saying: take the booke of this lawe, and put it by the syde of the arke of the testament of the Loyde your God, and let it be there for a witnesse agaynste the. For I knowe thy stubbornnes, & thy stiff necke: beholde whyle I am yet aloue and in compaignie with you this daye, ye haue ben faterly agaynste the Loyde, how moche more after our deeth?

Gather vnto me all elders of your tribes and your officers, that I may speke these wordes in theyr eares, and call heuen and earth to recorde agaynste them. For I am sure that after my deeth, ye will be wickedly, & turne from the waye which I commaunded you, and tribulation shall come vpon you in the latter dayes when ye haue brought wickednesse in sight of the Loyde to prouoke him with the wordes of your bandes. And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregation of Israel the wordes of this songe vnto the ende of them.

The songe of Moses. He goeth vnto the toppe of Abarim to see the land of promyse.

Perfect are Gods dees, and all his wayes are righteousness: God is faithful and without wickednes, both righteous and iust is he.

The forwardes and onerthwardes generation hath trespassed agaynste him, and are not his sonnes by reason they are disfigured. Dost thou so rewarde the Loyde? O thou the nation and dwylfe. Is not he thy father, and thy owner? hath he not made the and ordeined the? Remembre the dayes that are past: conuince the yeres from tyme to tyme. Aske thy father, and he will shewe the thy auncestours, & they shall tel the, when the most highest requelled the nations, and diuided the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nations faste by the company of the chyldren of Israel.

For the Loydes part is his folke, and Jacob is the portion of his inheritance.

He founde him in a deserte land, in a boyde ground and in a wyld wilderness. He led him about and gaue him vnderstanding, and kepte him as the apple of his eye.

As an Eagle that stretcheth by her nest to see, and stretcheth out her yonge, he stretcheth out his wynges, and take him vp and bare him on his shoulders. The Loyde alone was his guyde, and there was no strange God with him.

He set him by vpon an hye land, and he ate the increase of the felde. And he gaue him hope to luche out of the rocke, and oyle out of the harde stone. With butter of kyne, & mylke of the shepe, with fat of the lambes, and fatte rammes of Basan, with gores & wheate flour. And of the bloud of grapes thou dronkest rye wyne.

And Israel waxed fat, and lyched. Thou wast fat, cyche and smothe. And he let God go that made him, and turned his backe from God that saued him. They stirred by his displeasure thowth their strange goddes, & with abhominacions prouoked him.

They offered vnto demys, and not to God, and to Goddes whiche they knewe not, euen to newe Goddes that came newly by, whiche they fathers neuer worshipped.

Of the God that begat the thou arte brmyndfull, and hast forgot God that made the. And when the Loyde sawe it he was angry: because of the prouokynge of his sonnes and doughters.

And he said, I will byde my face from them, and wyl se what theyr ende shall be. For they are a forward generation & chyldren in whom is no faythe. They haue angered me with him that was no God, & prouoked me with theyr banities. * And I agayne wyl angrer them with them whiche are no people, and wyl prouoke them with a folyshe nation. * For theyr is kyned in my wrath, and shall consume the earth with her increase, and set a fyre the bowmes of the mountaynes. I wyl heape my schewes vpon them, and wyl spende all myne atomes amonges them.

They shall pnye awaye by sampn, bydes shall deuoure them with a bytter gnawynge.

* I wyl also sende the tern of beelias vpon them, and poyson serpentes of p earth. Without doers the swerde shall despoyle them, and with in in the chamber, seare: vorse yonge men and yonge yonge women, and the suckelynge, with the men of gyfte yeres. I haue determined to scatter them thowth out the wynde, and to abolyse theyr name from amonge men, but for theyr eunymies cause I haue forborne the, lest theyr aduersaries wolde take vpon them and saye: our hye hande hath done all these thynges, and not the Loyde.

For it is a nation that hath no forecast, and hath no vnderstanding in them: I wold they were wyse, and vnderstode this, and wold theyr fier their latter ende.

Howe it cometh, that one shall chaunge a thousand, and two put ten thousand of them to flyght: but that theyr God hath soulede them, and because the Loyde hath gyuen them vnder.

For our rocke is not as their rocke, no though our enemyes be iudge. But theyr dynes are of the bynes of Sodom, and of the felde of Gomora. Their grapes are grapes of gal, & theyr clustres be bytter.

Theyr wyne is the poyson of dragons, and the cruell gal of adders. Are not suche thynges lapt in thowth with me, and sealed by amonges my treasures? * My vengeance is myne, and I wyl acquyte: Theyr sette shall lye vpon the tyme cometh. For the tyme of theyr destruction is at hande, and the tyme that shall come vpon them maketh haste.

For the Loyde wyl to wyte vnto his people, and haue compassion on his seruantes. For it shall be sene that theyr power shall faile, & their prisoners be lost, and the echoue waiked.

And it shall be sayd: where are their goddes wherin they trusted?

The far of whose sacrifices they ate, & drake the wyne of their weylapies, let them crye by and heipe you, and be your bylor.

Se some home I am alone, and that there is no God but I. I can kyl and make aloue, and what I haue mytten, that can I heale: neyther is there that can rescue any man oute of my hande.

For I wyl lyfte by myne hande to heuen, and wyl saye, I lye euer.

If I yet the edge of my swerde as it were a thowthbolt, & myne hande gorb about to do iudice, I wyl shewe vengeance on myne enemyes, and wyl requyte them that hate me.

I wyl make myne arrowes dyrochen with bloude, and my swerde shall eate fleshe of the bloud of the slayne, and of the captyue, and of myne enemyes bare heed.

Blaspheme (ye dethan) his people, for he wyl aunge the bloude of his seruantes, and wyl trunge him of his aduersaries. * I wyl be mercysfull vnto the lakke of his people.

Moses wente and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people, bothe he and Josua the sonne of Nun. When Moses hadde spoken all these wordes vnto the ende to all Israel, he sayd vnto them. Set your hartes vnto all the wordes which I testifie vnto you this day: that ye commaunde them vnto your chyldren to obseue and doo all the wordes of this lawe. For it is not a vayne word vnto you: but it is your lyfe, & thowth this word ye shall prolonge your dayes in the lande whiche theyr yers ouer Jordan to conqurre it.

And the Loyde spake vnto Moses, the same daye, saying: get the by in to this mountayne Abarim, vnto mount Pebo, whiche is in the lande of Moab ouer agaynste Jericho: & thou shalt see the lande of Canaan whiche I sware vnto the chyldren of Israel to possesse. And thou shalt die in the mounte whiche thou goest vpon, and be thou put vnto thy people: as Aaron thy brother dyed in a oune holl, and was put vnto his people. For ye trespassed agaynst me among the chyldren of Israel at the waters of strepe, at Madis in the wilderness of Zin: because ye halowed me not amonge the chyldren of Israel. Thou shalt see the land before the, but thou shalt not goo vnto the lande whiche I sware the chyldren of Israel.

* Moses goeth vnto mou. a. pebo.

Moses bynge blessed all the trybes of Israel.

CAPL. XXXIII.

This is the blessinge wherewith Moses Gods man blessed the chyldren of Israel before his deathe, sayinge:

The Loyde came from Sinai, and shewed his beames from Sile vnto them, and appeared gloryoulye from mount Pharan. And he came with thousandes of sayntes, and in his ryght hande a lawe of fyre for them. How loued he the people?

* All his sayntes are in his hande. They that toyned them selues vnto this socer, shall receyue his wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe whiche is the inheritance of the congregation of Jacob. And he was in Israel kyng, and gathered the heades of the people and the trybes of Israel together.

Ruben shall lyeue and shall not dye: but his people shall be fewe in nombre. This is the blessinge of Iuda: weare the Loyde the boyce of Iuda, and byynge him vnto his people, sette his handes aght for him, but be thou his help agaynste his enemyes.

And vnto Leui he said: thy perfectnes and thy lycht be after thy mercysfull man whome thou contentest at Bethel with whom thou stuedst at the waters of strepe. He that sayth vnto his father and mother, I sawe him not, and vnto his brethren, I knewe not: and to his sonne, I wote not: for they haue obscured thy wordes, and kepte thy testament. They shall teache Jacob thy iudgements, and Israel thy lawes. They shall put incense before thy nose, and hole sacrifices vpon thine altier. Blessede Loyde theyr power, and accepte the wordes of theyr bandes: imyte the backes of them that crye agaynste them, and of them that hate the: that theyr crye not agayne.

Vnto Beniamin he sayde. The Loydes derlyng shall dwell safelye with him: and kepe him selfe in the chambie by hym continually, and shall dwell bywene his shoulders.

And vnto Joseph he sayde: blessed of the Loyde is his lande, with the goodly frutes of heuen, with dewe and with springes that

nettes, and with the coppes of mountaynes that were frome the begynnyng, and with the darynges of hylls that lye sure, and with goodly frute of the carib, and of the lul-nelle therot.

And the good wpll of him that dwelleth in the * bulwe, shall come vpon the heed of Joseph, and vpon the toppe of the heed of him that was separated frome his brethren, his beautie is as a firiborne ore, and his hoines as the hoines of an onycorne. And with them he shall puse the nations together, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. These are the ma-nye thousandes of Ephraim, and the thousand of Manasse.

And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Ketepe Za-bulon in thy gorynge oute, and thou Ilachar in thy tentes. They shall call the people vnto the hill, and there they shall offer offeringes of eyghthouines. For they shall sucke of the ryche of the see, and of treasure hydde in
the lande.

And vnto Gad he sayde: Blessed is the prophete maker Gad. He dwelleth as a lyon and caughte the arme and also the coppe of the heed. He sawe his dominion that in his part there was a teacher hyd, and came with the heed of the people, and executed his rightousnes of the Loyde, and his iudgements with Israel.

And vnto Dan he sayde: Dan is a Lyons whelp, he shall now plentifully from Balan.
And vnto Nephthali he sayd: Nephthali he shall haue abundance of pleasure, and shall be filled with the blessing of the Loyde, and shall haue his possessions in the south west.

And of Aser he sayde: Aser shall be blessed with chyldren: he shall be acceptable vnto his brethren, and shall dyp his fore in oyle: Yron and brasse shall hang on thy shooes, and thine age shall be as thy youth.

There is none lyke vnto the God of Israel
he that lyeth vpon heuen, shall be thine help whose gloire is in the cloude, that is the dwelling place of God from above, and vnder the armes of the worlde: he hath cast our enemyes before the and sayd: destroy. And Israel shall dwell in safety alone. And the eyes of Jacob shall loke vpon a lande of coyne and wyne. Wherever his heuen shall droppe with dew. Happy arte thou Israel, who is lyke vnto the? A people that are saued by the Loyde, thy shyld and helper, and a swerde of thy glo-

rye. And thine enemyes shall hyde them sel-ues frome the, and thou shalt walke vpon thy hygh hylls.

CAPL XXXIII.

And Moses wente frome the felde of Moab vp, in to mounte Hebo, whiche is the toppe of Phatgah, ouer agaynste Jericho. And the Loyde shewed him all the land of Galaad, euen vnto Dan, and al Nephthali and the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, and all the land of Juda: euen vnto the vttermost see, and the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the cite of palme trees, euen vnto Zoar. And the Loyde sayd vnto him. * This is the land which I swaie vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, sayinge: I will gyue it vnto thy seed. I haue shewed it the, before thine eyes:
but thou wast not goe ouer thither.

So Moses the seruante of the Loyde dyed there in the lande of Moab, at the commaun-dement of the Loyde. And he buried hym in a vale in the lande of Moab besyde Bethphoor:
but no man wote of his sepulchre vnto this daye. And Moses was an hundred and twen-tye yere olde when he dyed, and yet his eyes were not dimme, nor his chekes abated. And the chyldren of Israel wepte for Moses in the felde of Moab thretye dayes. And the dayes of wepyng and mournyng for Moses were ended.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was ful of the spirite of wysdome: * for Moses had put his hand vpon him. And all the chyldren of Israel hekened vnto him, and dyd as the Loyde commaunded Moses. But there arose not a pry-phete after that tyme in Israel lyke vnto Moses: whom the Loyde knewe face to face in all the myracles and wonders whiche the Loyde sent him to do in the lande of Egypt vnto Pharaon and all his seruantes, and vnto all his lande: and in all the myghty dedes, and greace wonderfull thynges
whiche Moses dyd
in the syght of all Israel.

CAPL I.

¶ After the deth of Moses the seruante of the Loyde: the Loyde spake vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, Moses seruante, sayinge: Moses my seruante is deed. Nowe
therefore aryse & go ouer Jordan, bothe thou and all this people vnto the lande whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel. * All the places that the soles of your fete shall treade on, haue I gyuen you, as I said vnto Moses: from the wyldernesse & Libanon, vnto the great ryuer Euphrates: and all the land of the Westhites euen vnto the greake see towarde the gorynge downe of the sonne, shall be youre boundes.
There shall not a man be able to withstande the, all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was with Moses, so wyl I be with the: and wyl neither leaue the, nor forsake the. * Be strong and bold: for vnto this people shalt thou dispose the land by lot, which I swaie vnto their fathers to gyue them.

Be stronge, and harden thy selfe to obserue
and to do, accordyng to all the lawes whiche Moses my seruante commaunded the. * Returne from them neyther to the ryght hand nor left: that thou mayst haue vnderstanding in all thou takest in hande, * let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouth: but medyte therein daye and nyght, that thou mayst performe and kepe al that is wyrtten therein.
For then shalt thou make thy waye prosperous, and then thou shalt haue vnderstandyng. Beholde, I haue sayd vnto the, be strong and bolde: neyther feare nor drede. For the Loyde thy God is with the, wherther so euer thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, sayinge. So thowete the myddes of the hille, and commaunde the people, saying: prepare you vitayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to go and en-tope the lande, whiche the Loyde your God gyueth you to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasse spake Josua, saying: Remember that, whiche Moses the seruante of the Loyde commaunded you sayinge.
The Loyde your God hath gyuen you this, and all this lande. Let your wyues, your chyldren and your cattell remaine in the lande whiche Moses gyue you on this syde Jordan: But go ye before your brethren armed, all that be men of warre, and fyghte for them, tyll the Loyde haue gyuen your brethren rest, as he hath done you, and tyll they also haue obtayned the lande whiche the Loyde your God gyueth them. And then retourne vnto the lande of os your possession and entoye it, whiche Moses the Loydes seruante gaue you on this syde Jordan, towarde the sonne eyng. And now, they answered Josua, sayinge: * All that thou saydest vs we wyl doo, and wherther so euer thou sendest vs, we wyl go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moses in all thynges, so we wyl obey the. Onely the Loyde thy God be with the, as he was with Moses. And who so euer disobeye thy mouth, and wyl not he-ken vnto thy wordes in all thou commaundest hym, lette him dye. Onely be stronge and of good courage.

¶ Josua sendeth searchers of spyes to Jericho, whiche were hyde of Rahab and so shapen the handes

God of Israel.

CAPL II.

¶ Then Josua the sonne of Nun sent oute of Setim two spyes secretly, sayinge:
Go and vewe the lande, and also Jericho. And they went and came in to a vitelng house of a woman named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Jericho, sayinge: Beholde there came men in hither to nysht of the chyldren of Israel, to espye out the countrey. And the kynge of Jericho sente vnto Rahab, saying: byng forth the me that are come to the, whiche are entred in to thine house: they be spyes, for they be come to seeche out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men and hyd them. And sayd, in dede there came men vnto me, but I wote not frome whence they were.
And aboute the tyme of the shuttyng of the gate when it was darke they went out, whi-cher I wote not: but folowme after them quickly and ye shall ouertake them. And she brought them vnto the rofe of the house, and * hyd them vnder flake (yet in the flake) whiche she had lyege abrode vpon the rofe. And the men pursued after them the waye to Jordan euen vnto the * passage, and as sone as they whiche pursued after them were gone forthe, they shut the gates.

And on euer they were a slepe, she came vp vnto them vpon the rofe, and sayde vnto the men. I knowe that the Loyde hath gyuen you the lande, bothe because that the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and because that the inhabitantes of the lande saynt at your hyther refuge: for we haue herd how the Loyde * dyed vnto the water of the red see before you, when you came out of Egypt, and what you dyd vnto ther syde Jordan * Sihon, and Og whiche ye utterly destroyed. And as sone as we had herd these thynges, our hartes dyd lye. And there remained no more courage in anye man for that I have shewed you mercy, ye shall also shew mercy unto my fathers house and give me a true token. And thus ye shall save alive both my father, and my mother, my brethren, and my sisters, and all that pertain unto them. And that you shall rescue our souls from death.

And the men answered her, our lives for you to dye, so thou do not betray us. And so when the Lord had given us the land, we will deal mercifully and truly with thee. And then he let them down with a cord through a window. For her house was annexed to the town's wall. And he said unto them: get you in to the mountains, lest the pursuers meet with you, and hide your selves there three days, until the pursuers be returned, and then may ye go your wayes.

And the men said unto her, we will be discharged of this oyle, which thou hast made us swear, when we come in to the land, except thou bynde this purple girdle coide in the window, which thou larest us down by. And thou shalt bynge thy father, thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers household, even in to the house to thee. And then who so ever go out at the doors of thy house in to the sea, his blood shall be upon his own head, and we shall be free. And who so ever shall be with thee in the house, his blood shall be on our heads, if any mannes hand be upon him. But if thou disclose us, or tell these our wordes, we will be quite of thy oyle, which thou hast made us swear. And she said, according to your wordes, so be it: and so she turned away, and they departed. And she bounde the purple coide in the window.

And they departed and got them in to the mountains, and there abode three dayes, until the pursuers were returned. And the pursuers soughte thowse out all the waye, and founde them not. And the two men returned and descended from the mountains, and passed out, and came to Josua the sonne of Nun, and tolde him all that hadde chaunced them. And they sayde unto Josua, the Lord hath delivered in to our hands all the land, for all the inhabitants of the countrey shynke for feare of us.

The water of Jordan dyeth by, and Josua with the people passeth over.

CAPL.

III.

And Josua rose early: and they remoured from Hebron, and came to Jordan, both he and the chyldren of Israel, and so journeyed thre dayes before they met over. And after thre dayes the haroldes went thowse out the hoste, and commaunded the people, sayinge: when ye see the arke of the testament of the Lord your God, and the priests that are carriers bearynge it: then departe ye from your places and followe after it. So yet that there be a space betwene you and it, aboute a two hundred cubites by measure.

And come not nye unto it, that ye may knowe the waye by which ye muste go: for ye have not gone by it in tymes past. And Josua sayde unto the people, purifie your selves, for to morowe the Lord shall shewe wonders amonges you.

Then Josua spake unto the priests, sayinge, Take up the arke of the covenant, and go before the people. And they took up the arke, and went before the people.

And the Lord sayd unto Josua: this daye will I begyn to auaunce the in the sight of all Israel, that they maye knowe that as I was with Moses, so will I be with thee. And commaunde thou the priests that beare the arke of the testament, sayinge: when ye are entered a litle in to the water of Jordan, and shall in it.

Then spake Josua to the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: come hither, and heare the woordes of the Lord your God. And Josua sayd: Brethren, ye shall knowe that the spynge God is amonges you, and that he will undoubtedly cast out before you the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Gergisites, the Amorites, and the Jebusites. Be bold, the arke of the covenant of the Lord of all the worldes shall go before you in to Jordan. And now take you twelve men of the chyldren of Israel, of every tribe a man. And as soone as the soles of the feet of the priests that beare the arke of the omnipotent Lord or all the worldes, treade in the water of Jordan, the water of Jordan shall drye up: and the waters that come from above, shall stande uppon an heape.

And when the people were departed from their tentes to go over Jordan, the priests that beare the arke of the covenant before the people, as soone as they that beare the arke came unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that beare the arke were dyped in the bym of the water, Jordan beganne full out at his bankes, at the tyme of harved: the water that came downe from above dyd stoppe, and stode uppon an heape, a greete waye from Adam, a cite bysiede Zartban. And the water that went downe, vanyshe in to the see of the wilderness, called the salte see, as soon as it was divided: and the people went right over agaynst Jericho. And the priests that beare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord stode uppon drye lande in the myddes of Jordan, until all the people were cleane over Jordan.

Twelve stones are reared by for a remembrance, that Jordan was dryed, and is continually agayne to his course.

CAPL.

IIII.

And as soon as the people were all gone over Jordan, the Lord spake unto Josua sayinge, Take twelve men out of the people, of every tribe a man, and commaunde them, sayinge: Take you hence out of the myddes of Jordan, even out of the place where the priests stode, twelve hard stones. And

And take ye them awaye with you and put them in the place where you pryche your tentes this night. And Josua called unto the men which he had prepared of the chyldren of Israel, of every tribe a man, and sayde unto them: get you before the arke of the Lord your God even into the myddes of Jordan, and take by every man a stone upon his shoulder, according to the nombre of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, that this maye be a signe amonges you. And when your chyldren aske you in tyme to come, sayinge: What meane these stones: saye unto them, that the water of Jordan dyed backe at the comynge of the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord: such wylle it be a token of remembrance unto the chyldren of Israel for ever.

And the chyldren of Israel dyd as Josua commaunded, and took by twelve stones forth of the myddes of Jordan, as the Lord sayd unto Josua, according to the nombre of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, and caried the awaye with them, unto the place where they lodged, and layde them downe there. And therto Josua set by twelve stones in the myddes of Jordan in the place where the feet of the priests which beare the arke of the testament, stode.

And there they be unto this daye. For the priests which beare the arke stode in the myddes of Jordan, until all was accomplished: the Lord commaunded Josua to saye unto the people, according to all that Moses charged Josua. And the people halted and went out. When all the people were cleane over, then wente over the arke of the Lord, and also the priests before the people. And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasse went before the chyldren of Israel armed, as Moses charged them. Fourtye thousande armed for warre, wente before the Lord unto batayle unto the playnes of Jericho. That daye the Lord magnified Josua in the sight of all Israel, and they feared him as they feared Moyses al dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lord spake unto Josua, sayinge: commaunde the priests that beare the arke to come forth of Jordan. And Josua commaunded the priests, sayinge, Come forth of Jordan. And when the priests that beare the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord were ascended out of Jordan: as soone as the soles of the priests feet were broughte to drye lande, the water of Jordan returned agayne unto his place, and went over all his bankes as he dyd before. And the people came by out of Jordan the tenth daye of the first moneth, and pitched in Galgal, even in the easie borders of Jericho.

And the twelve stones, which they took out of Jordan, Josua pitched in Galgal. And he spake unto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: when your chyldren aske you in tyme to come what meane these stones: we will saye unto them: that the water of Jordan dyed backe at the comynge of the arke of the appoyntment of the Lord: such wylle it be a token of remembrance unto the chyldren of Israel for ever.

the water of Jordan before you, until ye were over, as the Lord your God dyd unto the red see, which he dyed by before us, until we were over: that all the people of the world may knowe the hand of the Lord how mighty he is, and that ye maye feare the Lord your God for ever.

The Canaanites be as yet. The seconde circumcission of Josua.

CAPL.

V.

And when all the kynges of the Amorites which are on this syde Jordan to the sewarde, and all the kynges of the Canaanites, which lye on the see, herde how the Lord hadde dyed by the water of Jordan before the chyldren of Israel, until they were over, they becam faynted in them. And there was no sperte in them any more for feare of the comynge of the chyldren of Israel.

That same tyme the Lord sayde unto Josua: Make the knyves of stone, and go to agayne, and circumcise the chyldren of Israel the seconde tyme. And Josua made bym knyves of stone, and circumcised the chyldren of Israel in the byll of Jericho. And this is the cause why Josua agayne circumcised. All the people that came out of Egypt that were males, all that were men of warre, dyed in the wilderness, by the waye after they came out of Egypt. Now all the people that came out were circumcised. But all the people that were borne in the wilderness by the waye after they came out of Egypt, they were not circumcised. For the chyldren of Israel walked forty yeres in the wilderness, until all the people of men of warre that came out of Egypt were consumed, which hardened not unto the voyce of God, so that the Lord swore, that he wolde not shewe them the lande, which he swore unto their fathers that he wolde give us, and a lande that floweth with mylke and honny. And they chyldren be set up in their stede: them Josua circumcised: for they were uncircumcised, because they circumcised them not by the waye.

And when all the people were circumcised, they abode still in their places in the hoste, until they were hole. And the Lord sayd unto Josua, this daye I have taken awaye the shame of Egypte from you: and called the name of the same place Galgal unto this day. And the chyldren of Israel pitched their tentes in Galgal, and helde the feast of Passover the fourtene daye of the moneth at even in the playne of Jericho. And they ate of the corne of the lande on the seconde daye of Easter, were cakes and fleshye the same daye. And Hanna crested on the morowe after they had eaten of the corne of the lande, neyther hadde the chyldren of Israel Hanna any more, but dyd eate of the frutes of that yere in the lande of Canaan.

And when Josua was come to Jericho, he lyste by his eyes and looked: and behold there stode a man before him with his sword drawe

And Josua fell on his face to the erthe and byd reuerence, and sayde vnto hym, what sayst my Loide vnto his seruant. And the captayne of the Loidees house sayd vnto Josua, I put the woordes of the fete, for the place whereon thou standest is holie. And Josua byd so.

The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

C A P I.

V I.

And Jericho was shut & kept for feare of the children of Israel, so that no man was so hardy to go out or in. And the Loide sayd vnto Josua, beholde, I haue giuen in to thyne hande, Jericho and yee hynde and the men of warre. And yee shall compasse the cite all that ye men of warre, and go round about it ouer a day, and so shall you doe six dayes. Upon the seventh daye seven priests shall beare seven trumpets of rammes hornes, & shall go before the cite. And the seventh daye, yee shall compasse the cite seven tymes, and the priests shall blowe with theyr trumpets. And when there is a longe blaue blowne, as sone as ye heare the sounde of the hoene, let all the people wraute a myghty sounde. And then shall the walles of the cite fall downe, and the people shall ascende, euery man vnto his place before hym.

And Josua the sonne of Nun, called the priests and sayd vnto ym: take up the arcke of the appoyntment, & let seven priests beare seven trumpets of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Loide. And ye sayd vnto the people, go and compasse the cite, and let the men of armes go before the arcke of the Loide. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people the seven priests tooke the seven trumpets of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Loide, and the Loide went forth, and blew the hoene, and the arcke of the testament of the Loide followed after them. And the men of armes went before the priests that blew with the hoene, and the common people came after the arcke: and as they went, they blew the hoene. And Josua commaunded the people, sayinge, Moue not, nor let your voyce be heard, vnto anye worde procede out of your mouthes, vntil the daye I byd you moue: and then moue.

And so the arcke of the Loide compassed the cite, and went aboute it ones: and then they returned in to the hoide and lodged there. And Josua arose earlye in the morninge, and the priests tooke up the arcke of the Loide, and seven priests beare seven trumpets of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Loide, and as they went blew the hoene. And the men of armes went before them and the common people came after the arcke of the Loide, and as they went, they blew the hoene. And the seconde daye they compassed the cite ones, and returned agayne in to the hoide, and so they did six dayes.

And the seventh daye they rose early: turne with the dawnyng of the daye, and compassed the cite after the same maner seven tymes.

And at the seventh tyme the priests blew the hoene, and Josua sayd vnto the people, Moue, for the Loide hath giuen you the cite. But the cite shall be cursed, bothe it and all that is therein vnto the Loide: onely Rahab the harlot shall lyue, bothe she and all that is with her in the house, because she hath byd the messengers that we sent. And in any wyse beware that ye touche nothinge at all, that is forbyd you, lest ye be founde transgressours, and cause all the house of Israel to be under curse and misfortune. But the siluer, golde, vessels of brasse and yron, shall be holpe vnto the Loide, and shall go in to his treasury.

And the people cryed, and blew with hoene: for when the people herde the sounde of the hoene, they wraute a great sounde: and the walles fell downe, and the people went vp in to the cite, euery man for his right, and toke the cite. And they utterly destroyed all that was in the cite, bothe man and woman, yonge and olde, oxen, shepe and alle, with the edge of the swerde.

Then Josua sayde vnto the two men that went to spy the country: I go in to the harlottes house, and hynde out thence, bothe the woman, and all that pertaineth to her, as ye were to her. And the yonge men that were spies, wente in and broughte out Rahab, and her father, and mother, and all her brethren, & all that she had. And they brought out all her household, and put them without the hoide of Israel.

And they burned the cite with fire, and all that was therein. Onely the siluer, the golde, and the vessels of brasse and yron, they put vnto the treasure of the house of the Loide. And Josua saide Rahab the harlot, her father, and her brethren, and all that pertaineth vnto her, and she dwelt in Israel vnto this day, because she byd the messengers whiche Josua sent to spy the country.

And Josua cursed at that tyme, sayinge: Cursed be the man before the Loide, that ryseth up, and buyldeth this cite Jericho: so that he laye the foundation with the beth of his eldest sonne, and with the beth of his yongest, set vp the gates. And the Loide was with Josua, and his fame was heard, throughout all landes.

It is spred out. It is sowed because he took of the excommunicate thynges.

But yet the chyldren of Israel trespassed in the cursed thynges: for Acan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zarch, of the tribe of Juda, toke of the cursed thynges. And the wrath of the Loide waxed hoote agaynst the chyldren of Israel.

Then

Then Josua sent men frome Jericho to Ai, whiche is beynde Bethaen, on the east syde of Bethel, and spake vnto them, sayinge / get you vp, and beseege the country. And the men went vp and spied out Ai, and returned vnto Josua, and sayde vnto hym, let not the people goe vp, but let as it were two or thre thousande men goe vp and beseege Ai, and make not all the people to labour together, for they are but fewe.

And so there wente by thither aboute a thre thousande men, whiche stood before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them upon a cherty and fire men, and chased them before the gates, euen vnto Gabarim, and smote them downe the waye. And the heartes of the people, were discouraged and melted by the water. And Josua sente his clothes and sent to the carthe vpon his face before the arcke of the Loide vntil the euen tyme, bothe he and the elders of Israel, and put each vpon their breddes.

And Josua sayde: Ah, Loide almyghty wherefore hast thou broughte this people ouer Jordan, to deliuer vs in to the handes of the Amoytes to destroye vs? Wolde God that as we began, so we hadde aduentured and dwelt on the other syde Jordan. Wh Loide what shall I saye, when Israel turneth their backs before theyr ennemyes. Moreover the Canaanites, and all the inhabitants of the lande, shall heare it: and shall come aboute vs, and destroye the name of vs out of the worlde. And then what wyll thou doe vnto thy myghty name.

And the Loide sayd vnto Josua, get the by whiche I sent thou thus vpon the face? Israel hath sinned, and also transgressed myne appoyntment whiche I commaunded them, and haue taken of the cursed thynges, & haue stolen and byd them amonges theyr owne stuffe. And therefore the chyldren of Israel can not stande before theyr ennemyes. They shall turne their backs before theyr ennemyes, because they be cursed. Neuerth wyll I be with you anye more, excepte ye destroye the cursed amonges you.

And Josua sanctified the people, and bydde them sanctifie them selues agaynst the morninge: for so sayth the Loide God of Israel, the curse is amonges you Israel, and therefore ye can not stand before your ennemyes, vntil ye haue put to deathe hym that hath taken of the damned spoyles, amonges you. So in the morninge ye shall come by your tribes. And the tribe whiche the Loide shall fynde guilty, shall come by kynredes. And the kynrede whiche the Loide shall fynde guilty, shall come by householdes. And the household whiche the Loide shall fynde faulty, shall come man by man. And he that is found in the curse, shall be burned with fire, bothe he and all his goods, because he hath transgressed the commaundment of the Loide, and because he hath broughte follye in Israel.

And so Josua rose vp early in the morninge and broughte Israel by their tribes: and the tribe of Juda was attached. Then he broughte the kynredes of Juda, and founde the kynred of the Zarephites guilty. And he broughte the kynred of the Zarephites by householders, and Zabdi was caught. And he broughte his household man by man, and Acan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zarch, in the tribe of Juda was founde guilty.

And Josua sayd vnto Acan: my sonne, geue glory to the Loide God of Israel, and geue hym prayse, and shewe me what thou hast done and byde it not from me. And Acan answered Josua and sayde: of a truthe I haue sinned agaynst the Loide God of Israel: and so and so haue I done. I saue amonge the spoyles a goodly sharte: cloke, and two hundred sicles of siluer, and a rule of golde of fyfte species myght: and I coueted them, & I roke them. And behold they lye byde in the carth in my tente, and the siluer vnder them.

And then Josua sent messengers which ran vnto the tent. And behold, it was byd in his tente, and the siluer vnder it. And they toke them out of the myddell of his tse, & broughte them vnto Josua and vnto all the chyldren of Israel, and powred them, oute before the Loide.

And Josua toke Acan the sonne of Zarch, & the siluer, and the garment, and the rule of golde, and his sonnes and his daughters, his oxen, asses, shepe, his tente, and all that he hadde, and all Israel with hym, and broughte them vnto the valeye of Acor.

And Josua sayde: forasmuche as thou hast troubled vs: the Loide shall trouble the this daye. And all Israel stoned him with stones, and burnt all that he had with fyre. And they cast vpon hym a great heape of stones that remayneth vnto this day. And so the Loide turned frome his ferece wrath. Wherefore the name of the place is called the valeye of Acor vnto this daye.

And the Loide sayde vnto Josua: ferece not, ne drede: but take all the men of warre with the, and seyle and get the to Ai. Beholde I haue giuen into thy hande, the kynge of Ai, and his people, his cite and his lande. And thou shalt w to Ai & by thynge as thou byddest vnto Jericho and her kynge. Neuerthelste the spoyles and cattell therof, ye shall take vnto your selues. But lare a watch vnto the towne on the backsyde therof.

Then Josua arose, & all the men of warre, to go by vnto Ai. And Josua chose out threty thousand men of warre, & sent them by night. And commaunded them, sayinge: Se ye lye a watch vnto the towne on the backsyde therof. So not very ferece frome the cite, and se ye be all redye. As for me and all the people that are with me, we wyll appoche vnto the cite on the other syde. And when they come forth for the agaynst vs, *as at the first tyme, then will we be before them. And they will come out after vs, till we haue plucked the good space frome the cite, for they will saye they see before vs, as at the first tyme: therefore when we see, and they pursue after, then shall we flye by from your pryue watche, and dyue out the inhabitants of the cite. For the Lorde your God will deliuer in to your hands. As sone therefore as ye haue taken the cite, let it be set on fyre. According to the commaundement of the Lorde, let ye do/beholde, I haue charged you.

And Josua sent them forth, and they went to the place of their pryue watche, and laye betwene Bethel and Ai, on the west syde of Ai. But Josua lodged that nyght amonges the people, and he rose by early in the morning and arrayed his companye and went by, betwene he and the auncientes of Israel in the forefront of the hoste, with a garrison of speghing me. And all the men of warre that were with him wente by and dyue nye, and came before the cite, and pitched on the north syde of Ai, a halfe beyng betwene them and Ai. And he took upon a spot thousande men, and put the toyle in awayte betwene Bethel and Ai, on the west syde of the cite. And he set in order all the hoste on the north syde of the cite, and the pryue watche on the weste. And Josua went the same nyght in to the myddes of the halfe.

And when the kynge of Ai sawe that he was fast and rose by early, and with all the hoste of the cite, wente forwarde agaynst Israel to battayle, even before the playne, and wylde not that there were anye that laye in awayte on the backe syde of the cite.

Josua and Israel wrouke backward, as they had ben assayde, and drew toward the wyldernesse. And all the people of the towne cryed to followe after them, and they followed after Josua, till they were drawen away from the cite: so that there was not a man left in Ai, or in Bethel, that went not out after Israel. And they sette the cite open, and followed after Israel.

Then the Lorde sayd vnto Josua reache out the speare that is in thyne hande toward Ai, for I haue gyuen the it. And Josua stretched out the speare that was in his hand, toward the cite. And the pryue watche rose quickely one of their places, and ranne as soone as Josua had waken his speare, and they entred in to the cite, and took it, and set it on fyre. And when the men of Ai looked back after the and sawe: Beholde, the smoke of the cite ascended vp to heuen. And they had no place to flee either this waye or that, for the people that stode to the wyldernesse turned backe vpon the followers and fiercely fought.

And when Josua and all Israel sawe that they that lay awayte had taken the cite and that the smoke of it ascended: They towned and layed on the men of Ai. And the order issued out of the cite agaynst them. And so were they in the myddes of Israel, there beinge on the one syde of them, and the rest on the other. And they layed vpon them, so that they let none escape nor scape.

The kynge of Ai they took a lye & brought him to Josua. And when Israel hadde made an entree of slayinge all the inhabitants of Ai who stayed them ouer the feltes and the wyldernesse. So when they were all slayne in the same place, Israel returned vnto Ai: & smote it. And there was slayne that daye, of men & women, twelue thousande, all men of Ai.

For Josua plucked not his hande backe: gayne wherewith he helde by his speare, till they had utterly destroyed all the inhabitants of Ai. * Quierly the catell & spoyle of the cite, Israel took vnto them selues, according to the woide of the Lorde, which he commaunded Josua. And Josua set Ai on fyre, & made it an heape and a wyldernesse for euer, euen vnto this daye. And the kynge of Ai he hanged on a tree, vntill euen. And as sone as it was sonne set, at the commaundement of Josua they took the carcas wome of the tree, & cast it in the enterpye of the gate of the cite, and *read thereon a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

Then Josua buylded an aultare vnto the Lorde God of Israel, in mount Ebal, as Moses the seruant of the Lorde commaunded the children of Israel, as it is wrytten in the booke of the lawe of Moses: an aultare of rough stone, ouer which no toole of yron was layde. And they sacrificed thereon burnt sacrifice, and offered peace offerings. And he wrote there vpon the stones the * seconde lawe of Moses, whiche he wrote in the presence of the children of Israel.

And all Israel and the elders thereof, and their officers and Judges rode parte on this syde the arke, and parte on that syde, before the pieces: that were Leuites whiche bare the arke of the Testament of the Lorde: as well the straungers, as they that were borne amonge them: halfe on the forefront of the mount of Garizim, and halfe on the forefront of mount Ebal: as Moses the seruant of the Lorde commaunded, and Josua first blessed the people Israel. And after that, he red all the wordes of the lawe, both the blessinge & cursinge, accordinge to all that is wrytten in the booke of the lawe: so that there was not one woide of all that Moses commaunded, whiche Josua red not, before all the congregation of Israel, with women and children, and the straungers that were amonge them.

The Gabaonites obtayne fear of Josua by subtiltye, but are after accursed.

And when all the kynges that dwell on this syde Jordan, in the hylls and valleys, and a longe by all the colles of the great see, euen vnto Libanon, the Hittites, the Amorites, the Cananites, the Pherezites, the Hivites, and the Jebusites, herde of this they gathered them selues together to fight agaynst Josua and Israel, with one accord.

But when the inhabitants of Gabaon herde what Josua had done vnto Jericho, and Ai, they played twyple, and went and sente ambassadours, and took old sakes vpon their shoulde, and wore bottles olde and rent and knyt together agayne, and olde clouted shoes vpon their feete, and olde rayment vpon them and all their prouision of bread was dyed by and boyed. And they came vnto Josua into the hoste, to Salgail and sayde vnto him & vnto them of Israel: we be come frome a farre countrey, now therefore make a peare with vs. And the men of Israel sayde vnto the Hittites, peraduenture you dwell amonge vs, and then howe shoulde we make peare with you.

And they sayde vnto Josua, we are thy seruantes. And Josua sayde vnto them, what are ye: and whence come ye. And they answered him. Frome a very farre countrey thy seruantes are come in the name of the Lorde thy God: for we haue herde the fame of him, and all that he dyd in Egypte, and all that he dyd to the two * kynges of the Amorites beyond Jordan, Sehon kynge of Hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan, which dwelt at Asaroth. Wherefore our elders and all the inhabitants of our countrey spake to vs, sayenge: take vi sayles with you to serue by the waye, and go agaynst them, & saye vnto them, we are your seruantes. Now therefore make a couenaunt of peare with vs. This our prouision of bread we take with vs out of our houses, yete, the day we departed to come vnto you. And now behold, it is dyed by and boyed. And these bottles of wyne which we fylled were new: and se they be broken. And these our garments and shoes are waxen olde by reason of the exceeding longe Journeye.

* And the men toke of their vi sayles, and counselled not with the mouth of the Lorde. And Josua made peare with them, and * made a leage with them, to saue their lyues: & the chiefe lordes of the armye swore vnto them. But thre dayes after they hadde made peare with them, they herde that they were neyghbours vnto them, and that they dwelt amonges them. For the children of Israel toke their Journeye, and came vnto their cyties the thirde daye: and their cyties were Gabaon, Lappha, Beeroth, and Kariat Jarim. And the children of Israel knewe them not, because the Lordes of the companye had sworne vnto them by the Lorde God of Israel. And therefore all the commons murmured agaynst the Lordes. We haue sworne vnto them by the Lorde God of Israel, and therefore we maye not hurt them. But this we will do to them let them lyue: & so shall no wrath be vpon vs, because of the othe whiche we swore vnto them: but let them haue their lyues, that they maye be * betwix of woode and drawers of water vnto all the congregation.

The Josua sent for them, and talked with them, and sayde: wherfore haue ye begyled us wher as we dede yet dwell amonges vs: now therfore cursed be you, & there shall not cease to be of you, bondmen and betwix of woode and drawers of water vnto the house of my God.

And they answered Josua, and sayde: it was told thy seruantes, that the Lorde thy God had commaunded his seruant Moses to gyue you all the lande, and to destroye all the inhabitants thereof out of your syghte, and therefore we were soze afrayed of our lyues because of you, and now behold, we are in thyne hande, as it semeth good, and right in thyne eyes to do vnto vs, so to.

And he deale as it is sayde, with them, & redde them out of the handes of the children of Israel, that they slewe them not. And Josua made them that same daye betwix of woode and drawers of water vnto the companye and vnto the aultar of God vnto this day, in the place which God wylde chose.

The amorites are overcome of Josua it rayneth stones. The sonne standeth still and the daye is long chyned. The fyue kynges are hanged.

And when Adonisedech kynge of Jerusalem had herde, howe Josua had taken Ai, and had destroyed it, and howe as * he had done to Jericho and her kynge, euen so he had done to Ai and her kynge, and howe the inhabitants of Gabaon hadde made peare with Israel and byd remayne amonges them: they feared exceedingly, for Gabaon was a great cite, as any cite of the kyngdome, and therefore greater then Ai, & al her men were mighty.

Wherefore Adonisedech kynge of Jerusalem sent vnto Hopham kynge of Hebron, and vnto Pharam kynge of Jerimoth, and vnto Japhia kynge of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kynge of Eglon, sayenge. But the men of Gabaon when they were beseged sent vnto Josua, vnto the host to Salgail, sayenge: we haue done not thy handes scd thy seruantes, but come by to vs: and rescue vs: for all the kynges of the Amorites which dwell in the mountaynes are gathered together agaynst vs.

And Josua ascended frome Salgail, he and all the people of warre with him, and all the men of myght, and the Lorde sayde vnto Josua, feare them not, for I haue deliuered the into thyne hande, there shall not a man of the bande before the. And Josua returned e all Israel with him, vnto the hille to Salgall: but the true knyghtes fled and byd them selues in a caue at Elakeba. And it was tolde Josua, sayenge: The true knyghtes are founde byd in a caue at Elakeba. And Josua sayde, to wile greates stones vnto the mouth of the caue, and appoynt hie by men therto, to kepe them. And hande ye not stille, but folowe after your enemyes, e ouer the hyndermost of them. And wher the nor to entre into their ctyes, for the Lorde your God hath deliuered them into your handes. And when Josua and the chyldren of Israel had made an ende of slaying them with a grete slaughter, till they were wel nere wasted yet there remayned a ceten of them, that had escaped Israels handes and entered into the walled ctyes.

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Josua at Elakeba in peace, hole and without losse of one man so that no man durste moue his tonge against the chyldren of Israel. The sayde Josua: open the mouth of the caue, and bringe out these. v. knyghtes vnto me forth of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those true knyghtes vnto him, out of the caue: The knyght of Jerusalem, the knyght of Hebron, the knyght of Jericho, the knyght of Achis, and the knyght of Eglon.

And when they had brought out those knyghtes vnto Josua: Josua called for all the me of Israel, and sayde vnto the capytaynes of the men of warre, whiche came with him, come nere and put your fete vpon the neckes of these knyghtes. And they came nere and put their fete vpon the neckes of them. And Josua sayde vnto them feare not, ne dyde: But be stronge e plucke by your hertes, for so shall the Lorde serue al your enemyes against which ye fight.

And then Josua smote them and slew them and hanged them on fyue trees till euen. And at the goinge downe of the sonne, Josua gaue commaundment, and they toke them downe of the trees, e caste them into the caue, wher they byd them selues, and layde great stones downe the caues mouth, whiche remayne vnto this daye.

And that same daye Josua toke Elakeba e smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the knyghte therof also, and utterly destroyed them and al the soules that were therein, e not one escaped. And he byd to the knyght of Elakeba, as he byd to the knyght of Jericho.

Then Josua went frome Elakeba, and all Israel with him vnto Libna, and fought against Libna. And the Lorde deliuered it also in their handes, with the knyght also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therein, and let nought remayne in it, and byd vnto the knyght therof as he byd vnto the knyght of Jericho.

After that Josua departed frome Libna, e all Israel with him, vnto Lachis, and beseged and assailed it rounde aboute. And the Lorde deliuered into the handes of Israel Lachis, that they toke it the second day, e smote it with the edge of the swerde, e al the soules that were therein, according to all that he byd to Libna.

Then Hozai knyght of Gether came by to helpe Lachis: But Josua smote him and his people, till he left him naught remayne.

And frome Lachis Josua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israel with him, and there beseged, and assailed it, and toke it the same daye, e smote it with the edge of the swerde and all the persones that were therein: and utterly destroyed them the same daye, according to all that he byd to Lachis.

Then Josua departed by from Eglon and all Israel with him, vnto Hebron. And they fought against it, and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the knyght therof, and all the townes that belonged to it, and all the soules that were therein, so that they left nought remayne: but in all thynges as they byd to Eglon, so they destroyed it by the selfe.

Then Josua returned and all Israel with him to Dabir, and they fought against it, and toke it, and the knyght therof and al the townes that appartayned therto. And smote it with the edge of the swerde, and utterly destroyed all the soules that were therein, e let nought remayne. And as he byd to Hebron, so he byd to Dabir and the knyght therof, and as he byd to Libna and her knyght.

And Josua smote all the hill countreys and the southe countreys, and the valeys, e the springes of water, with all their knyghtes and let nought remayne, but utterly destroyed all that breathed, as the Lorde God of Israel commaunded, frome Lades barne, vnto Gabaon, and all the countrey of Golan, euen vnto Gabaon. And all those knyghtes and this lande, Josua toke at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israel fought for Israel. And then Josua returned and all Israel with him vnto the holl to Salgall.

And vnto the knyghtes that are by north in the mountaynes, and playnes, on the south syde of Gengeroth, and in the lowe countreys, and in the regions of Doz vpon the see, e vnto the Cananites both by East and West: and vnto the Amozites, Hethites, Phereites, and Jebusites in the mountaynes: and vnto the Heuites vnder Hermon in the lande of Mezphad: whiche came out and all they hostes with them a multitude of folke, euen as the sandes of the see in nombre, with hostes and charrettes a wonderous sort. And all these knyghtes mette togyther, and came and pitched togyther vpon the water of Merom, to fight with Israel.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: be not afraid of them: for to morowe aboute this tyme, I will deliuer them all forye wounded, before al Israel: and thou shalt houghe their hostes, and burne their charrettes with fyre.

And Josua came and all men of warre with him against them, vnto the water of Merom suddenly, and fell vpon them. And the Lorde deliuered them into the handes of Israel: e they smote them and chased them, vnto great Shon, and vnto the wate waters, and vnto the valey of Mezphad eastward, e smote them till they had none left of them. And Josua struck them as the Lorde had him, houghe their hostes, and burnt their charrettes with fyre.

Then Josua at that tyme turned backe and toke Bazor and smote her knyght with a sword for Bazor before tyme was the head of all those knyghtes. And they smote all the soules that were therein and left not one alyue in it, utterly destroyed them, that no breathe was let remayne. And burnt Bazor with fyre, and all the ctyes round about, whose knyghtes Josua toke and smote them with the edge of the swerde, and utterly destroyed them: as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israel burnt none of the ctyes that stode vpon hilles, save Bazor onely, that Josua burnt: but all the spoyles of the sayde ctyes e the castell, the chyldren of Israel caught vnto them selues: But the men onely they smote with the edge of the swerde till they had destroyed them, and had left no bryth remayne. As the Lorde commaunded Josua and euen so byd Josua: and mynished no wyse of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Josua toke al that lande, the hilles and all the southe countrey, and all the lande of Golan, and the lowe countrey, and the well countrey, the playnes, and the mountayne of Israel, with the lowe countrey of the same, euen fro mount Balak that goeth by to Seir vnto Baal Gad in the valey of Libanon, vnder mount Hermon. And all the knyghtes of the same he toke and smote them, and slew the.

Josua made warre longe tyme with those knyghtes: for there was no ctye that had not gytted her to the chyldren of Israel, save those Hethites that inhabited Gabaon: All other they toke with batayle: for it was the Lordes wyll to harden theyr hartes, that they shulde come agaynst Israel in battayle: euen to destroye them utterly, that they shulde haue no mercy, but to byng them to nought. As the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same season, Josua went and destroyed the Enakites out of the mountaynes, and out of Hebron, Dabir, and Anab, e out of all the mountaynes of Juda, and out of all the mountaynes of Israel. And Josua destroyed them utterly with their ctyes, so that there was not one Enakite left in the land of the chyldren of Israel: only in Ash, Geth and Atad, there remayned of them.

And Josua toke the hole lande, according to all that the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, and gaue it a possession vnto Israel euery man his parte in their ctyes: and the lande ceased fro warre.

What knyghtes Josua and the chyldren of Israel killed, whiche were in nombre, xxi.

These are the knyghtes of the lande whiche the chyldren of Israel smote, and conquered their landes, on the other syde Jordan eastward, from the ryuer Arnon, vnto mounte Hermon, and all the playne eastward: Hebron knyght of the Amozites, that dwelt in Hebron, and ruled fro Hebron, whiche lyeth on the byem of the ryuer of Arnon, and to the myddell of the ryuer, and halfe Galaad vnto the ryuer Jabbok, the bozder of the chyldren of Ammon: And in the playne vnto the see of Gengeroth eastward, e vnto the see in the wyldernesse called the salt see eastward, the waie to Beth, Jelpimoth and by south vnder the springes of Balgah.

And the colles of Golan knyght of Basan whiche was of the remnant of the Haphaites e dwelt at Adharoth, e Ebrat: and raygned in mount Hermon, and in Seiech, and thozow out all Basan, vnto the bozders of the Gemitites, and the Macathites and halfe Galaad vnto the bozders of Hebron knyght of Hebron. * Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde and the chyldren of Israel smote them, and Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde, gaue their landes a possession vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses.

These are the knyghtes of the countrey whiche Josua and the chyldren of Israel smote on this syde Jordan, westward, frome Baal Gad in the valey of Libanon, euen vnto mount Balak that goeth by to Seir. And Josua gaue the lande vnto the tribes of Israel to possesse, euery man his parte: in the upper lande, e nether lande, in playnes, e springes

And Jordan is the east coe, this is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Beniamin in their costes rounde aboute and by their kynredes. And these are the cyties of the trybes of the chyldren of Beniamin in their kynredes: Jericho, Bethbagiath, and the valepe of Rasis: Bethacabab, Zamarim, and Bethel: A-nim, Pharab, and Oppiath: Chepar Ammo-nai, Oppni, and Gabai, twelue cyties with their villages. Sabab, Kamah, and Betoth: Bazphab, Laphatrah, and Mozah: Akem, Jacephel and Tharelah, Zela, Eleph, & the cite of the Jebusites which is Ierusalem, Gabaath, and Kartath, fourteen cyties with their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the children of Beniamin in their kynredes.

The lotte of partes of Zabulon, Issachar, Aser, Nephtali, Dan, and Josua.

CAPL XIX.

And the seconde lotte came oute vnto
the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon by their kynre-
des. And their inheritaunce fell in the middes of the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Juda. And their inheritaunce was, Beersabe, Sabe, and Moladagh, Bazoi-luta, Btiagb, and Azem, Eitholab, Bethul, and Bazmagb, Zikelag, Bethmarcaborh and Bazetfufagh, Bethlebaath, & Sarubien therene cyties with their villages. Rim, Remon Erher, and Alan, foure cyties with their villages: and thereto all villages that lye round aboute these cyties, euen vnto Balalaty, Be-or, and Kamath, southwarde. This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Simeon in their kynre-
des out of the poztion of the chyldren of Juda, came the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Symeon. for the part of the chyldren of Juda was to much for them: and therfore the chyldren of Symeon had their inheritaunce in the inheritaunce of them.

And the thyrde lotte came vnto the chyldren of Zabulon accordyng vnto their kyn-redes. And the costes of their inheritaunce came to Sario, and went vp to the see, and to Marialab, and touched at Dabaleth, and met at the ryuer that lyeth before Jekneum:

and turned frome Sario southwarde towarde the sonne ryng, vnto the border of Chis-loch in mounte Thabor: and then goeth out to Dabereth and goeth vp to Iaphia: and frome thence goeth alonge southwarde to-warde the sonne ryng, to Seth, Berber, and Tacaun, and goeth to Remon, Erher, and Neah. And compasseth it on the southe syde, and goeth to Nathan, and endeth in the vallepe of Jephthahel. And Tareth, Nabalol, and Hermon, Jedalah, and Bethleem: twelue cyties with their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Zabulon, in their kynre-
des. The sayde cyties with their villages.

And the fourthe lot came oute to the chyldren of Issachar by their kynre-
des. And their
costes were Jekneum, Tacaun, Hermon, Bapharaim, Sion, Anabath, Kabbath, Ra-lion, and Aser. Kameth, Enganim, Enhadab, and Bethphayes. And his costes met at Thabor, Sahasimah and at Bethlames, & endeth at Jordan, fytene cyties with their villages.
This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Issachar by their kynredes and their villages.

And the fyfte lot came oute vnto the trybe of the chyldren of Aser by their kynre-
des. And their costes were Bethath, Bati, Berem, and Achaph: Alamaeth, Amad and Alseal: and met at Carmel on the see, and at Siphos, and at Labanath, and turneth towarde the sonne ry-ng to Bethdagon, and met at Zabulon, and in the vallepe of Jephthahel, and towarde the north syde of Bethemeh and Negel, and goth out on the left syde of Labul: and Abian Rahob, Hamon, and Kanah, euen vnto great Sidon. And then the cost turneth to Kamah and to the strong cite of Aler, and turneth to Basah, and endeth at the see: by the possession of Achisbah: Amah, Appen, and Kobob: Twen-tye and two cyties with their villages. This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Aser by their kynredes. These cyties with their villages.

And the sixte lotte came oute vnto the chyldren of Nephtali by their kynre-
des. And their costes were frome Kileph, and frome Elon in Zaananim, and Adami, Se-heb and Jabneel, euen to Lakum, and goth out at Jordan. And then the cost turneth westwarde to Alanoth in mounte Thabor, and then goeth oute frome thence to Buhorhab, and meeteth with Zabulon on the southe syde, and with Aser on the West, and at Juda vpon Jordan towarde the sonne ryng. And their strong cyties are Zidon, Ber, Hamath, Kacath, and Centereb, Adamah, Bermanah, Bazoi: Kedesh, Gidai, and Enbazon: Jeron, Baziel: Bozem, Bethanah, & Bethlames: nynene cyties with their villages. This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Nephtali by their kynredes: these cyties
and their villages.

And the seventh lot fell to the trybe of the chyldren of Dan by their kynredes. And the costes of their inheritaunce was Zacaah, El-baol, & Jekames, Saclabin, Alalon, and Jephthah: Eylon, Eremnathah, and Akaron: Eitherah, Eitheron, and Baalath: Jephud, Banebarah, and Satherman, and the waters of Jekron and Harcon, with the countrey that lyeth before Koppe, and there it hath an ende. And the chyldren of Dan wente up and fought against Leken and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and conquered it, and dwelt therein, and called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Dan in their kynredes: these cyties with their villages. When they hadde made an ende of dyspoyng the lande to eue-ry trybe by lotte, then the chyldren of Israel gaue an enheritaunce vnto Josua the sonne of Nun amonge them: at the mouthe of the Roide they gaue him the cite whiche
he asked, euen Thammath Serah in mounte Ephraim. And he buylde the cite and dwelte therin.

These are the enheritaunces whiche Eleazar the preeste and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel buylde by lotte in Siloh before the Roide, in the doore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and so made an ende of dyspoyng the countrey.

The cyties of refuge or Sanctuaries.

CAPL XX.

Then the Roide spake vnto Josua, sayinge: commen with the chyldren of Israel and saye: Appoynte oute free cy-ties, of whiche I spake vnto you by Moyses, that the fleer that killeth anye person vn-wares, and unwittingly, maye flee thither.
And those cyties shall be your refuge frome the auenger of bloude. And the fleer shall flee vnto one of those cyties, and shall stande in the entree of the gate of the cite, and shall shewe his cause in the eares of the elders of the sayd cite, that it was no wyful murder.
If they shall take him in to the cite vnto them,
and shall geue him a place that he may dwell amonge them.

And when the auenger of bloude foloweth after him, they shall not deliuer the fleer in to his hande, because he smote his frende igno-rantly, and that can not be proued that he bare him malice of two or thre dayes afoze.

And he shall dwell in the sayd cite vntyll he stande before the congregation in iudge-ment, sayinge for his discharge, and vntyll the beth of the hygge preeche that shall be in those dayes. And then shall the fleer retourne and come vnto his owne cite, and vnto his owne house, and vnto the cite frome whence he fledde.

And they appoynted Kedesh in Galile, in mounte Nephtali, and Sichem in mounte Ephraim, and Kartatharbe, whiche is Be-zion in the mountaynes of Juda. And on the other syde Jordan ouer agaynst Jericho Gadwarde, they gaue Bozoi in the wyldernesse, vpon the playne wyldernesse out of the trybe of Ruben and Ramoth in Galaad out of the trybe of Gad, and Solam in Basan out of the trybe of Manasse.

These were the cyties appoynted for all the chyldren of Israel, and to the straungers that solourned amonge them that who so euer killed anye person ignorantly, the same myght flee thither and walde not dye by the hande of the auenger of bloude, vntyll he stode before the congregation.

The cyties giuen to the Leuites, in nombze for the trybe and egypt. The promyses of dyspoyng the lande of Canaan are fulfilled. The Israelites are at rest.

CAPL XXI.

And then came the pyncipall heedes of the Leuites vnto Eleazar the preeste, and vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, and vnto the auncient heedes of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, and spake vnto them at Si-loh in the lande of Canaan, sayinge: The Roide commaunded by Moyses, to geue vs cyties to dwell in, and the felde about them for our cattell.

And the chyldren of Israel gaue vnto the Leuites out of their inheritaunces, at the bid-dyng of the Roide, these cyties folowing with their suburbs.

And the lotte came oute vnto the kynredes of the Gadathites: and the chyldren of Aron the preeste whiche were of the Leui-tes hadde giuen them by lotte, oute of the trybe of Juda, oute of the trybe of Symeon, and oute of the trybe of Beniamin thirtene cyties. And the reste of the chyldren of Israel hadde by lotte oute of the kynredes of the trybe of Ephraim, oute of the trybe of Dan, and oute of the halfe trybe of Manasse ten cyties.

And the chyldren of Gerson hadde by lotte oute of the kynre-
des of the trybe of Issachar oute of the trybe of Aser, oute of the trybe of Nephtali, and oute of the other halfe trybe of Manasse in Basan, thirtene cyties. And the chyldren of Merari by their kynredes, hadde oute of the trybe of Ruben, oute of the trybe of Gad, and oute of the trybe of Za-bulon, twelue cyties. And the chyldren of Israel gaue by lot vnto the Leuites these cyties with their suburbs, as the Roide commaunded by Moyses.

And they gaue oute of the trybe of the chyldren of Juda, and oute of the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon, these cyties by name: whiche the chyldren of Aron beinge of the kynre-
des of the Gadathites, & of the chyldren of Leui, obtayned: for this was the first lotte.
And they gaue them Kartath Arbe of the father of Enache, whiche is Debzon in the hill countrey of Juda, with the suburbs of the same rounde aboute it. But the countrey that pertaineth to the cite and the villages therof

they gave to Caleb the sonne of Iephune, to be his possession.

And thus they gave to the chyldren of Aser the pette, the franchised cytes of the Aser, Hebron with her suburbs: and Libna with her suburbs, and Zathir with her suburbs, and Hotham with her suburbs, and Dabir with her suburbs, and Ain with her suburbs, and Jucath with her suburbs, and Bethlamas with her suburbs: nyne cytes oute of those two tribes.

And the knyghtes of the chyldren of Zabach that were Leuytes / that is to saye the order chyldren of Zabach had the cytes of their lot, oute of the tribe of Ephyraim. And they gave them the free cyte of the Aser: Sichem with her suburbs in mounte Ephyraim: and Gazer with her suburbs: and Kadsaim with her suburbs: Bethhoron with her suburbs: four cytes.

And oute of the tribe of Dan: Eltheke with her suburbs, Gibyon with her suburbs, Aialon with her suburbs, and Gathrimmon with her suburbs, four cytes. And oute of the halfe tribe of Manasses: Thanaach with her suburbs, Gathrimmon with her suburbs, two cytes. So that all the cytes whiche were given unto the knyghtes of the other chyldren of Zabach, were ten with their suburbs.

And unto the chyldren of Gerson, whiche were of the knyghtes of the Leuytes, they gave oute of the other halfe tribe of Manasses, the cyte of refuge for the Aser, Holan in Basan and Holam with her suburbs: Westhesab with her suburbs, two cytes. And oute of the tribe of Issachar, Rishon with her suburbs, Dabirath with her suburbs, Jarimoth with her suburbs, Engaun with her suburbs, four cytes. And oute of the tribe of Aser: Aialon with her suburbs, Abdon with her suburbs, Patahath with her suburbs, Kothob with her suburbs, four cytes.

And oute of the tribe of Aser, the city of refuge of the Aser, Kedra in Galile, with her suburbs: Hamoth, with her suburbs: Zathirath with her suburbs: thre cytes. So that all the cytes of the Gersonytes in thery knyghtes were thirtene with their suburbs.

And oute of the tribe of Gad, they gave the franchised cyte of the Aser, Kothob in Ga-lad with her suburbs, Gaphaath with her suburbs, Hethon with her suburbs, and Jaser with her suburbs, four cytes in all, so that all the cytes of the chyldren of Serai in their knyghtes, whiche were the rest of the knyghtes of the Leuytes, were by thery lot, twelve cytes. And all the cytes that the Leuytes had in the possession of the chyldren of Israel were fortye and eight with their suburbs. And these cytes had the thre tribes rounde aboute her thowowe oute all the sayd cytes.

And the Loyde gave unto Israel, all the lande whiche he swaie to geue unto thery fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelte therein. And the Loyde gave them rest rounde aboute, accordyng to all that he swaie unto thery fathers. So that there was not a man of all thery enemyes before them. But the Loyde deliuered all thery enemyes into thery handes. There shapd no byrgne of all the good thynges whiche the Loyde hadde sayde unto the house of Israel. But all came to passe.

¶ Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses are sente agayne to thery possessions. They buyde an altare for a memoriall.

CAP. XXII

Then Josua called unto the Rubenites, the Gadites, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses, and sayde unto them: Ye haue kepte all that Moyses the seruaunt of the Loyde commaunded you, and haue obeyd my voyce in all that I commaunded you: Ye haue not left your brethren of a longe season unto this daye, but haue kepte the commaundement of the Loyde your God. And now the Loyde hadde given rest vnto youe brethren, as he promysed them. Wherefore retourn and goe vnto youre tentes, and vnto the lande of youre possession, whiche Moyses the seruaunt of the Loyde gave you on the other side Iordan.

But in anye wyse take exceedinge good heed that ye do the commaundement and lawe whiche Moyses the seruaunt of the Loyde charged you: whiche is, that ye loue the Loyde your God, and walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleane vnto him, and serue him with all your heertes, and all your soules. And so Josua blessed them, and sente them awaye. And they wente vnto thre tentes.

¶ And the one halfe of the tribe of Manasses Moyses gave possession in Basan: and vnto the other halfe thereof gave Josua with thery brethren on this side Iordan westwarde. And also when Josua sent them awaye vnto thre tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them, retorne with moche rychesse vnto your tentes, and with very moche cattell, with silver, golde, brasse, yron, and with sayment aboue measure, and brinde the spoule of youre enemyes vnto your brethren.

¶ And the chyldren of Ruben the chyldren of

Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, returned and departed from the chyldren of Israel oute of Siloh, whiche is in the lande of Canaan, to go vnto the countrey of Galaad, and to the lande of thery possession, wherin they were possessed at the mouth of the Loyde by the hande of Moyses. And when they came vnto the helles of Jordan that lye in the lande of Canaan: there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, buyde an altare faste by Jordan, and that a great altare to se. And when the chyldren of Israel herde saye: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses haue buyde an altare in the fozne of the lande of Canaan in the borders of Jordan on the syde of the chyldren of Israel: the hole congregation of the chyldren of Israel gathered them together to Siloh to go vpon them with batayle.

And the chyldren of Israel sente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, & to the halfe tribe of Manasses in to the lande of Galaad, Phineches the sonne of Eleazar the Pricke, and with him tenne loydes, of euerie tribe house a loyde, thowowe oute all the cytes of Israel, whiche heades of thery fathers householdes were ouer the thousandes of Israel. And they went vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad, and to the halfe tribe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Galaad, and spake with them sayyng.

¶ Thus saye the hole congregation of the Loyde: what trasgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynst the God of Israel, to come awaye this daye from after the Loyde, and to buyde you an altare for to rebell this daye agaynst the Loyde? Is the wyched dede of Bilshogor to lytle for vs, wherof we are not denied vnto this daye, and moche people were slayne, but that ye also wolde tounce awaye this daye from folowynge the Loyde? Ye shall rebell to daye agaynst the Loyde, & to morowe he shall be wroth with all the congregation. For withstandinge of the lande of your possession be vniuers, then come ouer vnto the lande of the possession of the Loyde, wher the Loydes tabernacle dwelleth, and be possessed amonges vs. But rebell not agaynst the Loyde, nor agaynst vs, to buyde you anye other altare, save the altare of the Loyde our God. Dyd not Acan the sonne of Zach transgresse the commaundement of the Loyde, and was sell on all the congregation of Israel, so that he alone perished not for his wychednesse?

¶ Then the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, answered and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Israel. The myghty God, the almighty Loyde he knoweth, and Israel shall knowe if it be to rebell or transgresse agaynst the Loyde, for the Loyde saith vs not this daye.

¶ On this daye we haue buyde vs an altare to seme from folowynge the Loyde, as to offere thowowe vnto the Loyde, as we haue done, as to the petye of our fathers, as to the Loyde.

requeyrt it: And haue not rather doone it for feare of this, leed in tyme to come your chyldren shoulde saye vnto ours: What haue ye to doo with the Loyde God of Israel, for that the Loyde hadde made Jordan a border betwene vs and you ye chyldren of Ruben and of Gad: ye haue no parte therfore in the Loyde / and so shall your chyldren make oure chyldren cease from fearyng the Loyde.

¶ Therefore we thoughte it better, and sayde: Lette vs cause an altare to be made, not for burnt offerynges, nor sacrifices, but it shall be a token betwene vs and you, and oure generacions after vs, that we shoulde serue the Loyde, with oure offerynges, sacrifices, and peace offerynges: and that your chyldren shoulde not saye to ours in tyme to come: ye haue no parte in the Loyde.

¶ And we thoughte, if they wolde so saye to vs, or to oure generacions in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the facion of the altare whiche oure fathers made, neyther for burnt offerynges, nor sacrifices, but that it shoulde be a token betwene vs and you. God forbyd that we shoulde rebell agaynst the Loyde, and that we shoulde tounce this daye from after him, and buyde an altare for burnt offerynges or sacrifices, save the altare of the Loyde our God that is before his tabernacle.

¶ And when Phineches the Pricke and the Loydes of the congregation, and heades ouer the thousandes of Israel whiche were with hym, herde the wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well content.

¶ And Phineches the sonne of Eleazar the Pricke sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad and of Manasses, this daye we percepe that the Loyde is amonge vs, because ye haue not doone this trespass agaynst the Loyde. And now ye haue rydde the chyldren of Israel oute of the handes of the Loyde.

¶ And Phineches the sonne of Eleazar the Pricke and the Loydes returned from the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad out of the lande of Galaad vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Israel, and broughte them wordes agayne. And the answer pleased the chyldren of Israel well, and they praysted God, and dyd not intende to goo agaynst them in batayle, to destroye the lande whiche the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dwelte in. And the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad called the altare Phineas, because it is a token betwene vs, that the Loyde is God.

¶ Josua exhorteth the people that they forne not them. Clues to the Gentyles and that they truste in none but in God only, whiche had fulfilled his promys to them.

CAP. XXIII

And

And it came to passe a longe season after that the Lorde had gyuen rest vnto Israel frome all theyr enemyes rounde aboute: that Josua marche vnto and was taken in peres. Wherfore he sent for all Israel, for theyr elders, their heades, theyr Judges and officers, and sayde vnto them: I am olde and streken in peres. And ye haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto all these nacions before your faces. For the Lorde your God he foughte for you. Beholde, I haue appoynted these nacions that remayne, to be the inheritance of your tribes, euen frome Jordan: and all the nacions that I haue destroyed, euen vnto the great see. And the Lorde your God he shall expell and caste them oute before you, and ye shall conquer theyr landes, as the Lorde your God hath sayd vnto you.

[Josua exhorted the people to the keepinge of the lawe. The bones of Joseph are buried at Shechem.]

CAPL. XXIII.

And Josua gathered all the tribes of Israel to Shechem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for their heades, Judges and officers, whiche presented them selues before God. And Josua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel. * Your fathers dwelte on the other syde of the Iordane in olde tyme, euen Abrahah the father of Abraham and Harhor, and serued strange goddes. But I toke your father Abraham frome the other syde of the Iordane and broughte him in to the lande of Canaan, and multiplied his seed, and gaue him Isaac. And I gaue vnto Isaac Jacob, and Esau. And I gaue vnto Esau mounte Seir to possesse it. But Jacob and his chyldren wente downe to Egypt.

* Then I sente Moses and Aaron. And I stroke Egypte in manie signes and wonders, and after that I broughte you your fathers out of Egypte. And ye came vnto the see. and the Egyptians folowed after your fathers with charrettes and horsemen, vnto the reede see. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And he put darkness betwene you and the Egyptians, and broughte the see vpon them & couered them.

And your eyes haue sene what I haue done in Egypte. And ye dwelte in the wilderness a longe season. And I broughte you in to the lande of the Amorites, whiche dwelte on the other syde Jordan. And they foughte agaynst you: and I gaue them in to your handes. And ye conquered theyr countrey, and ye destroyed them.

Then Balak the sonne of Ziphor, kynge of Moab, arose and warred agaynst Israel, and sente and called Balam the sonne of Beor for to curse you. But I wolde not agrie to haaken vnto Balam and therefore he blessed you: And so I deliuered you oute of his hande. And when he wente ouer Jordan, and came vnto Jericho, the citys of Jericho foughte agaynst you: the Amorites, Hittites, Canaanites, Hethites, Gergashites, Hapites, Jebusites, whiche I deliuered into your handes.

And I sent * hornettes before you and cast oute before you: euen the two kynnes of the Amorites, but not with your owne swerde, or with your owne bowe. And I gaue you a lande in whiche ye had no labour, and cyties whiche ye buyde not, and ye dwelte in them. And bynes, and olue trees whiche ye planted not.

And now feare the Lorde and serue hym in purenesse and truthe. And put awaye the goddes whiche your fathers serued in Mesopotamia, and in Egypte, and serue the Lorde. But if it seme euill vnto you to serue the Lorde then chose you this day to whom you will serue: whether the Goddes, whiche your fathers serued that were on the other syde of the Iordane, or the Goddes of the Amorites, in whose lande ye dwelt, and I and my house wyl serue the Lorde.

And the people answered and sayde, God forbid that we shoulde forsake the Lorde and serue strange goddes. For the Lorde our God he it is that broughte vs and our fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, the house of bondage, and whiche dyd those myracles in our syghte, and preserved vs in all the waye we went and amonge all the nacions whiche we came thowen. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the nacions with the Amorites whiche dwelt in the lande, wherfore we wyl serue the Lorde for he is our God.

But Josua sayd vnto the people: ye can not serue the Lorde, for he is an holpe God, mightye and gelous, and can not beare your transgression and synne. But when ye haue forsake the Lorde, and haue serued strange goddes, he wyl turne and do you euill and consume you, after that he hath doone you good. And the people answered Josua: not so / but we wyl serue the Lorde.

Then Josua sayd vnto the folke, ye are witnesses vnto your selues that ye haue chose you the Lorde to serue hym: and they sayd we are witnesses. Then put away, sayd he, strange goddes whiche are amonge you, and bowe your breires vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the people answered Josua: the Lorde our God we wil serue, and his voyce we wil obeye. And so Josua made a councail with the people the same daye, and set ordinaunces and lawes before them in Shechem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in the booke of the lawe of God, and toke a great stone and pyched it on ende in the sayd place: euen vnder an oke that stode in the sanctuary of the Lorde. And Josua sayd vnto all the people: Beholde, this stone shall be a witness vnto vs, for it hath herde all the wordes of the Lorde whiche he spake with you. It shall be therfore a witness vnto you, leest after this tyme ye wyl denye and lye vnto your God. And so Josua let the people depart euery man vnto his inheritance.

And after these thynges the tyme came that Josua the sonne of Nun and the seruante of the Lorde dyed, being an hundred and ten yeres olde. Whom they buried in the border of his inheritance, euen in Timnath Serah, whiche is in mount Ephraim, on the north syde of the hyl of Gaas.

And Israel serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that ouer luyed Josua, and whiche had sene all the workes of the Lorde that he had done to Israel. And the bones of Joseph whiche the chyldren of Israel broughte oute of Egypte, they buried in Shechem, in a parcel of ground whiche Jacob bought of the sonnes of Hemoz, the father of Shechem, for an hundred shepe hogges, whiche parcell became the inheritance of the chyldren of Joseph. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron dyed, whom they buried in Shechem that pertayned to Phinehas his son, and was gyuen hym in mount Ephraim.

saying: Who shall go

Iuda shall go up: be-

and caught him. And cut of his thombes and his greute toes. Then Adonibezek sayde: there

The chyldren of Iuda fought agaynst Jerusalem and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and set the hole cite on fyre.
And after that, the chyldren of Iuda wente euen to fight agaynst the Canaanites that dwelte in the mountayne, in the southe, and in the lowe countrey. And Iuda wente vnto the Canaanites that dwelt in Hebron, which before tyme was called Cariath Arba, a name Hebraic, which meaneth the four. And Iuda went to the inhabitants of Dabir, whose name in old tyme was called Cariath Sepher that is the cite of scripunge.

And Caleb sayde: he that smyteth Cariath Sepher and taketh it, to him wil I geue As-lah my daughter to wyfe. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes Calebs younger brother toke it: to whome he gaue Aslah his daughter to wyfe, and as they wente her husbande coun-seyled her to aske of her father a felde.

And then she spake of her aske: and Caleb sayde vnto her: what askest thou? She sayde vnto him: geue me a blessing, for thou hast giuen me a Southwarde and drye lande geue me also springes of water. And Caleb gaue her springes bothe aboue and beneath.
And the chyldren of the Kenite Moyses wy-ues father wente up out of the cite of palme trees, with the chyldren of Iuda, in to the wyldernesse of Iudas: for that tyme in the southe of Ierusalem, and dwelte amonge the people.

And Iuda went and Simeon with him, and they slew the Canaanites that inhabited Ze-phath, and utterly destroyed it, and called the name of the cite Boimath, that is a curie. And Iuda toke Asah with his cosyns therof, a thallon with the cosyns therof, and Aharon with the cosyns therof. And the Lorde was with Juda that he conquered the mountaynes, but they coude not byrde out the inhabitants of the va-leys, because they hadde charrettes of yron. And they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moyses said. And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of Enach.

And the chyldren of Beniamin dyd not caste out the Jebusites that inhabited Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwell with the chyldren of Beniamin in Jerusalem, vnto this daye.

And in lyke maner the house of Joseph went up to Bethel, and the Lorde was with them, and when they besieged the cite which before tyme was called Lusi, and sawe a man come out of the cite, they sayde vnto hym, wher is the waye in to the cite, and we wil shewe the waye in to the cite, and he shewed them the waye in to the cite, they smote it with the edge of the swerde, but they dyd let the man and all his householde go free. And the man went in to the lande of the Perites, and buyde a wyfe and called the name therof Lus, which is the name therof vnto this daye.

Neither dyd Manasses expelle Bethsean with her towne: neither Ephraim with her towne, neither the inhabitants of Dothan with her towne: neither the inhabitants of Ephraim with her towne: neither the in-habitours of Manasse with her towne: and so the Canaanites went to and dwell amonge them. But as soon as Israel was stronge mightie, they put the Canaanites to rebuke, but expelled them not.

In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Canaanites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Canaanites dwell still in Gazer amonge them.
Neither dyd Zabulon expelle the inhabitants of Betton, neither the inhabitants of Hama-lon. But the Canaanites dwell amonge them and became tributaries.

Neither dyd Aser cast out the inhabitants of Achis, neither the inhabitants of Zidon, of Ahalab, Azib, Halbah, Apphek, nor of Hob, but the Aserites dwelte amonge the Canaanites the inhabitants of the lande, and haue them not out.

Neither dyd Nephtalim byrde out the inhabitours of Bethanath, nor the inhabitours of Bethanath, but dwell amonge the Canaanites the inhabitants of the lande.
Neuerthelesse the inhabitants of Bethanath and of Bethanath became tributaries vnto
them.

And the Amozites kepte the chyldren of Dan in the mountayns, and suffered them not to come downe to the valeys. And so the Amo-zites went to and dwelled in mounte Heres that is to saye a towne in Hailon and in Ga-lathim. Neuerthelesse the hande of Joseph marcho heape vpon them, so that they became tributaries. And the cosyns of the Amozites was from the going by to Arabin, and from therocke bywarde.

The Iungell rebuketh the people because they had more feare to the Canaanites. Idolaters are punished, but perleuse not their inuencions. God sendeth them Iudges to deliuer them.

CAPL. II.

¶ And the Iungell of the Lorde came by from Balgail to Bortim, and sayde: I broughte you out of Egypte, and haue broughte you vnto the lande which I sware vnto your fathers. And I sayd that I wold neuer make myne appoyntment with you, so that ye wold make no covenante with the inhabitants of this lande, but breke downe their altars: but ye haue not obeyed my voice, wherfore I haue this daye I haue lykenesse determined that I will not cast them out before you: but they shall be your enemies, and they shall shall be your destruction. And when the Iungell of the Lorde hadde spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel, the people cryed out and wepte. And called the name of the layd place Bortim, and offered there vnto the Lorde.

And when Joshua hadde sente the people awaye, the chyldren of Israel went euery man into his inheritance to possesse the lande.

And the people serued the Lorde all the dayes of Joshua, and all the dayes of the elders that oulyued Joshua, and hadde sene all the great workes of the Lorde that he did to Israel. And Joshua the sonne of Nun, the seruant of the Lorde dyed when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whome they buryed in the cosyns of his inheritance: euen in Thamnath Parets in mount Ephraim, on the northe syde of the hyl Gass. And euen to al that generation were put vnto their fathers: and there arose another generation after them, which neither knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes which he dyd vnto Israel.

And then the chyldren of Israel dyd wyckedly in the sight of the Lorde, a serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of their fathers, which brought them out of the lande of Egypt, and folowed straunge goddes, euen of the goddes of the nations that were rounde about them, and bowed them selues vnto them and angred the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde and serued Baal and Ashtaroth. Wherfore the Lorde wared angrie with Israel, and deliuered them in to the handes of raueners to spyle them, and solde them in to the han-des of their enemies rounde aboute them. So that they had no power any longer to stande before their enemies, but vnto what so came thynge they wente, the hande of the Lorde was vpon them with euyl lucke: euen as the Lorde promysed them. And as he sware vnto them. And they were soze bered.

Neuerthelesse, the Lorde rayled by Iudges whiche deliuered them out of the handes of their oppellers, and yet for all that they wold not herken vnto their Iudges: But wente a hoopynge after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned qucklye out of the waye which their fathers walked in obeyinge the commaundementes of the Lorde, and dyd not so.

And when the Lorde rayled them by Iudges in their dayes, he had compassion of them, and herde the lamentacion of the oppressed, and deliuered them out of the handes of their enemies: yet for all that, as soon as a Iudge was dead, they turned and dyd worse then their fathers in folowynge straunge goddes, and in serupnge them, and ceased not frome their inuencions, nor frome their malicious wayes.

Wherfore the Lorde was angrie with Israel and sayd: because this people hath transgressed my covenante which I made with their fathers, and haue not obeyed my voice, therfore heretofore I wold not caste oute one man before them of the nations which Joshua lefte when he dyed, and that to proue Israel throughe them whether they wold kepe the waye of the Lorde to walke therein as their fathers dyd or no. And so the Lorde left those nacions alone, and byrde them not oute im-mediatly, neyther deliuered them in to the handes of Joshua.

Certaine nations are left among the Israelites to trye intent to here and aspye them. Othomel de-liuereth Israel. Iudith killeth hysing Eglon. Samgar killeth the Philistines.

CAPL. III.

¶ These are the nations which the Lorde lefte to scourge Israel: euen as manye of Israel as had not knowen warres of Canaan: Onely for the scripunge of the generation of the chyldren of Israel: which before knewe nothyng of warre, he left the hie lozdes of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, the Sidonites, the Heuites, and dwelt in mounte Libanon, euen frome mounte Baal Hermon vnto Demath. Whose God suffered to remaine to proue Israel by, a mete whether they wold harken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde, which he commaunded their fathers by the hande of Moyses, or no.

And as the chyldren of Israel dwelte amonge the Canaanites, Phereites, Amozites, Phereites, Heuites, and Jebusites, they toke the daughters of them to be their wy-ues, and gaue their owne daughters to their sonnes, and serued their goddes. And so the chyldren of Israel dyd wyckedly in the sighte of the Lorde, and forsoke the Lorde their God and serued Baalim and Ashtaroth. Wherfore the Lorde was angrie with Israel, and deliuered them in to the handes of Chusan Rasathaim kyng of Mesopotamia. So that the chyldren of Israel serued Chusan Rasathaim tyght piers.

And then the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde stered them by a sauer, and saued them: one Othoniel the sonne of Kenes, and Calebs younger brother. And the spyrte of the Lorde came vpon hym, and he iudged Israel, and wente oute to warre. And the Lorde solde Chusan Rassa chaim kynge of Syre in to his hand. So that his hande was myghtye ouer Chusan Rassa chaim, and the lande hadde rest fouretye yeres. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Israel wente to agayne, and commytted wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde. And then the Lorde hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynst the chyldren of Israel, bycause they hadde commytted wyckednesse before the Lorde. And this Eglon gathered vnto him the chyldren of Ammon and the Amalekites, and went and smore the chyldren of Israel, and conquered the tye of palme trees. And the chyldren of Israel serued Eglon the king of the Moabites. fouretye yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde stered them by a sauer, Abud the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Zemini, a man that coude doo nothyng handsonlye with his ryght hande.

By whome the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Abud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lenger, and he dyd gyde it vnder his cote vpon his ryght thysse and caried the present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verie fatte man. And when he hadde presented the present, he sente the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe tourned agayne frome the poyles by Salgail, and sayde: I haue a secreete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge commaunded him to holde his peace, vntyll all that shode aboute hym, were gone oute frome hym.

ii. Reg. iii. c.

And Abud came in vnto him in to a sommer chamber, where he sate alone, and sayde: I haue a message vnto the frome God. And he arose out of his seate, and Abud put forth his left hande, and toke the dagger frome his ryghte thysse, and thurst it so hard in to his belye, so that the harte went in after the blade. And the harte stopped in the fat, for he drew not the dagger out of his belye, but as he stroke him, so left he the dagger in the wounde tyll that by the prynces partes of nature the dyte came out. And Abud gat him out at a postene doore, and shut the doores of the parlour vpon hym, and locked them. The knynges seruantes came and looked, and se the voyces of the parlour were locked, they sayde: A, he is a doynge of his easement in his sommer chamber. And when they had taried tyll they were ashamed, for no man dyd the voyces of the parlour open, then they toke a keye and opened them. And beholde, he, o Lorde was fallen to the erth. And Abud escaped whyle they taried, and was gone beyonde the quaryes, and escaped into Seirath.

And when he was come, he blew a trompet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went down with him, and he before them, and sayd vnto them: folo w me, for the Lorde hath deliuered your enemyes the Moabites in to your handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the serpes of Jordan frome the Moabites, and suffered not a man to passe out. And they stowe of the Moabites f same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there escaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israel, and the lande hadde rest foure score yeres.

And after him came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche stowe of the Philistines an hundred men with an oxe gode, and deliuered Israel also.

Israel is commytted in to the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak deliuer them: Silara is kyled of Jael.

CAPL III.

And the chyldren of Israel began again to be wycked in the syght of the Lorde when Abud was dead. And the Lorde sold them in to the handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that resyded in Hazor, whose Capitayne of warre was Silara, whiche dwelte in Harodeth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde, for he had nyne hundred charrettes of yron, he oppressed the chyldren of Israel with powne twentye yeres.

And Debora a Prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and dwelt vnder the palme tree of Debora, by twene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedesh Nephtalim and sayd vnto him.

The Lorde God of Israel commaundeth the that thou goo and leade an hoode vnto mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thousande men, of the chyldren of Nephtalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll byng vnto the at the ryuer of Kison, Silara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charrettes and his people, and wyll deliuer them in to thine handes. And Barak sayd vnto her, yf thou wilt go with me, I wyll go: but and yf thou wilt not go with me, then I wyll not go. And she answered, I wyll surely goo with the, but then the prayse shall not be thine, my prayse which thou goest, for the Lorde shall kille Silara in to the handes of a woman. And she arose and went with Barak to Kedesh: and Barak called Zabulon and Nephtalim, with vnto ten thousande men: and Debora went with him.

But Jabin the Kemyte went oute of hysse from the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of Hobab who was father to Moyses wyfe, and pitched his tent vnto the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedesh.

And then it was shewed vnto Silara how

that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vnto mounte Thabor. And Silara called for all his charrettes, euen, x. hundred charrettes of yron, and all for the people that he had frome Harodeth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kison. Then said Debora vnto Barak: by, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath deliuered Silara in to thine handes, for the Lorde is gone oute before the. And so Barak wente downe frome mounte Thabor, and ten thousande men after him.

But the Lorde trowled Silara and all his charrettes, and all his hoode with the edge of the swerde before Barak. And Silara legged downe of his charret, and fledde a foote. But Barak folowed after the charrettes, and after the hoode, euen vnto Harodeth of the Gentyles. And all the hoode of Silara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man left. Now be it Silara fledde a foote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite: for there was pear buttene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the household of Haber the Kenite.

And Jael wente oute agaynst Silara and sayd vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her in to her tent: and she couered him with a mantle. And he sayd vnto her: gyue me a lytel water to drynke, for I am thursty. And she opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and couered him. And he sayd vnto her, stande in y more of thy tent, and playn ma come and aske the, or enuayse of the whether there be anye man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a naye of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, and wente wythe vnto him, and smote the naye with the hammer thowme the temples of his heed in to the grounde, and as he slombered beinge wythe, he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Silara, Jael came oute agaynst him, and sayde vnto him: Come, and I wyll shewe the the man whome thou seekst. And when he came in to her tent: Beholde Silara laye dead, and the naye thowme his temples. And so God broughte Jabin the kynge of Canaan in to subjection that daye before the chyldren of Israel. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered, and was foze vpon Jabin the kynge of Canaan, vntill they hadde brought him to nought.

The songe and thankes gyfynge of Debora and Barak, after the bycroppes.

CAPL VI.

Then Debora and Barak f sonne of Abinoam, sang the same daye saying: Because he hath avenge the vengeance done to Israel, the people offering them selues wyllyngly: prayse ye the Lorde. Heare knynges, and barben Lordes, I am the, I am the that wyll syng, and gyue prayse vnto the Lorde God of Israel.

Lorde, when thou departedst out of Seir, and camest thowme the countreys of Edom, & erth trembled, and the carthe rayred, and the clow-des dropped water: the mountaynes melted before the Lorde, euen mounte Sinai before the Lorde God of Israel.

In the dayes of Samgar the sonne of Anath, and in the dayes of Jael, the hye wayes were vnscaped, and they that walked by pathes, wyl by wayes that set compasses about. The champions of Israel were discouraged & tarynt vntill J Debora arose, vntill J arose a mother in Israel.

God chose new facions of warre, for when they had warre at thery gates, there was not sene amonge fouretye thousande, eyther swelde or spere in Israel. Whene herit lousch the main-teners of the lawe in Israel, ye that wyllyngly haue put your selues in aduenture, blisse ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly asses, and dwell besyde Ryddon. And ye f walke by the wayes, make dirkes. Where as the charrettes were broken a peces, where the hoode of our aduersaries was choled, there shall they tell of the iustice of the Lorde, & how gracious was the stronge God of Israel: then the people of the Lorde went downe vnto the gates, & wan the masterye.

By Debora, by by and syng a songe, by Barak and take thy praye, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then they that had escaped, vnder Israel paigned ouer the proudest of the people. The Lorde fought amonges the stronge.

Ephraim was the first that destroyed Amalek. And after hym Ben Jamin, amonge the people.

Of Achit came lerned men in the lawe, and of Zabulon that well coude conuey an hoode to warre.

The Lordes of Isakar were with Debora. And as Barak, euen so was Isakar sente in to the valeye a foote, and put his life in auenture. But in the diuisions of Ruben were great imaginations of herte.

Wherefore abodest thou amonge the shepe foldes, to heare the bleatynge of the flockes. In the diuisions of Ruben greate were the ymaginations of herte. Galaad abode on the other syde Jordan, and taried Dan in Hyppes. And after sate in the hauens of the see, and abode still in his owne coostes. But Zabulon is a people that put thery lyues in icopardye of deathe, and Nephtalim in lyne maner, euen vnto the topp of the feldes, knynges came and fought. Then foughte the kynge of Canaan at Thanaach, vpon the water of Megiddo. But the spruce that they couered, they carped not awaye.

Frome heuen came batayle: for the sterkes beyng in thery course, fought agaynst Silara. The ryuer of Kison caught them awaye: that ancient ryuer, the ryuer Kison.

By soule, recede thou the myghtye vnder foze. Then they, horyes stumbled as they fledde, that they, myghty courtesers leide prauynge.

Curse ye Meroz, had f aungell of the Lorde curse, curse f inhabitours therof, because they came not foze to helpe the Lorde, to helpe the Lorde amonge the myghty.

Blessed be Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite.

He asked water, but she gave him myke, and brought butter in a goodly dyshe. She caught a mayle in her left hande, and a wyngynge hammer in her righte, and naped Silas and wounded his heed, and perced and went throught his temples. Bytwene her fere he bowed him selfe, fell downe and laye still: Bytwene her fete he sprauled and laye dead lyke a wyrtche.

Thowow a wyndow looked Silas mother and howled out of her chambze, why abideth his charēt so longe that it cometh not, why tary the wheles of his waggans? The mysell of his wiues answered her: yea, and she answered her owne wordes her selfe, haply they haue founde, and slayde the spyle. A mayde, ye two maydes for a pece / a spyle of dyuers colours for Silas, a spyle of dyuers colours with bryndered wyrtches, dyuers coloured, bryndered wyrtches for the necke for a praye. So praye all thynne enemyes Loyde / but they that loue the, let them be as the sonne ryngynge in his myght.

And the lande had rest fouertye yeres.

Israel is oppressed of the Madianites, because he returned agayne into Idolatrye. Gedeon is sent of God to be thery deliuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthrowen.

CAPL

VI.

And the chyldren of Israel commytted wyphednes in the syghte of the Loyde. And the Loyde deliuered them in to the handes of the Madianites seuen yeres.

And when the bande of the Madianites was sore vpon Israel, the chyldren of Israel made them denues in the mountaynes, and caues, and stronge holdes. For when Israel hadde sowne, the came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Sade countrey vpon them, and pched their tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the erth euen vnto Azab, and left no sustenance in Israel, neither wyne, oyle, or any thing they came with their cattell and householdes, euen as gresshoppers in multitude, so that bothe they and also their camels were without nombe, and walked all that euer they layde handes on. And they entered the lande to destroy it. And so was Israel exceedingly impouertished by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Loyde. And when the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Loyde because of the Madianites, the Loyde sent a prophet vnto them, and sayd vnto them. Thus sayth the Loyde God of Israel, I set you from Egypte and brought you out of the house of bondage, and I ryd you out of y hand of the Egyptians, and out of the handes of al that oppressed you, and call them out before you, & gaue you thery landes. And I sayd vnto you, I am the Loyde your God, and therefore feare not the Goddes of the Amontes in whose land you dwel. But you wolde not obey my voyce. And the aungell of the Loyde came and late vnder an oke in Ephrah that pertained vnto Joas the father of the Elieites. And his sonne Gedeon pressed out where oute of the eares in a pyll, for to see from the Madianites. And the aungell of the Loyde appeared vnto him, and sayd: the Loyde is with the, thou man of myght. And Gedeon answered him: Oh my Loyde, if the Loyde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: yea and where be his myghtes which our fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: the Loyde brought vs out of Egypt. But now the Loyde hath forsaken vs, and deliuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Loyde looked vpon him, and sayd: So hence in this thy myght, and deliuer Israel out of the handes of the Madianites: Behold, I haue sent the. And he answered him. Oh Loyde, wherewith shal I saue Israel? Beholde my hande is the poorest in Manasses, and I am the least in my fathers house. But then the Loyde sayde vnto hym: I wyl be with the, and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he answered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, then shewe me a signe, that thou art the Loyde that talkest with me. Departe not hence, vntill I come agayne to the, and byngne myne offeringe, and haue set it before the.

And he sayd, I wyl tarye vntill thou come agayne. And Gedeon wente and made redye a kybze, and smete cakes of an Ephah of flour, & put the fleshe in a bakete, and the brothe in a pot, and brought it out vnto him vnder y oke and presented it. And the aungell of God layd vnto him: take the fleshe and the smete cakes and put them vpon this rokke, and poure out the brothe. And he dyd so. Then the aungell of the Loyde put forth the ende of the stawe that was in his hande, and touched the fleshe and the cakes. And there arose by fyre oute of the rokke and consumed the fleshe and the cakes, and the aungell of the Loyde banysed oute of his syght. And when Gedeon perceyued that it was an aungell, he sayd: alas my Loyde, mighte, that I haue sent an aungell of the Loyde face to face. And the Loyde sayde vnto him, pear be with the, and feare not: for thou shalt walke as before. Then Gedeon made an aulter there vnto the Loyde, and called it y Jehouah, Salom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephrah that pertained vnto the father of the Elieites. And the same nyght the Loyde sayd vnto him, take an oxe of thy fathers, and an offer of seuen yeres olde, and destroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the greue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Loyde thy God vpon the top of this rokke and furnishe it. And take the seconde oxe and offre burnt sacrifice with the woodde of the greue whiche thou shalt haue cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his seruantes, & dyd as the Loyde had him. But because he durste not do it by daye, for feare of his fathers household, and of the men of the cite, he dyd it by nyghte.

When the men of the cite were by eue in the moynynge: Beholde, the aulter of Baal was broken, and the greue that stood aboute it cut it cut downe. And the seconde oxe offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they sayd one to another: Why hath he done this thing, and they enquired and asked for him that should haue done y dede. It was tolde them that Gedeon the sonne of Joas hadde done it. Then the men of the cite sayde vnto Joas, byngne oute thy sonne that he maye dye, because he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cut downe the greue that was aboute it. And Joas sayde vnto all y fode by him: wyl ye fight for Baal, or wyl ye be his defenders? he that answereth for him, shall dye afore to morow. Yf he be a God let him reuenge his quarel vpon him that cast downe his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the same time sayng: let Baal reuenge hym, because he hath broken downe his aulter.

When all the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the East were gathered together, and had gone and pitched in the valeys of Israel, the spyrte of the Loyde entered in to Gedeon. And he blew a trompet and called togyther the house of y Abiezer to folow him, and sent messengers thowow out al Manasses, and called them vp to folow him also. And he sent other messengers vnto Aser, Zabulon & Nephthalim, whiche came also to mete him.

And Gedeon sayd vnto God: yf thou wilt sone Israel by my hande, as thou haste sayde. Beholde, I wyl put a fleece of wolle in the chesnyng place. And yf the dewe be on the fleece onely, and dreye vpon all the earth besyde: then I shal be sure that thou wilt saue Israel by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. And he rose vp eue on the moynye, and he pressed the fleece together, & wryng the dewe thereout, and filled a byske full of water. And Gedeon sayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I speake ones more, let me proue onely: ones agayne with the fleece. Let it be dreye ones vpon the fleece, and drye vpon al the ground aboute. And God dyd so that same nyght: so that it was dreye vpon the fleece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, drye.

The shepherds that shulde goo with Gedeon to battayle are proued by takinge them by water. Gedeon wylly the hundred men ouercoweth the Madianites. Oph and yeb are slayne.

VII.

Then Jerobaal, otherwylse called Gedeon toke clype, and all the people that were with him & pitched beside the well of Baal, so that the hoste of the Madianites were in a valeys on the north syde of the hill y Amoreth. And the Loyde sayd vnto Gedeon, the people that are with the, are to many for me to frue the Madianites in to thy dishonour, and Israel make thery haunt to my dishonour, and lay our elone hande hath saved vs. Now therfore make a proclamation in the eares of the people, and saye: yf anye man dyed or be ashyde, let him returne, and geue him sone from mount Galaad: and there departed and returned of the people xij. thousande, and there abode ten thousande.

And the Loyde sayd vnto Gedeon the people are yet to many, byngne them downe vnto the water, and I wyl tere them vnto the therr. And of whome I save vnto the, this shal goo with the, the same shal goo with the. And who so euer I save vnto the, this shal not go with the: the same shal not goo. And when he hadde broughte wyne the people vnto the water, the Loyde sayde vnto Gedeon: as many as lapped the water with theryr tonges, as dogges doo, them put by them selfes: and so wo them that knelt downe vpon theryr knes to drynke. And the nombe of them that put theryr handes to theryr mouthes and lapped, were thre hundred men: and all the remnant of the people knelt downe vpon theryr knes to drynke water. And the Loyde sayde vnto Gedeon, with the thre hundred men that lapped water wyl I saue pou, and deliuer the Madianites in to thynne hande: and all the other people shal goo euey man to his owne home.

And they toke vitayles with them for the folke, and theryr trompettes: and he sente all the reste of Israel, euey man vnto his tēte, and kept the thre hundred with him: and the hoste of Madian was benethe him in a valeys. And the same nyght the Loyde sayd vnto him vp, and goo downe vnto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it in to thynne hande. But yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoste, and yharah thy lab, and heke what they saye, and so shall thynne hande be stronge, and then thou shalt safely go downe vnto the hoste.

When he wente downe with Pharah his lad euen vnto the marche ind of armes that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the East, laye alonge in the valeys lyke vnto gresshoppers in multitude, and theryr camels were withoute nombe, euen as the sande by the see syde. And when Gedeon was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayd on this maner. Beholde I dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that an hartshakke lode of bakete dyed tumbled in to the hoste of Madian, and came vnto a tēte, and smote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent laye alonge. And his felowe answered and sayde, this is nothing els saue the swerde of Gedeon the sonne of Joas a man of Israel. In to whose hande the Loyde hath deliuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedeon herde the tellenge of the dreame, and the meynynge thereof, he bostard him selfe to the cerbe, and returned vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayde: y, for y Loyde hath deliuered in to poure handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he diuided the thre hundred men in to thre compaynes, and gaue euey man a trompet in his hande, and sayde vnto theryr: loke on me, and do as I shal saye: and beholde, when I come to the frons of the hoste: euen as I doo, so wyl you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euey side.

Judith

And then the chyldren of Israel ceryd by a lauer, and laued them: one Othniel the sonne of Kenes, and Calebs yonger brother. And the spyrte of the Loyde came vpon hym, and he iudged Israel, and wente oute to warre. And the Loyde solde Chusan Rasha- thaim kynge of Syre in to his hand. So that his hande was myghtye ouer Chusan Rasha- thaim, and the lande hadde rest fourety yeres. And Othniel the sonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Israel wente to agayne, and committed wyckednesse in the syghte of the Loyde. And then the Loyde hardened E- glion the kynge of the Moabites, agaynst the chyldren of Israel, because they hadde com- mitted wyckednesse before the Loyde. And this Eglion gathered vnto him the chyldren of Am- mon and the Amalekites, and went and smore the chyldren of Israel, and conquered the cy- tyte of palme trees. And the chyldren of Israel seuerd Eglion the king of the Moabites. xviij. yeres. And then they ceryd vnto the Loyde, and the Loyde stered them by a lauer, Abud the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, a man that coude doo nothyng handsonlye with his ryght hande.

By whome the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglion the kynge of the Moa- bites, whiche Abud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he dyd gyrd it vnder his cote vpon his ryght thygge and carped the present vnto Eglion the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Eglion was a verye fatte man. And when he hadde presented the presente, he sente the people that bare it a- waye, but he hym selfe touned agayne frome the pboles by Salgall, and sayde: I haue a secreete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge commaunded him to holde his peace, vntyll all that rode aboute hym, were gone oute frome hym.

And Abud came in vnto him in to a sommer chamber, where he sate alone, and sayde: I haue a message vnto the frome God. And he arose out of his seate, and Abud put forth his left hande, and toke the dagger frome his ryghte thygge, and thynke it to haue in to his belye, so that the harte went in after the blade. And the harte stopped in the fat, for he drew not the dagger out of his bely, but as he stroke him, so left he the dagger in the wounde tyll that by the pryue parties of nature the byrte came out. And Abud gat him out at a postene moze, and shut the doores of the parlour vpon hym, and locked them. The kynge seruantes came and looked, and se the woies of the par- lous were locked, they sayde: A, he is a doynge of his easement in his sommer chamber. And when they had taried tyll they were ashamed, for no man dyd the woies of the parlous open, then they toke a kepe and opened them. And beholde, the Loyd was fallen vnto the erth. But Abud escaped whyle they ta- yed, and was gone beyond the quaryes, and escaped into Seirath.

And when he was come, he blew a trom- pet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went down with him, & he before them, and sayd vnto them: solo to me for the Loyd hath deliuered your enemies the Moabites in to poure handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the ferpes of Jordan frome the Moabites, and suffered not a man to passe oute. And they slew of the Moabites f lame tyme vpon a ten thousande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there scaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israel, and the lande had rest foure score yeres.

And after him came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slew of the Philistines six hundred men with an oxe goode, and deliuered Israel also.

Israel is commyted in to the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak deliuer them: Silara is kyled of Jael.

CAPL. IIIL

Ad the chyldren of Israel began again to be wyckedly in the syght of the Loyd when Abud was deed. And the Loyde sold them in to the handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that raygned in Hazor: whose Capitayne of warre was Silara, whiche dwelte in Haroseth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel ceryd vnto the Loyde, for he had nyne hundred charrettes of yron, he oppressed the chyldren of Israel with power twenty yeres.

And Debora a Prophetesse, the wyf of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and dwelte vnder the palme tree of Debora, by twene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedesh Nephthaim and sayd vnto him.

The Loyde God of Israel commaundeth the that thou goo and leade an hoste vnto mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thou- sande men, of the chyldren of Nephthaim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll bring vnto the at the ryuer of Kison, Silara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charrettes and his people, and wyll deliuer them in to thynne handes. And Barak sayd vnto her, yf thou wyll go with me, I wyll go: but and yf thou wyll not go with me, then I wyll not go. And she answered, I wyll surely goo with the, but then the pryse shall not be thine in the waye which thou goest, for the Loyde shall deliuer Silara in to the handes of a woman. And she arose and went with Barak to Kedesh, and Barak called Zabulon and Nephthaim, with vnto ten thousande men: & Debora went with them.

But Haber the Kenite went oute of kynde from the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of Hobab who was father to Moyses wyf, and pitched his tene vnto her he was come to the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedesh.

And then it was shewed vnto Silara how

that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vnto mounte Thabor. And Silara called for all his charrettes, even ix. hundred charrettes of yron, and all for the people that he had frome Haroseth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of Kison. Then said Debora vnto Barak: by, for this is the daye in which the Loyde hath deliuered Silara in to thynne handes, for the Loyd is gone oute before the. And so Barak wente downe frome mounte Thabor, and ten thou- sande men after him.

But the Loyde trowned Silara and all his charrettes, and all his hoste with the edge of the swerde before Barak. And Silara lygged downe of his charer, and fledde a fote. But Barak folowed after the charrettes, and after the hoste, even vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Silara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man left. How be it Silara fledde a fote to the tent of Jael the wyf of Haber the Kenite: for there was praye betwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the householde of Haber the Kenite.

And Jael wente oute agaynst Silara and sayde vnto hym: tourne in my Loyde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her in to her tent: & she couered him with a man- tel. And he sayd vnto her: gyue me a lytel wa- ter to drynke, for I am thyrsty. And she opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and couered him. And he sayd vnto her, stande in the waye of thy tent, and yf any ma come and aske the, or enquire of the whether there be anye man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyf toke a naye of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, & went hysse vnto him, and smote the naye with the hammer thorow the temples of his heed in to the grounde, and as he slombered beyng wyte, he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Si- lara, Jael came oute agaynst him, and sayde vnto him: Come, and I wyll shewe the the man whome thou seekst. And when he came in to her tent: Beholde Silara laye deed, and the naye thorow his temples. And so God broughte Jabin the kynge of Canaan in to subleation that daye before the chyldren of Is- rael. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered, and was soze vpon Jabin the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they hadde brought him to nought.

Then Debora & Barak f sonne of Abinoam, sang the same dape saying: Because he hath auenged the vengeance toone to Israel, the people offering them selues impli- tly: prayse ye the Loyde. Heare kynge, & darken Loydes, I am we, I am the that wyll syng, and gyue prayse vnto the Loyde God of Israel.

Where as the charrettes were broken a peces, where the hoste of our aduersaries was choked, there shall they tell of the iustice of the Loyde, & how gracious was the stronge God of Israel: then the people of the Loyde went downe vnto the gates, & wan the maytre.

Tip by Debora, by by and syng a songe, by Barak and take the praye, thou sonne of Abi- noam. When they that had escaped, vnder Is- rael raygned ouer the proudest of the people. The Loyde fought amonges the stronge.

Ephraim was the fyrst that destroyed Ama- lek. And after hym Ben Jamin, amonge the people.

Of Machie came lerned men in the lawe, and of Zabulon that well coude conueye an hoste to warre.

The Loydes of Isakar were with Debora. And as Barak, even so was Isakar sente in to the baley a fote, and put his life in auenture. But in the diuisions of Ruben were great ima- ginacions of herte.

Wherefore abodest thou amonge the shepe foldes, to heare the bicatynge of the flockes. In the diuisions of Ruben greates were the ymaginations of herte. Galaad abode on the other syde Jordan, and carped Dan in Syppes. And Aser sate in the hauens of the see, and a- bode styl in his owne cootes. But Zabulon is a people that put thery lyues in scapardye of deathe, and Nephthaim in lyke maner, & uen vnto the toppes of the felbes, kynge came and foughte. Then foughte the kynge of Ca- naan at Thanaab, vpon the watte of Magew. But the place that they couered, they carped not awaye.

Frome heuen came batayle: for the scerres beyng in thery course, fought agaynst Silara. The ryuer of Kison caught them awaye: that auncient ruer, the ryuer Kison.

My soule, treade thou the myghtye vnder foor. Then thery hoies slombered as they fledde, that thery mighty countres leste prau- syng.

Curse ye Meroz, bad f aungell of the Loyde curse, curse f inhabitours therof, bicause they came not forth to helpe the Loyde, to helpe the Loyde amonge the myghty.

He asked water, but she gave him milk, and brought butter in a goodly dish. She caught a nape in her left hand, and a two-pronged hammer in her right, and naped Sifara and wounded his head, and peried and went thowme his temples. Bytwene her feet he bowed him selfe, fell downe and laye still: Bytwene her feet he spawled and laye dead like a wretch.

Thowow a wyndow looked Sifaras mother and howled out of her chambze, why abideth his charer so longe that it cometh not, why saye the wheles of his waggans? The wyldest of his wibes answered her: yes, and she answered her owne wordes her selfe, haplye they have founde, and diuptye the spoule. A mayde, ye two maydes for a pett / a spoule of dyuers colours for Sifara, a spoule of dyuers colours with broudered workes, dyuers coloured, broudered workes for the necke for a praye. So perspice all thynne enemyes Loide / but they that loue the, let them be as the sonne of syng in his myght.

And the lande had rest fouertye yeres.

Israel is oppressed of the Madianites, because he returned agayne into Idolatrie. Gedron is sent of God to be thery deliuerer. The aulter of Baal is overthowen.

CAPL.

VI.

And the chyldren of Israel commytted wyckednes in the syghte of the Loide. And the Loide deliuered them in to the handes of the Madianites seven yeres. And when the hande of the Madianites was fore upon Israel, the chyldren of Israel made them denues in the mountaynes, and caues, and stronge holdes. For when Israel hadde sowen, the came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Rasse countrey upon them, and pitched their tentes agaynst them, and destroyed the increase of the erth even vnto Azah, and left no sustenance in Israel, neither wepe, ore, or alle / for they came with their cattell and howsholdes, such as grethoppers in multitude / so that bothe they and also their camels were without nombe, and wasted all that euer they layde handes on. And they entered the lande to destroy it. And so was Israel exceedingly impouerished by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Loide. And when the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Loide because of the Madianites, the Loide sent a prophet vnto them, and sayd vnto them. Thus sayth the Loide God of Israel, I set you from Egypte and brought you out of the house of bondage, and I tyd you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the handes of al that oppressed you, and cast them out before you, I gaue you thery landes. And I sayd vnto you, I am the Loide your God, and therefore feare not the Goddes of the Amorytes in whose land you dwel. But you wolde not obey my voyce. And the angel of the Loide came and sat vnder an oke of the Amorytes in whose land you dwel. But you wolde not obey my voyce. And the angel of the Loide came and sat vnder an oke in Ephrah that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Elerites. And his sonne Gedron pressed out where out of the eares in a pyrie, for to flee from the Madianites. And the angel of the Loide appeared vnto him, and said the Loide is with the, thou man of myght. And Gedron answered him: Oh my Loide, if the Loide be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: ye and where be his myghtes which our fathers tolde vs of, and sayde: the Loide brought vs out of Egypt. But now the Loide hath forsaken vs, and deliuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Loide looked vpon him, and sayd: So hence in this thy myght, and deliuer Israel out of the handes of the Madianites: Behold, I haue sent the. And he answered him. Oh Loide, wherewith wolde I saue Israel? Beholde my handes is the poozed in Manasses, and I am the least in my fathers house. But then the Loide sayde vnto hym: I will be with the, and thou shalt smyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he answered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, then thewe me a signe, that thou art the Loide that talkest with me. Depart not hence, vntill I come agayne vnto the, and byngge myne offeringe, and haue set it before the.

And he sayd, I will saye vntill thou come agayne. And Gedron wente and made retye a kydde, and smete cakes of an Ephra of flour, and put the fleshe in a basket, and the brothe in a pot, and brought it out vnto him vnder the night, and presented it. And the angel of God layd vnto him: take the fleshe and the smete cakes, and put them vpon this rocke, and poure out the brothe. And he dyd so. Then the angel of the Loide put forth the ende of the Rasse that was in his hande, and touched the fleshe and the cakes. And there arose by fyre out of the rocke and consumed the fleshe and the cakes, and the angel of the Loide banyshted out of his syghte. And when Gedron perceyued that it was an angel, he sayd: alas my Loide almightie, that I haue sene an angel of the Loide face to face. And the Loide sayde vnto him, feare not the, and feare not / for thou shalt not dye. Then Gedron made an aulter there vnto the Loide, and called it Jehonah. Salom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephrah that pertayneth vnto the father of the Elerites. And the same nyght the Loide sayd vnto him, take an ore of thy fathers, and an othe of seven yeres olde, and destroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Loide thy God vpon the top of this rocke and turne it. And take the seconde ore and offer burnt sacrifice with the woodde of the groue whiche thou walte haue cut downe. Then Gedron toke ten men of his seruantes, as dyd as the Loide bad him. But because he durste not do it by daye, for feare of his fathers howsholdes, and of the men of the cite, he dyd it by nyghte.

When the men of the cite were by eley in the morninge: Beholde, the aulter of Baal was broken, and the groue that stode aboute

it cut downe. And the seconde ore offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they sayd one to another: Who hath done this thing, and they enquired and asked for him that shoulde haue done it. It was tolde them that Gedron the sonne of Joas hadde doone it. Then the men of the cite sayde vnto Joas, byngge out thy sonne that he maye dye, because he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cut downe the groue that was aboute it. And Joas sayde vnto al the people by him: will ye fight for Baal, or will ye be his defendes? he that answereth for him, shall dye afore to morow. Yf he be a God let him reuenge his quarrel vpon him that cast downe his aulter. And he called Gedron Jerobaal the same time sayng: let Baal reacquyte hym, because he hath broken downe his aulter.

When all the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Rasse were gathered together, and had gone and pitched in the valeys of Jeruel, the spirit of the Loide entred in to Gedron. And he blew a trompet and called togyther the house of Abiezzer to folowe him, and sent messengers thowow out al Manasses, and called them vp to folow him also. And he sent other messengers vnto Aser, Zabulon & Nephthalim, whiche came also to meete him.

And Gedron sayd vnto God: yf thou wilt saue Israel by my hande, as thou hast sayde. Beholde, I will put a fleece of wolles in the chesynge place. And yf the dewe be on the fleece onely, and drye vpon all the earth beynde then I shall be sure that thou wilt saue Israel by my hande, as thou saydest. And it came so to passe. And he rose by eley on the morow, and be pressed the fleece together, & wozong the dewe therout, and filled a dyshe full of water. And Gedron sayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I speake ones more, let me proue onely: ones agayne with the fleece. Let it be drye onely vpon the fleece, and dew vpon al the ground aboute. And God dyd so that same nyght: so that it was drye vpon the fleece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, & dewe.

The fourtyers that shoulde goo with Gedron to destroye the aulter of Baal, were byngge by water. Gedron with the hundred men overcometh the Madianites. Dye and reb are slayne.

CAPL.

VII.

Then Jerobaal, otherwile called Gedron toke eley, and all the people that were with him & pitched beside the wel of Baal, so that the hoste of the Madianites were in a balcy on the north syde of the byll Hymore. And the Loide sayd vnto Gedron, the people that are with the, are to manye for me to grue the Madianites in to their handes, lest Israel make their baunt to my dishonoure, and laye our owne hande hath sene vs. Nowe therefore make a proclamation in the eares of the people, and saye: yf anye man dreyd or be asfede, let him returne, and get him some strome mounte Galaad / and there departed and returned of the people xij. thousande, and there abode ten thousande.

And the Loide sayd vnto Gedron the people are yet to many, byngge them downe vnto the water, and I will eleye them vnto the there. And of whome I saye vnto the, this shall goo with the, the same shall goo with the. And wyo so euer I saye vnto the, this shall not go with the: the same shall not goo. And when he hadde broughte downe the people vnto the water. The Loide sayde vnto Gedron: as manye as lapped the water with theryr tongues, as dogges do, them put by them felices / and so wo them that knelt downe vpon theryr knes to drynke. And the nombic of them that put their handes to their mouthes and lapped, were thye hundred men / and all the remnant of the people knelt downe vpon their knes to drynke water. And the Loide sayde vnto Gedron, with the thye hundred men that lapped water wyl I saue you, and deliuer the Madianites in to thynne hande / and all the other people shall goo euey man to his owne home.

And they toke vitayles with them for the folke, and theryr trompettes / and he sente all the rest of Israel, euey man vnto his tente, and kept the thye hundred with him / and the hoste of Madian was benethe him in a balcy. And the same nyght the Loide sayd vnto him: vp, and goo downe vnto the hoste, for I haue deliuered it in to thynne hande. But yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoste, and pharab thy lad, and herke what they saye, and so shall thynne handes be stronge, and then thou shalt safely go downe vnto the hoste.

Then he went downe with pharab his lad euen hard vnto the marche me of armys that were in the hoste. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the Rasse, laye a longe in the valeys like vnto grethoppers in multitude, and theryr camels were withoute nombe, such as the saube by the see syde. And when Gedron was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, and sayd on this maner. Beholde I dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that an hartsharte lost of barlepe dyed combed in to the host of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and smote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent laye alonge. And his felowe answered and sayde, this is nothing els saue the swerde of Gedron the sonne of Joas a man of Israel. in to whose hande the Loide hath deliuered Madian and all the hoste.

When Gedron herde the tellenge of the dreame, and the meaurage thereof, he bowed him selfe to the erthe, and returned vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayde: by, for the Loide hath deliuered in to your handes the hoste of the Madianites. And he diuided the thye hundred men in to thye companyes, and gaue euey man a trompet in his hande. And an empye pycher, and lampes therein, and sayde vnto them: loke on me, and doo lyphewyl / and beholde, when I come to the side of the hoste / such as I doo, so doo you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes also on euey side.

Jud. xiii.

spde the hofte and faye: here be the Loyde and Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the thye hundred men that were with him, came vnto the fide of the hofte in the begynnyng of the myddell watche and rayfed vp the watche men. And they blew with their trompettes, and brake the picchers that were in theyr handes. And all thye compaynes blew with trompettes and brake the pyrchers, and helde the lampes in theyr left handes, and the trompettes in theyr right, to blowe with all. And they cryed, the fwerde of the Loyde and of Gedeon. And they rode vpon euery man in his place rounde aboute the hofte: and all the hofte raune and cryed and fledde.

And as the thye hundred blew with trompettes, the Loyde sent his fwerde thowt all the hofte, so that euery one fawe other. And the hofte fled, vntill they came to Bethbarab, to Zecrath, and to the edge of Abimeholah helpe Zebach. And the men of Israel gathered together of the tribbe of Nephtalim, of Afer, and of all Danasses, and folowed after the Adianites. For Gedeon had sent messengers thowt out all mount Ephraim, saying: come wone againft the Adianites, and take frome them the waters bothe of Bethbaroth and also of Jordan.

Then all the men of Ephraim gathered together, and came downe and toke the waters bothe of Bethbaroth, and also of Jordan. And they toke two capitaynes of the Adianites, Hozeb, and Zeb, and fawe Zeb vpon the rocke Dieb, and Zeb at the puelle Zeb, and folowed after Adian: and brought the breedes of Dieb and Zeb to Gedeon on the othre fide Jordan.

Ephraim maketh infurrection agaynst Gedeon, but is fone pacified. The inhabitants of Socoth refuse to gyue Gedeon and his armye bread. The towne of Phnuel is destroyed. Gedeon is confitute ruler ouer the Israelites. He hath thye fcoze and ten fcozes. He dyeth.

CAPL. VIII.

And the men of Ephraim said vnto him. Why haue thou ferued vs thus, thou calledst vs not when thou wentest to fighte with the Adianites: and they chode with him a good, and were welnygh at daggers drawyng. And he said vnto them: What dede haue I doone lyke vnto you: are not the cluifers of Ephraim better then the wyne barrell of Abizer? God hath deliuered in to your handes the Loydes of Adian, Dieb, & Zeb. And what was I habile to doo lyke as you haue doone? And then their fpirites were pacified, and they well content with him, tobe he hadde faye that. And then Gedeon came to Jordan and passed ouer bothe he and the thye hundred men that were with hym very fapnt and yet folowed the chafe.

And he faye vnto the men of Socoth: gyue I praye you cakes of brede vnto the people that folow me: for they be fapnt, that I may folowe after Zebach and Zalmona knynges of Adian. And the Loydes of Socoth faye, are the hades of Zebach and Zalmona now in thye handes that we shulde gyue bred vnto thy compayne? And Gedeon faye, therefore when the Loyde hath deliuered Zebach and Zalmona in to myne hande, I wyl teare the fleshe of you with the thornes of the wyldernesse and with briers. And he went thence to Phnuel, and faye vnto them lyke wyse. And the men of Phnuel answered, as vnto hym of Socoth. And he faye also vnto the men of Phnuel, when I come agayne in pear I wyl brake downe this towne. Zebach and Zalmona were in Arkar, and theyr hoodes with them, vpon a fiftene thousande, whiche were all that were left of all the hoodes of them of the East. And they that were fapnt, were a hundred and twentye thousande men that were fwerde.

And Gedeon went thowt them that dwelt in tabernacles on the East fide of Jorabab and Zebach, and fmoote the hofte: for the hofte had no perys Zebach and Zalmona fled. But he folowed after them, and toke the two knynges of the Adianites, Zebach and Zalmona, and difcomfited all the hofte.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas returned frome batayle, the sonne beyng yet by, and caught a lad of the men of Socoth, and enquired of him the names of the chiefe lordes and elders of Socoth. And he wrote the lordes and elders of Socoth, thye fcoze and fiftene men. Then he came vnto the men of Socoth and faye: Beholde Zebach and Zalmona, with whiche he calle me in the tette, faying: are the handes of Zebach, and Zalmona akepe in thye hande, that we shulde gyue bred vnto thy fapntye men. And he toke the elders of the cyte, and thornes of the wyldernesse and briers, and all to raze them therewith. And he brake downe the towne of Phnuel, and fawe the men of the cyte.

And then faye vnto Zebach and Zalmona, what maner men were they whiche ye fawe at Thaboz? & they answered: they were moche lyke the in fauoure: and one of them eyen as he were a knynges sonne. And he faye: Dyr were my brethzen, euen my mothers chyldren, and as truly as the Loyde lyueth, ye haue faued their lyues, I wolde not fce you. And he faye vnto Jether his eldest sonne, vp and fce them, but the ladde dyed not his fwerde: for he feared, bycause he was yet yonge. Then Zebach and Zalmona faye. Kysse thou, and fall vpon vs, for as the man is, so is his strenght. And Gedeon arose and fawe them: & he toke awaye the trapere and chaynes that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel faye vnto Gedeon. Kynge ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne, and thy fcozes sonne: for thou hast deliuered vs oute of the handes of the Adianites. And Gedeon faye vnto them: I wyl not raygne ouer you, neyther shall my chyldren raygne ouer you, but the Loyde shall raygne ouer you.

After the later Gedeon faye vnto them: I wolde desire a certayne request of you, euen that you wolde gyue me euery man the earynges of his praye. For they had golden earynges, because they were Ismaelites. And they faye we will do it. And they fayed a mantell and dyd cast there into euery mans earynges of his praye. And the weyght of the golden earynges was a thousand and feuen hundred fyles of golde, belydes brouches, ouches and garmentes of fcarlet that were of kynnes of Adian, and belyde the chaynes, that were about their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, and put it in his cytie Ephrah. And all Israel went a hoyng after him there, whiche thynge was the ruyne of Bezens house. Thus were the Adianites brought lowe before the chyldren of Israel, so that they lyft vp their heddes no more. And the contrey was in quyetnesse forty yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

And Jerobaal the sonne of Joas went and dwelt in his owne house. And Gedeon had lxx. fcozes of his body begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubyne that dwelt in Sichem bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, when he was of a good age, & was buryed in the burial of Joas his father, euen in Ephrah that pertayned vnto the father of the fcozes.

But as fone as Gedeon was deed, & chyldren of Israel turned awaye and went a hoyng after Baal, and made Baal a promysse that he shulde be their God, and thought not on the Loyde their God whiche had deliuered them out of the handes of all their enemyes on euery fide. Nether they fayed merry on the house of Jerobaal, othertwys called Gedeon, accordinge to all the goodnesse whiche he shewed them.

Abimelech is ordeyned a knyng after he had kylled his fcozes. Jether the sonne of Moab was after kylled of a woman when he befege thebes. The parables of Joatham concerning his brother Abimelech.

CAPL. IX.

For Abimelech the sonne of Jerobaal went to Sichem, vnto his mothers brethzen, & comuned with them and with all the hole kyned both of his fathers fide and mothers also, faying: faye I praye you, in the eares of all the inhabitants of Sichem: whether is better for you that all the fcozes of Jerobaal whiche are, lxx. perfonnes raygne ouer you, cyther that one raygne ouer you. And remember thereto, that I am your bones & your fleshe. And his mothers brethzen reuerfed of him in the audience of all the cytezens of Sichem, all these wordes, and moued their hertes to folowe Abimelech, in that they faye how he was their brother. And they gaue him lxx. peeces of filuer out of the temple of Baal Beth, with whiche Abimelech byred Jether & lxx. perfonnes whiche went with him. And they went vnto his fathers house at Ephrah and fawe all his brethzen, the fcozes of Jerobaal, euen, lxx. perfonnes vpon one fcone.

Notwithstandinge yet Joatham the yongest sonne of Jerobaal escaped, for he had hym felfe. And all the cytezens of Sichem gathered together with all the house of Jello, & went that was by Sichem.

And when it was tolde Joatham, he went and rode in the toppes of mount Garzim, and lyfte vp his voyce and called, and faye vnto them: Harken vnto me you cytezens of Sichem, that God maye hearken vnto you. The trees went to annoynt a knyng ouer them, & faye vnto the olyue tree, rayne ouer vs. But the olyue tree faye vnto them: Shoulde I leaue my fatnesse whiche both God and man prayeth in me, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then faye the trees to the fygge tree, come thou and be knyng ouer vs. And the fygge tree answered them, Shoulde I forsake my fweetnes and my good frute, & shoulde go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then faye the trees vnto the vyne, come thou & be knyng ouer vs. And the vyne answered, Shoulde I leaue my wyne that chereth both God & man and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then faye all the trees vnto the thorne bushe: come thou and raygne ouer vs. And the thorn bushe faye vnto the trees: yt it be true that ye will annoynt me knyng ouer you, the come and rest vnder my shadowe, and yt ye wyl not ye shall fe that a fyre shall come oute of the thorne bushe and wafte the fpyre trees of Libanon.

And euen so now, yt ye haue done truly and vncorruptlye to make Abimelech knyng. And yt ye haue dealt well with Jerobaal and his house, and haue done vnto him accordinge to the defcrypynge of his handes, for as moche as my father fought for you, and aduentured his lyfe, and ryd you out of the handes of the Adianites. And ye are ryfen by agayne my fathers house this daye. And haue fayne his chyldren, euen, lxx. perfonnes & with one fcone and haue made Abimelech the sonne of his mayde fceuaunt knyng ouer the cytezens of Sichem, because he is your brother, yt then ye haue dealt dede and truly with Jerobaal & with his house this daye: then reioysse ye in Abimelech, and let him also reioysse in you. But yt you haue not dealt truly, then I pray God a fyre maye come oute of Abimelech and confume the lordes of Sichem and the house of Jello. And that there come a fyre oute of the cytezens of Sichem, and out of the house of Jello and confume Abimelech. And Joatham when he had faye thus, ran away and fled and wente to Beer and dwelt there, for feare of Abimelech his brother. When Abimelech had raygned thye yere, God sent a fpytefull mayre betwene Abimelech and the cytezens of Sichem. And the cytezens of Sichem began to defce Abimelech, and wiffed that the wychednes done to the lxx. fcozes of Jerobaal myghte come on him, and faye the bloude of them vnto Abimelech their brother whiche fawe them, and vnto the othre cytezens of Sichem whiche ayded him in the kyllynge of his brethzen. And the cytezens of Sichem then set men to laye awaye for him in the toppes of the mountaynes and whiles they awayted his commynge they robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

¶ And Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren beinge and gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put theyr confidence in him. And they went oute in to the feldes and gathered in theyr grapes and troade them, and made wyne: and went in to the house of their god, and dyd eat and drynke and cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Obed sayd: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? for we wylde serue him, is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and Zebul is his officer? serue luche as come of Heinoz the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue hym? wolde God this people were vnder my hande then I wolde put downe Abimelech. And one saye vnto Abimelech, make thyne hoise greater and ges out. And when Zebul the ruler of the cite berde the wordes of Gaal the son of Obed, he was wroth and sent messengers vnto Abimelech pynciper, sayenge: Beholde Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde they set the cite agaynst the. Now therfore arise by nyght both thou and all the people that is with the and lye in wayes in the feldes. And ryle early in the morninge as lone as the sonne is vp, & come vpon the cite. And when he and the people that is with him come forth agaynst the, do to him what thyne handes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose vp, and all the people with him, by nyght. And they layde awaye to the cite in fourre compaignes. And Gaal the son of Obed went out and stode in the entere of the gate of the cite. And Abimelech rose vp, and the folke that were with him, frome lyeenge awaye. Now when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to Zebul: Beholde, there come people downe frome the toppes of the mountaynes. And Zebul sayde vnto him: the shadowe of the hylls seme men vnto the, and so thou arte deceyued. And Gaal answered agayn and sayd: Se, there come folke downe by the myddle of the lande and an other compaigne come a longe by the Wytchoke. Then sayde Zebul vnto him: Where is now thy mouth that sayde, what felow is Abimelech that we shulde serue him? These are the people that thou so despystedest. Go out now and fight with them. And Gaal went forth before the criers of Sichem, and fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him so that he fled before him, and many were ouerthrowen and slayne, euen vntill they came vnto the entere of the gate. And then Abimelech wente and dwelt at Arumah. And then Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, and wolde not suffer them to dwell in Sichem.

¶ And on the morrowe the people were forth in the feldes. And it was tolde Abimelech. And he take his people & diuided them into thre compaignes, and laye awaye in the feldes. And when he sawe that the people were come out of the cite, he ran vpon them and laye vpon them.

¶ And Abimelech & the compaignes that were with him, ran and stode in the entere of the gate of the cite. And the two other compaignes ran vpon all the people that were in the feldes and slue them. And then Abimelech fought agaynst the cite all that daye, & toke it, and slawe the people that was therein, and destroyed the cite & sowde salt in the place. And when all the men of the towne of Sichem berde that, they entered in to a stronge holde of the house of their god Baal Berith, wher they made a cenneciaunt to him and the place had Berithes name and was strongly fensed.

¶ And when it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of the towne of Sichem, were gathered together, he gat him to mount Zebulon, bothe he and all that were with him, a fowle aces with him and cut downe an arme of a tree, and toke it by a put it on his shoulder, and sayde vnto the folke that were with him, what so euer ye se me do: speke your selues and do lyche wyse. And all the people cut downe also euery man a bough, and folowed Abimelech, and put them into the holde, and set the holde a fyre vpon them: so that all the men of the towne of Sichem were slayne, about a thousand personnes what of men and women.

¶ Then went Abimelech to Thebes and beseged it, and toke it. But there was a strong towne in the myddes of the cite, and thither ran all the men and women, and all the criers of the cite, and shut it to them, and got them vpon the toppes of the towne, and stode vpon the battymentes. Then came Abimelech vnto the towne and fought agaynst it, & went harde vnto the entere of the gate, to set it on fire. But a woman cast a pece of a mill stone vpo his heed and al to brake his brayne panne.

¶ Then Abimelech called hastely vnto the pounce man that bare his harners, and sayd vnto him: drawe thy swerde and sle me, that men saye not of me, a woman slewe him. And his lad thrust him thorow and he dyed.

¶ And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery man vnto his owne house. And thus all the wyldehednes of Abimelech which he dyd vnto his father, in slayinge his lxx. brethren, & thereto all the wyldehednes of the men of Sichem, god dyd bynge vpon their hecches: And vpon them came the curse of Joathan the sonne of Jerobaal.

¶ Thola and Jai Judges of Israel. Jai was north and after cryeth on God for reuincion.

CAPL. XI.

¶ After Abimelech, arose to defende Israel one Thola, the sonne of Phuaib, the sonne of Dobo, a man of Issachar, wher he dwelt in Samir, in mount Ephraim, wher iudged Israel. xiiij. yere, and then dyed and was buryed in Samir. And after him arose Jai a Galaabite, who iudged Israel. xij. yere.

¶ And he had thre sonnes that rode on thre coltes, and hadde thre cities for the, which are called the townes of Jair vnto this daye, and are in the lande of Galaad. And Jai dyed, & was buryed in Ramon.

¶ And the children of Israel wrought wickednesse yet agayne, in the syght of the Lorde and serued Baalim and Asarothe, and the goddes of Siria, and the goddes of Sidon, the goddes of Moab, the goddes of the children of Ammō, and the goddes of the Philistines, & forsoke the Lorde and serued him not, wherfore the Lorde was wroth with Israel, and gaue them vp into the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the children of Ammō: whiche pilled and oppressed & chylidym of Israel in those dayes. xviij. yere, all that were on thother syde Jordan in the land of the Amorites in Galaad. Mozerouer & children of Ammō went ouer Jordan to fyghe agaynst Iuda, Ben Amin, and the house of Ephraim: so that Israel was sore encombyed.

¶ Then the children of Israel, cryed vnto the Lorde, sayenge: We haue synned agaynst thee for we haue forsaken our owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And the Lorde sayde vnto the children of Israel: dyd not the Egyptians, the Amorites, the children of Ammō, the Philistines, the Snonites, the Amalekites, and the Moabites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me, and I deliuered you forth of their handes. And this notwithstandinge ye haue forsaken me, and serue strange goddes, wherfore I will deliue you no more. But go and crye vnto the goddes which ye haue chosen, and let them deliue you in the tyme of your affliction. But the children of Israel sayde vnto the Lorde we haue synned: do thou vnto vs whatsoeuer please the, and deliue vs onely at this tyme. And they put awaye the strange goddes fro them, and serued the Lorde. And he was so redoubtfull to the mylcepe of Israel.

¶ Then the children of Ammō assembled & pitched in Galaad. And the children of Israel gathered them together and pitched in Jephthah. And the company of the Lordes of Galaad sayde one to an other, who so euer will begynne the battel agaynst the children of Ammō, walbe heed ouer all the inhabitants of Galaad.

¶ Jephthah the sonne of a harlot deliuereth Israel frome the Ammonites after they asked forgyuence, of the house of Jephthah.

CAPL. XI.

¶ And there was one Jephthah a Galaabite, a stronge man, who was the son of an harlot: Now he it Galaad begat Jephthah. But Galaades wyfe bare him sonnes, which wher they were come to age, thrust out Jephthah, & sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not inheret in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a strange woman. Then Jephthah fled frome his brethren and dwelt in the lande of Tob. And ylle people and robbers assembled them selues to Jephthah, and wet out with him. But it chaunced in processe of tyme, that the childre of Ammō made warre agaynst Israel, then the elders of Galaad wet and set Jephthah out of the lande of Tob, & sayde vnto him: come and be our capitayne, & let vs fight with the children of Ammō. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad.

¶ Dyd not ye hate me, and chased me out of my fathers house? howe happeneth it then that you come vnto me now in tyme of youre tribulation? And the elders of Galaad answered Jephthah. Therfore we turne agayne to the now, that thou go with vs, and fighte agaynst the children of Ammō, and be our hed ouer all the inhabitants of Galaad. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad: Ye bynge me home agayne, to fight with the children of Ammō, then if the Lorde deliue them before me, I shalbe your heed. And the elders of Galaad sayde to Jephthah, the Lorde that heareth these wordes be wytnesse betwene vs, if we be not accordyng to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went with the elders of Galaad. And the people made him heed and ruler ouer them. And Jephthah rehered all his wordes before the Lorde, in Arumah.

¶ And then they went a longe thorow the wylde-nesse, and compassed the lande of Edom, & the lande of Moab, and came a longe by the East syde of the lande of Moab, and pitched their tentes on thother syde the ryuer of Arnon, and came not within the cootes of the Moabites: for Arnon was their furthest bozder. And then Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and kynge of Heshbon, and sayd vnto him: Let vs haue passage thorow thy lande vnto our countrey. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thorow his cootes: but gathered all his people together & pitched in Iasah, and fought with Israel. But the Lorde God of Israel deliuered Sehon and all his folke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote them, and conquered all the lande of the Amorites, the inhabitauntes of the sayde confrey. And they conquered all the costes of the Amontes, frome Arad vnto Jabok, & fro the wyldernes vnto Jorab. So now forasmuche as the Loyde God of Israel hath caste out the Amoytes before his people, wyldest thou enioye the lande? Maye, but what people? Lamos thy God dyspucty out that lande pefelle thou. But what locuer nations the Loyde oure God chafeth oute, & laude ougre me to enioye. And therto, are thou better then Balack the sonne of Zephor kynge of Moab? or canst thou shewe vs, that he dyd serue with Israel, or fyghte agaynst them? all the wyyle Israel dwelt in Heshon and her towynes, and in Aroer and her towynes and in all the cyties that be a longe by the costes of Arnon thre hundred yeres? why dydest thou not recouer them in al that space? wherfoze I haue not offended agaynst the, but thou wast me wronge, to warre vpon me.

The Loyde therfore be iudge this dape, betwene the chyldren of Israel, and the chyldren of Ammon. Acuertheles the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon darkened not vnto the wordes of Iephthah which he sent him.

Then the spyrte of the Loyde came vpon Iephthah. And he passed oure Galaad & Manasses, and came to Masphah, that lyeth in Salaad, and thence vnto the chyldren of Ammon. And Iephthah bowed a bowe vnto the Loyde, and sayde: Yf thou wylt deliuer the chyldren of Ammon into my handes, then that thinge that cometh out of the wyres of my house agaynst me, wher I come home in pear, frome the chyldren of Ammon, shalbe the Loydes, and I wyl offer it vp for a burnt offryng. And so Iephthah went vnto the chyldren of Ammon to fight with them. And the Loyde deliuered them into his handes. And he smote them frome Aroer vnto Menith, twenty cyles. And so forth to the playne of the bynepardes, and made an excedyng great slaughter. And thus the chyldren of Ammon were brought vnder, before the chyldren of Israel.

Then Iephthah came to Masphah vnto his house. And beholde his daughter came out agaynst him, with tymberelles and daunces, whiche was his onely childe: so that besyde her, he had neyther sonne nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes & sayd: Alas my daughter, thou hast made me soupe and art one of them that vexe me: for I haue opened my mouth vnto the Loyde, and can not go backe. And she sayde vnto him: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto the Loyde, then do with me accordyng to that proceded out of thy mouth, for as moche as the Loyde hath aduenged the of thynne enemyes & chyldren of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father, do this moche for me: let me alone for the space of two monethes, that I maye goe downe to the mountaynes, and bewaile my virginite with my felowes. And he sayd: go, and so he sent her awaye for two monethes. And she went with her companions and lamented her maydenhed vpon the mountaynes. And after the two monethes, she turned a-gayne vnto her father, which dyd w her accordyng to his vow which he had bowed, & so he knewe no man. And it became a custome to Israel yere by yere, that the daughters of Israel shoulde goo, and lamente the daughter of Iephthah, the Galaadite, foure dayes in a yere.

The battayle of Iephthah agaynst Ephraim. After the deeth of Iephthah succeeded Elon. After Elon Abdon.

CAPL XII

And the men of Ephraim made an insurrection, and went Northwarde, & sayd vnto Iephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fight with the chyldren of Ammon, & dydest not call vs to goo with the? we wyl therfore burne thyn house vpon the, with fire. And Iephthah sayde vnto them: I and my people were at great wyse with the chyldren of Ammon. And I called you to haue ayded me, but ye wolde not come. And when I saw that ye deliuered me not, I put my lyfe in my handes, and wente vpon the chyldren of Ammon. And the Loyde deliuered them into my handes. Wherfoze then are ye come vpon me to fyghte with me?

And Iephthah gathered together all the men of Galaad, and fought with the Ephraimites. And the men of Galaad smote the Ephraimites because they sayde: Ye Galaadites are but runagates of Ephraim amonges the Ephraimites and the Manassites. Wherfoze the men of Galaad toke the passages of Jordan wher the Ephraimites shoulde come homeward. And when those Ephraimites that were escaped, sayd let vs go ouer: then the men of Galaad sayd vnto them: Ye are Ephraimites, and they sayd: naye. Then the other answered: When saye Shibolet. And they sayde Shibolet, & could not so pronounce, wherupon the other toke them and slew them at the passages of Jordan. And there were ouerthowen at that tyme of the Ephraimites, xij. thousand. And when Iephthah had iudged Israel fyre yere, he dyed, and was buried in one of the cyties of Galaad. After this man, tugged Israel out Abdon of Bethlehem, who had threty sonnes & threty daughters, and sent also his threty daughters out to marriage, and toke threty other in, for his sonnes. And when Abdon had iudged Israel. vi. yeres he dyed, & was buried at Bethlehem.

And after him, Elon a Zabulonite iudged Israel ten yeres, and he dyed and was buried in Aialon, in the countrey of Zabulon.

And after him, Abdon the sonne of Hellei, a Pharaithonite iudged Israel. And he hadde fourety sonnes, and threty newewes, that rode on thretye and ten alle coltres. And wher Abdon the sonne of Hellei the Pharaithonite hadde iudged Israel eght yere, he dyed, and was buried in Pharithon, the lande of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amaithites.

CAPL XIII

And the chyldren of Israel beganne agayne to do wickednesse in the sight of the Loyde. And the Loyde deliuered them into the handes of the Philistines. xi. yere. And there was a man in Zorah of the byrthe of the Danites, named Manoah, whose wyfe was barre and bare not. And the angell of the Loyde appeared vnto his wyfe, and sayd vnto her: Beholde, thou art barren and bearest not: But thou shalt conceue and beare a sonne. And now beware, and dyspneke no wyne, ne stronge drynke, neyther eate any vncleane thinge: for so, thou shalt conceue, and beare a sonne. And there maye no caler of wyres come on his heed: for the childe shal be a Nazare vnto God, euen from the tyme of his byrth. And he shall begyn to deliuer Israel out of the handes of the Philistines. The wyfe went and tolde her husbande, saying: A man of God came vnto me, and the sacryon of hym was lyke the sacryon of an aungell of God excedyng fearefull. But I asked him not whence he was, neyther tolde he me his name. And he sayde vnto me: Beholde, thou shalt be with childe and beare a sonne, & now dyspneke no wyne nor stronge drynke, neyther eate any vncleane thinge: for the childe shal be an absterner to God euen from his birth to the dape of his deach.

Then Manoah made intercession to the Loyde, and sayde: I praye the (my Loyde) let the ma of God which thou sendest come ones more vnto vs, and teache vs what we shall do vnto the childe, wher he is boine. And God brede the voyce of Manoah, and the aungell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as she sat in the felde: But Manoah her husband was not with her. Then the wyfe made haste, and ran and shewed her husband and sayd to him: Beholde, the man hath appeared vnto me, that came the other dape vnto me.

Then Manoah arose, and wente after his wyfe and came to the man and sayd vnto him: Art thou the man that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde, yea. Then Manoah sayd, now when thy worde is come to passe: what shall be the maner of the childe, and what shall he do? And the aungell of the Loyde sayde vnto Manoah: thy wyfe must absterne from al that I sayde vnto her: she maye eate of no thinge that cometh of the vyne tree, ne drynke wyne or stronge drynke, nor eate any vncleane thinge: but must obserue all that I bad her. Then sayde Manoah vnto the aungell of the Loyde: Graunt vs to tary tyll we haue made thy a byd, and haue set it before the. And the aungell of the Loyde sayde vnto Manoah: thought thou make me abyde I will not eate of thy meat. And mo: couer yf thou wilt prepare a burnt offryng, that thou must offer vnto the Loyde. For Manoah wyl not that it was an aungell of the Loyde. And Manoah sayde vnto the aungell of the Loyde: What is thy name, that when thy sayenge is come to passe, we maye do the some worshipp? And the aungell of the Loyde sayd vnto him: why asked thou after my name? when it is manifeste.

And Manoah toke a kybbe with a meat-offryng, and offered it vpon a rocke vnto the Loyde which worketh wonders, Manoah & his wyfe looked vpon. And when the flame came vp out of the aultare, the aungell of the Loyde ascended vp in the flame of the aultare. And Manoah and his wyfe looked thereon, and fell flat on their faces vnto the ground: But the aungell of the Loyde dyd no more appeare vnto Manoah and his wyfe. And then Manoah knewe that it was anungell of the Loyde: and sayde vnto his wyfe: We shal surely dye because we haue sent God. But his wyfe said vnto him: Yf the Loyde wolde kyll vs, he wolde not haue receyued a burnt offryng and a meat offryng of our handes, neyther wolde he haue shewed vs al these thinges, nor wold haue tolde vs as he hath of thinges to come. And the wyfe bare a sonne, & called his name Samson. And the lad grew, and the Loyde blessed him. And the spyrte of the Loyde bega to be with the house of Dan, betwene Zorah and Elthael.

The maryage of Samson. He killeth a Lyon. He propoundeth a riddle. He killeth thretye men. His wife forsaketh him, and taketh an other.

CAPL XIII

Samson went downe to Thamnath, and sawe a woman in Thamnath of the daughters of the Philistines, and came & tolde his father and mother, and sayd: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the daughters of the Philistines. And now gyue her me to wyfe. Then his father and mother sayde vnto him, is there neuer a woman of the daughters of thy bretheren, amonge all my people: but that thou must go and set a wyfe of the vncircumcised Philistines? And Samson sayde vnto his father, gyue me this woman, for we please me well. Now his father & mother wyl not that it was the Loydes wyshynge, & that he sought an occasion vpon the Philistines, which at that tyme ragged ouer Israel. The wyfe wente Samson, and his father and mother, downe to Thamnath. So when they came to the bynepardes of Thamnath: Beholde, a younge Lyon royd vpon him. And the spyrte of the Loyde came vpon Samson. And he tare him, as a man wolde rent a kyb, and yet had nothinge in his hande. Neuerthelesse he told not his father and mother what he had done, but went downe and talked with the woman whiche seemed beautiful in the syght of Samson.

And within thort space after, as he repayed thither agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se the carhaffe of the Lyon. And beholde, there was a swarme of bees in the carhaffe of the Lyon, and honny: & he

he took of the honey in his handes, and went eatpage, and came to his father and mother, and gaue them of the same. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honey forth of the carcasse of the Lyon. And when his father was come vnto the woman: Samson made there a feast, for so bled the young men to do. And when her frendes saw him, they broughte thier companyons to beare him compaign. And Samson sayde vnto them: I wyl put forth a riddle vnto you. And if ye can declare it within seven dayes of the feaste and fynde it oute, I wyl geue you thier wertes and thier chaunge of garmentes. But if ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye geue me thier wertes and thier chaunge of garmentes. And they answered him, put forth thy riddle and let vs heare it. And he sayde vnto them. Oute of the eater came meate: and out of the strong came sweetnesse. And they could not in thie dayes expounde the riddle. So when the seventh day was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe. Flatter thine husbnde, that he may declare vs the riddle, or elles we wyl burne the and thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye called vs to make vs beggers? Then Samsons wyfe wept vnto him and sayd, it is not he but that thou hated me and louest me not, for he thou had purposed a riddle vnto the children of my folke and wylt not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father ne yet my mother, and wylde I tell it the? And she wepte vnto him seven dayes, while the feaste lasted. So the seventh daye he tolde her, because she sape so for e vpon him. And she agayn tolde it to the children of her folke. And then the men of the cite sayde vnto him the seventh daye before the sonne went downe. What is sweeter then honey, and what is stronger then a Lyon? the sayd he vnto them: If ye had not plowed w my beere, ye had not founde out my riddle. Then the spytte of the Lorde came vpon him. And he went towne to Ascalon, and slew xxx men of them, and dispoiled theyn, and gaue thier garmentes vnto them which expounded the riddle. And he was ioyful, and wente vnto his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was giuen in marriage to one of his companyons that accompanied him.

CAPL. XV.

But it chaunced with him a while after, in the tyme of whete beuest, that Samson visited his wyfe with a hynde. And when he thought to haue gone in vnto his wyfe into the chamber, her father wolde not suffer him to go in: But sayd: I thought thou haddest hated her, and therefore gaue I her to one of thy companyons. Now be it, her younger sister is fairer then she. Take her in stede of the other. Then sayde Samson vnto theyn:

Now I am blamelesse concerninge the Philistines, though I too theyn displeasures. And Samson went forth and caught thie hundred foxes, and toke fyrebrandes, & fastened taylor to taylor, and put a fyre brande in the myddes betwene two raptles. And he set the fyre brandes on fyre, and put them into the come of the Philistines, & burnt vnto the reped corne, and also the standinge, with bynes and olyues. Then the Philistines asked, who hadde done that dede. And it was tolde them that Samson the sonne in lawe of the Shammar, because he had beueued him of his wyfe & giuen her to one of his companyons. And the Philistines came and burnt bothe her and her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: Would ye to so? I wyl surely be auenged of you, & then I wyl cease. And he smote them legges & thyrgh with a myghty plage. And then he went and dwelt in the toppe of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vnto him and pitched against Iuda and laye in Lehi. And the men of Iuda sayde. Why are ye come against us? And they answered to bynde Samson are we come, even to wnto him, as he hath wnto us. Then the thousande men of Iuda went vnto the toppe of the rocke Etam, and sayd to Samson: Wottest thou not, that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore thest thou handled vs thus? And he answered th, as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

Then sayde they vnto him, we are cometo bynde the, and to deliuer the into the handes of the Philistines. And Samson sayde vnto them: Swere vnto me, that ye shall not hurt me four felous. And they sayde, we will not hurt the, save onely bynde the, and deliuer the vnto theire handes: But we will not kyll the. And so they bounde him with two newe cordes and brought him downe from Etam. And when he came to Lehi, the Philistines shewed against him. And the spytte of the Lorde came vpon him, and the cordes that were vnto his armes, became as flaxe that was burnt w fire, and the bandes loosed from his handes. And he founde a Jaw bone of a rotten ass, & put forth his hande and caught it, and slew a thousande men therewith. And Samson sayd with the Jawe of an ass, haue I put them backe: with the Jawe of an ass haue I slayn a thousande men. And when he had left byrpyng, he cast away the Jaw out of his hid and called the place Ramath Lehi. But he was soze a thirde, and called on the Lorde, & sayde. Thou Lorde hast giuen this great victory, thou hast the hande of thy seruant. And now I must dye for this, and fall into the handes of the vncircumcised. But God brake a great rocke that was in the Jawe, and there came water forth of it. And when he had byrken, his spytte came agayne, and he was refreshed, wherfore the name thereof was called, & the well of the caller on, which is in Lehi, vnto this daye. And he iudged Israel in the dayes of the Philistines twenty yeres.

Samson

Samson lyeth vpon the gates of Gaza and carpyeth them vnto the mountayne. He was betrayed by Dalilah and made blynde. He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines and dyeth with them.

CAPL.

XVI.

Then went Samson to Gaza, and sawe there an harlot & lay w her. And it was tolde the Sazices, that Samson was come thither. And they went about, and layd awate for him all nyght in the gate of the cite, and were still abydyng for him all the nyght sayng: tarpe till the mornynge that he be here, and then let vs kyll hym as he cometh forth of the cite. And Samson toke his rest till midnight, and arose at mydnight and toke the doores of the gate of the cite, and the two fyre postes, and rent them of, barres and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and carped them vnto the toppe of an hill that lyeth befoze Hebron.

And after that, he loued a woman, vpon the river of Sorek, called Dalilah, vnto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her. Flatter him and se wherin his great strength lyeth, and by what meanes we may haue power ouer him, that we may bynde him and byrpyng hym vnto, and ethe of vs shall geue the. hundred silverlinges.

And Dalilah sayde to Samson. Oh, tel me wher thy great strength lyeth, and what it is wherwith men myght bynde the and beate the. And Samson sayde vnto her. If men bounde me, with seven grene withthes, that were neuer dyed, I wylde be weak, and as an other man. And the Lordes of the Philistines brought her seven withthes that were yet grene and neuer dyed, and she bound him with them. And withstandinge she had men lyenge in wayte with her in the chambre. And she sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he brake the cordes as a thebe of towne breaketh, when it selet fyre. And so it was not knowne wherin his strength laye.

Then sayde Dalilah to Samson: Se, thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes. Now yet tell me I praye the, wherwith thou myghtest be bounde. And he sayde: If I were bounde with newe ropes, that neuer were occupied, then wylde I be weak, and as an other man. And Dalilah toke newe ropes and bounde him therewith, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were they awate in the chamber, and he brake them frome of his armes, as they hadde bene but a thirde. And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson, brybeto thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewith men may bynde the. And he sayde vnto her. If thou bynde seven lockes of my heed with an heare lace and fasten them with a nagle, I wylde be weak. And Dalilah dyd so, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. But he awaked out of his slepe, & plucked and went away with the nagle that was in the platfynge, and with the heare lace.

Then she sayde vnto him: Powe canst thou saue thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me: for thou hast mocked me this thre tymes, and haste not tolde wherewith thy chiefe strength lyeth. And as she lay vpon him with her wordes continuallye berynge of him, his soule was encombred euen vnto the deathe.

And he tolde her all his herte, and sayde vnto her: there neuer came caler nor wertes vpon myne heed, for I haue bene a Nazare to God euen frome my mothers wombe. If myne heare were cut of, my strength wylde go fro me, and I wylde become, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalilah sawe he had vttered vnto her all his herte, she sent for the Philistines, sayng: come by yet this ones, for he hath shewed me all his herte.

Then the lordes of the Philistines came & brought the money in their handes. And she made hym slepe vpon her lappe, and sente for a barbar, & cut of the seven lockes of his heed and began to bere him, and to thynk him fro her, for by and by his strength was gone from him. And she sayde, the Philistines vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and thought to go out as at other tymes befoze & shake him selfe, and wylde not that the Lorde was departed frome him. Then the Philistines toke him and put out his eyen, & brought him towne to Gaza, and bounde him with fetters. And he was made to grynde in the prison house, all be it the beare of his heed began to growe agayne after that he was shorne. The lordes of the Philistines gathered them together, to offer a solemne offering vnto Daggon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayde our God hath betaken Samson our enemy into our handes. And when the people sawe him, they magnified theire God: for they sayd, our god hath giuen into our handes our enemy, which destroyed our countrey and slew many of vs. And when their hertes were merry, they sayde: sende for Samson and let him playe befoze vs. So they let Samson oute of the prisonhouse, who played befoze them, & they set him betwene the pylers. And Samson sayde vnto the ladde that led him by the hande: let me that I may touche the pylers that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to the. And the house was ful furnished with men and women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines, and vpon the rouse there were about thie thousand men and women, that behelde how Samson played.

Then Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde my Lorde almyghty thinke on me, and restore me myne olde strength, at this tyme O God, that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my two eyen. And Samson caught the two myddell pylers on which the house stood, the one in his ryght hande, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: my lyfe perishe with the Philistines, and bowed theyn with myght. And the house fell vpon the lordes, & vnto all the people that were therein. And so the deed which he slew at his deeth, was more then they which he slew in his life. And then his brethren & all the house of his father came towne, & toke him vp, & brought, and buryed him, betwene Zarah and Elphail, in the buryenge place of Sanoah his father. And he iudged Israel twenty yeres.

Of Michas whose mother made him an Idol of silver. At the yonge pte of the image of Leui of Bethlehem.

XVII.

There was a man in mount Ephraim, named Michas, which sayde unto his mother: the .x. hundred silverlings that were taken from me, about which thou cursedst in myne eares: Beholde the silver is with me, for I take it awaye. Then sayd his mother, blessed be thou my son in the Lorde. And so he rejoyced .x. hundred silverlings to his mother agayne. And his mother sayde: I bowed the silver unto the Lorde that my sonne shoulde take it, of myne hande: to make a grauen Image and an Image of metall. Nowe therefore I rejoyce it the agayne. And he rejoyced the money agayne unto his mother.

Then his mother took two hundred silverlings and put them to a goldsmith, to make the image of a grauen image and a molten image, which remayned in the house of Michas, who also made a chapel of gods, and made an Ephod and ymages, and filled the hand of one of his sonnes which became his priest. For in those dayes there was no hyge in Israel, but every man dyd as he thought best.

And there was also an other a yonge man of Bethlehem Juda, amonges the hyndes of Juda: and he was a Leuite and sojourned there. And the yonge man departed out of the cytie of Bethlehem Juda, to go dwell where myght be most commodious for him. And he came to mount Ephraim, and to the house of Michas as he sojourned. And Michas sayde unto him, Whence comest thou? and the Leuite answered him: I am of Bethlehem Juda and go to dwell where I maye fynde a moode mete place. And Michas sayde unto him: dwell with me, and be unto me a father and a priest. And I will geue the ten silverlings by yere and woble apparell and meat and drynke.

So the Leuite went and dwelled with the man, and was unto him as dere as one of his owne sonnes. And Michas spilled the hande of the Leuite, and the yonge man became his priest, and conspued in his house, and sayde now I am sure that the Lorde will be good unto me, for I have a Leuite to my priest.

The children of Dan take the gaddes a the priest of Michas awaye. They destroye Lais, and buyle it agayne, and name it Dan.

Dan.

Isaiah. x. d.

In those dayes there was no hyge in Israel. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan sought them an inheritaunce to dwell in, for till that tyme there fell none inheritaunce unto them amonges the tribe of Israel. And the children of Dan sent forth of their hyndes syne men of aduise, out of their cootes even out of Zarah and Elphail, to breke lande and seache it out, and sayde unto the go and seache out the lande. And they came to mount Ephraim, unto the house of Michas and lodged there. And when they were come unto his house, they knewe the voyce of the yonge man the Leuite, whose lodging they dyed, and sayde unto him: Who brought the hyther? what maketh thou in this place? wher art thou come hyther? And he sayd unto the, thus and thus dealeth Michas with me, and hath hyed me to be his priest. And they sayd unto him: Aske of God we praye the, that we maye knowe whether the waye we goe, shalbe prosperous, & whether the thinge shall take effect. And the priest sayde unto them: go in pray, the Lorde regardeth your wayes the iourney whiche ye go.

Then the syne men departed and came to Lais, and sawe the people there dwelling carelesse, and after the maner of the Sidon, idle, and without callinge of paralles, & that no man made any trouble in the lande of Dan, nor any dominion, and howe they were sent from the Sidon and had no medlyng with any nation. And they came unto their bythel to Zarah and Elphail. And their bythel sayde unto them: what thinges bring you?

And they sayde, aye and les us goe unto them, & so we have sene the lande, and it is verie good. Hasten you therefore, and be not slouthfull to departe, and to come & conque the lande: ye shall come unto a people that is seth no parles, and unto a large country: for God hath geue into your handes a place wher is no lacke of any thinge in the worlde.

Then departed thence of the hyndes of the Danites, out of Zarah and Elphail. by dyed men appointed by habillmentes of warre. And they went and pitched in Kariatth Jarim in Juda. Wherfore the place is called Kariatth Jarim Dan unto this daye, which is on a backe syde of Kariatth Jarim. So they wente thence unto mount Ephraim, and came to Michas house. Then answered the syne men that went to clype out the countrey of Lais, and sayde unto their bythel: wot ye not that there is in these houses an Ephod and Images, and a grauen Image, and a molten Image? Nowe therefore conspue, what ye have to do.

And they turned thitherward and came to the house of the yonge man the Leuite in the house of Michas, and salued him pleasantly. And the .vi. hundred men wel fenced with weapons of warre which were of the children of Dan, stode in the entree of the gate. And the syne men that went to clype out the land went in thither and toke the herued Image, the Ephod, and the molten Image. And the priest stode in the entree of the gate with the five hundred men, that were armed with battayle, while the other went to Michas house, and set the herued Image, the Ephod the herued Image, and the Image of metall. Then sayde the priest unto them: what doe ye? and they answered him, kepe silence, & put thyne hande upon thy mouth, & come come with us, and be unto us a father and a priest, whether is it better for the to be a priest unto the house of one man, or to be priest unto a tribe of hyndes in Israel? And the priest was glad and toke the Ephod and the Images, and the grauen Image, and wente with the people. And they turned and departed, & put the children, the cattell and their collype thinges before them.

When they were a good waye from the house of Michas, the men that were in the houses that were by Michas house, made an outcrye, and pursued after the children of Dan and called unto them. And they turned their faces, and sayde unto Michas, what ayleth the, that thou maketh this outcrye? And he sayde, ye have taken awaye my goddes which I make and also the priest, and go your wayes with them: And what have I more, howe then saye ye unto me, what ayleth the? And the children of Dan sayde unto him, let not thy voyce be heard amonges us, lest angry fellows run upon the, and thou lose thy life, with the lyes of all thyne household also. And so the children of Dan toke their wayes. And when Michas sawe they were to strong for him, he returned unto his house agayne. And they toke the thinges which Michas had made, and the priest which he had, and went unto Lais, even unto a people that were at rest and without mynstrell, and smote them in the edge of the swerde, & burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because it was farre frome Sidon, and they had none allies with any other nacion. And the cytie stode in the battayle that lyeth by Bethzebo. And they buyt the cytie and dwelt therein.

And called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father which was sonne unto Israel. Howe be it in dede the name of the cytie was Lais at the beginninge.

And the children of Dan set them by the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and his sonnes were the priestes unto the tribe of the Danites, till they were carryd awaye out of the lande by the Philistines. And they set them by the herued Image which Michas made, all the while that the house of God was in Siloh. In those dayes was no hyge in Israel.

CAPL

XIX.

And a certain Leuite dwelling on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubine out of Bethlehem Juda: which concubine played the hoze in his house and went awaye frome him, unto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there continued foure monethes. And her husband arose and went after her, to speake friendly wth her and to bringe her home agayne, and his ladde with him & a couple of asses. And she brought him unto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe him, he rejoyced of his comminge. And the Leuite abode wth his father in lawe the dayes and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.

The fourth daye the yonge man arose early in the morning, and wolde have departed. But the damoselles father sayd unto his son in lawe, comferte thyne herte with a morsell of bread, and then goe your waye. And they sat to wone and dyd eate and drynke bothe of them together. Then sayde the damoselles father unto the man, goo to, I praye the and tary all nyght and let thyne herte be mery. Howe be it the man stode by to departe: but his father in lawe compelled him to tume agayne and to tary all nyght there. And he arose by early the fyth daye to departe. Then sayde the damoselles father, comferte thyne herte: and so made him tarye till after myddaye: & they dyd eate bothe of them together.

And then the mē arose to departe with his wyfe and his ladde. But his father in lawe the damoselles father sayde unto him, behold the daye goeth faste awaye and draweth towards nyghte, tary all nyghte: at least tarye this daye here, and let thyne herte be mery.

And to morowe get you early on your waye and get to the tent. Neuthelesse the man wolde not tary, but arose and departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, which is Ierusalem and his two asses laden, and his concubine, and his lad with him. And when they were fast by Jebus, the daye was sore spent and the yonge man sayde unto his master, come I praye the and let us tume into this cytie of Jebus and lodge all nyght there. But his master sayde unto him, we will not tume into a straunge cytie that are not of the children of Israel: we will go forth to Gabaah, and we shall come to one place or other, and shall lodge all nyghte in Gabaah or in Ramah.

And they went forth on their iourney, and the Sonne wince to wne upon them when they were fast by Gabaah which is in Beniamin. So they turned thitherward to go and lodge all nyght in Gabaah. And when they came in they sat them to wne in a strete of the cytie, for no man wolde take them in, to lodge. But beholde, there came an olde man frome his worke, out of the feldes at even which was also of mount Ephraim, and but a stranger in Gabaah, for the men of the place, were of the children of Jemini. And when he had life by his eyen, and sawe a wayefaringe man in the stretes of the cytie, he sayd: whether goest thou? And whence comest thou? And the other answered him, we come frome Bethlehem Juda towards the syde of mount Ephraim: frome thence am I, and went to Bethlehem Juda, and go now to the house of God. But there is no man that recepueth me to house: yet I have strawe and prouender for our asses and byed and wyne for me and thy handmayd and thy lad that are with thy seruante, and lacke nothinge but lodgynge.

The olde man sayde, praye with the, all that thou lackest shall thou fynde with me: A. g. only

F only remayne not in y^e streets all nyght, and he brought him into his house, and gave sod-der unto his asses. And they washed theyr feet, and dyd eate and drinke. And as they were makinge good chere, the men of the cy-tye whiche were wyched, let the house rounde aboute, and thurst at the doze, and spake to the good man of the house, sayunge: byngge forth the man that came in to thyne house, that we maye playe bugger with him.

Gen. xix. b

But the man of the house went out to the, and sayde vnto them: Oh, naye my brethren do not so wychedly, for this man is come into myne house: to not this abomination. Beholde, my daughter a mayten and this ma^s concubyne, them I will byngge out vnto you, and thow them downe, and take your plea-sure of them, but vnto this man, do not this folge against nature, I beseeche you. But the men wolde not hearken to him. Neuerthelesse the man toke his concubyne and brought her forth vnto them, and they had to do with her and enterated her shamefully, all the nyght euen vnto the morninge. And when the daye began to sprynge, they let her go.

¶ And then came the woman in the dawninge of the daye, and fell downe at the doze of the mans house, where her Loze was. And her Loze arose vp in the morninge and opened the dozes of the house, and came forth to go his waye. And beholde, his concubyne laye a- lone before the doze of the house, & her hand vpon the threshold. And he sayde vnto her: aple and let vs be goynge. But she answered not. When he toke her vp vpon an asse & rode vp, and gat him vnto his owne home. And when he was come vnto his house, he toke a chyllyng knyfe, and caught his concubyne & dyuided her thowme the bones into twelue peces, and sent her into all quarters of Israel. And all that sawe it sayd: there was no suche dede done o^r sene (sythens the chyldren of Israell came out of Egypte vnto this daye, consi-der the matter, geue counsell and save pouce aduyses.

Then all the chyldren of Israel wente out, and there gathered a company to- gether, as it hadde ben but one man, e- uen from Dan to Bersaba, and oute of the lande of Galaad, vnto the lande of Ma- phah: and there rode folke oute of all quar- ters of all the trybes of Israel in the assem- ble of the people of God, four hundred thou- sande foot men that dyete swerdes. And the chyldren of Benjamin herde that the chy- ldren of Israel were gone vp to Maphah. Then sayd the chyldren of Israel, tell vs howe this wickednesse happened. And the Leuite the slayne womans husbnde answered and sayd: I came in to Sabaah in Benjamin to my concubyne to lodge all nyght. And the cy- tizens of Sabaah arose against me, and brek-

the house round about me by nyght, & thought to haue slayne me: but they caught my con- cubine and forced her, that she dyed. Wherefore I toke my concubine and cut her in peces, and sent her thowme out all the landes of the cy- tizens of Israel. For they haue done ab- omination and folly in Israel. Beholde, ye are all chyldren of Israel. Consydre therfore, and geue your aduys in the case. When all the people arose, as it had bene one man, say- enge: there shall not one of vs go to his tent, ne turne in to his house. And now this is a- lyke we will do to Sabaah and cast lottes against it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thowme out all the trybes of Israel, and a hundred of the thousande, and a thousande of the ten thousande, to set bycalle for the pro- ple, to make that they maye goo agaynst Sa- baah Ben Jamin, accordinge to all the folpe, that they haue wrought in Israel. And so all the men of Israel assembled vnto Sabaah, as it had bene but one man. And the trybes of Israel sent men thowme at the trybe of Ben Jamin, sayenge: What wychednesse is this, that is happened amonges you? Now ther- fore deliuer vs the men, those wyched wy- ches of Sabaah to thynke we maye sleie the and put awaye euill frome Israel.

Neuerthelesse the chyldren of Benjamin wolde not hearken vnto the voyce of their bre- thren the chyldren of Israel: but mustred out of the cyties vnto Sabaah, to come oute in battaye against the chyldren of Israel. And the chyldren of Benjamin were recommed at that tyme, oute of the cyties. xxvi. thousande men that dyete swerdes besyde the inhaby- tauntes of Sabaah, which were nombred se- uen hundred pyked men. And amonges all these folkes were seven hundred nybble han- ded men, which euery one could longe stons at an heare bycadeth, and not myste. And the chyldren of Israel besyde the chyldren of Ben Jamin, were nombred at foure hundred thou- sande men that dyete swerdes, and all men of warre.

And the chyldren of Israel arose and went vp to Bethell, and asch of God, who shuld begyn the battell against the chyldren of Ben Jamin, and the Loze sayd Juda shal be from capitayne. And the chyldren of Israel rose vp early and beseged Sabaah. And the me^s of Israel went out to battell against Ben Ja- min, and put theyr selues in aray agaynst them, to fight against Sabaah. And the chy- ldren of Benjamin came out of Sabaah and destroyed in Israel that daye. xxi. thousande men, and brought them to the grounde. And the folke of the chyldren of Israel plucked vp there bettes, and yet ekyones made battell in the same place where they dyd the first daye: but they went helle by and wepte before the Loze vnto euen, and asch of the Loze, say- enge: Shall we go agayne to battell against the chyldren of Benjamin our brethren? And the Loze sayde: go vp vnto them, when the chy- ldren of Israel were come to the chyldren of Benjamin the seconde daye, the chyldren of Benjamin went agaynst them out of Sa- baah.

baah, the seconde day, and destroyed to the ceth of the chyldren of Israel ones agayne. xxiij. thousande men that dyete swerdes euerye man of them.

Then the chyldren of Israel and all the people went vp and came vnto goddes house and wept and sat there before the Loze, and fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offered burnt offerynges and pear offerynges before the Loze. And they asch of the Loze: for there was the asche of the apoyntment of God, in those dayes. And whynches the sonne of Ele- azar, the sonne of Aaron attendinge vpon it at that tyme: and they sayd, Shall we go out any more to battell against the chyldren of Ben Jamin our brethren, o^r shall we cease? And the Loze sayde go: for to morowe I will be- lyue them into your handes. And Israel set a pyke watche against Sabaah round about. And the chyldren of Israel went agaynst the chyldren of Benjamin the thirde tyme, and put them selues in aray agaynst Sabaah, as they hadde done the first tyme. Then came the chyldren of Benjamin agaynst the people of Israel, till they were daryen a great waye frome the cytie. And they began to smyte of the people and wounded them (as they dyd the first tyme, so that Israel fled by two hye wayes of which one goeth vp to Bethell and the other to Sabaah thowme the seide) and strowe vpon a thurtye men of Israel. For the chyldren of Benjamin thought that the other had bene beaten before them, as at the first tyme. But the chyldren of Israel sayde, let vs sle and plucke them awaye frome the cytie, vnto the hygh wayes.

And then all the men of Israel rose vp out of theyr bandage, and put them selues in a- ray at Baal Thamar. And ykewise the lycers in awaye of Israel came forth oute of theyr places, out of the medowes of Sabaah, and came before Sabaah: ten thousande chosen men out of al Israel, & there was a strong bat- taye. But the other wyd not that euill was to nygh them. And the Loze plagued Ben- Jamin before Israel, so that the chyldren of Israel destroyed in Benjamin the same daye. xxv. thousande and a hundred men, that dyete swerdes euery one of them. The chyldren of Benjamin when they dyd se that they shoulde be beaten downe began to fle. And the men of Israel gaue chase to Benjamin, because they trusted vnto the layers in waye whiche they had sayd agaynst Sabaah. And the lay- ers in waye hasted and ran out of their holes vpon Sabaah, and went and smote at the ci- ty with the edge of the swerde. And they of Israel gaue the preuye watche theyr watche- word that as sone as they hadde taken the cytie they shoulde fyre it, that by the smoke they shoulde knowe that the cytie was wonne. And the men of Israel fled in the battaye. And Benjamin was a to smyte deed of the chil- dren of Israel, aboute thurtye personnes, for they had posted that the cytie had ben put to fyre before them, as in the first battell. The began to crye out o^r p^r a pillar of smoke and the Benjaminites let a dache: & beholde the wallynge of the hole cite began to as- cende to heuen.

Then the men of Israel turned agayne, and the men of Benjamin were abashed: for they sawe that euyl approached them. And they fled before the men of Israel vnto the way that lea- deth to the wyldernes, the other following the at the harde heles. And beside that their peera- hors of their cyties aboute them were slayne in the same place. And they compassed Ben Jami and chased them to Menuah: and ouertooke them before Sabaah on the east side: and there were slayne of Benjamin. xxiij. thousande, and all men of might. And they turned and fledde towards the wyldernes, and vnto the roche of pomegranettes. And the other strowe by the waye of the ceth of them, fyue thousande men: and slycked vnto them vntill they came to Sabaah, and strowe two thousande moe of them: so that al that were slayne that same daye of Benjamin, were. xxv. thousande men that dyete swerdes: and all men of myghte; onely fyue hundred men toward and fledde to the wyldernes, vnto the roche of pomegra- nettes, and abode there foure monethes. And then the men of Israel turned backe agayne vnto the chyldren of Benjamin: and smote them with the edge of the swerde in the cyties bothe man and beaste, and all that came to hande: and moreover sette all the cyties they coude come by on fire.

And the men of Israel swore in Ma- phah, saying: there shall none of vs geue his daughter vnto any of Benjamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode there till euen before God: and yfste by the voyces, and wepte ioie, and sayd. O Loze God of Israel, why is this chaunced in Israel, that there shoulde be this daye one tribe lackynge in Israel? And on the morowe the people arose early, and made there an aulter, & offered burnt offerynges and pear offerynges.

And the chyldren of Israel asked who are they amonges al the trybes of Israel that came not with the congregacion vnto the Loze: for they had made a great othe concernynge them that came not vp to the Loze to Maphah, sayinge they shoulde surely dye. And the chyldren of Israel had pitye on Benjamin their brethren, and sayd: there is one tribe cut of from Israel this day: what shal we do vnto the rest of them, to get the wiues, for as much as we haue sworn by the Loze, that we will not geue them any of our daughters to wyues. Then they sayde: what are they of the trybes of Israel that came not vp to Maphah to the Loze? And beholde there came none of the inhabitants of Jabes Ga- laad vnto the congregacion. So when the people were betwixt beholde there were none of the inhabitants of Jabes Galaad there. And the congregacion sent thurtye. xii. thousande men of the strongest of them, and commaunded the,

sayenge: Go and smyte the inhabitauntes of Iabes Galaad, with the edge of the swerde as well women as chyldren. * And this is that ye shall do: biterlye destroye all the males and all the women that haue lyen by men. And they founde amonge the inhabitantes of Iabes Galaad foure hundred damselles byrgynes that hadde knowen no man by lyng with any male. And they brought them vnto the hill to Siloh which is in the lande of Canaan. And the hole congregation sent a spake with the chyldren of Beniamin that were in the cocke of Pomgarnettes, and called peasa- bly vnto them, and Beniamin came agayne at that tyme, and they gaue them the women which they had saued a lyue of the women of Iabes Galaad. But they so sufficed them not. And the people had compassion on Beniamin because that God had made a gappe in the crybes of Israel. And then the elders of the congregation sayde: What shall we do to the remnant of them, to get them wyues, seeing all the wyues of Beniamin are destroyed? And they sayde there must be an enheritaunce for them that be escaped of Beniamin that a crybe be not destroyed oute of Israel: howe be it, we maye not geue them wyues of our daughters. For the chyldren of Israel hadde made an abutacion, sayeng: cursed be he that geueth a wyfe to Beniamin. When they said beholde, there is a feasse of the Lorde yerele in Siloh which is on the northsyde of Bethel and on the eastsyde of the waye that goeth frome Bethel to Sichem, and south frome Libanon. And they commaunded the chyldren of Beniamin, sayenge: go and lye in waye in the byneyardes. And when ye se the daughters of Siloh come forth to daunce in a rewe, then come ye out of the byneyardes, & catche you euery man a wyfe of the daughters of Siloh, and get you vnto the land of Beniamin. And yf their fathers or byethren come vnto by to complayne, we will saye vnto them, haue yfthe on theym, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre, & moreouer because ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame. And the chyldren of Beniamin dyd accordyngly: and toke them wyues after the nombre of the dauncers which they caught. And that done they went and returned vnto their enheritaunce, and dwelte there cyties and dwelt in them.

And the chyldren of Israel went thence at that tyme euery one to his crybe, and to his hysred, and departed thence euery man to his enheritaunce. In those dayes there was no kynge in Israel: but euery man dyd what semed hym good.

RVTH.

Elimelec goth with his wyfe and chyldren in to the lande of Moab. After his deathe his wyfe Noemi returned agayne in to her countrey, and with her Ruth her daughter in lawe.

CAPL.

I.

In the tyme when the Judges iudged, there selle a perch in the lande. Wherfore a certayne man of Bethlehem Iuda went to sojourne in the countrey of Moab with his wyfe and two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelec, and his wyfe Noemi: and the names of his two sonnes were Mahalon and Chilion, and were Ephraimites of Bethlehem Iuda. And when they came in to the lande of Moab, they abode there. And Elimelec Noemis husbunde dyed, and he remayned with her two sonnes, which toke them wyues of the nations of the Moabites: the ones name Ophrah, and the others Ruth. And when they had dwelled there aboute the space of ten yeres, Mahalon and Chilion dyed, so that the wyfe was bereued of her two sonnes, and of her husbunde also. Then she shode up with her daughters in lawe, and returned frome the countrey of Moab: for she had herde saye, being in the countrey of Moab, how the Lorde had visited his people, and geuen them sode. Wherfore she departed forthe of the place where she was, and her two daughters togyther with her. And as they wente by the waye returnyng vnto the lande of Iuda, Noemi sayd vnto her two daughters in lawe: Soe and returne epyther of you vnto your mothers house, the Lorde deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue deale with the ded, and with me. And the Lorde graunte you maye fynde reste epyther of you in the house of youre husbunde: and so he kyssed them.

Then they cryed and wepte, and sayd vnto her, we will go with the vnto thy folke. But Noemi sayd, turne agayne my daughters: for what cause wolde ye goo with me? chynke you there be any more chyldren in my bowels to be your husbundes? Tourne agayne (my daughters) and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbunde: also yf I toke a man this night: yea, though I hadde alcedye bozne sonnes: wolde ye tarpe for them, tyll they were of age? or wolde ye for them so longe terryne frome takynge of husbundes? Not so, my daughters: for then ye shoulde be to olde to marre, and it greuen me moche for youre sake, that the hande of the Lorde is gone oute agaynst me.

Therewith they cryed and wepte agayne: how be it, Ophrah kyssed her mother in lawe and departed: but Ruth abode styll by her, then she sayde: ie, thy sister in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people, and vnto her God: retourne thou after her. But Ruth sayde: entreate me not to leaue the, and to retourne frome the: for whither thou goest, I will goo: and where thou dwellest, there I will dwell: thy people are my people, and thy God is my God. Where thou dyest, I will dye, and there will be buryed. The Lorde too so and so to me: excepte that deache onely departe the and me asunder.

When she sawe she wolde nedes goo with her, she leste speake vnto her: and so they went bothe togyther, tyll they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was nolyed thowow all the cite, and the women sayde: is not this Noemi? But she sayd vnto them: call me not Noemi: call me Mara, for the almyghty hath made me berye bytter. I wente oute full, but the Lorde hath brought me home emptye. Why holde ye then call me Noemi, seinge the Lorde hath brought me low, & the almyghty hath brought me vnto aduersite. And the tyme when Noemi with Ruth the Moabitisse her daughter in lawe returned oute of the countrey of Moab and came to Bethlehem, was in the begynnyng of barley haruest.

Ruth leste ryne in the felde of Booz and founde fauoure in his syght.

CAPL.

II.

Ad Noemi had a kynsman of her husbundes, a man of myghte, of the kynred of Elimelec, named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitisse sayd vnto Noemi: let me goo to the felde and lease and gather eares, after whome so euer I fynde grace in his syghte. And she sayde vnto her: goo my daughter. And she wente, and came and gathered after the haruest men, and her chaunce was to gather in the felde that pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelec. And beholde, Booz came from Bethlehem and sayde vnto the haruest men, the Lorde be with you. And they answered him, the Lorde blesse the. Then sayd Booz vnto the yonge man that had the ouersyght of the haruest men. Whose damosell is this? And the yonge man that was set to ouerse the haruest men answered & sayd: It is the Moabitisse damosell that came with Noemi oute of the countrey of Moab: and we sayde: lette me I praye the, lease and gather after the haruest men the eares that remaine. And so he came and hadde contynued euen from the mornynge vnto now: & wente not ones home.

Then sayd Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my daughter: goo to none other felde to gather, neyther go frome hence, but abyde by my maydes. Thyne eyes are on a felde that shall be reed: goo after the maydens therfore, for I haue charged the yonge men that they touche the not. Wherfore when thou arte a thyrt, go vnto thy vessels and dynke of that whiche the laddes haue drawen. Then she fell on her face, and bowed her selfe to the ground and sayde vnto him: howe is it that I haue founde grace in thine eyes, to knowe me, sythens I am an alien.

And Booz answered and sayd vnto her: all is tolde me that thou hadst done to thy mother in lawe: for the deathe of thine husbnde, howe thou wast lefte thy father and thy mother, and the land where thou wast borne, and art come vnto a nation whiche thou knewest not in tyme past. The Lord receaue thy worke, and a full rewarde be giuen the of the Lord God of Israel, vnto whome thou art come, to reuile vnder his wynges. Then he sayde vnto hym: lette me fynde fauour in the syght (my Lord) for thou hast comforted me, and hast spoken hartely vnto thy mayde, whiche yet can not be lyke vnto one of thy maydes. And Booz when the tyme of repaite was come, sayde vnto her: come hyther and eate of the bread, and dryppe thy sopp in the bynnyng. And he late downe by the reys, and he taught her to parche corne. And so he dyd eate and was fylled, and lefte parte. And when he was rylen by to gather, Booz sayde to the ponge men, sayinge: let her gather the eares that remaine, and wo her no dellyre. And terto pull out of the sheues for her, and let it lye, that she may gather it by, and rebuke her not. And so he gathered till euen, and then they shewd that he hadde gathered, and it was vpon an Ephra of barleye. And he toke it by and went to the citye, and shewed her mothe in lawe what she hadde gathered. And terto she plucked oute and gaue to her that she had reserved when she had eaten enough. Then said her mother in lawe vnto her, where gatheredst thou to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that haue the. And she wept her mother in lawe with whome she hadde wrought, and sayde: the mans name with whome I wrought to daye, is Booz. Then sayd Noemi vnto her daughter in lawe, blessed be he, for he receaue not to do the same goodnesse to the dead, that he did to the liuing. And Noemi sayd vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, euen of our nexte kynne. And Ruth the Moabite said: he had me also, I wold continue with his ponge men, vntill they had ended all the harvest he hath. Then sayd Noemi vnto Ruth her daughter in lawe, it is best my daughter that thou goo oute with his maydens, and that no man mete the in anye othere felde. And so she kepte her by the maydens of Booz, to gather vnto the ende of barleye harvest, and of where harvest also, and returned to her mother in lawe.

Ruth receyeth at Booz fete, and is knowne his bynt woman.

CAPL.

III.

Then Noemi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my daughter I wyl seke reffe for the, that thou mayst be in better state. For nowe this Booz our kynsman, with whose maydens thou wast, knoweth his dutye to nycht in the threshynge floure:

wasthe thy selfe therfore and amorne the, and put thy payment vpon the, and gette the to the threshynge floure. But lette not the man be ware of the, till he haue leste eatynge and drynkyng. And when he goeth to slepe, make the place where he layeth hym downe, and then goo and lyfte vp the clothes that are on his feet, and laye the downe, and so shal he tel the what thou shalt do. And she answered her, all that thou bydest me, I wyl doo. So she went vnto the floure, and dyd all that her mother in lawe had bid. And when Booz hadde eaten and dronken, and made hym merye, he went and layd downe by the syde of the heap, and she came softlye and lyfte vp the clothes of his feet, and sayde her downe, and at nycht the man was asrayde and groped, and beholde, a woman laye at his feete. Then he sayd, what art thou? and she answered, I am Ruth thyne handmayde, spede thy mantell ouer thyne handmayde, for thou art the nexte of the kynne. And then he said, blessed be thou in the Lord (my daughter) for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the latter ende, then at the begynnyng: in as moche as thou followest not ponge men, whether they were poore or ryche. And now (my daughter) seate thee, I wyl do to the all that thou requyrest, for al within the gates of this citey knowe that thou art a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of the nexte kynne: howe be it, there is one more then I. Take all nycht, and when morning is come, if he wil mary the, wel and good: let him so do. But if he wil not haue the, as sure as the Lord lyueth, I wil haue the: I wyl geve thee the moynynge, and so she laye at his feete till morning. And she arose by before one coulde knowe an other. And he said, let no man knowe that there came any woman in to the threshynge floure. And he sayd bynne the mantell, I shal haue vpon the, and holde it by, and she helde it by. And he met in fixe measures of barleye and layde it on her. And she gat her in to the citye, and came to her mother in lawe whiche sayd: what reynes, my daughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And said mozeouer, these fixe measures of barleye gaue he me, and sayd: thou shalt not go emptye vnto thy mother in lawe. The said she, my daughter I wyl, vntill thou knowe howe the matre wyl procede. For the man wil not be in rest till he haue ended the matre this same daye.

Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whome he begat Obed.

CAPL.

IIII.

Then wente Booz vnto the gate, and sat him downe there: and beholde, the kinsman of whiche Booz spake came by. And to whome he sayd: come and syt downe here, and called him by his name. And he turned in and satte downe. Then he toke tenne men of the elders of the citey, and sayd: syt ye downe here. And they sat downe. Then he sayd vnto the kinsman: Noemi that is come agayn out of the countrey of Moab, wyl sell a parcell of lande whiche was our brother Elimelecs. And I thought to doo the to weete, and bydde the by it before the inhabytours and elders of my people: if thou be disposed to calenge it, for thou art nexte of kynned: but if thou wilt not purchase it, then tell me, that I may weete it. For there is none to calenge it, save thou, and I next the. And the other answered I wyl purchase it.

Then sayd Booz: what daye thou byest the felde of the hande of Noemi, thou must take also Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of the deed, to sette by the name of thy dead kynsman vpon his inheritaunce. Then sayd the kinsman: I can not purchase it for marrynge of my owne name: take thou my ryghte to the, for I am content to leste my ryghte here. Nowe this was the maner of olde tyme in Israel concernynge purchas and chaungynge, for to stablyshe all thyng: that a man muste plucke of his thoo and geue it his neyghboure, and this was a wynter in Israel.

And the kinsman said to Booz: bye it thou: and so byewe of his thoo. Then sayd Booz vnto the elders, and vnto all the people, ye are wytnesses this daye, that I haue boughte all that was Elimelecs, and all that was Phylons and Mahelons, of the hande of Noemi. And mozeouer Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of Mahelon, doo I take vnto me to wyfe, to sette by the name of the deed vpon his inheritaunce, that his name be not put forth among his byerthen, and frome the gate of his citey: ye are wytnesses this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate, & the elders sayd, we are wytnesses: the Lord make the woman that is come in to thine house lyke Rachel & Lea, whiche twayne did buyde

the house of Israel, that we maye wo vertuously in Ephzathab, and be famous in Bethlehem, and that thine house be lyke the house of Phares, to whome Thamar bare vnto Iuda, euen of the seed whiche the Lord shal geue the of this ponge woman. And so Booz toke Ruth, and she was his wyfe. And he lay with her, and the Lord gaue that she conceived and bare a sonne. And the women sayd vnto Noemi: blessed be the Lord, whiche hath not left the without an heyre this daye, that shal haue a name in Israel, and that shal bynne thy lyfe agayne, and cheryshe thine olde age. For the daughter in lawe which loueth the, hath boyned him that is better to the then seven sonnes. And Noemi toke the chyld and sayde it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. And her neyghbours gaue her a name, sayinge: there is a chyld boyned to Noemi, & called it Obed: he is the father of Iai, the father of Dauid.

THE FIRST BOKE OF SAMUEL CALLED THE FIRST BOKE OF THE KYNGES.

¶ Elikanah hath two wiues, Hannah and Phenennah. Phenennah vnderstandeth Hannah because she is childlesse. Hannah after prayer made to God, byngeth forth Samuel.

CAPL. I.

Here was a man of Ramathaim Zophim, of mount Ephraim named Elikanah, the son of Jeroham, the sonne of Elihu, the sonne of Eshou, the sonne of Zuph an Ephraimite, which had two wiues, the one called Hannah, the other Phenennah. And Phenennah had childre but Hannah had none. And the sayd man went out of his cite every feast daye, to praye and to offer vnto the Lord of holles: where he two sonnes of Eli (Hophni and Phinehes) were the Lordes prieres. And it fell on a daye as Elikanah had offered that he gaue to Phenennah his wyfe, and to all her sonnes and daughters portions. But vnto Hannah he gaue an honourable portion with a heape there, for he loued her: neuertheless the Lord had made her barren. And then to her enemye Phenennah becom her foe, casting her in the ceste how the Lord had made her barren. And so byd she praye as oft as she went vnto the house of the Lord. And so chafed her, wherfore Hannah wept, and ate not. Then sayd Elikanah her husbande to her.

Hannah, why wepest thou? and why eatest thou not? and why is thyne herte so troubled? am not I better to thee then ten sonnes? Then Hannah rose vp after that they had eat, and dromed in Siloh. And Eli the prier sat vpon a hole by one of the fyre postes of the temple of the Lord. And she was troubled in her spirit, and prayed vnto the Lord, and wept sore: and bowed a bowe and sayd, Lord of holles, if thou wilt loken on my wretchednesse of thyne handmayde, and walke remembre me and not forget thyne handmayde, and walke geue vnto thyne handmayde a man chyld, I will giue him vnto the Lord all the dayes of his lyfe, and there shall nether talke of weeres come vpon his head. And she continued prayenge before the Lord, Eli marked her mouth. For Hannah she spake in her herte, and her lippes byd but moue only, but her voyce was not herde. And therfore Eli toke her for dronken and sayd vnto her, howe longe wilt thou be dronken? put awaye frome the, the wyne that thou hast. Hannah answered and sayde: not so my Lord. I am a woman sorrowfull in myne herte, and haue dronke nether wyne nor anye stronge drynke: but I haue poured out my soule before the Lord. Counte not thyne handmayde to be lyke a daughter of vntychtynesse: for oute of the aboundance of my meditation and greife haue I spoken thus.

Eli answered and said: go in peace, the God of Israel shall graunt thee thy petition that thou hast asked of him. Then she sayde, lette thy hande mayde fynde grace in thy sight. And the woman went her waye, and byd eat and loked no more so sadde. And she rose by daye and bowed them selues before the Lord, and then returned and went to their house to Ramath. And Elikanah laye by his wyfe Hannah, and the Lord remembrede her. And in processe of time she conceived and bare a son, and called his name Samuel: because she hadde asked him of the Lord. And Elikanah and all his house wente vp to offer vnto the Lord bothe the offerings due for the feasts, and also his bowes: but Hannah went not vp for the sayde vnto her husbande: I will tarpe vntill the chyld be weened, and then I will bynge him, that he may appeare before the Lord, and there abyde for euer. And Elikanah her husbande sayd to her: do what thou wilt, the better: for thou hast weened him, onely the Lord make good his sayenge. And so the women abode and gaue her sonne suck, till she weened hym. And then she toke hym with her, when she had weened hym, with the bullockes and an Ephraim of flour and a bottell of wyne, and brought hym vnto the house of the Lord in Siloh. And there the chyld was set pouenge. And they slewe the bullockes and broughte wyne chyld to Eli, then he sayd: Wherfore sayest thou as true as thy soule liueth my Lord: I am the woman that stood by the heere, prayenge vnto the Lord and for thy chyld I prayed, and the Lord hath geuen me my desyre whiche I asked of hym: and now soie I also leade him the Lord, as long as he maye be lent the Lord. And so they prayd there vnto the Lord.

CAPL. II.

And Hannah prayed and sayde: myne herte reioyseth in the Lord, myne herte is hygge in the Lord, and my mouth is open ouer myne enemyes: for I was voyce in that thou hadst deliuered me. There is none so holie as the Lord: no there is none saue thou. Neither is there any strength like vnto our God. Talker not to moche proudly, let olde thynges depart out of your mouthes, for the Lord is a God of knowledge, and he setteth forth the workes. The bowes of the stronge are broken: and the weak are enuied with strength. They that were full haue ben glad to seeke for bread, and they that were hungrye be satisfied: in so moche that the barren hath borne children: and she that hadde manye chyldren is waxed feble. The Lord killeth and maketh alius: byngeth downe to hel, and setteth vp againe. The Lord maketh poore, and maketh ryche: byngeth lowe, and beareth vp on hye. He rayseth vp the povere out of the dust, and lyteth vp the begger from the dunge hille, to set them amonge princes, and to inherite them with the seate of glory. For the pylers of the eccle are the Lordes, and he hath sette the rounde world vpon them. He will kepe the feete of his holie, but the wicked shall kepe silence in darknesse. For in his owne myghte shall no man be stronge.

The Lordes aduersaries shall be made to stare vnto: and oute of heuen he shall thunder vpon them. The Lord shall iudge the doers of the world, and shall geue myght vnto his kyng, and exalte the horne of his anoynted. And Elikanah wente to Ramath to his house, the chyld did ministrate vnto the Lord before Eli the prier.

¶ But the sonnes of Eli were the sonnes of Belial, and knewe not the Lord. For the maner of the prieres with the people was: when so euer anye man offered anye offerings, the prieres had come while the flesch was setting, and a fleshe boke with the reche in his hande, and thurst it in to the panne, kettel, caldren, or potte. And all that the fleshe boke broughte by, they prest toke awaye. And so they byd vnto all Israel that came thither to Siloh. Yea and mozeouer before they had offered the car, the prieres had come and sayd to the man that offered: geue fleshe to vone for the prier: for he will not haue sodden flesch of the but rawe. And if any man sayd vnto hym, let the fat be offered accordyng to the custome of the daye, and then take as moche as thyne herte desireth. He had wolde answer hym, thou shalt geue me now, or els I will take it plore. And the fyne of the ponge men was beere greate before the Lord. For they bynded the peoples deuotion from offering vnto the Lord.

¶ But the chyld Samuel ministered before the Lord gydded aboute with a linnen Ephod. For his mother made him a lytle cote, and broughte it to him frome feaste to feaste when she came vp with her husbande to offer the offering of the sayde feasts. And Eli blessed Elikanah and his wyfe, and sayde: the Lord geue the seed of this woman, for that she hath lent the Lord. And they went vnto their owne house. And the Lord visited Hannah, so that she conceived and bare thre sonnes and two daughters. But the chyld Samuel grew, and dwellynge stille with the Lord.

Eli was beere olde and herde all that his sonnes byd vnto all Israel, and how they slepe with the women that waited in the doore of the tabernacle of witness, as sayd vnto them: why do ye lye these thynges? For I heare your wyrdes of al these people. Wherfore my sonnes, for it is no good rraporte that I heare, how ye make the Lordes people to trespare. Yf one man synne agaynst an other, dayemen maye make his peax: but if a man synne agaynst the Lord, who can be his dayleman? For withstandinge they hekened not vnto the voyce of their father, because the Lord wolde see theyn. The chyld Samuel profited and grew, and was in fauour bothe with the Lord, and also with men.

¶ And there came a man of God vnto Eli, and sayd vnto hym: thus sayth the Lord. I appeared vnto the house of thy father, when they were in Egypte in Pharaos house. And I chose thy father forthe of all the trybes of Israel, to be my prier for to offer vpon myne auter, and to burne incense, and to weare an Ephod before me. And I gaue vnto the house of thy father all the offerings of the chyldren of Israel. Wherfore kepe the agaynst my sacrifice and agaynst myne offeringe whiche I commaunde in the tabernacle, and honoureth thy chyldren aboute me: and make poure selues fatte of the fyne frutes of all the offerings of Israel my people. Wherfore the Lord God of Israel sayth: I sayd that thyne house and the house of thy father wolde haue walked before me for euer. But nowe the Lord sayeth that he saure from me: for them that worshipp me, I will worshipp: and they that despye me, shall be despyed. And wholde the dayes will come that I will cut of thyne arme, and the arme of thy fathers house: that there shall not be an elder in thyne house. And thou shalt be thyne enemye in the tabernacle, in all that shall please Israel: and there shall not be an elder in thyne house while the world standeth. Wherfore I will not drepe all thy males frome my auter, to dase thy seed with all, and to make thyne herte melte. And all the multitude of thyne house shall dye ponge.

¶ And this shall be a signe vnto the, that shall come vpon thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes: euen in one daye epyer of thepm shall dye. And I will sere me by a saythfull prier, that shall waite myne herte, and in my mynde: and I will burye hym a sure house: and he shall walke before myne anoynted for euer. And they that are lesse in thyne house, shall come and crouche to hym for a rytle pece of spuer, and a cake of bzeed: and shall saye: put me I praye the in one office or other amonge the prieres, that I maye care a wyrd sell of bzeed.

¶ After the Lord had left to appeare by open vision in Siloh to a lode leade: he yet callith Samuel. in synce, and sheweth hym what shalde befall on Israh.

CAPL. III.

¶ And the chyld Samuel ministered vnto the Lord before Eli: and the word of the Lord was denyed in those dayes, for there was none open vision. And it chaunced at that tyme that Eli laye in his place, and his eyes beganne to waxe dymme that he coulde not se. And at the lampe of God went out, Samuel layde hym downe to slepe in the temple of the Lord, where the arke of God was. And the Lord called Samuel: and he sayd, here am I: and he ran vnto Eli and sayd: here am I, for thou callidst me. But he sayde: I called the nor: go agayne and slepe. And he went and layde hym downe to slepe. And the Lord called onys agayne Samuel: and Samuel

Samuel arose and went to Beth and said: I am here, thou didst call me. And he answered: I called thee not, my sonne; go again and take the ephod. But as yet Samuel knew not the Lord. And the Lord proceeded and called Samuel the third time. And he arose and went to Beth and said: I am here, for thou hast called me. Then Beth perceived that the Lord had called the child, and said unto him: go and lie down, and I will call thee again, then say unto me on what day the Lord opened his eyes upon thee. And Samuel lay down in his place. And the Lord came and stood and called as aforetime, Samuel Samuel. And Samuel said: speak on, for thy servant heareth thee. And the Lord said to Samuel: behold, I will do a thing in Israel, that the ears of as many as hear it, shall tingle. In that day I will perform to Beth all that I have spoken concerning his house: I will begin it and end it. For I have told him that I will judge his house for ever. For the wickedness wherewith he knoweth his house, his sonnes are ungracious, and he chastised them not. And therefore I have sworn unto the house of Beth, that the wickedness of his house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offering, while the world standeth. And Samuel lay till the morning, and then opened the eyes of the house of the Lord.

But Samuel feared to shew Beth the vision. Then Beth called Samuel and said: Samuel my sonne. And he answered, here I am. And he said what is it that the Lord said unto thee? He thou hidest it not from me. The Lord said so and so to me, yf thou have any thing told me of all that he said unto thee. And Samuel told him every word, and hid it not from him. And he answered: it is the Lord, let him do what seemeth him good.

And Samuel grew, and the Lord was with him, and left none of his words unperformed. And all Israel from Dan to Berseba worshipped the faithful Samuel. And the Lord appeared again in Shiloh, for the Lord opened him self to Samuel in Shiloh, that he might shew him the words of the Lord.

The battle of the Philistines. Israel fleeth. The Ark of the Lord is taken. Elisha's children dye and he him self also.

CAPL

IIII.

And Samuel spake unto all Israel. And Israel went out against the Philistines to battle, and pitched beside the helpe stone. But the Philistines pitched in Apphek, and put their felices in array against Israel. And in the battle Israel was put to the worse before the Philistines. For the Philistines slew along by the felices, about four thousand men.

And when the people were come in to their tents, the elders of Israel said: wherfore hath the Lord beaten us this day before the Philistines? let us fetch the ark of the appointment of the Lord out of Shiloh unto us, and let it come among us and save us out of the hands of our enemies. And the people sent to Shiloh, and fetched thence the ark of the appointment of the Lord of hosts which dwelleth between the Cherubims. And there were the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni, and Phinehes, with the ark of the appointment of God. And when the ark of the appointment of the Lord came in to the host, all Israel shouted mightily about, so that the earth rang again.

When the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, they said: What meaneth the loud of this mighty shout in the host of the Hebrews? And they understood that the ark of the Lord was come in to the host. And the Philistines were afraid, when it was told that God was come in to the host, and lay. And unto us, for it was new to us before. And unto us, who shall deliver us out of the hands of this mighty God? this is the God that smote the Egyptians with all manner of plagues in the wilderness. Be strong and fight your felices like men ye Philistines, for ye be not servants unto the Hebrews, as they have bene to you. Be men therefore and fight. And the Philistines fought, and Israel was put to the worse and fled every man into his tent. And there was a mighty great slaughter, so that there were overthrown of Israel about a thousand four hundred men. And the ark of God was taken, and the two sonnes of Eli, Hophni and Phinehes were dead. And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the camp and came to Shiloh the same day, with his clothes rent and earth upon his head. And when the man came in, Beth said upon a sole by the wayes side, wherfore is this? for his head is rent for the ark of God. And the man came in and told it in the city. And all the city cried.

When Beth heard the noise of the crying, he asked what the noise of the crying meant. And the man bawled, and came in and told Beth. Beth was sore for and righte piteous, for his sight failed him that he could not see. And the man said unto Beth, I am he that ran from the camp, and fled out of the host this day. And he said, how is it? for I am sorrowful. And the messenger answered and said: Israel is fled before the Philistines, and there is a great slaughter chaunced among the people, and thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes are dead, and therto the ark of God is taken. And when he had named the ark of God, Beth fell from his seat backward, and worshipped the gate, and his necke brake, and he dyed, for he was olde and unweildy, and he judged Israel fourty years.

And his daughter in law Phinehes wife was with child, and she the birth. And when she heard these tidings of the taking of the ark of God, and that her father in law and her husband were dead, she bowed herself and travailed, for her paines came upon her. And about the time of her travail, the women that stood about her, said unto her: what now, for thou hast borne a sonne. But she answered not.

swore not, nor regarded it. And she named the child Ichabod, saying: honour is departed from Israel. Because the ark of God was taken, and her father in law and her husband were dead. And therefore she said: Israel hath lost his honour, because the ark of God was taken.

When the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the ark. The Philistines are plagued in the several places. The inhabitants of Ashdod refuse to receive the ark.

CAPL

V.

And the Philistines took the ark of God and carried it from the helpe stone unto Ashdod, and brought it in to the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And when they of Ashdod were risen in the morning, behold the ark of the Lord lay upon the ephod before the ark of the Lord. And they took Dagon and set him in his place again. And when they rose by the next morning, behold Dagon lay upon the ephod before the ark of the Lord, and his head and his two hands cut off upon the threshold, that his body only was left on him. Wherfore neither the priests of Dagon, nor any man that cometh in to Dagon's house might tread on the threshold of Dagon in Ashdod, unto this day.

But the hand of the Lord was heavy upon them of Ashdod, and he destroyed them and smote them with emerodes, both Ashdod and at the coasts thereof. And when the men of Ashdod saw that so, they said: the ark of the God of Israel shall not abide here with us, for his hand is sore upon us, and upon Dagon our God. And so they sent and gathered all the Lords of the Philistines unto them and said: what shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? Then they of Beth, let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about. And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about. And when they had carried it about, the hand of the Lord was in the city with a mighty great plague, so he smote the men of the city both small and great, and they were impotent in their secret places with the emerodes. Then they sent the ark of God to Ashdod, and as soon as the ark of God came to Ashdod, the Ashdodites cried out, saying: they have brought the ark of the God of Israel to us: so flee us and our people.

Then they sent and set all the Lords of the Philistines unto them and said: send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it go home againe unto his owne place, that it see us not with our people. For there was a plague of death thowome out all the city, and the hand of God was exceeding sore there, in so much that they which died not, were afflicted with the emerodes: so that the cry of the city reached up to heaven.

The hepters bring home the ark with the rewards. The Bethsamites were plagued after they had seen the ark.

CAPL

VI.

And so when the ark of the Lord had ben in the countrey of the Philistines seven monethes, the Philistines called for the priests and the sooth sayers, saying: what shall we do with the ark of the Lord? tell us wherewith we shall send it home againe. They answered, yf you send the ark of the God of Israel home againe, send it not empty: but rewarde it with a trespass offering, and then ye shall be whole, and it shall be known to you why his hand departed not from you.

Then said they, what shall be the trespass offering, whiche we shall rewarde him with? And they answered: fyve golden asses with emerodes, and fyve golden mpye, according to the number of the Lords of the Philistines. For it was one manner of plague that was on you all, and on your Lordes. Wherfore ye shall make ymages like to your asses with emerodes, and ymages like to your mpye that destroyed your land, and shall give glory unto the God of Israel: that he may take his hand from you, and from your goddes, and from your land. Wherfore shoulde ye harden your heartes, as the Egyptians and Pharaon hardened thers, whiche for all that (when he was well scourged) was fayne to let the people go and depart.

Now therefore make a newe cart and take two mpye hyne, on whose necke neuer came yoke. And ye the hyne in the cart, and hepe they calves at home from them. Then take the ark of the Lord, and put it in the cart, and put the Jewels of golde, which ye rewarde him with, for a trespass offering, in a forer by the side thereof, and send it away and let it go. And make, yf he goeth by the waye that leadeth unto his own coast to Bethsamites, then it is he that byd us this great evil. But yf he be not, then it is not his hand that smote us, but it was a chance that happened us. And the men did even so: they took two hyne that gave mpye and tied them in the cart, and hepte the calves at home, and they layde the ark of the Lord upon the cart, and the forer with the mpye of golde, and the ymages of their asses with emerodes. And the hyne took the trespass offering to Bethsamites, both the one waye, and as they went, crept/turnyng neyther to the right hande ne to the left. And the Lordes of the Philistines went after them, till they came to the borders of Bethsamites.

And they of Bethsamites were reppng their whete in the vale. So they lyft by their eyes and spied the ark, and rejoyced when they saw it. And the cart came into the grove of one Joia a Bethsamite, and stood still there. There was there also a greave stone. And they clave the wood of the cart, and offered the hyne a burnt offering unto the Lord. And the Levites took downe the ark of the Lord, and the forer that was therby, wherewith the Jewels of golde were, and put them on the greave stone. And the men of Bethsamites sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offerings that same daye unto the Lord. And when the true Lords of the Philistines had sene it, they returned to Akaron the same daie. These are the golden arcles with Emertodes, whiche the Philistines gaue to amencies for a trespass offeringe, to the Lorde: for Ashdod one / for Gaza one / for Askalon one / for Beth one / and for Akaron one. And the golden mpre were accordynge to the nombre of all the cityes of the Philistines thowtwe the fyue lordshippes/ bothe of walled towncs, and of towncs vnwalled, cunct vnto the great stone wheron they sette downe the arcke of the Lorde: whiche remaynech vnto this daie in the felde of Josua the Berthesa-myre. And the Lorde plagued the men of Berthesamyes, because they hadde sene the iewels that were in the arcke of the Lorde. And he slewe of the people nintye thousande, and the score e ten persons. And the people lameded because the Lord had made so great a slaughter of the.

And the men of Berthesames said, who is habile to stande before the Lorde so holy a God, and to whom wull he go from vs? And they sente messengers to the inhabitants of Gathath Jarim, sayinge: The Philistines haue broughre home agayne the arcke of the Lorde: come downe and set it vp to you.

The ark is brought to Kiriathjearim. The people wept, for which Samuel maketh intercession to the Lord. The Philistines are smitten.

the burnt offering / the Philistines came to fght agaynst Israel. But the Lord thundered a greate thunder that same daye vpon the Philistines, and turmpled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the men of Israel issued out of Mizpah, and pursued the Philistines, and slewe them tyl they came betwe Bethcar. And then Samuel toke a stone, & pitched it betwene Mizpah and Sen, and called the name thereof the stone of help, saying, thus saith hath the Lord holpe vs. And to the Philistines were broughte vnder & they came no more in to the cootes of Israel / for the hand of the Lord was vpon the Philistines al the dayes of Samuel. Then the cities whiche the Philistines hadde raken frome Israel, came agayne to Israel, from Akaron to Beth, with the cootes of the same, whiche Israel plucked out of the handes of the Philistines. For there was peax betwene Israel and the Amorites.
And Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went aboute yere by yere to Bethel, Saigal, and Mizpah, and iudged Israel in all those places / and came agayne to Ramath, for there was his house / and there he iudged Israel / and there he baptye anaw-

Then went Saul to Samuel in the middle of the gate, and said: tell me I pray the where is the Beares house? And Samuel answered Saul, and sayd: I am the Beare, go up before me vnto the hill, forye shall eate why me to dape. And to morow I wil let the go cry: and wil tel the all that is in thync heere/and as concerning thync asses that were lost thye dages a go, care not for them, for they are found. NOW there was a mā of Ben Jamin named Lis, the sonne of Abiel, the sonne of Zeror, the sonne of Berchozah, the son of Apphah, the sonne of a mā that was a Temite, a man of strengthe, the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yonge man, so þ among the children of Israel there was none goodlyer then he; and was thereto from the thowtens bpwarde hys then all the other people. And it chaunced þ the asses of this Lis Sauls father were strayed. Then sayde Lis to Saul his sonne, take one of the seruantes with thee, & go thy waye and seeke the asses. And they went thowow mount Ephraim, & thowow the lande of Salila, and founde them not. Then they went thowowe the lande of Salim, and there they were not. Then they went also thowowe the land of Jemim, and they found them not. Then when they were come to the lande of Zuph, Saul sayd to the yonge man that was with him: come let vs returne, lest my father leave charge for the asses, and take thowowe for vs. And he answered him/ beholde, there is in this cite a worthyfull man of God, and all that he sayth, cometh to passe. Now then let vs go thither; peradventure he shal telve vs what waye we may go. Then sayd Saul to his seruant, þ if we go, what shal we bring the man? for our heed is all spent out of our hamper, and there is none other present to bypene the man of God, what haue we? And the yonge man answered to Saul agayne and sayde: I haue founde about me the fourthe about the springe of the dape Samuel called Saul in the galery, saying / aryle that I may sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they went out at the wyse, bothe he and Samuel. And when they were come almost to the townes ende / Samuel sayd to Saul: byd thy seruauant go before vs, and he went / but stande thou still a lytle space, that I maye thewe the what God sayth.

Saul is anoynted kynge, and propheseth. Samuel declarerh the people theyr faulte, in that they aske a kynge. God lende the kynge lyfe.

CAPL. X.

And then Samuel toke a boxe of ople, and poured it vpon his heed, and kysed hym and sayd: the Loyde hath anoynted the to be ruler ouer his inheritaunce. And now when thou arte departed frome me, thou shalt mete two men by * Rachels sepulchre in the borders of Beniamin / euen at Zaleph. And they shal saye vnto the, the asses whiche thou wentest to sche, are rounde / but beholde thy father hath lefte the care of the asses, and so cometh for you, saying: what shal I do for my sonne? Then thou shalt go forth thence and come to the oke of Ephod. And there shalt thou mete the men going to God to Bethel / one carpenge the byddes, and othyr the loues of byddes / and the thyrde a vessel of wyne. And they shal grete the, and giue the two loues of byddes whiche thou shalt receyue of theyr handes. After this thou shalt come to the bylle of God, where the Philistines kepe theyr watche. And when thou arte come thither to the citty, thou shalt mete a compaigne of Prophetes commynge downe from the bylle, with a plecter, a tymbrell, a pype, and a harpe before them / and theyr prophesinge. And the spierre of the Loyde shall rest vpon the, and thou shalt prophesie with them, and shalt be counted in to an othyr man. And when these signes are chaunced the, then do what thou hast to do / for God is with the. And thou shalt also go before me to Galgal. And beholde I will come vnto the / for thou shalt sacrifice burnt sacrifice and pear offeringes. * Take for me seuen dayes, tyll I come and shew the what thou shalt do. And as sone as he had turned his shoulde to goo from Samuel, God gaue him an othyr maner of herte, and all those tokens toke effect that same day. When they came to the byl, beholde the compaigne of Prophetes met him, and the spierre of God came vpon him, and he prophesied amonges them. And at that herte him before, when they sawe he prophesied among the prophetes, said eche to othyr: what is hap pended vnto the sonne of Israhel? Is Saul also amonge the Prophetes? And one of the same place answered and sayd: who is the father? And therof sprang a prouerbe: is Saul also amonge the Prophetes? And whē he had made an ende of prophesinge, he came to the byll. Sauls vncle sayd vnto him and his seruauant: whye yet wente ye? And he answered:

to seke the asses, and when we sawe them no where, we went to Samuel. Then said Sauls vncle: tell me what Samuel sayde vnto you. And Saul answered his vncle: he tolde vs the asses were founde. But of the kyngdome wherof Samuel spake, tolde he him not. After that Samuel called the people together vnto the Loyde to Mizpah, and sayde vnto the chyldren of Israhel: thus sayth the Loyde God of Israhel: I brought you out of Egypt, and deliuered you forth of the hande of the Egyptians, and forth of the handes of all kyngdomes & oppressed you. And ye haue this daye cast awaye your Loyde God that by him self holpe you out of al your aduersities and tribulations / and ye haue said vnto him: make a kyng ouer vs. Now therefore stande before the Loyde by youre tribes and youre houses. And when Samuel had brought all the tribes of Israhel, the tribe of Beniamin was last by lot. When he had brought the tribe of Beniamin by their kindredes, the lot fel vpon the rebe of Merai / and so went & lot thow vnto it came to Saul & son of Israhel. And they sought him, but he could not be found. Then they asked the Loyde further, whether the man shold come thither or no. And the Loyde answered: beholde, he hath hid him self among the staffe. And they ran and fet him thence. And when he stode among the people, he was hyer then any of the people, some the shouldeers backward. And Samuel sayde to all the people: se, whome the Loyde hath chosen, and howe there is none lyke hym among all the compaignye. And the people shouted and sayde: God lende the kyng lyfe.

Then Samuel tolde the people the lawe of the realme, and wrote it in a booke / and lapd it by before the Loyde / and so sent all the people awaye, eury man to his house. And Saul also went home to Gabaah. And there went with him an hothe, such as God had touched thir hertes. But the chyldren of vnturifullnesse said: howe shall he saue vs? and despyed hym, and brought hym not presentes. And he made as though he had not herd it.

The people beinge deliuered frome the tyrannye of Nabal, reneweth the kyngdome of Saul.

CAPL. XL.

Then Nabal the Ammonyte came and beseged Iabes in Galaad. And all the people of Iabes sayde vnto Nabal: make a couenaunt with vs, and we will be thy seruantes. And Nabal the Ammonyte sayde: to this will I make a couenaunt with you, euen to thurst oute all your syght eyes, that I maye make all Israhel ashamed of you. Then sayde the elders of Iabes: Oure seuen dayes respyte, that we maye sende messengers vnto all the coses of Israhel. And then if there come no man to helpe vs, we will come oute to the. Then came the messengers to Gabaah where Saul dwelle, and tolde this tidynge in the eares of the people. And all the people lyfte by their voyces and wept.

And beholde Saul came folowynge his oxen from the felde, and asked what ayled the people to wepe. And they tolde him the tidynge of the men of Iabes. Then came the spierre of God vpon Saul, when he herde those tidynge, and he was exceeding angry. And toke a poke of oxen and hewed them in peeces, and sent them thow oute all the coses of Israhel by the handes of messengers, saying: who so euer cometh not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall his oxen be serued. Then the feare of the Loyde fell on the people, and they came out as it had ben but one man. And when they were nombred in Bezek, the chyldren of Israhel were thye hundred thousande / and the men of Iuda thirte thousande. And they sayde vnto the messengers that came: so saye vnto the men of Iabes in Galaad: to morowe by that tyme the sonne be boote, ye shal haue helpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Iabes, and they were glad. And then the men of Iabes sayd: to morowe we will come out vnto you, that ye maye doo with vs as yf please you. And on the morow Saul put the people in thye partes. And they came in vpon the boke in the morning watche, a fewe the Ammonites tyll the heat of the daye. And they that remayned, scattered: so that two of them were not lefte together. Then sayde the people to Samuel: what are they that sayde, shall Saul raygne ouer vs? byynge them that we maye see them. But Saul sayd there shal no man dye this daye / for io dape the Loyde hath saued Israhel.

Then sayd Samuel vnto his people: come and lette vs goo to Galgal, and renewe the kyngdome there. And the people went to Galgal, and made Saul kyng there before the Loyde in Galgal. And there they offered pear offeringes before the Loyde. And there Saul and all the people extoyled byghly.

Samuel beinge an innocent Judge, the people them selues to witnesse largelyth the people of vnturifullnesse because they demaunded a kyng. Hym that representeth and beleueth, God forgyue, because of his pynple.

CAPL. XL.

Then sayd Samuel vnto all Israhel: beholde, I haue obeyed youre voyce in all ye sayd vnto me, and haue made you a kyng. And loo, youre kyng goeth before you. But I am olde and greye headed: and beholde, my sonnes are with you, and I haue lured amonges you from my chyldhode vnto this daye. Beholde, here I am: and sweare me before the Loyde, and before his anoynted / whosoz haue I taken? or whosoz alle haue I taken? whome haue I wronge to? or whome haue I wronge? And of whosoz hande haue I receyued anre byde to blynde myne eyes thertym? And I will rellate it you as I can. And they sayd: thou hast done vs no wronge, nor pnyed vs in aucte: and thou hast kepte of any manne hande. Then swore he to them: the Loyde is wytnesse vnto you, and his anoynted is wytnesse this dape, that ye haue founde noughte in my handes. And they answered: we are witnesses. Then sayde Samuel vnto the people: it is the Loyde that hath made Moses and Aaron, whiche brought your fathers oute of Egypte. Now therefore stande still / and lette me reason with you before the Loyde, of all the merces of the Loyde, whiche he shewed bothe vnto you and vnto your fathers. After that Jacob was come in to Egypt, your fathers cryed vnto the Loyde, and the Loyde sent Moses and Aaron, and brought your fathers oute of Egypte, and made them dwell in this place. Quertibelle they forgate the Loyde their God. And he solde them in to the hande of Sifara chiefe capitayne of Iabin kyng of Egipt, and in to the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the kyng of Moab whiche fought agaynst them. Then they cryed vnto the Loyde and sayd: we haue synned, because we haue forsaken the Loyde, and haue serued Baalim and Ashtaroth. But now deliuer vs oute of the handes of our enemies, and we will serue the. And the Loyde sent Jerobaal & Bathan, Zephaniah, and Samuel, and deliuered you oute of the handes of your enemies on eury syde, so that ye dwelled withoute feare. And for all this when you sawe that Nabal the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon came agaynst you, ye said vnto me: not so, a kyng shal raygne ouer vs, when yet the Loyd your God was your kyng. Now therefore beholde the kyng whome ye haue chosen, and whome ye haue desired: se / the Loyde hath gyuen you a kyng. O that he wolde feare the Loyde and serue him, & heare his voyce, and not disobey the mouth of the Loyde: and that bothe ye and the kyng that raygneth ouer you wolde folowe the Loyde your God. For yf ye shall not harken vnto the voyce of the Loyde, but shall disobey the Loydes mouth, then shall the hande of the Loyd be vpon you, and on your fathers. Now also stande and se this greare thynge: whiche the Loyde will do before youre eyes: is it not nowe whete barnet? And yet for all that, I will call vnto the Loyde, and he shal sende thunder and rayne. Wherby perceyue and vnderstande, howe that youre wyckednesse is greare, whiche ye haue done in the sight of the Loyd, in aspyng you a kyng. And when Samuel called vnto the Loyde, the Loyde sente thunder and rayne the same dape. And all the people feared the Loyde and Samuel exceedingly. Then sayd all the people vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruantes vnto the Loyde thy God, that we dye not: for we haue synned in aspyng vs a kyng, besyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

Then sayd Samuel vnto the people: feare not. And though ye haue done all this wyckednesse, yet depart not from the Loyde in any case: but serue hym truly all youre hertes. Perther turne ye after dayne thynge whiche shall not profyte you nor be habile to deliuer you, for they are but vanities. And the Loyde will not forsake his people, because of his greate names sake: because the Loyde hath begun

IT was now an houle yere after that Saul had begun to reigne. And when he hadde rayned two yeres ouer Israel, he chose him thre thousande men out of Israel. Two thousande were with Saul in Machmas a mount Bethell: and a thousande with Jonathan in Gabaath Beniamin. And the rest of the people he sente home, euerye man to his house. So Jonathan slew the Philistines in an hold that they had in Gabaath: and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul caused the trumpet to be blowne throughte oute all the lande, saying: let the Philistines heare. And all Israel heard saye how that Saul had destroyed an hold of the Philistines, and that Israel shoulde aforesayd Philistines. And all the people cryed after Saul to Galgal.

Then the Philistines gathered them selues together to fighte with Israel, thre thre thousande charrettes, and sixe thousande horse men, with other people like the same by the sea side in multitude: and came by and pitched in Machmas eastward from Bethauen. And when the men of Israel sawe them selues in a strait, and that the people were discomfited, they byd them selues in caues, in perye holes, in rocks, benches, and pycces. And the Philistines went ouer Jordan vnto the lande of Gad and Galaad. But Saul was yet in Galgal: and all the people that folowed him were dismayed. And he tarped seven dayes, as Samuel had appoynted. But Samuel came not to Galgal: and the people scattered from hym. Wherefore Saul sayd, byynge me burnt sacrifice, and pear offeringes. And he offered burnt sacrifice. And as soone as he had ended his burnt offeringes, beholde Samuel came. And Saul wente agaynste him to grete hym.

Then sayde Samuel to Saul: what hast thou done? And Saul sayde, because I sawe that the people scattered from me: and that thou comest not within the dayes appoynted: and that the Philistines gathered them selues together to Machmas: then sayd I, the Philistines shall come down vpon me to Galgal: and I haue made my prayer vnto the Lorde. And therefore when they enforced me, I offered burnt offeringes. Then sayde Samuel to Saul: thou hast done folyschly, and hast not kepte the commaundement of the Lorde thy God, whiche he commaunded the whiche thynges yf thou haddest not done at this time: wolde the Lorde haue stablished thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But now the kyngdome shall neuer stablish agayne. The Lorde hath soughte him a man after his owne heart, and hath commaunded him to be a captain ouer his people: because thou hast not kepte that the Lorde commaunded the. And Samuel arose and gat him frome Galgal to Gabaath Beniamin. And Saul nombred the people that were founde with him, aboute fixe hundred men. And Saul and Jonathan his sonne, and the people that were founde with them, hadde theyr abydinge in Gabaath Beniamin. But the Philistines had pitched in Machmas. And there came out of the hold of the Philistines thre companies, to destroy one company turned vnto the waye that ledeth to Ephraim vnto the lande of Saul: another company turned the waye to Bethonai: and the thirde company turned to the waye of the code that turneth to the valeye of Zeboun towarde the wilderness. But there was no smyth throughte oute all the lande of Israel. For the Philistines were ware that the Philistines wolde not make them selues neither swordes nor speeres. And therefore made all Israel goe downe to the Philistines to mendre some man his ware, his mattocke, his axe, his sickle: as ofte as the edges of the sickles, mattockes, dongfores, and axes were blunt, and muste be had vnto the scythe to be amended. And so in tyme of battaile, there was anyther sword nor speere founde in the handes of anye of the people that were with Saul and Jonathan: save to Saul and Jonathan his sonne was there somwhat found. And the armye of the Philistines came out and stood on the other side before Machmas.

Jonathan accompanied with his esquire pursued the Philistines to night. He taketh the hony which his father unknowing to him, had hidden in the hold, for which he shoulde haue bene slayne, but the people deliuered him.

CAPL.

XIII.

And it fell on a daye that Jonathan the sonne of Saul sayde vnto his yonger man that bare his harness: come and let vs goo ouer to the watche men of the Philistines that are yonder on the other syde, and tolde not his father. But Saul tarped in the bettermoste parte of Gabaath vnder a pomogarnet tree that was in Mageon: and the people that were with him were aboute fixe hundred men. And Abiah the sonne of Abud the habodes brother, the sonne of Philistines, the sonne of Deli was the Lorde's paxell in Shiloh and bare an Ephod. But the people wylde not that Jonathan was gone.

And in the waye by which Jonathan sought to goo ouer vnto the garrison of the Philistines, were there two sharpe rockes, thone on the one syde, and another on the other: the one called Bozer, and the other Seneh. And the one leaueth northward towarde Machmas, and the other southward towarde Gabaath. Then sayde Jonathan to the yonger man his harnessbearer: come and let vs go ouer vnto the standing of these bndcircumfenced. And he answered the Lorde will worke with vs: for the Lorde is habile to saue euer with maner or with setme. And his harnessbearer sayd vnto him do all that is in thine herte: set the forward: & se, I am with the, as thine herte iudgeth. Then sayd Jonathan: beholde, wher we go ouer vnto the men, and shewe oure selues vnto them: yf they saye on this wyse to vs: tarpe till we come to you, then we wyl stand still wher we be and not goe by vnto them. But yf they so saye vnto vs: come hyther vnto vs, then we will goo by, for the Lorde hath deliuered them into our handes. And this shall be a signe vnto vs. And when they had both shewed them selues vnto the garrison of the Philistines, the Philistines sayd: se, the Hebrewes come oute of the holes wher they had hyd them selues in. And the men of the garrison answered Jonathan and his harnessbearer and sayde: come by to vs, & we will shewe you a thyng. Then sayde Jonathan vnto his harnessbearer: come after me, for the Lorde hath deliuered them into my handes of Israel. And Jonathan clame vpon his bow and sere, and his harnessbearer after him. Then they fell before Jonathan: and his harnessbearer slewe them after him. And the harte laughter which Jonathan and his harnessbearer made, was vpon a twenty men, within the compass as it were aboute an halfe akre of lande. And there was a feare in the hold that was in the feld, and amonge all the people: as moche that they that kept the hold, and they that were gone to robbe, were afraide also: and the earth trembled, and there was a feare sente of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gabaath Beniamin, sawe. And beholde, the people scattered and ran hyther and thither. Then sayde Saul vnto the people that was with him: nobbye & se who is gone away home vs. And when they had tolde: beholde, Jonathan & his harnessbearer were not there. And then Saul sayde vnto Ahia: bringe hyther the Arke of God. For the Arke of God was at that tyme with the children of Israel. And whyle Saul talked vnto the preaste, a lowde shremyng beganne in the host of the Philistines, and it increased and was harde with a great noyse. And Saul sayde vnto the preast: nichodawe thynke hande. And Saul assembled all the people that were with him, and went to the hold. And se, euery mannes sword was agaynste his fellowe, & there was great laughter done. Moreover the Philistines that were with the Philistines before that tyme, and were come with them in all partes of the hold, turned to the children of Israel that were with Saul and Jonathan. And they also which had hyd them selues in mount Ephraim, hearing that the Philistines were fled, put them selues in pcease with Sauls men, & pursued the Philistines, and so God holpe Israel that daye. And the battaile continued till they came to Bethauen. And the men of Israel loyned them selues together that day: and Saul adured the people saying: Cursed be he that eateth any fode vntill nyght, that I maye be auenged of myne enemyes. And so there was none of the people that tasted any fode. And all the land came to a wood, wher hony laye vpon the ground. And when the people were come into the wood: Beholde, hony dropped. Howe be it there was no man that moued his hande to his mouth, because that the people feared the curse. But Jonathan herde not when his father adured the people, wherfore he put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hand and dypte it in an hony combe, and put his hande to his mouth and forthwith his eyen receyued their old vigour and courage. Then spake one of the people and sayde: thy father adured the people, saying: Cursed be the man that eateth any fode this daye, and yet the people were saynt. Then sayde Jonathan: my father hath troubled the lande: for beholde my eyen haue recovered their power and strength, because I tasted a lytle of this hony: betw then yf all the people had eaten of the spoyles of their enemyes which they founde, had there not bene then a moche greater slaughter amonge the Philistines? And they layde on the Philistines that daye, frome Machmas to Galalon. But the people were exceedinglye saynt.

Then the people gat them to the spoyles, & toke shepe oxen and calues, and slewe them on the ground, and byd eate with the bloud. Then men tolde Saul, saying: Beholde the people synne agaynste the Lorde, in that they eate with the bloud. And he sayde: ye haue trespassed. But comle a greate stone vnto me now, and go abrode amonge the people and byd them byynge euery man his oxe, and euery man his shepe, and slay them here, & synne not agaynste the Lorde: in eatinge with the bloud. And the people broughte euery man his oxe in his hande by nyght and slewe them there. And Saul made an aultare vnto the Lorde, and that was the first aultare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saul sayde: Let vs go towarde after the Philistines by nyght: and let vs make hauocke amonge them till it be daye in the mornynge, and let vs not leaue one of them. And the people answered, what focure thou thinkest best. Then sayde the preast: Let vs come hyther vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shall I goo towarde after the Philistines? and wylt thou geue them into myne handes? But he answered him not at that tyme. Then sayde Saul, let the people come hyther out of all quarters, & knowe and se, in whome this synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lorde lyueth, whiche hath saued Israel, though it be in Jonathan my sonne, he shall dye for it. But no man answered him of all the people.

Then he sayde vnto all Israel: Be ye on one syde, and I and Jonathan my sonne wyl be on another. And the people sayde vnto Saul: What thou thinkest best that do. And Saul sayde vnto the Lorde God of Israel: geue perfect knowledge. And Saul and Jonathan

Jonathas were apprehended by the lotte, and the people escaped free. Then sayde Saul: cast lottes betwene me and Jonathas my sonne. Jonathas was taken by the lot. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathas told him and sayd:
I casted a lyric honze vpon the ende of my staffe that was in myne hande, and so, I must dye.

Then sayde Saul God deale so and so with me, but yf thou dyc Jonathas. But the people sayde vnto Saul: What Jonathas dyc whiche hath so mightely holpe Israel? God for byd, As trulie as the Lorde lyueth, there shal not one heare of his hee fall to the ground:
for he hath brought with God this daye.
And so the people deliuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saul ceased from followinge the Philistines. And the Philistines retourned to theyr owne place. And so Saul toke the kingdome ouer Israel, and foughte againg all his enemyes on every syde: againg the Moabites: againg the children of Ammon: againg the Edomites: againg the kynges of Zobah, and againg the Philistines.
And wher so euer he turned him self, there he wanne, and demeaned him selfe valiantly, and slew the Amalechites, and yde Israell oute of the handes of theym that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul were Jonathas, Jesur, and Melchishua. And his two daughters were thus named: the elder Merob, and the younger Michol. And the name of Saules wyfe was Ahinoam, the daughter of Ahima-as. And the name of his chiefe capitayne was Abner the sonne of Ner Saules uncle. And Ner was Saules father. And Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel. And there was fore warre with the Philistines, al the dayes of Saul. For wher so euer Saul sawe a stronge man, and an aduise, he toke him vnto him.

Then saide Samuel vnto Saul: ¶ Lord sent me to annoynt the, kringe ouer his people Israel. Nowe therefore obeye thou the voyce of the wordes of the Lord.
Thus saith the Lord of hostes: I haue castled to remembrance all that euer Amaleke hath done to Israel: how they laye in waite for them in the waite, as they came out of Egypte. Now therefore go and smyte the Amalekites, and destroye ye onely all that per-tayne vnto them, and so thou haue no compassion on them. But Sarai an and woman, infante and sucklinge, etc. were, camell, & alle.
And Saul gathered the people, and nombered them in Belaiim two hundred and threescore men, and ten thousand men of Iuda. And Saul came vnto a crosse of the Amalekites, & fought in a valley. But Saul and his men were: so he kepte a gette away from the Amalechites, lest I destroy you with them for I shew mercy to Israel when they came out of Egypt. And the Amalekites departed from the Amalechites. And Saul knew the Amalechites from Hevula to Sur that they were to Egypt, and took Agag the king of the Amalechites a prisoner, and utterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the sword. But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the best of the sheeps and of the oxen and fat thy-nges and the lambes and all that was good, & would not destroy them. But all that was nought worth and flaggie that they destroyed utterly. Then came the worde of the Lord vnto Samuel, saying: it hath bin thought me that I haue made Saul king. For he is turned from me and hath not fulfilled my comma-ndementes, wherfore Samuel was rapt away and cryed vnto the Lord, al night. And Samuel arose early, to meet Saul in the morning. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel, and hadde set him by a priser of triumph. And was turned and departed and gone to Galgal.

And when Samuel was come to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue done the commaundment off the Lorde. And Samuel answered: What meaneth then the bleatynge of the Shepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oxe which I heare? And Saul sayde: they haue brought them frome the Amalechites. For the people spare the best of the Shepe and of the oxen, to sacrifice vnto the Lorde thy God. And the rest we haue destroyed. But Samuel sayde to Saul: cease, and let me tell the what the Lord hath sayde to me this nyghte. And he sayde vnto hym: saye on. And Samuel sayd, when thou wast lyt in thine own sight, were thou not made the heede of the reprobis of Israel? And the Lorde annointed the, king ouer Israel. And then the Lorde sent the on a biage, and sayde vnto the, se thou vnto the Amalechites those sinners the Amalechites and fight against them, till ye haue utterly destroyed them, wherfore then hast thou not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde? But dydest turne to the praye and hast wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde?

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue heared the voyce of the Lorde, and wente the waye which the Lord sent me, & haue brought Agag the kynge of the Amalekites. And haue betterly destroyed the Amalekites. And the people take of the spoyle, sheepe, oren, and the cheifest of the thinges which shuld haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Gilgal. Then sayde Samuel, requirerth the Lorde burnt sacrifices and offerings, and not rather that thou shuldest obaye his voyce?
 Beholde, to obaye is better then offeringe, and to geue hyde, is better, then the fat of kine and bullocke. For rebelliousnesse is as the synne of witchcraft: and stubbornnesse is wyckednesse and idolatrye. Because therefore thou hast cast awaye the word of the Lorde: therefore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also / frome beinge kynge. Then sayde Saul to Samuel: I haue made him come befoze Samuel. And he sayd: Nether hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then Isai made Samah come, and he sayde: nether yet hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then made Isai seven of his sonnes come befoze Samuel. And Samuel sayd, the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

Then sayde Samuel to Iſai: Are here all thy children? And he ſayde: The yongest is yet bebynde: Beholde, he keepeth the ſhepe.
Then Samuel ſayde vnto Iſai: ſende and tell

The battayle of the Philistines agaynst Israel.
Tytell David ouercommeth great Goliath.

CAPL. XVII.

The Philistines gathered their hoste to battayle, and assembled at Socoh in Ju da, and pitched betwene Socoh and Azekah, in the ende of Bomm. And Saul and the men of Israel came and pitched in Gibe dale, and put them selues in arape, to fyghte agaynst the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyl on the one syde, and Israel on an hyl on the other syde, and a balcy betwene them. And then came a man and stode in the myddes, out of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth syre cubites and an handbryd long, and had an helmet of brasse vpon his heed, and a coote of mayle aboute him. And the weyght of his coote of mayle was fyue thousande sycles of brasse. And he hadde barnesse of brasse vpon his legges, and a bylde of brasse vpon his shoulers. And the shaft of his spere was lyke a weures beame. And his spere heed wayed fyue hundred sycles of yron. And one bearynge a bylde went befoze him.

And he stode and called vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayde vnto them: what needeth that ye shuld come out in arape to battaile? am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saule? chose you a man, and lett hym come downe to me, yf he be hable to fyght with me and to beate me, then we wyll be your seruantes. But if I can ouercom hym and beate hym: ye shall be our seruantes and serue vs. And the Philistine sayde: I haue despyed the hoste of Israel this daye, gyue me a man and let vs fyght to gyther. When Saule and al Israel herd those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged and greatly afrayed. Now Dauid was son of an Ephraimite of Bethlehem Juda, named Iai, whiche Iai hadde eyghre sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saule amonge the people. And the thye eldest sonnes of Iai went and folowed Saule to battaile. And the names of his thye sonnes that went to battaile, were: Eliab the eldest, and the mydschull Abinadab, and the younge Samah, and Dauid was the yongest. And when the eldred were gone after Saule, Dauid went and departed from Saule, to kepe his sheeps at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forth euer moynge and euenynge, and continued thus fouetye dayes. And Iai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: take for thy byrthien this spha of parched cozne, and theie ten lounes, and run to the host to thy brethien, and carye theie ten fleshe chekes vnto the captayne, and loke how thy byrthien face, and see out their pledges. And Saule and al the men of Israel were in oke valye fyghting with the Philistines. And Dauid arose by elpe in the moynge, and lefte the shepe with a keeper, and toke and went as Iai had commaunded hym, and came where the hoste laye. And the hoste was goinge out in arape, & wound in battaile: for Israel & the Philistines had put them selues in arape, the one agaynst the other. Then Dauid put his panice from hym, vnto the handes of the keeper of the byllets, and ranne in to the host & came and geered his brethien. And as he talked with them, Beholde, there stode a ma in the myddes Goliath the Philistine, by name, of Geth/whiche came out of the arape of the Philistines, and spake in the maner aboutheysed, that Dauid herde it. And all the men of Israel when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from hym, and were soze afrayed. And eueri man of Israel sayd: Se ye this ma that is come forth euen to teuple Israel is he come. And so hym that beate hym wyll the kyng gyue great riches, and wil gyue hym his daughter therefor, and make his fathers house free in Israel. Then spake Dauid to the men that stode by and sayd: What shall the man haue that beate this Philistine and take awaye the shame frome Israel? for what is this vncircumcised Philistine, that he shuld teuple the hoste of the sprynge God? And the people answered as is chersed, sayenge: thus shall he be rewarded that canne vanyquy the hym. And Eliab his eldred brother herde when he spake vnto the men, and was angere with Dauid & sayd: Why cameste thou amaye? and why whome hast thou left those shepe in the wilderness? I knowe thy pynde and the malice of thynne herte, that thou arte come to the battel. And Dauid answered, what haue I now done? is there any more saue a wege? And departed from hym into an other froue, and spake in the same maner, and the people answered hym agayne, as before. And then that herde the wordes which Dauid spake, wherled them before Saule, whiche caused hym to be fer. And Dauid sayde to Saule: Let mans herde saynt, for diebe of hym. Thy seruant will go and fight with this Philistine. And Saule sayde to Dauid agayne, thou arte not hable to go vnto this Philistine, to fight with hym. For thou arte but a childe, and he hath bene a man of warre eue from his youth. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saule, as the shepe kept his fathers shepe, there came a Lyon, & I herwyle a Beare, and toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote hym and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose agaynst me, I caught him by the beards and smote him, and slewe him. For both a Lyon and also a Beare hadde thy seruant slayne. And this vncircumcised Philistine shalbe as one of them, for his caplynge on the hoste of the sprynge God. And Dauid spake mozeouer, the Loyde that deliuered me out of the handes of the Lyon and out of the handes of the Beare, shall deliuer me also out of the handes of the Philistine.

Then sayde Saule to Dauid goo, and the Loyde be with the. And Saule put his raiment vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpon his heed, and put a coote of mayle vpon him, and girded Dauid with his owne swerde vpon his rapment. And he assayed howe he coude go, for he neuer pioned it. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saule: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene tised thereto, and put them of hym, & toke his staffe in his hand, and chose him fyue smoth stones out of a broke, and put them in a spegherdes bagge whiche he hadde, and toke his syngie in his hande, and went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and stode nere to Dauid, with the man that bare a bylde befoze foze hym. And when the Philistine looked and sawe Dauid: he disdayned hym, for he was but a yonglinge, roudye and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayde vnto Dauid: am I a dogge, that thou comest to me with a staffe? and he cursed Dauid in the name of his Godes. And he sayd to Dauid: come to me & I wyll gyue thy fleshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the feild. Then sayd Dauid to the Philistine: thou comest to me with a swerde, a speare, and a bylde: But I come to the, in the name of the Loyde of hostes, the God of the hoste of Israel on whom thou haste rayled. This daye shall the Loyde gyue the into my hande, and I shall smyte the and take thynne hed frome the, and I wil giue the carcases of the host of the Philistines this daye vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the earth, and all the worlde shall knowe, that there is a God in Israel. And all this companie shall knowe, that the Loyde fawth not with the swerde and speare. For the battaile is the Loydes, and he shall gyue vs in to our handes.

And when the Philistine arose and came and stode nere to Dauid, Dauid haded a stone to fyght agaynst the Philistine. And Dauid put his hand in his poke and toke out a stone and flange it, and smote the Philistine in his forhed that the stone sonke in to his forhed, and he fell grouelinge to the earth. And so Dauid ouercom the Philistine with a sling and a stone, and smote the Philistine and slewe hym. And because Dauid had no swerde in his hande, he ran and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke his swerde and byrwe it out of his whethe and slewe hym and cut of his hed therewith. And when the Philistines sawe their champion ded, they fled. And the men of Israel and of Juda arose and howled and folowed after the Philistines, tyll they came to the valley and vnto the gares of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe ded by the waye to Samraim euen vnto Beth and Akaron. And then the children of Israel returned from the slaye after the Philistines, and spoiled their tentes. And Dauid toke the hed of the Philistine, and broughte it to Ierusalem: But he put his armour in his tent. But when Saule sawe Dauid issue forth agaynst the Philistine, he sayd vnto Abner the captayne of his host: Abner, whose sonne is this yonge man? And Abner answered, as truly as thy soule lyueth, O kynge, I can not tell. Then sayde the kynge: Enquere thou, yf he be some noble mans sonne. And so when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke him and broughte him before Saule, with the hed of the Philistine in his hande. And Saule sayde vnto him: Whose sonne arte thou, thou yonge man? And Dauid answered the sonne of thy seruante Iai the Bethlehemit.

The fowle betwene Dauid and Ionathas. Saule had a daughter that Dauid married whiche was the daughter of Saule.

And when he had made an ende of speake vnto Saule, the soule of Ionathas was knyt with the soule of Dauid. In so moche, that he loued hym, as his owne soule. And Saule toke him that daye & would let him go no moze home to his fathers house. And Ionathas and Dauid bound them selues the one to the other, for Ionathas loued him as his owne lyfe. And Ionathas put of his owne cote that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, and thereto his manle, his swerde, his bowe, and his gyrdle. And Dauid went out to all that Saule sent him, and behaued hym selfe myselfe. And whē Saule had set him ouer his men of warre, he pleased all the people, and especyally them that were Saules seruantes.

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned from the slaughter of the Philistine, that women came out of all cyties of Israel syngynge & dauncynge, agaynst Saule, with tymbrelles, with ioys, and with fyddles. And the women that played, sange thereto, and sayde: Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousande. Then was Saule excedynge wrothe and the sayenge displeased him, and he sayd: They haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, and to me but a thousande, and what can he moze haue save the kyngdome? wherfore Saule looked a wyse on Dauid frome that daye forthward. And it happened on the moztowe, that the curly spytte sent of God came vpon Saule, so that he prophesied in the myddes of the house. And Dauid played on the instrument with his hande, as he was daply wot. And Saule had a speare in his hande, and howlde it, intendinge to haue naped Dauid to the wall. But Dauid auoyded out of his presence two tymes. For Saule was afearde of Dauid, because the Loyde was with him, and was departed from Saule. And then Saule put Dauid frome him & made him a capitayne ouer a thousande, and he wot out and in before the people. And Dauid was wyse in all his wynges, and the Loyde was with him. Wherfore when Saule sawe he was so excedynge wyse, he was afrayed of him. But all Israel & Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them. Then sayde Saule to Dauid. Beholde my eldred daughter Merob, her I will gyue the to wyfe: Onely play the man and fight the Loydes battailes. For Saule thought myne hande shall not be vpon hym, but the hande of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saule: * what am I? and what is my lyfe or the hyndred of my father in Israel, that I shulde be sonne in lawe to the kynge? But when the tyme was come that Merob Saules daughter shulde haue ben gyuen to Dauid, she was gyuen vnto Achish an other of Saules daughters loued Dauid. And when it was tyme that Saule the thinge pleased him well. And he sayde: I will gyue him her, that she maye be a snare to him, & byng the hande of the Philistines vpon him. And Saule

Saul sayde to David: thou shalt this day be my sonne in law agayne. And Saul commaunded his seruantes, to comen with David secretlye and saye: Beholde the King hath a labour to the, and all his seruantes loue the, be therfore the Kinges sonne in lawe.

And Sauls seruantes spake those wordes in the eares of David. But David answered: seemeth it to you a lyght thinge to be the Kinges sonne in lawe, when I am a poore man and of small reputation? And Sauls seruantes tolde him agayne, saying: in this maner answered David. Then sayd Saul: this will saye to David: the Kinge caryeth for no other dowrye but for an hundred foreskins of the Philistines to be aduenged of the Kinges enemies. For Saul thought to make David fall in to the hands of the Philistines.

Then his seruantes tolde David these wordes, and it pleased David well to be the Kinges sonne in lawe. And shortly after Sauls arrow, with his men, and went and slew of the Philistines, two hundred men, and broughte their foreskins, and nombred them vnto the Kinge for to become his sonne in lawe.

¶ 1. Sam. xlii.

And so Saul gaue him Michol his daughter to wyfe. And when Saul sawe and vnderstode, that the Lord was with David, & that Michol his daughter loved him, he was the more afraid of David, and became Dauids enemye for euer. And when the Philistines went out to warre, David begaued him selfe more mysely then all the seruantes of Saul: so that his name was moche set by.

¶ Saul commaundeth to slea David. Michol his wyfe toucheth him by a proper feat, and receiveth her father. Saul is also amonge the Prophetes.

CAP. XIX.

¶ 1. Sam. xlii.

Then Saul communed with Jonathan his sonne, and with all his seruantes, that they shoulde kill David. ¶ But Jonathan Sauls sonne had a great fauoure to David, and tolde David sayenge: Saul my father goeth about to slea the. Now therfore take heed to thy selfe in season, and abyde in some secret place and hyde thy selfe. And I will go ouer and stande by my father in the felde where thou art, and will comen with my father of the, and if I can perceyue ought, I will tell the.

¶ 1. Sam. xlii.

And Jonathan spake good of David vnto Saul his father and sayde vnto him: let not thy kynge synne against his seruante David: for he hath not trespassed against the, and his workes are towards the very good. For he hath put his life in his hande and slewe the Philistines, and the Lord gaue a great victory to all Israel. And thou shalt see it, and thou shalt see it, wherefore thou shouldest thou synne against innocent bloude, and slea David for nought? And Saul harkened vnto the voyce of Jonathan and swaie: as truly as the Lord lyueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathan tolde David and shewed him all those wordes, and brought him to Saul. And he was in his presence as in times past. And the warre began agayne, and David went out and fought with the Philistines and made a great slaughter, and put them to flight. And the cup of the Lord was upon Saul as he sat in his house hawking a Fauelinge in his hande, and David played with his hande. And Saul extended to naye David to the wall with the Fauelinge: But David epe him selfe out of Sauls presence, and so he smote the spear in to the wall. But David fled and saved his selfe that nyght. Then Saul sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to sle in awaye of hym and to slea him in the morninge. But Michol his wyfe tolde it him, sayenge: If thou wilt not thy selfe this nyght, to morrow thou shalt be a deed man. And so Michol let David come thow a wyndow, and he went and fled and saved him selfe. And then he took an Image and layde it in the bed, and put a pillow of fed with goates heare vnder the head of it, & covered it with a cloth. And when Sauls messengers to slea David, they sayde that he was like: Then Saul sent the messengers: se David, sayenge: bringe him to me, dead or all, that he maye be slayne. And when the messengers were come in: Beholde, there lay an Image in the bed, with a pillow of goates heare vnder the head of it. Then sayd Saul to Michol: Why hast thou mocked me, and sent awaye myne enemye that he is dead? And Michol answered Saul: He slea vnto me, let me go, or else I will kill the. And so David fled and escaped and went to Hamath to Ramath and told him that Saul had done to him. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Ramoth.

And it was told Saul sayenge: Beholde, David is at Ramoth in Ramath, then Saul sent messengers to sle David. And when they saw a compaignie of Prophetes prophesying, and Samuel teachinge them, the spirit of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, & they prophesied to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesied lyke wyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thirde tyme whiche prophesied also. Then went he him selfe to Ramath, and when he came to a greete well that is in Ramoth, he asked and sayde: Where are Samuel and David? And they sayde: Se they be at Ramoth in Ramath, and as he wente thither to Ramoth in Ramath the spirit of God cam vpon hym also, and he wente prophesying, till he came to Ramoth in Ramath. And he slewe of his clothes and prophesied before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all that daye and all that nyght, wherefore it is a women sayenge: Is Saul also amonges the Prophetes?

¶ David beyng in lecherous complacency with Jonathan Jonathan despyereth him. A polye was used betwene them: by which David quitted the intent of Saul.

CAP. XX.

XX.

And David fled from Ramoth in Ramath and went before Jonathan, and sayd: What haue I done? wherein am I faulted? what is the synne that I haue committed agaynst thy father that he seeketh my life? And Jonathan answered hym: God forbid, thou shalt not dye. For se, my father will do nothinge neyther great ne small, but that he will shewe me. For why shoulde my father hyde this thinge frome me? I knowe not. And David swaie agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes and therfore he thyndeth, Jonathan shall not knowe it, lest he be sorry. For in dede, as truly as the Lord lyueth, and as truly as thy soule lyueth, there is but a step betwene me and death. Then sayde Jonathan to David, what so euer thy soule desireth, I will do vnto the. And David sayde vnto Jonathan: Beholde, to morrow be the Kalendes, and I shoulde sit with the Kinge at meat. But let me go that I maye hyde my selfe in the felde vnto this daye the dayes at euen.

¶ If thy father myse me, saye: David asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehe to his own cytie, for there is holden a pelye feast for all his kynne. And if thy father say thus: It is well done, then thy seruant shall haue praye. But if he be angrye: be sure, thykednesse to thyselfe concluded of hym. And then thou shalt shewe mercy vnto thy seruant, for thou hast made with me thy seruant a bond in the Lord. Notwithstandinge if there be in me any trespass, slep me thy selfe, for what art thou to bringe me to thy father? And Jonathan answered: God kepe frome the, that I shoulde knowe, that thykednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the: and shoulde not tell it the. Then sayde David, who shall tell me, if thy father answer cruelly? Jonathan sayde to David: Come and let vs go forth into the felde. And they went both of them into the felde. Then Jonathan sayde vnto David: O Lord God of Israel, when I haue groped my fathers mynde, at any tyme or other, with this thre dayes, that it stande well with David: and I then slea not vnto the, and shew it the, the Lord be so and so vnto Jonathan. And in lyke maner, I will shew the, and sende the away: that thou mayst go in praye. And the Lord be with the, as he hath bene with my father.

And thou shalt performe vnto me the mercy of the Lord, not onely whyle I lyue, but also when I am deed, plucke not the mercye awaye frome my house for euer. No, not whyle the Lord hath destroyed the enemies of David euer one frome the face of the earth. And so Jonathan made a bonde with the house of David, despying that the Lord shoulde sle out of the hands of Dauids enemies their wykednesse. And with other wordes Jonathan adured David, because he loued him. For as his owne soule he loued hym.

But on the thirde daye come in any wyse vnto the place where thou shalt hyde thy selfe, when it is morcheday: euen by the stone wall. And I will shote thre arrowes by the one syde therof, as though I shoute at a marke, and will sende after, a lad, and byd him goe seke the arrowes. If I saye vnto the lad: Se the arrowes are on this syde the, bringe them: then come thou: for it is praye, and nothinge to woe, as sure as the Lord lyueth. But if I saye thus vnto the ladde, Beholde, the arrowes are beyonde the, then flee, for the Lord hath sent the awaye. And of this which thou and I haue spoken: beholde, the Lord is witness betwene the and me for euer. And so David byd him selfe in the felde. And when the Kalendes came, the King sat hym downe at meate, to thynke to eate. And the Kinge sat him downe after the accustomed maner, in his seate by the wall. And Jonathan arose, & Abner late by Sauls syde, and Dauids place was emptye, but yet Saul sayde nothinge at all that daye. For he thought, some thinge hadde chaunced him, wherby he was not cleane. But on the morrowe after the Kalendes, when Dauids place appeared emptye, Saul sayde vnto Jonathan his sonne, wherfore cometh not the sonne of Isai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor to day. And Jonathan answered vnto Saul. David asked licence of me to go to Bethlehem sayenge: let me go I praye the, for our kynde holdeth an offering in the cytie, and my brother hath sent for me. Howe therfore if I haue founde fauoure in thyne eyes, let me go, and se my brethren. And for this cause he cometh not vnto the Kinges table. Then was Saul angrye with Jonathan and sayde vnto him: O Jonathan, and rebellious childe, thinkest thou I knowe not how thou hast chosen the sonne of Isai vnto thyne owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and shame of thy mother? For as long as I liue of Isai lyueth vnto the earth, thou shalt not be established, nor yet thy kyngdome, wherfore now sende and fet him vnto me, & for he is the childe of death.

But Jonathan answered Saul his father and sayde to him: wherfore shoulde he dye? what hath he done? When Saul cast a spear at him to bye him, wherby Jonathan wiste well, that it was vtterlye determined of his father, to sle David. Then Jonathan arose frome the table in a great anger, and byd eate no meate the seconde daye of the Kalendes, for he was sorry for David, because his father had done him shame. On the nexte morninge Jonathan wente oute in to the felde, at the tyme appointed with David, and a lytle lad with hym. And he sayde vnto the boye, run and sende oute myne arrowes whiche I wrote. And as the boye ranne, he wrote an arrowe beyonde him. And when the ladde was come to the place whether Jonathan hadde shote the arrowe, Jonathan cryed after him, & sayd: the arrowe is beyonde the. And he cryed after the lad / haste, make speede and stande not still. And Jonathan laded gathered by the arrowe and came to his master. But the lad wiste nothinge.

things of the matter: Onely Jonathas and David told it. Then Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto the Lab, and sayd vnto him: goe and care them to the towne. And as sone as the lab was gone, David arose out of a place that was toward the south and fel on his face to the ground, and bowed him selfe thre tymes. And they kyssed eether other and wept together, but David more abundantly. And Jonathas sayde to David: go in fear of suche thinges as we haue sworne eether of vs in the name of the Lorde, sayenge: The Lorde be betwene the and me, and betwene thy seide and myne for euer. And he arose and departed. And Jonathas wente in to the towne.

David flieth in to Nob to Achimelech the prest, and getteth the euerbread to satisfye his hunger. After he flieth to kynge Achis, and there sayneth him selfe mad.

CAP. I.

XXI.

Then came David to Nob to Achimelech the prest: And Achimelech was astonied at his comminge and went to meete David and sayde vnto him: Why comest thou thy selfe alone, and no man with thee? And David sayde to Achimelech the prest: The kynge hath commaunded me to do a certayne thing and sayde vnto me, lette no man knowe whereabout I send the and what I haue commaunded the to do. And therefore I haue appointed my seruantes to such places. And nowe what haue thou vnder thyne hande? geue me fyue loaves of vnes or what cometh to hande. And the prest answered David and sayde: There is no vne bread vnder myne hande, but there is halowen bread, for the younge men haue aduoynted onely to come to me. And David answered the prest and sayd vnto him: O a truthe women hath bene looked by some be about a thre dayes, when we came out: and the vessels of the younge men were helpe. How be it if we haue taken anye breche by the waye this daye, it shall be halowen in the vessels. And so the prest gaue him halowen bread, for there was none other bread there save them breads, that were taken frome before the Lorde, to put freewe bread there.

And there was the same daye a certen man of the seruantes of Saul within the tabernacle of the Lorde named Doeg an Edomite, the chyke of Sauls herde men. And David sayde vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thyne hande eether speare or swerde? for I haue neede thereof, because the kynge's busynes requyred hath. Then the prest answered: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine whome thou slewest in the vale of Berach, that is here waped in a cloth behynd the Ephod. If thou wilt take that, take it: for there is none other save that here. And David sayde: there is none to that, geue it me. And David arose and fledde the same daye from the presence of Saul, and went to Achis the kynge of Geth. And the seruantes of Achis sayde of him: Is not this David the kynge of the lande? vnder whose hande this felowe in daunces, sayenge: Saul hath slayne his thousande, and David hath slayne his thousande? And David put those wordes into his heart and was sore aspayde of Achis the kynge of Geth. And he chaunged his countenance before them, and rauid in their handes, and scrabled on the wyres of the gate, and let his spittell fall downe vpon his bearde. The sayd Achis vnto his seruant. Lo ye sawe that this man was besyde him selfe, wherfore the Lorde hath brought him to me? lacke I mad men, that ye haue brought this felowe to playe the mad man in my presence? he shal not come into my house.

David flieth in to the caue of Hollam, and thence in to Gath to the kynge of Moab, and thence in to Gath. Doeg betrayeth David. Achimelech is accused of treason and slayne, and some saye and foure preastes mo with him: because they refused David. Nob is destroyed of Saul. The char flieth to David.

CAP. II.

So David departed thence and escaped, and came vnto the caue of Hollam, wher he hid his breche: and all his fathers house knew of, they went thither to him. And there they vnto him all such as were in distress and in der and troubled in their heertes, & he made their capitayne, and there were with him aboute foure hundred men. And David went thence to Gath in the land of Moab, and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and mother (I pray the) haue their abydinge with you, till I knowe what the Lorde will to with me. And he brought them vnto the kynge of Moab, and they dwelte with him all the whyle that David kept him selfe in holdes. And the prophete Gad, sayde vnto David: Abyde not in holdes, but departe and go to the lande of Iuda. Then David departed and came into the forrest of Hareth. And Saul herde of it: for David was knowne and all the men that were with him. And as Saul sat in Gabaah vnder a groue vpon an hyll bancke with his speare in his hande, and all his men round about him, he sayde vnto his seruantes that were about him. Heare ye, ye sonnes of Beniamin: Wylle the sonne of Iai also geue euerie one of you felde and bynye parces, and make you all graunde capitaynes and petre capitaynes, that ye haue all conspired agaynst me, so that there is none that shal helpe me any thinge, in so moche that myn hath made a confederacie with the sonne of Iai? There is none of you that betrayeth my chaunce? Weweth it in myne eare: because my sonne hath set vp my seruant to speare me agaynst me, as appeareth this daye. Then answered Doeg the Edomite, which he was chyefe of the seruantes of Saul, and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Iai, wher he came to Nob, to Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, whiche sought counsell of the Lorde for him, and gaue him byracles, & the swerde of Goliath & Philistine also. Then the kynge sent to call Achimelech the prest the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house: that is to saye, the preastes that were in Nob. And they came all to the kynge. Then Saul sayde: heare thou sonne of Achitob. And he sayde: here I am my Lorde. Then sayd Saul to him: why haue ye conspired agaynst me, thou and the sonne of Iai, in so moche that thou hast geue him byracles and a swerde, & hast sought counsell of God for him, that he shoulde aryse agaynst me, and be as my enemy as appeareth this daye? And Achimelech answered the kynge & sayd: who is amonge all thy seruantes as the faythfull David and the kynge's sonne in lawe, and goeth at thy byddenge, and is had in honoure in thyne house? haue I this daye begone to aske counsell of God for him? he is my face some me: lette not the kynge suspect agaynst his seruant anye such thinge in all the house of my father. For thy seruant knoweth nothinge of all this, eether lytle or moche.

But the kynge sayde: thou shalt surely dye Achimelech, bothe thou and all thy fathers house. Then sayde the kynge vnto his souldiers that stood about him: euerie and sleie the preastes of the Lorde, bothe because their hande is with David, and because they kene me when David fled and shewed it not to me. But the seruantes of the kynge wolde not moue their handes, to run vpon the preastes of the Lorde. Then sayde the kynge to Doeg: tourne thou and sleie the preastes. And Doeg the Edomite turned and ranne vpon the preastes and slewe that same daye foure shote and fyue pre somes that dyd weare eche man a linnen Ephod. And Nob the cite of the preastes he smote with the edge of the swerde, both man and woman, chylde and suckylinge, with ore alle and wepe. Yet one of the sonnes of Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, named Abiathar escaped and fled to David, and shewed hym that Saul had slayne the Lorde's preastes. The David sayde vnto Abiathar: I wylle if I same daye, that wher Doeg the Edomite was there, he wolde surely tell it Saul. I am canse of the death of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde with me and feare not: he that seeketh thy soule, shall see myne, and with me thou shalt be in sauegarde.

David deliuereth Keilah, and flieth in to the wilderness of Ziph. He is comforted of Jonathas. The Ziphites wolde haue betrayed him.

CAP. III.

XXIII.

Then they tolde David, sayenge: Beholde, the Philistines fight agaynst Keilah, and spoyle the barnes. David there fore asked the Lorde aduple, sayenge: Shall I goe and sleie the Philistines? And the Lorde sayde vnto David: Go and sleie the Philistines, and saue Keilah. Then sayd David vnto his men: Se, we be aspayde here in Iuda. What shall we then be, when we come to Keilah, to the host of the Philistines? Then David asked the Lorde agayne. And the Lorde answered him and sayde, aryse, and go to Keilah, for I wylle geue the Philistines into thyne handes. So David and his men went to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines: and dyde awaye thre catel and made a great slaughter of them. And so David saued the inhabitants of Keilah. Nowe it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Achimelech, had fled to David to Keilah, that he broughte an Ephod in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that David was come to Keilah. Then sayd Saul: God hath geuen him into myne hande. For he is shut in: for he is come into a towne where be bothe gates and barres. And Saul called all his people to warre, for to goe to Keilah, to besyge David and his men. But David had knoweledge that Saul purely imagined mischief against him, and sayde to Abiathar the prest: * Wyng the Ephod. Then sayde David, O Lorde God of Israel, thy seruant heareth, that Saul is about to come to Keilah to destroye the cite for my sake: wylle the elders of Keilah deliuer me into his hande? or wylle Saul come as thy seruante heareth saye? Lorde God of Israel tell thy seruant. And the Lorde sayde: He will come. Then sayde David: Wylle the men of Keilah deliuer me and my men into the hande of Saul? & the Lorde sayd: they will deliuer you.

Then David and his men which were by a fire handied, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went here and there, they knew not togethere. And when it was tolde Saul, that David was fled frome Keilah, and so in sauegarde, he let the tourneye alone. And David abode in the wilderness in stronge holdes, & in a mountayne in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul sought him all his lyfe, but God deliuered him not into his hande. And David sawe that Saul was come out, to seke his lyfe but David was in the wilderness of Ziph in a covert. And Jonathas Sauls sonne arose & went to David to the covert, and strenghted him in God, and sayde vnto him: Feare not, for the hand of Saul my father shal not fynd the, but thou shalt be kynge ouer Israel, and I muste be next vnto the. Yea, and Saul my father knoweth that it shall be so. And they made a bonde together before the Lorde, & David sayed syl in the wood, but Jonathas went to his house.

Then came the Ziphites to Saul vnto Gabaah, sayenge: David hydeh him selfe saue by vs in stronge holdes that are in a covert in the hill of Hachilah on the eyghteside of the wilderness. Nowe therefore sye kynge, come downe with all the lust that thy soule hath to come. And if we haue our partes to deliuer him into the handes of thy kynge. Then sayd Saul: Blessed are ye in the Lorde: for ye haue compassion on me. God, I praye you, and make more natowly, and knowe and se his haunte, S. G. whers

Where his fote hath bene, and wto hath fene him there: for it is tolde me he is very wylly. He therfore and knowe all the loyngne places where he loutheth, and come agayne to me with the certentye. And I will goo with you. Yea and if he will byde him selfe in the grounde, yet I will hunt him out, with all the thousandes of Iuda. And they arose and went to Ziph before Saul. But David and his men were in the wilderness of Maon, in the wyld felde, on the ryght hande of the wilderness. For when Saul was gone with his men to seke, it was tolde David. And therfore he went unto a rocke and dwelt in the wilderness of Maon, whiche when Saul hearde, he pursued after David in to the wilderness of Maon. But Saul and his men went one the one syde of the mountayne, and David and his men on the other. And David as a man amf ard, made haste to gette frome Saul. For Saul and his men had compassed David & his men round about, to take them. Then there came a messenger to Saul, sayinge: Haste the and come, for the Philistines haue invaded & do dispoyle the lande. Wherfore Saul returned frome persecutinge David, and made agayne the Philistines. And therfore the place is called * Seia Waphelecorth. And then David went thence and dwelt in stronge holdes at Engaddi.

* That is the rock of pynne

David fleyth into Engaddi and there hideth him. Saul cometh in thyt her to do his caliments and David cutteth off the border of his miter. David goeth out of the caue after Saul and speaketh to him.

CAP. XXIIII

When Saul was come agayne frome the Philistines, there were that tolde him, sayinge: behold, David is in the wilderness of Engaddi. Then Saul tooketh three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went to seke David and his men in the rockes, where nothinge haunted but wyld geasses. And he came to the flockes of Shepe, by a wayes syde where was a caue. And Saul wote in couer his fete. And David and his men sat a longe by the sydes of the caue. And the men of David sayde vnto him, the daye is come of which the Lorde sayde vnto the: Behold, I will deliuer thyne enemye into thyne hand, and thou shalt doo with him what it pleaseth the. Then David arose and cut of a lappe of Sauls cote pynely. And forthwith Davids herf smote him, because he had cut of a lappe of Sauls cote. And he sayde vnto his men: The Lorde kepe me frome wyng that thinge vnto my master that is the Lorde: as annoynted, so laye myne hande vpon him, for he is the Lorde annoynted. And so David kept of his seruantes with wordes, and suffered them not to set vpon Saul. And when Saul was risen out of the caue, and went forward on his iourney, David arose and went out of the caue and cryed after Saul, sayinge: My lord kyng. And Saul looked behynde him. And David clouped to the earth and bowed him self, and sayd to Saul: Wherfore gnest thou an eare to mens wordes, that saye, David seeketh the euill? Beholde, this daye thyne eyes haue fene, that the Lorde had deliuered the, into myne hande in the caue. And when they had kylled the, thyne eye had compassion on the. And I sayde: I will not lay my handes on my master, for he is the Lorde annoynted, but rather my father, se yet and acknowledge this the lap of the cote in my hande. And in almoste as I kylled the not also, when I cut of the of thy cote, vnderstande and se, that thine neyther euill ne rebellion in me, and that I haue not spinned agaynst the. And yet thou wilt after my soule to destroye it. The Lorde be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lorde auenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpon the. Accordyng to the oide Prouerbe: Wpkebnelle shall pcedde out of the wycked: but myne hande shall not be vpon the. After which arte thou come out, thou kyng of Israel? What is he whome thou chasest? Certes euen a deede wyge, and a flee. The Lorde be iudge, and let him seme betwene the and me, and let iudge my cause, and deliuer me out of thyne hande. When David had made ende of speakyng all these wordes to Saul, Saul sayde: Is this thy voyce my sonne David? And he lyfte vp his voyce and wepte, and sayde to David: Thou arte ryghteouser then I, for thou hast rewarded me with good, & I haue requyted the with euill. And thou hast shewed this daye how lounyngly thou hast dealt with me, that when the Lorde had looked me in thyne handes, thou shewest me not. For when he shall fynde his enemye wote let him departe in a good waye. Wherfore the Lorde reward the with good, for that thou hast done vnto me this daye. And nowe farewell, as I knowe assuredly that thou shalt be king, and that the kyngdome of Israel shall be thyne. And thou shalt be blessed in thyne hande: Swere vnto me, my the Lorde, that thou shalt not destroy my name out of my fathers house: & David swore vnto Saul, So Saul went home, but David and his men gat them vp vnto an holde.

Samuel dyeth. David fleyth to the wilderness of Maon. He is angrye with Nabal: but repayed by the wysdome of Abigail. Nabal dyeth, and David marryeth Abigail.

CAP. XXV

Then Samuel dyed, and all Israel stoned and lamented him and buried him in his owne house at Ramath. But David arose & gat him to the wilderness of Maon. And there was a man in Maon / whose cattell was in Carmel, & the man was called Nabal, & he had three thousande shepe & a thousande golles. And he was dwelling his wyfe in Carmel. The name of the man was Nabal, & the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and was a woman of good wysdome & bewtyfull. But the man was churly & of thynkeless diuions, & was a Calbute. And when David herde in the wilderness, that Nabal shate his shepe, he sent out ten of his younge men, and sayd vnto them: get you vp to Carmel and go to Nabal and grete him in my name. And thus wile saye vnto my frinde: pear be to the, pear be to thine house, and praye be vnto all that thou hast. I haue herde saye thou hast shepers. Now, thy sheperdes were with vs, & we did them no despite ne villanye, neyther was there ought missyng vnto them, all the while they were with vs in Carmel: aske the seruantes, & they will shewe the. Wherfore let these yonge men fynde fauour in thine eyes: for we come in a good season. & giue (I praye the) whatsoeuer cometh to thine hande, vnto thy seruantes and to thy sonne David. So Davids younge men came and tolde Nabal all those wordes in the behalfe of David and then stopped. Then Nabal answered Davids seruantes and sayde: what is David? and what is the sonne of Israhel? there is plenty of seruantes now a dayes, that breake away from their masters. Shuld I take my breed, my water and my flesch that I haue kylled for my shepers, and giue it vnto men which I wote not whence they be? The Davids seruantes turned their waye / and went agayne, and came and tolde him accordyng to all those sayenges. Then David said vnto his men: gyde euery man his swerde aboute him. And they gyrd euery man his swerde on him, and David thereto gyrd on his swerde. And so there folowid David aboute foure hundred men, and two hundred aboue by the staffe. But one of the seruantes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, sayenge: Se David sent messengers vnto our master out of the wilderness to salute him, & he caryed them. And yet the men were very good vnto vs and dyd vs no displeasure, neyther mysd we any thinge, as longe as we were conuersant w them, when we were in the felde. Yea they were a wall of defence vnto vs, both by night and by daye, all the while we were with the shepe. Nowe take hede and se, what thou hast to do, for my chiefe is concluded to be done vnto our master and to all his household. And he is vngracious to speake to. The Abigail marre had and took two hundred loaves and two botelles of wyne and foure shepe wyde dressed, and foure measures of parched corne, and an hundred bondelles of rekings, & two hundred trayles of egges, and laded them on asses, and sayde vnto her yonge men: go before me, and so I come after you, & tolde her husbande Nabal nothinge therof. And as he rode on her asse, & was commyng wtowne in a shade of the hyll, David and his men came wtowne agaynst her, and she met them. And David sayde: in daye haue I kept all that this felowe hadde in the wilderness: so that nought was mysd that percapned vnto him, for he hath acquyted me with euill for good. So and so God too vnto the enemyes of David, as I will not leaue of all that percapne to him, by the dawninge of the daye, ought that pisseth agaynst the wall. When Abigail sawe David, she halted and byd a lyte of her asse, and fell before David on her face, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and fell at his fete and sayde: Let this unhappye dede be accompted myne, my Lorde, and let thyne handemayde speake in thyne audience, and heare the wordes of thy handemayde. Let not my Lorde regarde this vnchastyt ma Nabal, for as his name is, so is he. Nabal is his name, and folly is with him. But I thyne handemayde sawe not the younge men of my Lorde which thou sendest. And now my Lorde as truly as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, the Lorde hath withholden the frome rompyng to wode bloude, and frome anengyng thy selfe with thyne owne hande. Furthemore I praye God that thyne enemyes and they that intende to doo my Lorde euill, maye be as Nabal. And now take this blessinge, whiche thyne handemayde hath brought to the my Lorde, let it be gyren vnto the younge men that folowme my Lorde. For gyue the trespass of thyne handemayde that the Lorde maye make my Lorde a sure house because my Lorde sighteth the battelles of the Lorde, and there could no euill be founde in the, in all thy lyfe. And yf any man arse to persecute the, and to seke thy soule, the soule of my Lorde mought be persecuted as it were in a bondell of luyngge thinges, with the Lorde thy God. And the soules of thy enemyes be longe in the myddle of a spyng. And when the Lorde shall haue woe to my Lorde all the good that he hath promysed the, and shall haue made the, ruler ouer Israel: then shall it be no grudge of conscience vnto the or discouraige of herte vnto my Lorde, that thou widdest bloude causelesse, and bydest auenge thy selfe.

And when the Lorde shall haue dealt well with my Lorde, thinke on thyne handemayde. Then sayde David to Abigail: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel which sent the this day to mete me. And blessed be thy behauiour, and blessed be thou which hast kept me this daye frome bloudsheddinge, and frome anengyng my selfe with myne owne hande. For in deede as surely as the Lorde God of Israel lyueth, who hath kept me backe frome huryng the, excepte thou haddest halld and met me, there hadde not bene left vnto Nabal by the dawninge of the daye, a pisset agaynst the wall. And so David receyued of her hande that she brought, and sayd to her: go in praye to thyne house. So I haue obeyed thy voyce and haue receyued the to grace.

And when Abigail returned to Nabal: behold, he helde a feast in his house lyke a feast of a kyng, and Nabals herte was merry with in him, for he was well dyonke. Wherfore she tolde him naught neyther lyte nor morbe tyll the morowe. But in the moynyng, when Nabal hadde dygged the wyne, his wyfe tolde him these wordes, and his herte dreyd wnt in him, and he became as a stone, and vpon a ten dayes after the Lorde smote Nabal, that he dyed. Whiche when David herde that Nabal was ded, sayde: Blessed be the Lorde that hath wged the cause of my rebuke.

So. id. of the of the hande of Nabal, and hath kept his seruauunt from euill, and hath turned the wickednesse of Nabal vpon his owne heed. So Dauid sent to comen with Abigail, to thin- tent to take her to his wife. And when the seruantes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her, sayinge: Dauid sent vs vnto the, to take the to his wyfe. And she arose and fell on her face to the erthe and sayde: Beholde, thy hand maye be a ser- uauunt to waite the fete of the seruantes of my Lorde. And Abigail hastened and arose and gat her vpon an Asse, with. v. damoselles of hers that went at her fete, and went after the messengers of Dauid and was his wyfe. Dauid also take Abinoan of Jezrahel, and they were both his wiues. But Saul gaue Michol his daughter Dauids wife to Phalt the sonne of Laish of Gallim.

C Saul cleareth in his tent, And Dauid taketh a way his speare and a cruise of water, that stode at his heade.

CAPL.

XXVI.

After that came 3 Ziphites vnto Saul to Gabaah, sayinge: Dauid hyeth hym self in 3 hill of Bachilah before 3 wil- dernesse. Then Saul arose and went to the wilderness of Ziph and thre thousand cho- sen men of Israel with him, to take Dauid in the wilderness of Ziph. And Saul pitched in the hill of Bachilah whiche lyeth before the wilderness, by the wayes syde. But Dauid dwelt in the wilderness. And when he sawe that Saul pursued him into the wilderness, he sent forth spyes and vnderstode that Saul was come in thre.

Wherefore Dauid arose and went to the place where Saul had pitched, and behelde the place where Saul lay with Abner the son of Ner, his chiefe captayne. For Saul laye within a counte banke, and the people py- ched round about him. Then answered Dauid and spake to Abimelech the Bethite and to Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah and brother to Joab, sayinge: Who will go towne with me to Saul to the hoste? and Abisai sayde: I will goo towne with the. And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by nyght. And be- holde, Saul laye slepyng within a rounde banke, and his speare pyched in the ground at his heade, Abner & the people spenge round about him. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath inclosed thynne enemy vnto thynne hand this daye. Now therefore let me smyte him I pray the with my speare to the earth, but one stroke, and it shall neede no more. But Dauid sayde to Abisai: destroy him not, for who can laye his hande on the Lordes annointed and be guiltlesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as truly as the Lord lyueth, oncles 3 Lord shall smyte him, or his daye shall come to dye or he shall descende into battell and there per- rysh: the Lord kepe me from laying myne hande vpon the Lordes annointed. Now the take the speare that is at his heade, and the cruise of water, and let vs goo. And Dauid toke the speare and the cruise of water that was at Sauls heade, and they gat them away and no man sawe or wist it or awoke. For they were all a slepe, because the Lord had smit a slumber vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer to chocher syde and stode on the topp of a hill a farr of (a great space beyng betwene them) and cryed to the people and to Abner the sonne of Ner, sayinge: Answerest thou not Abner? and Abner answered and sayd: What art thou that cryest to the kynge? and Dauid sayde to Abner: art not thou a man, and who is lyke the in Israel? But wherfore hast thou not kept thy Lorde the kynge? for there came one of the folke to destroy the kynge thy Lord. It is not good that thou hast done. As truly as the Lord lyueth ye are worthy to dye, be- cause ye haue no better kepte the Lordes an- nointed. And now se where the kynge lyeth is, and the cruise of water, that was at his heade.

Then Saul hearde Dauids voyce & sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and Dauid sayde: it is my voyce my Lorde kynge. And he sayd further wherfore doest thou thus? what euill is in myne hande? Nowe haue therfore my Lorde kynge the wordes of thy seruauunt. If the Lorde haue swared the by a gainst me, let him smell the sacrifice. But if they be the children of men, cursed be they be- fore the Lorde. For they haue caste me out so that I can not dwell in the inheritance of 3 Lord, sayinge: hence & go serue other Gobbes. And yet I hope my bloude shall not fall to the earth before the face of the Lorde, though the kynge of Israel be come out to hunt one like as men hunt the partridge in the mountayns. Then spake Saul: I haue sinned: come agayne my sonne Dauid for I will do the no more harme, because my soule was precious in thynne eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue playd the foile and haue erred exceedinge moche. And Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde the kyn- ges speare, let one of the younge men come ouer and set it. The Lord requarde euery man rightwysnesse and faith: for the Lorde dis- tressed the into my hand this day, but I wold not laye myne hande vpon the Lordes annointed. And as thy lyfe was moche set bye thynne eyes in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set bye thynne eyes of the Lorde, that he deliuer me out of all tribulations. And Saul sayde to Dauid: Blessed arte thou my sonne Dauid, for thou shalt be a war and also habile to bringe to an ende. And so Dauid went his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

Dauid fleeth to Achis kynge of Geth, which enueth him zikeleg to dwell in the hillside the Philistines. And when Achis demaund agaynst him what he had done, he pteyth him a libyell and warr and deceyueyth hym properlye.

CAP.

XXVII.

Then thought Dauid in his heart: I maye perishe at one daye or other by the handes of Saul. There is no better thing for me then to flee in to the lande of the Philistines, that Saul of verie dyspayre to fynde me, maye cease to charge me any more in all the coostes of Israel: for so I may escape his hand. And Dauid arose, and he and the sixe hundred men that were with him went vnto Achis the sonne of Maach kynge of Geth. And Dauid dwelte in Achis at Geth, bothe he & his men, every man with his household, and Dauid with his two wyues: Abinoan the Jezrahelite and Abigail Sabals wife of Carmel. So whē it was told Saul 3 Dauid was fled to Geth, he soughte no more for him. And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: If I haue founde grace in thynne eyes, let me haue a place in some towne in the feldest, that I maye dwell there. For what wolde thy ser- uauunt dwell in the heed cipe of the kingdome with the? Then Achis gaue him Zikeleg the same daye for which cause Zikeleg perceyueyth vnto the kynge of Iuda vnto this daye. And the tyme that Dauid dwelte in the countrey of the Philistines, was a yere and foure mo- nethes. And Dauid and his men went and ran vpon the Getherites, the Geryites, and the Ama- lechites, whiche nacions were from the be- gynnynge the inhabitantes of the lande, as men go to Sur, and so forth to Egypt. And Dauid smote the lande, and leste neither man ne woman alyue, and toke the shepe, the oxen, the asses, camels, and clothes, and remoued & came to Achis. And Achis sayde: haue ye not bene a waying this daye? And Dauid answered, yes in the southe of Iuda, and in the southe of the Jezrahelytes, and in the south of the Kenites. And Dauid saued neither man nor woman a- lyue to byng to Geth, sayinge lest they wold speake agaynst vs: Thus oyd Dauid, and so was his maner all the while he dwelte in the countrey of the Philistines. And Achis bileded Dauid, sayinge: He hath wrought moche mi- chiefe agaynst his people Israel, and therfore he shall be my seruauunt for euer.

The Philistines moue warre agaynst Saul and the Israelites. Saul requyeth counsell of God but hath no answer: and then seeketh after an enchaun- ter, who capteth vp the spyrte of Samuel.

CAPL.

XXVIII.

It chanced in those dayes that the Philistines gathered their host together to war, intendinge to fight with Israel. And Achis sayd to Dauid: We lurre thou walte goo oute with me in the host, and thy men also. And Dauid said agayne to Achis: then thou shalt knowe what thy seruauunt can do. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Then I will make the keeper of my herd for euer. Samuel was then deed, and all Israel had lamented him, and buried hym in Ramath his owne cite. And Saul had put the women that had spyrtes of prophesie and the soothsayers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered together, and came & pitched in Su- dam, and Saul and all Israel gathered toge- ther and pitched in Gelboe. When Saul sawe the host of the Philistines, he was afrayde, & his hearte was sore assayed. And Saul asked counsell of the Lord: But the Lord answered him not, neither by dreame, nor by pyccles, nor yet by the Prophetes.

Then said Saul vnto his seruantes: seke me a woman hauing a spyrte of prophesie, that I maye goo to her and aske of her. And his ser- uantes sayd to hym: se, there is a wyfe that hath a spyrte of prophesie at Endor. And Saul chynge his clothes, and put on other ray- ment, and then went he & two men with him, and they came to the wyfe by nyght, and he sayde: prophesie vnto me by the spyrte, and byng me hym by whom I shall name vnto the. And the wyfe sayde vnto him: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed the women that hadde prophesyinge spyrtes, & the soothsayers out of the land. Where- fore then layest thou a net for my soule to kyll me? And Saul swoze to her by the Lord, say- inge: as surely as the Lord lyueth, there shall no harme chaunce the for this thynge. Then sayd the wyfe: whome shall I ferche by vnto the? and he sayd: byng me by Samuel. When the woman sawe Samuel, she cryed to a loude voyce and spake to Saul, sayinge: why hast thou mocked me? for thou arte Saul. And the kynge said vnto her, be not afrayde: But what seest thou? And the wyfe sayd vnto Saul: I se a God ascendyng by out of the erth. And he sayde: what facion is he of? And the woman sayde: there cometh by an olde man with a mantel vpon him. And Saul perceyued that it was Samuel, and shouped with his face to the grounde and bowed hym selfe. And Samuel said to Saul: why hast thou vniquested me, to make me brought vp? And Saul answered: I am sore encombyred. For the Philistines make warre agaynst me, and God is departed from me, and answered me no more, neyther by pro- phetes, neyther by dreames, & therfore I haue called the, to tell me what I shall doo. Then said Samuel: wherfore dost thou aske of me? whyle the Lorde is gone from the, & is thynne enemye, the Lorde will do to the as he sayde by my hand. For the Lord wil cut the kynge- dome oute of thynne hande, and geue it thy neighbour Dauid, because thou obeydest not the voyce of the Lord, nor executedst his scarce wath vnto the Amalechites. Wherefore hath the Lord done this vnto the this daye. And further the Lorde will deliuer Israel with the in to the handes of 3 Philistines, & to morow shall thou and thy sonnes be with me, and 3 Lord shall geue the host of Israel in to the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell forth with flatte on the erth, and was sore a dyrbie of the wordes of Samuel.

And thereto there was no strength in him, for he hadde not eaten all the daye before. And the woman came vnto Saul, & sawe he was sore troubled, and sayd vnto him. Se, thynne dau- mayde hath obeyed thy voyce, and haue put my soule in my hande, & haue harkened vnto thy wordes, whiche thou saydest vnto me. Nowe therefore harken thou also vnto the voyce of thynne handmayde, and let me set a mouell of bread before the, and eate and get the strength to go thy iourneye. But he refused it and sayd: I wil not eate. But his seruantes & the wyfe togithers together compelled him, that he herde they hope. And so he arole from the erthe and late him on a bed. The woman had a fat calfe in the house, and that he had and killed, and toke flour & kneit it, and did bake him sweet cakes, and brought them before Saul, and before his seruantes; and when they had eaten, they rose up, and went awaye the same nyght.

David going with kynge Achis to fight agaynst Saul is sent agayne by the meanes of the Lordes of the Philistines.

CAPL. XXIX.

The Philistines gathered all theyr hostes together vnto Aphek; and Israel pitched by a tounsayn in Jezrahel. And the Lordes of the Philistines were forty by hundredes and by thousandes. But David and his men came beyonde with Achis. Then sayd the Lordes of the Philistines: what wyl ponder we byes? And Achis said vnto the Lordes of the Philistines: Is not this David the seruant of Saul the king of Israel, which hath ben with me dayes of yeres, and I haue found no fault in him? Achis he led vnto me vnto this daye.

CAPL. XXX.

But ite David and his men wente come to Zikeleg the thirde daye, the Amalekites had made assault in the fourth part vpon Zikeleg, and had smytten Zikeleg & burnt it with fyre; and had taken the women three persons, both smal & great, but slew not a man, but caried them with them & departed. When David and his men came to the ciste/beholde it was burnt with fyre; and their wyues, theyr sonnes and theyr daughters were taken prisoners. Then David and the people that was with hym lyfte by theyr hopyes and wept, for they coulde wepe no more. And Davids wyues were taken prisoners also: Achis the Jezrahelite; and Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And David was sore troubled; for the people intended to stone him, because the herites of all the people were bred for theyr sonnes and theyr daughters. But David toke a good herte to him in the Lorde his God, and sayd to Abithar the priest Achimelech's sonne: bypunge me the Ephod. And Abithar brought the Ephod to David. And David asked the Lorde, sayinge: Shall I pursue this company? and shall I ouertake them? And he sayd to him: followe, for thou shalt ouertake them and recouer the praye. So he wente with the sixe hundred men that were with him, and they came to the ryuer Besor, where a part of them abode. ¶ Reg. xiii. a Achis he led vnto me vnto this daye. ¶ End. xli. d Achis he led vnto me vnto this daye. ¶ Exil. xli. d Achis he led vnto me vnto this daye.

As David and his men wente to the ryuer Besor, they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and brought him to David and gave him bread to eat, and water to drinke; & gave him a fewe sygges, and two clusters of reasynge, and when he had eaten, his spirit was gayne to him, for he had eaten no bread, nor dronke no water in the dayes and the nyghtes. with hym in to the cite of David, but caried it in to the house of Obed Edom a Bethite. And the arke of the Lorde continued in the house of Obed Edom the Bethite thre monethes / and the Lorde blessed Obed Edom, and all his householde. And when it was tolde kynge David that the Lorde hadde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and al that belongeth unto hym, because of the arke of God, he went and broughte the arke of God frome the house of Obed Edom, unto the cite of David with gladnesse. And euer when they that bare the arke of the Lorde hadde gone fforthe, he offered an oxe and a fforthe wepe. And David daunced before the Lorde with al his myghte in a linnen Ephod gyde unto hym. And David and all the house of Israel broughte the arke of the Lorde with shouting and trumpet blowinge.

¶ Michol.

And as the arke of the Lorde came in to the cite of David, Michol Sauls daughter looked thowme a wyndow and sawe kynge David dancynge and daunce before the Lorde, and therfore dyspleyd hym in her herte. And when they hadde broughte in the arke of the Lorde, and had set it in his place, euen in the tabernacle that David hadde prepared for it: David offered burntofferings and prayofferings before the Lorde; and as soone as David had made an ende of offeringe burnt offeringes and prayofferings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde of hostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, euen amonge the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men euerie one a cake of bred, and a peece of fleshe and a bakete of wyne. And so the people departed euerie man to his house. Then David returned to salute his householde. And Michol the daughter of Saul came oute agaynste hym and sayde. Whi how glorious was the kynge of Israel to daye, whiche sturpe hym selfe this daye before the eyes of the maydens of his seruantes, as a lycht byapned felowc is wont to sturpe hym selfe. But David sayde agayne to Michol, I will make spoyle before the Lorde, whiche chose me before thy father, and before all his kynne, commaundynge me to be euerie ouer all his people Israel. And I will be yet moze vile then so, and wil be meke in myne owne sight: and shall neuerthelesse that of the berpe same maye seruantes whiche thou speakest of, be hadde in honoure. But the sayde Michol daughter to Saul, hadde no chyldre unto the daye of her liff.

¶ David of a good purpose entredynge to buyde an house unto the Lorde, is forbidden of God the praye that the prayyses of God may be fulfilled.

CAPL.

VII.

¶ Paral. 12.

¶ As in processe as the kynge dwelte in his house after that the Lorde had gyuen hym rest aboute frome all his enemyes, he sayd unto Nathan the prophet: beholde, I dwell in an house of cedarres, but the arke of God dwelleth in the myddes of curtaynes. Then sayd Nathan unto the kynge: go and doo all that is in thine herte, for the Lorde is with the.

But that same nyght the worde of the Lorde came vnto Nathan, sayinge: goo and tell my seruante David, thus sayth the Lorde. Make thou go buyde me an house to dwell in: for I have not dwelte in any house sithens the tyme I broughte the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte, vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent and in a tabernacle. In any way where I wente amonge all the chyldren of Israel, spake I one worde with anye of the kynges of Israel, whiche I commaunded to bide my people Israel, sayinge: why buyde ye me an house of cedarres? Nowe therfore, saye vnto my seruantes David: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes, I toke the out of a shep cote from folowynge shepe, to be a ruler ouer my people Israel. And I was with the in all thou wentest to, and haue destroyed all thy enemyes oute of thy syghte, and haue made the a greates name, lyke vnto the renowne of the greates men of the worlde. And I will appoynt a place for my people Israel, and will plant it, and they shall continue in one place and shall make no moze, neyther shall I wold people trouble them any moze as they dyd of the begynnynge, and sithens the tyme I commaunded Judges to be ouer my people Israel, and I will gyue the rest from all thyne enemyes. And the Lorde reuellet the that he will buyde the an householde.

And when the dayes be fulfilled, and thou saydest to rest with thy fathers, then I will set by thy seed after the, whiche shall proceede out of thy body, and will establish his house, he shall buyde an house for my name, and I will establish the seate of his house. What be my sonne: in so moche that yf he saye I will but rebuke hym with such a rebuke as the chyldren of men be plagued with. But my mercye will I not take awaye frome hym, as I toke it from Saul, whom I put downe before the and thynne house, and thy kynge shall endure without ende after the, and the seate shall be established for euer. When Nathan hadde tolde David all these wordes, all this vision, then went David and layd downe before the Lorde and sayde: what am I, Lorde almyghty, and what is my house, that thou shouldest haue brought me this fforthe sayd? And is this a small thyng in my sight? Lorde almyghty, but that thou shouldest speake also of thy seruantes house for a great whylle to come? Is this a lath amonge the Lorde almyghty? And what can David say moze vnto the, if he thou knowest thy seruante Lorde almyghty? Euen for thy worde, and accordynge to thynne owne herte hast thou done all these greates thynges to make them knowe vnto thy seruante.

Wherfore thou art great, O Lorde God, and there is none lyke the, neither is there anye save thou, accordynge to all that we haue heard with our eares. And what one people maye earthe is lyke vnto the people Israel, whiche God deliuered to be his people / and to make him a name / and to shew them great and terrible thynges in the earthe, before the people whiche thou redeemedst to the, out of Egypte / euen from the people and from theyr goddes. And thou hast ordeyned thy people Israel to be thy people for euer / and thou Lorde arte the God. And nowe, Lorde God, the thyng thou hast sayd of thy seruante & of his house, make it good for euer, and so as thou hast sayd. And lette thy name be great for euer / that men maye saye: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel: and lette the house of thy seruante David be assured before the. For thou Lorde of hostes, God of Israel hast tolde in the care of thy seruante, sayinge: I will buyde the an house. And therfore hath thy seruante founde in his herte to praye this praye vnto the. And now Lorde almyghty thou arte the God, & thy wordes muste be true / for thou hast tolde this goodnesse vnto thy seruante. Now therfore go to, and blesse the householde of thy seruante, that it may continue for euer before the. For thou Lorde almyghty hast said that of thy blessinge, the house of thy seruante shall be blessed for euer.

¶ David overcometh the Philistines and maketh the tributaryes. He ordaineth and appoynteth his officers.

CAPL.

VIII.

¶ After that, David beat the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke the byrdell of bondage oute of their handes. And he beat the Moabites, and measured them with a lyne, makinge them lye alonge on the erth / and then measurynge the length of two lyres to ser, and the length of one lyne to saue a lyne. And so became the Moabites Davids seruantes, and payde tribute. David smote also Adadzer the sonne of Rehob kynge of Zobah, as he wente to make the ende of his coffes at the tract Capharates. And David toke a thousand and seven hundred horsemen of his, a twenty thousande ffor men, and despoiled all his chawettes, reserpyng one hundred of them. Then came the Syrians of Damascus to succoure Adadzer kynge of Zobah. And David slew of them. xiiij thousande men, and put souldyours in Siria Damascus. And the Syrians became seruantes to David, payinge tribute. And thus the Lorde saved David in all that he wente to. And David toke the whybes of golde that were vpon the seruantes of Adadzer, and broughte them to Jerusalem. And thence oute of Betah and Beraht cities of Adadzer, he broughte exceedinge great aboundance of blasse.

bestelles of syluer, golde, and of brasse with him. And them also kynge David byd present vnto the Lorde the syluer and golde that he halowed sacrally of all nations whiche he subdued: of the Syrians: the Moabites, the chyldren of Ammon, the Philistines, the Amalchites, and of the spoyle of Adadzer son of Rehob kynge of Zobah. And David made him a name after he returned from the slaughter of the Syrians in the valeye of salt where he slew eightene thousande men. And he put keepers in Edom, euen thowme oute all Edom put he souldyours / and all Edom became his subiectes. And the Lorde kepte David what so euer he toke in hande. And David raygned ouer all Israel, and executed ryghte and iustice vnto all his people. And * Joab sonne of Zarad was ouer the hoste / and Josaphat, the sonne of Ahilub was recorder. And Sadoch the sonne of Ahitob and Achimelech the sonne of Abiathar were the prestes / and Saraiab was the scribe. And Banaiab the son of Jethada was ouer the Cherethites and the Phelethites, but Davids sounes were chiefe rulers.

¶ David receiveth al the feltes of Seir, to Miphioseth, becometh the sonne of Jonathas.

CAPL.

IX.

¶ Then sayd David: is there yet any man left of the house of Saul, that I maye shewe hym mercye / for Jonathas sake? And there was of the householde of Saul a seruante named Zibab, who was tolde vnto David. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: art thou Zibab? And he sayd: thy seruante is he. Then sayde the kynge: remaineth yet anye man of the kynrede of Saul, whome I maye shewe the mercye of God vpon? And Zibab sayde vnto the kynge: Jonathas hath yet a sonne whiche is lame on bothe secte. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: where is he? And Zibab sayd vnto the kynge: beholde he is in the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel in Lodabar. Then king David sent and set him out of the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel out of Lodabar. Now, when Miphioseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul was come to David, he bowed hym selfe, and fell on his face. Then sayde David: Miphioseth? And he answered. Beholde thy seruante. And David sayde: feare not, for I will surely shewe the kyndnesse for Jonathas sake / and will restore the all the landes of Saul thy father / and thou shalt eate meate on myne owne table alwayes. And the other bowed hym selfe and sayde: what is thy seruante, that thou shouldest voucheface to take vpon suche a feed dog as I am? Then the king called Zibab Davids younge man, sayinge vnto hym: I gyue vnto thy masters sonne all that pertayneth to Saul and to all his kynne. Se therfore thou and thy sonnes and thy seruantes lye in the lande for him, and byngge in, that thy masters sonne maye haue foode to eate. For Miphioseth thy masters sonne shall eate meate as thoue upon my table. For this Zibah hadde fyfene sonnes, and twente seruauntes. Then sayde Zibah vnto the kyng: All that my lord hath sayde vnto his seruaunte, thy seruaunte shall doo. For (sayde the kyng) Wherfore muste eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. This Wherfore hadde a sonne that was ponge, named Micha; and all that dwelled in the house of Zibah, were seruauntes vnto Wherfore. So Wherfore dwelle in Jerusalem; for he ate euer at the kynges table; and was there haulte on bothe legges.

The messengers of David are spitefully entreated of the kyng. Wherfore which thynge David auengeseth.

CAPL.

It happened after this, that the kyng of the chyldren of Ammon dyed; and Hanon his sonne raygned in his stede. Then sayde David: I wyl seme kyndnesse vnto Hanon the son of Nabal, as his father seme kyndnesse vnto me. And thereupon David sente to comforte him by the hande of his seruauntes ouer the dede of his father. Nowe, when Davids seruauntes were come in to the lande of the chyldren of Ammon; the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd vnto Hanon this word: Wherfore thou that David dothe honour thy father, because he hath sent to comforte thee; saye he hath rather sente his seruauntes vnto the to seeke the cite and to rype it out, so thynke to ouertrowe it. Wherfore Hanon toke Davids seruauntes, and waite at the one halfe of euery mans berde, and cut of hys garments euen in the myddle yerde by the buttockes of them, & sent them away. Which thing when it was told David, he sent agaynst them (for they were men exceedingly ashamed) and sayd: Take at Jericho yll pour berdes be gromen, and then retorne. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that, they wronged Hanon, and of the Syrians of Zobab, xx. thousande fote men, and of kyng Maacah a thousande men; of Iob twelue thousande men; and when David herd of it, he sente Joab and all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out and gaue battayle before the gate; and the Syrians of Zobab, of Rechab, of Iob, and Maacah, were them selues in the felde. When Joab sawe that the front of the battayle was before and after, he chose of all the best of Israel and put them in aray agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of the people he deliuered in to the hande of Abisai his brother, which put them in aray agaynst the chyldren of Ammon. And he sayd: If the Syrians overcome me, then succour me. But if the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wil come and succour the; quyte the lyke a man, and let vs fyght lustily for our people, and for the restes of our God. And the Lord do what semeth best in vis eyes. And forthwith Joab proceeded and the people that was with him in to battayle agaynst the Syrians, which fled before him. Whiche when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Syrians were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, and entred in to the cite. And so Joab returned from the chyldren of Ammon, and came to Jerusalem. And when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse before Israel, they gathered them together. And he badeser sente and broughte oute the Syrians that were beyonde the ryuer. And the hoste of them came, and Sobah capitayne of the hoste of Hadadeser before them.

And when it was thowen David, he gathered all Israel and passed ouer Jordan & came to Helam: where the Syrians put them selues in aray agaynst David, and fought with him: howebeit the Syrians fled before Israel. And David despoiled seven hundred carttes of them, and fourty thousande horsemen; and smote Sobah the capitayne of his hoste, so that he there dyed. And when all the kynges that were seruauntes to Hadadeser sawe they were put to the worse before Israel, they made pray with them and serued them. And so the Syrians feared to helpe the chyldren of Ammon any further.

The aduourty of David with Bethshabe the daughter of Urias. Urias is spitefully slayne. After that David taketh Bethshabe to wyfe.

CAPL.

XI.

It came to passe in the begynnyng of the newe yere, in the tymes when kynges go to the temple to praye, that David sente Joab and his seruauntes with hym to all Israel. And they destroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and besieged Rabab. But David rested still at Jerusalem. And it chanced in eueryng, that David arose from his couch and walked vpon the house of the kynges place, and from the house sawe a very beautifull woman washyng her selfe. And he enquired what woman it shold be. And it was answered agayne, that she was Bethshabe the daughter of Eliam, and wyfe to Urias the Hethite. And David sent messengers and let her, and she came vnto him, and he laye with her. And she was forthwith cledned from her uncleannes, & returned vnto her house. And when the woman had perceyued that she had conceived, she sent and tolde David, and sayd: I am with chyld. Then David sent to Joab to say vnto hym Urias the Hethite. And Joab sent Urias to David. So when Urias was come to hym, he demaunded howe Joab dyd; and how the people lated, and how the warre prospered. And David sayde moresouer to Urias: go home to thynne house, and washe thy face. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace and there folowed him a seruite from the kynges table. But Urias slepte at the more of the kynges palace with all the seruauntes of the Lord, and met not downe to his house. Then they tolde David sayinge: Urias went not in to his house. Then said David vnto Urias: loke as thou art come from iourneying, why dost thou not go downe vnto thynne house? And Urias sayd vnto David: the archer and Israel and Iuda; dwelt in paylions; and my lord Joab and the seruauntes of my lord lye in tentes vpon the fatte earth; and sholde I go in to myne house, to eate and drynke and to lye with my wyfe? * By the lyfe; and as sure as the soule lyueth, I wyl not do that thynge. Then sayd David vnto Urias: tarpe here this daye also, and to morowe I wyl let the departe. And so Urias abode in Jerusalem that daye and on the morowe. And David called hym, and he ate and drynke before hym; and he made hym drynke. And at euen he wente oute to lye on his couche with the seruauntes of his lord, and wente not downe to his house. Wherfore on the morowe David wrote a letter to Joab, and sente it by Urias. And he wrote in the letter, sayinge: put Urias in the fore fronte of the battayle where it is mooste stronge, and come backe home hym, that he maye be smytten to deeth. So when Joab besieged the cite, he appoynted Urias to a place, where he wold that strong men were. And the men of the cite came out and foughte with Joab. And there were certayne outebowmen of the people, and of the seruauntes of David, and Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sente and tolde David all the proceedings of the warre, and charged the messengers, sayinge: When thou shalt make an ende of tellynge the thynges of the warre vnto the kyng, if he begyn to sume and saye vnto the: wherfore approachedst thou vnto the cite to fyghte? wylle ye not that men wolde dwelle and dwelle frome the walles? Who smote Abimelech sonne of Jerobeser? Dyed not a woman calde a pece of a myllstone vpon him frome of the walles, that he dyed in the best wher then went ye nye the wallest? Then saye thou, thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dede also.

And the messengers wente, and came and thowen David all that Joab hadde sente hym with; and sayde vnto David: the men preyde agaynst vs, and came forth vnto vs in to the felde, and we slake vnto them vnto the entrynge of the gate, and shoters shot from the walles, and some of the seruauntes of the kyng be dede. And thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is dede also. Then sayd David vnto the messenger: thus wyfe laye vnto Joab; let not the thynge trouble the. For the swerde dreueth one as well as an other: make thy battayle moze stronge agaynst the cite, and despoyle it; and se thou encourage Joab. And when the wyfe of Urias herde that her husbande was dede, she mourned for hym; and as soone as the mourninge was ended, David sente and sette her to his house, and she was his wyfe and bare hym a sonne. But the dede that David hadde committed, displeased the Lord.

David is repproved for the slaughter of Urias, and repeneth. The chyldre conceived in aduourtyng Bethshabe. After it, is Salomon borne.

CAPL.

XII.

And the Lord sente Nathan vnto David. And he came vnto hym and sayd vnto hym: there were tyme men in one cite, a ryche and a poore. And the ryche had grete grete aboundance of shepe and oxen. But the poore hadde notynge saue one lytle lambe, which he boughte and nourished vp. And it grewe vp with him and his chyldren, and dyd eat of his owne meat and drynke of his owne cuppe, and slepte in his bosom, and was as deere vnto him as his daughter. And there came a straunger vnto the ryche man. And he coulde not fynde in his herde to make of his owne shepe nor of his beestes to prepare for the straunger that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mannes lambe, and dyled it for the man that was come to hym. And David was exceeding moze with the man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lord lyueth the felow that hath done this thynge is worthy of deathe and shall restore the lambe foure folde, because he dyd this thing and had no pye. Then Nathan said to David: thou art the selfe man. This sayd the Lord God of Israel: I annoynted the kyng ouer Israel and ryd the out of the handes of Saul; and I gaue the thy masters house, and thy masters wyues in to thy bosom, and gaue the the house of Israel and of Iuda, and woldest that hadde bene to lytle: haue greun the wyfe to moze moze. Wherfore halt thou despyled the commandment of the Lord, to do wickednesse in his syghetion; hath kylled Urias the Hethite with the swerde and hath taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, & hath slayne hym with the swerde of the chyldren of Ammon. Nowe therefore the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because (sayeth the Lord) thou hast despyled me and taken the wyfe of Urias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus sayeth the Lord: beholde I wyl lere vp euill agaynst the euen of thynne owne house and wyl take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and gyue them vnto thy neyghboure, which shall slepe with them in the syghte of the sonne. And thou dydest it secretly, yet wil I do this thynge before all Israel and in the open sonne syghte.

Then sayde David vnto Nathan: I haue synned agaynst the Lord. And Nathan sayde agayne to David: the Lord hath put away thy synne, thou shalt not dye. Howbeit because in doyng this dede thou haddest gyuen the enemyes of the Lord a cause to raple, the chyldre that is borne the, shall surely dye. And Nathan departed vnto his house. Then the Lord stroke the chyldre that Urias wyfe bare David, and it sickened. David besoughte God for the chyldre, and fasted and went and lay all night vpon the erth; and the eldres of his house arose and wente to him, to take him vp frome the erth. But he wold not; neyther yet eate meat with them. It happened the seventh day that the chyldre dyed. But the seruauntes of David durst not tel him the chyldre was dede. For they sayde: se, whyle the chyldre was yet aliv, we spake vnto hym, and he wold not beken vnto our voyce. Howe moche more wyl be bere hym selfe, pt we tel him the chylde is deed? But Dauid sawe his seruantes whysperinge, and thether perceived that the chylde was deed, and sayde vnto his seruantes: is the chylde deed? And they sayde, yea. Then Dauid arose frome the erthe, and washed, and annoynted hym selfe, and chaunged his apparell / and went in to the house of the Lord, and prayed / and after came to his owne house, and badde they sholde set meate before him, and he dyd eate. Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: what is this that thou hast doone? Thou fastedest and wepest for the chylde whyle it was aloue, but as soone as it was deed, thou diddest eate and care meate. And he answered: whyle the chylde was aloue, I fasted & wepte. For I this thoughte: who can tell whether God wyl haue mercy on me that the chylde maye lyue? But nowe siche it is deed, wherfore sholde I faste? can I byrge him agayne anye more? I shall goo to hym, but he shall not come agayne to me. And Dauid comforted Bethsabe his wyfe / and wente in vnto her and laye with her, and she bare a sonne whose name was called Salomon / and the Lord blessed him. And he sent by the hande of Nathan the prophete, and called his name Jediah, on the Lordes behalfe.

Heb. Sa-
lomoh.
Par. i.

And as Joab soughte agaynst Abab, the cytye of the chyldren of Amnon, he toke the kynges Tourne and sente messengers to Dauid, sayinge: I haue made assaunte to Abab / and also haue taken the castell frome whence they hadde theyr water. Nowe therefore gather the reste of the people / and come and besiege the cytye, and take it / lech pt I take it, the virope be ascribed to me. And Dauid gathered all the people together, and went to Abab and assaunted it, and gate it. * And he toke the kynges crowne frome of his heed, whiche wayed an hundred weight of golde, and was sette with precious stones / and Dauid ware it on his heed. And he broughte out the spoyle of the cytye in excydinge greate aboundance. And he broughte out the people that was therein, and sawed them, and dytwe hartowes of pyon vpon them, and shredde some of them with shredynge knyues of pyon, and thynne some in to fornares. And so he scrued all the cytyes of the chyldren of Amnon. And then Dauid and all the people returned vnto Jerusalem.

Amnon Dauids sonne despyth his syster Thamar. Abalom therefore killeth Amnon and after flyeth for feare of his father.

CAPL XIII.

Amnon.

As it chaunced that Abalom Dauids sonne hadde a saye syster named Thamar, whome afterwarde Amnon another sonne of Dauid loued. And this Amnon was so bereed that he fell speke for the loue of his syster Thamar: for it thoughte him harde to come by his purpose of her, siche she was yet a virgyn. But Amnon hadde a companion called Jonadab the sonne of Samah the brother of Dauid: whiche Jonadab was a very wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym, howe cometh it, that thou bring the kynges sonne at thus consumed euerie moynge? maydest thou not tell it me? And Amnon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Abaloms syster. Then sayd Jonadab vnto him: lye on thy bedde and sayne thy selfe sicke / and when thy father is come to se the, saye vnto hym: let my syster Thamar come and geue me meate, and dwelle in my syght, that I maye see it, and eate of her hande. So Amnon laye downe and made hym selfe sicke / and when the kyng was come to se hym / Amnon sayde vnto hym: let Thamar my syster come and make me a couple of fructers in my syght, I maye eate of her hand. Then Dauid sente home to Thamar, sayinge: goo to thy brother Ammons house, and geue hym meate. When Thamar came to her brother Ammons house, he laye / & she toke some and made pade, and made fructers in his sight and dyd bake them / and toke a platter and powred them oute before hym. And Amnon wolde not eate, but commaunded to haue all men frome hym / and they wente all oute from hym. Then sayd Amnon vnto Thamar: byrge the meate in to the chamber, that I maye eate of thyne hande. And Thamar toke the fructers which she had made, and brought them in to the chambrie to Amnon her brother, and set them before hym to eate. And he toke her and sayd vnto her: Come lye with me my syster. And she answered hym: nay my brother doo not insoyce me: for it ought not to be in Israel / doo not this folly. * For wherfore shal I goo with my shame? And thou shalt be one of the foolles in Israel. But speake thou to the kyng, and he shall not denye me vnto the. Howe be it he wolde not harken vnto her but was to strong for her, and * forced her and laye with her. And then Amnon hated her exceedingly: so that the hate wherewith he hated her, was greater then the loue wherewith he had before loued her. And he sayd vnto her: arise and awaye. Then she sayde vnto hym: thou great cruelte that thou puttest me awaye, seest thou the other that thou diddest vnto me. For neuertheless he wolde not beate her, but calld his lads that waited vpon him and sayd: put her out at the doores frome me, and bolde the doore after her. And she hadde a byrill of dyuers colours vpon her: for with such was the kynges daughters that were virgyns apparelled, made strapte vnto them. Then his seruante broughte her oute at the doores, and locked the doores after her. And Thamar went on her heed, and rente her gape brail that was on her and put her hand on her heed and so went / and as she went, cried. Then Abalom her brother said vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother ben with the? Nowe then be still my syster, for he is thy brother and let not thy thyng geue thine heere. And so Thamar was mapned discomfited in her brother Abaloms house. And kyng Dauid herde of all this thynges, and was very wrothe. And Abalom sayde vnto his brother Amnon, neyther good nor badde. Howe be it Abalom hated Amnon because he had forced his syster Thamar.

And it happened two yere after that, Abalom hadde a thepewyng in Baal Hazor: besides the tyepe of Ephraim, and had all the kynges sonnes and he came to the kyng and sayd: beholde thy seruante hath a thepewyng, let the kyng and his seruantes come with thy seruante. And the kyng sayde vnto Abalom: whynape my sonne, lette vs not goo cury one of vs, that we be not chargeable vnto the. And Abalom laye soze vpon him / howe be it he wolde not goo, but blessed him. Then said Abalom, then let my brother Amnon go with vs. And the kyng answered, what needeth it that he goo with the? But Abalom made such instance, that he let Amnon goo with hym, and all the kynges chyldren.

Then Abalom commaunded his younge men, sayinge: marke when Ammons heere is myrre with wyne, and when I bid you smyte Amnon, then kyll him: feare not, for it is I that byd you, be bold therfore and playe the ludy bloudes. And the yonge men of Abalom serued Amnon euen as Abalom commaunded the. And all the kynges sonnes arose and roke eche man his mule and fledde. And whyl they were yet in the waye, tidinges came to Dauid that Abalom hadde slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that nowe was lefte aloue. Then the kyng arose and tare his garmentes, and laye alonge on the earthe / and all his seruantes rode by, with theyr clothes rente.

Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered and sayd: let not my lord suppose, that they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon onely is deed, for that hath ben euer in Abaloms mouth, sychens he forced his syster Thamar. Nowe therefore lette not my lord be the kyng eate the thyng so greuouly, to thynke that all the kynges sonnes be deed, when Amnon onely is deed. But Abalom fled, and the yonge man that kepte the watche lyste by his eyn and looked aboute / and beholde, there came moche people by awaye that was behynde his backe alonge by an hylls syde. Then said Jonadab vnto the kyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes are come / and as thy seruante said, so it is. And as sone as he had leste speake, he beholde the kynges sonnes came and lyte by theyr bowes and wepte. And cherto the kyng and all his seruantes wepte exceedingly. But Abalom escaped and went to Tholmat the sonne of Amihud kyng of Gesur. And the kyng mourned for his sonne continuallye. And so Abalom escaped and went to Gesur, and was there thre yeres. And by that tyme the kyng turned his mynde from purshynge Abalom: for he had leste mournynge for the deeth of Amnon.

Cherto the woman of Thekoa Abalom is slain. For comynge and boushe of Abalom Thamar syster Joabs wyfe. His father kylled hym.

CAPL XIII.

When Joab the sonne of Zeruiah perceived that the kynges heere was turned agayne to Abalom, he sente to Thekoa, and set thence a wyse woman, and sayd vnto her: seyn thy selfe to be mourner, and put on mournynge apparell. And anoynt not thy selfe with oyle. But be as a woman that hadde longe tyme mourned for the deeth of some body. And go to the kyng and speake on this maner vnto him. And Joab taughte her what she sholde saye. Nowe when the wyse of Thekoa was come to speake with the kyng, she fell on her face to the ground and byd obeyssaunce and sayde: helpe me O kyng. And the kyng sayde vnto her, what ayleth the? she answered. I am a wyddowe, and myne husbande is deed. And thy handmayde hadde two sonnes whiche soughte to gyther in the felde where was no man to go betwene them, & the one slewe the other. And beholde, the hole kynde arose agaynst the handmayde, and sayde: despuce vs him that smote his brother: that we maye kyll him for the soule of his brother whome he slewe, for we wyl destoye the heere also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle whiche is lefte, tyll there remayne neyther name ne issue vpon the erth vnto my husbande. The kyng sayde vnto the wyse: goo home to thyne house, and I wyl geue a charge for the. Then the woman of Thekoa sayde vnto the kyng: My lord be kyng, the trespase be on me and on my fathers house, and the kyng and his seate be gylllesse. And then sayd the kyng: yf any man saye ought vnto the, byrge him to me / and he shall no more trouble the. Then saide she, let the kyng remembre his Loyde God, that the nexte of the bloude gather not an heape together to destoye, and yf they see not my sonne. And he sayd: as truly as the Loyde lyueth, there shall not one heere of thy sonnes heere fall to the erthe.

Then the woman sayde: let thyne handmayde speake one woide more to my lord the kyng, and he sayd, saye on. And the woman sayde: wherfore then hast thou determined on this same maner agaynst the people of God: that the kyng sholde speake this thyng and be faurpe therein, so that the kyng sholde not set home agayne his banished? For we must nedes dye and perishe, as water spylt on the grounde, whiche can not be gathered by agayne / and God wyl not take awaye the life, but fynde the meanes that the banished be not vnterly expelled from hym. And now comynge that I am come to speake of this thyng vnto the kyng my lord / for I rode in feare of the people / thy handmayde thought surely I wyl speake vnto the kyng / preadventure the kyng wyl heare the request of his handmayde. And the kyng shall beare his handmayde and despuce her forch of the hande of the man that wolde haue destoyed me and my sonne also, oute of the enheritaunce of God. Then thine handmayde sayd: I praye God that the woide of my lord the kyng maye be vnchaungeable. For my lord the kyng is an aungell of God in hearyng of good good or badde: and therfore the Loide thy God be with the.

Then the kyng answered and sayde to the woman: hye nor frome me I praye the: the thinge that I shall aske the. And the woman sayde: let my Loide the kyng saye on. Then sayde the kyng. Is not the hande of Ioab w^{ch} is in all this matter? And the woman answered and sayde: as surely as thy soule lyueth, my Loide the kyng, it is neyther on the right hande nor on the left, that my Loide the kyng hath spoken. For thy seruant Ioab had me, & he put at these wordes in the mouth of thyne handmaide. And that I woulde thus turne my tale an other waye, woulde me thy seruant Ioab. And so I se that my Loide is wyle, even as an Angell of God, to vnderstande all thinges that are in the earth. Then sayde the kyng to Ioab, beholde, I am content to do this thinge. So therfore set home the pongeman Absalom. And Ioab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed him selfe, & blessed the kyng, and sayde: now thy seruant knoweth that I haue founde grace in thy sight of my Loide the kyng in that he hath fulfilled the request of his seruante. And so Ioab arose and went to Geth, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. Then sayde the kyng: let him tume to his owne house, and se he come not in my presence. And so Absalom went to his owne house, but came not in the kynges presence. Wherefore in all Israel there was not so goodly a man as Absalom, or so greatly praiised, from the sole of his foote to the top of his heed, was no blemish in him. And w^{ch} he wauld his heed (for at every yere ende he wauld it because it was heuie on him, & therfore he wauld it) the heaue therof wayed two hundred sheles weyght of the kynges weyght. And this Absalom had three sonnes bozne him and one daughter named Thamar, whiche was a fayre woman to loke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt two yere in Jerusalem with out commynge into the kynges presence, he sent for Ioab, to thynke, to haue sent him to the kyng. But he woulde not come to him. And he sent agayne, & yet he woulde not come. Then he sayde vnto his seruantes: behold, Ioab hath a parcell of lande sad by myne: & hath barley therein. Go and set it on fyre. And Absaloms seruantes went and set it on fire.

Then Ioab arose and came to Absalom vnto his house, and sayde vnto him: Wherefore haue thy seruantes burnt my felde with fyre? And Absalom sayde to Ioab: beholde, I sent for the, desyring the to come, because I wold haue sent the to the kyng, for to say: wherefore am I come frome Geth? It had bene as good for me to haue byden there still. Nowe therfore let me come to the kynges presence, & elles yf there be any trespase in me, kil me. And Ioab went to the kyng and tolde him. And he sent for Absalom: which when he was come, fell to the grounde on his face before the kyng. And the kyng kysed him.

Then Ioab arose and came to Absalom vnto his house, and sayde vnto him: Wherefore haue thy seruantes burnt my felde with fyre? And Absalom sayde to Ioab: beholde, I sent for the, desyring the to come, because I wold haue sent the to the kyng, for to say: wherefore am I come frome Geth? It had bene as good for me to haue byden there still. Nowe therfore let me come to the kynges presence, & elles yf there be any trespase in me, kil me. And Ioab went to the kyng and tolde him. And he sent for Absalom: which when he was come, fell to the grounde on his face before the kyng. And the kyng kysed him.

After this, Absalom gat him chariottes and hoies, and sette men to watche him. And thereto he bled to arse by early in the mornynge, and to stande by wayes side that led to the gate of the cite. And all the men of Israel that had complaints and came to the kyng for iudgement, he called vnto him and sayde: of what cause art thou? And when the other answered: thy seruant is of such a tye of Israel. Then sayd Absalom vnto him: se, me thynekyr thy matter is good and ryghteous, and yet no man is appointed of the kyng, to heare the. Then Absalom sayde further: Oh, that I were iudge in the lande, and that all men whiche haue lutes and waiters in lawe, wuld come to me. For I woulde do them iustice. And all when any man came vnto him to do hym obediens, he put forth his hande and kysed him to him, and kysed him. And on this manner byd Absalom to all Israel that came to the kyng for iudgement, and thus he wanne the hertes of the men of Israel. And at seuerall yeres came Absalom to the kyng: and he went to Hebron, and paye my bowe whiche I haue bowed, vnto the Loide: for thy seruant bowed a bowe when I was in Geth in the lande of Syria, sayinge: yf the Loide shall brynge me agayne to Jerusalem, I will sette the Loide. And the kyng sayde: good peace. And so he arose and went to Hebron. Then Absalom sent spyers thorow out all the tribes of Israel, sayinge: as sone as ye here the voyce of the trompe blowe, saye: Absalom raggeth kyng in Hebron. And with Absalom went two hundred men forth of Jerusalem: were called. And they went with pure hertes knowinge nothinge of the matter. Absalom sent also for Achitophel the Gilonite Dauids counsellour, and set him out of his cite Geth, when he sacrificed sacrifices, whiche he wrought wronge reason. And the people came to Absalom in great thronges. And there was a messenger to David and sayde: The helms of the men of Israel are to folow Absalom. Then sayde David to all his seruantes that were with him at Jerusalem: arse and let vs see, for we shall not otherwyle escape. Absalom. Make spede to depart: lest he come suddenly and catch vs, and bringe some of these vpon vs, & smyte the cite with the sword of the sword. And the kynges seruantes sayd to him: beholde, thy seruantes are ready to whatsoeuer my Loide the kyng shall appoint. Then the kyng & all his household departed a fote. And he left behynde him ten women: were his concubynes, to kepe the house. And so the kyng & all the people went forth a fote & camped farre frome the house, & all his seruantes went by his syde. And all the Cherites & all the Phlethites, & all the Druites even. vi. hundred men w^{ch} were come a fote frome Geth, went before the kyng. Then sayde the kyng to Ethai the Gethite, whiche wouldest thou go with vs also? Retourne and abyde with the kyng, for thou art a stranger.

and art removed frome thyne owne place. Thou camst out yesterdape, and wouldest thou saye: the to daye to go with vs? I will go whether I go. But retorne thou and cary agayne thy brethren. Mercy & trauel be with the. And Ethai answered the kyng and sayde: as surely as the Loide lyueth, and as surely as my Loide the kyng lyueth, in what place so lyfe, there will thy seruant be. Then sayd the kyng to Ethai, come and go forthwyle. And Ethai the Gethite wente forth, and all his men, and all the chylde that were with him. And all the countrey wept with a loude voyce. So all the people went forthwyle the straight waye to the wilderness. And behold Samch and all the Reuites were with him, and bare the arke of the testamēt of God. And when they hadde set wtowne the arke of God, Abiathar came vp, vntill the people were all come ouer, out of the cite. Then sayd the kyng vnto Samch. Carpe the arke of God agayne into the cite. Yf I shall fynde fauour in the eyes of the Loide, he will bring me agayne, and shewe me both it and the tabernacle therof also. But yf the Loide thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the. Beholde, here am I, let him w^{ch} will me what semeth good in his eyes. The kyng sayde also vnto Samch the preste, thou arte a Deu. Retourne therfore into the cite in peax. And take your two sonnes with you: Ahimaaz thy sonne, & Jonathan the sonne of Abi. thar. And se, I will byde me in the sides of the wilderness till there come some worde frome you to be tolde me. And so Samch and Abiathar carped the arke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and they caried there. And Dauid wente vp on mount Oly., and wept as he went, and had his heed couered, and went barefote. And all the people that was with him, had euery mans heed couered, and as they went wept also. And one tolde Dauid, sayinge: Achitophel is one of them that haue conspired with Absalom. Then sayde Dauid: O Loide, turne the curse of Achitophel in to stones. W^{ch} Dauid was come to the topp of the mount and adbrued him selfe vnto God: beholde, he & Achitophel came agaynst him with his armye & catch vpon his heed. Vnto whiche Dauid sayd: yf thou go with me, thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou retorne to the cite: then shalt thou saye vnto Absalom: I will be thy seruant & kyng: thus longe haue I bene thy fathers seruante, and nowe I am thyne. And shalt disclose the counsel of Achitophel. And thou shalt therewith the Samch and Abiathar the prestes, to whom thou shalt shewe all thou canst heare out of the thier two sonnes: Ahimaaz Samches sonne, and Jonathan Abiathars sonne, by whome I shall sende me all ye can heare. And so Dauid & his frende gat him to the cite. And Absalom also entred into Jerusalem.

When Dauid was a lyffe passe the topp of the hyll: beholde Ziba the seruant of Achitophel came agaynst him with a couple of asses ladeled, and vpon them two hundred loaves, and one hundred banches of refiges, and an hundred stayles of dyed figges, and a bottell of wyne. Then sayde the kyng to Ziba: What hast thou there? And Ziba sayde: Asses for the kynges household to ryde on, and byed and frate for the young men to eate, and wyne to drinke, yf any man saynt in the wilderness. Then sayde the kyng: Where is thy masters sonne? and Ziba sayd vnto the kyng: beholde, he tarreth still at Jerusalem. For he sayde: This daye shall the house of Israel testify me the kyngdome of my father. Then sayd the kyng to Ziba: beholde thyne are all that pertayned vnto Achitophel. And Ziba answered: I beseeche the that I may fynde grace in thy sight my Loide the kyng.

And when kyng Dauid came to Bahurim beholde, thence came oute a man of the kyngs rebe of the house of Saul named Semet the sonne of Gea, and he came out cursing. And thereto he cast stones at Dauid and at all the seruantes of kyng Dauid, all the people and all the men of warre gorynge part on his ryght hande, and part on his left. And thus sayde this Semet, when he cursed the kyng, walke, walke, thou bloudshedder, and thou bndhyper man. The Loide hath brought vpon the, al the bloud of the house of Saul, in whose place thou hast ragged, and he hath bespyered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And thou art wapped about with thyn owne myschese, because thou art a bloud shedder.

Then sayde Absal the son of Zarnah vnto the kyng: Why with this deed wyge curse my Loide the kyng? let me go and styke of his heed. And the kyng sayd: What haue I to do with you, ye sonnes of Zarnah? Let him curse: for the Loide hath bydden him curse Dauid. And who dare presume to saye wherefore with he so? And Dauid sayde to Absal, & to all his seruantes: behold, my sonne whiche came out of myne owne bowelles seketh my lyfe. Do w^{ch} moche more then may this son of Zarnah do it? Suffre him therfore to curse for the Loide hath bydden him: happily the Loide will loke on my wretchednesse, and do me good for his cursinge this daye. And thus as Dauid and his men went by the way, Semet wente alonge on the hylls syde, ouer agaynst him, and rayled as he went, and thierw^{ch} stones at him, and cast dust. And the kyng & all that were with him came very wepy, and refreshed them selues there.

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem and Achitophel with him. And as sone as he was come / Dauid the Achitophel Dauides frende wente vnto Absalom.

Abalom and sayd vnto him: God saue the kynge, God saue the kynge. And Abalom sayd agayne to Hushai: is this thy kindnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not wth hym? And Hushai sayd vnto Abalom: naye not so, but whome the Lorde and this people and all the men of Israel chose, his will I be, and with hym will I dwell. And furthermore, vnto whome will I do service but to his sonne? And as I was seruante before to thy father, so will I be to thy sonne. Then spake Abalom to Achitophel, gyue counsell what is best for vs to do. Achitophel sayd to Abalom: get the in to thy fathers concubines whiche he hath left to kepe the house. For when all Israel shall heare that thou hast toyed thy father, then shall I handes of all that are wth the, be strange. And so they pitched Abalom a tent vpon the top of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubines in the sight of all Israel. And the counsell of Achitophel whiche he counseled in those dayes, euen as a man had asked counsell of God: so was all the counsell of Achitophel, both vnto Dauid and also vnto Abalom.

Achitophel apperceyving his counsell disallowed of Hushai and Iobab, hangeth him selfe.

CAP.

XVII.

Then Achitophel sayd vnto Abalom: let me chose out twelue thousand men. And I will followe and followe after Dauid by night, and come vpon him whyle he is weary and weake handed, and will slay him, that all the people that are wth him shall see. And to all I impite the kynge iuroument, I will bring agayne al the people vnto the, for thou shalt see but after one man, and all the people shall haue rich. And the sayenge pleased Abalom well, and al the elders of Israel. Then sayd Abalom: call also Hushai the Gathite and let vs heare his aduise. When Hushai was come to Abalom, Abalom spake vnto him, sayenge: Achitophel hath gyuen suche counsell, whether it be best we to after his sayenge or not, tell thou. Then sayd Hushai to Abalom: the counsell that Achitophel hath gyuen is not good at this tyme. For (sayd Hushai) thou knowest thy father and the men that see wth him, how they be strong men. And they be chafed in their myndes, as a Beare robbed of her whelpes. And moreover thy father is a man p^{er}suaded in warre, and wil not be a p^{er}uicacious amonges the comen people. Wherevnto he is not surerly in some cause or in some other place. And though some of his men be ouerthrewen at the first bunt, yet they that heare it will thinke the people that followe Abalom, be put to the worse. By reason wherof see the best men thou hast whose bettes are as the bettes of Lyons, shall hymn therat. For all Israel knowe that thy father is a wyse man, and that they which be wth him be valyaune men. And my counsell is that all Israel be gathered vnto the, from Dan to Bersheba, as the sande of the see in nombre, and that thou goo to battayle in thyne owne personne. And we shall come vpon him in one place or other, where we shall fynde him, and we shall p^{er}chase a felde agaynst him, such as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And there shall not one of them be left, neyther be ne anye of all that were wth him. Moreover if he take a towne, then shall all the men of Israel compasse that cite rounde about with ropes, and we will beate it wth the stones, vntill there be not one stone found vpon another. And Abalom and all the men of Israel sayd: that the counsell of Hushai the Gathite was better then the counsell of Achitophel. For it was euen the Lorde intended to destroye the counsell of Achitophel: which was good, that the Lorde myght bring red vpon Abalom. Then sayd Hushai vnto Dauid and Iobab the p^{er}uicacious: on this manner byd Achitophel and the elders of Israel counsell Abalom. And thus and thus him I counseled. Now therefore sende quickly and bidde Dauid, sayenge: saye not all nyght in the felde of the wilderness, but get the out lest the kynge be deuoured, and all the people that are wth him. Now Jonathas and Ahimaas abode by the well Rogel: for they might not be sene to come into the cite. And a wyf went and tolde them. And they to goo and bidde kynge Dauid. Wherefore they three went and tolde him whiche tolde it to Abalom. But they went both of them awaye quickly, and came to a mans house in Bahurim, whiche had a well in his yerde, into whiche they went downe. And the wyf toke and shewed a couerlet on the top of the well, and shewed thereon shapen barres to bype. And the thynge was not espyed. So when Abalom sent his messengers to the wyf, to the house and shew where one Ahimaas and Jonathas were, the wyf sayde vnto them: they be gone out the lytle brooke of water. And when they had sought them and coulde not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the well and went and tolde kynge Dauid, and sayd vnto him: as ye and get you quickly out of water, for suche counsell hath Achitophel gyuen. The Dauid arose and all the people that were wth him, and they were come out of Dan by day light so that there lacked not one of them that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Achitophel sawe his counsell was not folowed, he labelled his asse, and arose, and gat him home, to his owne cite, and set his householde in order and hanged him selfe and dyed, and was huried in the buryall of his father. Then Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Abalom passed ouer Jordan, both he and all the men of Israel wth him. Then Abalom made Amasa capytayne of the hoste in stead of Iobab which Amasa was a man some named. Iechia a Jezebelite that went in to Abigails the wighthe of Naab, sister to Zarahab Jeabs mother. And Israel and Abalom pitched in the lande of Galaad. And wher Dauid was come to Mahanaim, whiche the sonne of Ab of Kabath the cytye of the chyldren of Simmon, and Achit the sonne of Amiel of Lodabar, and Bersaiet the Galaadite of Kogelim, brought beddes, basens and erthen vessels: and also coyne, barley, flour, and parched coyne, beens, and rice, hony, butter, shepe and cheefe of kyne, for Dauid and all the people that were wth him to eat. For they supposed that the people wth him be hungry, faine, and thursty in the wilderness.

Abalom is overcome in battayle. He hangeth by the heare on an Oke. He is pylled and put in a dryche. Dauid is so p^{er}uicacious for the death of Abalom that he wepeth.

CAP.

XVIII.

And the kynge nombred the people that were wth him, and set ground capytaynes and p^{er}ty capytaynes ouer them. And he sent one part of them wth Joab, and an other parte wth Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah Joabs brother, and the thirde part wth Ethai the Gethite. And the kynge sayde to the people: Shall I go wth you? And the people answered: naye, for yf we see, our aduersaries will not care for vs: neyther thoughte half of vs were sayne, shall they regard vs. But when were worth ten thousande of vs. And furthermore it is that thou be redy to succour vs out of the cite. Then sayde the kynge: what semeth you best, that will I do. And the kynge stode by the gates syde, and al the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab, Abisai, and Ethai sayenge: se that ye saue my sonne Abalom. And all the people herde when the kynge gaue all the capytaynes charge vpon Abalom. And the people went out into the felde agaynst Israel, and the battell was in the wood of Ephraim. Wher the people of Israel were put to the worse before the seruantes of Dauid and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twenty thousande men. And the felde was fought in diuers places, all about vpon the earth. And the woodes trauered inco people that day, than byd the sword. And it chaunced Abalom to come before the seruantes of Dauid bydinge vpon a Quile whiche carped him vnder the thicke bowes of a great Oke. And he herd caught in the Oke, so that he hange betwene heauen and earth, and the Quile that was vnder him went awaye. And one that sawe it tolde Joab sayenge: behold, I sawe Abalom hange in an Oke: and Joab sayd vnto him that tolde him: lo, sawest thou him? And why dydest thou there smyte him to the grounde, that I woulde haue gyuen the ten thycces of siluer and a souldpours grebe.

And the man answered Joab: thoughte I hadde a thousande speies of siluer tolde in my hande, yet wold I not steeche out myne hand agaynst the kynges sonne. For we heede with our eares when the kynge charged the, Abisai, and Ethai, sayenge: se that ye laye no handes vpon my sonne Abalom. Moreover thoughte I had jeopardised my lyfe, and wone fall, yet coulde nought of al the matter haue bene byd frome the kynge: yea and thou thy selfe wouldest be agaynst me. Then sayd Joab: I may not stande sayenge with the, I wil vpo him before thy face.

And therewith he toke three speeres in his hande and thrust them into the hart of Abalom whyle he was yet alpye on the body of a tree. And ten seruantes that bare Joabs weapens, turned and smote Abalom and slue him. The Joab blew a trompet, and the people returned frome persuyng Israel: for Joab spared the people. And they toke Abalom, and caste him into a great pye that was in the wood, & cast a myghy great heape of stones vpon him. Then all Israel fled euery man to his tent. And this Abalom yet in his lyfe tyme, created by a pylle, which is yet in kynses daie. For he sayd: I haue no male chyld. And they to kepe my name in remembrance wth it. And he called the pylle after his owne name. And it is called vnto this daye, Abaloms pylle.

Then sayd Ahimaas the sonne of Sadock: let me runne and beare the kynge tydings, how the Lorde hath gyue him iugement for the of the handes of his enemyes. Joab sayd to him: thou arte no man to beare tydings to day: thou shalt beare tydings another tyme but to daye thou shalt beare none, because the kynses sonne is dead. The sayd Joab to Ahimaas go and tell the kynge what thou hast sene. And Ahimaas bowed him selfe vnto Joab and ranne. Then sayd Ahimaas the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come will, let me runne I praye the after Ahimaas. And Joab sayd: Wherefore wouldest thou runne my sonne? for al be it thou runne thou gettest no reward: but he sayd, Well, come what wil let me runne. And he sayd vnto him: runne. Then Ahimaas ranne by the playne and ouer ranne Ahimaas.

Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And the watchman went vnto the rouse ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lyfte vp his eyes and sawe: and beholde, there came a man runnyng alone. And the watchman called and tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, yf he come alone, there is tidings in his mouth. And he came and byde nye. And the watchman sawe another man runnyng, and called vnto the porter and sayd: beholde, there cometh a nother runnyng alone. And the kynge answered, he is also a tydings byngre. And the watchman sayd: me thinketh the runnyng of the formost is lyke the runnyng of Ahimaas the sonne of Sadock. And the kynge sayd: he is a good man, and cometh with good tydings. And Ahimaas called and sayd to the kynge: good tydings, and bowed him selfe to the erth vpon his face before the king and sayd: blessed be the Lorde thy God whiche hath put by al the men that lyft vp their handes agaynst my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge sayd, is the lad Abalom safe? And Ahimaas answered, I sawe a great hurle buelce when the kynses seruante Joab sent me thy seruante. But I wote not what it was. And the the kyng sayde: turne and stande here. And he turned and stode. And beholde Abiathar came and sayde, Good tydynge my liege lord kyng, the Loide hath quyetted this daye out of the handes of all that arose agaynst the. And the kyng sayde to Abiathar, is the lad Absalom safe? And Abiathar answered, the enemyes of my Loide the kyng and all that ryle agaynst the, to haue the, be as thy sonne is. And the kyng was moued and went vp to a chamber ouer the gate and wepte, And as he went thus he sayde: my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde to God I hadde dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sonne.

David is restored to his kyndome, and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

CAP. XIX.

It was tolde Joab, that the kyng wepte and mourned for Absalom. And the victor was turned that daye into mourning vnto all the people. For the people herde that daye, howe the kyng sorowed for his sonne, and the people went asynge in to the citty, euen as people consounded do scale awaye, when they see in battell. And the kyng byd his face and cryed with a loude voyce: my son Absalom Absalom my sonne my sonne. Joab therfore went into the house to the kyng & sayde: thou hast abashed this daye the faces of all thy seruantes, whiche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes & daughters, and the lyues of thy wyues & concubynes, in that thou loudest thine enemyes and hated thy frends. Thou hast declared this daye that thou carest nether for thy cappytayne nor seruantes. For now I coudenly perceyue, if Absalom had lyued, and all we dyed this daye, then it had pleased the well.

Now therfore aske and come aboide, & speke kindly vnto thy seruantes. I sweere by the Loide ones thou come oute, there will not scape one man with the this nighte, whiche thinge will be worse vnto the, then all the euill that fell on the frome thy youthe vnto this houre. Then the kyng arose & sat wone in the Gate. And it was tolde vnto all the people, howe the kyng sat in the Gate. And then all the people came before the kyng, but Ithai the Gethi came before the kyng, & all the people were at steppe thowout ouer all the kyngdomes of Israel, sayenge: the kyng deliuered vs out of the hande of our enemyes, and he deliuered vs out of the hande of the Philistines. And now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. But Absalom whome we annoynted ouer vs is dead in battell. Nowe therfore why are ye so still, that ye byng not to hyng agayne? And kyng David sent to Shimeah & Abiathar the priests, sayenge: Speake vnto the elders of Juda and saye: why should ye be the last that shoulde byng agayne to hyng to his house, by the suche tydings is come fro all Israel vnto the kyng euen to his house? ye are my brethren, my bones and my fleshe:

wherefore then should ye be the last that shoulde come to byng the kyng home agayne? And saye to Amasa: art thou not my bone and my fleshe? And God be so to me and so, onles thou be capteyne of the hoste to me for euer in the towne of Joab. And he bowed the heere of all the men of Juda, as a man wolde bowe to the kyng, that he shoulde retorne with all his seruantes. And the kyng returned and came to Jordan. And Juda came to Galgal to thynke to mete the kyng and conuerse ouer Jordan. And Shimei the sonne of Gei the sonne of Jemini whiche was of Beth-rum, hasted and came with the men of Juda to mete kyng David, and a thousand men of Ben Jamin with him, and a thousand men of the house of Saul, and his. xv. women, and twenty seruantes with him. And they wyppet ouer Jordan before the kyng. And there went ouer a Boite to carry out the kynges household, and to do him pleasure. And Shimei the sonne of Gei fell before the kyng, as he was come ouer Jordan, & sayd to him: let not my lord accompt wickednes vnto me, ne let him not remember the wickednesse that thy seruant dyd, when my lord the kyng departed forthe of Jerusalem: for the kyng shoulde take it to herte. For thy seruant both knowe his offence. And thine beholde, I am the laste this daye of all the house of Israel: that am come to mete my lord the kyng. But Abiathar the sonne of Zarahab sunned and sayde: Shall Shimei curse for these wordes that he cursed the Loide our God? And the kyng sayde: What matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Zarahab, that ye shoulde curse this daye he curse me? Where shall no man byt his daye in Israel: for I knowe I am made this daye kyng ouer Israel. And the kyng sayd vnto Shimei: thou shalt not dye, and shalt vnto him.

And Abiathar the sonne of Zarahab also to mete the kyng, and had nether shod his fete, ne shauen his bearde, ne washed his clothes, frome the tyme the kyng departed, tyll he came agayne in pear. And whyle was come to Jerusalem towarde the kyng, the kyng sayde vnto him: Wherefore wast thou not with me Abiathar? And he sayd, My Loide kyng, my seruant deceyued me. For thy seruante sayde: that I wolde be myne alle (sabled to epe theron, for to go to the kyng, because thy seruante is lame. And he hath thereto complained on thy seruante vnto my Loide the kyng. But my lord the kyng is as an angel of God: doo therefore what semeth best in thine eyes. For all my chers house were but dead men vnto my lord the kyng: & yet dydest thou put me among them that eate at thyne owne table. What eight therfore haue I yet, to crye any more vnto the kyng? And the kyng sayde: It is deris the not to speake any more, for I haue sayde: that thou and Ziba shall diuide the betwene you. And Abiathar sayd to the kyng: yet let him take all: for so me as my lord the kyng is come in pear to his owne house.

And Bersai the Galaadite came frome Rogitim, and went ouer Jordan with the kyng, to accompanye him ouer Jordan: whiche Bersai was a very aged man, but foure thow piers olde, and had proued the kyng of Iudamance to hye he laye at Madanaim: for he was a man of very great substance. And the kyng sayde vnto Bersai: come thou with me, that I maye see the with me in Jerusalem. But Bersai sayde vnto the kyng, Of what age am I, that I shoulde go with the kyng into Jerusalem? I am this daye foure thow piers olde: and therefore can not deerne saurye frome Iudamance, neyther hath thy seruante pleasure in that he cathe of dyne: but in per delectacion in the songes of me & women. It is no mede that thy seruante be a burthen vnto my Loide the kyng: let thy seruante goo a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kyng, for why shoulde the kyng yeld me such a reward? But let thy seruante turne backe agayne, that I maye dye in myne owne cite, and be buried by the grane of my father and mother. But loo, here is thy seruante Chamaam, let him goo with my Loide the kyng, and do to him, what shall please the. And the kyng answered, Chamaam shall go with me. And I will do to hym what thou shalt be content with. Yea and whatsaue thou shalt requyre of me, that shall I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan. And when the kyng was come ouer Jordan, he byked Bersai and blessed hym, and he went backe agayne vnto his owne place. And then the kyng went to Galgal, and Chamaam went with hym. Some, all the men of Juda were at the byngng ouer of the kyng, and but halfe the men of Israel.

Wherefore all the men of Israel came to the kyng and sayde vnto him: why haue our brethren the men of Juda stolen the waye, and haue brought the kyng and his household and all Davids men with hym ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered the men of Israel: for the kyng is nere of hyne to vs: wherefore be ye angry for that matter? speake ye that we eate of the kynges cosse, or that the kyng giueth vs any gyfte? And the men of Israel answered the men of Juda and sayde: we haue ten parties in the kyng and haue thereto moze right to David the kyng. Why then dyd ye despyce vs, that our aduersarye had not bene by the hadde to restorenge oure kyng agayne? And the wordes of the men of Juda were seuerer then the wordes of the men of Israel.

Seba the sonne of Rechab sayeth Israel against David. Seba killeth Amasa traye counsellor. The herd of Seba is deliuered to Joab. Davids receyues are nombred.

CAP. XX.

There happened also to be an unthyrsty person named Seba, the son of Rechab, a man of Gath, whiche blew a troyet & sayde: we haue no part in David, nor libertye saunce in the sonne of Ioseph, & Seba, let vs depart thence: euer man to his tent. And all Israel went from David and followed Seba the sonne of Rechab. But the men of Juda claued false vnto the kyng, frome Jordan to Jerusalem. And when David was come to his house to Jerusalem, he toke the xx. women his concubynes that he had left beyonde him to kepe the house, and put them in wards and mpyndred all thynges vnto them: but laye no moze with them. And so they were closed vnto the daye of the death of them, and issued a wydowes lyfe.

Then sayde the kyng to Amasa: assemble me the men of Juda within the dayes & present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to assemble the men of Juda: but tarped longer then the tyme appointed him. Wherefore the kyng sayde to Abiathar the son of Zarahab: thou shalt be wyse to vs the Absalom. Take thou therfore thy maisters seruantes and fellows with thee: and he gettyn walked cryes and escape vs. And there went out after hym Joab and the Gethites and the Ishmaelites and men of strength. And they departed out of Jerusalem to pursue Seba the sonne of Rechab. And when they were come to the great stone in Gabaon, Amasa met hym. And Joab hasted his garment that he had about him, and he byt to him, and hadde gyfte theron a knyfe ioynted fast to his loynes in a wythe out of wythe it myght easily come forthe. And Joab sayd to Amasa: all at thynges in rest and pear my brother? And Joab reth Amasa by the cyppe to the right hande, as though he wolde haue liffed him. And Amasa toke no hede to the knyfe that was in Joabs hande, with whiche Joab smote him in the wost rybbes, and dreyd ouer his bowelles to the grounde, and smote hym but one stroke, and he dyed. And then Joab and Abiathar his brother pursued Seba the son of Rechab. And one of Joabs men that stode by the dead corpe of Amasa sayd: What is he that he wolde be as Joab, and what is he that wolde be vnto David in stede of Joab? And Amasa laye walowynge in bloude in the middes of the waye. And there was a man that saw howe all the people stode. And he gat vpon hym, and he rowled Amasa out of the way in to the felde, and cast a clothe vpon him. And as sone as he was combed oute of the waye all the people went after Joab, to pursue Seba the sonne of Rechab.

And he went thowout al the tribes of Israel vnto Abiel Bethmaach and all Baran. And the people gathered vnto him and went also after him. And they came & besieged him in Abiel Bethmaach. And they cast up a bank against the cite. And it was besieged. All the people that was in it: Joab labored busily to smyth thowt the wall. And he made a wythe two enan out of the citty, harken, harken, and Joab that he come hyther, to smyth I maye speake with him. When Joab was come, the woman sayde: art thou Joab? And Joab answered, I am. And she sayd to him: heare the wordes of thy handmayde, and he sayd: I am ready.

redy to heare. And she sayde: it hath bene a common sayinge in olde tyme / men muste aske in Abel: & the it come to good passe. Abel is one of the quyetest and saythfuller cities that are in Israel. And thou goest aboute to destroye a ctyte that is a mother in Israel. Why becomest thou the inheritance of the Lorde? And Joab answered and sayde: God forbidde, God forbidde it me, that I shoulde either destroye or destroye it. The thyng is not so: But there is a man of mount Ephraim, Seba the sonne of Bichai by name, who hath left by his hande agaynst kynge Davyd. Delivere vs him only, and I will depart from the ctyte. And the woman sayde unto Joab: Beholde, his heed shall be throwen overowe the wall to the. And then the woman went unto all the people in her wyldome. And they smote of the heed of Seba the sonne of Bichai, and cast it to Joab. And he blew the trompe, and they scattered from the ctyte every man to his tent. So Joab returned to Jerusalem unto the kynge.

And Joab was the graund captayne over all the host of Israel, and Banaiab the sonne of Joab was over the Cherethites & the Phelites. Aduram was officer over the troupe. And Josaphat the sonne of Asub was recorder. Seua was scribe. Samach and Abiathar were the prelates. But Jea the Javite was counsellour even to David self.

The deare peres. The vengeance of the synnes of Saul lyghthe on his seven sonnes, whiche are hangyd. Four great batailles, whiche David fought agaynst the Philistines.

CAPL.

XXI.

Then there fell an hongre in the dayes of David thre peres inlewynge, and David enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Sauls sake and the house of bloud, because he slew the Gabaonites. And the kynge called the Gabaonites, and sayde unto them. (Some these Gabaonites were not of the children of Israel, but a remnant of the Amorites, for the children of Israel had sworne unto them, & yet Saul sought to sleigh them, of a jels he had to children of Israel and of Juda.) David therefore sayd unto the Gabaonites: What shall I do for you? and wherewith shall I content you, that ye may blesse the inheritance of the Lorde? The Gabaonites sayde unto him: Our matter is not upon silver & gold but agaynst Saul and agaynst his house: neyther have we any man that we wolde kyll in Israel. The he sayd: What then will ye I do for you? And they sayde unto the kynge: the man that consumed and magned to bringe us to nought, hym we ought to destroy, that not one of his stock be left: all the coastes of Israel, let the seven of his sonnes be delivred unto us, that we may hange them by unto the Lorde, in Gath, of Saul sometime the Lordes cleere.

David sayde: I will grue them you. And the kynge had compassion on Giphiboiab the sonne of Jonathan, the son of Saul, because of the Lordes oth that was betwene David and Jonathan the son of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Kishphah & daughter of Achish which he bare unto Saul, Amnon and Hiphiboiab, and the four sonnes of Michol the daughter of Saul which he bare to Adriel the son of Barzilai the Gileadite: & delivred them unto the handes of the Gabaonites, and they hanged them in the hill before the Lorde. These seven were all slayne at once in the first dayes of herust: even in the beginninge of warre herust.

And Kishphah the daughter of Achish toke sack clothe and spred it under her upon the rock, even from the beginninge of herust, until rayne dropped upon them out of heauen and suffered neyther the byrdes of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor beastes of the feld by night. When it was tolde David what Kishphah the daughter of Achish the concubine of Saul had done, he went and toke the bones of Saul & of Jonathan his sonne, of the men of Jabes in Galaad, whiche they had stolen from the sterre of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them in the dayes when they brought thence the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son, and they set away the bones of them that were hanged, and byed them with the bones of Saul and Jonathan his sonne in the countrey of Benjamyn, in Zela, in the sepulchre of his father.

And when they hadde performed all that the kynge commaunded, God was appeald to the lande. And the Philistines had yet againe warre with Israel. David therefore went with his servants with him, and fought with the Philistines. And David waxed famous, & Jelsai of Rob one of the sonnes of Haraphah whose speare hed wayed thre hundred spithes of Masse, and was gyde with a new wythe thought to have slayne David. But Abisai sonne of Zeruiah succoured him and smote the Philistine and kyled him. Then the servants of David swore unto him sayinge: Thou shalt go no more forth with us to battel, that the lyght of Israel be not put out. And there was yet after this, battel with the Philistines at Rob, in whiche Soborhah the Hushathite slew Saph one of the sonnes of Haraphah. And there was yet the thirde battel with God, with the Philistines, where Eliab the son of the Jaccr Ogim, a Bethlehemite, slew one Goliath a Gethite: & staffe of whole speare was as greet as a weavers cloth beam.

And there was yet battel in Geth, where was a man of a great heghyt, who had on every hande sixe fingers, and on every fote five toes. xxiij. in all. And was also of the kynne of Haraphah, and despyed Israel. And Jonathan the sonne of Samach the brother of David slew him. These four were of the sonnes of Haraphah in Geth, and were overthrowed by the hande of David and his servants.

The songe of David for his delivrye from his enemies.

CAP.

XXII.

And David spake the wordes of this balade unto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had delivred hym oute of the handes of all his enemies, and out of the handes of Saul. And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke, my castell and my sauyour. God is my strength, and in hym will I truste: my hynde & the home that defendeth me: myne hynde holde and refuge, my sauyour, saue me frome mynednesse.

I will prayse and call on the Lorde and so shall he saue me frome myne enemies. For I knowe of death have closed me about, and the foudres of Bethai have feared me. The cordes of hell have enuironed me, and the snares of death have overtaken me. In my tribulation I called to the Lorde, and cryed to my God. And he herde my voyce out of his temple, and my crye entred into his eares. The earth trembled and quoke, and the foundations of heauen moved and shoke, because he was angry.

Smoke went out of his nostrilles, and consuminge fyre oute of his mouth, that it kyned coles. He bowed heauen & came towne, and deckenille under nethe his feete. And he went upon Cherubim and flew: and appeared upon the wynges of the wynde. And he made deckenille a tabernacle rounde about him, whiche water congeled in thre clowdes. Of hyghte that was before him, coles were set on hye. The Lorde thundred frome heauen, and the most hygge put out his voyce. He shotte arrows and scattered them, and hurled lyghtninge and turmoiled them. And the bottom of the see appeared, and the foundations of the world were sent, by reason of the rebuynge of the Lorde, and thow the blastinge of the wynde of his nostrilles. He sent frome about and let me, & plucked me out of myghy waters. He delivred me from my myghty enemy, and frome them that hated me, and wrote stronge for me. When they had beseged me in the daye of my affliction, the Lorde shapd me by. And he brought me out at large and delivred me, because he delyped in me.

The Lorde rewarded me after my rightwysenesse, and accordyng to the purenesse of my handes he requyred me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and committed no wykednesse by forgettinge my God. But I had all his lawes in my sight, neyther I turned my face frome any of his ordinaunces. But was pure unto huntwarde, and kept my selfe frome ungodlynesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordyng to my rightwysenesse, and after my purenesse I had in my sight. With the help thou shalt be hoie, and with the man that is uncorrupt, thou shalt be uncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the troward thou shalt be troward also. And the people that are in abundance, thou shalt helpe. And on the proud thou shalt cast thine eyes, to pull the towne. Thou art my light (O Lorde,) and the Lorde shall lyght my deckenille. With thy helpe I will run thowarde an hoke of men, and by the ayde of my God will I pryng over a wall. The wayes of God is bntefyled, and the word of the Lorde fyned as gold, and he a wyldbe to all that trust in him.

Who is a God saue the Lorde, who myghty saue our God? God is my strength in war, and rydderth the waye cleare before me. And maketh my feete as swyfte as an hynde, and setteth me fast upon my hygge holdes.

And teacheth my handes to fighte, that a bowe of brasse is to weake for myne armes.

And thou hast saued me with thy wynde, & thy gentylnes hath multiplied me. Thou madest me space to walke in, that my feete shoulde not stagger. I followed myne ennemyes and destroyed them, and turned not agayne tyll I had consumed them. I wasted them & so browed them, that they coude not aryse: but fell under my feete.

And thou dyddest compasse me about with myght to battell, and madest them that rose agaynst me, to stoupe under me. Thou madest myne ennemyes to turne their backs to me, & them that hated me, & I destroyed the. They looked for helpe: but none came to saue them. Unto the Lorde they cryed, but he orde the not. I will beate them as smal as the dust of the earth, and will stampe them as the byrte of the sterre, and will spredde them abroad.

Thou delivredst me frome the dissencion of my people, and keptst me to be an hed over nations, for the people whiche I knewe not became my servants.

And the straungers shall make resistance agaynst me, and shall obeye me at a word.

And the alpenes that shalke awaye shall tremble for feare in thre bentred places.

The Lorde lyue, and blessed be he that is my strength: and exalted be God the strength that saueth me. It is God that auengeth me, and bringeth towne the people under me. And delivred me from myne ennemyes, thou leftest me by on hygge frome them that aryse agaynst me, and delivredst me frome the wyked men.

And therefore I will prayse the (O Lorde) amonge the Hepten, and will synge vnto thy name, for thy great and manyfolde sauyng of thy kynge, and thy myghty mercy vnto thyne annoynted, even to David, and his seede for euer.

The last communication of David, and the bescreyngon of the myghy men to hym belongynge.

CAPL.

XXIII.

These be the last sayenges of David the sonne of Isai. The man which is made the hygge annoynted of the God of Jacob and pleasaunt Psalmist of Israel sayde: & spak of the Lorde spake in me, & his wordes were on my tonge. The God of Israel spake vnto me, and the strength of Israel sayde: he that beareth rule over men, he that ruleth iustlye in the feare of God, shall be as the morninge sterre when the soune syneth in a morninge in whiche are no clowdes to lette the byghenesse, and as the grasse of the cress.

by herbe of the rayne. And is not myne house so with God? in that he hath made with me an euelladenge couenaunt perfect in all pointes: and in that he shall fulfill all that is healthsome vnto me, & al my desires thereto.
Where as the vnturouse men are al as thorn-es taken south of their places, whiche cannot be taken with handes: but the man that shall touche them, must be armed with iron on a longe helme: And then shall they be vnto with fire, so he therby.

These be the names of the myghty men & were aboute Dauid: Ioseb of Shebeth the Ephraimite, first of thye, otherwyle called Adino the Ezonite, which slew. viij. hundred at one tyme. And next to him Eleazar the son of Dohi the sonne of Abiathar, one of the thye principal that were with Dauid, which whē they besyged the Philistines that were there gathered in battell (and the men of Israel were gone by) arose and layd on the Philistines tyl his hande ached and claued vnto the sword. And the Lozde made a great victory the same daye.
And the people returned and went after hym on to spoyle. After him was Shama the sonne of Ageb the Hararite (which when the Philistines were gathered in Lahata where was a parcell of land full of tye, and the people were fled for feare of the Philistines) stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it & slew the Philistines. And the Lozde gaue him a great victory.

And these thye of the thietye of the lordes went towarde and came to Dauid in Haruete tyme vnto the caue of Hachish. And the host of the Philistines had pitched their pavilions in the valey of geantes. And Dauid was then in a stronge holde. And the souldiours of the Philistines were then in Bethlehēm. And Da-uid longed and sayde: Oh, that I had of the water that is in the wel in the gate of Bethlehēm to drinke. And anone the thye myghty broke thowm the host of the Philistines and fer water out of the Wel of Bethlehēm that was in the gate, and toke and broughe it to Dauid: neuertheless he wolde not drinke ther-of, but offered it vnto the Lozde, and sayde: the Lozde forbyd that I shuld do so, shuld I drinke the bloude of men that were in jeopardy of their lyues? and so he wolde not drinke it.
These thinges dyd these thye myghty me. The Abiathar the brother of Joab, the sonne of Saruiath: he was captayne ouer thye, and he lyft up his speare against thye hundred and slewe them, and was named with the thye. For he was nobler man then the thye and was their captayne. Howe be it he attained not vnto these thye in acts. Then Banaiab the sonne of Joiada the sonne of a lusher man valyaunt in acts of hardyete, he slewe thye Lyons of Moab. He went towarde and slew a Lyon in a pyl in tyme of snow. And he slew an Egyptian a goodly man, which hadde a speare in his hande. And Banaiab went down to him with a flasse, and plucked the speare out of the Egyptians hande and slewe him with his owne speare: Suche thinges dyd Banaiab the son of Joiada and was the nobler of thietye: But not lyke to any of the thye in feates of warre.

And Dauid made him of his counsell. Abiathar the brother of Joab was one of the thietye.
Then Elichanan the sonne of Dohi of Bethlehēm: Semah the Hararite: Eliezer the Har-arite: Heli the Pallite: Ita the sonne of Akes the Thickette: Abiezer of Anathoth: Ho-bonai the Busathite: Zelmon an Ephraimite: Maharai the Netophathite: Heleb the sonne of Banah an Ephraimite: Itai the sonne of Ribai of Gabaah a cyte of the children of Beniamin: Banaiab the Pharaithite: He-dat of the race of Gaas: Abiathar the Arathite: Shmauth a Berthomite: Elhabaas Sa-labonite: Of the ionnes of Israhel Jonathan: Semah the Hararite: Abiam the sonne of Sarar an Ararite: Eliphelet the sonne of Achisai the sonne of a Maachathite: Elam the sonne of Achitophel the Gilonite: Heral the La-melite: Pharaai the Arbure: Igaal the sonne of Nathan of Zobab: Banaie the Gadite: Ziler an Amomite: Naharai a Berthomite the be-necherer of Joab the sonne of Zaruah: Itai the Jechite: Gareb the Jechite: Urias the Hebrite: In all thietye and seuen.

¶ Because Dauid caused the people to be nombred, Israel is plagued with pestilence: so that in thye dayes dyed. lxx. thousande.

As the Lozde was moche estonied against Israel, & doted vpon Dauid against them, sayenge: Go and nombre bothe Israel and Juda. And forthwith the kyng sad to Joab the captayne of his host: goo about I praye the, thowm our all the tribes of Israhel, & then from Dan to Bersabe & nombre the people: I maye knowe the nombre of them.
And Joab sayde vnto the kyng: I beseeche the Lozde thy God make the people as many mo as they be: pea and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lozde the kyng maye se them. But howe is it that my Lozde the kyng hath a lust in this thinge?
Notwithstanding the kynges wordes persua-sed against Joab and against al the captaynes of the host. Then Joab and the captaynes of the host went out from the kyng, to beweech the people of Israel. And they passed ouer Ier-icho and pitched in Arce on the right syde of the cyte that lyeth in the myddes of the valye of Gad and so forth to Jazer. And then they went to Galaad & to the nether lande of Morab, and thence to Dan Jaan, & aboute to Sion, and came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the Druites, & of the Cananites, and then went out to the south of Juda, even to Bersabe. And so when they had bene aboute thowm out al the lade, they returned to Jerusalem at the ende of thye monethes and twenty dayes. And then Joab deliuered vnto the kyng the rekeninge of the number of the people vnto the kyng. And there were found in Israel thye hundred thousand men of might that drew swordes. And thye of Juda were thye hundred thousand men.

And Dauides heart smote him after that he had nombred the people. And he sayde vnto the Lozde: I haue synned exceedingly in that I haue done. And now Lozde take away the tref-pace of thy seruant: for I haue done folysly.
And when Dauid was risen in a morninge, &
thye of the Lozde came vnto the prophet Sad Dauides heart, sayenge: Go and say to Dauid, this sayeth the Lozde. I offer the thye thinges, chose which of them I shall do to the.
And Sad came to Dauid and shewed him, &
sayde vnto him: whether wilt thou haue. viij.
monethes hunger in thy lande, or that thou see the monethes before thye ennemyes and they solowunge the, or that there be thye dayes pestilence in thy land. Nowe aulde the and se, what woyle I shall bringe agayne to him that sent me. When sayde Dauid vnto Sad: I am in a tyme of great strait. But better it is to fall into the hande of the Lozde, for much is his mercy, the to fall in to the handes of men. And the Lozde sent a pestilence in Israel fro the morning vnto the ende of the tyme appointed. And there dyed of the people betwene Dan and Bersabe, lxx. thousande men. And when the angell stretched out his hande vnto Jerusalem to have destroyed it, the Lozde repented vpon the scourge and sayde to the angell that destroyed the people: It is sufficient, let thye hand cease. And the angell was at the thietyinge place of A-reunah the Jebusite. Then spake Dauid vnto the Lozde when he sawe the angell that smote the people, and sayde: Lozde, it is I that haue sinned, and I that haue done wickedly. But these thye what haue they done? let I praye
the hande be on me & on my fathers house, and Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him: Go vp an altare vnto the Lozde in the thietyinge house of A-reunah the Jebusite. And Dauid accordinge to the sayenge of Gad, wente vp as the Lozde commaunded. And when Acreunah looked and sawe the kyng and his seruantes comminge to-warde him, he went out: and bowed hym self to the kyng flat on his face to the grounde, & sayde: Wherefore is my Lozde the kyng come to his seruant? And Dauid sayde: to bye the thietyinge house of the, for to make an altare vnto the Lozde that the plage may cease from the people. And Acreunah sayde vnto the kyng: Let my Lozde the kyng take and offer

what semeth him good in his eyes: Beholde, oren for sacrifice, and steades and the other in-strumetes of the oren for woode. And Acreu-nah the kynges frende gaue all to the kyng, and sayd moreover vnto the kyng: the Lozde the Lozde thy God accept the. But the kyng sayde vnto Acreunah: nat so, but I will bye it of the at a pyce, and wil not offer sacrifice vnto
the Lozde my God that shall cost me nought.
And so Dauid bought the thietyinge house,
and the oren, for thye cycles of silver.

And Dauid buyt there an altare vnto the Lozde, and offered burntsacrifices and prayerings. And so the Lozde was appeased in
the lande. And the plage ceased frome Israel.

THE THYRDE BOKE OF KYNGES, BUT AFTER THE HEBREVES, THE FYRST OF THE KYNGES.

The younge virgin Thilag kepeth David in his carnall age. Adonias occupieth the realme by tyranny to his father. Salomon is annoynted kynge and then Adonias dyeth.

CAPL.

I.

When Kinge David
was waken olde & dry-
hen in yeres, though they covered hym with clothes, yet he caught no heate. Wherefore his servauntes sayde unto him: let there be sought for my Lorde the kynge, a younge mayden to stande before him and to cherysh hym. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my Lorde the kynge may get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damoyselle thowout all the coostes of Israel and founde one Abisag, a Sunamite, and brought her to the kynge. And the damoyselle was exceeding fayre, and cheryshed the kynge and ministered to him: But the kynge had not to do with her.

Adonias.

But Adonias the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe sayinge: I will be kynge. And he gat him a charret, and horsemen, and fifty men to runne before him. And his father rebuked him not at any tyme nor sayd so much to him as why wast thou so. And he was therto a goodly man and his mother bare him next after Absalom. And he communed with Joab sonne of Zeruiah, a worthy Abiathar the pries-
te. And they holpe Adonias. But Sadock the prieste, and Nathan the prophet, Semai and Rei the men of mighte which were with David favoured not Adonias And Adonias sacrificed shepe and oxen and fat lynges at the stone of Zohelith, which is fast by the wel of Rogel: and bad thither all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Juda the kynges servauntes. But Nathan the prophete and Banaiab and the myghty men and Salomon his brother he bad not.
Whereupon Nathan spake unto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayinge: hast thou not heard how Adonias the sonne of Hagith hath raigned byntweringe unto our master David?
Some therefore come that I maye geue the counsel, how to save thyne owne lyfe, and lyfe of the sonne Salomon. Hence and get thou unto kynge David, and saye unto him: dydest thou not my Lorde kynge swere unto thy handmayde, sayinge? Salomon thy son shall reigne after me, and he shall sitte upon my seate, whyle thou yet talkest there with the kynge I will come in after the and will ende the wordes.

Nathan.

So Bethsabe entered unto the kynge into the chambere. And the kynge was very olde & Abisag the Sunamite ministered unto him.

And Bethsabe knouped and made obsequence unto the kynge. And the kynge sayde: what is thy matter? She answered and sayde: my Lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God to thyne handmayde: Salomon thy sonne shall reigne after me, and shall sitte upon my seate. But now se, Adonias is kynge and thou my Lorde kynge wotest it not, & he hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and shepe abundantly, and hath called all the sonnes of the kynge and Abiathar the pries-ke, and Joab the capitaine of the host, but Salomon thy servaunt hath he not bydden. And now (my Lorde kynge) the eyes of all Israel waite on the, to tell them who shall sitte on the seate of my Lorde the kynge after hym. For elles when my Lorde the kynge is layde to rest with his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shall be knyghtes.

And behold, whyle we yet talked with the kynge, Nathan the prophete was come. And they tolde the kynge, sayinge: here cometh Nathan the prophete. And when he was come before the kynge, he made obsequence unto the kynge upon his face unto the ground, & sayde: My Lorde kynge, hast thou sayde, Adonias shall reigne after me, and he shall sitte upon my seate? For he is gone wyne this day and hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and shepe plentifully and hath called all the kynges sonnes and the captaynes of the host, and Abiathar the pries-
te. And se, they cate and drinke before hym & sayde: God save kynge Adonias. But me thy servaunt Sadock the pries-ke and Banaiab the sonne of Zeruiah, and thy servaunt Salomon he hath not called. Is this thinge doone of my Lorde the kynge and yet wotest thou not? We me thy servaunt, who shal sitte on the seate of my Lorde the kynge after hym?

Then kynge David answered and sayde:
Call me Bethsabe. And she came in and stood before him. And the kynge swaie, sayinge: As sure as the Lorde (that hath gyfte my soule out of all aduersite) lyveth: euen as I swaie unto the by the Lorde God of Israel, sayinge: Salomon shall reigne after me, and he shall sitte upon my seate for me, so will I doo this daye. And Bethsabe bowed on her face to the earth, and dyd obsequence unto the kynge, and sayde: I praye God my Lorde kynge David maye lyue euer. Then sayde kynge David call me Sadock the pries-ke and Nathan the prophete, and Banaiab the sonne of Zeruiah. And when they came before the kynge, the kynge sayde unto them:
Take ye by you the servauntes of your Lorde, and let Salomon my sonne upon myne owne Mule, and carye hym downe to Gihon. And lette Sadock the pries-ke, and Nathan the prophete annointe hym there: to be kynge over Israel. And then blowe ye with a troupe pette, and saye: God save kynge Salomon.
And then come up after hym, and let hym come come and sitte upon my seate. For he shall be kynge in my stede. And hym I have commaunded to be leader over Israel and Juda. And Banaiab the sonne of Zeruiah answered the kynge, and sayde: Amen. And so I praye God that the Lorde God of my Lorde the kynge saye so. And as the Lorde hath ben with my Lorde the kynge: so I praye God he maye be with Salomon, and that he make his seate more glorious then the seate of my Lorde kynge David. So Sadock the pries-ke, and Nathan the prophete, and Banaiab the sonne of Zeruiah, and the Levites and the phelithites wente

downe, and sette Salomon upon kynge Davids Mule, and ledde him to Gihon. And Sadock the pries-ke took an hoine of oyle out of the tabernacle, and annointed Salomon. And they blew a trompet: and all they sayde: God save kynge Salomon. And all the people came up after hym ppyngge with ppyes, and cryngge greatly, so that the erth rang with the sounde of them.

And Adonias and all the gesses that were with hym herde it, euen as they hadde made ende of eatynge. And when Joab herde the sounde of the trompet, he sayde: how happeneth it that there is such a noyse in the cytye? And as he yet spake: se, Jonathan the sonne of Abiathar the pries-ke came. And Adonias sayde: come for thou arte a lusty bloude, and byngest good tynges. And Jonathan answered and sayde to Adonias: Verily oure Lorde kynge David hath made Salomon kynge. And the kynge sent with him, Sadock the pries-ke, and Nathan the prophete: and Banaiab the sonne of Zeruiah, and the Levites and the phelithites, and they have set hym upon the kynges Mule. And Sadock the pries-ke, and Nathan the prophete have annoynted hym kynge in Gihon. And as they came by agayne, they cryed that the cytye shd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse that ye have herde. And therto Salomon sprecth on the seate of the kyngdome. And moreouer the kynges servauntes wente in to blisse oure Lorde kynge David, sayinge: the God make the name of Salomon more full of fauoure then thyne: and his seate more glorious then thyne. And the kynge bowed hym selfe upon the bedde. And latte of all thus sayde the kynge: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, who hath made one to sitte on my seate & is happie, myne eyes seynge it. Then all the gesses that were with Adonias were afraide, and rose up and wente euerie man his waye. But Adonias fearinge Salomon, arose, and went and caught hold on the hornes of the altare.
And it was tolde Salomon that Adonias forsooke of kynge Salomon, hath caught holde by the hornes of the altare, sayinge: let kynge Salomon swere unto me this day, that he wil not sle this servaunt with the swerde. And Salomon sayd: if he will be a good man, there shal not an heere of hym fall to the erth. But if he wyll be otherwise, he shall dye for it.
And therupon kynge Salomon sent and set him downe from the altare.
And he came and dyd obsequence unto kynge

Salomon. And Salomon sayde to hym: get the to thyne house.

David dyeth. Adonias requyeth to have Thilag to his concubine, and therfore Salomon commaundeth to slep hym. Abiathar is put from his priesthode. Semai and Joab are slayne.

CAPL.

II.

When the dayes of David were drawen naye that he sholde dye, he charged Salomon his sonne, sayinge: I must walke
by the waye of all the world, neuertheless be stronge, and quyte thy selfe manfully. And se thou kepe the appoyntment of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces, lawes and testimoynes: as it is written in the lawe of Moyses, that thou mayest understande all that thou oughtest to do: and all that thou shouldest medle with, that the Lorde maye make good his promesse, which he hath pro-myssed me, sayinge: if thy chyldren shall take hede to thy wayes, that they walke before me in trueth with all theyr heartes, and with all theyr soules: * then thou shalt walke neuer withoute one synne on the seate of Israel.

* Moreover thou wotest howe Joab the sonne of Zeruiah hath seced me, and what he hath done to the two captaynes of the host of Israel: unto Abner the sonne of Ner, and unto Amasa the sonne of Jether: how he slew them, and shedde the bloude of warre in tyme of peax, and put the bloude of warre upon his gyble that was aboute his loynes, and in his shoes that were on his feet. Deale with hym therefore accordynge to thy wysdom and se thou bynne nor his graye hebd downe to the graue in peax. * And wele kyndnesse unto the sonnes of Bersaiel the Galaadite, and let them be amonge them that cate at thy table, because they so claue to me when I fled from Absalom thy brother. * And lo thou hast with thee, Semai the sonne of Gera the sonne of Gemin of Bahurim, which cursed me with a bytter curse, what tyme I wente to Mahaba-naim. But he came agaynst me to Jordan / and I swaie to hym by the Lorde, sayinge. I wyl not sle the with the swerde. But pardon thou hym not. Thou art a man of wysdome, and shalt knowe what to do to hym: se therefore thou bynne his graye hebd to the graue with bloude. And so David rested with his fathers, and was buried in the cytye of David.
And the dayes whiche David reigned upon Israel were fouretye yeres: seven yeres in Hebron, and thretye and thre yeres in Ierusalem.
* So Salomon saie upon the seate of David his father. And his kynzdom was stablished myghtily.

After this, Adonias the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon.
And he sayd: beokeneth thy commynge peax?
And he sayde: beokeneth peax. Then sayde he, I have a marrie to shewe the. And he said: saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdome

kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel set thyr eyes on me that I wolde raigne. how be it the kyngdome was turned away and gi-uen to my brother, for it was appoynted him of the Loide: and nowe I aske a petition of the, wherof denye me not. And he sayde vnto him: tell what it is. Then he sayde: speake I praye the, vnto Salomon the kyng (for he wyl not saye the naye) that he grue me a bi-lag the Sunamite to wyfe: And Bethsabe sayde: well, I wyl speake for the vnto the kyng. And thereupon Bethsabe wente vnto kyng Salomon to speake vnto him for Adonias. And the kyng rose vp agayne hys and bowed him selfe vnto her, and sat him downe on his seate. And there was a seate set for the kynges mother, and she sat on his right hand.
Then she sayde: I muste desyre a litle petition of the: saye me not naye. And the kyng sayd vnto her: Aske on my mother: for I wyl not saye the naye. And she sayd: let Abilag the Sunamite be giuen to Adonias thy brother to wyfe. And kyng Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abilag the Sunamite for Adonias? Naye, rather aske for hym the kyngdome, siche he is myne eldest brother: Euen for hym aske it, and for Abiathar the p̄reest, and for Joab the sonne of Zeruiah. Then kyng Salomon swaie by the Loide, sayinge: God do so to me and so, if Adonias haue not spoken this woide a-gaynste him selfe. Nowe therfore as surlie as the Loide lyueth, who hath establisshed me and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and who hath made me an house as he pro-myssed me, Adonias shall dye this daye. And kyng Salomon sent by the hande of Banai-ah the sonne of Joiada, and smote him to that he dyed. And vnto Abiathar the p̄reest sayde the kyng: get the to Anatoth vnto thyne owne felles, for thou arte worthy death: but I wyl not at this tyme kyl the, because thou hast the arche of the Loide God betwixt my father and because thou hast fedded my father in all his afflictions. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from beinge p̄reest vnto the Loide: to fulfill the wordes of the Loide whiche he spake ouer the house of Eli in Siloh. Then rynges came to Joab: for Joab hadde thynke after Adonias, but not after Salomon. Whereupon he hidde vnto the tabernacle of the Loide and caught holde on the hornes of the altar. And it was told kyng Salomon howe Joab was fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Loide, and rode by the altar.
Then Salomon sente Banaiath the sonne of Joiada, sayinge: go and smyte him. And when Banaiath was come to the tabernacle of the Loide he sayd vnto him: thus sayeth the kyng, come out. And he sayde naye. But I wyl dye here. And Banaiath broughte the kynges word, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me. Then the kyng sayde: wo euen as he hath sayde: smyte hym and burye hym, and take awaye the bloude whiche Joab shedde causelesse from me, and from the house of my father: and the Loide byng his bloude vpon his owne heed, for he smote two men rightwyse and better then he, and slew them both the swerde, my father vnto mynge: euen ner sonne of Jer. cepitapre of the host of Israel, and Amaia the sonne of Zeibor, sayd of the host of Juda, and theyr bloude sturme vpon the heed of Joab, and on the heed of his seed for euer: and prosper it be vnto Da-uid, and vnto his seed, and vnto his house vnto his seate of the Loide for euer. And Ba-naiath the sonne of Joiada went vp and smote him, and slewe hym & buryed him in his owne house in the wyldernesse: and the kyng put Banaiath the sonne of Joiada in his towne ouer the host, and put Sadoch the p̄reest in the towne of Abiathar. Then the kyng sent and called Semet, and sayd to hym: burye the house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, as he goe not thence any whither. For be thou sure of it, the daye thou goest once and passed ouer the ryuer of Edion, thou shalt dye for it, and thy bloude shall be on thyne owne heed. Se-met sayd vnto the kyng: it is well sayde: as my Loide the kyng hath sayde, so wyl I be seruant to. And Semet dwelt in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaunced at the ende of thys yere, that two of the seruantes of Se-met came awaye vnto Achis sonne of Gerah king of Geth. And ouer to Semet sayng le, thy seruantes be in Geth. And Semet rode by and sadde his alle, and get him to Geth to Achis to see his seruantes, & came and broughte them agayne from Geth. But was toide Salomon how Semet hadde gone from Jerusalem to Geth, and was come a-gayn. And the kyng sente and called Semet and sayd vnto hym: Dyd I not swere by the Loide, and reuered vnto the sayinge: be sure whe so euer thou goest out and walked about any whither, thou shalt dye? And thou an-sweredst me, it is good thynges that I haue heard. Why then hast thou not kept the othe of the Loide, and the commandement that I commanded the? And then the kyng sayd to Semet: thou remembrest all the wychenesse whiche thyne herte knoweth that thou dydest to Dauid my father. The Loide therfore reuend agayne thy wyche-dnesse vpon thyne owne heed: and kyng Salomon belited, and the seate of Dauid be settled betwixt the Loide for euer. And the kyng commaunded Banaiath the sonne of Joiada: whiche twente ouce and smote hym that he dyed. And so was the kyngdome settled in the hande of Salomon.

Salomon taketh Pharaos daughter to wyfe.
The Loide speaketh to hym, and giveth hym wis-dome. The pleadinge of the two hartes who shal owe the kynges chyld: and Salomons iudgement therin.

CAPL

III.

Then Salomon due affinitie with Phrao kyng of Egypt, and toke his daughter to wyfe, and broughte her in to the cite of Da-uid, tili he hadde made an ende of buyldinge his owne house and the house of the Loide,
and

and the walles of Jerusalem rounde aboute.
Only the people sacrificed in altiers made by hyles, because there was no house buylte for the name of the Loide, tili those dayes.
Salomon doublelesse loued the Loide, & walked in the ordinaunces of Dauid his father, save only that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon altiers in hyles.

And the kyng wente to Gabaon to offre
there, for that was a grete offeringe place.
And thys Salomon offered a thousand burnt offerings vpon that altar. And in Gabaon the Loide appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God sayde: Aske what I will grue the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast bedewed me thy seruant Dauid my father great mercy: because that he walked before the in truth and in ryghteousnesse and playnesse of herte with the. And thou hadde kepte for hym this grete mercy, that thou hadst gyuen hym a sonne to sitte on his seate: as it is come to pass this daye. And nowe Loide my God, let it be thou, that hast made thy seruant kyng in the towne of Dauid my father. And I am a yonge ladde, and wot not how to ordeyne my seate. And thy seruant is in the myddes of thy people, whiche thou hast chosen, a people that are so manye that they can not be tolde nor numbered for multitude. Spue therfore vnto thy seruant, an vnderstandyng herte to rule thy people, & to deterne betwene good and badde. For who is hable to iudge this thy so manye a people? And it pleased the Loide well, that Salomon had desired this thyng.
Wherefore God sayd vnto him: because thou hast asked this thyng, and hast not asked long lyfe, neither hadde asked riches, nor the lyues of thyne enemyes, but hast asked the discretion to vnderstande equite: Lo, I haue done accordyng to thy petition: and beholde, I haue giuen the a wyse and an vnderstandyng herte, so that there was none lyke heretofore, neither after the shall anye arlye lyke vnto
the. And thereto I haue giuen the that thou shalt not, dothe thyselfe and honoure: so that there shall be no kyng lyke the, all thy dayes. And if thou wylte walke in my wayes to kepe myne ordinaunces and commande-mentes, as Dauid thy father dyd walke, I wil lengthen thy dayes also. When Salomon awoke, he vnderstode this was his dreame.
And he came to Jerusalem and presented hym selfe before the arche of the Loide: coue-naunt, and offered burntofferings and pear-offeringes, and made a feaste to all his ser-uantes.

Then came two women that were harlots vnto the kyng, and stode before him. And the one of them sayde: O my Loide, I and this woman dwell in one house. And I was deli-uered of a chyld with her in the sayd house. So the thys daye after I was deliuered, she was deliuered also: we two byng together, and as stranger to vs in the house saue we two alone. And this wyues chyld dyed in a nyght, for she had overlaped it. And then she arose at mydnyght, and toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thyne handmayde slepte and sayd it in her bosome, and put her deede chyld in my bo-some. And when I arose up in the morninge to gyue my chyld sucke: lo, it was dead. But when I hadde looked moze diligently vpon it in the morninge: beholde, it was not my sonne whiche I dyd beare. And the other woman sayde: It is not so: But the lyuyng is my sonne, and the deede thyne. And she sayde agayne: thou sayest untrue, for the deede is thy sonne, and the lyuyng myne. And thus they chydded before the kyng. Then sayd the kyng:

the one sayd / this that is alpye is my sonne, and the deede is thyne. And the other sayde naye: But thy sonne is the deede, and the chyld alpye is myne. Then sayde the kyng: byng me a swerde. And they broughte a swerde before the kyng. And the kyng sayde: Dypp the lyuyng chyld in two, and gyue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other.

Then spake the woman that was mother to the chyld alpye vnto the kyng (for her bo-welles yerned vpon her sonne) and sayde: I beseeche the my Loide, gyue her the lyuyng chyld, and in no wyse sle it. And the other sayd: it shall be neither thyne nor myne, but dyppe it. Then the kyng answered and said:
* gyue her the lyuyng chyld and sle it: nor,
for she is the mother therof. And all Israel herde of the iudgement whiche the kyng had gyuen, and feared the kyng: for they percey-ued that the wysdome of God was in him to two iudge.

IIII.

Salomon was kyng ouer all Israel. And these were his lordes: Azariah the sonne of Sadock the p̄reest, Eliphareth and Ahiah the sonnes of Shifa scribes. To Saphath the sonne of Ahilud, the recorder. And Banaiath the sonne of Joiada was ouer the house. And Sadoch and Abiathar were p̄reests. And Azariah the sonne of Pachan was ouer the generall receyvers. And Zabud the sonne of Nathan was a wyter, and the kynges companion. And Ahisar Rewards of house-holde. And Adoniram sonne of Adon over the tributes. And Salomon had twelue generall receyvers ouer all Israel, whiche susteyned the kyng and his householde, eche man his mo-neth in a yere. Whose names are these: the sonne of Hur in mount Ephraim: the sonne of Dechari in Manasse, in Salem in Bethlames, in Elon and in Bethanania: the sonne of Heseb in Aruboth, and to him pertayned Socoh, and all the lande of Naphtali: the sonne of Abinadab, whiche had all the regions of Dor, and Tapheth the daughter of Salomon was his wyfe: Baanah the sonne of Ahilud had Thabanach in Gado, and all Bethon whiche is by Zachanah benethe Jezrahel, and from Beth-san to Abel Bethulah, and vnto beyonde Jecmaam. The sonne of Gader hadde Ramoth Galaad.

Galaad, and his were the towne of Jate the sonne of Manasse, whiche lye in Galaad, and his was the coastes of Argob in Basan, thre fre: greate cytes with walles and barres of brasse.

Abinadab the sonne of Azo, hadde Mahanaim: Anmaaz hadde Rephathim, and he hadde taken Basmach the daughter of Salomon to wyfe: Baanah the sonne of Husai hadde Afer and Aloth: Josaphat the sonne of Ephraim hadde Iachar Simet: the sonne of Elah hadde Benjamim: Gaber the sonne of Azepe, hadde the countreye of Galaad and the lande of Sehon kyng of the Amorites: and of Og kyng of Basan: and was alone receyver in the lande. And Juda and Israel were manye: even as the sande of the see in nombre: catryge, drynkyng, and makynge meche. And Salomon ragged ouer all kyngdomes frome the ryver Euphrate ouer all the lande of the Philistines, unto the borders of Egypt: and they broughte presents, and served Salomon all dayes of his lyfe.

And Salomons expence of household was every daye thre quarters of manchet flour, and thre scores quarters of mele: tenne halles exten: and twente oute of the pastures: and on hundred shepe and gootes, besyde benyon of hartes, buckes, and buballes, and fat pultrye. For he ruled in all the regions on the othe side Euphrates, from Euaphrat to Basan, and also ouer all the kynges on the othe side the same Euphrates. And he hadde prax with all his seruantes on euery syde. And Juda and Israel dwelte withoute feare, euery man vnder his wyne and vnder his huge tree, frome Dan to Beelabe, all the dayes of Salomon.

And Salomon hadde fourtye thousande stalles of hollis for charytes: and twelue thousande horsmen. And the toyls of geueall receyues made puruypaunce for kyng Salomon, and for all that came to kyng Salomons table euery man his moneth, so that thre lackes norhyng. And as for barley and straw for the hollis and mules, they broughte vnto the place where the offertes were, euery man in his offer.

And God gaue Salomon wysdome and vnderstandynge exceedinge moche, and a large herte: even as the lande alonge by the see banche: so that Salomons wysdome exceede the wysdome of all them of the East countrey, and all the wysdome of the Egyptians. And he surmounted all men in wysdome, bothe of the East and of the West, and of the South and of the North. And his name spred abrode amonge all nations on euery syde. And Salomon wrote thre thousand prouerbes. And his songes were a thousande and fyue. And he disputed of trees, even frome the Cedar tree that groweth in Libanon, vnto the Ypsope spyngeth out of the wall. And he disputed of beesties, foules, wyrmes, and fishes. And there came of all nations to heare the wysdome of Salomon, and from all kynges of the earth which had herd of his wysdome.

CAPL.

V.

And Hiram kyng of Tyre sent his seruantes vnto Salomon: for he hadde herd that they had anoynted him kyng in the towne of his father. And therto Hiram was cunct a louer of Dauid. And Salomon sent agayne to Hiram, saying: thou knowest of Dauid my father, how he could not buye an house vnto the name of the Lord his God for water whiche he had on euery syde, vntill the Lord my God had giuen me a sonne: so that there is neither adueritary nor any cupl place. And therefore I am disposed to buye an house vnto the name of the Lord my God, as he promised Dauid my father saying: thy sonne which I will put vpon thy seat in the, he shall buye an house vnto my name. Nowe then commaunde that they hewe Cedar trees in Libanon. And let my seruantes be with thyne: I will gyue the, the hye of thy seruantes in all suche thynges as thou shalt requyre: for thou knowest that there are not amonge vs that can skyll to hewe tymber lyke vnto the Sidonies.

When Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon: he reioysed greatlye and sayde: Blessed be the Lord this daye, whiche hath set Dauid a wyfe sonne ouer this myghty people. And Hiram sent agayne to Salomon, saying: I haue allowed the requyte whiche thou hast sent to me: and will satisfye all thy luste concerninge tymber of Cedar trees and fyre. And my seruantes shall byngge them frome Libanon to the see. And I will conuey them by hyppes vnto the place that thou shalt assigne me, and I will cause them to be discharged there, that thou mayest receyue them. And thou shalt do me this pleasure agayne: to gyue me grayne for wynde my household. And so Hiram gaue Salomon Cedar trees, and fyre trees, as moche as he desired. And Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousande quarters of wheat to fede his household with: and twente buttes of pure oyle. And so moche gaue Salomon to Hiram yearly.

And the Lord gaue Salomon wysdome, as he promised him. And there was prax betwixt Hiram & Salomon, and they were in a leage together. And kyng Salomon raised a tribute thowse out all Israel. And the tribute was thretye thousande men, whiche he sent to Libanon, ten thousande a moneth by course: so that they were one moneth in Libanon, and two monethes at home.

And Adoniram was ruler ouer the tribute. So Salomon hadde thre scores and ten thousande that bare burdens, and thre scores and ten thousande that hewed in the mountaynes, besyde the Lordes he hadde to ouersee the wyke, in nombre thre thousand and thre hundred: who gouerned the people that brought in the wyke. And at the commaundement of the of the kyng, they broughte greate stones, and that free stones, and hewed therto, to laye in the foundation of the house. And Salomons masons, and the masons of Hiram byd hewe them, with them of the borders. And so they prepared both tymber and stone to buyde the house.

CAPL.

VI.

And it came to passe in the foure hundred and foure scores yere, after the chylidren of Israel were come out of the lande of Egypt, and the fourth yere of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel, and the seconde moneth called Zif, that he began to buyde the temple vnto the Lord. And the house whiche Salomon buyde for the Lord was thre scores cubytes longe, and twente byde, and thretye cubytes hye. And the porche that was before the body of the temple, was twente cubytes longe, after the measure of the byedth of the house, and tenne byde: cum at the byrpe ende of the house. And he made vnto the house, wyndowes to open and shutte.

And vnder the walles of the house, he made galleries rounde aboute, bothe aboute the temple, and also the quere. And so made sydes rounde aboute. And the nethermostte gallerye was thre cubytes byde, and the myddle gallerye thre, and the thyrde seuen cubytes byde. For he made the walles withoute wheron the beames laye, euery thynner and thynner: so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buyde of stone made perfete alrepe: it was broughte thither, so that there was neither hammer nor axe, nor anye toole of yron herde in the house, whyle it was in buydyng. And the wynde of the myddle gallerye was in the ende of the house on the ryghte syde. And men wente vnto the wyndyng staires in to the myddle gallerye, and oute of the myddle in to the thyrde. And so he buyde the house and finished it, and coust it with beames of Cedar tymber, made holowe and ioyned together. Then he buyde chambres ouer all the temple of thre cubytes byde, and coupled the house together with beames of Cedar.

And the wynde of the Lord came to Salomon, sayinge: concerninge the house whiche thou art a buydyng: if thou wilt walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wilt I make good vnto the, my promys: whiche I promised Dauid thy father. And I will dwelle amonge the chylidren of Israel, and I will not forsake my people Israel. And so Salomon buyde the house and finished it, and spred the walles of the house within, with cybbes of Cedar tree: euen from the pavement vnto the rouffe. And he spred it with truth, and boyled the floore of the house with planches of fyre.

And he spred twente cubytes in the ende of the temple, bothe floore and walles with Cedar, and dyelled it with in to be the quere, and place mooste hoyle. And the fynde house, that is to saye, the bodye of the temple, was fourtye cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the house within, was kerued with knoppes and grauen with floures, and all was Cedar tymber, so that no stone was seene. And the quere that was within the temple, he prepared to set thre the arche of the Lordes testament. And the quere was twente cubytes longe, and twente byde in byedth, and twente in heyghte. And he dyled it with pure golde, and boyled the auker with Cedar. And Salomon spred the house within also with pure golde. And he made golden barres runne alonge the quere, whiche he hadde couered with golde. And the hole house he overlapped with golde, vntill he had ended it. And the auker that was in the quere, he overlapped with gold also. And within the quere he made two Cherubens of olyue tree, ten cubytes hyghe a pece, and euery wyngue fue cubytes longe: so that from the bittermost parte of one wyngue, vnto the bittermost parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hyghe also: so that bothe the Cherubes were of one measure and one cyle. The heyghe of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the myddle of the inner house. And the Cherubs stretched theyr wynges, so that the one wyngue of the one touched the one wall, and the one wyngue of the other touched the other walle. And the other two wynges of them touched one another in the myddes of the house. And he overlapped the Cherubes with golde.

And the walles of the house rounde aboute he garnished with wyke of Cherubs and palme trees, and grauen floures, bothe within in the quere, and withoute in the temple. And the floore of the house he couered with golde: bothe within in the quere, and also withoute in the temple. And in the entering of the quere he made two doores of olyue tree, with the vpper and two syde postes, fyue square. And the two wynges of olyue tree, he graued with grauynge of Cherubes and palme trees, and graued floures, and couered them with golde, and layde golde ouer the Cherubes, and also the palme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the doore of the temple, he made postes of olyue tree foure square, and two doores of fyre tree, and either doore with two soldryng leues, and graued thereon Cherubes, palme trees, a floures, and couered them with gold made playne by a ruler. And then he buyde the inner court with thre rowes of hewed stone, and vnto the of Cedar wynde.

In the fourth yere of his raygne was the foundation of the house of the Lord layde: euen in the moneth Zif, and in the eleuenth yere in the moneth Abul. Whiche the ryghte moneth, it was full finished in all that perteyned therto, and fashioned as it should be in all poyntes. And so was he thyn yere in buydyng of it.

CAPL.

VII.

And Salomon buyte his owne house in thyrtye yere space, and full finished it. And he buyte the house of the worde of Libanon, an hundred cubites longe, and fiftie brode, and thyrtye hygh, foure square with rowes of Cedar pylers, and Cedar beams alonge vpon the pylers. And the rouse was Cedar aboute an hygh vpon the beams that laye an hygh on the pylers, whiche pylers, were fourtye and foue in nombre / fytene on a rowe / and the spaces betwene the pylers were one agaynste an other thre folde. And all the woies with the fyde postes were foure square one agaynste an other thre folde.

And he made a porche of pylers fiftie cubites longe, and thyrtye cubites brode, and yee a porche before that with pylers, and a thicke piler before that. Then he made a porche to spe and iudge in, yee with Cedar euen frome the paucementes, vnto the top. And his owne house where he kepte residence in an other court withoute that porche, was of the same worke. And then Salomon made an house for Pharaoh daughter, whiche he had taken to wyfe, lyke vnto that porche.

And all these thynges were of ryche stones hewed after a measure, and sawed with sawes within and withoute, euen from the foun dacion, vnto the top of the walles, and on the oute fyde therto toward the great court. And the foundation was of ryche stones, and that myghte greete stones of ten cubites, and of eight. And aboute were ryche stones hewed accordinge to the same rule, and also with Cedar. And the great court rounde aboute was with thre rowes of hewed stone, and one row of Cedar planks, and likewise was it in the inner court of the house of the Loide, and of the porche of the temple. * And kynge Salomon sent and fet one Hiram ouer of Tyre, a wyrdowes sonne of the tyepe of Nephtalim / his father being of Tyre. Whiche Hiram was a pefyte foundere, and full of wysdome, vnderstandynge, and connyng, to worke all maner of worke in brasse. And he came to kynge Salomon, and wroughte all his worke. He cast two pylers of brasse, of egyptene cubites a peece hygh, and a drynge of twelue cubites myght compasse eche of them aboute. And he made two heed pees of molten brasse to sette on the toppes of the pylers, of fyue cubites long a peece, with garlandes of brysted worke, and hoopes of chayne worke for the heed pees that were on the pylers, seuen for the one and seuen for the other. And he made the pylers with two rowes of pomegranetes to couer them with. And the heed pees that were on the toppes of the pylers, were wrought with fyres in the porche, the space of foure cubites of eche. And the pomegranetes aboute and benethe on the togethen chaynes that compasse the myddle of the heed pees, were in nombre two hundred on eche heed peece. And he set by the pylers in the porche of the temple, and when he had set by the fytte piler, he called the name thereof Boaz. And the toppes of the pylers were thus wrought with lilies, and so was thyr worke manshyp finished.

Then he cast a see of brasse tenne cubites wyde frome bymme to bymme, and rounde in compasse, and fyue cubites hygh. And a drynge of egypte cubites myght compasse aboute, and vnder the bymme of it as it were apples compassed and embzased the see of ten cubites wyde in two rowes cast with it when it was caste. And it stode on twelue oxen, of whiche, thre looked North, thre West, thre South, and thre East, and the see on hygh was them, as all the bynder partes were likewise. And it was an hanke byedeth thicke, and the bym wrought lyke the bymme of a cap with floures of pylles. And it contained two thousand Bathes.

And he made ten botomes of brasse, foure cubites longe, and foure cubites brode a peece, and thre hygh. And the woies of the botomes was on this maner that the fydes were, as it were flatte boies betwene the ledges. And on the flatte boies betwene the ledges were lyons, oxen, and cherubes. And vpon the ledges that were aboute and benceth the lyons and oxen, was toyned pendant worke. And euerie botome hadde foure brasse wheles, whose axletrees were also of brasse. And in the foure corners were underlecters vnder the lauatoire caste eche ouer agaynste his fellowe.

And the flake of the lauatoire was in the myddle of the botome one cubite hygh, and a cubite and an half rounde, and it had knoppes thereon in the bare places, whiche were foure square, nor rounde. And vnder the fydes were foure wheles, and they axletrees byned faste to the botome. And the hygher of euerie whele was a cubite and an half. And the workemanship of the wheles was lyke the worke of a charret whele. And the axletrees, the nauelles, spokes, and wals were all moulen. And the foure vnderlecters in the foure corners, were of the best botomes.

And vnder the flake of the lauatoire in the myddes of the botome, was there a rounde fote of halfe a cubite hygh. And thereon playne plates and ledges of the selfe. And he graued in the playne, and also on the ledges, cherubes, lyons, palm trees, euerie whiche rounde aboute. And on this maner he made the ten botomes cast worke: all of one measure and one rule. Then he made ten lautes of brasse, containing fourtye Bathes a peece, and they were of foure cubites a peece for euerie one of the botomes a lauer. And he put the lautes those botomes on the ryght corner of the temple, and othere seue on the left, and put the laute on the ryght corner of the temple Eastward.

And towarde the Southe. And Hiram made all the woies that he made kynge Salomon for the house of the Loide: that is to saye, two pylers, and two scalpes of the heedes, were on the toppes of the two pylers, and foure hundred pomegranetes vpon two wythes, two rowes on eche wythe, to couer the two scalpes of the heedes, that were on the toppes of the two pylers: and the ten botomes of brasse, with ten lautes vpon them, and a see twelue oxen vnder it, and postes wheltes and basons. And all these vessels whiche Hiram made to kynge Salomon for the house of the Loide, were of bryght brasse. And in the playne of Jordan byd the kynge caste them: euen in the clay of the erthe betwene Socoth and Zartan. And Salomon left all the vessels vnwaxed, for the exceedinge abundaunce of brasse that was in them.

And Salomon made all the vessels that pertayned vnto the house of the Loide, the alter of golde, and a table of golde wherupon the shewe bread was put, and fyue candellstiches for the ryghte side, and as many for the left, before the quere of pure golde: with floures, lampes, and snuffers of golde, and bolles, plateres, basons, spoons and her pannes of pure golde, and hinges of golde, bothe for the woies of the quere, the place most holy, and for the woies of the temple also.

And so was ended all the worke that kynge Salomon made for the house of the Loide. And then Salomon brought in the thynges whiche Dauid his father had dedicate in syluer, golde, and othere vessels, and put them to the treasure of the house of the Loide.

The Arke is borne in to the temple. A Cloud filled the temple. The temple is blessed.

CAPL.

VIII.

Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israel, all the herdes of the ryches, and ancient lordes of the chyldren of Israel, toke him to Jerusalem, to brynge by the arke of the testament of the Lord out of the city of Dauid, whiche is Sion. And all the men of Israel assembled vnto king Salomon, to the feast that fallith in the month of Ethanim, whiche is the seuenth moneth. And when all the elders of Israel were come, the prestes toke up the arke of the Lord, and brought it and also the table of witness, and all the holy vessels that were therein. And the prestes and the Levites brought them vp. And kynge Salomon and all the company of Israel that were assembled, were with him before the arke, did offre wyne and oren that could not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And so the prestes brought the arke of the Lordes testament vnto his place, euen in to the quere of the temple, and place most holy, vnto the wynges of the Cherubes. For the Cherubes stretched out their wynges ouer the arke, and couered both it and also the flukes thereof as it were a roofe. How be it the flukes were so long that the endes of them appered out of the holy place before the quere, but on the oute fyde were they not seene, and there they be vnto this day. And there was nothing in the arke, save two tables of stone, whiche Moses put there at Horeb, when the Loide made an appoyntment with the chyldren of Israel, after they were come forth of Egypt.

And when the prestes were come out of the holy place, then a cloude fylled the house of the Loide, that the prestes could not endure to minister by cause of the cloude: for the glory of the Loide hadde fylled the house of the Loide. Then spake Salomon: the Loide said that he wolde dwelle in darkenesse. I haue buyte the an house to dwelle in, and an habitation for the to abyde in for euer. And kynge turned his face, and blessed all the congregation of Israel, all the congregation standinge. And he sayd: Blessed be the Loide God of Israel, whiche hath fulfilled with his hand, that he spake with his mouth vnto Dauid my father: sayinge: frome the daye I broughte my people Israel forth of Egypte, I choise no cytye amonge anye of the tribes of Israel, to buyld an house that my name myght be there: But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buyld an house for the name of the Loide God of Israel. But the Loide God sayd vnto Dauid my father: in that it was in thyne herte to buyld an house for my name, thou dydest well, that thou wast so mynded. Neuerthelesse thou shalt not buyld the house, but thy sonne that shall come out of thy loynes, shall buyld an house for my name. And the Loide hath made good his word that he spake. For I stode by in the towne of Dauid my father, and sate on the seate of Israel, as the Loide promysed, and haue buyte an house for the name of the Loide God of Israel. And I haue prepared therein a place for the arke wher the cownaile of the Loide is, whiche he made with oure fathers, after he hadde broughte them out of the lande of Egypte. And Salomon stode before the alter of the Loide in the sighte of all the people of Israel, and stretched out his handes to heuen, and sayd: Lord God of Israel, there is no God lyke the in heuen above, or in the earthe benceth, that kepe an appoyntment and merce with thy seruantes that walke before the with all theyr hartes, whiche also hath kept with thy seruante Dauid my father, that thou promysedst him. Thou spakest with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled with thyne hande, as it is come to passe this day. And now Loide God of Israel hepe with thy seruante Dauid my father, that thou promysedst him, sayinge: thou shalt not be withoute one or other before me, styng on the seate of Israel: So neuerthelesse, if thy chyldren shall take heed to theyr wayes that they walke before me, as thou hast walked before me. Now then, O Loide God of Israel, let thy worde be stable whiche thou spakest vnto thy seruante Dauid my father.

But in dede can God dwelle on the earthe? Beholde

Beholde, neither heuen, nor heuen above all heuens are habile to contern the: how moche lesse then this house? I haue buyt it: but loke to the prayer of thy seruante and his supplication, O Lord my God, to geue an eare vnto the voyce and prayer which thy seruante prayeth before the this daye, that thine eyes maye be open vpon this house nyght and daye, and vpon the place, of whiche thou hast said, my name shall be there: that thou hearken vnto the prayer whiche thy seruante shall praye in this place. And heeke vnto the supplication of thy seruante and of thy people Israel, whiche they shall praye in this place: And heare thou vnto the prayer whiche thy seruante shall praye in this place, and when thou hearest, haue mercy. And yf any man trespass agayn his neyghbour, & his neyghbour take an adiuration to aduise hyme aulter at this house, then hearken thou vnto heuen, & worke and iudge thy seruantes, that thou condemne the wicked, to byng his waye vpon his deede, and iudike the rightous, to geue him accordyng to his rightousnesse. Whiche the people of Israel be put to the worse before their enemies, because they haue sinned agayn the, & afterwarde tume agayne to the, & praye thy name, and praye and make supplication vnto the in this house, then heare thou vnto heuen, & be merciful vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and byng them agayne vnto the land whiche thou gauest vnto their fathers.

Yf heuen be shut vp, that there be no rayne, because they haue sinned agayn the: yet yf they praye in this place, and praye thy name, and tume fro their synnes, & yf thou shalt scoure synne of them, then heare thou vnto heuen, and be merciful vnto the synne of thy seruantes, and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe them a good way to walke in, and geue rayne vpon thy land that thou hast giuen vnto thy people to inherite.

Yf there chaunce bereth in the lande, pestilence, blaspnyng, or witheryng of corne, or that the frutes be deuoured of geythoppers, or caterpillers, or yf their enemies besiege them in the lande, & in their owne cities, or what so euer plage or sickness chaunce, then heare thou vnto heuen thy dwelling place, all the prayers and supplications that shall be made of all men that shewe out all thy people Israel, whiche shall knowlege euery man the plage of his owne hert, and directe for the his handes vnto this house, and be merciful and worke, and geue euery man accordyng to his wayes, (euen as thou onely knowest euery mannes herte, for thou knowest the hertes of all the chyldren of Adam) that they maye feare the as longe as they lyue vpon the erth whiche thou gauest vnto their fathers. And yf he wylle yf a stranger is not of thy people Israel, & come oute of a farre countrey for thy names sake, (for they shall heare of thy great name and of thy myghty hande, and stretched out arme) and therefore yf he come & praye at this place, heare thou vnto heuen thy dwelling place, and be accordyng to all that the stranger uttereth to the, that all nations of the erth maye knowe thy name, to feare the as do the people Israel: and that it maye be knowne that thy name is calied vpon ouer this house whiche I haue buyt.

And when they go out to battayle agayn their enemies whiche so euer thou shalt send them, and shall praye vnto the Lord towards the cite whiche thou hast chosen, and towards the house of I haue buyt for thy name: heare thou their prayers and supplications, vnto heuen, and iudge their cause.

And finally, when they shall haue synned agayn the: for there is no man that synneth not, and thou art angere with them, and hast directed them to their enemies, that they be carried awaye prisoners vnto the lande of their enemies, whether farre or nere: yet yf they tume agayne vnto the, & heere thou vnto heuen where they be in captiuitie, and retourn and praye vnto the in the lande of them that hold them captyue, sayinge: we haue synned, and haue done wyckedly, and haue trespassed, and so tume agayne vnto the, with all their hertes, and all their soules in the lande of their enemies: whiche thou shalt heare, and praye to the, towards the lande whiche thou gauest vnto thy fathers, and towards the cite whiche thou hast chosen, and house whiche I haue buyt for thy name: then heare thou their prayer and supplication vnto heuen thy dwelling place, and iudge their causes, and be merciful vnto thy people that haue synned agayn the, and vnto all they that trespass that they haue trespassed agayn the: and geue the sounde to the leghe of them that hold them captiue, that they maye haue compassion on them. For they be thy people, and thyne inheritaunce, whiche thou broughtest oute of Egypte, from the *toznace of fion. And lette thine eyes be open vnto the prayer of thy seruante and vnto the prayer of thy people Israel, to hearken to them in all they call vnto the, for thou hast bounde them to be thyne inheritaunce, above all the nations of the carthe: as thou saydest by the hande of Moses thy seruante, when thou broughtest oute thy fathers oute of Egypte, O Lord almyghty.

When Salomon had made an ende of praynge all this prayer and supplication vnto the Lord, he arose from the aulter of the Lord, and frome kneelinge on his knees, and came receyvinge his handes vnto heuen, and knee and blessed all the congregacion of Israel with a loude voyce, sayinge: Blessed be the Lord that hath giuen gruen this vnto his people Israel accordyng to al that he promised: so that there is not one worde escaped of all the good promises whiche he promysed by the hande of Moses his seruante. And the Lord our God be with vs, as he was with our fathers, and forsake vs not neither leaue vs, but that we bome our hertes vnto hym, to make in all his wayes: and to kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces and rites, whiche he commaunded our fathers. And these my wordes whiche I haue prayed before the Lord, be nye vnto the Lord our God daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruantes and of his people Israel, that all nations of the erth maye knowe that the Lord is God, and none but he. And I praye God that your hertes maye be founde with the Lord our God, to walke in his ordinaunces, and to kepe his lawes, as we do this daye.

And the kyng and all Israel with him, offered offerings before the Lord. And the pear offerings that Salomon offered vnto the Lord were, xiiij. thousande oxen, and an hundred and x. thousande shepe. And so the kyng and all the chyldren of Israel halowed the house of the Lord. And the same daye the kyng halowed the middle of the court that is before the house of the Lord: for there he offered burnt offerings, and meat offerings, & the fat of the pear offerings, because the brasen aulter that was before the Lord, was to lytle to receyue the burnt offerings and meat offerings, and the fat of the pear offerings.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye feast, and all Israel with hym, a myghty congregation, euen from the coostes of Emath, vnto the ryuer of Egypte, before the Lord our God, seven dayes, and yet seven dayes, that is foureteen dayes. And the eight daye he sent the people awaye. And they blessed the kyng and wrote vnto their tentes ioyous and gladd in herte, for all the goodnesse that the Lord had shewed vnto Dauid his seruante, and to Israel his people.

The Lord appeareth agayne to Salomon. Salomon goeth to worke to Hiram. The Canaanites become tributaries. He sendeth Hymys for gold. And baptiseth many wyues.

CAPL

IX.

When Salomon had finished the buylinge of the house of the Lord, and of the kynges palace, and all that his fathre and luff was to make: the Lord appeared vnto him agayne, as he appeared to hym at Gabaon. And the Lord sayde vnto him: I haue heerd thy prayer and intercession that thou madest before me, and haue halowed this house whiche thou hast buyt to put my name there for euer, and myne eyes and myne hert shall be there perpetually. And if thou wilt walke before me, as Dauid thy father walked, in purenesse of herte and plannesse, to doo all that I haue commaunded the, and walke kepe myne ordinaunces and rites: then I will settle the seate of thy kyngdom vpon Israel for euer, as I promised Dauid thy father, sayinge: *Thou shalt not be withoute one or other vpon the seate of Israel. That yf ye and your chyldren shall tume awaye from me, and shall not kepe myne ordinaunces whiche I haue sette before you, but shall go and serue other goddes, and bode your selues vnto them: then I will breke Israel oute of the lande whiche I haue giuen them, and this house whiche I haue halowed for my name, I will put oute of my sight. And Israel shall be a pource and a fable vnto all nations. And this house whiche is to be, shall that passe by it shall be astonied, and shall saye and saye: why hath the Lord dealt so with this maner with this land, & with this house? And it shall be answered them, because they forsoke the Lord their God, which brought them oute of the lande of Egypte, and haue leane to other goddes, and haue souldred vnto them and serued them: therefore hath the Lord brought vpon them all this euill. Then at the ende of twenty yeres, in which Salomon had buyt the two houses, that is to wit, the house of the Lord, and the kynges palace: because Hiram the kyng of Tyre had supported him with Cedar, firre, and gold, as moche as he desired, therefore Salomon gaue Hiram, xx. cities in the lande of Galilee. And when Hiram was come fro Tyre to see the cities whiche Salomon had giuen hym, they pleased him not. Wherefore he sayd: what cities are these whiche thou hast giuen me, my brother? And he called them the lande of Labull vnto this daye. This Hiram hadde sente the kynge ffre scope hundred weight of golde. And this is the somme of the tribute which king Salomon raysted to buyld the house of the Lord and his owne house, & Heli, and the walles of Jerusalem and Bezer and Gagedo, and Sazer.

For Pharaos kyng of Egypte went by and toke Sazer and buent it with ffre, and sene the Canaanites that dwelte in the cite, & gaue it for a presente vnto his daughter that was Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buyt Sazer and Beth Hozon the nether, and Baalath and Thamar in the wyldernesse that is in the land, and all the floore cities that Salomon hadde, and cities for his charrettes, and cities for his horsemen, and all that his luff was to buyld in Jerusalem and Libanon, and in al the land of his kyngdom.

And all the people that were left of the Amorites, Hethites, Phereytes, Kenites, and Jebusites, whiche were not of the chyldren of Israel, the chyldren of the sayde nations that were left in the lande, because the chyldren of Israel were not habile to despoyle them, Salomon made tributaries vnto this daye. But of the chyldren of Israel dyd Salomon make no bondemen. But they were men of warre, and his seruantes, and his Lordes, and Capitaynes and rulers of his charrettes, and of his horsemen. And these manye Lordes that ouersawe the worke had Salomon, ffre hundred and ffre, whiche ruled the people that were bought in the worke. And Pharaos daughter came vp oute of the cite of Egypte, vnto the house whiche Salomon hadde buyt for her. And after that, he buyt Gelo. And thysle a yere dyd Salomon offere burnt offerings and pear offerings vnto the aulter whiche he hadde buyt vnto the Lord, to burne the fatte thron: whiche aulter is before the Lord. So when kyng Salomon hadde made the house perfect, he made Hymys in Amon Gaber, whiche is beside Eloth, on the bynche of the red see, in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sente by Hymys also of his seruantes, that were Hymysmen, and crept in the see, with the seruantes of Salomon. And they wente to Sphir, and let from thence gold, to the somme of foure hundred and xxij. talentes, & brought it to Salomon.

The Queene of Saba cometh from the furthest partes of the lande to heare and see the wysdome of Salomon. The perely revenues and rentes of Salomon, his throne, vessels of golde, charrettes, horsemen, and topion of spuer.

CAPL.

X.

¶ Para. is a Dyeth and
Luc. and

And the queene of Saba heere of the wisdome of Salomon concerning the name of the Lorde, and came to pzoare him with rebelles. And she came to Jerusalem with a myghty grece multitude of Camelles & bare sweete of oures and golde exceeding moche, and pprecious stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she talked with him of all that was in her heart. And Salomon expounded her all her questions, that there was not one thinge hee quitted, which he expounded her not. And when the queene of Saba had seene all Salomons wysdome, & the house that he had buylt, and the meat of his table, and the lodgings of his seruantes, and the faction of his court, and theyr apparell, and his buettlers, & his sacrifice that he offered in the house of the Lorde, she was astonished. Then she said to the kyng: the wyrd I herde in myne owne land of thy debes and wysdome, is true. How be it I dyd not see it, till I came and sawe it with myne eyes. And lo, the one half was not tolde me, for thy wisdom and goodnesse passeth the same which I herde. Happye are thy men, and happye are theye thy seruantes, which stande euer before the and heare thy wysdome. And blessed be the Lorde thy god, which had a lust to the, to sit the on the seate of Israel, because the Lorde loued Israel for euer, and therefore made the kyng, to doo equitye and righteuousnes.

Then she gaue the kyng an hundred and xx. talentes of golde, and of sweete odoures exceeding moche, and pprecious stones. There came after such abundance of sweete odoures as the queene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomon. And thence she wyppes of Hiram that brought golde from Sphir, brought from Sphir great plence of Almuge trees, and pprecious stones. And kyng Salomon made of the Almuge trees pylers in the house of the Lorde, and in the kynges palace, and made harpes and psalteries for spungers. There came no more Almuge tree to noz was any more sent vnto this daye. And kyng Salomon gaue vnto the queene of Saba all her desire that she asked of hym, besides that he gaue her with his owne hand. And so she returned vnto her owne countrey with her seruantes.

The weight of golde that came to Salomon euerie yere, was. vi. hundred thre score and vi. talentes of golde, besides that he had of charp-men, and of marchautes, of porcaries, and of all the kynges of Arabia, and of the lordes of the countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred buettlers of beaten gold, sixe hundred sicke of golde went to a buettler. And he made thre hundred buettlers of beaten golde, thre pounce of golde gongre to a pce, and put them in the house of the wodde of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of Iuoye and covered it with pprecious golde. And the seate had sixe steeppes. And the top of the seate was rounde behynde his backe, with pomeles on either syde on the place where he sat, and two Lyons standynge besyde the pomeles. And there stode twelue Lyons on the steeppes, sixe on a syde. There was none lyke sent in anye kyngdome. And all the kyng Salomons wyppes were of golde, and all the garmentment of the house of the wodde of Libanon, were of pure golde. And as for spuer, it was nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the see wyppes which the kyng had in the see, with the wyppes of Hiram, came vnto the kyng laden with golde, spuer, Iuoye, apes, and peroches. And so kyng Salomon passed all the kynges of the earth in wysdome. And all the world reioyced to Salomon, to heare his wysdome, which he had put in his heart. And brought him enemye man by present, vessels of spuer and of golde, and of payment, harness, swete odoures, horses, and wyles, yere by yere. And Salomon gathered together charrettes and horsemen, so that he had a thousand and foure hundred charrettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, which he bestowed in the charre cyres, and with the kyng at Jerusalem.

¶ And the kyng made spuer in Jerusalem as plentiful as stones, and Cedar as plentiful as the mulberry trees that grow in the beles. And Salomons horses came out of Egypt from Beua. The marchautes set them from Beua at a price. A charre came out of Egypt for vi. hundred sicke of silver, & an horse for an hundred & fiftie. And euen so by the handes of the sayde marchautes, horses were brought out for all the kynges of the West, and for the kynges of Asia.

¶ Salomon hath seven hundred Quenes and four hundred Concubynes, which bringe him to Zolapre. His aduersaries rebell agaynst hym, he dyeth, and Jeroboam his sonne raygneth in his steed.

CAPL.

XI.

But kyng Salomon loued many outlandish women: the daughter of Pharaon, and of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites, and Hethites, euen of such of which the Lorde sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel, se ye come not at them, nor let the come to you, for surely they will turne your hertes after theyr goddes. And yet he toke to him selfe after theyr goddes. And he toke to him selfe seven hundred beere quenes, and four hundred concubynes, which turned away his hert. For when Salomon was olde, his wyues turned his hert after other goddes, so that his hert was not perfect with the Lorde his god, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

And Salomon followed Asaroth the God of the Zidons, and Ashtoreth the abhominacion of the Ammonites. So Salomon wrought wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and continued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon buylt an altare for Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites in the hill that standeth before Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And semblably dyd he for all his outlandish wyues which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr Goddes. Then was the Lorde angry with Salomon, because he had turned from the Lorde God of Israel, which appeared vnto hym wyse, and gaue him a charge of this thinge that he shoulde not folowe other Goddes. But he kepte not that which the Lorde commaunded hym: whereupon the Lorde sayd to Salomon: for as much as thou hast done, and thou hast not kept myne appoyntment & myne ordinaunces which I haue commaunded the, therefore I will rent the kyngdome from the, and will geue it to thy seruant. Now standynge in the dayes I will not be to Dauid thy father: but will take it of thy sonne. How be it I will not take away all: but will geue one tribbe to thy sonne, because of Dauid my seruante, and because of Jerusalem, which I haue chosen.

¶ Then the Lorde stered by an aduersary vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edomite, and of the kynges lineage of Edom. For wht Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the capytayne of the hoste was gone up to burie them that were slayn, & had slayne all the men chyldren in Edom. For sixe monethes dyd Joab remaine there, and all Israel, till he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And this Hadad fled, & cerryng other Edomites of his fathers seruantes with him, to go to Egypt, Hadad beinge yet a litle lad. And they arose out of Hadan, and went to Pharan, and toke men with them out of Pharan, & came to Egypt vnto Pharaos kyng, which gaue him a house, and appoynted him butler, and gaue him landes. And Hadad gat great fauour in the sight of Pharaos, so that he gaue him to wyffe the syster of his owne wyffe, the syster of Thahapnes the queene. And the syster of Thahapnes bare him Semubath his sonne. And Thahapnes weaned him in Pharaos house. And he was in Pharaos house among the sonnes of Pharaos. And when Hadad herde saye in Egypte that Dauid was layde to slepe with his fathers, and that Joab the capytayne of the hoste was dead, he sayd to Pharaos: let me departe, that I maye go to myne owne countrey. Then sayde Pharaos vnto hym: what lackedst thou here? I will geue thee what thou wilt. And he sayd, I will geue thee myne owne countrey. And he sayd, nothynge: how be it let me go. And God stered by an other aduersary, one Razon the sonne of Etzaba, which fled from Hadad, kyng of Zobah his master. This Razon gathered men vnto him, and became capytayne ouer an armye, when Dauid slew them. And they went to Damasco, & dwelt therein, and raygned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomon, with the will that Hadad dyd, which abhored Israel, and raygned in Siria. And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephraimite of Zaredah, whose mother was called Zeruah, and was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruante, lyfte up his hande agaynst the kyng, and herof came it, that he lyfte up his hande agaynst the kyng. Salomon buylt Bethel, and mended broken places in the cite of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was an auncie man. And when Salomon sawe the pong man that he wrought so lufte lyne in the worke, he made hym ruler ouer all the charges of the house of Joseph. And it chaunced at that season, as Jeroboam was gone out of Jerusalem, that the prophete Asah the Sionite met him by the waye, hauing a new mantell on him, & theyr two alone in the seide. And Asah caught the newe mantel that was on him, and rent it in twelue peces, and said to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For this sayth the Lorde God of Israel: beholde I will rent the kyngdome out of the handes of Salomon, and will geue ten tribbes to the: & he shall haue one, for my seruante Dauids sake, and for Jerusalem, the cite which I haue chosen out of all the tribbes of Israel, because they haue forsaken me, and haue bowed them selues vnto Asaroth the God of the Zidons, and to Chamos the God of the Moabites, and to Ashtoreth the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that I please me, and myne ordinaunces and statutes: as dyd Dauid his father.

¶ How be it I will take none of the kyngdome out of his hande: but will make hym chiefe all his lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruante sake, which I chose, because he kept my commaundementes and ordinaunces. But I will take the kyngdome forth of his sonnes hande, and will geue vnto the ten tribbes of it, and will geue his sonne one, that Dauid my seruante maye haue a lyghte alwaye before me in Jerusalem the cite which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I will take the, and thou shalt raygne vpon all that thy soule desireth, & shalt be kyng ouer Israel. And if thou shalt haaken vnto all that I commaunde the, and walke walke in my wayes, and do that is righte in my sight, that thou kepe myne ordinaunces and commaundementes, as Dauid my seruante dyd: then will I be with the, and buyld the an house that shall continue, as I buylt for my seruante Dauid, and I will geue Israel vnto the. And therewith will I be the seed of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon sought to kyl Jeroboam, wherefore Jeroboam arose, and fledde into Egypte, vnto Sesak kyng of Egypte, and continued there till the deathe of Salomon. The reste of the actes of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, are written in the booke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel, was fouretye peces. And then he sayde hym to rest with his fathers, and was buried in the cite of Dauid his father, and Jeroboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

The kyngdome is deuyded: & Rehoboam sayg-neth ouer the tribes, and Jeroboam ouer the tribe of Issachar. Jeroboam maketh golden calves.

CAPL.

XII.

And Rehoboam wente to Sichem: for all Israel were come to Sichem to make him kyng. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nabar herd of it, bring yet in Egypt:
for he had fledde to Egypt, for feare of Salomon, and dwelte there. And they sent and called him: and so Jeroboam and all the assemble of Israel came and spake vnto Rehoboam, sayinge: thy father made oure yoke greuous, but now make thou the greuous seruice of thy father, and his yoke whiche he put vpon vs, lyghter: and so we will serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kyng Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and sayde: what counsell geue ye to answer this people with?
And they sayde vnto hym. If thou shalt be a seruaunt vnto this people this day, and serue them, and answer them, and speke kynde wor-des to them, they will be thy seruautes foreuer. But he leste the counsell that the olde men had giuen hym, and counselled with the yonge men that were noursysshed by with him and had wayted on him.

And he sayde vnto them: what counsell geue ye, to answer this people, whiche haue communed with me sayinge: make the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs, lyghter? And the yonge men that were brought up with him answered hym, sayinge: this people that haue sayd vnto the: thy father made oure yoke heuy make thou it lyghter: thus answereth them.

Eccle. xlii. b. My fater spake thus vnto me: My fater put a greuous yoke vpon you, I will make it heuyer. For where my fater corrected you with scourges, I will chastise you with scorpions. And when Jeroboam, and all the people were come to Rehoboam the thirde daye, as the kyng appointed them, sayinge:
come to me agayne this daye thre dayes: the kyng answered the people churlyshely, and leste the aduys that the olde men gaue hym, and spake to them after the counsell of the yonge men, sayinge. My father made youre yoke greuous, but I will make it greuouser. For where my father chastised you with scorpions, I will chastise you with scorpions.

2 And so the kyng hardened not vnto the prople: for the turnynge awaye was of the Lord, *in. Reg. xi. f. to perfoyme his sayinge, whiche the Lord saith by Ahiab the Silonite vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Nabar.

And when all Israel sawe that the kyng regardeth them not, the people ashered the kyng agayne, sayinge: we haue no parte in Dauid, no: inheritance in the sonne of Israhel. *Haben to your tentes therefore Israhel, and now se to thyne owne house Dauid. And so Israhel departed vnto their tentes. Nowe be it ouer the children of Israhel whiche dwelte in the cite of Sada, did Jeroboam saygne Ahiab. Then kyng Jeroboam sent Ahiab the receyuer of the tre-bute. And all Israhel stoned him to deeth with stones. But kyng Rehoboam made speed and gat him vp to his chariot, & fled to Jerusalem. And so Israhel departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye. And when all Israhel herd that Jeroboam was come agayne, they sent and called hym vnto the congregacion, and made hym kyng ouer Israhel: so folowed the house of Dauid, but the tribe of Juda only. *And whyle Jeroboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered all the house of Juda, and all the tribe of Beniamin an hundred and foure score thousandes of chosen men & good warriours, to fight agaynst the house of Israhel: and to byrge the kyngdome agayne of Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon. Then came the word of the Lord vnto Semiah the man of God, sayinge: speke vnto Jeroboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Juda, and vnto all the house of Juda and Beniamin, and the remnant of the people, and saye, Thus sayth the Lord: goo not no:

yet fight agaynst your bretheren the children of Israhel, but retorne euery man to his house, for this doyng is of the Lord. And they obeyed the word of the Lord, and returned and departed accordyng to the word of the Lord.
Then Jeroboam buylded Sichem in mount Ephraim, and dwelte therein. And wente some thence and buylded Bethel.

And Jeroboam thought in his herte: nowe might the kyngdome retorne to my house, of Da-uid agayne. For if this people shall go vnto do sacrifice in the house of the Lord at Jerusalem: then shall they heres turne agayne vnto their Lord Jeroboam kyng of Juda: and so shall they kyll me, and go agayne to Jeroboam kyng of Juda. *Wherupon the kyng toke counsell and made two calves of golde, and sayd vnto the people: ye shall not neede to goe anye more to Jerusalem. Beholde, your Gods (Israhel) whiche brought you out of the lande of Egypt. And he put the one in Bethel and the other in Dan. And that doyng was a cause of synne. And the people wente to wor-shipp the calfes, as farre as Dan. And he made temples in the bylles, and made of the lorde of the people priestes, whiche were not of the sonnes of Leui. And Jeroboam made a fraile the fyfene daye of the eyght moneth, lyche to the feast that was in Juda, and offered on the altare. And so dyd he in Bethel, to offer vnto the calfes y he had made. And he put in Bethel the priestes of the byllaiters, whiche he had made. And he offered vpon the altare whiche he had made in Bethel, the fyfene daye of the eyght moneth, whiche he had ymagined of his owne herte: and made a solempne feast vnto the children of Israhel, and wente vnto the altare to burne sacrifice.

Jeroboam sacrificeth vnto Calues, in remembrance of the Prophete. His handes beneyd by the prophet tith it out agaynst the Prophete. The Prophete killed and buried.

CAPL.

XIII.

And beholde, there came a man of God
out of Juda with the word of God, to Bethel, as Jeroboam stode by the altare to offer, and cryed agaynst the altare at the commaundment of the Lord and sayd: altare, altare, thus sayth the Lord. Be-holde, a chyld shall be borne of the house of Dauid, Josiah by name, whiche vpon the wall offer the priestes of the byllaiters that sacrifice vpon the, and shall burne meynes bones vpon the. And he gaue them the same tyme a signe sayinge: this is the signe of that the Lord hath promysed. Beholde the altare shall rent and the ashes that are in it shall fall out. And when the kyng herd the sayinge of the man of God whiche he cryed agaynst the altare in Bethel, he stretched out his hande from the altare sayinge: holde him. And his hande which he put forth towards him, dyed by, that he coulde not pull it in agayne to him and the altare claue and the ashes ran out of the altare accordyng to the token whiche the man of God had giuen at the commaundment of the Lord. And the kyng answered and sayde vnto the man of God: Oh praye vnto the Lord thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hand may be restored me agayne.
And the man of God besought the Lord, and his hande came to him agayne as well as before.

Then sayd the kyng vnto the man of God
Come home with me and receiue the selfe, &
I will geue thee the rewarde. But the man of God answered the kyng, if thou wouldest geue me halfe thyne house, I woulde not goo with thee: neither woulde I eate meate or drynke water in this place. For so was it charged me, that I shoulde the word of God and sayde to me:
eate no bred, nor drynke water, nor turne a-gayne by the same waye thou wentest. And so he went an other waye and returned not by the waye he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an olde prophete in Bethel, whose sonnes came and tolde him all the workes that the man of God had done that day in Bethel, and the wordes whiche he spake vnto the kyng: they tolde the father also. And their father sayde to them: what waye went he? for his sonnes had sene what waye the man of God wente whych came from Juda. Then sayd he to his sonnes: fable myne asse. And they saddled him an asse. And he gat him by theron and wente after the man of God, and found him sitting vnder an Oke, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the man of God that camest from Juda? And he sayde, yea.

Then he sayd to him: come home with me and eate bred. And the other sayde agayne, I maye not retorne with the, to go with y, neyther maye I eate bred or drynke water with y in this place. For it was sayde to me by the comaundment of the Lord, eate no bred nor drynke water in this place, nor turne agayne by the waye thou wentest. And the other Pro-phete sayde vnto him: I am a prophete as well as thou, and an Angel spake vnto me with y word of the Lord, sayinge: Binge him a-gayne with the to thyne house, & let him eate bred and drynke water, and yet lyed vnto him.

And so the other went agayne with him & ate bred in his house and drynke water.

And as they sat at the table, the word of the Lord came vnto the prophete y brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto y man of God that came from Juda, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lord: because thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the Lord, and hast not kept y commaundment whiche the Lord thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne & hast eaten bred and drynke water in the place in whiche he had said that thou shouldest eate no bred nor drynke water: therefore thy carcasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And when he had eaten bred and drynke, he saddled an asse for the prophete whiche he had brought agayne. And as he iourned, a lyon met him by the waye, and slew him, and his carcasse laye alonge in the waye, and the asse stode euerby, and the lyon stode by the coyle also. And men that passed by, saw the carcasse cast a longe in the way and the lyon standing therby, & went & tolde it in the towne where the olde prophete dwelt. And when the Pro-phete that brought him backe agayne from y waye, herd thereof, he sayde: It is the ma of God whiche disobeyed the mouth of the Lord.
And therefore the Lord hath deliuered him vnto the Lyon whiche hath set him and slayne him, accordyng to the word of y Lord, whiche he sayde to him. And he sayd to his sonnes sable me an asse: and so they dyd. And he wote and founde the body cast alonge in the waye, and the asse and the Lyon standinge therby.
And the Lyon had not eaten the carcasse nor hurt the asse. And he toke vp the body of the manne of God, and put it vpon the asse, and brought it agayne, and came to the cite of y olde prophete to lament him, & to bury him.
And he sayde his body in his owne graue, and lamented ouer him, Oh my brother. And when he had buryed him, he spake to his sonnes say-enge: When I am deed, sepe bury me in the sepulchre wherin the man of God is buryed/and lay my bones by his. For the saying whiche he cryed at the bydinge of the Lord against the altare in Bethel, and agaynst all the houses of byllaiters whiche are in the cities of Samarie, shall come to passe.

Nowe be it for all that, Jeroboam turned not from his wicked waye: but turned away and made of the lowest of the people priestes of the byllaiters. Who so euer woulde, he fylled their handes, and they became priestes of the byllaiters. And this doyng was syn vnto the house of Jeroboam, euen to this day it and to put it awaye frome of the face of the earthe.

Jeroboams wife askest counsell of Ihuah, whiche prophesyeth the deeth of her chyld and the destruction of the Reame. Jeroboam dyeth. Seiah kyng of Egypt robbeth the house of the Lord. Jeroboam dyeth. Ihuah succedeth hym.

At that tyme Abiah the sonne of Jeroboam fell sicke. And Jeroboam sayd vnto his wyfe: aryse and chaunge thyne apparell, that thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and get the to Siloh. For there is Abiah the Prophete, which tolde me * that I woulde be kyng ouer this people. * And take with the ten loues and cracknelles and a cruse of hony, and goo to him: for he will tell the what shall come of the childe. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: she arose and went to Siloh, and came to the house of Abiah. But Abiah coulde not se, for his eyes were warren by myne for age.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Abiah: Behold, the wyfe of Jeroboam cometh, to question with the about her sonne which is sicke. This wyfe and this wyfe aunswere her. And when she came, she sepyed her self to be an other woman. But when Abiah herde the sounde of her fete as she came to the wyse, he sayd: Come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why sepyest thou thy self to be an other? I am sent to the an heuy messenger. Go and tell Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: for as much as I auanced the about the comen people, & made the prince ouer my people Israel, and dyd plucke the kyngdome away from the house of Dauid and gaue it the: and thou hast not bene as was my seruauit Dauid, who kepte my commandmentes and solowed me with al his hert, to do only which semeth right in myne eyes: but hast done euyl about all that were before the, and hadde gone and made the other goddes and ymages, of metall to prouoke me, and hast cast me behynde thy backe: therefore behold I wyl hyngre euyl vpon the house of Jeroboam, and wyl drye frome Jeroboam all that pilseth against the wall, and what so euer is in pylson of forsaken in Israel, and wyl take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as men take away a long hill, tyll it be consumed. * And who so euer of Jeroboams house dyd in the towne, hym wyl the dogges eate, and him that dyeth in the felde, wyl the fowles of the ayre eate: for the Lorde hathe sayd it, aryse and get the to thyne house, and as sone as thy fote entereth the cite, the chyld shall dye. Now be thou that shall moune him and bury him, for this only of all Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in him there is founde goodnesse toward the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam. Moreover the Lorde wyl see him by a kyng ouer Israel who shall destroy the house of Jeroboam in that day. And what is that that is now in hande? And the Lorde wyl synne Israel, as a rebe that groweth in the water is taken, and wyl webe Israel out of this good lande which he gaue to the fathers, and wyl scatter them beyonde Euphrates, because they haue made theym groves to angethe the Lorde. And he wyl geue Israel by, because of the synne of Jeroboam, wherewith he dyd synne, & made Israel synne also.

And Jeroboams wyfe arose and departed, & went to Thersah, and by that we was come to the thersholde of the wyse, the ladde was deeth. And all Israel buried him and lamented him, accordyng to the woide of the Lorde which he spake by the bande of his seruauit Abiah the Prophete. The rest of the dedes of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he raygned, are wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And the dayes which Jeroboam raygned, were twenty yere. And then he rested with his fathers, and Nadab his sonne raygned in his stede.

And Rehoboam the son of Salomon raygned in Juda, and was. xii. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned. xvi. yere in Jerusalem the cite which the Lorde had chosen out of all the cytyes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde and angeth him about all that their fathers dyd, with their synne which they synned. For they also made them hillaultres and ymages and groves in euery hygge byll, and vnder euery grene tre. And therto ther was a flues of male chylde in the lande, and they dyd accordyng to all the abhominacions of the Wychen, whiche the Lorde call out before the chylde of Israel. And the first yere of kyng Rehoboam came he sack kyng of Egypt vnto Jerusalem, & stode away the treasure of the house of the Lorde and the treasure of the kynges house, and all that was to be had. And he toke away the sheldes of golde which Salomon made. In which stede kyng Rehoboam made by an wyllde, and put them in the keeping of the capitaynes of the garde, which wayed at the wyse of the kynges house. And as ofte as the kynges went into the house of the Lorde, they of his garde bare them, and euer brought them agayne to the garde chambere.

Wyrted Abiah raygneth ouer Juda, and wyrted wyse Asa succedeth in his rowme. The battayle betweene Asa and Baasa. Josaphat succedeth Asa. Nadab succedeth Jeroboam. Baasa killeth Nadab.

The xvi. yere of kyng Jeroboam the sonne of Nadab, raygned kyng Abiah ouer Juda, and ruled thre yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Naamah the daughter of Abesalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father whiche he dyd before hym, and his herte was not hole with the Lorde his God, as the herte of Dauid his father. Neurethelesse for Dauids sake, the Lorde his God gaue him a lyght in Jerusalem, that he set by his sonne after him, to co stume Jerusalem. Because that Dauid dyd what pleased the Lorde, and touned frome wherby that he commaunded him at the dayes of his lyfe, & saue only in the matter of Achis the Bethsur. And there was war betweene Rehoboam and Jeroboam as longe as he lyued. The rest of the dedes of Abiah and all that he dyd, are wyrtten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And there was warre betweene Abiah and Jeroboam. And Abiah rested with his fathers, and they buried him in the cite of Dauid. And Asa his sonne raygned in his stede.

The x. yere of Jeroboam kyng of Israel beganne Asa to raygne ouer Juda, and ruled in Jerusalem. xii. yere. Whose mothers name was Maacah the daughter of Abesalom. And Asa dyd that semed right in the eyes of the Lorde, lyke Dauid his father. And he made the flues of males departe the lande, and put away all the ydolles that his fathers had made. And therto he put downe Maacah his mother frome beinge rule, because she had made an ydole in a groue. And Asa destroyed the ydole and burnt it by the broke Cedron. But he put not downe the hillaultres. Neurethelesse Asas herte was hole with the Lorde all his dayes. And he brought in, that his father had dedicat, and the thynges halowed vnto the house of the Lorde, silver, gold and Jewelles. And there was warre betweene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel al their dayes.

And Baasa kyng of Israel went by against Juda, and buyt Ramah, because he wolde let none of Asas people kyng of Juda, go in or out. Then Asa toke all the silver and gold that was left in the treasure of the house of the Lorde, & all the treasure of the kynges house, and requered it vnto his seruantes, & sente them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabemon sonne of Beyon kyng of Syria that dwelte at Damasco, sayeng: there is a bond betweene the and me, as was betweene thy father and myne. Therefore I sende the bothe golde & silver for a gyfte, that thou goo and breake the bond betweene the and Baasa kyng of Israel, that he maye departe frome me. And Benhadad herkened vnto kyng Asa, and sente the capitaynes of the hostes which he had against the cyties of Israel, and smote Aiton, Dan, Abiel called Berib Maacah and all Ceneroth with all the lande of Nephtali. And when Baasa herde that, he left buydng of Ramah and dwelt in Thersah. Then kyng Asa made proclamation thorowoute all Juda, & none shuld be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah and & gynder wherewith Baasa had buyt, and kyng Asa buyt thirwith Gabaah to Beniamin and Hazephah. The rest of all the dedes of Asa, and of all his myght, and of all his proceynges, and the cyties whiche he buyt, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of the a: ctes done in the dayes of the kynges of Juda. Neurethelesse in his old age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa layd him to rest with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the the cite of Dauid his father. And Josaphat his sonne raygned in his rowme. And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam began to raygne vnto Nadab. Israel the seconde yere of Asa kyng of Juda, and raygned vnto Israel two yere. And he dyd euyl in the sight of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of his father and in his synne wherewith he made Israel synne. But Baasa the son of Abiah of the house of Isachar conspired against him, and slew him at Sebethon a cite of the Pyramides, for Nadab and all Israel laye at seage before Sebethon. And it was the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Juda, when Baasa slew him, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was kyng, he slew al the house of Jeroboam and left him naught that bytyed, buttill he had betterly destroyed him, ageunge vnto the sayenge of the Lorde which he spake by his seruauit Abiah the Silonite, for the synne of Jeroboam wherewith he synned and made Israel synne, and for his angetyng that he angeth the Lorde God of Israel. The rest of the dedes of Nadab, and all his procedynges, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And there was warre betweene Asa and Baasa, kyng of Israel, all thre dayes.

In the thirde yere of Asa kyng of Juda, Baasa the sonne of Abiah began to raygne ouer all Israel in Thersah, and continued. xxii. yere. And he dyd that displeaced the Lorde, for he walked in the waye of Jeroboam and in his synne, wherewith he made Israel synne.

Jehu propheseth agaynst Baasa, of whome he is sayne. Elah succedeth Baasa. Zambri killeth his mayster Elah, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. Zambri erect and Zambri chour. Zambri burneth hym selfe and his house. Wyrted Abiah succedeth Asa, and taketh to wyfe wyrted Josaphat.

Then came the woide of the Lorde to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynst Baasa, sayenge: for as moche as I created the out of the dust and made the capytayne ouer my people Israel, and thou hadde walked in the waye of Jeroboam and hadde made my people Israel synne, to angethe me with they synne: I wyl make cleane idolaunce of Baasa and of all his house, and wyl make his house lyke the house of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nadab. * And he that dyeth of Baasa in the cite, hym wyl the dogges eate: and him that dyeth in the felde, wyl the fowles of the ayre eate.

The rest of the dedes of Baasa, and what he dyd, and his warres, are wyrtten in the booke of the Historis of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa sel on slepe with his fathers, & was buried in Thersah. And Elah his sonne raygned in his stede. And by the bande of the Prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, the woide of the Lorde came agaynst Baasa, & agaynst his house because of all the wyrtednesse that he dyd in the tinge his enemies, or happily he slepeth) that he may awake. And they cryed aloud, cut them selues (as their maner was) with knyves and launcers, till the blood folowed on them. But when myddaye was passed, and they hadde played the p[ro]phetes till it was tyme to offe / and yet was neither voyce, ne answer, ne anye that regarded them. Eliah sayd to all the folke / come to me. And all the people came to him. And he mended the aultre of the Lorde that was broken, * and toke xij. stones, accordyng to the nombre of the twelve t[ri]bes of the sonnes of Jacob, unto whom the worde of the Lorde came, sayyng: Israel shal be thy name. And with the stones he made an aultre in the name of the Lorde. And he made a gutter rounde aboute the aultre, hable to receyve two peckes of coine, and he put the wod in oider, and hewed the ore in peeces, and put him on the wodde, and sayde / fill foure pytyers with water, and poure it on the sacrifice and on the wodde. And he sayd / wo so agayne. And they dyd so agayne. Then he sayd / wo it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd so the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne rounde aboute the aultre, and the gutter was full of water also.

Genes. xxi.

So when offeryng tyme was come, Eliah the p[ro]phete went to and sayd: Lorde God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel / let it be knownen this daye, that thou arte the God of Israel, and that I am thy s[er]vaunt / and that I do all these thynges at thy commaundement. Heare me, O Lorde, heare me / that this people may knowe that thou arte the God / and that thou hast touned theyr bettes backward. And there fell fyre from the Lorde, and consumed the sacrifice, and the wodde, and the stones, and the dulle / and lyched by the water that was in the gutter. Whiche when all the people sawe, they fel on theyr faces and sayd, the Lorde he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayde Eliah unto them, laye handes on the p[ro]phetes of Baal, lett not one of them escape. And when they had taken them Eliah byrght them downe unto the brooke Kison, and slue them there.

Then Eliah sayde unto Achab, get the by and eate and drynke, for there is a sounde of moche rayne. And whiche Achab went by to eate and to drynke / Eliah went by to the toppes of mount Carmel, * and bowed him selfe to the carthe, and put his face bytwene his knees / and sayd to his s[er]vaunt: go by and loke towardes the see. And he went by and looked, and sayd: here is nothyng. And he sayd go agayne seven tymes. And the seventh tyme he sayde: behold, there aryseth a lytle cloude out of the see, lyke the paulme of a mannes hand. Then he sayde: goo and saye to Achab, putre the horyles in the charette, and get the downe / the rayne stoppe the not. And within a lytle whyle heuen was blacke with cloudes and wynde, and there was a greaue rayne. And Achab rode and went to Jezabel, and the h[er]e of the Lorde was on Eliah, and he gyded by his loynes and ranne before Achab, till they came to Jezabel.

Eliah flinge frome Jezabelis noutyng of the tuncell of God. He complayneth that he is left alone, and that they seke his lyfe to. He is commaunded to annoynt Azabel, Jehu, and Eliseus.

CAPL.

XIX.

And Achab tolde Jezabel, all that Eliah hadde done, and all together, howe he had slayne the p[ro]phetes with the swerde. Then Jezabel sente a messenger unto Eliah, sayyng: * so wo God to me, and to thyerto, but yf I make thy soule lyke one of theys, by to morow this tyme: when he shal that he arose and went for his lyfe, and came to Bersabe in Juda, and left his s[er]vaunt there. And he went a dayes journeye in to the wyldernesse, and when he was come, sat downe under a Juniper tree, and despyed for his soule, that he myghte dye, and sayde: * it is nowe ynough, O Lorde, take my soule / for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he laye and slepte under the Juniper tree: beholde there came an angell and touched hym, and sayde unto him: arise and eate. And he looked aboute hym: and loe there was an Imbre cake, and a cruse of water at his heed. And he ate and drynke, and layde him downe agayne to slepe. And the angell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched hym, and sayd: arise and eate, for thou hadde a longe journeye to goo. And he arose and dyd eate and drynke, and wente in the strengthe of that meat fourty dayes and fourty nyghtes unto Horeb the mount of God, and entred there in to a cave, and lodged there all nyght.

And then the worde of the Lorde came to him and sayde: what doest thou here Eliah? And he answered: I have ben thyow angre for the Lorde God of holles sake. For I chylde of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, and have broke downe thyne aulters, and slayne the p[ro]phetes with the swerde, and I onely am left / and they seke my soule to have it. And he sayd: come oute and stande before the Lorde. And behold, the Lorde went by, and a myggyre stronge wynde that rent the mountaynes, and brake the rockes before him / but the Lorde was not in the wynde. And after the wynde, came an earthquake, but the Lorde was not in the earthquake. And after the earthquake came fyre / but the Lorde was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small sylly boyer. And when Eliah herde it, he counted his face with his mantell, and wente oute and stode in the mouth of the cave. And loe, there came a voyce unto him, and sayde: what doest thou here Eliah? And he answered: I have ben to nelly angre for the Lorde God of holles sake because the chyldren of Israel have forsaken thyne appoyntment and have cast downe thyne aulters, and slayne thy p[ro]phetes with the swerde, and I onely am left, and they seke my soule to have it. Then the Lorde sayde unto him: goo and tounne thy waye to the wyldernesse of Damasco, and go and annoynt Hazael to be kynge of Siria. And Jehu the sonne of Sam, annoynt to be kynge over Israel. And Eliseus the sonne of Saphat of Abel Mehuah annoynt to be p[ro]phete in thy towne. And who so escapeth the swerde of Hazael, the swerde of Jehu, the swerde of Eliseus shal escape. And therto I have left me seven thousande in Israel, of which nyce man bowed his knees unto Baal nor killed him with his mouth.

And he departed thence and founde Eliseus the sonne of Saphat plowynge with twelve yoke of oxen before him, & he with the trowell. And Eliah went to him and cast his mantell upon him. And he left the oxen and ran after Eliah and sayde: let me I praye the, kysse my father and mother, and then I will folow y. And he sayde to him: go backe agayne, for what have I to doe? And he went backe agayne frome him, and toke a yoke of oxen and flew thym, and blessed the flock. With the indurmentes of the oxen, and gaue it to the people, & they dyd eate. And then he arose and went as to Eliah and ministred unto him.

The firste and seconde tyme that Samaria was besieged of Benhadad kynge of Siria.

CAPL.

XX.

And Benhadad kynge of Siria gathered all his host together, and xxx. kyn ges with him, with horyse and charet: and went by and beseged Samaria and warred against it. And he sent messengers to Achab kynge of Israel into the cytie, and sayde unto him: thus saith Benhadad, Thy siluer & thy golde is myne, and the best of thy wyves, and the best of thy chyldren be myne. And the king of Israel answered and sayde: my Lorde king accordyng to thy sayeng, I am thyne with all I have.

And the messengers came agayne to Achab and sayde thus sayth Benhadad. I have thee for s[er]vnt unto the, sayyng: deliver me then thy siluer and thy golde, and thy wyves, and thy chyldren. Or els I will sende my s[er]vauntes to the by to morow this tyme: & they shal sette thyne house, and the houses of thy s[er]vauntes, which shal take all that is glorious in thyne eyes, and bringe it awaye with them. Then the kynge of Israel sent for the elders of the land and sayde: take hede I praye you, for how this felowe goeth about myschyfe. For he sente unto me, for my wyves and my chyldren, and my siluer and my golde: and I feared him nothinge of it. And all the elders of Israel and all the people sayde: hearken not to him nor consent. Whereupon he sayde unto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kynge, all that he sent for the first tyme. I will be: but this request I maye not w. And the messengers departed & brought him worde. And Benhadad sent unto him and sayde thus to the goddes to me and so therto, yf the dust of Samaria be ynough for all the people: I folowe me, that every man may have an haddall. And the kynge of Israel answered and sayde: Tell him, let not him that putteth on his harnesse boyl him selfe, as he that putteth it of. And when Benhadad herde that answer as he and the kynges were drynkyng in the paupitons, he sayde unto his s[er]vauntes: put your selves in aray. And they put them selues in aray against the cytie. And behold there came a p[ro]phete unto Achab kynge of Israel and sayd to him: Thus sayth the Lorde. Scith thou al this great multitude? Beholde, I will deliver them into thyne hande this daye, that thou mayst knowe that I am the Lorde. And Achab sayde, by whome? And he sayde, thus sayth the Lorde: even by the gouernours men of the wyres. And Achab sayde: who shal sette loyne batayle? And he sayde, thou. When he nombred the men of the gouernours of the wyres: and they were two hundred & xxx. And after them he nombred all the people, and all the chyldren of Israel were seven thousande. And they marched forthward at none when Benhadad was a drynkyng stronge drynke in the paupitons with the xxx. kynges that boyl him. And the men of the rulers of the wyres went out first. And Benhadad sent forthe, & they shewed hym sapenge: There come men frome Samaria. And he sayde: yf they come to make a pear, take them a lyue. And also yf they come for warre, take them yet a lyue. And when those men of the wyres of the wyres were come out of the cytie and the host after them, they slew every one of them his enemy that stode in his waye. And the Syrians fled, and Israel folowed after them. And Benhadad the kynge of Siria escaped on a horyse with his horysemen. And the kynge of Israel went out and smote horyse and charet, & slew a great slaughter of the Syrians.

Then there came a p[ro]phete to the kynge of Israel, and sayde to hym: Go forth and slaye the man, be wyse and take hede what thou doest: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Siria will come agayne & agayne. Then sayde the s[er]vauntes of the kynges of Siria to him / The goddes of the hylles are their goddes, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fight with them in a playne and undoubtedly we shal have the better of them. And this to / take the kynges awaye every man out of his place, & put Dukes in thire rowmes. And furnyssh the a new host, lyke a host that thou hast lost, and horyse for horyse, & charet for charet, and let vs fight with thym in the playne, and for a wager, we get the better of the. And the kynge hekened unto their counsell and dyd euen so.

And as soon as the yere was gone aboute, Benhadad nombred the Syrians and went by to Aphek to warre with Israel. And the chyldren of Israel were nombred and proupyed of bytaye, and went against them, and pytched before them lyke two lytle flockes of kyddes but the Syrians fylled the countreye. Then there came a man of God and sayde unto the kynge of Israel, thus sayth the Lorde. Because the Syrians sate, that the Lorde is but a God of the hylles, & not God of the valles: therfore will I deliver all this great multitude into thyne hande / yf thou knowest I am the the Lorde. And they pitched one oute against the other. by dayes, and the seventh day they toynd batayle. And the childe of Israel slue of the Syrians an hundred thousande fote me in one daye. And the rest fled to Iherusalem. And there fell a wall vpon xxvj. thousande of them that were left. And Benhadad fled and went into the cytie, from chambze to chambze.

Then sayde his seruantes vnto him: Behold, we haue heere saye, that the kynges of the house of Israel are mercifull kynges. Let vs put sacke cloth about our loynes, and ropes about our heddes, and go out to the kyng of Israel: happily he will saue thy lyfe. So they geynt sacke cloth about their loynes, & put ropes about their heddes, and went oute to the kyng of Israel and sayde: thy seruante Benhadad sayth, I pray the let me lyue. And he sayde: Is he yet a lyue? what he is my brother. And they toke that word for good lucke and hastily caught it out of his mouth & sayd: Yea thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayd: go and bringe him. And Benhadad came ouer to him, and the other toke him vp in to the chaire. And Benhadad sayde: the cyties whiche my father toke frome thy father, I will restore agayn. And thou shalt make altars for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I will make a league with the & send the awaye. And so made a league with him and sent him awaye.

Then a ceteyn man of the children of the prophetes sayd vnto his felow with the word of the Lorde, smyte me I praye the. And the man wolde not smyte him. And he sayde, because thou haste not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: behold, as soon as thou arte departed frome me a Lyon shall slay the. And as soon as he was departed frome him, & a Lyon found him & slew him. Then he founde an other man and sayd to him: smyte me I praye the. And the man gaue him a good smyte and wounded him. And the prophete went forth and wayted for the kyng by the waye and tyed a kerche about his eyes, and put him selfe oute of knowlege. And when the kyng came by, he cryed vnto him and sayde: thy seruante went out in the myddes of the battell. And lo, there was one began to slee. And there came a man to me and sayde: kepe thou this man. And yf he be mysed, thy lyfe shall goe for his, or els thou shalt paye a talene of siluer. And as the seruante had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto him: euen so shall thy iudgement be as thou hast defined in thy selfe.

And he halted and vnfolded the kerche awaye frome his eyes: and the kyng of Israel knew him, that he was of the prophetes. And he sayd vnto the kyng, thus sayth the Lorde because thou hast let go a man I oughte to haue dyed, thy lyfe shall goe for his lyfe, & thy people for his. And the kyng of Israel went to his house at Iad & Iericho, & fled into Samaria.

Then Jazabel commaundeth to kill Naboth, for the byncarde that he refused to sell. Achab & Jazabel repromereth Achab, and he repenteth.

After these thinges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Jezrabelite had a byncarde in Jezrabell hard by the place of Achab kyng of Samaria. And Achab spake vnto Naboth sayenge: let me haue thy byncarde, to make me a garden of herbes therof, because it lyeth so nyghe my house: I will geue the a better byncarde for it: or yf it please the I will geue the the wythe of it in siluer. But Naboth sayde to Achab: the Lorde forbyd that I should sell the byncarde of my fathers vnto me. Then went Achab vnto his house exceedinge angrye and euill apayde, because of the wordes whiche Naboth the Jezrabelite had spoll to him sayenge: I will not geue to the the byncarde of my fathers. And he layde him to bed, and turned awaye his face, and wolde eate no meat.

Then Jazabel his wyfe came to him, and sayde vnto him: Why art thou so frownde, that thou eatest no meat? And he sayde vnto her, I spake vnto Naboth the Jezrabelite, & sayde vnto him: Geue me the byncarde in siluer, or els yf thou wilt, I will geue the the other byncarde for it. And he sayde: I will not geue the my byncarde.

Then sayde Jazabel vnto him: What a goodly kyngdome were thou able to make in Israel: yf and eat meat, and sit thy bert at rest, for I will geue the the byncarde of Naboth the Jezrabelite. And she wrote a letter in Achabs name & sealed it with his seale, and sent it vnto the elders and chiefe men of the cytie that dwelt where Naboth dwelt. And she wrote in the letter sayenge: proclame fastinge and let Naboth on hygh amonge the people, and let two naughty felowes bring him, and let them testify agayn him sayenge thou dydest blaþeme both God & the kyng. And vpon that cary him out and stone him to death.

And the elders and nobles of the cytie, whiche dwelt in the cytie, dyd as Jazabel had sayd vnto them, and as it was written in the letter whiche she had sent vnto them. They proclamed fastinge, and set Naboth an vngere amonge the people, and there came in to the threty persons and late before him. And the two deuelysh persons witnessed agayn Naboth both before the people sayenge. Naboth hath cursed God and the kyng. & And vpon that they caryed him out of the cytie and stoned him with stones to death. And then they sent to Jazabel sayenge: Naboth is stoned to death. And when Jazabel herde that Naboth was stoned to death: she sayde to Achab: aryle and take possession of the byncarde of Naboth, the Jezrabelite, whiche he denyed to geue the for siluer: for Naboth is not a lyue, but dead. And when Achab herde that Naboth was dead, he went to go to the byncarde of Naboth the Jezrabelite, to take possession of it.

And the wordes of the Lorde came vnto Achab the Jezrabelite sayenge: aryle and go to meete Achab kyng of Israel whiche is in the mana. Beholde, he is in the byncarde of Naboth: for he is gone to meete the. To take possession of it. And say vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde, thou hast kyled & moxrouer gotten possession. And saye after that vnto him, thus sayth the Lorde: in the place where thou hast lapped the bloude of Naboth, shall thou geue lapped euen thy bloude also. And Achab sayde to Eliab: hast thou found me thyne ene my or any tyme? And he sayde yee, because thou art bitterly appointed to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde. Behold, I will bringe euill vpon the, and will make cleane the byncarde of thyne yllue, and will destroy of Achab all that passeth agayn the wall, and euen the include and furthest in Israel: & I will make thyne house, lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baal the sonne of Achab, because thou haste provoked me to anger, & made Israel synne.

And also agayn Jazabel came the wordes of the Lorde, sayenge: wogges shall eat Jezabel vnder the wallies of Jezrabell. And he & Jazabel of Achab in the towne, him shall wogges eate: and he that dyeth in the felde, him shall the foules of the ayre eate. For there was none at all lyke Achab, that was so bitterly appointed to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and that because Jezabel his wyfe pricked him forwarde. And therefore he dyd exceedinge abhominably, in folowinge yoles, in all thinges lyke as dyd the Amozites whiche the Lorde call out before the childe of Israel.

When Achab herde those wordes, & he set his clothes and put sackcloth about his flesch and fasted, and lay in sacke and went comfort les. And the wordes of the Lorde came to Eliab the Jezrabelite sayenge: seest thou how Achab humbleth him selfe before me? because he so humbleth him selfe before me, I will not bringe the euill in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes I will bringe euill vpon his house.

Four hundred falsse prophetes do counsell Achab and Jozaphat to warre agayn Ramoth: only Mischeah propheseth the truth, for whiche he is imprisoned and put in pzyon.

And they continued thre yere withoute warre betwene Siria and Israel. & And the thud yere Jozaphat kyng of Iuda came to the kyng of Israel. Then sayde the kyng of Israel vnto his seruantes, know ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is ours, and we be fill and take it not out of the handes of the kyng of Siria? And he sayd vnto Jozaphat: wilt thou go with me to batayle, to Ramoth in Galaad? And Jozaphat sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: & I will be as thou art, & my people shall be as thyne, and my hoyses as thyne.

And Jozaphat sayde vnto the kyng of Israel: aske counsell I praye the of the Lorde to daye. And then the kyng of Israel gathered of the prophetes together, vpon a fowse hundred men, and sayde vnto them: Shall I go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, or be fill? And they sayde, go / for the Lorde shall deli-uer it into the handes of the kyng. And Jozaphat sayde: is there not one prophete of the Lorde here more, that we might enquire of him? And the kyng of Israel sayde to Jozaphat: there is yet one, by whom we may aske counsell of the Lorde, one Mischeah the sonne of Iemlah. But I hate him: for he neuer propheseth good vnto me, but euill. And Jozaphat sayd: let not the kyng say so. Then the kyng of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlaynes and sayd: set Mischeah the sonne of Iemlah hyther atones. And the kyng of Israel and Jozaphat the kyng of Iuda sat eyther in his seat and their apparell on them, in a voyde place besyde the entrynge of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophesenge before them. And Zedekiah the sonne of Anaanah made hoynes of yron and sayd, thus sayth the Lorde: with these hoynes thou shalt wpynde the Syrians vntill thou haue made an ende of them. And all the prophetes prophesed euen so, sayenge: goo to Ramoth in Galaad and prosper, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kyng. And the messenger that was gone to call Mischeah, sayde vnto him / se, the wordes of the prophetes spake good vnto the kyng with one voyce / let thy wordes I praye the, be lyke the wordes of one of them, and speake that is good. And Mischeah sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouth, that will I speake. And whiche he was come to the kyng, the kyng sayde to him / Mischeah shall we go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, or shall we be fill? And he sayde vnto him, & go and prosper, the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kyng. And the kyng sayd vnto him, howe often shall I aduise the, that thou tell me nothinge but truche, in the name of the Lorde? Then he sayd I saw all Israel scattered vpon the bylles, as shepe that haue no shepherdes. And the Lorde sayde / those haue no maister, let them retorne euery man to his house in pear. Then sayd the kyng of Israel to Jozaphat / dyd I not tell the, that he wolde prophesye no good vnto me, but euill? And Mischeah sayd / heare the therefore the wordes of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sit on his seate, and al the company of beauen standinge about him, on his ryght hand and on his left. And the Lorde sayd: & who shall deceyue Achab that he may go & be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? and one sayd on this maner & an other on that. Then came forth a spyte & a node before the Lorde & sayd I will deceyue Achab. And the Lorde sayd, where is it? And he sayde / I will goo oute and be a falsse spyte in the mouthes of all his prophetes. And the Lorde sayd, Thou shalt deceyue him and also preuayle, go forth & do euen so. From thersore beholde, the Lorde hath put a spyte in the mouth of all these thy prophetes / when in very dede the Lorde hath spoke euill towarde the.

Then Zedekiah the sonne of Anaanah wet to and smote Mischeah on the cheke, and sayde / howe is the spyte of the Lorde gone frome me, to speake in the? And Mischeah sayd

of Jezrabell.

1. Par. xviii.

2. Reg. xxi.

sayde: Beholde, thou shalt see in that daye, when thou shalt go frome chamber to chamber to vnder the. And the kynge of Israel sayde Take Micheah and carry him backe agayne vnto Simon the gouernour of the cite, and vnto Joab the kynge's sonne, and saye: thus sayth the kynge. But ye this felow in prison and fede him with bread and water straitly, tyll I retorne in pear. Then Micheah sayde, if thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he sayde, hearken ye people euery one of you.

And so the kynge of Israel and Josaphat the kynge of Iuda went by to Ramoth in Galaad. And the kynge of Israel sayd to Josaphat I will chaunge myne apparell and get me to warre: but put thou on thyne owne apparell. And the kynge of Israel chaunged his raiment and went to battell also. But the kynge of Syria had commanded the capitaynes of his charrettes of which he had. xxxij. sayenge: fight together with small nor greates, false with the kynge of Israel only. And when the capitaynes of the charrettes sawe Josaphat, they thought he had bene the kynge of Israel, and therefore turned to him to fight. But Josaphat cryed out. And when the capitaynes of the charrettes sawe he was not the kynge of Israel, they turned backe frome him. And a certayne man betwix a bowe vnto the kynge of Israel betwene the ribbes of his hart. Wherfore the kynge sayde vnto the byrder of his charret, turne thy hande and carry me forth of the host, for I am hurt. And the felde encreased that daye, and the kynge continued in his charret before the Syrians, and dyed about nyght. And the bloud ranne oute of the wounde into the bottoime of the charret. And there went a Proclamation thowse oute the host after the sonne was downe, sayenge: let euery man departe to his cite and to his own countrey. And when the kynge of Israel was ded, they came to Samaria and buried hym there. And while they washed the charret in the pole of Samaria, the dogges lyched vpon his bloude, and harlottes washed him accordinge vnto the worde of the Lorde which he spake. The rest of the dedes of Achab, and all he dyd, and the yuoy house which he made, and the cyties that he buylt, are written in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynge of Israel. And when Achab was layde to rest with his fathers, Ohoziab his sonne raygned in his steade.

Josaphat the sonne of Asa began to raygne vpon Iuda, the fourth yere of Achab kynge of Israel, and was. xxxij. yere olde when he began to raygne and raygned. xxx. yere in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Azubah the daughter of Salati. And he walked in all the wayes of Asa his father and bowed not therfrome, but dyd that was right in the eyes of the Lorde. Onely he dyd not put the high alters out of the waye: for the people offered burnt their sacrifices yet, in the high alters. And he had pear with the kynge of Israel.

The rest of the dedes of Josaphat, and the myght that he bled, and how he warred, are written in the booke of Chronicles of the kynge of Iuda. And also the remnant of the yonger boyes, whiche remayned in the dayes of his father, he put cleane oute of the lande. There was then no kynge in Edom, the kynge was but a depuie. And Josaphat made wyppes in the se, to go to Ophir for gold, but they went not: for the wyppes brake at Elion Gebet. Then sayde Ohoziab the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Let my seruantes go with thyne in the wyppes. But Josaphat wolde not. And Josaphat layde him to slepe with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the cite of David his father: & Jehoaz his sonne raygned in his rowme.

The ende of the thyrde booke of the kynge, as the lutenistes reken, the hebrues call it the spylle of the kynge.

THE FOWRTH BOKE OF THE KYNGES, VVHICH THE HEBRUES CALL THE SECONDE OF THE KYNGES.

Ohoziab is hurt, and asketh counsell of Bezechub howe he may come by health. The capitaynes ouer syre with thesre soudiars are burne, by the prayer of Eliah. Ohoziab is reppoynd of Bezechub, and dirsty and Jehoaz his brother succedeth hym.

CAP. I.

Ohoziab the sonne of Achab began to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria, the xviij. yere of Josaphat kynge of Iuda, and was kynge ouer Israel two yeres, and dyd euill in the sight of the Lorde and walked in the waye of his father and in the waye of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel to synne. And he serued Baal and bowed himselfe to him, and angered the Lorde God of Israel, in all thinge, as dyd his father. And the Moabites rebelled against Israel at the death of Achab.

And Ohoziab fel thowse a lattise wyndow out of an hyper chamber that he had in Samaria, and fell thre. And he sent messengers, sayenge vnto them: Go and enquire of Bezechub the God of Akaron, wherfore I fall sicke of this disease, or no. But the angell of the Lorde spake to Eliah the Thesbite, aryle and go against the messengers of the kynge of Samaria, and saye vnto them: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to aske of Bezechub the God of Akaron. Therto, & thus saith the Lorde: Thou shalt not come downe frome the bed wheron thou lych, but shalt dye. And Eliah departed.

And the messengers turned backe agayne vnto Ohoziab. And he sayde vnto them: wherfore thus come agayne? And they sayd vnto him, there came a man against vs and sayd vnto vs: go and retorne vnto the kynge that sent you, and weene him. Thus sayeth the Lorde. Is there no God in Israel, that thou sendest to enquire of Bezechub the God of Akaron? Therefore thou shalt not come downe frome the bed wheron thou arte gone by, but shalt surely dye. And he sayd to them: What manner man was that whiche met you and tolde you these wordes? And they sayd vnto him: It was an heary man and grey with a greyde of a skynne aboute his loynes. And he sayd vnto them: it is Eliah the Thesbite.

Then the kynge sent vnto him a capitayne ouer his syre with his syre that were vnder him. And when the capitayne was come to him, beholde: he sat on the toppe of an hill. And the capitayne sayd vnto him: Art thou of God, the kynge dyddeth the come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde to the capitayne ouer the syre: If I be a man of God, fyre come downe frome heauen and consume the and thy syre. And there came fyre downe frome heauen & consumed him and his syre. And the kynge wente agayne and sent to him an other capitayne ouer his syre with his syre men with him whiche answered and sayde vnto him, O man of God, thus sayeth the kynge make hast and come downe. And Eliah answered and sayde vnto them, If I be a man of God, then let fyre come downe from heauen and consume the and thy syre. And there came fyre downe from heauen and consumed him and his syre.

And the kynge sent agayne the thirde capitayne ouer his syre. And when the thirde capitayne ouer his syre was come by to him, he fell on his knees before Eliah and besought hym and sayd vnto him / O man of God, let my syre and the syre of these syre thy seruantes be precious in thy sight. Behold, there came fyre downe frome heauen and burnt up the two fore capitaynes ouer his syre with their syres. But let my syre now be precious in thy sight. Then sayde the angell of the Lorde vnto Eliah / Go downe with him, and be not afraid of him. And he went downe with him vnto the kynge.

And he sayde vnto the kynge, thus sayeth the Lorde / for as moche as thou sentest messengers to aske thowse Bezechub the God of Akaron, as though there had bene no God in Israel to aske thowse his worde, therefore thou shalt not come of the bed on which thou art mouined, but shalt surely dye. And so he dyed accordinge to the worde of the Lorde which Eliah spake: and Jehoaz was made kynge in his steade, the seconde yere of Jehoaz sonne of Josaphat kynge of Iuda, because he had no sonne. The rest of the dedes of Ohoziab whiche he dyd, are written in the Chronicles of the kynge of Israel.

Eliah diuined the waters with his mantel. He is taken vp in to heuen. The hyer and benedictio waters are held by the lak that Eliah put into them. The childe, in that meche El. fens are sent in piers.

CAP.

II.

And it chaunced when the Lorde wold take vp Eliah to heauen in a whorle wynde, that Eliah and Eliscus were goynge frome Galgal. And Eliah sayde to Eliscus, tary here, for the Lorde hath sent me to Bethel. But Eliscus sayd / as surely as the Lorde lyeth, and as thy soule lyeth, I will not leaue the. And when they came to Bethel, the children of the Prophets that were at Bethel, came to the to El. us, and sayde to him: knowest thou not that the Lorde will take awaye thy master that he be no lenger thy brad this daye? And he sayd I knowe it to. holde your peace.

Then sayde Eliah to Eliscus / tary here I praye the, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jericho. And he sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyeth, I will tary with ueth, and as surely as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the, and so they went to Jericho. And the children of the Prophetes that were at Jericho came to Eliseus and sayde vnto hym: arte thou not ware that the Lorde wil take awaye thy mayster frome the this day? And he answered: I knowe it also, holde your peate. And Eliah sayde to hym: saye I praye the here, for the Lorde hath sent me to Jor- dan. But he sayde: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the. And so they went both of them to gether. And fiftye men of the sonnes of the Prophetes went and stode in sight a farr off, as they two stode by Jor dan.

And then Eliah toke his mantel & wrapte it together, and smote the water, and it diuided it selfe: parte one waye, and parte an other, and they two went ouer on the dry land. And as soone as they were ouer, Eliah sayde to Eliseus: aske what I will do for the, & I be taken awaye from the. And Eliseus sayde: let me haue thy spyrte double in me. And he sayde: thou hast asked an harde thyng. Nevertheless if thou se me when I am taken awaye frome the, thou shalt haue it so: yf thou do not, it shall not be. And as they went walkyng and talkyng: beholde there came a chariot of fire, and hoxses of fire: & put them asunder. And Eliah went vp in the whorlwynde to heauen. And Eliseus sawe and cryed: O my father, O my father, the chariot of Israel, and his chariot man, but he sawe hym no more: and therfore toke his owne clothes, and rent them in two peaces.

And then he toke vp the mantell of Eliah that fel from him, and went backe agayn and stode by Jordans syde, and with the mantell of Eliah he fel from him, he smote the water, and sayde: where is the Lorde God of Eliah, where is he? And when he had smitten & water, it diuided parte this waye and parte that waye, and Eliseus went ouer. And the children of the Prophetes of Jericho whiche sawe him a farr off, sayde: the spyrte of Eliah, dothe red on Eliseus, and went agayn him, and botmed to the rebd vnto him. And they sayd vnto him: se, there be amonge thy seruantes fiftye lustye men: let them go and seke thy mayster, happily the spyrte of the Lorde hath taken him by a cast him vpon some mountayne, or in some valleye. And he sayd: sende not. Nevertheless per they laye vpon him, till he was ashamed, and sayd: sende, and they sent fiftye men whiche sought him thre dayes and thre nyghtes: but found him not. And they came agayn to him, for he tarped at Jericho. And he sayd to them: vnto I not saye vnto you that ye shold not go? Then the men of Jericho sayde to Eliseus: beholde, the cite standeth pleasantly, as my Lorde seeth: but the water is nought, and the grounde bareyn. And he sayde: bypunge me a newe cruse, and put salte therein. And they brought it to him. And he wente vnto the springe of the water, and cast the salte in thre ther: and sayd, thus sayth the Lorde: I heale this water: there shal not come henceforth either dethe, or bareynesse. And the water was belshome ever after, according to the sayinge of Eliseus whiche he spake.

And he wente frome thence vp to Bethel. And as he was goyng in the waye: there came lytle laddes oute of the cite, and metted him, and sayd to him: goo by thou balde heed: goo by thou balde heed. And he turned backe, and lohed on them, and cused them in the name of the Lorde. And there came two beares oute of the wodde, and tare sh. of the boyes. And he wente frome thence to mounte Carmel, and frome thence wente agayne to Samaria.

The kynges of Israel Juda and Edom lade water, when they wulde fyghe agaynst Moab: which they obtayne through the prayer of Eliseus. The kyng of Moab leueth the reide and after he cryeth his sonne.

CAP. I.

III.

Ishoam the sonne of Achab bega to reigne vpon Israel in Samaria the egyptene yere of Josaphat kyng of Juda, and continued twelue yere. And he wroughte euill in the sighte of the Lorde: but not lyke his father, or his mother: for he put awaye the image of Baal that his father had made. Nevertheless he continued in the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel synne, and wonke not therefrom. And Mesa kyng of Moab, whiche was syde of Moab: and was wont to render vnto the kynges of Israel an hundred thousand lambs, and as many rammes with & molle: rebelled agaynst the kyng of Israel after the dethe of Achab. And kyng Jeho- ram went out of Samaria the same yere, and nombed all Israel. And then went and sent to Josaphat kyng of Juda, sayinge: the kyng of Moab hath rebelled agaynst me, wylt thou go with me agaynst the Moabites to battell? And he sayd I wyl go, and wyl be as thou: my people shal be as thyne, and my hoxses as thyne. And he sayde what wage shall we geue? And the other answered: the wage thow shalt the wylbernesse of Edom.

And the kyng of Israel toke his iourney with the kyng of Juda and the kyng of Edom. And when they had compassed the waye seven dayes, there was no water for the hoxses: for the cattell that they hadde with them. Then sayde the kyng of Israel: alas, the Lorde hath called together these thre kynges, to deliuer them in to handes of the Moabites. But Josaphat sayde: Is there here no prophete of the Lordes, that we maye con- quyre of the Lorde by hym? And one of the kynges of Israels seruantes answered and sayde: here is Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water on the handes of Achab. And Josaphat sayde: the worde of the Lorde is with him. And so the kyng of Israel and Josaphat, and the kyng of Edom went wnt to him.

And Eliseus sayde to the kynges of Israel:

what haue I to do with the? Get the to the prophetes of thy father and of thy mother. And the kyng of Israel sayde vnto him: Whi saye: but haue the Lorde called these thre kynges to deliuer them in to the handes of the Moabites? And Eliseus sayd: as truly as the Lorde of hoodes lyueth (in whose sighte I stande) and it were not that I regarded the presence of Josaphat the kyng of Juda, I woulde not loke to wathe the, nor yet se the.

But nowe, bypunge me a mynstrell. And as the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lorde was vpon hym. And he sayde: thus byddeth the Lorde, make at this brokes bred, ditchers and ditchers agayne. For thus sayth the Lorde: ye shall se nyghter wynde no: rayne, and yet this broke shall be fylled with water that ye maye drynke, and your beestes and your cattell also. And this is yet but a small thyng in the sighte of the Lorde. But he wyl gyue the Moabites in to your handes also. And ye shall de- stroye all stronge towncs, and all goodly cyties: and shall fell all pleasaunt trees, & stop all the welles of water: and make all good places of ground with stones. And in the moze- aunge aboute offeringe tyme, there came such a water the waye from Edom, that the coun- try was fylled with water.

When all the Moabites herde the kynges here come to fyghe agaynst them, they assem- bled from the poyntest that was hable to put on harness, and so bywarde: and warped in the chibbers. And they bringe by earlye in the morning, the sonne arose and shone vpon the water. And when the Moabites sawe the wa- ter as farr as as red as bloude: they sayde: it is bloude, the kynges haue foughte together: & one layne another. Nowe therfore ye Moabites: get you to the spoyles. And when they came to the host of Israel, the Israelites stode by and layde on the Moabites: that they fled before them. And so they entered the lande and destroyed the Moabites. And they ouerthrew the cities: and on euery good parcell of lande cast curye man his stone and ouer couered it: and stoped all the welles of water: and fild all the good trees. And as longe as the stones therof byd remayne in the walles of byrche, the kynges wente vpon it and brete it.

And when the kyng of Moab sawe that the battayle was to stronge for hym, he toke with hym seven hundred men that dyd the sword, to haue broken vp vnto the kyng of Edom, but they could not. And then he toke his eldest sonne that sholde haue reigned in his stede, and offered him for a burnt offering vpon the walles. And there came so greute warche vpon Israel, that they departed from him, & returned to theyr owne lande.

God gyueh a certayne poore woman oyle and curye by Eliseus. Eliseus obtayneth of God a child: he is bestiller: which dyeth and is after rayped to be the son of him. He maketh swete the potage: and multiplyeth the houses.

CAP. II.

IIII.

And there eyed a certeyn woman of the wyues of the children of the prophetes vnto Eliseus, sayng: thy seruant my husbnde is dede, and thou knowest that thy seruant byd feare the Lorde.

And the man that lende vs money is come to fet my two sonnes, to be his bondmen. And Eliseus sayd to her: What shall I do for the? Tell me, what hast thou in thyne house? And she sayde, thynne hand mayde hath nothyng at all in her house, save a pytcher with oyle. And he sayde: Goo and bozome the in other places of all thy neygbboures, empye vesselles and that not a fewe: and then goo and shutte the doore to the, and to thy sonnes: and poure out in to all those vesselles, and put the full awaye asyde. So she went from him, and shutte the doore to her, and to her sonnes. And they brought to her, and she poured out. And when the vesselles were full, she sayde to her sonner: bypunge yet a vessel. And he sayde: there is no moe. And then the oyle ceased. Then she came and tolde the man of God. And he sayd: goo and sell the oyle, and pay thy dettes. And lyeue thou and thy chyldren of the reste. And it be- fell on a daye, that Eliseus came to Sunam where was a wyche woman that toke him in for to cate byerd. And as ofte as he came that waye, he couened in thither to cate byerd. And she sayde vnto her husbnde: se, I perceyue that this is an holye man of God, and cometh oftentimes by vs: let vs make him a chambere with a lytle walle, and let vs set him there a bed, a table, a stole, & a candlestike, that he maye tounne in thither when he cometh to vs.

And it fortuned on a time that he came thither, and couened in to the chambere, and laye there. Then he sayde to Ghezt his seruante: call this Sunamite. And he called her, and she came before him. And Eliseus sayde to hym, saye to her I praye the: se, thou hast made all this prouision for vs, what shall we do for the? woldst thou be spoken for to the kyng, or to the capitayne of the host? And she sayd: I dwell amonge myne owne people. Then he sayd: what is to be done for her? And Ghezt sayd: Surely she hath no chyld, and her husbnde is olde. And he sayde: call her. And he called her. And she came and stode at the doore. Then he sayde: by suche a tyme, and in suche an houre, yf thou lyest, thou shalt enbrace a sonne, and she sayd: Whaye my Lorde, thou man of God, do not lye vnto thynne handes mayde. And the wyfe concyued and bare a sonne that same reason and hour that Eliseus had sayde vnto her.

And when the chyld was well warden, it fel on a daye, that he went forth to his father to the barnsmen. And there he complained to his father, my heed my heed. And his father sayde to a seruante, carrie him to his mother, & he toke him and brought him to his mother. And he sat on her knees tyll none, and then dyed. And she carped him vp and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and put the woire to him, and wet out, and came to her husbnde, and sayde: sende me one of the ponge me and an an asse, that I may runne to the man of God. And he sayd: wherfore wylte thou go to him to daye, whyle it is neither newe mone, nor Saboth daye? And she sayd: be content. Then she labled an asse, and sayde to her seruante: trade awaye, and make me not cease rydunge vntill I haue the. So she wente and came to the man of God to mount Carmel. And whyle the man of God satte her a farr, he sayde to Gihesi his seruante: se wher our seruante cometh. Nowe go and mete her, & aske her wher she is be all well with her, and with her husbande, and with the chyldre. And she sayd: all is well. Then she went to the man of God by the hyl, and caughte him by the fete. And Gihesi wente to her to thrust her awaye. But the man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is beryd, and the Loyde hath byd it from me, and hath not tolde it me. Then she sayde: byd I desyre a sonne of my Loyde? byd I not saye, that thou shouldest not moke me. Then he sayd to Gihesi: gyde by thy lornes, and take my staffe in thyne hande, & get the hence. If any man mete the, salute him not. And if any salute the, answere him not. And put my staffe vpon the vort. For it standyng the mother of the chyldre sayde: as surely as the Loyde spureth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the. And then he arose and folowed her. Gihesi went before them, and put the staffe vpon the laddre. But there was neither boye nor feyng. And then he went agayne agaynste his master and tolde him, sayinge: It hath not awaked the chyldre.

When Eliseus was come to the house: beholde the boye was dead, and laye vpon his bed. And he went in and put the woze to the chyldre and him / and prayed vnto the Loyde. * And he went vp, and laye vpon the lad, and put his mouth on his mouth: and his eyes on his eyes: & the palme of his handes on the palme of his handes, and spied him self vpon the laddre, that the fleshe of the chyldre waxed warme. And wente agayne and walked on by and lowe in the house, and then went by and spied him self vpon him, and then the lad neked such tymes, and opened his eyes. And he called Gihesi and sayde: Call for this Sunnamite. And he called her. And when she was come to him, he sayd: * take thy sonne. Then she wente and fell at his fete, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and roke by her sonne, and went forth. When Eliseus was come to Calgal agayne, there was a death in the land, and the chyldren of the Prophetes dwelt with him. Then he sayde to his seruante: put on a great pot, and make portage for the chyldren of the Prophetes. And one went out in to the fildes to gather herbes, and founde as it were a wynde byne / and gathered therof. And when he came, he lappede full, and came and shred them in to the pottes of portage, and wylle not what it was. And they poured oute for the men to eat. And when they had tasted of the portage they cryed oute and sayde: there is death in the pottes, thou man of God, and coulde not eate thereof. Then he sayde: byryng me ale. And he caste it into the pottes and sayde: I'll for the people, that they maye eate, and there was harme in the pot.

There came a man from Baalshala and broughte the man of God byed of hynde futes, euen twentye lours of barlepe, and made cozne in a clothe he hadde. And Eliseus put it before the people, that they myghte eat. Then his minster sayde: what shall I sette before an hundred men? And he sayde: set it before the people. and lette them eat. For thus saythe the Loyde: They shall eate and leaue. And he set it before them, and they ate and lette, accordyng to the woide of the Loyde.

Naaman the Syrien is healed of his lepro. He is greued with a leprosy because he wold not be raymed of Naaman.

CAPL.

V.

Naaman capytayne of the kynges hostes of Siria was greate with his master, and well taken: for thowhe him the kinge saued Siria. And he was an aqume man, but yet a leper. And there was a compaign of soulbours gone out of Siria a tounge, and had brought of the countrey of Israel a laddre, which was with Naamans wyfe. The damosell sayde vnto her ladre: I praye my master wylde with a prophete that is in Samaria, he wolde deliuer him of his lepro. And she went and tolde her husbande, sayng: thus and thus saythe the mayde of the land of Israel. And the kyng of Siria sayde: go thy waye, and I wyl sende a letter vnto the kyng of Israel. And he wrote and toke with him ten talentes of syluer, and fire thousand pces of gold, and ten change of rayment. And he brought the letter to the kyng of Israel, contaynyng in effecte these wordes. When this letter is come vnto the: Beholde, I haue sent Naaman my seruante to the, that thou shouldest gyde hym of his lepro. And when the kyng of Israel had read the letter, he took his clothes and sayde: * am I God, to make alyue that he shoulde sende to me? I deliuer a man from his lepro. But wylte thou I praye you and se, howe he pyeth quail with me. And when Eliseus the man of God had hearde how the kyng of Israel had tolde his clothes, he set to the kyng, sayng: Wherfore hast thou sent thy clothes? let him come to me, that he maye knowe there is a prophete in Israel.

And Naaman came with his hostes, his charrette, and rode at the dore of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sent a messenger, sayinge: go and washe the in Jordan seven tymes, and thy fleshe shall be hole, and thou shalt be cleane. And Naaman was wrothe and went awaye, and sayde: Beholde, I thought I wylde haue come out, and stande call on the name of the Loyde his God, and put his hande on the place of the dysaile, and so take away the lepro. And not Abanah and Pharpar ryuers of Damasco, better then the waters of Israel? Wherfore I not wash washe in them and be cleane? And so he turned and departed in angre. Then came his seruante to him, and talked with him and sayd. Father, if the prophete had byd the doone some greate thyng, wyldest thou not to haue done it? How maye rather then shouldest thou do it, whyle he sayth to the onely, washe and be cleane? * Then he went downe & washed seven tymes in Jordan, as the man of God bad: & his fleshe changed, & he vnto the fleshe of a lytle boye, and he was cleane.

Then he turned agayne to the man of God and all his company with him / and came and stode before him and sayd. Beholde, I knowe there is no God in all the world, but in Israel. And now I praye the take a rewarde of thy seruante. But he sayd: * as surely as the Loyde lyueth, before whome I stande, I wyl receyue none. And the other wolde haue constrained him to receyue / but he wolde not. And Naaman sayd: if thou wylte not, yet I praye the take the burthen of two mules of earthe. For thy seruante wyl becomforth offer neyther burnt sacrifice nor offering vnto anye other God, as to the Loyde. But when the Loyde be mercifull to thy seruante / for when my master goeth in to the house of Remon to worshyp, he leanch on myne hande, and I made worshyp in the house of Remon, let the Loyde I praye the be mercifull vnto thy seruante in this case. And he sayde to him: goo in peax. And when he was departed frome him a furlonge of grounde, Gihesi the seruante of Eliseus the man of God, sayd: se, my master is so pyful to this Syrien Naaman, that he wold not receyue of his hande that he offered. As surely as the Loyde lyueth, I wyl runne after him & take somwhat. And so Gihesi wente after Naaman. And when Naaman sawe him come runnyng after him, he came downe of the charret agayn him, and sayd: is all well? And he sayd yea. But my master hath sent me, sayng: so, there be two ponge men come to me out of Ephraim of the chyldren of the Prophetes: gyue them I praye the, one talent of syluer, and a couple of good garmentes. And Naaman sayd: auenture and take two talentes of syluer: and he constrained him & bound two talentes of syluer in two bagges, with two goodly garmentes, and deliuered them vnto two of his seruantes to beare it before him. So when he came to the tounce, he toke it of their handes, and bestowed it in the house, and let the men go, and they departed.

Then he wente and stode before his master. And Eliseus sayde to him: whence comesthy Gihesi? And he sayde: thy seruante wente no whiche. And he sayd: went not myne heete to the, when the man turned and came of his charret agayn the? Did not I knowe the tyme when thou went to receyue syluer, and to receyue garmentes, olyue trees, vneyardes, and shepe, men seruantes, and mayde seruantes? The leproye therfore of Naaman cleane vnto the, and vnto thy seede for euer. * And he went out from him a leper as whyle he was.

Eliseus maketh yron to swymme about the water. The Syriens belege Israel, so that two women agree together to cate theirowne chyldren.

CAPL.

VI.

Then sayd the chyldren of the Prophetes vnto Eliseus: se, the place where we dwell with the, is to litle for vs. Let vs therfore take euery man a pce of tymber, and buyld vs a place there to dwell in. And he sayd: go ye. And one sayd: begyn I praye the, and go with thy seruantes. And he sayd: I wyl, and so went with them.

And when they came to Jordan, they cut downe wood. And as one was byryng of a tree, the axe heed fell in to the water. And he cryed out and sayde: Alasse master, for it was lence me. And the man of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cut an helue and caste it in thither, and made the axe heed swymme. And he sayde: take it vp to the. And the other stretched his hande and caught it.

And the kyng of Siria fought agaynste Israel, and roke counsell with his seruantes, sayinge: In suche a place and in suche wyll I pryche. And the man of God sente vnto the kyng of Israel, sayng: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Syrians gone downe. And the kyng of Israel sente to the place which the man of God tolde him & warned him of, and saued him selfe there more then ones of wyple. And the heere of the kyng of Siria was troubled therwith, that he sente for his seruantes, and sayde to them: * wyl ye not shewe me, who bewyppeth me to the kyng of Israel? And one of his seruantes sayde: naye my loide kyng: Eliseus the prophete that is in Israel, he telleth the kyng of Israel, the wordes that thou speakest in thy pryue chamber. Then he sayde: goo and espye where he is, that I maye sende and set hym. And one tolde the kyng, sayng: se, he is in Dothan. And he sente thither hoise and charrettes, and a greate dole. And they came thither by nyghte, and enuyronned the towne aboute.

And when the seruante of the man of God rose by earlye and was gone oute. Beholde, there was an hoise rounde aboute the towne with hoises and charrettes. Then sayd his seruantes to him. Alas master, what shall we do? And he sayd: feare not, there are mo with vs then with them. And Eliseus prayed and sayde. Loyde open the eyes of the ponge man, and he sawe. And behold, the mountayne was full of hoises and charrettes of fyre rounde aboute Eliseus. And when the soundours came downe to him, Eliseus prayed vnto the Loyde and sayd. Smyte this people with byndnesse. And he smote them with byndnesse, accordyng to the desyre of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sayde vnto them / this is not the waye, nor this is not the towne. But folowe me and I wyl byryng ye to the man ye seke. And he led them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, Eliseus seus sayd: Lozde open they eyes, and let the se, and the Lozde opened they eyes that they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto Eliseus when he sawe them: * Wall I smyte them with my speere? And he sayd, smyte them not. But smyte those toddes thou takest with thyne owne swerde, and with thyne owne bowe, but let biced and water before them, and let them eate and drynke and goo to theyr maister. And he made greate ordinaunce before them. And when they hadde eaten and drynke, sente them awaye, and they wente to theyr maister. And so the soldours of Siria came no moze in to the lande of Israel.

After this, Benhadad kynge of Siria gathered all the hoste, and wente and besieged Samaria. And there arose greate dearthe in Samaria. For they hadde besieged it, till an asses heed was worth the foure score sicles of siluer, and the fourth parte of a Cab of houses donge worth the fyue sicles. And as the kynge of Israel walked vpon the walles, there cryed a woman to him, sayinge helpe my lozde kynge. And he sayde: Hape, the Lozde helpe the. But wherewith wolde I helpe the, with come or wyne? Then sayde the kynge to her: what apleth the? And she answered: this woman here sayde to me, drynke thy sonne, and let vs eate him to daye, and we wyll eate myne to morrowe. * And so we dydded my sonne and dyd eate hym. And I sayde to her an other daye: drynke thy sonne, that we maye eate hym. But she hath hyd her sonne. When the kynge herde the wordes of the woman, he rente his clothes euen as he was walking on the walles. And when the people looked vpon him, so, he was clothed in sacke vnder. Then he sayde God doo so and so to me, yf the heed of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat tarpe on hym this daye. And as Eliseus sat in his house and the elders with him, the kynge sente one for hym. But as the messenger came at him, he sayde to the elders: Se you not howe the sonne of this murthere hath sente to take of myne heed? We circumspere therefore when the messenger cometh, and thus the more, and thus thus backe therewith: for the sounde of his maisters fete foloweth him. And whyle he per talketh with them: Beholde, the messenger was come vnto him. And he sayd beholde, this euyl is of the Lozde. What more shall we loke for of the Lozde?

Eliseus prophesyeth plenteousnesse of bytacles and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians came awaye no man to drynke them. The Lozde that wolde not bryng the synners of Eliseus to troden to death.

CAPL VII.

Then Eliseus sayde: heare the wordes of the Lozde for thus sayth the Lozde, to morrowe this tyme a busshell of fyne wheat shall be sold for a sicle, and two busshels of barleye for an other in the gates of Samaria. Then a Duke, on whose hande the kynge leaned, answered the man of God and sayde: though the Lozde wolde make wyndowes in heuen, yet wolde not this be. And he sayde agayne: Beholde, thou shalt se it with thine eyes, and shalt not eate thereof.

And there were foure lepers set without the gate of Samaria. And they sayde vnto their companion: what, syt we here vntill we dye? though we thought that we myght come in to the cite, yet is the dearth so great in the cite, that we shall there dye. And yf we tarpe here, we are but deed also. For therfore come and lette vs see to the house of the Syrians: yf they haue our lyues, let us go. And yf they kyll vs, then we are deed. And so they arose in the day, and went to the house of the Syrians. And when they were come to the fynde of the house of Samaria, there was no man there. For the Lozde had made the host of the Syrians heere a noyse of charrettes, and a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a greute hoste. In so moche that they sayde one to an other: lo, the kynge of Israel hath hyed agaynst vs the kynge of the Assyrians, and the kynge of Egypte to come vpon vs. Wherupon they arose and fledde in the night, and lette theyr tentes, theyr horses, theyr asses, and the felde theyr had pitched, as was, and fled for theyr lyues. And when the lepers came to the edge of the hoste, they went in to a tent and dyd eate and drynke, and reposed thence syluer, golde, and rayment, yron and brasse: and came agayne, and entred to an other, and carped thence also, and went and hyd it. Then they sayd one to an other: is not well that we doo: for this captiue hath broughte good thynges to vs. And yf we holde our peas, and tarpe till it be daylight, we shall fynde a myracle. Nowe then they came, lette vs goo and tell the kynge. And so they wente and called to the porter of the cite, and tolde them, sayinge: we came to the paupers of the Syrians: and lo, there was no man there, neyther vnto man, but hostes and asses tyed, and the tentes as they were. Then the porters called and tolde the kynge house with in. And the kynge arose in the nyght, and sayde to his seruantes, I wyll shewe you howe the Syrians haue seued vs. They knowe we are oppressed by hunger, and therfore are gone out of the cite, and theyr paulions to hyde theyr selues in the fynde. sayinge: They wyll come out of the cite, and then we shall carche them alyue, and gette to the cite. And one of his seruantes answered and sayde: Let men take fyue of the hostes that remaine and are left in the cite. Beholde, they are as good as all the multitude that are left in the cite: and as good as all the multitude of the cite that are consumed, and let vs sende and se. And theyr two charrettes of hostes, and the kynge sent after the hoste of the Syrians, sayinge: Go, and se. And they followed after them, came to Jordan: and so, all the waye was full of clothes and beftles whiche the Syrians had cast from them for harte.

Then the messengers returned and told the kynge and the people issued oute, and robbed the tentes of the Syrians. And so a busshell of flour was sold for a sicle, and two busshels of barleye for a sicle, accordinge to the wordes of the Lozde. And the kynge sette the Duke on whose hande he leaned, to kepe the gate. And the people trode him in the gate, that he dyed, accordinge to the saying of the Gods ma. And it came to passe accordinge to the wordes of the man of God spoken to the kynge sayinge: two busshels of barleye for a sicle, and a busshell of barleye for an other, shall be in this tyme in the gates of Samaria. Wherunto the Duke answered the man of God, and sayd: though the Lozde made wyndowes in heuen, yet wolde this not be. And the other said: beholde, thou shalt se it with thine eyes, and shalt not eate thereof. And so it chaunced for the people trode him vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

Eliseus prophesyeth vnto the Sunamite the death of her pery. After the death of Benhadad reppeth Hazael in Siria. Jehoram the sonne of Josaphat raggeth in Iuda. Edom falleth frome Iuda. Ohoziab succedeth Jehoram.

CAPL

VIII.

Then spake Eliseus vnto the woman whose sonne he had reddyed to life, sayinge: arise and go bothe thou and thyne house, and sojourne where thou thyntest best: for the Lozde wyll call a dearthe, whiche shall come on the lande seven yere. And the woman arose and dyd after the sayinge of the Gods man: and wente bothe she and her householde and sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seven yere. And at the seven yeres ende, when the woman was come agayne out of the lande of the Philistines, she wente oute to speake to the kynge for her house and for her lande. And the kynge was talkyng with Ohezi the seruant of the man of God, sayinge: tell me I praye the, all the greute dedes whiche Eliseus dyd. And it chaunced as he was tellinge the kynge howe he reddyed a deed bodye to lyfe agayne, came to the woman whose sonne he reddyed, and cryed to the kynge for her house and lande. Then sayde Ohezi: My lozde kynge, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whiche Eliseus broughte to lyfe agayne. And the kynge asked the woman, and she tolde him. And so the kynge sente with her one of his chamberlaines, sayinge: restore all that pertayneth to her, with all the frutes of the fynde, whiche she doye she leste the lande, vnto this tyme.

After this Eliseus wente to Damasco, and Benhadad the kynge of Siria fell sycke. And one tolde the kynge, sayinge: The man of God is come bydder. Then sayde the kynge to Hazael: Take a present with the, and go agaynst the man of God, and aske the Lozde by hym whiche I shall recouer of this my disease or no. And Hazael went to meete him, and toke presentes with him, euen of all the good thynges of Damasco, as moche as fouertye camels coulde beare, and came and presented hym selfe before him and sayde: thy sonne Benhadad kynge of Siria hath sent me to the, sayinge: Wall I recouer of this my disease? Eliseus said to him: goo and saye to him: thou shalt recouer: howe be it the Lozde hath shewed me that he shall surely dye. And the man of God shode sylly by him, and was taken with a soze maladye: in so moche that he chaunged countenance and wepte. And Hazael sayd: why wepest my lozde? And he answered: for I knowe that thou shalt be euyl vnto the chyldren of Israel: theyr stronge cityes thou shalt set on fyre, and theyr younge men thou shalt sle with the swerde, and shalt dash oute the byaynes of theyr lychinge chyldren: and all to teare theyr women with chyldre. And Hazael sayde: what is thy seruauant, whiche am but a dogge, that I sholde doo this greute thyng? And Eliseus sayde: for the Lozde hath shewed me, that thou shalt be kynge of Siria. And so he departed frome Eliseus, and came to his maister, whiche sayd to hym. What sayd Eliseus to the? And he sayde: he tolde me that thou sholdest recouer. And on the morrowe he toke a rough clothe, and dypte in the water, & spred it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael ragged in his steede.

The fyfte yere of Jehoram sonne of Achab kynge of Israel (Josaphat yet kynge of Iuda) Jehoram sonne of Josaphat, kynge of Iuda, began to ragne: thirtie and two yere olde was he when he began to ragne, and he ragged egypte yere in Ierusalem. And he walked in the waye of the kynge of Israel, as did the house of Achab: for the daughter of Achab was his wyfe: and he dyd that displeased the Lozde. Neuertheless the Lozde wolde not destroye Iuda, because of Dauid his seruauant, as he promysed him to geue him a light in his chyldren alwaye.

And in his dayes, Edom fell awaye from vnder the hande of Iuda, and made them a kynge of theyr owne. And Jehoram wente to Sir, and all his charrettes with him. And he rose by nyght, and layde on the Edomites, whiche compassed him in: and the capitaynes of his charret and the people fledde in to theyr tentes. And so the Edomites slypte awaye fro veyng vnder the hande of Iuda vnto this day. And then Lobnah slypte awaye to, euen that same tyme.

The rest of the dedes of Jehoram, and all he dyd, are wyrtten in the cronicles of kynge of Iuda. And Jehoram rested with his fathers and was buryed with his fathers in the cite of Dauid. And Ohoziab his sonne ragged in his steede. The twelfte yere of Jehoram sonne of Achab, kynge of Israel, dyd Ohoziab the sonne of Jehoram kynge of Iuda began to ragne. Two and twenty yere olde was Ohoziab when he began to ragne, and ragged one yere in Ierusalem, his mothers name was Achalia daughter of Amri kynge of Israel. And he walked in the waye of the house of Achab: for he was a sonne in lawe to the house of Achab.

And Jehoahaz the sonne of Achab went to warre with Hazael kynge of Siria, at Ramoth in Galaad / and the Sirians wounded him. Wherefore kynge Jehoahaz wente backe agayne, to be healed in Jezabel of the woundes whiche the Sirians hadde gyven hym at Ramoth, when he fought with Hazael kynge of Siria. And Ohoziah the sonne of Jehoahaz kynge of Juda, wente downe to se Jehoahaz sonne of Achab in Jezabel, because he was sycke.

Jehu is made kynge of Israel, and killeth Jehoahaz the kynge thereof, and Ohoziah kynge of Juda also: and thereto causeth Jezabel to be caste downe forth of a wyndowe, whome dogges ate.

CAPL

IX.

And Elisha the prophete called vnto one of the chyldren of the prophetes, and sayd to him: gride by thy loynes, and take this boxe of oyle in thyne hande, and gette thee to Ramoth in Galaad. And when thou comest thither, thou shalt see there se Jehu the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Namu, and goo to him and make him arise by some amonge his byrthen, and carpe him to a secreete chamber. And take the boxe of oyle and poure it on his head, and saye thus sayeth the Lorde: I haue annointed the to be kynge ouer Israel. And then open the wynde and see: and carpe not. So the seruante of the prophete dyd gette him to Ramoth in Galaad / and when he came, the capitaynes of the host were sycynge together. And he sayd: I haue an errande to the, my capitayne. And Jehu sayde: vnto whiche of all vs? And he sayd: to the, O capitayne. And he arose and went in to the house.

And the other poured the oyle on his head, and sayde to hym: thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I haue annointed the to be kynge ouer Israel the people of the Lorde, that thou shalt see the howsholde of Achab thy master. For I (sayeth the Lorde) will auenge the bloude of my seruantes the prophetes, and the bloude of all the seruantes of the Lorde, of the hand of Jezabel (for the hole house of Achab shall be destroyed) and I will destroye vnto Achab what pisseth agaynst the wall: and so moche as the pysoned, or that is forsaken in Israel, and will make the house of Achab lyke the house of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baal the sonne of Ahiab. And concerning Jezabel, the dogges shall cate her in the felde of Jezabel: and none shall burye her. And he opened the wynde and fledde. And when Jehu was come ouer to the seruantes of his Lorde: they sayde to hym: Is all pear? Wherefore came this manne felowe to the? And he sayd to them: ye knowe the person and his communication. And they sayde: it is nat so. But tell vs a felowship. And he sayd: thus and thus spake he to me, sayinge. Thus sayeth the Lorde: I haue annointed the to be kynge ouer Israel. And they haied and toke euerie man his mantell and put vnder him on a bench at the toppe of the steepe, and blew a trumpet, and sayde: Jehu is kynge. And Jehu the sonne of Josaphat the sonne of Namu, conspired agaynst Jehoahaz. And Jehoahaz hadde ben warpryng at Ramoth Galaad, and all Israel with him for feare of Jehoahaz of Siria, and was returned to be healed in Jezabel, of the woundes whiche the Sirians hadde gyven him, as he fought with Hazael kynge of Siria.

Then sayde Jehu. If it be pouer myght, let no man escape out of the cite, to goo and tell in Jezabel. And Jehu rode and went to Jezabel: for Jehoahaz laye there: and Ohoziah kynge of Juda, was come to Jehoahaz. And the watchman that stode on the tower of Jezabel, espied the compaigne of Jehu: and he came, and sayde: Is he a compaigne. And Juhu sayde: take an hoxseman and lette him agayne them, and lette him aske whether he pear. And there wente one on hoxse agayne him, and sayde. Thus sayeth the kynge: is it pear? And Juhu answered: haie thou to wo with pear: I come and see a fete me. And the watchman tolde, sayinge the messenger came to them, but he cometh not agayne. Then he sente oute an other hoxsebacke, whiche came to them and saye thus sayeth the kynge: Is it pear? And Juhu answered: what haie thou to wo with pear: turne and come after me. And the watchman toid, sayinge: he came to them, but he cometh not agayne, and the byrnyng is lyghter: the wynges of Jehu the sonne of Namu, for he byrnyth as he were mad.

When sayd Jehoahaz, make redye. And he made redye his charret. And Jehoahaz brought Israel, and Ohoziah kynge of Juda went with hym in his charret agaynst Juhu, and was hym in the furloinge of Naboth the Ierusalemite. And when Jehoahaz sawe Juhu, he sayde: is it pear Juhu? And he sayd: what pear? I come to be, so longe as the howredomes of my mother Jezabel and her wycheecraftes and greates. And Jehoahaz touned his hande to the felle, and sayde to Ohoziah: there is felle in hande Ohoziah. And Juhu toke his bowe in his hande, and smote Jehoahaz by the shoulders, that the arrowe came oute of his byelle. And he fell downe thre folde in the durt. Then he sayd to Baalhar a loyde of Naboth the Ierusalemite. For I remember I and thou rode together after Achab thre, howe the Lorde spake these wordes agaynst him: I haue sene yesterdare the blood of Naboth and of his sonnes, sayde the Lorde, and I will requyte him in this ground: sayeth the Lorde. Nowe therefore take and burye him in the plot of grounde, according to the Lordes worde. And when Ohoziah brought Juda sawe that, he fled the waye to the garden house. And Juhu folowed after hym and sayde: synke hym also. And they smote hym with the charret at the gorge vnto Sur by Juhu, and fled to Madaba, and there dyd. And his seruantes carryd hym to Ierusalem.

buryed him in his sepulchre with his fathers in the cite of David. And in the eleventh yere of Jehoahaz sonne of Achab, began Ohoziah to ragge ouer Juda. And when Juhu was come to Jezabel, Jezabel herbe of it, and deprented her eyes, and tyed her heed, and looked out at a wyndowe. And as Juhu entred at the gate she said: had Zamei pear, whiche slew his master? And he lyt up his eyes to the wyndow and sayd: Who is of my syde, who? And there looked out to him two of the loydes that were chamberlaynes. And he sayde: Whowe her do you? And they threwe her downe. And he synked of her bloude vpon the walles and on the hoxses, and rode her vnder foote. And then when he was come in, and had eaten and dronke, he sayde: go and byrre I praye you yander curst creature, and burye her: for she is a kynge daughter. And when they came to burye her, they found no more of her then a scull and the two fete and the two habes. And they came agayne and tolde him. And he sayde: It is the wynde of the Lorde, whiche he spake by the hande of his seruante Elisha the Ierusalemite, sayinge: * In the felde of Jezabel shall dogges cate the fleshe of Jezabel, and the carcase of Jezabel shall be donge vpon the earth in the felde of Jezabel: that men shal not say, this is Jezabel.

Jehu killeth the thre scoze and ten sonnes of Achab: and after that fourtye and two of his byrthen. He synked a meane also to kyll all the priestes of Baal. After his deathe his sonne raggeth in his deathe.

Achab hadde thre scoze and ten sonnes in Samaria. And Juhu wrote letters, and sente to Samaria vnto the elders that were loydes of Jezabel: and to them that were byrthen of Achab's chyldren, sayinge: nowe at the comynge of these letters to you / ye haue with you your masters sonnes: and ye haue with you charrettes and hoxses / and a stronge cite and harnesse. Therefore chuse the best, and dun that moost pleasest you of your masters sonnes: and put hym on his fathers steate: and fyghte for your loydes house. And they were cecydngly at rayde, and sayde: se, two kynges were not habile to stande before hym, howe shall we then stande? And the governeur of the kynge's house, and of the cite and of the elders / and the nourses sent to Juhu, sayinge: we are thy seruantes, and will do all that thou shalt byd vs: we will make no man kynge: but to thou what semeth good in thine eyes.

Then he wrote other letters to them, sayinge: Ye be myne, and will obey my voice, then take the heedes of your masters sonnes and come to me to Jezabel by to morow this tyme. And the kynge's sonnes were thre scoze and ten personnes with the greates men of the cite whiche nourished them. And when the letters came to them, they toke the kynge's sonnes and slewe them in nombze thre scoze and ten personnes, and put thre heedes in co-phines, and sente them to hym to Jezabel. And there came a messenger and tolde hym, sayinge: they haue brought the heedes of the kynge's sonnes. And he said: let them put them on two heapes in the enteryng of the gate, tyl it be daye. And in the mornynge he wente out and note and sayd to all the folke: Ye be righteous: for se, I conspired agaynst my master, & slewe him: But who slewe these? * Consider nowe howe there is nothynge of the Lordes word fallen to the erth, whiche he spake agaynst the house of Achab: for the Lorde hath done that he spake to his seruante Elisha. And so Juhu slewe all that remayned in the house of Achab in Jezabel: and all that were great with hym, and his companions and his priestes, tyl he had lefte him naught. And he arose and departed, and wente to Samaria. And as Juhu was come to the house where the shepherdes binde their shepe by the hye waye syde, he met with the byrthen of Ohoziah kynge of Juda: and sayd: what are ye? and they sayd, the byrthen of Ohoziah are we, and goo to welcome the chyldren of the kynge & of the quene. And he sayd: take them alque. And they toke them alque, and slewe them at the well besyde the house where the shepherdes bynde their shepe, in nombze two and fourty personnes, that he left none of them.

And when he was departed thence, he met with Jonadab the sonne of Rechab commynge agaynst hym. And Juhu welcomed hym, and sayde to him: is thine herte ryghte, as myne herte is with thynne? And Jonadab sayde: ye it is. He said: yf it be, then gyue me thine hand. And he haue his hande, and the other toke him by to him in to the charret, & sayd: goo with me and se the sele I haue to the Lorde, & made hym ryde with him in his charret. And when he came to Samaria, he slewe all that remayned vnto Achab in Samaria, tyl he had wypte him out, accordynge to the sayinge of the Lorde, whiche he spake to Elisha.

After that Juhu assembled all the people together, and sayde to them: * Achab serued Baal a lile: But Juhu shal serue hym a good. Nowe therefore call vnto me all the prophetes of Baal, and all his seruantes, and al his priestes, & none be lackynge, for I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal: and yf any be mysted, he shall not lyue. But Juhu dyd it of a wyple, to destroye the seruantes of Baal. Wherefore Juhu sayde: Appoynte a solempne feast for Baal, and they pproclaymed it. Then Juhu set thowowe oute all Israel. And all the seruantes of Baal came, that there was not a man lefte behynde that came not. And when they were come in to the temple of Baal, the temple was full frome thone ende to thother.

Then he sayde to the keeper of the bestre / byrnyng for the garmentes for the seruantes of Baal. And he broughte them out garmentes. And Juhu wente with Jonadab sonne of Rechab in to the house of Baal: and sayd to the seruantes of Baal: seache and loke what there be none here with you of the seruantes of the Lorde, but the seruantes of Baal.

Baal

Baal onely. And they went in to offer sacrifice and burnt offerings. But Jehu appointed him four score men without, and sayde: Ye anye of the men whiche I shall byngne vnto your handes escape; he that lettech him goe shall dye for him.

And as soone as he hadde made an ende of offeringe of burnt sacrifice, he sayde to them of the garde, and to the capitaynes: goo in and see them, lette none come out. And they smote him with the edge of the swerde. And the garde and the capitaynes caste them out, and went in to the cure of the house of Baal, and sette oute the ymage oute of the house of Baal, and burnt it. And they brake the ymage of Baal, and brake the house of Baal; and made a fikes of it euer after. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nebat, whiche made Israel synne with the golden calves in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not. Then the Lorde sayde to Jehu: because thou haste busily done that pleasech me, and hast wone to the house of Achab all that was in myne heret: Therefore will I thy chyldren in the fourthe generation, sette on the seate of Israel. But Jehu feared not to walke in the lawe of the Lorde God of Israel with all his heret; for he departed not from the synnes of Jeroboam, whiche made Israel synne. In those dayes the Lorde began to cure Israel with Moyses; for Hazael slewe them in all the coles of Israel, from Jordan Eastward: euen all the land of Galaad, the Gadites, the Rubenites, and the Manassites, from Aroer vpon the ryuer of Arnon, with Galaad and Basan. The reste of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, & all his power, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of kynges of Israel. And when Jehu was sayde to rest with his fathers, they buried him in Samaria; and Joachaz his sonne raygned in his stede. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, was eyght and twenty yere.

ATHALIA putteth to death all the kynges sonnes, excepte Joas the sonne of Ochoziah: whiche is hydden and after he: dothe is made kyng.

CAPL. XL.

And Athalia the mother of Ochoziah: when she saw that her sonne was deed she arose and slewe all the kynges bloude. But Josaba the daughter of kyng Jehoram, and sister of Ochoziah, toke Joas the sonne of Ochoziah, and saile him from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and his nurse with hym oute of the nourscepe, and hid him from Athalia that he was not slayne. And he was with her, hid in the house of the Lorde sixty yeres. And Athalia dyd reigne ouer the lande.

In the seuenth yere Josaba sent and fet the capitaynes & sought out, & toke them vnto him in to the house of the Lorde, and made a leage with them, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lorde, and they swore the kyngs sonne, and commaunded them, saying: this is the thyng that ye must do: one thurd part of you shall come on the Saboth daye, and kepe the watche of the kynges house: And in other thyrde parte shall be at the gate, and in other thyrde parte shall be at the garde, hynde the garde chamber, and so shall kepe the watche of the house of Ochoziah: and the othe of you, that is, all that goo out on the Saboth daye, shall kepe the watche of the house of the Lorde about the kyng, and shall compass the kyng round about, euerie man in his hande. And who so curmeth with in the ranges, shall dye for it. And so he was with the kyng as he goeth out and in.

The capitaynes did all thynges as Josaba preynt commaunded, and toke euerie man his men; that is, them that came in the Saboth daye, to them that went out the Saboth daye, and went to Josaba the Priestesse. And the Priestesse gaue to the capitaynes the speares and the dres that were kyng Davids, and had commaunded in the temple. And the garde kepe man with his weapon in his hande round about the kyng, from the ryght corner of the temple to the left a long by the altar and the temple. And he brought out the kynges sonne, and put the crowne vpon him, and belted him the tunicelle, and made him kyng, and anointed him. And they clapt their handes and said: God saue the kyng.

When Athalia herde the noyse of the course of the people, she came to the temple to the house of the Lorde. And when she saw the kyng stande by a pylle (as the man was) and the syngers and the trompettes of the kyng, and all the people of the lande worshipping, and the blowing of the trompettes, she rent her clothes and cryed, treason, treason. Then Josaba the Priestesse commaunded the capitaynes that had the rule of the body, and sayde to them: haue her oute without the ranges, and ye anye folowe her, lette him not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her, and she wente the waye that the horses of the kynges went out, and was slayne there.

And Josaba made a bond both betwene the Lorde and the kyng, and betwene the people and the Lorde, that they shoulde be as the Lorde people, and also betwene the kyng & the people. And all the people of the land went in to the house of Baal, and destroyed his altars, and brake downe his ymages lustely, and slewe Jotham the priest of Baal before the altar. And Josab set watchemen in the house of the Lorde, and toke rulers ouer hundredes, & the capitaynes and the garde, and all the people of the land. And they brought the kyng from the house of the Lorde, and wente the way of the gate of the garde vnto the kynges house. And he sat vpon the throne under the clothe of estate. And all the people of the Lorde reioyced, and the city was in quiet. So they slewe Athalia with the sword in the kynges house.

Joas maketh provision for the repayyng of the temple. He is killed by two of his seruantes, and Amasia raygneth in his stede.

CAPL. XLII.

Joas was seuen yeres olde when he was made kyng. And he began to raygne the thirteenth yere of Jehu, and raygned fourty yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zibia Berisabe. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, as long as Josaba the Priestesse enforced him. But he toke not awaye the hyll altars; for the people slewe, and offered Oyl in the hyll altars.

And Joas sayde to the priestes: all the siluer that is gauen to the vse of the temple, and brought in the house of the Lorde by theauyers, whether that it be the money that euerie man is set at; or the money that any mans heret greech him to byngne in to the house of the Lorde; let the priestes take it to them, euerie man in his course, and let them repaire the broken places of the temple, in all places wher it ought is founde decayed.

Heretofore the priestes had not repayyed into the thre and twenty yere of Joas, the thynges decayed in the temple. Then kyng Joas called for Josaba the priest, and for thos that were priestes, and sayd to them: why repayye ye not the broken places of the temple? Now therefore ye receiue no more money according to your order, but deliuer it to repayre the temple withall. And the priestes consented to receiue no more money of the people: But that it shoulde go to the repayyng of the temple.

Then Josaba the Priestesse toke a cofee, and boord an hole in the ydrie of it, and put it before the altar on the ryght syde as one cometh to the house of the Lorde. And in to that dyd the priestes that kepte the wordes, put all the money that was brought to the Lordes house. And when they sawe there was moche money in the cofee, the kynges syrke and the hye priest came and sealed vp the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde, after they had tolde it.

And they gaue the money by sommes in to the handes of the masters of the workes, that had the ouersight of the house of the Lorde: and they brought it oute to the carpenters & buylders that wroughte vpon the house of the Lorde, and to masons and hewers of stone, to bytymbre and free stone, to repayre the decaye in the house of the Lorde; and all that there was not made in the house of the Lorde: bolles of syluer, & byddynge knyues, balens, & syluer, of that money that was brought for the house of the Lorde. For they gaue that to the workemen, to repayre therewith the house of the Lorde. Wherouer they reckened not with the men, in to whose handes they deliuered the money to be bestowed on workemen: But they dyd it euen of fidelite. Howebeit if they had money and synne money myght not be brought in to the house of the Lorde, for it was the priestes.

Then came Hazael kyng of Siria; and foughte agaynst Beth, and toke it; and appointed him selfe to go vnto Jerusalem. But Joas kyng of Juda toke all the dedicat thynges, that Josaphat, Jehoram, and Ochoziah his progenitours kynges of Juda had dedicate; & that he him selfe hadde dedicate; and all the golde that coulde be founde in the treasure of the Lordes house, and of the kynges house; and sent it to Hazael kyng of Siria; and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The residue of the actes of Joas and all he dyd, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of kynges of Juda. But his owne seruantes arose and brought treason, and slewe Joas in the house of Sela, in the waye doctine to Sela. For Josaphat the sonne of Semaiath and Josabad the sonne of Somer his seruantes, smote him; he dyed. And they buried him with his fathers in the cite of David. And Amasias his sonne raygned in his place.

Joachaz the sonne of Jehu is deliuered in to the handes of the Syrians, and dyeth. Joas his sonne raygneth in his stede. Elituz dyeth.

CAPL. XLIII.

In the thre and twenty yere of Joas sonne of Ochoziah kyng of Juda; Joachaz the sonne of Jehu was made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued seuentene yeres; & he wroughte wyckednesse in the eye of the Lorde; for he folowed the synne of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, whiche made Israel to synne, and departed not from the same. Wherfore the Lorde was angrie with Israel; and deliuered them in to the hande of Hazael kyng of Siria, and in to the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all they dayes.

But Joachaz besought the Lorde, and the Lorde herde him. For he had sene the affliction of Israel, how the kyng of Siria oppressed them. And therefore the Lorde gaue vnto Israel a deliuerour, and they were deliuered forth of the handes of the Syrians. And the chyldren of Israel dwelt in their tentes as before tyme. Heretofore they departed not from the synne of the house of Jeroboam, who made Israel to synne, but walked therein. And there remayned a superfluous wood also in Samaria; but there were left of the people to Joachaz, but fiftie horsemen and ten charrettes, and ten thousand footemen; for the kyng of Siria had destroyed them, and made them like chafed chaffe. The reste of the actes of Joachaz, and all he dyd; and his power, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of kynges of Israel. And Joachaz rested with his fathers; and they buried him in Samaria; and Joas his sonne raygned in his stede. In the thre and twenty yere of Joas kyng of Juda, began Joas the sonne of Joachaz to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued thretyne yeres; and dyd naught in the syght of the Lorde, and departed in nothing from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat that made Israel synne; but walked therein.

The remnant of the actes of Joas, and all he dyd, and his power, howe he foughte with Amazias kynge of Iuda, are wyrtten in the Cronicles of kynges of Israel. And when Joas was layde to rest with his fathers, Jeroboam late vpon his seate / and Joas was buried in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

Eliscus dy-
eth.

When Eliscus was fallen speke of the synchelle wherof he dyed / Joas kynge of Israel came to hym and wepte to him and sayd. O father father, chariot of Israel, and comfortour of the same. Eliscus sayde vnto him / brynge home and arowes. And he broughthe to him home and arowes. And he sayde to the kynge of Israel: But thyn hande vpon the bowe. And when he hadde put his hande vpon the bowe, Eliscus put his handes vpon the kynges handes. Then he sayd: open a wyndowe Eastwarde: and he opened. And Eliscus sayde: Gode / and he wote. And he sayde: the arowe of helpe of the Lorde, and the arowe of helpe agaynste the Syrians / for thou shalt beate the Syrians in Apphek, till thou haue consumed them.

Then he sayde: take arowes, and he toke. Then he sayde to the kynge of Israel / suppe the grounde: and he smote thysse, and created. And the man of God was angere with hym, and sayde: Thou woldest haue smyten frue of fire tymes, & then thou haddest smyten the Syrians till thou haddest consumed them: where now thou shalt beate thysse but thysse.

When Eliscus was deed and buried / an armye of the Moabites came in to the land, the yere solowynge. And it chaunced as they were buryng a man, they espyed the souldiours, and therefore cast the deed corpe in to the sepulchre of Eliscus. And as soone as it touched the bones of Eliscus, he reuyned & stode vp on his fete.

And Hazael oppressed Israel all the dayes of Joachaz. But the Lorde hadde mercey on them, and touned to them because of his promise made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob / and wolde not destroye them, neyther caste them frome him as per. And when Hazael kynge of Syria was ded, Benhadad his sonne raygned in his stede. And then Joas the sonne of Joachaz went agayne, and toke out of the hand of Benhadad sonne of Hazael, the cities whiche he had taken forthe of the handes of Joachaz his father by law of armes. And thye tymes dyd Joas beate him and broughthe the cities of Israel agayne.

Amazias kynge of Iuda putteth to death the murderers of his father: and smytheth Eozai. Joas kynge of Israel taketh Amazias. Joas dieth, and Jeroboam succeedeth: after him raygneth Zacharias. Amazias is killed, and Azarias raygneth in his stede.

CAPL XIII.

The seconde yere of Joas sonne of Joachaz kynge of Israel, raygned Amazias sonne of Joas, kynge of Iuda: he was fyue and twenty yeres olde when he began / and raygned nyne and twenty yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Joanan / and was of Jerusalem. And he did that pleased the Lorde, yet not lyke Dauid his father: but in all thynges as Joas his father dyd. For thye toke they awaye the hyll alters, for the people stode and offered spyll in hyll alters. And as soone as the kyngdome was sett in his hande / he sette his seruantes that kylled the kynge his father. But the chyldren of those murderers he stode not: accordyng to that is wyrtten in the boke of the lawe of Moses / where the Lorde commaunded saynge: * the fathers shall not dye for the chyldrens cause, nor the chyldren for the dedes of thye fathers: but euery man shall be layd for his owne synne.

* And he stode of the Edomites in the valleye, ten thousande, and toke the towne Seia with strengthe of battayle / and called the name of it Zekcheel euer after. After that Amazias sente messengers to Joas the sonne of Joachaz kynge of Iehu, kynge of Israel, saynge: come, lette vs se the other. But Joas kynge of Israel sent agayne to Amazias kynge of Iuda, saynge: A chydell in Libanon, layd to a cypresse tree in Libanon, saynge: graue thye daughter to my sonne to wyfe. But the wyld beasts in Libanon, wente and trode downe the chydell. Because thou hast brayned the Edomites, therefore thynne here clyeth thy glorious: but tarye at home. For what man thou to prouoke myschefe, that thou woldest be outethrown, and Iuda with the?

But Amazias wolde not heare. And so Joas kynge of Israel wente by, and he and Amazias kynge of Iuda sawe cyther other at Bethsames in Iuda. And Iuda was out to Iwoyde before Israel / and they fledde turne man to his reuce. And Joas kynge of Israel toke Amazias kynge of Iuda, sonne of Joas, sonne of Ochoziah at Bethsames. And they wente to Jerusalem, and brake downe of the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Sephith to the corner gate, foure hundred cubites. And he toke all the gold and syluer, and all the vessels that were founde in the house of the Lorde, and in the treasure of the kynges dedes, and hostages thereto: and then returned to Samaria agayne.

The reste of the actes of Joas whiche he dyd, and his power, and howe he foughte with Amazias kynge of Iuda, are wyrtten in the Cronicles of kynges of Israel: and Joas layde him to rest with his fathers / and was buried at Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel: and Jeroboam his sonne raygned in his towne.

Amazias the sonne of Joas kynge of Iuda, dyed after the dedes of Joas sonne of Joachaz, kynge of Israel fyftene yeres. The reste of the dedes of Amazias, are wyrtten in the Cronicles of kynges of Iuda. And they spred greute treason agaynste him in Jerusalem and he fledde to Lachis. And they sent after him to Lachis, and stode him there: and they brou, he him or an horse, and he was red at Jerusalem amonge his progenitours in the cite of Dauid. * And all the people of Iuda toke Azarias beyng sixtene yere olde / and made him kynge in place of his father Amazias. He buyt Altar and brought it agayne to Iuda / after that the kynge was layde to rest with his fathers.

The fyftene yere of Amazias sonne of Joas kynge of Iuda, was Jeroboam sonne of Joas made kynge ouer Israel in Samaria / and raygned one and forty yeres, and wrought wyrdwylde in the syghte of the Lorde: for he touned in nothyng from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel to synne. He reuoyed the colles of Israel from the entering of Hamath vnto the see, in the wyld felde: accordyng to the word of the Lorde God of Israel whiche he spake thowse his seruante Jonah the sonne of Amithai the prophet, whiche was of Beth Dophir. For the Lorde hadde sene howe the affliction of Israel was exceeding bitter, in so moche that the pylsoned and the forsahe were at an ende. And there was no helpe vnto Israel. And the Lorde had not yet sayd that men shoulde put out the name of Israel from vnder heuen. And therefore he holpe them by the hande of Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

The reste of the dedes of Jeroboam / and all he dyd, and his power howe he foughte, and howe he reuoyed Damascus and Hamath to Iuda in Israel, are wyrtten in the boke of Cronicles of kynges of Israel. And Jeroboam layde him to rest with his fathers, and with the kynges of Israel, to whom Zacharias his sonne succeeded.

Azarias kynge of Iuda becometh Leprouse. Joas raygneth for him. Selum kylleth Jeroboam and succeedeth him. After whom raygneth Manahem Phakiah, Phakiah, Ihoia, Joacham, Ihas, one after another.

CAPL XV.

The seuen and twenty yere of Jeroboam kynge of Israel / Azarias sonne of Amazias kynge of Iuda began to raygne. Sixty yeres olde was he, when he was made kynge, and raygned two and fifty yeres in Jerusalem, his mothers name was Zebellia, and was of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all thynges, as dyd his father Amazias: save that they put not the hyll alters awaye / for the people offered and burnt spyll in the hyll alters. And the Lorde smote the kynge that he was a leper vnto the day of his death / and dwelle in an house at Irbet by him selfe / and Joacham the kynge sonne gouerned the house, and iudged the people of the land. The reste of the dedes of Azarias and all he dyd, are wyrtten in the Cronicles of kynges of Iuda. And Azarias layd him to slepe with his fathers / and they buried him in thys his fathers in the cite of Dauid / and Joacham his sonne raygned in his stede.

In the xxxvi. yere of Azarias kynge of Iuda was Zacharias the sonne of Jeroboam made kynge vpon Israel in Samaria / and raygned sixe monethes / and * dyd that pleased the Lorde, as dyd his fathers / and touned not from the synnes of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, whiche caused Israel to synne. And Selum the sonne of Jables conspired agaynste him, and smote him before the people, and kylled him, and raygned in his stede.

The reste of the dedes of Zacharias, are wyrtten in the Cronicles of kynges of Israel. This is the saying that the Lorde spake vnto Iehu, saynge: * thy sonnes shall sit on the seate of Israel in the fourth generacion. And it came so to passe.

Selum the sonne of Jables began to raygne the nyne and thirtie yere of Azarias kynge of Iuda / and he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Manahem the sonne of Gadi came by frome Thersah, and wente to Samaria and smote Selum the sonne of Jables in Samaria, and stode him, and raygned in his stede. The reste of the dedes of Selum, and the reason whiche he conspired, are wyrtten in the Cronicles of kynges of Israel. The same tyme Manahem destroyed Thaphsah, and all that were therein / and the colles thereof from Thersah (because they opened not to hym) he smote, and sent all the women with chyldre.

The nyne and thirtie yere of Azarias kynge of Iuda, began Manahem the sonne of Gadi to raygne vpon Israel / and continued ten yeres in Samaria. And he dyd euill in the syghte of the Lorde, and touned not all the dayes from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel to synne. And Phul kynge of Assiria came vpon the land. And Manahem gaue Phul a thousande talentes of siluer, to helpe him to stablish his kyngdome. And Manahem rayped the money in Israel, vpon all men of substaunce, for to geue the kynge of Assiria fiftye syckles of siluer a yere. And the kynge of Assiria turned backe agayne and tarped not there in the lande. The reste of the dedes of Manahem and all he dyd, are wyrtten in the Cronicles of kynges of Israel. And when Manahem was layde to rest with his fathers, Phakiah his sonne raygned in his stede.

The sixtyeth yere of Azarias kynge of Iuda, began Phakiah the sonne of Manahem to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria / and continued two yeres, and wrought wyrdwylde in the syghte of the Lorde, and left not of from the synnes of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat, whiche caused Israel to synne. And Phakiah the sonne of Komeliah, a capitayne of his, conspired agaynste him, and stode him in a toure of the kynges house, with Argob and Ariah, and fiftye men with him that were Galaadites. And when he had kylled him, raygned in his towne. The reste of Phakiah and all he dyd, are wyrtten in the Cronicles of kynges of Israel.

In the lii. yere of Azarias kynge of Iuda, began Phakiah the sonne of Komeliah to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, & continued twenty yeres, and dyd euill in the syghte of the Lorde.

Z.iii. and

ment which I wrote for you, se ye be diligent to do, for ever more, and leave not any other goddes. And the appoyntment that I have made with you, se ye forget not, and that you feare none other goddes: but the Lorde your God ye shall feare, and he shall deliuer you out of the handes of all your enemyes. Now be it they herde not, but dyd after y^e olde maner. And euen so dyd these nations feare the Lorde and serue they: ymages thereto: and so dyd they: chylozen and they: chyldrens chyldren to. Euen as dyd they: fathers, so dyd they vnto this daye.

Ezechias kynge of Iuda putteth downe the brasen serpent, and destroyeth the ydolles. Salmansar kynge of Assyria. The blasphemous of Sennacherib.

CAP. XVIII.

The thyrtye yere of Hoses sonne of Elia, kyng of Israel, reigned Ezechias sonne of Achaz kyng of Iuda. Twentye and thyrtye yeres olde was he, when he beganne to reigne, and reigned xxij. yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Abi the daughter of Zacharias, and he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all thyng, lyke to Dauid his father. He put awaye the yll aultares and brake the ymages and cut downe the groves, and all to brake the brasen serpent that Moses made. For vnto those dayes the chyldren of Israel vpo buene sacrifice to it, and called it Nedubai. He trusted in the Lorde God of Israel, so that after him came none lyke him among all the kynges of Iuda, neyther amonge them that were afore him. He claue to the Lorde & departed not frome him, but kept his commaundmentes which the Lorde commaunded Moyses. And the Lorde was with him, and whatsoeuer he toke in hande he dyd it wylly. And he rebelled agaynst the kynge of Assyria and serued him not. He bet the Philistines euen vnto Azah and the costes therof, both in castles of garrisons and stronge cities.

In the fourth yere of kynge Ezechias whiche was the seventh yere of Hoses sonne of Elia kyng of Israel, came Salmansar kyng of Assyria vpon Samaria and beleged it. And they toke it at the ende of thyrtye yeres, which was the sixte of Ezechias: that is to say the nyntieth yere of Hoses kyng of Israel, was Samaria wonne. And the kynge of Assyria dyd carpe awaye Israel vnto Assyria, and put them in Halah and in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cities of Medes: because they wolde not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde their God, but transgressed his appoyntment, and all that Moyses the seruant of the Lorde commaunded, and wolde neyther heare nor do.

The xij. yere of kynge Ezechias came Sennacherib kyng of Assyria agaynst all the stronge cities of Iuda and toke them. Wher vpon Ezechias kyng of Iuda sent to y^e kynge of Assyria to Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended. But depart from me, and what thou puttest on me that will I beare. And the kynge of Assyria assailed vpon Ezechias kyng of Iuda, thir hundred talents of siluer and thyrtye talents of golde. * And Ezechias gaue him all the siluer that was founde in the house of the Lorde and also in the treasure of the kynge house. And the sayde seauen Ezechias sent of the wordes of the temple of the Lorde and of the pylers, whiche the sayde Ezechias kyng of Iuda couered ouer, and gaue the to the kynge of Assyria.

And the kynge of Assyria sent Elisham and Rablath and Rablath from Lachis to Ierusalem. And they went vp and came to Ierusalem, and went and stode by the coundre of the ouermost pole whiche is in the waye to the fullers side, and called to the kynge. And there came out to them, Elisham the sonne of Bechiah quard of household and Sobnah the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Alaph, their cojurer. And then Rablath sayd to them: Adye Ezechias I pray you: thus sayth the kynge the kynge of Assyria. What confidence is this that thou hast? thou wyldest happyly speake a lyght word, that thou hast counsel and power to make warre. On whom thou dost thou trust, that thou rebelled agaynst me? dost thou trust to the staffe of this hyssop? ken tbe Egypt, on whiche ys a man leant, & wylt rene in to his hande and perre it? for euen so is Pharaon kyng of Egypte broun all that truste on hym. * Yf ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde our God. Is not this God he, whose yll aultares and ocher aultares, Ezechias hath put downe, and hath sayd to Iuda and Ierusalem, bow your selues before this aultare here in Ierusalem? Now therfore toyne thy selfe to my Lorde the kynge of Assyria, and I will deliuer the two thousand hysses, yf thou be habile to set thy feet vpon them: (and yf thou be not) how then arte thou able to resist one of the litle Dukes of my masters seruantes? or trustest thou to Egypte charrettes and horsmen? Wherfore therfore thou I am come without the bydding of the Lorde to this place to destroye it? Saye to the Lorde saye to me, go vp to this lande and destroye it. Then saye Elisham the son of Bechiah and Sobnah and Joah, to Rablath: speake, we praye the, to thy seruantes in the Syrians language, for we vnderstand it: and talke not with vs in the Iewes tongue, whiche eares of the people that are on the walles. And Rablath sayd vnto them: hath my master sent me only to thy master and to the, to speake these wordes, or rather to the men that kepe the walles, that they shal eat their owne drye and drinke their owne pisse with you.

And so Rablath stode and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Iewes language, and spake, sayenge: Heare the sayenge of the kynge the kynge of Assyria. Thus sayeth the kynge: Let not Ezechias beguyle you, for he is not habile to deliuer you out of myne hande: neyther let Ezechias make you truste to the Lorde sayenge: the Lorde shal surely fynde out this optre shal not be deliuered into the handes of the kynge of Assyria. Then into Ezechias, for thus sayth the kynge of Assyria. Deale kindly with me, and come oute to me. And then eat euery man of his owne hyne, and of his fygge tree, and drynke euery man of the water of his owne well, tyll I come and set you to as good a land as yours is, a land of coyne and hyne, a lande of byrd and byperdes, a lande of olue trees of oyle and of hony. And ye shall lyue and not dye. And broken not vnto Ezechias for he wyl beguyle you, sayng: the Lorde shal deliuer us. For haue the goddes of the nacrons deliuered any God his lande, oute of the hande of the kynge of Assyria? where are the gods of Hama and of Arphad? where are the gods of Sepharuaim of Ana and Auah? did they deliuer Samaria out of myne handes? what God of any lande hath deliuered his lande oute of myne hande, that the Lorde shal deliuer Ierusalem out of myne hand?

But the people helde they: pear and answered not him a word: for the kynge hadde commaunded, sayenge: answered him not. Then Elisham the quard of household, and Sobnah the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Alaph the recorder, came to Ezechias with their clothes rent and tolde him the wordes of Rablath.

The Tugell of the Lorde kylleth Sennacherib, thowshere men of the Assyrians. Sennacherib is kylled of his owne sonnes.

CAP.

XIX.

When kynge Ezechias herde this, he rent his clothes and put on sacke, and went to the house of the Lorde. Furthermore he sent Elisham quard of household, & Sobnah the scribe, & the elders of the Priacles clothed in sacke, to Isai the Prophete the sonne of Amos. And they sayde to him, thus sayeth Ezechias: This daye is a daye of tribulation of rebaynge and rayling: Euen as when y^e chyldren are cedy to be boyme, and the mothers haue no power to be deliuered. Oh that the Lorde thy God wolde heare all the wordes of Rablath, whome the kynge of Assyria his master hath sent to ruple on the Iuyng God, & to rebuke him with wordes, whiche the Lorde thy God hath herde. Wherfore lyst by thy prayer for the remnant that are left. When the seruantes of kynge Ezechias were come to Isai: Isai sayde to them. So shall ye say to your master. Thus sayth the Lorde: be not afraid of the wordes thou herdest, in which the younge men of the kynge of Assyria haue rayled on me. For I will sende him a blaste that he shal beare tydings, and so returne to his owne lande: And I will ouerthrowe hym with the sword, euen in his owne lande.

And Rablath wente backe agayne & found the kynge of Assyria fighting agaynst Lachis: for he had herde, that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde tydings of Theraha kyng of the blacke Mozes, that he was come out to fight agaynst him. And therupon he departed and sent messengers vnto Ezechias, sayenge. Thus saye to Ezechias kyng of Iuda, Let not thy God cary the out of the way, in whome thou so trustest, sayng: Ierusalem shal not be deliuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast hearde what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue vtterly destroyed them, And howe then wilt thou escape? hath the goddes of the hepythen deliuered them whiche myne auncestours haue destroyed: as Gozan, Hatan, Kereph, and the chyldren of Eden which were in Chelafai: where is the kynge of Demach, the kynge of Arphad the kynge of the cyne of Sepharuaim, & the kynge of Ana, and the kynge of Auah?

When Ezechias had receyued the letters of the hande of the messengers and hadde red them: he went into the house of the Lorde, & layde them abrode before the Lorde. And Ezechias prayed before the Lorde & sayd: Lord God of Israel, whiche dwellest betwene the Cherubes, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the earth, and thou hast made both heauen and earth. Lorde, bowe thyne eares and heare: Open Lorde thyne eyes and se: & heare the wordes of Sennacherib which hath sent to ruple on the Iuyng God. Certes o Lorde, the kynges of Assyria haue destroyed nations and their lades, and haue set fyre on their goddes. For they were no goddes, but the worke of the handes of man: euen wood and stone. And therfore they destroyed them. Now therfore (Lorde our God) saue thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyngdomes of the earthe maye knowe, that thou Lorde art God alone. And Isai the sonne of Amos sent to Ezechias sayenge: Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, the thinge that thou hast prayed to me concerninge Sennacherib kyng of Assyria, I haue herde. This is the thinge that y^e Lorde sayth of him: He hath deliued the, O virgine daughter of Sion: He hath taken his bed at the, thou daughter of Ierusalem: whome hast thou rayled on, and whom hast thou reupled? Agaynst whome hast thou lyked by thy voyce and hast eleuate thyne eyes to hyght? Euen agaynst the holp of Israel. By the hand of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lorde and sayde: with the multitude of my charrettes I am come vp to the heyghe of the mountaynes euen alonge by the spyes of Libanon, & haue cut of the hyght Cedar trees, and the lustre fyre trees therof, euen to the woode of Carmel that belongeth thereto. I haue dygged & dygged strange waters, and haue dyed by with the soles of my fete poles enclosed. But hast thou not hearde howe I haue ordyned suche a thinge a greafe whyle ago, and haue prepared it frome the begynnyng? And nowe I bringe it forth, and it shal be to destroye, and to bringe strange cities, in to rube heapes of stones. And the inhabitantes of them shal be of litle power, and faynte hearted and confounded. * They shal be lyke the greffe of the felde, and gerne herbes, and as the hey on the toppes of the houses whiche wethereth or it cometh any bryght I wote where thou shalst lye, and thy cowninge oute, and goynge in.

clothes, and commaunded Belkia the priest & Abikam the sonne of Sapha and Achobor the sonne of Michaia and Saphan the scribe, and Asabtah a seruante of the kinges, sayinge: go ye and seke of the Lorde for me and the people, and for all Iuda. concernynge the wordes of this boke that is foule. for it is a great wrath of the Lorde that is kindled vpon vs that oure fathers haue not harkened vnto the wordes of this boke, to do in all poyntes as it is written therein.

And Helkia the hiehe prieste and Abikam Achobaz, Saphan, Asahia wente vnto Sila the Propetesse, wyfe of Selum the sonne of Ekuab, the sonne of Barabam keper of the robes; whiche Propetesse dwelte in Ierusalem in the second ward, and communed with her. And she saide to them : Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israell. Tell the man that sente you to me thus sayeth the Lorde : Wherfore I wyll byrnye euill vpon this place, and on the dwellers therein: such all the wordes of the booke whiche the kynge of Iuda hath redde: because they haue forsaken me, & haue burnt offerings vnto other Goddes, to anger me with all the mockes of their handes. And foze is my treate the kendled agaynst this place, and shall not be quenched. But to the kynge of Iuda, whiche sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shall he saie: thus saith the Lorde God of Israel / as touchynge the wordes whiche thou herdest. Because thyn herte did melte, and thou mekedest thy selfe before me the Lorde, when thou herdest what I spake agaynst this place, and the inhabitants of the same how that it shoulde be destroyed and made a cursed: a tate of thy clothes and weptest before me: of that also I haue herde saythe the Lorde. And therefore loo, I will re-cure the vnto thy fathers, and will sette the vnto thy graue in yere thyn eyes shall se none of the vyl to which I will bringe vpon this place. And they brought the kynge word agayne.

A Josiah readeth Deuteronomium before the people the fourth day of the fourth moneth after he had killed the parasites thereof. He kept the passover. He was killed in Shageda. & his son Jehoahaz reigneth in his stead: after he was taken his son in Jehoahaz was made king.

CAPL. XXIII.

THEN the kynge sente and gathered unto him all the elders of Iuda and of Ierusalem, and the kynge wente up in to the house of the Lord, and all the men of Iuda and all thing-burthenes of Ierusalem with him, and the prestes, and the propheetes and all the people booke small and great. And he sette in hearinge of them, all the wordes of the booke of the testament which was written in the booke of the Lawe. And the kynge stood by a pylle, and made a covenant before the Lord, that they shoulde keepe all the wordes, and kepe his commandmentes and his lawes, and do as ye haue comanded.

tes, and all their soules / and make goodly wordes of the sayde appointment that was wrytten in the foresayd booke. And all the peple consented to the appointment. Thertofter kynge commanded Belshia the byrde byrd and the lomer pordesses and the keepers of the dore, to byrnye out of the Loydes temple, all the beuelles made for Baal, and for the grane and for all the holte of heauen. And he burnt them withoute Ierusalem in the felde of Cedion, and caryed the ashes of them into Bethel. And he put downe the religious priunes, whiche the kynge of Iuda hadde sent burne offeringes in the byll aulters in the types of Iuda rounde aboute Ierusalem, and also them that burnt sacrifices vnto Baal, to the sonne and to the moone, and to the planets / and to all the holte of heauen. And he broughte oute the groue frome the temple, the Loyde withoute Ierusalem, vnto the byrrooke Cedron / and burnt it at the byrrooke Cedron / and stampete it to pouldre, and cast the duste therof vpon the graues of the people of the countreys. And he brake downe the dygrype places that were in the house of Iehoi-achin, in whiche the women woue coryncys for the groue.

And he brought all the pictures out of the cities of Iuda, and defaced the highaltars, where the pictures dyd burne sacrifices from Sabaa to Bersabe. And he brake down the highaltars of the Gates, that were in the mytrey of the Sait of Josua the gouernour of the crite, whiche were on the left hand of the Gate of the crite. Where thele the pictures of the highaltars myght not come at the altar of the Lorde in Ierusalem, for soe they dyd eate of the fowre beed among the brethren.

And he destroyed Eopheth also because in the valley of the children of Beniamin, because no man could offer his son or his bough-ter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe the heates that the kynges of Ierael had grunte sonne at the entring of the house of the Lord in the chamber of Nathanniel the cha-berlayne which was of Barua: Im, and burnt the charettes of the sonne with fyre. And the altars that were on the toppes of the pariet of Achaz which the kynges of Iuda had made, and the altars which Manass had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lord, the kynge brake downe, and raine them and caste the duels of theym in to the brooke Cydon.

And the hyaulitera that were before the salem on the right hand of the mount high, whiche was men king of Iudah to Alasoch the abominacion of the Zoro and to Alamos the abominacion of the Zoroastrian and to Alamos the abominacion of the chydren of Ammon the king heard and bade the king to go and the ground, and filled the places in the nes of men

Then the hyngre sayde: What meaneth youne graue stone that I se? And the men of the city tolde him, it is the Sepulchre of the man of God, which came frome Iuda and other trauelled the selfe same thynges: hee had done to the altare of Bethel. And he sayde let hym be: se that no man moue his stones. And he his bones escaped, with the bones of a Prophete, that came out of Samaria.

And thus he all the houses of the hyaulaters of the cities of Samaria, whiche the kynges of Assur had made, to anger the Lord with:
Tobias put out of the waie, and dyd to them as he sayd as he dyd in Bethel. And he sacrificed all the prestes of the hyaulters that were there euen vpon the aultars, and burnt them vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

And the kynge commaunded all the people layng: * kepe the feast of passouer vnto the Lorde your God, as it is mytten in the booke of this testament. For there was no passouer holten lyke that, frome the dayes of the iudges that wjdede Israel, and they orde oute all the dayes of the kynges of Israel and of Iu-
da. And in the .xviij. yere of kynge Josias, was this passouer holten to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

¶ Sixteene workers with spites, sorghay-es, Images of witchcraftes, Idols and all other abominations that were espyed in the land of Iuda and in Ierusalem, Iohas put out of the waye, to make good the wordes of the lawe, which were wyrtten in the booke: & Helias the piracie founde in the house of the Lorde: & the into him was there no kynge as-for him, that turned to the Lorde with all his herte, with all his soule, and all his might,
according to all the lawe of Moyses, neyther after him arose there any suche.

1 Notwithstandinge the Roie turnede not him selfe from his scarce and great wrath, wherewith he was angeye against Iuda vpon all the prouocations that Manasses prouoked him. But the Roie sayde: I will put Iuda in the maner out of my sight, as I haue done Israel, and will cast of this cite Ierusalem, which I haue chosen, and the house of which I haue sayde, my name shall be there.

The rest of the deeds of Josias, and all he did, are written in the booke of the Chronicles of Kings of Juda.

* Iphis dares Pharaon Necoa, kynge of Egypte, went against the kynge of Assyria to the great Cupbrates. And kynge Iphis went agaistke him, and was Narne of him at Magew when he had sene him. And his seruantes carped hym deed from Magew & brought him to Jerusalem, & turped him in his owne Sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Joachaz the sonne of Josias, and annoynted hym, and made hym kynge in his fathers rowme.

And Joachaz was thre and twenty yeres olde, when he began to reigne, and reigned thre monethes in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremia of Lobnah. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, in all thinges as his fathers had done. And Pharaos Secoa put him in bondes at Beblay, in the lande of Hemath, in the tyme of his reygne in Ierusalem, and put the lande to a tribute of an hundred talentes of siluer and a talente of golde. And Pharaos Secoa made Eliakim, the sonne of Josias, kynge, in the towne of Josias his father, and turned his name to Joakim, and toke Joachaz awaye, whiche when he came to Egypt / dyed there.

And Joakim gaue the silver and the golde to Pharaos: howe be it he taxed the lande, to geue the monney at the commaundemente of Pharaos, and as euery man was set at, so he requyred the silver and the golde of the people of the lande, to geue Pharaos yeeles. Jo-akim was fyue and twenty yeres olde, when he beganne to raigne, and he raygned eleven yeres in Ierusalem. His mother was named Zebda the daughter of Phadaia of Rama.
And he dyd that was euill in the sighte of the Lorde / Ine in all thynges as dyd his fathers.

I Joahim dyeth, and after him succedeth Joarim:
Jerusalem is besegged of the Babilonians. Joarim seldeth him selfe to the kynge of Babilon. And in his towne came Nathaniah, whiche was called Zedekias.

CAPT. XXIII.

In his dayes came Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon, and Ioachim became his seruante threer yeres, and then tourned and rebelled agaynste hym. And the Lorde sent vpon him men of warre oute of Caldere, oute of Siria, oute of the Moabites, and frome the childzen of Ammon: and sente them into Iuda, to destroye it, accordynge to the sayenge of the Lorde whiche he spake by his seruantes the prophetes. Only at the bydding of the Lorde happened it so to Iuda, to put them oute of his sight, for the synne of Manasses accordynge to all he byd: and for the innocent bloude that he shed and fylled Ierusalem with innocent bloude, whiche the Lorde wolde not forgue.

The rest of the dedes of Iosachim and all he ded, are wyrtten in the Chronicles of kynges of Iuda. And Iosachim layd him to slepe with his fathers, and Ioacin his sonne reygned in his stede. But the Kyng of Egypte, Daniel. i. a.

*Deuter. ii. a.

came not to no more out of his land: for the kyng of Babylon had taken from the ryuer Euphrates, all that pertayned to the kyng of Egypte. Joacin was eghtene yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned in Jerusalem thre monethes. His mothers name was Nebuspha the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lord in all poyntes as his father dyd.

* In his tyme came the seruantes of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon, to Jerusalem and the cite was beleaged. And Nabuchodonosor came to the cite as his seruantes were yet beleagynge of it. * And Joacin the kyng of Juda came out to the kyng of Babylon, with his mother, his seruantes, his Lordes and his chamberlaynes. And the kyng of Babylon toke him, in the eght yere of his raygne.

And he caried out thence all the treasure of the house of the Lord, and the treasure of the kynges house, and brake all the vessels of golde which Salomon kyng of Israel hadde made, in the temple of the Lord, as the Lord had sayde. And he caried awaye all Jerusalem, and all the Lordes and all the men of myght, to the nombre of ten thousande into captiuitie and all craftes men and Jopners, none remayninge save the poore people of the lande. And he caried awaye Joacin to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, and his chamberlaynes, and the myghtye of the lande caried he awaye frome Jerusalem to Babylon. And all the men of warre to the nombre of seven thousande, and craftsmen & toynters a thousande, all stronge and apte for warre, dyd the kyng of Babylon bring to Babylon to dwell. * And the kyng of Babylon made Shabnanah his fathers brother, kyng in his lode, and chaunged his name and called him Zedekia.

ii. Paralip. xlii. b.

Jerem. xxi. a.

Zedekia was one and thentye yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned eleven yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamital the daughter of Jeremia, of Robnah. And he dyd euill in the sight of the Lord, in all poyntes lyke to Joacin. For throughte the wyathe of the Lord it so chaunced to Jerusalem and Juda, butyll he had cast them out of his sight. And the sayde Zedekia rebelled against the kyng of Babylon.

¶ By the rebellynge of Zedekia is the towne of Jerusalem beleaged of Nabuchodonosor. The towne and the temple are both burnte. The sonnes of Zedekia are slayne before his eyes, and after are his eyes put out. Juda is brought to Babylon, and after is Joacin created.

CAP.

XXV.

Jerem. xxi. a.

and. ii. a.

¶ Wherefore in the nynthe yere of his raygne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth came Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon with all his power to Jerusalem: and pitched against the towne and made engynes against it on every syde. And the cite continued beleaged into the eleventh yere of kyng Zedekias. And the nynthe daye of the tenth moneth of that yere, there was so great hunger in the cite, that there was no sustenance for the people of the lande.

And the cite was broken up: wherefore the men of Jericho fled by night, by a way that was a gate, betwene two walles hard on the kynges garden: the Caldeys spenge about the cite.

Then the kyng went searight toward Jerusalem. And the host of the Caldeys followed after him, and toke him in the wilderness of Jericho, all his armye beinge gathered awaye frome him. When they had taken him, they brought him to Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon to Babelah, whiche impeached him of treason. And they drew the eyes of Zedekias before his eyes, and put out the eyes of Zedekias, and fettered him, and caried him to Babylon.

In the seventh daye of the fiftie moneth which was in the nyntenth yere of kyng Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon, came Sarabab seruante of the kyng of Babylon, chief Capitayne unto Jerusalem: and brake the house of the Lord, and the kynges house, and all the houses of Jerusalem, and all the houses with fyre. And all the host of the Caldeys that were with the chiefe Capytayne brake downe the walles of Jerusalem round aboute. And the residue of the people that were left in the cite, and therein that were fled to the kyng of Babylon, and the residue of the common people, Nabuchodonosor the chiefe Capytayne caried awaye, and left of the people of the lande to dwelle the wyues, and to till grounde.

And the pylers of brasse that were in the house of the Lord and the botomes, and the brasse see that was in the house of the Lord, the Caldeys brake, and caried the brasse to Babylon. And the lawres, coullers, dwellinge knyues, laddes, and the myghtye vessels of brasse, they caried awaye. And fyrepannes, and basins that were cryed of golde or siluer, toke the chiefe Capytayne awaye with the two pylers & the see of brasse, and the botomes which Salomon had made in the house of the Lord. The brasse of all these vessels was withoute wyght. The height of the one piler, was .xxv. cubits, and the heed thereon was brasse, and the restes longe with a wythe and pommegranates roundabout upon the heed, all of brasse. And of the same fashion was the seconde piler with a wythe.

And the chiefe Capytayne toke Sarabab the chiefe pzeade, and Zophoniah the chiefe pzeade, and thre keepers of the house. And out of the cite he toke a certayne chamberlayne that had the ouersight of the myghtye warre, and fyue men that were cur in the kynges presence, which were founde in the cite, and Sopber the Capytayne of the house caught the people of the lande & feates warre and thre scoze men of the people of the lande.

that were founde in the cite also. And Nabuchodonosor the chiefe Capytayne toke the & brought them to the kyng of Babylon to Babelah.

And the kyng of Babylon smote them & slew them at Babelah in the lande of Hemath. And so Juda was caried awaye out of their land.

¶ And out the people that remayned in the lande of Juda, which Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon left, he set Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan. And when all the capitaynes of the men of warre and the men here that the kyng of Babylon hadde made Godoliah gouernour: there came to Godoliah to Babelah: Jimacl the sonne of Nathaniah and Johanan the sonne of Kareah & Seraiah the sonne of Tanhumeth the Necephathite and Jezoniah the sonne of Maachab and their men. And Godoliah sware to them, and to their men, and sayde to them: feare not ye the seruantes of the Caldeys, for dwell in the lande and serue the kyng of Babylon and ye shalbe in good state.

¶ But it chaunced the seventh moneth after, that Jimacl the sonne of Nathaniah the son of Elisama of the kynges bloude came, and trauersed with him, and smote Godoliah that he dyed: and so dyd he the Jewes & the Caldeys that were with him at Babelah. Whereupon all the people both smal and great and the Capitaynes of the me of warre arose, and went to Egypte: for they were asfayed of the Caldeys.

¶ Notwithstandinge yet the thierpe and seuenth yere, after Joacin kyng of Juda was caried awaye, the twenty and seuenth daye of the twelfe moneth, dyd Sulmerodach kyng of Babylon lyft up the heed of Joacin kyng of Juda out of the pisonne house, and spake kindly to him, and set his seate aboute & seate of all the kynges that were with him in Babylon, and chaunged his pylon garments.

And he dyd ever eate bread before him all the dayes of his lyfe. And a continual porcion was assigned him of the kyng, frome daye to daye as longe as he lyued.

The sonnes of Ruben the eldest sonne of Israel: for he was the eldest. But because he defyled his fathers bedde, his bythe ryghte was given vnto the sonnes of Joseph the sonne of Israel: and so he is not reckened vnto the bythe ryghte. For vnto Iuda whiche was myghty amonge his brethren, was gynn the principallite befoze him. But the bythe ryghte was given Joseph. The sonnes then of Ruben, the eldest sonne of Israel: were Hemoth: Phalu, Heryom, & Carmi.

The sonnes of Joel: Samaiab, and his sonne Bog, and his sonne Semel, and his sonne Hicah, and the sonne of him was Hecrah, and his sonne was Baal, and Beerah was his sonne. Whiche Beerah Thiglah, Phalacker, kynge of Assira carped away: for he was a greare Loyde amonge the Rubenites. But vnto his brethren in theyr knyghtes / when they are reckened after theyr bythe / were Ietel, and Zachariah the chiefe heddes.

And Baal the sonne of Ayan the sonne of Hema, the sonne of Joel, dwelte in Aroer and so forth vnto Hebo, and Baalmaon. And Samuwarde he inhabited vntill the wilderness / euen vpon the ryuer Euphrates: for theyr cattell was moche in the lande of Galaad.

And in the dayes of Saul, they warred with the Agarties, whiche were ouerthronen by theyr handes. And they dwelte in theyr tentes thowme out all the Ladlande of Galaad.

And the chyldren of Gad dwelte ouer agaynst them in the lande of Basan: euen vnto Heleah. And in Basan, Joel was the chiefe and Sapham the nexte, then Jaanai and Saphat. And theyr brethren in the auncient householdes of them, were Michael, Mosolam, Hiba, Joai, Joacan, Zia, Eber and Senen. These were the chyldren of Abihail the sonne of Huri the sonne of Ierodah Galaad & sonne of Michael, the sonne of Iesai the sonne of Iehado the sonne of Buz. And was the sonne of Abihail the son of Guni, the heed of an auncient household amonge them. And they dwelt in Galaad & in Basan and her townes, and in all the suburbs of Saron: euen vnto the ende of theyr borders.

And they were all reckened by knyghtes in the dayes of Iotham kynge of Iuda: and in the dayes of Ieroboam kynge of Israel. The sonnes of Ruben, of Gad, & of halfe the tribe of Manasse, euen of theyr ryghte men hable to beare shilde and swerde, and shot with bowe /

& taught to make warres, were foure & fouertye thousande, seven hundred, and thre score that went out to battayle. And they fought with the Agarties, and with Ietur, Rappas and Robab. And they were holpe agaynst them, & the Agarties were deliuered in to theyr handes, w al that were with the Agarties. For they cryed to God in the battayle, & he herd them: because they trusted to him. And they took of theyr cattell fiftie thousande camelles, and two hundred and fiftie thousande shepe, and two thousande asses: and of the people an hundred thousande: for there fell manye deed by cause the warre was of God. And they dwelt there in their cities, vntill the tyme that they were carped away.

And the chyldren of halfe the tribe of Manasse dwelte in the lande, from Basan vnto Baal Harmon and Samic, and vnto mounte Hermon: and they were manye. And these were the heades of the auncient householdes of them: Ephraim, Iesh, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremias, Hodajah, Jehadriel, men of great power / men of name / and heades of the auncient householdes of them.

But when they hadde transgressed agaynst the God of their fathers: & had gone a whooring after the goddes of the people of the lande / whiche God destroyed befoze them / God sended by the spytte of Phul, kynge of Assira, and the spytte of Thiglah Phalacker kynge of Assira / and carped away the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and the halfe tribe of Manasse: & brought them vnto Delay, Habor, Hara, and to the ryuer Gozan: where they remayne vnto this daye.

The other Genealogie of the sonnes of Ben Jamin.

And was the castell of Ston, whiche is called the cite of David. Then sayde David: who so cure mythe the Jebusites syde, shall be the principall capitayne and a lord. And Joab the sonne of Zeruiah went forth by, and was therfore the chiefe capitayne. And because David dwelte in the castell, it was called the cite of David. And he built the cite on every syde from Bello rounde aboute. But Joab repayed the reste of the cite. And David prospered and waxed great, and the Loyde of hostes was with hym.

E Reg. xlii. a. These are the principall men of power that clawe to David in his kyngdome with all Israel, to make him kyng upon Israel according to the worde of the Loyde, which he spake to Israel. And this is the nombre of the mighty men which David had: Itabaam the sonne of Hachamoni the chiefe of thirtie, he sette by his speere agaynst thre hundred, & slew them at one tyme.

After him Eleazar the son of Dodo his brother an Abiathite, whiche was one of the thre myghtyest, he was with David at Phebasamin where the Philistines were gathered to battayle. In whiche place was a parcell of ground full of barlepe, and the people fledde for feare of the Philistines. And they strete forth in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it, and slew the Philistines. And the Loyde gave a great victorie.

D And the thre of the thirtie chiefe, went to a rocke to David at the caue of Bollaam, wch the hoste of the Philistines had pitched in the valley of Raphaim. And David was in an hold. And there was a garrison of the Philistines at Bethlechem the same tyme. And David longed and sayd: * Oh, that one wolde geue me of the water of the well of Bethlechem that is in the gate for to drinke. And these thre bracke chorow the hoste of the Philistines, and drew of the water of the well of Bethlechem, that was in the gate, and toke it and brought it to David. Wherefore David wolde not drinke of it, but offered it to the Loyde, and sayd: God forbrod it me that I shoulde do this thing, to drinke the bloud of these men: I haue put their lyes in leoparde (for with the leoparde of their lyes they brought it) and therefore he wolde not drinke it. This did the thre myghtyest.

E And Abisai the brother of Joab was capitayne of the thre, and he sette by his speere agaynst thre hundred and slew them, and had a name amonge the thre. And he was moche more noble then any of the thre, & was thre capitayne, but was not lyke to any of the thre in actes.

Banaiah the sonne of Joiada the sonne of a stronge man that had done great detes, & was of Labael: he slew two strong lions of Moab, and went downe and slew a lion in a pit in tyme of snowe and he slew an Egyptian, whose stature was fyve cubites longe, and in his hand had a speere like a weavers beame. And the other went to him with a waaler, and plucked the speere out of the Egyptians hand, and slew him with his speere. Suche thynges dyd Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and had a name with the thre myghtyest, and was the most glorious of thirtie: but attained not into the thre. And David made hym of his counsell.

And these were the best men of warre of the hoste: Asael the brother of Joab, and Elhanan the sonne of Dodo of Bethlechem. Samoth the Harazite, Helez the Ishalonite: Jea the sonne of Akas the Ekeuite, Abieser the Anathothite, Sobacai the Husathite, Elat the Abiathite, Harai the Bethphathite, and Helez the sonne of Baanah the Bethphathite: Ittai the Gittite of Kebar of Gabaath that pertained to the chyldren of Ben Jamin: Banaiah the Shilonite: Haurai of the reuer of Gass and Helez the Arbathite: Azmoth the Baharumite, Elahaba the Saabonite. And Jeribai and Jethai the sonnes of Elnaam and Jethai the Moabite. Eliel and Obed, and Isai of Isobabiah.

E What they were that went with David when he fledde from Saul.

CAPL

XII

And these folowynge came to David at Zikeleg whyle he yet kepte hym selfe close for feare of Saul the son of Isobabiah and they were of the men that succoured him in battayle, weaponed with bowes, and could handle stones, arrows and bowe, as with the left hande as with the right, and were of Sauls brethren, euen of the tyebe of Benjamin. The chiefe were Abieser and Joab the sonnes of Hamaiah & Gabaonite, and Jethai the Shalite, the sonnes of Azmoth. Banaiah the sonne of Anathoth, & Itamatah a Gabaonite as myghty as any of thirtie, and moche more. And Jeremias, Jehaziel, Johanan and Joab of Gedor, Elulai, Jerimoth, Banaiah, Shoham and Saphanah: Haraphites, Elam, Jethai, Asael, Jozer, Josheam of Kethi, and Joelab, and Zababiah the sonne of Jerobam of Gedor.

Also certayne of the Gaddites were with David, when he kepte an holde in the wilderness, men of myght, and men apt for warre, and could handle wynde and speere, whiche were lyke the fawces of lions: and the

were also as swifte as the roes of the mountaynes: Ezer the Israhel, Obadias the seconde, & had the thirtie, Balmannah the fourth, Jeremias the fift, Eliel the sixt, Eliel the seventh, Johanan the eighth, Elahab the ninth, Jere-miah the tenth, and Banaiah the eleventh. These were of the sonnes of Gad, and were capitaynes ouer men of warre, the small ouer an hundred, and the greates ouer a thousande. These are they that went ouer Jordan in the first moneth, when he had fylled ouer all his banke, and they put to flight them of the valley, both of the east syde and also the west.

And there came of the chyldren of Ben Jamin and Juda, to the holde of David. And David went out to them, and answered and sayd to them: Yf ye be come preasable vnto me, to helpe me, myne herse shall be together with you. But yf ye come to begyle me, and to be myne aduersarie, yf there is no myghtednesse in myne handes, the God of our fathers lorde thron and rethike it. And the spyrte came vpon Amasai a capitayne ouer thirtie, and he sayd: thre are we David, and on thy syde thou son of Isai: * pear be with the, and pear with thre helpers: for thy God helpeth the. Then David receyued them, & made them heres of companies of men of warre.

And there fell of Manasses to David when he went with the Philistines agaynst Saul, to battayle, but holpe them not. For the lordes of the Philistines toke counsell and sente hym away, sayinge: he will fall to his master Saul to the leoparde of our breedes. And as he went to Zikeleg, there fell to him of Manasses: Elnah, Josabab, Jediel, Michael of Josabab, Elun, and Zaltai, herdes of the thousandes of Manasses. And they holpe David agaynst those rours. For they were all myghty men, and capitaynes in warre. And there came one of other to David daye by daye, to helpe him: but it was a greates holse, lyke the hoste of God.

And this is the nombre of the heedes prepared to battayle, that came to David to Iebzon to turne the kyngdome of Saul to him, according to the worde of the Loyde.

The chyldren of Juda that bare wynde and speere, were six thousande and eight hundred & well furnished to warre. Of the chyldren of Amon, men of myghte to warre, seven thousande, and one hundred. And of the chyldren of Reu, were foure thousande and six hundred. And Joiaha was the chiefe of them of Amon, and with him thre thousande and seuen hundred. And Zadock a yonge man of greates power, had his fathers howsholde with capitaynes two and twenty. And of the chyldren of Ben Jamin & Jereh of Saul, were thre thousande. And a great part of them dyd yet folow the house of Saul.

And of the chyldren of Ephraim, were twenty thousande, & eight hundred, men of myght, and named men in the howsholde of their fathers. And of the halfe tribe of Manasses, twenty thousande, which were appoynted by name to make David kyng. And of the chyldren of Issachar, which were men that had vndersta-nding in the right tyme to knowe what Israel ought to doo. The herdes of them were two hundred, and all they brethren at theyr wyll. And of Zabulon that went out with the host, and proceeded in araye to battayle with all manner of weapons of warre: fyfty thousande that kepte in araye with one accorde. And of Issachar a thousande capitaynes: and with them with wynde and speere seuen and thirtie thousande. And of Dan prepared to battayle, were eight and twenty thousande and six hundred. And of Aser that went out with the hoste to make battayle, fourty thousande. And of the other syde Jordan, of the Rubenites, Gadites, and of the halfe tribe of Manasses, with all manner of habilimentes of warre an hundred & twenty thousande.

All these being men of warre, hable to order the araye, came to Iebzon with pure herse, to make David kyng vpon all Israel. And more ouer, all the rest of Israel was of one accorde to make David kyng. And there they were with David thre dayes eating and dynning: for they brethren prepared for them. Where ouer they that were nye to them: as Issachar, Zabulon and Nephtali, broughte byred on asses, camelles, mules, and oxen, and meate: flour, egges, reasyns, wyne, oyle, oxen, and shepe abundantly. For there was myghte in Israel.

E The herse is brought agayne from Bariat h Isai to Jerusalem. Dya dyer h.

XIII

And David counseled with the graund capitaynes, and petre capitaynes, and with all the lordes: and sayde vnto all the congregacion of Israel: yf it seme you good and also to be of the Loyde our God, let vs take and sende vnto the remnant of our brethren that we out all the lande of Israel, and to the preestes and Leuites with them in their cities and suburbs, and gather them together to vs, and let vs bynge agayne the arke of God to vs: for we regarded it not in the dayes of Saul. And all the congregacion was contente so to do: for the thyng seemed good in the eyes of all the people.

And David gathered all Israel together to Iebzon in Egypt vnto Hemath, to bynge the arke of the Loyde from Bariat h Isai. And David went by and all Israel to Banaiah, and so to Bariat h Isai that is in Juda, to fetch thence the arke of the God and Loyde that spreceth on the Cherubes, where his name is called on. And they caried the arke of God in a newe carre ouer of the house of Ammadab. And Dya and Abio draue the car. And David and all Israel played before God with all their myghte, with syngrunge, harpes, psalteries, tymbrells, and troumpettes. And when they came on the thyswyng floore of Iebzon, Dya put forth his hande to holde the arke: so the oxen stumbled. And the Loyde was wroth with Dya and smote him, because he put his hande chire, whose spere was lyke a beame of a we-

uer. And there chaunced yet agayne warre at Beth, where was a ma of a very long stature, with xliij. fingers & toes, fire on euery hande, and fire on euery foote, and was the sonne of Haraphah & defied Israel. And Jonathan the sonne of Samas Dauid's brother, slew hym.
These were boine of Haraphah at Beth, and were ouerthrowen by the hand of Dauid, and of his seruantes.

The people are punished with pestilence, because Dauid caused them to be nombred: so that there dyed thye scoze and ten thousande men.

CAPL. XXI.

Ad Satan rode by agayn Israel, and perswaded Dauid to nombre Israel.
And Dauid sayd to Joab and the rulers of the people: go ye and nombre Israel from Bersabe to Dan, & bynge it to me, that I may knowe the nombre of them. And Joab answered: the Lord make thy people an hundred thysen, as they are. But my loyde kyng, are they not all my loydes seruantes?
why then dothe my loyde requyre this thyng?
why woulde my loyde be a cause of trespase to Israel?

Neuerthelesse the kynges wordes preuailed agayn Joab. And Joab toke his way & went thorow out all Israel, and came to Jerusalem and gaue the nombre of the count of people vnto Dauid. And all Israel were in nombre a thousand thousande, & an hundred thousande men that dyewe swerde: and Juda was foure hundred and thye scoze and ten thousande men that dyewe swerde. But the Leuites and Ben-Jamin he counted not amonge them. For the kynges herte seined abominable to Joab, and the Lord was displeased with this thyng, and smote Israel. Then sayde Dauid to Gad: I haue sinned exceedingly in doyng this thyng.
Neuerthelesse yet doo awaye the wickednesse of thy seruant, for I haue done aboute me:
sute soyls.

Gad the Lord spake vnto Gad Dauid's sear of vnyons, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid sayinge: Thus saythe the Lord: I geue the
the choyle of thye thynges: chose the one of them, that I may do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: Thus saythe the Lord: Chose the, either thye peres samplement, or thye monethes to be consumed of thye aduerfaries, the swerde of thine enemies ouertakeinge the: or els the swerde of the Lord thye dayes and pestilence in the lande, the aungell of the Lord destroyng the cow out all the colles of Israel. And nowe aryste thye selfe what woyle I wyl byng agayn to hym that sent me. And Dauid said to Gad, I am in exceedinge strenghtes. But let me fall in to the handes of the Lord: for passyng gerate is his mercey, and let me not fall in to the handes of men.

And the Lord sente pestilence vpon all Israel, so that there were ouerthrowen of Israel thye scoze and ten thousande men. And God sente the aungell to Jerusalem to destroye it.

And as he was aboute to destroye, the Lord beheld, and had compassion on the wickednesse, and sayde to the aungell that destroye, it is ynoughe, now cease thye hande. And the aungell of the Lord stode by the thersyng floore of Oman the Jebusite. And Dauid left vp his eyes, and sawe the aungell of the Lord stand betwene the erth and heauen with a dyuyn sword in his hand, stretched out towarde Jerusalem. Then fel Dauid and the eldes of Israel clothed in sacke vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded to nombre the people? And I am he that haue synned and done euill in dede. But what haue these thepe done? let thye herte therefore, O Lord God, be on me and on my fathers house, and not on thy people to destroye
them.

And the aungell commanded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shoulde goo and erect an altier vnto the Lord in the thersyng floore of Oman the Jebusite. And Dauid wente at the sayng of Gad, whiche spake in the name of the Lord. And Oman towarde aboute, and sawe the aungell, and his son-nes with hym, and hyde them selfe in the Oman was thersyng where. And Dauid came to Oman. And when Oman looked sawe Dauid, he wente out of the thersyng floore and bowed hym self to Dauid, whiche sate to the grounde.

And Dauid sayde to Oman: gyue me the place of the thersyng floore, that I may bryde an altier therin vnto the Lord. Let me haue it for as moche money as it is worth.
That the place maye rease frome the people.
And Oman sayde to Dauid: take it to thy selfe, and let my loyde kyng do what seemeth good in his eyes. So I geue the oxen for a burnt offering, and the thersyng: sheares for woyle, and whiche soe meate offeringe: I geue it all.
But kyng Dauid sayde to Oman: not so, but I wyl be it for as moche money as it is worthe. I wyl not take that whiche is thy for the Lord, and offre burnt offerings wyoute coile.

And so Dauid gaue to Oman for the place spres of golde fyve hundred by wyght. And Dauid bryde there an altier vnto the Lord, and offered burnt offerings and prayngs, and called vnto the Lord, and he dyde hym frome heauen in fyre vpon the altier of burnt offeringe. And the Lord commaunded the aungell to put vp his swerde agayn in to the sheathe of it. At that tyme whiche Dauid sawe that the Lord had herd hym in the thersyng floore of Oman the Jebusite, he dyde to erect there for the tabernacle of the Lord: whiche Moyses made in the wyldernes, and the arcer of burnt offeringe, were at that season in the hyl at Sabaon. And Dauid coulde not goo before it to seke God, because he was seerde of the swerde of the aungell of the Lord.
And Dauid sayde: This is the house of the Lord God, and this is the burnt offering altier for Israel.

Com

Dauid wylth his sonne Salomon to bryde the temple of the Lord: whiche thyng he hym selfe was forbydden to do.

CAPL. XXII.

Ad Dauid commaunded to gather the maungers that were in the lande of Israel, and let betwene to bewe stone, to bryde the house of God. And Dauid prepared plenty of yron for nayles to the dores of the gates, and to loyne with all, and aboute dunage of byssle without wyght, and of Le-banites without nombre. For the Zions & they of Ier brought moche Cedar woode to Dauid. For Dauid thus thought, Salomon my sonne is young and tender, and the house that is to be bryde for the Lord, muste excede in greatnesse, that it maye be spoken of and prayled in al landes. I wyl therefore make ordinance for it. And so Dauid made grete provision before his death.

And he called Salomon his sonne and charged hym to bryde an house for the Lord God of Israel: And Dauid sayde to Salomon: I my sonne, I hadde in myne hert to bryde an house vnto the name of the Lord my God.
But the woyle of the Lord came to me say-ng: thou hast shed moche bloude, and hast made many battelles. Thou shalt not bryde an house for my name, for as moche as thou hast shed so moche bloude to the earthe in my fight. Whiche a sonne shal be boine the, whiche shal be a man of reffe, for I wyl geue hym rest home all his ennemyes roundabout. And his name shal be Salomon: for I wyl send rest and peas vpon Israel in his dayes. He shall bryde an house for my name, & he shal be my sonne, and I wyl be his father, and wyl stablye the seate of his kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. Nowe my sonne, the Lord be with the, that thou mayst prosper & bryde the house of the Lord thy God, as he hath sayde of the. And the Lord geue the wysdom and vnderstandinge, and make the gouernour of Israel, and to kepe the lawe of the Lord thy God. For then thou shalt prosper: If thou shalt be diligent to do the ordinaunces and lawes whiche the Lord charged Moyses with, to deliuer to Israel. Plucke by thyne belt and be stronge, dyde not noy be discouraged. Beholde in myne aduersite I haue prepared for the house of the Lord an hundred thousand talents of gold, and a thousand thousand talents of siluer, and as for byssle & yron it can not be nombred, it is so moche. And I haue prepared tymber and stone, & thou shalt proude more therco. Moreover thou shalt take to woyle in stone and tymber, and al mater of wyse men for whatsoeuer woyle it be.
And of golde siluer, byssle and yron there is no nombre. Aryste therefore and set vpon it, & the Lord shal be with the.

And Dauid commaunded al the Lordes of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne sayng, Is not the Lord your God with you? and shal he not geue you rest on euery syde? for he hath gyuen thynhabitauntes of the lande into myne hande, and the land is subdued be-foze the Lord and befoze his people. Nowe therefore set youre hertes and youre soules, to seke the Lord your God. And aryste & bryde ye the temple of the Lord God, to bynge the arcke of the couenant of the Lord, and the holly vesselles of God into the house to bryde for the name of the Lord.

Dauid beinge olde ordeyneth Salomon kyng.
he causeth the Leuites to be nombred, and assigneth them to their offices.

CAP. XXIII.

Ad when Dauid was olde and streken in yeres, he made Salomon his sonne kyng ouer Israel. And then he gathered together al the Lordes of Israel with the prelats and the Leuites. And the Leuites were nombred frome. xxx. yere and aboute, and the tale of theym in men polle by polle was.
xxviii. thousand. Of whiche. xxiii. thousande were ict to further the woyle of the house of the Lord. And six thousande were officers & iudges. Foure thousand were porters & foure thousand prayled the Lord with such instrumentes as Dauid had made to prayse with.
And Dauid put an ordie amonge the chyldren of Leui: Gerson, Sahath and Merari: Of Gersonites was Laadan & Semel. The son-nes of Laadan: the chief was Jehiel, & then Zethan and Joel, thye. The sonnes of Semel Salomich, Haziel, and Haran, thye. These were the auncient heddes of Laadan. And the sonnes of Semel were also Jahath, Zinab, Jaus and Bariah: these foure were the son-nes of Semel. And Jahath was the chief, Zenah the seconde. But Jaus and Bariah hadde not many sonnes, and therefore they were re-kened for one auncient household.

The sonnes of Sahath: Amram, Isachar, Hebron and Uziel, foure. * The sonnes of Merari: Aaron and Moser. And Aaron was appointed to consecrate in the place most holy with his sonnes for euer: and to burne the offyringes before the Lord, and to minisler, and to blesse in his name for euer. And the chyld of Moser the man of God, were named with the name of Leui. The sonnes of Moser: Ge-son and Elizer. And of the sonnes of Gerson: Sahael was the chief. The sonnes of Eliezer: Kohathiah the chief. And Elizer hadde none other sonnes: But the sonnes of Kohathiah were verie many. And of the sonnes of Isachar: Salomi, the chief. The sonnes of Hebron: Jeriah the first, Amariah the seidd Jahaziel the thrid and Jeramaam the fourth.
The sonnes of Uziel: Shuah the first and Je-rah the second. The sonnes of Merari: Sahali: and Shufi. The sonnes of Jahath: Eleazar and Lis. And Eleazar dyed and had no sonnes, but doughters onely, and their brie-thers the sonnes of Lis toke them. The son-nes of Moser: Jahath, Elzer, and Jerumith, thye. These are the chyldren of Leui in the holdes of their fathers the auncient heddes, of the Lorde, vnto the bande of Zebuliel the Gersonite. And the people reioyced that they were so willinge: for with a pure herte they were willinge vnto the Lorde, And thereto Dauid the kyng reioyced with grete gladnesse.

 And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregation and sayde: Blessed arte thou Lorde God of Israel oure father, for euer & euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse, power glorie, victorie, and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in erthe is thine and thine is the kyngdome (O Lorde) and thou arte lyfte vp an hee above all. Wherfore and honoure come of the, and thou raggest ouer all and in thine bande is power and strengthe, and in thine bande it is to make great & to geue strengthe vnto all. And nowe oure God, we thanke the, and prayse thy gloriouse name. For what am I? and what is my people? that we shuld obtayne strengthe to be so willinge? But all is of the, and of that we receyued of thine bande we haue geue the. For we be but strangers before the and tenants, as were all oure fathers. Dure dayes on the erthe is but a shadowe, and there is none abydinge. O Lorde oure God, al this heape that we haue prepared to buyde the an house for thy holy name, cometh of thine bande, and is al thine.

I wrote my God, that thou prouest the herte and hast pleasure in playne. And in playne of myne herte I haue willinge geuen all this. And now I se thy people whiche are here in gladnesse to offer willinge to the. O Lorde God of Abraham / Isaac and of Israel oure fathers, kepe this for euer in the ymaginacion of the thoughtes of the herte of thy people, and prepare theyr hertes vnto the.
 And geue vnto Salomon my sonne / a pure herte to kepe my commaundementes / thy testimonyes and thine ordynances / and to do all / & to buyde the house which I entended.

And Dauid sayde to all the congregacion:
 blessed be the Lorde your God. And all the congregation blessed the Lorde God of theyr fathers / and stomped and bowed them selues vnto the Lorde and to the kyng. And they offered offerenges vnto the Lorde. And on the morrowe after the sayd daye / they offered in burntofferenges vnto the Lorde a thousand oxen / a thousande rammes and a thousande lam mes with theyr bypokesofferenges. And they sue plenteouslye thowmoure all Israel and dyd eate and drynke before the Lorde the same day with grete gladnesse. And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauid kyng the second tyme, and anointed him vnto the Lorde to be ruler, and Zadocke to be the priest.

 And so Salomō came on the seate of the Lorde and was kyng for Dauid his father, and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. And al the Lordes and men of power, and all the sonnes of kyng Dauid submitted them selues before kyng Salomon. And the Lorde magnified Salomon on hygh in the sight of all Israel, and gaue him so gloriouse a kyngdome as none of all that were kynges before in Israel had. Now Dauid the sonne of Isha-borach ouer all Israel. And the space he reigned ouer Israel was fouertie yere: seuen yere in Hebron and xxxij. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyed in a good age: olde, ryche and glorious: And Salomon his sonne reigned in his steade. The actes of Dauid

The offerenge of Salomon in the hyllaulter at Gabaon, where he receyued an aunswere of God what wisdom shuld be geuen hym with the number of his charrettes and hoysmen.

CAP.

I.

And Salomon the
 sonne of Dauid wared
 stronge in his kyngdom
 and the Lorde his God
 was with him & auaunced him on hygh. And Salomon comened to all Israel, the capitaynes ouer thousandes & hundredes the iudges and al other lordes and ancient iudges thowmoure out all Israel. And so Salomon and all the congregacion with him went to the hyllaulter of Gabaon: for there was the tabernacle of the wyrtnesse of God, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde made in the wyldernesse. But the Arcke of God had Dauid brought frome Rachiach Jarim, in to the place he hadde prepared for it.
 Where he had pyched a tent for it euen at Jerusalem. Moreover the brassen aulter that Bieleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur had made, was at Gabaon also, before the tabernacle of the Lorde. And Salomon and the congregacion went to byset it. And Salomon offered there before the Lorde vpon the brassen aulter that was by the tabernacle of wit-nesse, a thousande burntofferenges. And the same night God appeared vnto Salomon and sayd to him: aske what thou wilt I geue the. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercy vnto Dauid my father, and hast made me kyng in his steade: & now Lorde God let thy promise vnto Dauid my father be true for thou hast made me kyng ouer a people lyke the dust of the earth in multitude. Where fore geue me wysdome and knowlege howe to behaue my selfe vnto this people: for who is able to iudge this people that is so great?

Then God sayde to Salomō, because thou hast desired this in thine herte, and dydest not aske treasure and rychesse, honoure and the lures of thine enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysdome and knowlege, to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made the kyng: wysdome and knowlege shalbe geuen the, &
 I will geue the treasure, rychesse, and glorie also, that amonge the kynges before the or after the, none was or shalbe lyke the. And so Sa-lomō came frome the hyllaulter that was at Gabaon to Jerusalem frome the tabernacle of wyrtnesse and ragged at Jerusalem. And Sa-lomō gathered charrettes & hoysmen so that he had a thousande and four hundred charettes, and twelue thousande hoysmen, whiche he bestowed in the charret rytes and aboute the citye of Jerusalem. And the kyng made siluer and golde at Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plente as the mulberry trees that growe in the valeys. And the hoyses whiche Salomon hadde, were brought him out of Egypte frome Reua. The kynges marchantes set them out at Reua at a pyce.

 They came and brought out of Egypte a cha-ret for fyre hundred lyces, and an hoys for an hundred and lxxij. And so brought they to all the kynges of the Heebites and to the kynges of Siria thowmoure the handes of the sayd mar-chautes.

Salomon sendeth to Hiram the kyng of Tyre for wood and woysmen.

CAP.

II.

And Salomon determined to buyde an house for the name of the Lorde, & an house for his kyngdome: and tolde out the scoze and ten thousand men to beate bu-dens and foure scoze thousand to hewe in the mountayne, and the thousande and fyre hundred to ouerle them.

* And Salomon sente to Hiram kyng of Tyre sayenge: As thou dydest deale with Da-uid my father and dydest sende him Cedar woodde, to buyde him an house to dwell in, euen so deale with me now: that I may buyde an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to consecrate it to him to burne swete obores
 and to set the tabernacle before him perpetually, & for burnt sacrifice morninge and euenyng, & on the Saboth dayes, and the first daye of eue-ry new moone, and in the solemne feastes of the Lorde our God, so to continew euer in Israel.
 And the house whiche I buyde is grete: for great is our God above all goddes: So that who can be able to buyde him an house: whiche that heauen, neyther heauen above all hea-uens is able to receyue him, what am I then that I shoulde buyde him an house: naye, but to burne sacrifice before him: sende me nowe therfore a connyng man to worke in golde, siluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, cremolyn, and Jacint coloure, and that can shyll to graue, to be to the connyng men that are with me in Iuda and Jerusalem, whiche Dauid my father dyd prepare. And sende me also Cedar trees, fyre trees and * Algumie trees out of Libanon.

For I wrote well to thy seruantes can shyll to hewe tymber in Libanon. And loo, my men shalbe with thine, that they may prepare me tymber ynough. For the house whiche I buyde is grete and wonderfull. And behalde, I sente for thy seruantes the cutters and hewers of tymber twenty thousande quarters of where,
 and twenty thousande quarters of barlepe, and twenty thousande bathes of wyne, and twenty thousand bathes of oyle.

And Hiram kyng of Tyre answered in wyse tyng and sent to Salomon: because the Lorde souer his people, he hath made the kinge ouer them. And Hiram sayd mozeouer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, whiche hath made both heuen and erth, that he hath geuen Dauid the kyng a wyse sonne & hath discretion and vnderstandynge, to buyde an house for the Lorde, and an orger for his kingdome. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man and a man of vnderstandynge called Hiram Abi, is the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan (howe be it his father was a Tyrian) and he can bylle to worke in golde, syluer, brasse, pyron, stone, tymber, scarlet, Jacinct, vyle, and cremosin: and graue all maner of grauings, and to fynde all maner softe wyke that shal-

be set before hym, with thy cunningge men, with the cunningge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. And nowe the wheat, barley, oyle and wyne whiche my Lorde hath sayde, lette him sende his seruantes. And we wyll cutte wood out of Libane, as moche as thou shalt nede and wyll bypnyge it to the in pyppes, by see to port Jabo: and thence thou mayst caree them to Jerusalem. And Salomon numbered all the skauengers that were in the lande of Israel, after the tyme his father Dauid had numbered them. And they were founde an hundred and. lxx. thousande and sixe hundred.
And he set. lxx. thousande of them to beare burdens, and. lxx. thousande to be in the mountaynes, and the thousande and sixe hundred to encourage and to set the people a worke.

The temple of the Lorde an the porche are buyl-ded with oger thynges thereto belongynge.

III.

II. Reg. vii. a

Then Salomon began to buyde his house of the Lorde, at Jerusalem, in mounte Sion, which was shewed Dauid his father when he prepared a place in the thirde kinge house of Dinnan the Jebusite. And he began to buyde the seconde daye of the seconde moneth, the fourethe yere of his regne. And this is the foundation of Salomon in buyldinge the house of God. The length was thye score cubites after the old cubite, & the bredth xx. And the porche at the ende was as large as the house brede twenty cubites: & the height was an hundred and twenty cubites. And he ouerlaid it on the pinner syde with pure gold.
And the great house he fyled with fere tre, and ouerlaid it with good golde, & trachel, & cyto palmietrees & cheynes foldeinge in with lyches. And he paved the house with precious marbell goodly. And it was gold of Adraman. And he ouerlaid the house: both beames, postes, walles and doores with golde, and gaue cherubes vpon the walles.
And he made the house most holpe, whose length was twenty cubites lyke to the bredth of the house, and the bredth thereof was also twenty cubites. And he ouerlaid it with the best golde, that was to the somme of sixe hundred talents, he made also nayles of golde, &

the wayght of euery nayle of golde was cytyles. And he ouerlaid the upper chambers with golde.

And he made in the house most holpe two cherubes of Image worke, and gylde them with golde. And the wynges of the cherubes were twenty cubites longe. The one wyng was fyue cubites and touched the wal of the house, and the other wyng was lyke wyse. & cubites and touched the wyng of the other cherub. And the one wyng of the other cherub was fyue cubites, and touched the wall of the house, and the other wyng was fyue cubites also, and reached to the wyng of the other cherub. So that the wynges of the cherubes raught twenty cubites. And they stode on their fete and looked inwarde. And he made a foye hangynge of Jacincte colour, of scarlet, cremosine and vyle: and caused cherubes to be boudered thereon. And he made foze the house two pylles of. xxx. cubites longe. And the hed that was aboue on the top of one of them was. v. cubites. And he made suche chapnes as was in the quere, & put them on the heedes of the pylles, and made in the pylles pomegranates, and put them on the pylles. And he reed by the pylles before the ple: one on the right hande and an other on lefte, and called the right Jachin and the left Boaz.

The aulter of brasse, the ster, the vessels to worke with, the candlestyches, &c.

CAPL.

IIII.

And he made an aulter of brasse. xx. cubites longe and. xx. cubites brade and cubites hygh. And he cast a byle in of ten cubites from bym to bym, and round in compase and fyue cubites hygh: and a lyne of thirty cubites might haue compassed it about. And the lykenes of oxen byd compas it round about under it: that is to wete, thre rowes of oxen cast whiche when it was cast byd compase that see which was ten cubites wyde, round about. And it stode also byd. & oxen: of which thye looked North, thye West, thye South, and thye East, and the fete byd them aboue an hygh, and the byndes pader of them inward. And the thickest of it was hande brede, and the bym lyke the bym of a cup, with floures of lyles. And it was helde the thousand bathes.

And he made ten launces: and put fyue on the right hande and fyue on the left, to walke
in. And in them they thrust the fleshy of the offerings. But the see was for the pyllers, to walke in. And he made ten candlestyches of golde in their facyons, and put them in the temple: fyue on the right hande and fyue on the left. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the right hande and fyue on the left. And he made an hundred lens of golde. And he made the court of the pyllers, and the greare court and doores to the pyllers, and ouerlaid the doores of them, with brasse.

brasse. And he set the see in the right hande of the court, towarde the south. And Hiram made pyllers, thowelles and basens.

And Hiram spakke the worke he made for Salomon vnto the temple of God:
The two pylles with their scalpes of & two brasses that were on the toppes of the pylles and the two wynges to couer the two scal-pes of the heedes that were on the toppes of the pylles: and foure hundred pomegranates for the two wynges, two rowes of pomegranates for euery wyng, to couer the two scal-pes of the heedes that were on the pylles.
And he made doctomes, and launces vpon the bottomes: and the see with thre oxen under
it. And thre postes, thowelles, & the hokes, and all their vessels vnto Hiram Abi make for Salomon for the house of the Lorde, of brasse. In the playne of Jordan dyd he cast them, in the thicke earth, betwene Socoth and Zeredatha. And made of all these vessels so myghty great abundance, that the wayght of brasse coulde not be reckened.

And Salomon made all the vessels that pertaine to the house of God: the golden aulter and the tables with the shewbread vpon the tablestyches with their lampes to burne after the maner before the quere, and that of pure gold, and the floures and the lampes, & the molters were golde, and that perfect golde:
and the dysynge knyues, basens, spones and crises of pure gold. And the pinner wyse of the place most holpe, and the wyse of the temple were golde. And thus was all the worke of Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fyue.

And when the worke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was fynished: then Salomon broughte in the gyftes & bycate by Dauid his father, the siluer and the gold and all the iewels, and put them amonge the treasure of the house of God.

The thre houses and the Arcke were put in the temple, the glorie of the Lorde fylled the temple.

CAPL.

V.

Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israel together and all the heedes of the tribes and ancient Lorde amonge the children of Israel, vnto Jerusalem: to bypnyge the Arcke of the couenante of the Lorde forth of the cyte of Dauid which is Zion. And all the men of Israel resorted vnto the kyng in the fead of the seuenth moneth. And when all the elders of Israel were come, the Leuites toke by the Arcke, and the preestes and the Le-uites broughte away the Arcke and the tabernacle of wynter, and all the holpe vessels that were in the tabernacle. And kyng Salomon and all the congregation of Israel that were assembled vnto him before the Arcke, of freshe wyse and oxen, so many that they coulde not be told or numbered for multitude. And the Leuites broughte the Arcke of the apoyntment of the Lorde vnto his place in the quere of the temple and place most holpe: euen vnder the wynges of the cherubes, that the cherubes stretched out their wynges ouer the place of the Arcke and couered the Arcke and her floures aboue on hygh. And the floures of the Arcke, were so longe, that they were sene a lytle before the quere, but not sene withoute. And there it remaineth vnto this daye. And yowere there was nothinge in the Arcke save the two tables whiche Moyses put therein at Horeb, whiche the Lorde had wyrtten to the children of Israel, after their comynge forth frome Egypte. And when the preestes were come oute of the holy place (for all the preestes that were founde there sanctified theym selues and byd not as yet at that tyme wyrtten by course) But the Leuites euery one of them that were vnder Alaph, Heman and Iduthun, and amonge their children & brethren, were arrayed in byse and fange with Simbales, psalteries & har-pes standynge east frome the aulter, and with them an hundred & twenty preestes blowynge trumpettes. And the trumpet blowers and the fingers so agreed, that it seemed but one voyce in prayynge and thankyng the Lorde. And as the voyce of the trumpettes, symbales and instrumentes of melody arose, & as they praysed the Lorde, that he was good and that his mercy lasteth euer, the house of the Lorde was fylled with a cloude: so that the preestes coulde not endure to minister by reason of the cloude.

For the glorie of the Lorde hadde fylled the house of God.

The wordes of Salomon to the people, and the prayer he made to God.

CAPL.

VI.

Then Salomon sayde: The Lorde hath spoken, that he wyll dwell in darknesse.
And I haue buyt an habitation for the Lorde, and a place to dwell in for euer. And the kyng turned his face and blessed the hole congregation of Israel, and all the congregation of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel whiche spake with his mouthe to my father Dauid & hath fulfilled it with his handes, for God sayde: sythens the tyme I brought my people oute of the lande of Egypte, I chose no cyte amonge all the tribes of Israel to buyde an house in, that my name myght be there, neyther chose I anye man to be a ruler ouer my people Israel. But nowe I haue chosen Jerusalem to haue my name there, and haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Israel.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buyde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel: But the Lorde sayd to Dauid my father: for as moche as it was in thyne herte, to buyde an house for my name, thou dydest well: that thou haddest it in thyne herte. Not withstandinge thou shalt not buyde the house, but thy sonne which shall issue out of thy loynes, he shall buyde an house for my name. And the Lorde hath made good his sayenge.

sayenge that he hadde spoken. For I arose in the rowme of David my father, and sat on the seate of Israel, as the Lord promysed, & have built an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And therein I have put & sette the ark of the covenant of the Lord made with the children of Israel, is. And he sette forth the before the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and strected out his handes, for Salomon had made a brasen pulpit of fyue cubytes longe and v. cubytes broade, and thre of heyght, and had set it in the myddes of the great court, vpon þe hept and kneled wþone vpon his knees before all the congregation of Israel, and strected out his handes to heuē and sayd: Lord God of Israel there is no God lyke the ether in heuē or in earth, which kepeth couenaunt and sheweth mercy vnto thy seruantes, that walke before the with all their hartes. Whiche had kept with David my father that thou promysedst him: thou saydest it in thy mouth and hast fulfilled it with thyne hand, as it is to se this daye.

Now Lord God of Israel kepe with thy seruante David my father, what thou promysedst him sayenge: *thou shalt not be without one or other in my sight that shall sit vpon the seate of Israel, vpon this condicion yet, if thy children will take hede to thy wordes so walke in my law, as thou hast walked before me. Now Lord God of Israel let thy saying be true, whiche thou saydest vnto thy seruante David. How be it in veyr dede, & God dwel with man on earth? Beholde, neyther heuē or heuē above all heuēns is habite to contrayne the: how shuld the house then whiche I haue built for the to it? But turne to þe prayer of thy seruante and to his supplicatiō (O Lord my God) to hearken vnto thy voyce and praye which thy seruante maketh before the. That thyne eyes be open ouer this house daye and night, and ouer the place of whiche thou hast sayde, that thou wouldest put thy name there: to hearken vnto the prayer which thy seruante prayeth at this place: heke the fore vnto the prayers of thy seruante and of thy people Israel, whiche they praye in this place. But heare thou it out of thy dwelling place heuē: and when thou hearest it be mercifull. * If a man synne against his neyghbour, & an adiuration be layde to his charge, to aduise him with all, and the adiuration come before thyne altar in this house: then heare thou from heuē, and make a iudge thy seruantes, that thou rewarde the euill, and bringe his waye vpon his heed, and iustifye the righteous, and geue him according to his righte mynne.

Lykewyle if thy people Israel be put to þe wyse before their enemyes, because they haue synned against the: yet if they turne & confesse thy name, and make intercession and praye before the in this house: the heare thou from heuē and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bringe them agayne vnto the land which thou gauest to them and to their fathers.

If heuē be shut vp, & there be no rayne, because they haue synned against the: yet if they praye at this place and confesse thy name and turne from their synnes at thy dwelling place, then heare thou from heuē and be mercifull vnto the synne of thy seruantes and of thy people Israel, that thou wouldest that a good waye to walke in, and sende earne vpon the lande which thou hast gyven vnto thy people for an heritage.

If there chaunce darthe in the lande, pestilence, drought, or myldew, or caterpillers, or that their enemyes besyge them in the cyties of their owne land, or hitte so euēr plage or sicknesse it be. Then all the supplications and prayers that shall be made of all men amonge all thy people Israel, whiche shall knowe euery man his owne synne and his owne grefe, and shall strecte out their handes towarde this house: thou shalt heare from heuē thy dwelling place, and thou shalt be mercifull, and geue euery man according vnto all his waye, euen as thou shalt knowe euery mans heere: for thou onely knowest the heertes of the chyld of Adam: that they feare the and walke in thy wordes as long as they lyue vpon the earth, which thou gauest to our fathers.

Whoeuer a stranger whiche is not of thy people Israel, if he come from a farr land for thy great names sake & thy myghty dede and strected out arme, and so come and pray at this house: thou shalt heare him from heuē thy dwelling place, and shalt thou accorde to all that the stranger calleth to the: for that all the nacions of the earth may know thy name, and feare the, as woth thy people Israel: and that it may be known that the house which I haue built, is called after thy name.

When thy people shall go out to fght against their enemyes & say þe thou shalt helpe them: yet if they praye to the, the praye towarde this cytie whiche thou hast chosen, and thou whiche I haue built for thy name: then thou shalt heare from heuē, their supplication and praye, and helpe them in their right.

If they shall synne against the (as thou no man but that be shall synne) and thou shalt angre with them and deliue them to their enemyes, and they leade them awaye captiue vnto a lande farr or neare, yet if they remember to come to thee agayne in the lande, whiche thou shalt be in captiue, and turne and praye vnto the in the lande where they be in captiue, for that we haue synned and haue done euill and be heeld, and turne agayne to the, with all their hartes, & all their soules, in the lande of their captiue where they be kept in bondage, and so praye towarde their lande which thou gauest vnto their fathers, and cytie whiche they haue chosen, and to this house whiche I haue built for thy name: then thou shalt heare from heuē thy dwelling place, their supplication and praye, and iudge their cause, and be mercifull to thy people, though they haue synned against the.

So now my God let thyne eyes be open and thine eyes attend vnto the prayers made in this place. And now therefore aryse Lord God in thy resting place: both thou and the ark of thy strength, and let thy prelates put on victory and thy sayntes reioyse in goodness. And Lord God turne not away the face of thyne anoynted: But remember the mercies shewed to David thy seruant.

The fyue condicions the sacrifice. The Lord ap-peareth to Salomon the seconde tyme.

CAPL.

VII.

When Salomō had made an ende of prayenge, there came downe fyre from heuē and consumed the burnt offering and the sacrifices. And the glory of the Lord appeared vnto the house: that the prelates coulde not go into the house of the Lord, because the glory of the Lord had filled the house of the Lord. And all the children of Israel sawe howe the fyre came downe, and the glory of the Lord vpon the house, and stouped with their faces to the earth vpon the pavement and bowed them selues, and confessed vnto the Lord, that he was good, and that his mercy lasted

And the kynge and all the people offered offerings before the Lord. So that kynge Salomon offered. xij. thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand shepe. And so the kynge and all the people halowed the house of God. And the prelates waited on their offices and the Levites with instruments of musyke as the Lord whiche kynge David made to enseele vnto the Lord that his mercy lasteth euer, when David gaue prayse vnto the Lord his handes. And the prelates blew trumpettes fast by them: and all Israel rode. Whoeuer Salomon halowed the myddle of the court that was before the Lord: for there he offered burnt offerings and the fat of the peace offerings, because the brasen altar which Salomō had made, was not habite to receyue þe burnt offerings and the meat offerings and the fat.

And Salomon kept a feast the same season of seven dayes, and all Israel with him, an exceeding great congregation, euen from Egypte vnto the ryue of Egypte. And þe eighth daye they made a gathering. For they kept the halowynge of the altar seven dayes and the feast seven dayes. And the xxiij. daye of þe seventh moneth, he let the people departe into their tentes, glad and mery in hart for the goodnes that the Lord had shewed to David, to Salomon and to Israel his people.

And so Salomon synched the house of the Lord, and the kynge's house, and all that came in his daye, to make in the house of the Lord and in his owne house, and that profprouly.

And the Lord appeared to Salomon by nyght and sayde to him: I haue herde thy prayer and haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an house of sacrifice. Whoeuer þe I that be in heuē that there be no rayne, or if I commaunde the grasshoppers to deuoure the lande or if I sende pestilence amonge my people: yet if my people that are named after my name, shall humble them selues and make intercession and seke my presence, and turne from their wycked wayes, then will I heare from heuē and be mercifull to their synnes, and will heale their lade. Furthermore myne eyes shall be open and myne eares attend vnto the prayers made in this place. And finally I haue chosen & sanctified this house, that my name be there for euer, and myne eyes & myne heere shall be there perpetually.

And if thou shalt walke before me as David thy father walked, to do according to all that I haue commaunded, and shalt kepe myne ordinaunces and my lawes: then I will stablyshe the seat of the kyngdome, according to the couenaunt I made with David thy father sayenge: * Thou shalt haue euer one or other that shall rule in Israel. But if thou turne away and forsake myne ordinaunces and my commandementes whiche I haue set before you, and shalt go and serue other goddes and bowe your selues to them: then will I plucke them by the rootes out of my lande whiche I haue gyven them, and will cast this house which I haue sanctified for my name out of my sight, and will make a prouerbe and a tale of it amonge all nacions. And this house that is so hygge, shall be a wonder to all that passeth thereby, that they shall say: Why hath the Lord dealt on it in this fasson with this land and with this house? And it shall be answered them, because they forsake the Lord God of their fathers whiche brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and claue to other goddes, and bowed to them and serued them: and therefore brought he on them all this euill.

The cyties that Salomon built after the house of God was synched.

CAPL.

VIII.

After twenty yeres when Salomō had built the house of the Lord, and his owne house: he built the cyties that Hiram gaue him, and put certayne of the chyldren of Israel in them. And Salomon wente to Hiram Tyber and strengthened it. And he built Thadmor in the tyberne and all þe cyties whiche he built in Tyberne. And he built Beethoron the hyper and Beethoron the nether, and made them strong cyties with walles, gates and barres. And Hazath and all the strong cyties that Salomon had, and all the charret cyties and the cyties of horsemen. & all that Salomon had lust to build in Jerusalem and Libanon, and thowout all the lande of his domination.

And all the people that were left of the he thires, Amorytes, Pherezites, Hivites and Jebusites, whiche were not of the children of Israel: euen the children of them, whiche were left after them in the lande, and were not consumed of the chyldren of Israel, by Salomō made make tributaries vnto this daye. But of the children of Israel dyd Salomō make no bdd-men in his worke: but they were men of war and rulers and greates Loztes with him, and capitaynes ouer his charrettes and horsemen. And kynge Salomons officers that ouersawe and ruled the people, were two hundred and fiftye.

And Salomō brought the daughter of Pharaon out of the cite of Dauid into the house he hadde made for her. For he sayde: my wyfe shall not dwell in the house of Dauid kynge of Israel, for it is holy, because the Arke of the Lozde came into it.

And frome thenceforth Salomon offered burntofferings vnto the Lozde on the altare of the Lozde whiche he hadde buyt before the porche to offer daye by daye accordinge to the commaundement of Moyses, and in the sabbotes and newmones, and the thre soleinne feastes of the yere, the feast of sweete bread, & feast of weekes and the feast of bootes.

And Salomon assigned the prelates euery man to his office as Dauid his father had ordered them, and the Leuites vnto their office, for to praye and minstre before the prelates daye by daye, and the porters by course at euery gate. For so hadde Dauid the man of God commaunded. And the commaundement of the kynge vnto the prelates and the Leuites concerninge what to eue cause it was, and concerninge the treasures, was not disobeyed.

And all the worke of Salomon went well forwarde euen frome the daye of the foundation of the house of the Lozde was sayde: tyll he had synched it, that the house of the Lozde was perfect. And then went kynge Salomon to Zion Gaber, and to Cloth and to the seas in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent him by the hande of his seruantes, whippes & seruantes that coude skill of the see: whiche went with the seruantes of Salomon to Ophir, and brought thence foure hundred and fiftye talentes of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

The communication of Salomon with the queene of Saba, and the giftes that she gaue the other. The deeth of Salomon: after whome succeeded Roboam.

CAP. I. IX.

AD the queene of Saba herde of the fame of Salomon and came to proue him with ryddelles at Jerusalem, with a very great compaign, and with camelles that bare swete shoures and plentye of golde and precious stone. And when she was come to Salomon, he communed with him of all that was in her herte. And Salomon sayde her all her questions, that there was nothinge hyd frome Salomon, whiche he tolde her not.

And when the queene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomon and the house that he hadde buyt, and the meat of his table and the sittinge of his seruantes, and the standinge of his maytens, and their apparell, and his buttelers with their apparell, and his pacher out of whiche he went into the house of the Lozde, she was so adonned that there was more herte in her.

And then she sayde to the kynge: the sayng whiche I herde in myne owne land, of thyne actes and of thy wysdome, is true. But I beleued not the wordes of them, until I came and mine eyes hadde sene it. And lo, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me: thou excedest the fame that I herde, happy art thy men, and happy are these thy seruantes whiche stande before the altare and heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lozde thy God whiche had lust to the, to make the, kynge on his seate, vnto the Lozde thy God. Because the God loued Israel, to make them continue euer, therefore made he the kynge ouer them to right and equite.

And she gaue the kynge an hundred and talentes of golde, and of swete shoures & dyngre great aboundance with precious stones, that there was no such swete shoures in the queene of Saba gaue kynge Salomon. And moreover the seruantes of Hiram and the seruantes of Salomon whiche brought golde frome Ophir, brought also a gume wood and precious stones. And the kynge made of the gume wood steeles in the house of the Lozde and in the kynges palace, & shoppes and psalteries for singers. And there was no such wood sene before in the lande of Iuda. And kynge Salomon gaue to the queene of Saba all her desire that she asked aboute that she brought vnto the kynge. And so she turned and went awaye to her owne land with her seruantes.

The somme of golde that came to Salomon yere by yere, was sixe hundred. talentes of golde, besides that toght chapman and marchautes broughte, and all the kynges of Arabia, and Dukes of countreys broughte golde and siluer to Salomon. And kynge Salomō made two hundred bekkas of golde. vi. hundred scyles of beten golde in a bekkas: and thre hundred scyles of beten golde, thre hundred scyles of golde in a bekkas, and he put them in the house of the Lozde of Libanon.

And the kynge made a great seate of Iuy and overlaid it with pure golde. And there were sixe steeppes to the seate with a footstall of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche syde of the sittinge place, and two lions standinge by the pomelles. And there was a roode on the one syde and on the other upon sixe steeppes, that there was no such in any kyngdome.

And all the byrnyng vessels of kynge Salomon were golde, and all the vessels of the house of the forest of Libanon, were pure golde, & as for siluer, it was counted nothinge worth in the dayes of Salomō. For the kynge's shippes went to Tharhis with the seruantes of Tharhis brought golde, siluer, the teeth of elephants apes and peccoches.

And kynge Salomon passed al the dayes of his

of the earthe in rycheesse and wysdome. And all the kynge of the earthe soughte the presence of Salomon, to heare the wysdome that God hadde put in his herte. And they brought euer man his presente in vessels of syluer, and vessels of golde, and rayment, & harness, swete shoures, horses and mules, yere by yere.

And Salomon had foure thousande manerers of horses and charrettes for them, and xij. thousande horsemen. And he bestowed them in the charret cytes, and with the kynge at Jerusalem. And he raygned ouer al the kynges from Euphrates, vnto the lande of the Philistines, and so to the borders of Egypt. And the king made syluer in Jerusalem as plentifulous as stones, and Cedar trees as plentifulous as the mulberry trees that grow in the valeys. And Salomon had horses brought him out of Egypt, and out of all landes.

The rest of the actes of kynge Salomon befor the synche and laste, are wyrtten in the booke of Ieremias the prophete, and in the prophesie of Ieremias the Sylonite, and in the bysons of Ieremias the sonne of Ieremias agaynst Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when Salomon had raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israel fouretyne yeres, he layde hym to rest with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

The folowynge of Roboam, and the deuyssion of Iherusalem.

CAP. I. X.

AD Roboam wente to Sichem: for to Sichem were all Israel come to make a new kynge. And when Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat beyng in Egypt herde it (for he was fled for feare of Salomon the kynge) he returned out of Egypt. And they sent and called him. And so Ieroboam and all Israel came and communed with Roboam and said. Thy father made vs a greuous yoke: but rectoure thou somewhat of the greuous seruyce of thy father, and of his heuie yoke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll serue the. And he sayde to them: come agayne after thre dayes to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Roboam counselled with the elders that stode before Salomon his father, whiche he sayde: What counsell geue ye me, to aunswere this people agayne? And they tolde him sayinge: if thou shalte be hard to this people and please them, and shalte speake lowngre wordes to them, they wyll be thy seruantes for euer. But he lette the counsell whiche the elders gaue him, and toke counsell with the younge men that were reared by with hym, and hadde stode in his chymere, and sayde to them: What aduise geue ye, that I may aunswere this people whiche haue communed with me, sayinge: Abate somewhat of the yoke whiche thy father dyd vpon vs.

And the younge men that were nourished by with hym, talked with him, sayinge: thus answered the people that spake to the, sayinge. Thy father made our yoke heuie: but make thou our yoke somewhat lightre. Thus wyse aunswere them: My litle synger shall be heuier then my fathers loynes. For where my father put a heuie yoke vpon you, I wyll put more thereto: & where my father chastised you with whippes, I wyll chastise you with scorpions. Nowe when Ieroboam and all Israel were come the thryde daye, as the kynge had sayde: come agayne to me the thryde daye. The kynge answered them cruelly: for kynge Roboam lette the counsell of the aged men, & answered them after the aduise of the younge men, sayinge: If my father haue made poure yoke greuous, I wyll adde thereto: and where my father chastised you with whippes, I wyll chastise you with scorpions. And so the kynge hardened not vnto the people: for the kynge was not of God, that the Lozde myghte make good his sayinge whiche he spake by the hande of Abiah the Sylonite to Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when all Israel saw that the kynge wolde not heare them, the people answered the kynge sayinge: what part haue we with Dauid, or enheritaunce with the son of Iak: let euery ma of Israel go to his tent.

And nowe Dauid is to thynne owne house. And therupon all Israel gette them to thepentes: so that Roboam raygned ouer no mo of the children of Israel then dwelte in the cytes of Iuda. Then kynge Roboam sent to the Iherusalem that was ouer the tribute, and the children of Israel stoned him with stones that he dyed. But kynge Roboam made spede and gat him by to his charret to fle to Jerusalem. And so Israel departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

Roboam is forbydden to fyghe agaynst Ieroboam. He hath egypten wyues and thre scoye concubines: and by them egypt and twentye lonnes and thre scoye daughters.

CAP. I. XI.

AD when Roboam was come to Jerusalem, he gathered of the house of Dauid and Benjamin to the nombre of nyne scoye thousande choyse men of warre to fyghe with Israel: for to byng the kyngdome agayne to Roboam. But the wordes of the Lozde came to Semeriah the man of God, sayinge: speake vnto Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Iuda, and to all Israel that are in Iuda, and to Benjamin, and saye: thus sayth the Lozde. So not no fight with your byethen: but retourne euery man to his house: for this thinge is done of me. And they obeyed the wordes of the Lozde, and returned from gopnge agaynst Ieroboam.

And Roboam dwelte in Jerusalem & buyt stronge cytes in Iuda: as Bethlehchem, Etam, and Thichua: Bethzur, Socho, and Dolum: Beth, Marelah and Ziph: Aduraim, Lachis and Asrah: Zarah, Aialon, & Hebion. Which were the stronge cytes of Iuda, & Benjamin. And

And when he hadde repayed suche stronge cities, he put capitaynes in them, and soze of victuals, and of oyle, and of wyne. And he ordeyned in all cities wyldes and fortes, and made them exceeding stronge. And so Juda and Benjamin were vnder him.

And the prestes and the Levites that were in all Israel resorted to him oute of all theyr countres. So to moche that the Levites left their suburbs and possessions and came to Juda and Jerusalem: for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them oute from ministringe vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned him prestes of hyllaulters, bothe to syde beuyles, and also to the calves whiche he hadde made. And after them there came of al the tribes of Israel (such as their hertes moued them to like the Lorde God of Israel) to Jerusalem to offere vnto the Lorde God of their fathers, so they strenghted the kyngdom of Juda, and made Roboam the sonne of Salomon myghty these yeres long: for thre yere they walked in the waye of Dauid and Salomon.

And Roboam toke him Mahalath daughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wife: And Abisail the daughter of Eliab the sonne of Isai, whiche bare him chyldren: Isas, Samariah, & Zabam. And after her, he toke Maachab the daughter of Abialom, whiche bare him Abiab, Ethai, Ziza and Salumith. But Roboam loved Maachab the daughter of Abialom aboue all his other wyues & concubynes: for he toke eghtene his wyues, & thre score concubynes, and begate thre score daughters, and eght and twenty sonnes. And Roboam made Abiab the sonne of Maachab the chiefe ruler amonge his brethren, for to make him kyng. And he played a wyse parte, and scattered of al his chyldren thowout all the countreys of Juda and Benjamin in euery stronge cite. And he gaue them aboundaunce of vitayle, and asked many wyues.

¶ Selach kyng of Egypt robbed the temple of the Lorde. Roboam dyeth, and Abiab his sonne succeedeth him.

CAPL.

XII.

¶ And when Roboam had stablished the kyngdome and made it stronge he forsoke the same of the Lorde, and all Israel with him. * Wherfore the lyfte yere of kyng Roboam, Selach the kyng of Egypt came by agaynst Jerusalem: because they had trespassed agaynst the Lorde: with twelue hundred charettes, and thre score thousande horsemen. And the people were without number that came with him forth of Egypt, with them of Libia: and the Suthites, and the blackmoyses. And they toke the stronge cities that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalem.

¶ Then came Semciach the prophete to Roboam, and to the lordes of Juda that were gathered to Jerusalem for feare of Selach, & sayd to them: thus sayth the Lorde: Ye haue lefte me, and therefore will I leaue you, also in the handes of Selach. Wherupon the lordes of Israel and the kyng humbled them selues, and the Lorde is ryghteous. And when the Lorde sawe that they submitted them selues, the word of the Lorde came to Semciach, sayinge: I will not make them selues, and therefore I will not destroye them. But I will deliuer them somwhat, and my wrath shall not fall vpon Jerusalem. Neuerthelesse they shall be his seruantes, & knowe what difference is betwene my kyngdome and the seruyce of the kyngdomes of other landes. So Selach kyng of Egypt came to Jerusalem, & toke away the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kyngs house, and wher he toke all. And he toke also the wyldes of golde whiche Salomon made: In stede of whiche kyng Roboam made wyldes of brasse, and put them in the hyngg of the captaynes of his garde, whiche were in the gate of the kynges house. And as often as the kyng went to the house of the Lorde, the garde went and fet them, and brought them gayne vnto the garde chambre. And so whiche he humbled him self, the wyldes of the Lorde turned from him, and destroyed not all together. And moreover there were many good wyldes yet in Juda.

So kyng Roboam waxed myghty in Jerusalem and reigned. And Roboam was in and forty yeres olde when he was made kyng, and he reigned seuentene yeres in Jerusalem the cite whiche the Lorde had chosen oute of all the tribes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Maachab, an Ammonite. * And he dyd euill, for he prepared him herte to seke the Lorde. The actes of Roboam first and last, are written in the sayngs of Semciach the prophete, and of Achazaiar of belyons, so moche as they receyue the genealogie, and the perpetuall tyme that was betwene Roboam and Jeroboam: wherof they lyfe. And Roboam layd hym to slepe with his fathers, & was buried in the cite of Dauid, and Abiab his sonne reigned in his stede.

¶ The byrtowre of Abia agaynst Jeroboam.

CAPL.

XIII.

¶ The eghtenth yere of kyng Jeroboam began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, and he reigned thre yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Achizah, the daughter of Ariel of Gabaab. And there was battelle betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia made a battayle with an hoste of freghtynge men: four hundred thousande chosen men. And Jeroboam put in a reare to feghte agaynst hym, with eght hundred thousande peder men stronge.

And Abia stode by vpon Zemaraim in mount Ephraim, and sayd: Heare me thou Jeroboam and all Israel. Remember me to you to knowe that the Lorde God of Israel gaue the kyngdome of Israel to Dauid his chiefe: euen to hym and to his sonnes, with a fained couenaunt. But Jeroboam the sonne of Salomon, the sonne of Dauid rebelled agaynst the Lorde. And he gathered to hym lewde men and vnderlynges, and preuailed agaynst Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was yonge and tender hearted, and not stronge enoughe for them.

And now ye thynke to preuaile agaynst the kyngdome of the Lorde in the hande of the sonnes of Dauid, because ye be a grete multitude, and haue with you the golden calves whiche Jeroboam made you for goddes. And haue ye not caste oute the prestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Levites: and haue made you prestes lyke the nations of other landes: euen who so euer cometh and consecrateth his hande with an oxe, and seven lammes, the same is made prier to them that are no goddes.

But with vs is the Lorde our God whom we haue not forsaken: and the prestes of the sonnes of Aaron ministringe vnto the Lorde: and the Levites in offyce burninge vnto the Lorde euery moynge and euery euen burnt offeringes, & sweete incense: and the shewbread put in order vpon a pure table: and the candle styke of golde, with the lampes of the same, to be lyght euery euen. For we kepe the watch of the Lorde our God: But ye haue forsaken hym. Moreover, beholde, God is with vs in the towne ward, and his prestes and the wynged trompettes to crye alarum agaynst you. Jerchiden of Israel feghte not with the Lorde God of your fathers: for it will not preuaile with you. But for al that, Jeroboam hath men plyntly aboute to come beynde vpon them: and so they were before Juda, and the letters in wyte were beynde euen. And whiche Juda turned and sawe the battayle beynde and before, they cryed vnto the Lorde, and the prestes blew the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a shoute. And as the men of Juda shouted, God smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Abia and Juda. And the chyldren of Israel fledde before Juda: and the Lorde deliuered them in to the handes of Juda. And Abia and his people slew a grete slaughter of them: so that there were streken downe of Israel, fye hundred thousande chosen men. And so the chyldren of Israel were broughte vnto that tyme, and the chyldren of Juda staid, because they leaned vnto the Lorde God of theyr fathers. And Abia solowd after Jeroboam, and wanne certayne cityes from him: Bethel, with townes belonginge thereto: and Istanah with the townes that longed thereto: and Ephraim with her townes. And Jeroboam recovered not strengthe agayne in the dayes of Abia. At laste the Lorde plagued hym with dryghthe.

And Abia waxed myghty, and toke hym many wyues, and begat two and twenty sonnes, and thre daughters. The reue of the actes of Abia, and his wayes and demiges, are written in the byrtowre of the prophete Asa. And when Abia was layde to slepe with his fathers, they buried hym in the cite of Dauid. And Asa his son reigned in his stede.

¶ And Asa waxed myghty, and toke hym many wyues, and begat two and twenty sonnes, and thre daughters. The reue of the actes of Abia, and his wayes and demiges, are written in the byrtowre of the prophete Asa. And when Abia was layde to slepe with his fathers, they buried hym in the cite of Dauid. And Asa his son reigned in his stede.

In whose dayes the lande was quyet thre yeres.

¶ Abia dyeth, after whom succeedeth Asa.

CAPL.

XIII.

¶ And Asa dyd that was good and ryghte in the eyes of the Lorde his God, and he toke away the alters of straungers, & the hyllaulters, and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of their fathers, and to do accordyng to the lawe and commaundement. And he put away oute of all the cityes of Juda, the hyllaulters and the ydolles: for his kyngdome was quyet before him. And he built stronge cityes in Juda, because the land was in rest, & he had no warr in those yeres. For the Lorde had gyuen him rest.

And therfore he sayd to Juda: let vs buyde these cityes, and compasse them with walles and towres, gates and barres, whyle we haue the lande quyet. For we haue sought the Lorde our God: and because we haue soughte hym, he hath giuen vs reste on euery syde. And so they buyde and prospered. And Asa hadde an armie that bare shilde and spere, oute of Juda thre hundred thousande: and oute of Benjamin that bare shilde and dywe bowes, two hundred and foure score thousande, and were all stronge men.

And there came oute agaynst them Zarah the Moabian, with an hoste of ten hundred thousande, and thre hundred charettes, and came as ferre as Maraisa. And Asa wente oute to hym, and they put in a reare to battayle in the valeye of Zephathah beynde Maraisa. And Asa cryed vnto the Lorde his God, and sayd: Lorde it is all one with the, to helpe them that haue no power, with fewe or with manie: helpe vs O Lorde our God for we truste to the, and in thyne name we be come agaynst this multitude. Thou arte the Lorde our God, let not man preuaile agaynst the. And the Lorde smote the blacke Moyses before Asa and Juda, that they fled. And Asa and the people that was with him, pursued them as farre as Gerar. And the blacke Moyses were ouer throwen, that there remained none algyue of them, but were destroyed of the Lorde, and of his hoste: they carried also a myghty great pray. And they smote all the cityes rounde aboute Gerar. For the feare of the Lorde came vpon them. And they robbed all the cityes, for there was exceeding moche to be robbed in them. Furthermore they smote the tentes of the ractel, and carried away plenty of shepe, and camelles, and so returned to Jerusalem.

¶ Asa by the monition of the prophete Asa: he had put downe the ydolles, and destroyed the Lorde. He destroyed his wyldes of her dominion.

CAPL.

XV.

And

As the spirit of God came on Azaria the sonne of Obed. And he went out against Asa, and sayde to hym: heare me Asa and all Juda and Beniamin. The Lorde is with you whyle ye be with hym: and ye shall seeke him, he will be founde of you: but ye shall forsake him, he will forsake you. There will come manye dayes in Israel, in whiche there shall be no true God nor priest that teacheth, nor anye lawe. And in theyr tribulation they shall tourne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and shall seeke him, and he shall be founde of them. And in those dayes there shall be no fear to them that goe oute and in. But great tribulation on euery syde vpon the inhabitours of all landes. For one nation shall destroye another, and one cite another: for God will bere them with all aduersite. But plucke you vp youre hartes, and let not your handes saynte, for youre workes shall be rewarded.

When Asa herde those wordes and the prophete of Azaria the sonne of Obed the prophete, he took courage & put awaye the abominations oute of all the lande of Juda and Beniamin, and oute of the cityes whiche he wanne in mounte Ephraim, and renued the altar of the Lorde that was before the porche of the Lorde. And he gathered all Juda and Beniamin, and the strangers with the out of Ephraim, Manasse, and Simeon. For there fell manye to him oute of Israel, when they sawe that God was with him. And they assembled at Jerusalem the thirde moneth of the thirtieth yere of the reigne of Asa. And they offered vnto the Lorde the same tyme of the spoyle whiche they had broughte, seven hundred oxen, and seven thousande shepe. Then they made a councount to seeke the Lord God of theyr fathers, with all theyr hartes, and all their soules: so that all that soughte not the Lord God of Israel, shoulde dye for it whether they were small or greake, man or woman. And they swore vnto the Lord with a loude voyce and shouting, and with reaspettes and boznes. And al Juda cryed in the othe, for they had sworn with all theyr hartes, and soughte him with all their lufte, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde aboute. Furthermoze kynge Asa put Maacab his mother oute of auctorite, because she had made an ydol in a groue: and brake downe her ydol, and stampe it and burne it by the brooke Cedion. But they put not the hyllaniers out of Israel: neuerthelesse the herte of Asa was pure all his lyfe. And he broughte in to the house of God the dedicate offes whiche he and his father hadde dedicate, in golde, silver, and other ieweltes. And there was no more warre vnto the fyue and thirtieth yere of the reigne of Asa.

Asa, for feare of Baasa kynge of Israel, maketh a councount with Benhadad kynge of Syria.

CAPL.

XVI.

In the fyue and thirtieth yere of the reigne of Asa, came Baasa kynge of Israel against Juda, and buyte Ramoth, to the ende he wolde let none that pertayned to Asa kynge of Juda haue passage in and out. Wherupon Asa fer spuer and goide forth of the citie oute of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynge's house, and sent it to Benhadad kynge of Syria that dwelt at Damascus, and sayd. Thou art a leage bitwene me and the, and so was bitwene my father and thyn, wherfore I haue sent the silver and golde, that thou goe and buyde thynne appoyntment with Baasa kynge of Israel, that he may depart from me. And Benhadad graunted vnto kynge Asa, and sent the captaynes of his armye against the cityes of Israel. And they beat Alon, Dan, Abdimon, and all the cite of the north of Judah. Wherupon Baasa herde this, he sette buydage of Ramoth, and lette his workes cease. And then he the kynge of Juda, and caried awaye from him the kynge of Ramoth, wherewith Baasa was a buydage: and he buyte thervnto Samaria and Haphrah.

At that same tyme Hanani the seer, came to Asa kynge of Juda, and sayde to hym: because thou trustedst in the kynge of Syria, and trustedst not in the Lorde thy God, therefore the herte of the kynge of Syria was exalted against thynne hande. Were not the blacke horses of thy of Rabia a greake hode, with manye charrettes and hoysmen? And yet because thou trustedst in the Lorde, he delivered thee in to thynne hartes. For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all the earth, to strengthen the hartes of them that are hole with hym. And thou hadde wone thyselfe: and thynne frome benecolythe thou shouldest haue wone. Wherupon Asa was wrothe with the seer, and put him in prison, for he was displeased with hym because of that. Wherupon he oppressed certayne of the people in that season.

The bedes of Asa bothe first and last, were written in the boke of the kinges of Juda and Israel. And the nyne and thirtieth yere of his reigne, Asa fell synke of his feete, and thynne disease exceded. And besyde this in his laste dayes he asked no counsell of the Lorde, but only of his fathers, and dyed when he hadde rayged one and fouertye yere. And they buried hym in his owne sepulchre whiche he had made in the cite of David, and layd him in the bed whiche hadde fylled with sweete odours of myrrour, and they dyd excedyng great care aboute the ryng of hym.

Josaphat succeedeth after Asa, whiche was the thirtieth yere of the Lorde to be renued among the people.

CAPL.

XVII.

Ad Josaphat his sonne raygned in his stede, and mightye then Israel. And he put souldeours in all the stronges

In the thirtieth yere of his reigne he sente to the Lorde: Benhai, Abdiash, Zachariah, Nathanai, and Shemaiah to teach in the cityes of Juda: and with them Semai, Machabiah, Zabadi, Asaph, Semiramoth, Jonathan, Aboniah, Thobiah, and Thobadonai Lemites: and with them Elisama and Joacham priests. And they taughte in Juda, and had the boke of the law with them, and went aboute the towne out all the cityes of Juda and taughte the people.

At the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all the stronges of the landes that were rounde aboute Juda, that they durst not warre with Josaphat. And the Philistines broughte Josaphat gifts and tribute silver. And therto the Arabians broughte him of shepe, seven thousande and seven hundred cammes, and seven thousande and seven hundred he goates. And Josaphat prospered and grew vp on hygh. And he buyte in Juda castelles and towne cyties, and had great subdaunce in the cityes of Juda, and synghyng men and men of myghte in Jerusalem.

At this is the order in the houses of theyr fathers of the captaynes ouer thousandes in Juda: Eonah the captayne, and with him of synghyng men, thye hundred thousande. And after to him Jothan a captayne, and with him two hundred and foure score thousande. And by his syde Amasias the sonne of Zechariah synghyng vnto the Lorde, and with him two hundred thousande myghte men. And of the synghyng of Beniamin, Eliada was a man of myght, and had with him armed with bowes and cyrbes, two hundred thousande. And by his syde Josabab, with whom were an hundred and foure score thousande furnished for war. Thise warred on y king, besydes those which the king had put in stronge cityes thowout all Juda.

After Achab had asked counsell of the four hundred prophetes, he putteth Micah in prison. He sayth with the word of an atore.

CAPL.

XVIII.

Ad Josaphat became berpe synke & glonous, and repud aliaunce with Achab. And after certayne yeres he wot downe to Samaria. And Achab stode there and oren plenteously for hym, and for the people that came with him, and interceded him to go vnto Ramoth in Galaad. And Achab kynge of Israel sayd to Josaphat kynge of Judas: wilt thou go with me to Ramoth in Galaad? And he answered him, I will be as thou, & my people shall be as thyns, and we will be with the in the warres.

Ad Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske I praye the, the word of the Lorde. And the kynge of Israel gathered together of the prophetes four hundred men, and sayd vnto them: shall we goe to Ramoth in Galaad to synghyng, or shall I cease? And they sayde, go: the Lorde shall deliuer it in to the kinges hand. And Josaphat sayd: Is there yet here neuer a prophete moze of the Lorde, that we myghte aske of him? And the kynge of Israel sayd to Josaphat: there is yet one, to aske the Lorde by him: But I hate him, for he neuer propheseth me good, but alwaye euyl, one whiche as the sonne of Zemla. And Josaphat sayde: let not the kynge saye so. Then the kynge of Israel called one of his chambelaynes, and sayde: seeke byther quickly Michas the son of Zemla. And the kynge of Israel, and Josaphat kynge of Juda, sate cyther of them on his seate in theyr apparell, in a thersynge floore besyde the gate of Samaria, and all the prophetes prophesyinge before them. And one Sebechias the sonne of Achanaia made him boznes of yron, and sayde, thus sayth the Lorde with these thou shalt pulle Syria, vntill thou hadde broughte them to nought. And all the prophetes prophesied euen so, sayinge: goe vp to Ramoth in Galaad and prosper, for the Lorde shall deliuer it in to the hande of the kynge. And the messenger that wente to call Michas, spake to him, sayinge: behold the wordes of the prophetes are pleasant to the kynge with one assente, lette thy wordes I praye the, be lyke one of theirs, and speake that whiche is pleasant. And Michas sayde: as truly as the Lorde synghyng, euen what my God sayth, that will I speake. And when he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayd to him: Michas, shall we goe to Ramoth in Galaad to synghyng, or shall I be in rest? And he answered: go ye and prosper, for the Lorde shall deliuer it in to youre handes. But the kynge sayde to him: how often tymes shall I aduise the that thou saye nothyng but truthe to me in y name of the Lorde.

When he sayd: I se al Israel scattered in the mountaynes, as shepe that haue no shepheard. And the Lorde sayd: these haue no matter, let them retorne euery man to his house in pray. Then sayde the kynge of Israel to Josaphat: dyd I not tell the that he wolde not prophesye good vnto me, but euyl? And he answered: therefore heare ye the word of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde synghyng vpon his seate, and all the companye of heuen standyng on his right hande and on his lefte. And the Lorde sayde: who shall disceyne Achab kynge of Israel, that he may go and be ouercomen at Ramoth in Galaad. And whyle one sayd thus, & an other that, there came out a spyte and robe before the

and one appointed by the chiefe Prieste, and payed out that was in the cofe, and take it and carped it to his place agayne, and thus they dyd daye by daye, and gathered moche money.

D And the kyng and Jorab gave it to workemen that wrought upon the house of γ Loide, and byed masons and carpenters to repayre γ house of the Loide, and artificers in yon and thair, to repayre the Loide's house. And the workemen wrought, and they made γ house of God as it oughte to be, and strenghted it. And when they had finished it, they broughte the rest of the money to the kyng and Jorab, and therewith were made vessels for the house of the Loide: that is to say vessels to minstre withall, and to serue for burntofferings, as labels and vessels of golde and siluer. And they offered burntofferings in the house of γ Loide continuallye all the dayes of Jorab. And Jorab waxed olde and full of yeres, and dyed. An hundred and thirte yere olde was he when he dyed. And they buried him in the cite of David amonge the kynges, because he had done good in Israel, and on God, and on his house. After the deith of Jorab came the lordes of Juda and made obsequies to the king. And then he was buried into him. And so they left the house of the Loide God of their fathers, & served groues & images. And then came there toach pouon Juda and Jerusalem for this their trespass. Notwithstandinge God sente prophets to them, to bynge them agayne unto the Loide. And they refused unto them. But they wolde not heare.

Zachariah.

And the spirite of God came vpon Zachariah the sonne of Jorab the prieste, and he wrote by the, for the Loide is not with Israel neyther with anye of the house of Ephraim. Orelles yf thou nedest wyle, then go and worke, and make thy selfe stronge to battayle: and thou shalt see, that God shall make the fall before thyn enemyes. For God hath power to helpe us to callye downe. And Amazias answered agayne to the man of God, what shall we do then for the hundred talentes whiche I have gyven vnto the house of Israel? And the man of God sayde: the Loide is habile to geue thee moche more then that.

C And when the yere was oute, the hoste of the Syrians came agaynst hym: and they came to Juda and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the lordes of the people, and sente all the spoyle of them vnto the kyng to Damascus. And though the armye of Siria came with a small compaign of men, yet the Loide deliuered a grete yreat hoste in to their handes, because they had forsaken the Loide God of their fathers, and therto they serued Joas according to his desires.

And as soone as they were departed from him, though they left him in grete diseases, yet his owne seruauntes conspired agaynst him for the bloude of the chyldren of Jorab the Prieste, and slew him on his bedde. And when he was dead, they buried him in the citye of David, but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And these are they that conspired agaynst him: Zabab the sonne of Samaria Ammonite, and Josabab the sonne of Samaria Moabite, and his sonnes. And the summe of the taxe that came to him, and the foundation of the house of God, are written in the booke of kynges. And Amazias his sonne reigned in his stede.

Amazias one cometh the Edomites. And Joas kyng of Israel ouercumeth and killeth Amazias.

CAPL. XXV.

A Amazias was five and twenty yere olde when he began to reigne, and reigned nyne and twenty yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jorabab of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Loide, but not with the hole herte. And as soone as he was settled in the kyngdome, he slew them that had led the kyng his father. But he slew not the chyldren, according to that is written in the lawe in γ booke of Moses, to whom the Loide commaunded, sayinge: *the fathers shall not dye for the chyldrens causes, nor the chyldren for the fathers, but euery man shall dye for his owne synne. And Amazias assembled Juda together, and made capitaynes ouer thousandes, & commanded in the houses of their fathers throughe out all Juda and Beniamin. And he numbered them from twenty yere and aboue, and founde them the hundred thousande yonge ludyng men habile to go to battayle, and that could handle speere and shield. And he byed therto an hundred thousande fyghtynge men out of Israel, for an hundred talentes of siluer.

But there came a man of God to him and sayde: Kyng, lette not the armye of Israel goo with the, for the Loide is not with Israel neyther with anye of the house of Ephraim. Orelles yf thou nedest wyle, then go and worke, and make thy selfe stronge to battayle: and thou shalt see, that God shall make the fall before thyn enemyes. For God hath power to helpe us to callye downe. And Amazias answered agayne to the man of God, what shall we do then for the hundred talentes whiche I have gyven vnto the house of Israel? And the man of God sayde: the Loide is habile to geue thee moche more then that.

Then Amazias leuured the armye that was come to hym out of Ephraim, to go home agayne. Wherefore they were callyed by the name of the armye of Ephraim, and returned home in grete anger.

And Amazias toke herte, and carped out his hoste, and wente to Saltbay. *Wher he slew of the chyldren of Siria: an thousande. And of her ten thousande the chyldren of Juda toke alpye, and carped them vnto the top of the rocke, and cast them downe from the top of the rocke, that they shold be burst: but the men of the armye whiche Amazias had turned backe, wolde not let go with his people to battayle, ran vpon the ciues of Juda from Samaria to Bethhoron, and slew the thousande of the armye and wane moche spoyle.

And it chaunced, after that Amazias was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, and had brought the goddes of the chyldren of Siria, he set the by to be his goddes, and bowed him selfe before them, & burned incense vnto them. Wherefore the Loide was wrothe with Amazias, and sent to him a prophete, & said to him: why hast thou the goddes of the people whiche were not habile to deliuer their owne people out of thyn handes? And as the prophete spake to him, he said to γ prophete: haue mercy made the of γ kynges counsell cease, lest thou be beaten. And the prophete ceased and sayd: I am sure that God hath taken counsell to destroy the, because thou hast done this, and obeyest not my counsell.

Then Amazias kyng of Juda toke aduise, and sent to Joas the sonne of Joachaz the son of Jehu kyng of Israel, and sayd: come and let vs fyghte other. And Joas kyng of Israel, sente agayne to Amazias kyng of Juda sayinge: a thyffell in Libanon sente to a Cedarre of Libanon, sayinge: *give thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe. But there came the wylder beastes of Libanon, and trode downe γ thyffell. Upon thynke: so, I haue beaten the Edomites, therefore thyne herte aryseth to glory thy selfe. Now abyde at home: what needeth the to prouoke to euill, that thou perishe and Juda with the?

But Amazias refused not: for it came of God, men to deliuer them in to the handes of thyn enemyes, and that because they had deliuered the goddes of the Edomites. And Joas kyng of Israel came up: and they sawe other other, bothe he and Amazias kyng of Juda at Bethlamme in Juda. And Juda was put to the worse before Israel, and fledde euery man to his tent. And Joas kyng of Israel toke Amazias kyng of Juda the sonne of Joas, the sonne of Ochozias at Bethlamme: and brought him to Jerusalem, and tare the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim, vnto the corner gate, foure hundred cubytes longe. And he toke all the golde and siluer and all the iewelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and the treasures of the kynges house and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

And Amazias the sonne of Joas kyng of Juda dyed after the deathe of Joas sonne of Joachaz kyng of Israel fyftene yeres. The rest of the actes of Amazias fyrst and laste, are written in the booke of kynges of Juda and Israel. And after the tyme that Amazias dyd thus awaye from the Loide, they conspired against agaynst hym in Jerusalem: and he fledde to Lachis, whither they sente after him and slew him there, and brought him by waye to Bethhoron, and buried him with his fathers in the cite of Juda.

After the deathe of Amazias reigned Oziah whiche was written with the lepre, and Joasham reigned in his stede.

CAPL. XXVI.

Then all the people of Juda toke Oziah whiche was sixtene yere olde, and made him kyng in the towne of his father Amazias. And he bought Eloth and brought it agayne to Juda, after the kyng was layde to rest with his fathers. Sixtene yere olde was Oziah when he began to reigne, and he reigned two and fifty yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jecaliah of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Loide in all poyntes, as dyd his father Amazias. And he soughte God whyle Zachariah the teacher to se God lured: and as long as he sought the Loide, God made him prosper.

And he went to battayle agaynst the Philistines, and brake downe the wallles of Geth and the wallles of Jabneh, and the wallles of Asdod: and bought cities aboute Asdod, and amonge the Philistines. And God holpe hym agaynst the Philistines, and agaynst the Arabians that dwelte in Gurbail, and agaynst the Moabites. And the Ammonites gaue tribute to Oziah, and his name spreade abrode: euen to Egypt: for he played the man, and excelled. Wherefore Oziah bought towres in Jerusalem ouer the corner gate, and ouer the balcke gate, and ouer other corners, and made the stronge. And he bought towres in the wylder nelle, and dygged manye welles. For he hadde moche cattell, bothe in the balcke, and also in the playne, and plowmen and bynde dyllers in the mountaynes and in Chamel, for he loued husbandrye.

And Oziah hadde an hoste of fyghtynge men that wente out to warre in the armye, and were tolde and nombred by Jeciel the scrbye, & Maasiah an officer, vnder the bande of Hananiah one of the kynges lordes. And the hole nombre of the auncient heades of the men of myghte, were two thousande and five hundred, and vnder the handes of them was the armye of the hoste, the hundred and seuen thousande, and fyue hundred that made warre in myghte and strengthe, to helpe the kyng agaynst his enemyes. And Oziah prouided them thowseoute all the hoste, whylbes, speeres, helmes, habergynnes, bowes, and spynges for stones. And he made engynes in Jerusalem by the crafte of artificers, to be on the towres and corners, to shotte arrows and grete stones with. And his name spreade faere abrode: for he was wonderlye holpe, vntyll he was become myghtye.

And in his greatnesse his herte arose, that he was married, and transgressed agaynst the Loide his God. For he wente in to the temple of the Loide to burne incense vpon the altar of incense. But Azarias the prieste wente in after him with foure score priestes of γ Loide that were bolde men. And they slepte to Oziah the kyng, and sayde to him: it pertayneth not to the Oziah to burne incense vnto the Loide, but to the priestes the chyldren of Aaron that are consecrate for to burne incense. Come out of the sanctuary, for thou hast trespassed, and it shall be no worthe to the before the Loide God.

And Oziah was byrth a had incense in his hande.

II. 25. 2. a.

hande to offer, and in his indignation agaynste the piers, & the leppe spange in his forehead before the piers in the house of the Lorde, even before the incense altare. And Azarias the chiefe prier with all the other priers looked upon hym: and beholde, he was a lepe in his forehead, and they drave him thence. And therto he was layne to go out, because the Lorde had plagued him. And Oziah the kynge continued a lepe vnto the daye of his deathe, and dwelt in an house at libertie: howebeit he was cast oute of the house of the Lorde. And Joatham his son had the gouernance of the kynges house, & iudged the people of the lande.

The reule of the actes of Oziah bothe firste and laste, dyd Azarias the prier, the sonne of Amos write. And when Oziah was layde to rest with his fathers, they buried him with his fathers in the felde of the buriall of the kinges. For they sayd: he is a lepe. And Joatham his sonne reigned in his stede.

Joatham raggeth and ouercometh the Ammonites. Achaz his sonne raggeth after him.

CAPL. XXVII.

Joatham was fyue and twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned fyue yere in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Ieriah the daughter of Zaor. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all poyntes as dyd his father Oziah: laue, that he came not to the temple of the Lorde, and that the people dyd not corrupte thymselfe. He buylte the dyke gate of the temple of the Lorde, and on the walle Syuel he buylte moche. Moche ouer he buylte wythes in the mountaynes of Iuda, and in the wodde countrey he buylte castels and towres.

And he foughte with the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and pryncipled agaynst them. And the captiue of Ammon gau: hym fyue an hundred talents of syluer, and tenne thousande quarters of wheate, and as moche barley. So moche also had the chyldren of Ammon gyue hym the seconde yere, and the thirde to. And Joatham became myghty, because he dycted his waye before the Lorde his God.

The reule of the actes of Joatham and all his warres and his wayes are writen in the boke of kynges of Israel and Iuda. He was fyue and twentye yere olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned fyue yere in Ierusalem. And when Joatham was layde to rest with his fathers, they buried him in the city of Dauid: and Achaz his sonne reigned in his stede.

The wyckednesse of Achaz kynge of Iuda. After him raygneth Ezechias.

CAPL. XXVIII.

Achaz was twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned fyue yere in Ierusalem. And he dyd not please the Lorde, as dyd his father Dauid: but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and made therto Basils of metall. And he offered incense in the valeye of the chylde of Benon, and burnte his chyldren in syn: ter the abhominacion of the nacyns which the Lorde threwe oute before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered burnt incense in high places, and on mountaynes, and vnder every grene tree.

Wherfore the Lorde his God withdrew hym from the hande of the kynge of the Syrians: whiche beat him, and carped awaye a greut multitude of his captyues in to Damascus. And further, he was deliuered in to the hande of the kynge of Israel, which slewe of his a myghty slaughter. For he beat the sonne Iahab slewe in Iuda an hundred and threty thousande in one daye, and all synners: and that because they had forsaken the Lorde God of their fathers. And Zechu a myghty in mount Ephraim slewe Iahab the kynge sonne, and Aisam the sonne of Iahab the bold, and Eisanah that was next to the kynge. And the chyldren of Israel toke prysoners of their brethren two hundred thousande men, sonnes and daughters, and therto carped awaye moche spoyle of them, and brought it to Samaria.

But there was a prier of the Lorde named Obed, whiche wente oute to the prier that came to Samaria, and sayd to them: because the Lorde God of your fathers dwelleth with Iuda, he deliuered them in your handes. And ye haue slayne them with crueltie that reacheth vp to heauen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Iuda and Ierusalem, and to make them bondmen and bondwomen. What other thynge wyll ye vnhappye? then offende the Lorde your God? But now heare me, and deliuer the sonnes agayne whiche ye haue taken of your brethren, for the great wyathe of the Lorde is vpon you.

And certayne of the headres of the chyldren of Ephraim: as Azarias the sonne of Iohanan, Barachiah the sonne of Asimeth, Iehiziah the sonne of Selum, and Amasai the sonne of Iadabai rode vp agaynst them that came from warre, and said vnto them: ye haue not byynge in the captyues hyther. For wher we haue offende the Lorde alrede, ye intende to adde more to oure synnes and iniquite. For oure trespase is greute alrede, and there is searce wyathe vpon Israel. Wherfore the men of armes lefte the captyues and the spoyle before the lordes and all the congregation.

And there arose certayne appoynted thre by name, and toke the prysoners and clothed all that were naked amonge them, and they gaue them to eate and to drynke, & answered them, & caried all that were feble of them to Jericho, and brought them to Jericho the city of Iericho.

padme trees fall by their brethren: and the returned to Samaria agayne.

And at that same tyme kynge Achaz sent vnto the kynges of Assur to haue helpe. And the Edomites came yet agayne and slue of Iuda and carped awaye some captyues. And the Philistines invaded the cyties in the lowe country and the south of Iuda: And toke Bethlames, Alalon, Gaderoth, and Socoh: with the towres belonginge therto, and Thimna with the towres of the same. And Gula with her towres, and dwelte therein. For the Lorde brought Iuda lowe, because of Achaz kynge of Iuda, whiche made Iuda naked and transgressed agaynst the Lorde. And Tiglath pineser kynge of Assur came vpon him and beseged him, but pryncipled not agaynst him. For Achaz toke awaye out of the house of the Lorde and oute of the kynges house and oute of the Lordes houses and gaue vnto the kynge of Assur, though it holpe him not. And therto in the very tyme of his tribulation dyd kynge Achaz trespase yet more agaynst the Lorde. For he offered vnto the Godes of them of Damascus which beat him and sayde: because the godes of the Syrians helpe them, therfore will I offer to them, that they maye helpe me also. But they were his destruction & the destruction of all Israel. And Achaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God & byrde them, & put by the wythes of the house of the Lorde, and made him altars in all corners of Ierusalem. And in al the cyties of Iuda he sette by cyrie he made highalters to burne incense vnto other godes, and angled the Lorde God of his fathers. The rest of his actes and all his wayes both first and last are writen in the boke of kynges of Iuda and Israel. And wher Achaz was layde to rest with his fathers they buried him in the cyrie of Ierusalem: but brought him not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Iuda. And Ezechias his sonne reigned in his stede.

Ezechias rethreth vnto the temple of the Lorde al the thynges that had not bene regarded of his predecessours.

CAPL. XXIX.

Ezechias began to raygne when he was. xix. yere olde, and raygned. xxix. yere in Ierusalem. And his mothers name was Abia daughter of Zachary. And he dyd that was right in the sight of the Lorde in all poyntes, as dyd Dauid his father. He opened the wythes of the house of the Lorde in the firste yere and first moneth of his raigne, and repaired them. And he brought in the prieses and the Levites and gathered them together into the east court: and sayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Levites: purifye your selues and halowe the house of the Lorde God of your fathers, and bynne out the spithynesse out of the holy place. For our fathers haue trespassed and done wyckedly in the eyes of the Lorde our God: and haue forsaken him, and turned awaye their faces from the habitation of the Lorde and turned to their backs. And beke that they haue shut by the wythes of the porche and quenched the lampes and haue nether burned incense nor offered burntofferings in the holy place vnto the God of Israel.

Wherfore the wyathe of the Lorde fell on Iuda and Ierusalem: and he scattered them & made them so thynne that men bilde at it, even as ye se with youre eyes. For lo, our fathers were ouerthrowen with the sword, and oure sonnes, our wyghters and our wyues were caryed awaye prysoners for the same. Now haue I in my herte to styke a cowntaunt with the Lorde God of Israel: that his wyathe maye cease. Now therfore my sonnes be not negligent: for the Lorde hath chosen you to stande before him, and to minstre and burne offerings to him.

Then the Levites arose: Mahath the son of Amasai and Joel the sonne of Abiath beinge of the chyldren of the Aharites: and the sonnes of Merari, Bis the sonne of Abi, and Asariah the sonne of Jalalel: and of the Gersonites, Joah the sonne of Simma and Eden the sonne of Joah: and of the sonnes of Eliphaz, Sime and Iziel: and of the sonnes of Alaph, Zachariah and Marthanah: & of the sonnes of Ieman, Jehiel and Semel: & of the sonnes of Ieduthun, Semalah and Daniel. And they gathered their brethren and purified them selues, and then went at commaundement of the kynge by the wythe of the Lorde for to clesse the house of the Lorde. And the prieses wente into the house of the Lorde to clesse it, and brought oute all the uncleynesse they founde in the temple of the Lorde, and in the court of the house of the Lorde. And the Levites toke it & caried it oute into the byrde Cedron. They began the first daye of the firste moneth to purifye, and came the eighth daye to the porche of the Lorde: so that they had purged the house of the Lorde in eighth dayes and the xviij. daye of the first moneth they made an end.

And then they went in to Ezechias the kynge and sayde: we haue clesed all the house of the Lorde, and the altare of burntofferings, with all his vessels, and the shewbryed table with all his apparell: and therto all the vessels of the kynge Achaz dyd cast a fyre when he raygned and transgressed, them we haue repayed and sanctified: and se, they are before the altare of the Lorde. And Ezechias the kynge rose early and gathered the Lorde of the cyrie and went vp to the house of the Lorde. And there were brought seven oxen, seven rammes, seven lammes, and seven hyddes to be a synneoffering for the kyngdom, for the sanctuary and for Iuda. And he commaunded the prieses the sonnes of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the Lorde.

And they slewe the oxen: and the prieses receyued the bloude and spynkled it on the altare: and they slew the rammes and spynkled the bloude vpon the altare: and they slewe the lammes and spynkled the bloude vpon the altare. And then they brought forth the hyddes of the synneoffering before the kynge and the

the congregation which put their hands vpon them. And the prelates strew them and offered the bloude of them vpon the altare, to make satisfaction for all Israel: for the kynge sayde that the burnt offeringe and the synnecofferinge shulde serue for all Israel. And they set the Le-uites in the house of the Lord with their Symba-les, Psalteries and harpes accordynge to the commandemente of Dauid and of Gad the kynge's sear of visions and of Nathan the pro-phete. for so was the commandement of the Lord the thorothe the hande of his prophetes.
And so the Leuites stode with the instrumen-tes of Dauid, and the prelates with trompet-tes. And Zacharias commaunded to offer the burntofferinge vpon the altare. And when the burntofferinge began, the songe of the Lord began, and the trompettes with the instrumē-tes of Dauid kynge of Israel. And all the congregation bowed thern selues, and the syn-gers sange, and the trompettes blew, and continued vntill the burnt offeringe was syn-sped.

And when they hadde made an ende of the burnt offerings, the kyng and all that were with him knelt downe, and bowed them selves, & gaue prayse and thanks. And Ezechias the kyng & the lordes bade the Levites to praye the Lorde with the wordes of Dauid and of Asaph the sear of byssons. And the Levites prayed that they reioyced agayne, and the other shouted and bowed them selves.

And Archias auntyered and sayde : nowe that ye haue tyllid your handes to the Worde go to and bringe in the sacrifices and thank offinges into the house of the Worde. And the congregation brought in the sacrifices & thank offinges, and all that were willing brought burntofferinges. And the nombre of the burnt offinges which the congregation brought in was twenty oxen, and an hundred rammes & two hundred lambs: and all for burntofferinges to the Worde. And besyde that they debtated fixe hundred oxen, and thise thousande shepe.

But the preastes were to fewe, and were not able to shepe all the burnt offerings. Wherefore their bretheren the Levites helpe them tyll the worke was ended, and vntill þe preastes were sanctified. For the Levites were purgered to sanctifie them selves then the preastes. And thereto the burnt offerings were manys which the fat of the pray offerings and the bypokes offerings that belonged to þe burnt offerings. And so the service percyvinge to þe house of the Lord went forwarde. And Zacharias reioyced, and all the people, that God had made the folke so redye for the thing was sodenly done.

Ezechias renucth the feast of paffover.

CAPL. XXX.

And Ezechias sent to all Israel and Iu-da: and thereto wrote letters to Ephraim and S-amuel, that they shoulde come to the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem, to offer paffouer vnto the Lorde God of Iſrael. And the kynge bride a counſell with his lordes and all the congregation at Ieruſalem to keepe the feaſt of paſſouer in the ſecond moneth, for they coulde not keepe it at that tyme for there were not preſtles ynough ſanctified, neyther was the people gathered together in Ieruſalem. And the kynge pleaſed the kynge and all the congregation. And they decreed it ſhoulde be proclaimed thorow out all Iſrael from Berſabe to Dan, that they ſhould come and holde the feaſt of paſſouer vnto the Lord God of Iſrael at Ieruſalem: for they hadde not often done it, as it is wytten howe they ſhould.

And the messengers went with letters of the hande of the kynge and of his lordes thei shew out all Iſrael and Iuda, at the commaundement of the kynge which sayd: children of Iſrael, tourne agayne vnto the Lorde God of Abrahama, Iſaac, and Iſrael, and so will be tourne to the remnaunt of you that are scaped out of the handes of the kynge of Assur. And be ye not lyke poure fathers and pour by children whiche trespassed agaiuste the Lorde of pour fathers, whiche therfore gaue them vp: they are wailed as ye se. Wherefore be not dysspected lyke vnto poure fathers, but seke your selues vnto the Lorde, and come to his holy place whiche he hath sanctified for ever, and lette the Lorde poure God, that his wrath maye turne frome you. for ye se tourne vnto the Lorde, your brethren and pour children shall fynde compassion in the presence of them that holde them captiue, that they may come agayne vnto this lande: for the Lorde your God is full of mercye and compassion, he will not turne his face frome you, ye se tourne agayne to him.

And the postes went from cyrie to cyrie the rotes out the lande of Ephraim and Manasse and euen vnto Zabulon. But they laugh them to scorne and mocked them. Number lesse yet druckes of Asser, Manasse and of Za bulon weakened them selues and came to Je rusalem. And therto the hand of God was in Iuda, to make them of one accorde in to the commaundment of the kenge and the capti ues, whiche was according to the worde of the Lorde. And so there assembled to Ierusalem moche people and a myghty great congrega cion, to holde the feast of sweete byrd in thir sonde moneth.

And they arose and put away the altars that were in Jerusalem. And all the month they dyd awaye and call them into the byle Cedion. And they sleme pascouer the fouente daye of the secont^r moneth. And the preades and Leuites sanctified them selues for waite, and broughe in the burnt offerings into the house of the Lorde. And they stode in their dunge after this maner accoꝝtinge to the law of Moses the man of God. And the preades sprinkled the bloude receyuinge it of the handes of the Leuites. And because there were many in the congregacion that were not sanctified: and therefore dyd the Leuites slep pascouer for all that were not cleane to sanctifye them.

EZECHIAS.

them to the Lord.

There was very much people out of Ephraim, Manassas, Issachar & Zabulon that were not cleane, and therfore byd eate pascheouer o- therwise then wytyng speeketh. But Eze- chias prayed for them and sayd: O good Lorde be merciful to all that set their hertes to see the God that is the Lorde God of their fa- thers, though they do it not accordinge to the charge of the holy place. And the Lord herd Ezechias and healed the people. And so chil- dren of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem teld the feast of sweete bryd seven dayes with great gladnesse, and the Leuites and the pre- stes prayed the Lorde day by day with lowde instruments.

And Ezechias spake hartely vnto the Leuites that had good vnderstandinge of \S 1020. And they bnd eate that feast seuen dayes long and offered peaceoffringes & thanked the Lorde God of their fathers. And the hote asseblee toke counsell to kepe seuen dayes moo: & they helde those seuen dayes with gladnesse. For Ezechias kynge of Iuda gaue for heaucoffringes to the congeragation a thousand oxen and fower thousande shepe. And the Lordes gaue to the congeragation for heaucoffringes a thousand oxen and ten thousande shepe. And the praydes sanctified them selues, that they were enough.

And all the congregation of Iuda with the priests and Leuites, and all the congregation that came out of Israel and the Traun-gers, both that came out of the lande of Israel and that dwelt in Iuda, reioysed: and there was great ioye in Ierusalem. For it came the time of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israel it happened not so in Ierusalem.
And the priests and the Leuites arose & blest the people, and their voyce was heard, and their prayer went by vnto his holy dwelling place heauen.

¶ After Ezechias had called agayne the people vnto the waie of the Lord he ordeyneth the prelates, to whom he commaundeth to geue speeches.

CARI. XXXI.

And when they had finished all this: all Israel that were founde in the cities of Iuda, went oute and brake the Images and cut downe the groues, and all to brake the hylaultars and the other aultars thorough out all Iuda and Ben Iamin, Ephraim and Manasse, tyl they had made an ende of them. And afterwarde all the children of Israel returned euery man to his possession in their owne cities. And Ezechias set the pratises and the Leuites in their ordre to waite by theirse, euery man accordinge to his office whether priest or Leuite: for the burntoffe-rings and peaceoffrings, and to minisre and to thank & to praye in the gates of the lodge of the Worde. And the kynge gaue a porcyō of his substance for burnt offerings at morninge and euen, and for burnt offerings on the Sabbath dayes and new mones, and other solene feastes, accordinge & as it is wyrtten in the Nu. xxviii. b. lawe of the Lord. And he had the people that B dwelte in Ierusalem to giue the parte of the pleasies & Leuitics, that they might be mayn-teyned in the lawe of the Lord. And as sone as the word came abyde, the children of Israel brought aboundaunce of beste frutes of corne, wyne, oyle, and hony, and of al maner offrutes of the felde: and the tythes of al maner of thynges brought they in plentifully.

And the children of Israel and Juda þowelt in the cyties of Iuda, they also brought in the tythes of oxen and shepe, and tythes of dedicate thynges which were dedicate to the Lord their God, and put them on heapes. In the thirde moneth they began to lape the heapes and synntised them the seuenthy.

And when Ezechias and the lordes came & sawe the heapes, they blessed the Lorde and his people Israell. And Ezechias questioned wth the preastes and the Levites concerning the heapes. And Asarias the churche of the house of Zadoc answered him & sayde: sythen they began to bringe the beurofferinges into the house of the Lorde, we have eaten & had ynoughe, and yett lyste aboundaunce, for the Lorde hath blessed his people and therfore is this heape left. And Ezechias bad bryll by f^re those houses about the yowle of the Roice.

And so they dyd, and carped in for beaur off=

tynges and the tpytes and the debellar byllis, even of freldette.

Over which & Jonathan the Levite hadde the rule with Semai his brother next to him. And Ichiel, Afarim, Rayatz, Maai, Jere-moth, Josabab, Eltel, Jelmachiah, Zelah and Bananai, were overkeepers charged by Jonathan and Semai his brother, at the ap-pointment of Ezechias the king, and Ma-tias the ruler of the house of God. And these the sonne of Jemai the Levite porter of the East doore had the oversight of the receyvinges of God, to give grauncounges unto the Rorde, and was to them things most help. And under him were Sorn, Amariam, Jisua, Se-metay, Amariah and Zebadiah in the cities of the priestes of their fidelite, to give to there brethren their portions, as well to the small as to the great.

And to the males also that were reckened from thye pere & aboute amonge all that went into the house of the Lorde daye by daye, to do seruise & so wayte vpon course. And to the priests that were reckened in the householdes of their fathers from .xx. pere & aboute, to wayte upon their courses came. And to them that were reckened thorow out al their babes, tep-les, tonnes & daughters thorow out al the cogregation. For to the fidelitie of them byd me comitte their sanctified gyfts. And therein amonge the chyldren o' Sathe the prelates were men named by name in the felides of the suburbes of all their cyties, cytie by cytie, for to geue porcions to all the males o' the prelates and to all that were reckened amonge the Reuices.

And on this maner byd Ezechias thorowte out all Iuda, & byd that was good, right &

trathe, before the Lord is God. And in all the works that he began in the service of his house of God, to seek his God after the law and commandment, he dyd with all his heart and prospered.

Sennacherib which shulde have besieged Jerusalem: broken of the Angel, Ezechias dyeth after whom succeeded Manasse.

CAP.

fter these deys and trathe, Sennacherib kynge of Assur came and entered into Juda and pseyched against the strong cities and thought to drawe them to him. But when Ezechias sawe that Sennacherib was come & that he purposed to fight against Jerusalem: he toke counsel with his capitaynes and men of might, to stop the water of his fountaynes that were without the city: and they were content to help him. And so three gathered moche people together and stoppe all the welles and the brooke that ran throught the myddes of the lande, cuncting that the kynge of Assur should not fynde moche water, when they came. And he wente to iudely and buyte by the wall where it was broken, and made towres about upon, & yet an other wall without, and repaired the city of David, and made many barres and bulwarks.

And he set capitaynes of warre ouer his people & gathered them together into the large strete or the gate of the city and spake gently to them, sayinge. Blucke by your cities and be stronge: be not dismayed by any wyse till encouraged for dyde of the kynge of Assur, and of the great multitude that is with him: for there is one greater with us then with him. With him is an arme of flesh: but with us is the Lord our God for to help us and to fight our battayles. And the people were well encouraged with the wordes of Ezechias kynge of Juda.

after that, Sennacherib kynge of Assur sent of his seruantes to Jerusalem: he him selfe prenge before Rachi and all his kyngdome to him: vnto Ezechias kynge of Juda and vnto all Juda that were at Jerusalem, sayinge.

Thus sayth Sennacherib kynge of Assur: * Wherein do ye trust? ye that are besieged in Jerusalem: Ezechias deceyvethe you, to deliuer you to death, hunger, and thirst, sayinge: the Lord our God shall ryde vs out of the handes of the kynge of Assur. Is it not that Ezechias that put to wone his hyll aultares and his other aultares, and commaunded Juda & Jerusalem sayinge: before one aultar shall bothe your selues and vpon that offer alfo?

Moreover haue ye not heere what I and my fathers haue done vnto the people of all landes? were the gods of the people of other landes hable to saue their landes ouer of my hande: which of all the gods of those nations that my fathers destroyed was it, that could deliuer his people out of my hande, that your God shulde be hable to deliuer you out of my hande? Wherefore now let not Ezechias deceyue you either prestwarde you on this faction, nor perbelue him. For as no God amonge so many nations and kyngdomes, is hable to ryde his people out of my hande: the valdes of my fathers: euen so moche the wall pouer God kepe you out of my hande. And yet more dyd his seruantes speke against the Lord God and against his seruante Ezechias. Furthermore he wrote a letter to ryde on the Lord God of Israel and spake thus sayinge: as the goddess of the nations of other landes haue not deliuered their people out of my hande, no more shall the God of Ezechias deliuer his people out of my hande. And they cryed with a lowde voyce in the wytes spake vnto the people of Jerusalem, that were on the walles, to feare them and to make them, that they might haue taken the city. And they spake againe the God of Jerusalem, as against the goddesses of the nations of the earth, which are the workes of the handes of men.

But Ezechias the kynge and the prophete Iai sonne of Amos prayed concerninge that thinge and cryed by to heauen. And the Lord sent an angel and destroyed all the armie of warre and the Lord's and Asitaparnes of the host of the kynge of Assur, that he turned his face with came towards his owne lande. And when he was come into the house of the Lord, he was there ouerthrowen to the ground: euen by them that issued out of his bowels. And the Lord saued Ezechias and the inhabitants of Jerusalem ouer of the handes of Sennacherib kynge of Assur and of all other, and mayntened them on all dayes. In the which that many broughte presents vnto the Lord to Jerusalem and precious gifts to Ezechias as kynge of Juda: so that he was magnified in the sight of all nations from thence forth. * In those dayes Ezechias was sicke vnto death and broughte the Lord: which answered him and shewed him a wonderfull miracle: but Ezechias dyd not accordinge to the cunctise shewed him, for his heart arose: rather for came there wrath vpon him and vpon Juda and Jerusalem. Northwarding Ezechias mached him selfe for the aying of his last bothe he and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. Wherefore the wrath of the Lord set forth them in the dayes of Ezechias.

And Ezechias had exceeding moche riches and honour. And he gathered him treasure of silver, golde, precious stones, spices, floure, and all maner pleasaunt itewares: and made store houses for the treasures of corn, wyne, and oyle: and stables for all maner beasts, & stables for sheepe. And he made him towres bracke: he had catell of sheepe & oxen great aboute: for God had giuen him substance exceeding moche. And the prophete Ezechias stopped the watersprynge of Silon & broughte them to the West syde of the city of David. And Ezechias prospered in all his workes. But when the kinges of the landes of Babylon were sente to him, to requyre of him: he that chaunced in the lande, Ezechias hum: to tempte him that all that was in his myght be knowne.

The rest of the deys of Ezechias and his goodnes are written in the vision of Iai the prophete the son of Amos in the booke of the bookes of Juda and Israel. And then Ezechias layde him to rest with his fathers, and they buryed him in the hygher sepulchre of the sonnes of David: and Juda and the inhabitants of Jerusalem dyd him worshippe at his death. And Manasses his sonne reigned in his stede.

Manasse is taken prisoner: and after destruction of the Temple he dyeth after him succeeded Amos. Amos was kynge of his owne people, and Josiah his sonne reigned for him.

CAP.

XXXIII

Manasses was .xv. yeres olde when he was made kynge, and reigned .lv. yeres in Jerusalem. And he dyd wyckedlye in the sight of the Lord, lyke vnto the abominacions of the Pharys which the Lord call out before the children of Israel. For he went and buyte agayne the hyll aulters which Ezechias his father had broken downe. And he set up aulters vnto Baals, and made groues, & bowled him selfe vnto all the host of heauen and leued the. And he buyte aulters in the house of the Lord: at which the Lord had sayde * in Jerusalem shall my name be to be cure. And he made aulters vnto all the host of heauen in the two courtes of the house of the Lord: and he burnt his children in fyre in the valley of the sonnes of Bennon. And he adorned his hall dayes and occupied wyckedlye and idellye, and mayntened workers with spices & floure of fortunces: and wrought moche euill in the sight of the Lord, to anger him vnto.

And he put the hewed image of an Idol which he had made, in the house of God. Of which house God sayde to David also to Salomon his sonne, in this house here in Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the trybes, & I will put my name for cure, & no more shall the name of Israel for the of the lande which I haue ordeyned for your fathers. In all they shalbe diligent to do all I haue commaunded by Moyses in all the lawe ordinaunces and maners. But Manasses made Judas the inhabitants of Jerusalem to erre, and to do wyckedlye as the heiden which the Lord destroyed before the children of Israel. And when the Lord spake to Manasses and to his people, they attended not to him.

Wherefore the Lord brought vpon them his capitaynes of the host of the kynge of Assur, to the Manasses in an holde and bound him with chaynes and caried him to Babilon: wher he was in tribulation he sought the Lord his God, and humbled him selfe: & prayde before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to him: and he was encreased of him and herbe his prayer and brought him agayne to Jerusalem into his kyngdome. And Manasses herbe how that the Lord was the true God. After that, he buyte a wall without the city of David on the West syde of Silon in the brooke and so forth to Silgah and rounde about Silgah and brought it by of a very greete height, and put Capitaynes of warre in all the stronge cities of Juda. And he toke away strange goddesses and the Idole out of the house of God, and all the aulters that he had buyte in the mount of the house of God and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the city. And he made an aultar vnto the Lord and sacrificed thereon prayringes and thank offeringes, and charged Juda to serue the Lord God of Israel. Neuertheless the people dyd offer Idols in the hyll aulters, howebeit vnto the Lord their God only.

The rest of the actes of Manasses and his prayer vnto his God, and the wordes of the tears of visions that spake to him in the name of the Lord God of Israel, are written amonge the bedes of the kynge of Israel. And his prayer and how that he was herde, and all his synne and trespass, and the places where he made hyll aulters and set up groues & hewed Images before he was mekened, are written amonge the bedes of the tears of visions. And when Manasses was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed him in his owne house and Amos his sonne reigned in his rowme. Amos was .xv. yeres olde, when he began to reigne, and reigned two yeres in Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lord: lyke vnto Manasses his father, for Amos sacrificed to all the hewed Images whiche Manasses his father made, and serued them, and mekened not him selfe before the Lord, as Manasses his father had mekened him selfe: but Amos trespassed greatly. Wherefore his owne seruantes conspired against him and slew him in his owne house. And the people of the lande slew all that had conspired against kynge Amos. And therto the people of the lande made Josiah his sonne kynge in his rowme.

Josiah destroyed the Idols and restored the temple in which is founde the booke of the lawe: he sendeth to Holdai the prophete for counsell.

CAP.

XXXIII

Josiah was made kynge when he was .biii. yeres olde, and he reigned in Jerusalem .xviij. yeres. And he dyd that pleased the Lord, & walked in the wayes of David his father doinge neyther to the right hande ne to the left. In so moche that the eggre yere of his reigne, when he was yet a lad, he began to seke after the God of David his father. And in the .xv. yere he began to purge Juda and Jerusalem of hyll aulters, groues, hewed Images, & Images of metall: so that they brake downe the aulters of Baals euen in his precinct, and the Idols that were vpon them, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, hewed Images, & Images of metall he brake and made dust of them, and strowed it vpon the graves of them that had offered to them. And he burnt the bones of the priests vpon the aulters, and destroyed Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he

In the cyties of Manasses, Ephraim, Simeon and of Nephtali. And in the wyldernes of them coude about he plucked a sonde the aultares and the groues and dyd breake them and stampe them to powdre, and becomene the ydoles thowout all the lande of Israel: and then returned to Jerusalem.

In the xviij. yere of his raigne when he had purged the lande and the temple, he sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia, and Shafiah the gouernour of the cytie, and Joah the sonne of Joachas the recorder, to repaire the house of the Lorde his God. And when they came to Helkiah the hyshe preste, men deliuered them the monney that was brought into the house of God, which the Leuites that kept the enterres had gathered of the handes of Manasses and Ephraim and of all that yet remayned in Israel and of all Juda and Beniamin and of the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And they put it in the handes of the workmen that had the ouersight of the house of the Lorde, whiche gaue it to the labourers that wrought on the house of the Lorde, to repaire and mend it, and to masons and carpenters to bye beved stone and tymber, for to make couplings & beams for the houses which the knynges of Juda had destroyed: And the men wrought in þe worke faithfully.

And the ouerscers of them to couage them were Jahath and Obadiah Leuites of þe children of Merari: and Serubabab and Helulam of the children of the Sathathites, and as many other of the Leuites as coude skill of instruments of Musike. And ouer the beeters of buchers and ouer all that wrought, in what so euer workmanhip it were, were there serues, officers and porters of the Leuites.

The boke of the lawe is founde.

And as they brought out the monney that was brought into the house, Helkiah þe preste founde the boke of the lawe of the Lorde gyven by Moses. And Helkiah aunswered and sayde to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde þe boke of the lawe in the house of the Lorde, & gaue the boke to Saphan. And Saphan carryed the boke to the knyng, and brought þe knyng worde agayne, sayenge: all that was committered to thy seruantes, that is to thy. And they haue purged out the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde and haue destroyed into the handes of the ouerscers of the workmen. And then Saphan the scribe shewed the knyng, sayenge: Helkiah the preste hath gyuen me a boke, and he red it before the knyng.

And when the knyng had herd the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes, and commaunded Helkiah and Shafiah the sonne of Saphan and Shabon the sonne of Azalia and the scribe Saphan the scribe and Azaria a seruante of the knyng, sayenge: go and enquire of the Lorde for me and for them that are left in Israel and Juda, conseruing the wordes of the booke þe lawe. For greuous is the way of the Lorde that is shewed by þe lawe, to ouer our fathers kept not the word of the Lorde, to wylful that is shewed in this boke. And Helkiah with the scribe Saphan went to Holdai a prophetesse of the Lorde, the sonne of Thekohath the sonne of Halarah keeper of the treasoure (which propheticke dwelt in Jerusalem in the seconde ward) and they communed with her. And she sayde vnto them thus: The Lorde God of Israel, trill ye the man that sent you to me: euen thus sayth the Lorde, I will bringe euill vpon this place and vpon the inhabitants thereof, euen at the curtes that are wycten in the boke which they haue before the knyng of Juda, because they haue forsaken me and haue offered vnto other gods to angre me with all maner workes of their handes, therefore is my wrath set on this agayn this place and shall not be quenched.

And as for the knyng of Juda whiche sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shall ye say to him: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel concerning the wordes which thou hast heard. Because thine heart dyd melt and thou dydest make thy selfe before God, when thou herd his wordes against this place and against the inhabitants thereof: and humbledst thy selfe before me, and tarest thy clothes and wepest before me, that haue I heard also sayth the Lorde. Beholde I will take the to thy fathers: then shall be put in thy graue in peace, & thine eyes shall not se all the myrth that I will bringe vpon this place and vpon the inhabitants of the same. And they brought the knyng worde agayne. Then the knyng sent and gathered together all the elders of Juda and Jerusalem. And the knyng went by into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and the viciaries of Jerusalem and the prelates and Leuites and all the people great and small: and red at the wordes of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the knyng stode at his standing and made a couenaunt before the Lorde, to folow the Lorde and to kepe his commandments, to wylfulness and his statutes with all his heart and with all his soule and to fulfill the wordes of the appoyntment wycten in the lawe booke.

And he made to come forth the all that were founde in Jerusalem and Beniamin, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem promysed to kepe the couenaunt of þe Lorde which was the word of their fathers. And Josias put away all maner abominations out of all landes that pertayned to the children of Israel, and brought all that were founde in Israel to serue the Lorde their God. And they turned not a syde from the Lorde God of their fathers as long as he luyed.

Josias holdeth passouer the fyrst tyme agayn the knyng of Egypt / and dyeth. The people bewail hym.

CAP. XXXV.

And Josias helde the feast of passouer vnto the Lorde in Jerusalem, and the feste passouer in the xiiij. daye of the first moneth. And he set the prelates in their offices and apoynted the in the scrupse of the lawe of the Lorde. And he sayd to the Leuites that taught thowout all Israel and were sanctified vnto the Lorde: put the holy arke in the house which Salomon the son of Dauid knyng of Israel dyd buyde, yemede not to beare it vpon your shoulders. Wherefore now serue the Lorde your God and his people Israel. And prepare your selues by your ancient householdes and compages, accordyng to the wyctyng of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place accordyng to the deuisions of the ancient householdes of youre bytchen the chyldren of the people, and after the deuision of the ancient householdes of the Leuites, & of the passouer, sanctifye and prepare your selues that they maye doo accordyng to the wyctyng of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

And Josias gaue to the common people in lambs and hyndes, for passe ouer offerynges, vnto all that were present thier thousand by tale, and thre thousande oxen, euen of þe knynges substance. And his Lorde gaue willinge both vnto the people and vnto þe prelates and vnto the Leuites. Helkias, Azarias a Zibul ruler of the house of God, gaue vnto the prelates for passe ouer offerynges two thousande and fyre hundred lambs and hyndes, and thre hundred oxen. And Eozababab Semetia and Nathaniel his bytchen, and Shafiah and Jaui and Josabab, Lades of the Leuites, gaue vnto þe Leuites, fyre thousande passe ouer offerynges, & fyre hundred oxen.

And to the scrupse went forwarde: and þe prelates stode in thier places, and the Leuites in thier compages at the knynges commaundment. And they offered passouer: and the prelates sprinkled the bloude necessarye of the Leuites, and the Leuites streped the hyndes, and they set away the burnt offerynges, to gyue them vnto the common people as they were dewtyed by ancient houses, for to offer vnto the Lorde, as is wycten in the lawe of Moses. And so dyd they wyl the orde to. And they dressed the passouer with fyre as it maner was. But the oger halowed that braues they soo in pottes, caulderns and pannes and seled them quickly amenge all the common people. And afterwarde they made for them kyndes and for the prelates and for the children of Leui, which were bounden offeringe burnt offerynges and the set vnto thier right. And thowout the Leuites, þe prelates and for the prelates the kyndes of Leui. And the singers the chyldren of Asaph stode in thier standinge accordyng to the commaundment of Dauid and Asaph, Beniamin & Judan the knynges fear of visions: and the prelates staped at euery gate, and might not departe from thier seruice: But thier bytchen the Leuites prepared for them. And so all the kyndes of the Lorde went forwarde the sayde daye, offeringe passouer of burnt offerynges vnto the house of the Lorde, accordyng to the commaundment of knyng Josias. And so the children of Israel that coude be founde, that passouer the same tyme and kepte the feast of the passouer. vii. dayes. And there was no passouer lyke to that kept in Israel frome the tyme of Samuel the prophete: neyther dyd any of the knynges of Israel holde suche a passouer feast as dyd Josias and the prelates & Leuites and all Juda, and almeche of Israel as coude be had, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And this passouer was holden in the xviij. yere of the raigne of Josias.

After all this, when Josias had synfished the temple, Necho knyng of Egypte came by to fight agaynst Arcamis vpon Euphrates, and Josias went out agaynst him. And the other sent messengers to him, sayenge: what haue I to do with the thou knyng of Juda? I came not agaynst the now at this tyme, but agaynst an house with whome I haue warre, & God bad me haste. Meane therfore and medle not with God which is with me, least he destroye the. Neuertheles Josias turned not his face fro him, but made him redy to fight with him, & hekened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouth of God. And when he was come to fight in the vale of Megiddo, & Moers shot agaynst the knyng Josias. And þe knyng sayd to his seruantes: carry me away, for I am sore hurt. And his seruantes hadde him out of that charer & put him in an other, and brought him to Jerusalem where he dyed and was buried in þe sepulchre of his fathers. And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josias. And Jeremie lamented Josias, and all singyng men and singyng women speake of Josias to this daye, and made it an ordinance in Israel: and they be wycten in lamentacions. The rest of the actes of Josias & his goodnes in folowynge the wyctyng of the lawe, & his dedes first and last are wycten in the boke of the knynges of Israel and Juda.

After Josias raigned Joachas, Joakim, Joacin, Sedekias, in whose tyme all the people were carryed away to Babilon and were brought agayne the xviij. yere after, by knyng Cyrus.

CAP. XXXVI.

And the people of the land toke Joachas the son of Josias & made him kyng agaynst his father in Jerusalem. And Joachas was. xiiij. yere olde when he began to raigne, & raigned thre monethes in Jerusalem. For the knyng of Egypte put him to dwelle at Jerusalem & ransomed the lande in an hundred talentes of siluer & a talent of golde. And the knyng of Egypte made Eliakim his brother knyng vpon Juda & Jerusalem, & turned his name vnto Joakim, but Joachas his brother Necho toke & carryed him to Egypte. Joakim was. xxi. yere old when he began to raigne, & raigned. xi. yere in Jerusalem: he dyd & displeased the Lorde his God. Agaynst him came Nabuchodonosor knyng of Babilon & boode him in fetters to carry him to Babilon. Whowout the knyng Nabuchodonosor carryed of þe vessels of þe house of the Lorde to Babilon & put them in his temple at Babilon. The rest of the actes of Joakim & his abominacions, & þe was layd to his charge, are wycten in the booke of the knynges of Israel: & Joacin his sonne raigned in his

in his stead. Joacin was. xliij. yere olde when he began to raigne, and raygned thre monethes and ten dayes in Jerusalem: and dyd displeased the Lorde. And when the yere was out, kynge Nabuchodonosor sent and fet him to Babylon with the goodly vessels of his house of the Lorde, and made Sedechias his brother kynge ouer Juda and Jerusalem.

And Sedechias was. xxi. yere olde when he began to raigne, and raygned a. xj. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde his God, and humbled not him self before the Lorde the Prophete at the mouth of the Lorde. And thereto he rebelled against Nabuchodonosor which had receyued an othe of him by god and was to spycked and to harde heered to tuerne vnto the Lorde God of Israel. Furthermore all the rulers of the priesces with the people trespassed a pace after all maner of abominations of the Panyms: & polluted his house of the Lorde whiche he had halowed in Jerusalem.

And the Lorde God of their fathers sent to them by his messengers, sendynge them by tymes: for he had compassion on his people and on his dwellynge place. But they mocked the messengers of God and despised their wordes and mispsted his prophetes, vntill the wrath of the Lorde was aroise against his people that it was past remedy. And so he brought vpon them the kynge of Caldey & slew their young men with the swerde in their holy temple, and nerther spared younge man nor mayden, nor yetther olde man, nerther so moche as him that stowped for age: But gaue all into his hand.

And all the vessels of his house of God both great and smal, and the treasures of the house of God, and the treasures of the kynge & his Lorde he caried to Babylon eueri whiche. And they burnt the house of God and brake to wne the walles of Jerusalem, and burnt all the places therof with fyre, with all the goodly stuffe therof, and marred it. And he caried awaye them that had escaped the swerde, to Babylon, where they were seruantes to him and his chyldren, vntill the kynge dome of Persia began to rule, to fulfill the word of the Lorde by the mouth of Jeremy, vntill the land had her pleasure of her Sabbothes: for as longe as the laye desolate, she kept Sabboth vntill she had fulfilled. lxx. yeres. And the first yere of Cyrus kynge of Persia to fulfill the word of the Lorde by the mouth of Jeremy, & Lorde stered by the spyrte of Cyrus kynge of Persia that he made a Proclamation thowout all his kynge dome, and set it vp in writinge, sayenge: Thus sayth Cyrus kynge of Persia, all the kynge domes of the earth the Lorde God of heauen hath gyuen me, whiche hath charged me to buylde him an house in Jerusalem that is in the lande of Juda. Wherefore who so euer is amonge you of all his people, the Lorde his God be with him, and let him go by.

THE PROPHETE.

Cyrus sendeth agayne the people that was in captiuitie, and restored them their holy vessels: & commaunded them to buylde agayne the temple.

CAPL

I.

In the fyrste yere of Cyrus kynge of Persia (that the word of the Lorde spoken by the mouth of Jeremy myght be fulfilled) the Lorde stered by the spyrte of Cyrus kynge of Persia, that he caused it be proclaimed thowout all his empyre, sea and by writinge also, sayenge: Thus sayth Cyrus the kynge of Persia: The Lorde God of heauen hath gyuen me all the kynge domes in the lande and hath commaunded me to buylde him an house at Jerusalem in Juda. Who so euer now amonge you is of his people, the Lorde his God be with him, and let him go by to Jerusalem in Juda, and buylde the house of the Lorde God of Israel. He is the God that is at Jerusalem. And who so euer remaineth yet in any maner of place (where he is a straunger) let the men of his place, helpe him with siluer and golde, with good and catel, belyde that whiche they wylle offer, for his house of God at Jerusalem.

Then gat vp the principall fathers of Juda and Beniamin, and the priesces and Levites, and all they whose spyrte God had raysed to goe by, and to buylde the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem. And all they that were aboute them, strenghted their hande with vessels of siluer and golde, with good and catell and Jewels, belyde that whiche they gaue of their freewill. And kynge Cyrus brought forth of the vessels of the house of the Lorde, whiche Nabuchodonosor had taken out of Jerusalem, and put in the house of his God. But Cyrus the kynge of Persia brought them forth by Spylidates the treasurer, and numbred them vnto Sedechas the prince of Juda. And this is the numbre of them: thirty basins of gold and a thousand basens of siluer, and nyne and fiftie argues, thirtie cuppes of golde, and of other siluer cuppes foure hundred and ten, and of other vessels a thousand. So that all the vessels both of golde and siluer, were fyue thousand and foure hundred. Sedechas brought them all by, with them that came by out of the captiuitie of Babylon vnto Jerusalem.

The numbre of them that returned from captiuitie.

CAPL

II.

These are the chyldren of the lande that went by out of the captiuitie (whome Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon had caried awaye vnto Babylon) and came a-gayne vnto Jerusalem and in to Juda, eueri one vnto his cytie, and came with Zorobabel Jesua, Nehemiah, Sataiah, Raaiarah, Mithai, Belsai, Zehai, Begai, Rehum, and Baanah. This is now the numbre of the men of the people of Israel: The chyldren of Phases, two thousand, an hundred, and lxxij. The chyldren of Sappatah thre hundred and two and seuen: the chyldren of Arary, seuen hundred and lxxv. The chyldren of Pahath Moab amonge the chyldren of Jesua, two thousand, eght hundred and twelue: the chyldren of Elam, a thousand, two hundred and foure and f. lxx. The chyldren of Zethus, nyne hundred, and fyue and foure: the chyldren of Satai, seuen hundred and thre score: the chyldren of Bani, fyue hundred and xli. The chyldren of Bebai, fyue hundred and xxiij. The chyldren of Belgai, a thousand two hundred and xxi. The chyldren of Anathani, fyue hundred, and xvi. The chyldren of Begai, two thousand and lxx. The chyldren of Abin, foure hundred and lxx. The chyldren of Nece of Ezer, eght hundred and thre and twenty: The chyldren of Jorai, an hundred and twelue: the chyldren of Ham, two hundred and thre and twenty: The chyldren of Sebar, fyue and nyne: the chyldren of Bithaiem, an hundred and thre and twenty: the men of Jetho-pha fyue and xxi: the men of Anathoth, an hundred and eght and twenty: the chyldren of Aimaer, two and forty: the chyldren of Bariah Jarim, Zephaniah and Berechiah seuen hundred and thre and forty: the chyldren of Hamai and Gabaah fyue hundred and xxi. gether an hundred and nyne and therty.

And these went by also, Theimelab, Thel, Harla, Cherub, Adon & Quier. But they could not come their fathers house nor their land, whether they were of Israel. The children of Dalaiab, the children of Tobiah, the children of Accoba, five hundred and two and fiftie. And of the children of the prelates. The children of Hobaiab, the children of Hakoz, the children of Bezilal, whiche took one of the daughters of Bezilal the Galaadite to wife, and was counted amonge the same names: these sought the register of their birth, & found none, therefore were they put from the prelat-hode. And Hachielacha layde vnto them, that they shuld not care of the most holy, tyl there come by a prelat with the * lyght and peritallite.

God. p. d. l. c.

The hole congregation as one man, was two and forty thousand, the hundred and thre score: helpe their seruantes and map-bens, of whome there were seven thousande, the hundred and seven and threty. And they had two hundred threty men and women, seven hundred and sixe and threty horses, two hundred and foue and threty camels, and six thousande, seven hundred and twenty asses. And certayne of the thre fathers, when they came to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, they offered willingly vnto the house of God, that it shoulde be set in his place, and gaue at the thre habitate vnto the treasure of * worth thre score and one thousande drammes, and foue thousand pounce of silver, and an hundred prelates garments. So the prelates and the Leuites, and certayne of the people, and the syngers, and the porters, and the Nerthinims dwelte in their cyties, and all Israel in their cyties.

And after the foundation of the temple onestime, they sacrificed vnto the Lorde.

CAP.

III.

When the seventh moneth came, and the children of Israel were now in their cyties, the people cloued together as one man, vnto Jerusalem. And Jesua the sonne of Joseder arose and his brethren the prelates, & Zorobabel the son of Salathiel and his brethren, and buyded the altar of the God of Israel, to offer burnt offerings thereon, as was written in the law of Moses the man of God, and the altar they dyd set vpon his foudment (for there was a fearfulness amonge them because of the nations and landes) and offered burnt offerings thereon vnto the Lorde the morninge and at euen. And helde the feast of Tabernacles (as is written) and offered burnt offerings dayly in order, accordinge to the house, day by day. Afterwarde the dayly burnt offerings also, and of the new sheete of all the feast dayes of the Lorde that was bawled, and all manner of frewill offering, whiche they dyd of their owne motion vnto the Lorde.

Upon the first daye of the seventh moneth beganne they to offer burnt offerings vnto the Lorde. But the foundation of the temple of the Lorde was not yet layde. Forasmuch as they gaue money vnto the masons and carpenters, and meat and drinke and oyle vnto them of Zidon and of Tyre, to buyge them timber frome Libanus by sea vnto * Joppa accordinge to the commaundement of Cyrus kynge of Persia.

In the seconde yere of their commynge to the house of God at Jerusalem and the seconde moneth, began Zorobabel sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua sonne of Joseder, and the rest of their brethren the prelates and Leuites, and all that were come out of captiuitie vnto Jerusalem, and appointed the Leuites from thence yere after and above, to ouersighte the workes of the house of the Lorde. And Jesua stood with his sonnes and brethren, and Samuël with his sonnes, and the children of Juda, to fortifie the workemen of the house of God, namely the children of Beniamin, and their brethren, and their brethren the Leuites.

And when the buyders layde the foundation of the temple of the Lorde, the prelates stood in their array, with trompettes. And the Leuites the children of Asaph with organes, to praise the Lorde * a newe maner of psalms, and organes and chawkes before the Lorde, that he is gracious, and his mercy dureth for euer vpon Israel.

And all the people shouted loude in praising the Lorde, because the foundation of the house of the Lorde was layde. And any all of the olde prelates and Leuites and masons carpenters, which had sene the first house: when the foundation of this house was layde before their eyes, wepte with a loude voyce. And many shouted with ioye, so that the people gaue a great sounde, in so much that the people could not perceiue the topfull sounde for the noise of the wepyng amonge the people: for the people shouted with a loude voyce, so that the noise was heard farre of.

The buydinge of the temple is hyndered.

CAP.

IIII.

At that tyme the aduersaries of Juda and Beniamin hearde, that the children of captiuitie buyded the temple vnto the name of God of Israel, they came to Zorobabel and to the principall sarchers, and sayd to them: We wil buyde with you: for we seke the Lorde your God as ye do. And we haue offered sacrifice vnto him, syngers that as for the house of Asuer brought vs by hyther. But Zorobabel and Jesua and the other auncient fathers of Israel answered them: It belongeth not to you, but to vs to buyde the house vnto our God: for we our selues wil buyde alone vnto the Lorde our God of Israel, as Cyrus kynge of Persia hath commaunded vs.

Then the folke of the lande hyndered the people of Juda, & made them askepe to buyde and hynd counselous against them and hyndered their druple, as long as Cyrus kynge of Persia lyued, tyl the raygne of Darius kynge of Persia. And whē Asuerus was made kynge, in the beginninge of his raygne they wrote vnto him a complaynt against them of Juda and Jerusalem.

Also in the tyme of Artaxerxes, wrote Belshazzar, Eubabates, Zabel, and the other eldres conspircate vnto Artaxerxes kynge of Persia. But the scripture of the letter, was written in the Syriens speache, and was red in the language of the Syriens. Achum the chanceler, and Samlat the scribe, wrote also in Syriens some Jerusalem, to Artaxerxes the kynge, of this tenour.

We Achum the chancelour, and Samlat the scribe, and other of the counsell of Dura, of Appasath, of Tarpat, of Persia, of Reach of Babylon, of Susan, of Deba, and of Eld, and other of the people, whome the great and noble Asenaphar brought cur, and set in the cyties of Samaria, and other on this syde the water, and in Ceneeth. (This is the summe of the letter that they sent vnto kynge Artaxerxes). The seruantes the m on this syde the water and in Ceneeth to kynge Artaxerxes grete. We it knowen vnto the kynge, that the Jews are come by frome the to vs vnto Jerusalem a cytie sedicious and frowarde, and by the same, and layde the foundation of the walls thereof, and repaie them. Knowe we therefore, O kynge, that yf this cytie be buyded and the walls made by againe, they shall not graue tribute, colle, ne pearelye custome and soeuen vnto the kynges wall this lande. But now by the we al are the

by, whiche destroyed the temple, we woll no longer se the kynges dishonour. Therefore we haue sent out, and caused the kynge to be certified thereof: that seche maye be made in the Chionyles of the progenitors, and so shall thou synde in the same Chionyles, and perceyue, that this cytie is sedicious and noysom vnto kynges and landes, and that they cause others also to rebell of olde, and for the same cause was this cytie destroyed. Therefore we certifye the kynge, that yf this cytie be buyded, & the walls thereof made by, thou shalt kepe nothinge on this syde the water by reason of it.

When sent the kynge an answer vnto Achum the chanceler, and Samlat the scribe, & to the other of their counsell that dwelt in Samaria, and vnto the other beyonde the water. Fear and salutation. The letters whiche ye sent vs, haue bene openly red before me, and I haue commaunded to make seache: and it is founde, that this cytie of olde hath made insurrection against kynges, and how that sedicion and rebellion hath bene committed therein. There haue bene myghy kynges also at Jerusalem, whiche haue raigned ouer all that is beyonde the water, and colle, tribute and preylye custome was gauen them. Do ye now after this commaundement, so by the same men, that the cytie be not buyded, tyl I haue gauen commaundement. So now ye be not negligent here in, least the kynge haue harme by meanes of it.

When kynge Artaxerxes letters were red before Achum the chanceler and Samlat the scribe and their counsell, they went by in al haste to Jerusalem vnto the Jewes, and forbade them with violence and power. They erased the worke of the house of God at Jerusalem, and continued to tyl the seconde yere of Darius kynge of Persia.

By the exhortacion of Aggeus and Zachary the temple is reedified.

CAP.

V.

The prophetes, Aggeus and Zachary & a sonne of Aho, propheted vnto the Jewes that were in Juda and Jerusalem, in the name of the God of Israel. Then gat by Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Joseder, and began to buyde the house of God at Jerusalem, and with the prophetes of God which helped them. At the same tyme came to them Thathanai the Capitayne on this syde the water, and Scharbuzanai, and their felowes, and sayd thus vnto them: Who hath commaunded you to buyde this house, and to make by the walls thereof? Then tolde we them the names of the men, that made this buydinge. But vpon the Eldres of the Jewes came the eye of their God, so that they could not cause them to cease, tyl the matter was brought afore Darius, and tyl they had answered by letters therunto.

And

This

This is the copie of the letters that Thathani capitayne on this side the water, and Scharbuzanai, and their adherentes of Apphar sach (which were on this side the water) sent unto kynge Darius. The wordes they sente unto him were these: Unto Darius the kyng All peax. We it knowen to the kyng, that we came into Jeruzi to the house of y great God which is buylded with rough stones, and beames are layd in the walles, and the worke goeth fast forth, and prospereth in their hands. We asked therefore the elders, and sayde unto them: Who hath commaunded you to buyld this house, and to make vp the walles thereof? We asked their names also, that we myghte certifie the, and haue wryten the names of the men that were their rulers. But they answered vs these wordes, and sayde: We are the seruantes of the God of heauen and earth, and buyld the house that was buylded many yeres ago, which a great kyng of Israel buylded and set vp. And after our fathers had feared y God of heauen unto wrath, he gaue the murt into the hande of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon the Calde, which ouerthrew this house, and caried the people awaye vnto Babylon. But in the first yere of Kyus the kyng of Babylon, the same kyng Kyus commaunded to buyld this house of God, for the vessels of golde and siluer in the house of God, which Nabuchodonosor toke out of the temple at Jerusalem, and brought them into the temple at Babylon, those dyd Kyus the kyng take out of the temple at Babylon, and requered them vnto Sathazar by name, whom he made Capitayne, and sayde vnto him: Take these vessels, go thy waye and bynge them vnto y temple at Jerusalem, & let the house of God be buylded in his place. Then came the same Sathazar and layd the foundation of y house of God at Jerusalem. Suches that tyme hath it bene in buyldinge, and as yet is not synfynished. Nowe therefore yf it lyke the kyng, let searche be made in the kynges treasure house at Babylon, whether it was kyng Kyus commaument, that the house of God at Jerusalem shoulde be buylded: and sende vs the kynges pleasure in this behalfe.

¶ The commaument of Darius, when the temple was buylded and dedicate, the chyldren of Israel kepte the feast of vnleued bread.

CAP. VI.

¶ Then commaunded kyng Darius, search to be made in the Library of the kynges booke, which laye at Babylon. So at Sathazanis in a cassel that lyeth in the lande of the Medes, was founde a booke, and in it was a recorde wrytten after this maner: In the first yere of kyng Kyus, commaunded kyng Kyus to buyld the house of God at Jerusalem, in the place where y sacrifice is made and to laye a foundation of thre shoure cubites hygh, and thre shoure cubites bryde, and thre walles of rough stones, and one wall of timber, and the expenses shoulde be gyven of the kynges house. And the golde and siluer vessels of the house of God (which Nabuchodonosor toke out of the temple at Jerusalem, and brought vnto Babylon) shoulde be restored agayne, that they maye be brought vnto the temple at Jerusalem to their place into the house of God.

Nowe therefore thou Thathani capitayne beyonde the water, & Scharbuzanai, & your felowes which are beyonde the water, be ye aware frome them. Let them worke in the house of God, that the Capitayne of the Jewes and their elders may buyld the house of God in his place. I haue commaunded also, what shall be done to the Elders of Jude in the buyldinge of the house of God, that they shall diligently be taken of the kynges goodes, even of the revenues beyonde the water, and gyven vnto the men, and that they bene hyndred. That yf they haue neede of calues, lambes, or goates, for burnt offeringe vnto the God of heauen, wheate, salt, wyne and oyle, after the custome of the yeades at Jerusalem be it gyven them daily that no complaine be made hereyn. And let them offe swete sacrifices vnto the God of heauen, and praye for the kynges lyfe, and for his chyldren. This commaument haue I gyven. And what man so ever allegeth these wordes, there shall a beame be taken frome his house, and he shall be hangid thereon, and his house shall be forsaken for the dede. Yea the God whiche hath made his name to dwell there, destroye all Realmes & people, that put to thier hande to alter and breake downe the house of God at Jerusalem. I Darius haue commaunded, that this be diligently done.

Then Thathani, the Capitayne beyonde the water, and Scharbuzanai with their felowes (to whome kyng Darius hadde sent) dyd their deuour. And the elders of the Jewes buylded, and they prospered (thorow) the purveyng of Aggeus the prophete and Zachary the sonne of Ad: and buylded, and in by the worke, accordinge to the commaument of the God of Israel, and after the commaument of Kyus, Darius and Artaxerxes kynges of Persia. And they were in synthyrp the house vnto the thirde daye of the moneth Adar, that was in the sixte yere of the reigne of kyng Darius.

And the chyldren of Israel, the preestes, the Levites, and the other chyldren of captivite helde the dedication of the house of God with ioye, and offered at the dedication of the house of God, an hundred calues, two hundred lambes, foure hundred goates: and for the synofferinge for al Israel twelve he goates, accordinge to the nombre of the trybes of Israel, and for the preestes in their courses, and the Levites in their offices to minster vnto God which was at Jerusalem, as is wrytten in the booke of Holes.

And the chyldren of captivite helde pacifickly, vpon the fourtenth daye, of the first moneth: for the preestes and Levites hadde purified them selves, so that they were all cleane as one man, and offered Pasche for all the chyldren of captivite, and for their brethren the preestes, and for them selves. And the chyldren of Israel, which were returned out of captivite, and all suche as hadde learned them selves frome the synthyrpnesse of the paynes in the lande to seke the Loyde God of Israel, ate and helde the feast of vnleued bread seven dayes with ioye: for the Loyde hadde made them gladd, and touned their hardes were strengithed in y worke of the house of God, which is the God of Israel.

¶ The commaument of Artaxerxes/Esdras to the chyldren of Israel/ and returneth to Jerusalem.

CAP. VII.

VII.

¶ After these thynges in the reigne of Artaxerxes kyng of Persia, there wente by frome Babylon, Esdras the sonne of Sarniab, the sonne of Asariab, the son of Belshia, the sonne of Selum, the sonne of Zador, the sonne of Ahtob, the sonne of Amariab, the sonne of Asaria, the son of Maratob, the sonne of Zaratiah, the sonne of Osi, the sonne of Nohi, the son of Abissas, the sonne of Phneco, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron the chiefe preste. This Esdras was a quicke soule in the lawe of Moses, which the Loyde God of Israel dyd gyue. And the kyng gaue him all he requyred, accordyng to the hand of the Loyde his God vpon him. So went vnto the lande of the chyldren of Israel, and of the preestes, and of the Levites, of the synghers, of the postres, and of the Netthinims vnto Jerusalem, in the seventh yere of kyng Artaxerxes. And they came to Jerusalem in the fifth moneth, that is the seventh yere of the kyng. For vpon the first daye of the first moneth began he to goo by from Babylon: and on the first daye of the fifth moneth came he to Jerusalem accordinge to the good hande of God vpon him. For Esdras prepared his herte to seke the lawe of the Loyde, and to do it, and to teache the precept and iudgement in Israel. This is the copie of the letter that kyng Artaxerxes gaue vnto Esdras the preste, the scribe, which was a teacher in the wordes of the Loyde, and of his statutes ouer Israel. Unto Esdras the preste and scribe in the lawe of the God of heauen peax and greetynge. I haue commaunded that all they of the people of Israel, and of the preestes and Levites in my realme, which are mynded to go by to Jerusalem, that they goo with the, bringe sentes of the kyng and of the seven Loydes of the counsell, to bysyt Jude and Jerusalem, accordinge to the lawe of God, which is in thy hande: and that thou take with the, siluer and golde, which the kyng and the Loydes of his counsell haue gyven of thair good wyll vnto the God of Israel (whose habitation is at Jerusalem) and all the siluer and golde thou canst fynde in all the countrey of Babylon: with that also that the people and preestes gyue of thair good wyll vnto the house of God at Jerusalem. Take thou y same and bye diligently with it, calues, lambes, goates, and sacrifices, and dynch offeringes, to be offered vpon the altare of the house of your God at Jerusalem. And loke what is lyker the and thy brethren, to do with the rest of the monye, that was after the wyll of your God. And the vessels that are gyven the for the ministracion in the house of thy God, those deliuer thou befoze God at Jerusalem.

And what so ever thyng more shall be needfull for the house of thy God, which is needfull for the to spende, let the same be gyven oute of the kynges chamber. I kyng Artaxerxes haue decreed and commaunded to all the keepers of our treasure beyonde the water, that loke who so ever Esdras the preste and scribe in the lawe of the God of heuen requyeth of you, that ye fulfill the same diligently, vntill an hundred talentes of siluer, vntill an hundred quarters of wheate, and vntill an hundred Batthes of wyne, and vntill an hundred Batthes of oyle, and salt without measure. What so ever belongeth to the ryces of the God of heuen, let the same be done with diligence for y house of the God of heuen, that there come no mych of, vpon y kynges realme and his chyldren.

And knowen be it vnto you, that ye shall haue no auctorite to requyre taxes and custome and yerely rentes vpon anye of the preestes, Levites, synghers, postres, Netthinims, and ministers in the house of this God. But thou Esdras (after the wysdome of the God that is in thy hande) set thou Judges and prebendes to iudge all the people that is beyonde Jordan, even all suche as knowe the lawe of thy God: and them that knowe it not, those se that ye teache. And who so euer wyll not diligently fulfill the lawe of thy God, and the kynges lawe, wal haue his iudgement for the dede, whether it be vnto death or to be banished or to be condemned in goodes, or to be put in prison.

¶ Prayed be the Loyde God of your fathers, which so hath inspired the kynges hert to gaenpse the house of God at Jerusalem: and hath enclined his mercye vnto me in the presence of the kyng and his counsellours, and befoze all the kynges byestates. And I was comforted (accordyng to the hand of the Loyde my God ouer me) and so gathered I the preestes of Israel together, that they myghte goo by with me.

¶ The nombre of them that returned to Jerusalem with Esdras.

CAP. VIII.

VIII.

¶ These are the heades of their fathers that were named, which wente by with me from Babylon, what tyme as kyng Artaxerxes reigned. Of the chyldren of Phinees, Gersom: Of the chyldren of Ithamar, Daniel: Of the chyldren of David, Batus: of the chyldren chyliden of Zerach, of the chyliden of Phas-ros, Zacharie, and with him were nombred an hundred and fifty men: of the chyliden of Pahath, Hoab, Eltoenai, the sonne of Zera-hiab, and with him two hundred men: of the chyliden of Zerach, the sonne of Zerahiel, and with him three hundred men: of the chyliden of Adin, Abed, the sonne of Jonathan, & with him fifty men: of the chyliden of Elam Elah, the sonne of Achabiah, and with him seventy men: of the chyliden of Saphatia, Zabadi, the sonne of Michael, and with him, xxx. men.

Of the chyliden of Joab, Obadiab the son of Jehiel, and with him two hundred & eighty-seven men: of the chyliden of Selomith the son of Joshiab, and with him an hundred & three men. Of the chyliden of Bebai, Zacharie the sonne of Bebai, and with him eighty & twenty men. Of the chyliden of Abgab, Johanan the sonne of Hakatan, and with him an hundred and ten men. Of the chyliden of Adoniram, and these were their names: Eliphelet, Jehiel and Samatah, and with them three score men.
Of the chyliden of Begui, Uthai and Zabud, and with them seventy men. And I gathered them together by the water that runneth to-warde Ahava, and there abode we three dayes.
And when I looked amonge the people and the priestes, I founde no Levites there. Then sent I Eliezer, Ariel, Semetah, Elinathan, Jarib, El-nathan, Natha, Zachary and Mosollam the rulers, and Josabab and Elinath the teachers, and those sent I unto Edo the chiefest at Calphia, that they shoulde fetch us ministers for the house of our God, and I told them what they shoulde saye unto Edo, and to his brethren the Bethinims at Calphia.

And (acordinge to the good hande of our God upon vs) they broughte vs a wise man frome the chyliden of Mohol the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israel, I meane Sarabia with his sonnes and brethren eighty seven. And Halabia, and with him Isaiab of the chyliden of Merari, with his brethren and their son-nes, twenty. And of the Bethinims, whome David and the Princes gaue to minister vnto the Levites, two hundred and twenty, all named by name.

And when there at the water besyde Ahava, caused I a fastynge to be proclaimed, that we myght humblye our selues before our God, to seke of him a right waye for vs, and oure chyliden, and all our substance. For I was ashamed to requyre of the kynge, souldiours and horsemen, and to helpe us agaynst the enemye in the waye. For we had sayd vnto the kynge:
The hande of our God is vpon all them that seke him in goodnesse, and his violence and wrathe vpon all them that forsake him. So we fasted, and soughte this at our God, and he hearde vs. Then I rote out twelue of the chief priestes, Sarabia, and Halabia, & ten of their brethren with them, and weied them there the siluer and golde, and bestelles for the offeringe vnto the house of our God, whiche the kynge and the lordes of his counsell and princes, and all Israel that were at hand, had giuen to the offeringe: and there weied I them with the hande, five hundred and fifty talentes of siluer, and in siluer beuell an hundred talentes, and in golde an hundred talentes, twenty pes-ces of golde of a thousand diameters, and the costly ornaments of good brylliant, as cleare as golde, and sayd vnto them: Ye are holpe by the Loyde, therefore are the bestelles holpe also,

and so is the siluer and golde: that is giuen
a good will vnto the Loyde God of your fathers: Watche ye therefore and kepe it, till I weie it downe before the chief Priestes and Leuites, and auncient fathers of Israel at Jerusalem in the Tresaurie of the house of the Loyde. Then toke the Priestes and Leuites the weied siluer and golde and beuell, and brou-gt it to Jerusalem vnto the house of our God.
So we marched forwarde, from the water of Ahava, on the twelue daye of the first mo-neth, to goo vnto Jerusalem: and the hande of our God was vpon vs, and discomfited frome the hande of the enemye and they awayte by the waye. And we came to Jerusalem, and abode there three dayes. Now on the fourth daye was the siluer and golde, and beuell weied in the house of our God by the hande of Meremoth the sonne of Uriah the Prieste, and with him Eleazar the son of Phariseus, and with him Josabab the sonne of Je-ru, and Noabiah the sonne of Beor the Leui-tes, acordinge to the nombre and weight of euerie one. And the weight was all wright at the same tyme.

And the chyliden of the captivitye, whiche were come oute of pryson, offered humblye offerings vnto the God of Israel: the chyliden lookes for all Israel, nyntye and six hundred: seuentye and seven lamber, and thre goates for a synne offeringe, all to the house of offeringe of the Loyde. And the bestelles offeringe comynge vnto the kynge, and to the captyues on this syde the water.
And they auaunced the people, and the house of God.

Esdras complaunteth on the people, that had not kepte their selues frome God, and interceded with the gentyles.

CAPL.

IX.

When all this was performed, the ministres came to me, and sayde: the people of Israel and the Priestes and Leuites are not seuered from the nations in the landes touching their abominations, namely of the Canaanites, Bethinims, Phereizes, Jebusites, Ammonites, Moabites, Egyptians, and others. For they haue taken their daughters and their sonnes, and haue mingled them with the nationes of the landes: and moreouer the hande of the pryces and cap-tyues hath ben pryncypall in this trespass. And I herde this, I tare my clothes and my mantle, and pte of the heere of my head of my berde, and sat mourninge. Then told vnto me all suche as feared the word of the Loyde God of Israel, because of the transgression.

And I late mourninge tyll the evenynge sacrifice. And aboute the euynge sacrifice, I rose vp fro my heupnelle, and rente my clothes and my rayment, and fell vpon my knees, and layd out my handes vnto the Loyde my God, and sayd. My God, I am ashamed, and dare not lyte by myne eyes vnto the my God: for our wykednesse are growen ouer our head, & our trespasses are waxen great vnto the heern: Suches the tyme our fathers, haue we ben in great trespase vnto this daye, and because of our wykednesse haue we and oure kynge ben giuen vp in to the hande of the pry-ces of the nationes in to the swerde, in to bondage, in to pte, and in to confusion of face, as it is come to passe this daye.

But now a litle and sodayne graciousnes is come from the Loyde our God, so that some of vs are escaped, that he maye giue vs a nape in his holy place, that our God maye lyght oure eyes, and giue vs a lytle lyfe in oure bondage.
For we are bondmen, and our God hath not foraken vs in our bondage, but hath enclined mercye vnto vs in the sight of the kinges of Persia, that he shoulde giue vs lyfe, & auaunce the house of our God, and buyde vp the desolate places therof, and to giue vs an hedge in Juda and Jerusalem.

And now, O our God: what shall we saye after this? for we haue forsaken thy commaundementes, whiche thou haste commaunded by thy seruantes the Prophetes, and sayd: The lande vnto whiche ye go to possesse, is vncleane because of the filthynesse of the people of the landes, by their abominations wherewith they haue filled it with vncleannes on euery syde.

Therefore ye shall not giue your daughters to their sonnes, and their daughters shall ye not take vnto your sonnes, and take not their peasant wylthe for euer, that ye maye be stronge and enlarge the good in the lande, and that ye and your chyliden maye haue the inheritance of it for euermore.

And after all this that is come vpon vs, by-cause of our tynfulnes and great trespase thou our God hast spured oure wykednesse, and hast giuen vs a deliquance as it is come to passe this daye.

And neuertheless we haue touned backe, and haue let goo thy commaundementes, to take contrarie with the people of these abominations. Wylte thou then be wrothe with vs, tyll we be vtterly consumed, so that no thyng remayne, and tyll there be no deliquan-ce? O Loyde God of Israel thou art righteous: for we remayne yet escaped, as it is this daye. Beholde in thy presence are we in oure trespase, for because of it there is no standing before the.

Wyle Esdras prayed after this maner, and knowleged, wept, and laye before the house of God, there reioyced vnto

him out of Israel a very great nombre of men and women, & chyliden: for the people wepte very sore. And Sechanias the sonne of Jehiel one of the chyliden of Elam, answered & sayd vnto Esdras: We haue trespassed agaynst the Loyde oure God, in that we haue taken straunge wyues of all the people of the lande. Nowe there is hope yet in Israel concerninge this, therefore let vs make a couenaunt nowe with our God, to put awaye all the wyues, & suche as are boine of them, accordinge to the counsell of the Loyde, and of them that feare the commaundement of oure God, that we maye too accorde to the lawe. Get the by therfore, for the matter belongeth vnto the. We will be with the, be of good comforte and wo-te. Then rose Esdras, and toke an othe of the rulers, Priestes and Leuites, and of all Israel, that they shoulde too accorde to this woide: and they swore. And Esdras rode vp before the house of God, and wente in to the chambre of Johanan the sonne of Eliashib.
And when he came thither, he ate no bread, nor dranke water: for he mourned bycause of the transgression of them that had bene in captiuitie.

And they caused a proclamation be made the same oute Juda and Jerusalem, vnto all the chyliden whiche had ben in captiuitie, that they shoulde reioyce vnto Jerusalem: And that who so euer came not within thre dayes, acordinge to the determination of the euers and elders, all his substance shoulde be forfeyt, and he to be put out of the congregation of the captiue.
Then all the men of Juda and Benjamin assembled vnto Jerusalem in thre dayes, that is on the twente daye of the nynteth moneth:
and all the people sate in the strete before the house of God, and trembled bycause of the synnes, and for the sayne. And Esdras & the priest rode vp and sayd vnto them: Ye haue transgressed, in that ye haue taken straunge wyues, to make the trespase of Israel yet more: con-fesse nowe therefore vnto the Loyde God of your fathers, and to his pleasure, and sende your liues frome the people of the lande, and frome the straunge wyues. Then answered all the assemble, and sayd with a loud voyce: Let it be done as thou hast sayde. But the people are many, and it is a raynye wetter, and they can not stande here without, neyther is this a woyke of one daye or two, for we are manye haue offended in this transgression. Let vs ap-poynte oure rulers therefore in all the congregation, & all they whiche haue taken straunge wyues in oure cyties, maye come at the tyme appoynted, and the elders of euery cite, and they Judges with them, tyll the mathe of our God be touned awaye frome vs for this offence.

Then were appoynted Jonathan the sonne of Akab, and Jahakia, the sonne of Shekua ouer this matter: And Mosollam and Saba-thai the Leuite holpe them. And the chyliden of the captiuitie, oyd euen so. And Esdras the priest, and the auncient beades thow the house of they fathers, and all that were now techered by name, seuered them selues, and sat

sayde vnto me: The remnaunt of the captiui-tie are there in the lande in greate myssfortune and rebuke. * The walles of Ierusalem are broken downe, and the gates therof are brent with fyre.

When I heerde these wordes, I late me where and wepte, and mourned thre dayes, and fasted and prayed befoze the God of heauen, and sayd: O Lorde God of heuen, thou great and terrible God, * thou that keepst

 Then sayde the kynge vnto me : why lokest thou so sadly? Thou art not sycke, this is not vnto the kynge : God saue the kynges life for euer : wolde I not loke sadly ? the cite of my

Here xxxiij. Zacha. xliiij.

Ad Eliash the high prest gat him by his brethren the prestes, and buyded the Westegate. They repaired it, & sette by the wyse of it: euen vnto the tower of the Westegate. They repaired it, namely vnto the tower of Bananeel. After vnto him buyded Sachne the sonne of Ami. But the Westegate by the children of Ananah buyde, they couered it, and set on the doores lockes and barres of it. Next vnto him buyded Barimoth the sonne of Uriah the sonne of Bakoz. Next vnto him buyded Mosalam the sonne of Barachiah the sonne of Mesabeel. Next vnto him buyded Zadoe the son of Baana. Next vnto him buyded they of Tekua. But their great me put not their needes to the seruice of this Roide.

The oldgate buyded Josaba the sonne of Pascah, and Mosalam the sonne of Besodiah they couered it, and sette on the doores, lockes, and barres. After vnto them buyded Malatiah of Gaboon, and Jazon of Merano, men of Gaboon, and of Maspha for the scate of the captayne on this syde the water. After vnto him buyded Tiel the sonne of Harbath the goldsmith. Next vnto him buyded Hananiah the Apotearers sonne, and they repaired Ierusalem vnto the broad wall. After vnto him buyded Kaphtiah the sonne of Hur the ruler of the halfe quarter of Ierusalem. Next vnto him buyded Jedajah the sonne of Harimaph ouer agaynst his house. Next vnto him buyded Hatus the sonne of Hatabonah. But Helchia the sonne of Harim, and Hasub the son of Bahath Moab buyded the other pite, and the towne beside the fountaine. After vnto him buyded Serum the sonne of Balobes the ruler of the halfe quarter of Ierusalem, and his daughters.

The bailey gate buyded Manan, and the citeryus of Zanoah. They buyded it, and set on the doores, lockes and barres, and a thousande cubits on the walle, vnto donge gate. But dongegate buyded Melchiah the sonne of Keleab the ruler of the fourth parte of the bynes: he buyded it, and set on the doores, lockes and barres therof. But the Westegate buyded Serum the sonne of Chohabab, the ruler of the fourth part of Masphah. He buy-ded it, and couered it, and set on the doores, lockes, and barres, and the wall vnto the palle. Siloah by the kinges garden, vnto the palle goe downe from the wyse of David. After him buyded Arhemias the sonne of Bok, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Bethan: he buyded the other pite ouer agaynst the chies of David, and the pole Asuta, and vnto the house of the myghtye.

After him buyded the Leuites, Return the sonne of Dani. After vnto him buyded Sababiah the ruler of the halfe quarter of Bethan in his quarter. After him buyded the Leuites, Sauai the sonne of Banabad, the ruler of the halfe quarter of Bethan. After him buyded Ezer the sonne of Josua the ruler of the phah, the other pite harde ouer agaynst the harnesse corner. After him buyded Baruch the sonne of Zabar: the other pite wostlylye coldy, from the corner vnto the wyse of Jach of Eliash the byghe prest. After him buyded Marimuth the sonne of Uriah the son of Bakos the other pite, from the wyse of the byke of Eliash, euen as long as the house of Eliash extended. After him buyded the prestes, the men of the countrey. After him buyded Ben Jamin and Hasub ouer agaynst their house: after them Alariah the son of Masahab the son of Ananias next vnto his house. After him buyded Benai the sonne of Banabad, the other pite from the house of Alariah, vnto the turnage, and vnto the corner. After him buyded Shalel the sonne of Elai ouer agaynst the corner and the bye towne, whiche lyeth out ouer from the kinges house, besyde the count of the pylon. After him Phadiah the sonne of Pharus (as for the prests they dwelt in Ophel, vnto the water gate, toward the wall where the towne lyeth oute.) After him buyded they of Tekua the other pite ouer agaynst the great towne that lyeth outwarde, and vnto the wall of Ophel.

But from holic gate forth buyded the prestes, euerpe one ouer agaynst his house. After them buyded Zadoe the sonne of Emri ouer agaynst his house. After him buyded Semiah the sonne of Serbanah her of Sagan. After him buyded Hananiah son of Selema, a Hanun son of Zalaph the sext, the other pite. After him buyded Mosalam the sonne of Barachiah ouer agaynst his treasure. After him buyded Melchiah the goldsmithes son, vnto the house of prests, and of the marchantes ouer agaynst the counseil gate, & to the pylon in the corner. And bytwene the pylons of the corner vnto Westegate buyded the goldsmithes and the marchantes.

The buydng of Ierusalem is hyndred and lit, but the Jewes buyde it beinge rebeyd harnessed: lit theyr entences quide made them.

CAPL.

IIII.

When Sanababal heere that we buyded the wall, he was wroth, and roke great indignation, and mocked the Jewes, and sayd before his brethren and the hoole of the multitude what do the weake Jewes? Shall they be suffered? Shall they offer? Shall they presume it in one daye? Shall they make the dones poise agayne that are brought to bulle and hewe? And Tobias the Ammonite besyde him sayd: let them buyde on, yf a foxe go by he shall breake downe their stony wall. I heare then our God how we are despised, turne then same vpon their owne heed, that thou mayest geue them ouer in to despisinge in the lande of their captiuitie. Loues not their wickednesse, and put not oute these synne frome thy presence: for they haue prouoked the bull. Yet buyded we the walle, and loyned the to together vnto the halfe byegthe. And the people were well mynded to laboure. But when Sanababal and Tobias, and the Arabians, and Ammonites, and Moabites heere that the walles of Ierusalem were made up, and that they had begon to stope by the gapes, they were very wrothe, and conspyed all together to come and fyghe agaynst Ierusalem, and to make an hynderaunce therein. Nevertheless we made our prayer vnto our God, and let watchemen vpon the walle daye and nyght ouer agaynst them. And Iuda sayd: the strength of the beastes is to feble, and there is to make dull, we are not habile to buyde by the wall. And our aduersaries thought: they shal not knowe neither se, tyll we come in the myddes amonge them, and see them, and hinde the wyke. But when the Jewes dwelt byde them came out of all the places where they dwelt aboute vs, and tolde vs as good as ten tymes: then set I the people after their hundreds with their swordes, speeres and bowes in the lowe places behynde the wall, and loke, and gat me vp, and sayde vnto the chiefe men and rulers, and to the other people: be not ye afrayde of them, & thynke vpon the greates Roide, whiche oughte to be feared, and fyghe for your brethren, sonnes, daughters, wyues, and houses. Nevertheless when our enemies heere that we had gotten word of it, God broughte the counseil to thought, and we turned all agayne to the wall euerpe one vnto his labour. And from that time byde it came to passe, that the halfe parte of the fonge men byd the labour, and the other halfe parte helde the speeres, bowes, bows, and bydplates: and the rulers stode by the walle, and bare burthens frome those that labored them. With one hande byd they the wyke, and with the other helde they theyr weapons. And euerpe one that buyded, hadde his swerde gyde by his syde, and so buyded they: and the trompetters stode besyde me. And I sayde vnto the principall men and rulers, and to the other people: the wyke is greates and large, and we are diuided vpon the walle euerpe one frome an other. Loke in what place euerpe ye heare the noyse of the trompet: re-lyste ye thither vnto vs. Our God shal fyghe for vs, and we wyl be labourynge in the wyke. And the halfe parte of them helde the speeres frome the moynynge spyngge, tyll the sunne came forth. And at the same tyme sayd

I vnto the people: euerpe one abyde with his seruauce at Ierusalem, that in the nyghte season, we maye geue attendaunce to the watche, and to labour on the daye tyme. Surely I and my brethren and my seruantes, and the men of the watche behynde me, we put neuer of our clothes, so moch as to washe our selues.

The people are vexed with honger. Nehemias for- bydeth viurye. He requyryth not the leuynge of a captayne.

CAPL.

V.

Ad there arose a great complaint of the people and of their wyues agaynst their brethren & Jewes. And there were some that sayd: our sonnes and oure boughters are to many, let vs take coyne for them and cate, that we maye lyue. Some sayd: let vs set our landes, vineyardes and houses to pledge, and take vp coyne in the oerth. But some sayd: let vs borrowe monney of the kinges tribute for our landes and vineyardes. Now are our brethrens bodies as our owne bodies, and theyr children as our children: elles shalbe we subdue our sonnes and boughters vnto bondage, and some of oure boughters are subdued alreadye, and no strength is there in our handes, and other men shal haue oure landes and vineyardes.

But when I heerde theyr complaynte and suche wordes, it displeased me soze, and I reuolued so in my mynde, that I rebuked the heades & rulers, and sayd vnto them: & wyl ye requyre viurye one of an other? And I brought a great congregacion agaynst them, and sayd vnto them: we (after our habilitie) haue bought our brethren the Jewes, whiche were solde vnto the paynnes. And wyl ye sell your brethren, whome ye haue boughte vnto vs? When helde they theyr peace, and coude fynde nothynge to answer.

And I sayde: It is not good that ye wo. Doughte ye not to walke in the feare of God, because of the rebuke of the Iepthen ouer enemies? I and my brethren, and my seruantes haue lent them money and coyne: but as for viurye, let vs leaue it. Therefore this same daye, se ye restore them theyr landes agayne, theyr vineyardes, oyle gardenes, and houses, yes, the hundred parte of the money, of the coyne, wyne, and oyle, that ye haue wonne of them. Then sayd they: we wyl restore them agayne, and wyl requyre nothynge of them, and wyl do as thou hast spoken. And I called the prestes, & toke an othe of them, that they sholde do so. And I woke my lappe and sayde: God wake out euerpe man after the same manner frome his house and labour, that maye reuyneth not this wyke: each thus be he waken out, and vopde. And all the congregacion sayd, Amen: and prayed the Roide. And I people byd so. For the olde capitaynes that were before me, had ben chargeable unto the people, and hadde taken of them bread and wyne, and forty sicles of siluer: yea and their seruantes hadde oppressed the people. But so did not I, and that because of the feare of God. I laboured also in the worke vpon the walles, and boughte no lande. And all my seruantes came thither together vnto the worke. Moreover there were at my table an hundred and fiftie of the Jewes and rulers, whiche came vnto me from the Banymys that are about vs, and there was prepared me dayly an oxe, and fye chosen shepe and bydes, and euer ones in ten dayes a greete quantite of wyne. CAPL VI.

And when Sanabalat, Tobiah, and Geselem the Acauan, and the other of our enemies herd that I had bylded the wall, and that there were no moor breakes therein (how be it at the same tyme I had not hanged the dores vpon the gates) Sanabalat and Geselem sent vnto me, sayinge: come and let vs mete together in the villages vpon the playne of the cite Dno. Neuerthelesse they thought to doo me euill. Notwithstandyng I sent messengers vnto them, sayinge: I haue a great busynesse to do, I can not come downe. The worke wolde daube vpon I were slacke and came downe to you. How be it they sente vnto me as good as foure tymes after the same manner. And I gaue the same answer. Then sente Sanabalat his seruante vnto me the fiftie tyme, with an open letter in his hande, wherein was wyrtten: it was tolde the heythen, and Geselem hath sayde it, that thou and the Jewes thynke to rebell: for the whiche cause thou bylded the walles, and wylste be their kynge in these maters, and hast oppressed the prophetes to preache of the at Jerusalem, and to saye he is kynge of Iuda. Nowe what this come to the kinges eares: come nowe cherefore, & let vs take hur counsel together. Neuerthelesse I sent vnto him, sayinge: there is no suche chynge wone as thou sayest: thou hast sayned it out of thynne owne herte. For they were all mynded to make vs as trayde, and thought: they wyl withdrawe these handes from the worke, that they wyl not laboure. How be it I strenghted my hande the more. And I came vnto the house of Semeliah the sonne of Delaiah the son of Shepharabael, and he had shut him selfe within, and said: let vs come together in to the house of God, euen in to the middes of the temple, and shut the dores of the temple: for they wyl come to sle the, yea euen in the night wyl they come to put I to deth. But

I said: Wolde any suche man as I seele I that bring as I am, that wil go in to the temple to saue his lyfe? I wyl not go in. In I perceyued I God had not sent him: Yet he prophesie vpon me, neuerthelesse Tobiah, Sanabalat had hyred him for money. The fore toke he the money, that thoughte I wolde so do, and thynke: that they might haue an euill reporte of me, to blasphem me. For God thynke thou vpon Tobias and Semeliah, accordyng vnto these their wordes, of the prophet Hoadiah, and of the other prophet, that wolde haue put me in feare. And the wal was synfished on the fyue and twente daye of the moneth Elul, in two and fiftie dayes. And when all our conynyes herde thereof, all the heythen that were about vs, were afraide and their courage sayled them: for they perceyued that this worke came of God. In the same tyme were there manye of the chylde of Iuda, whose letters wente vnto Tobias, from Tobias vnto them: for there were manye in Iuda I were swayne vnto him: for he was the sonne in lawe of Sechaniah, the sonne of Arah, and his sonne Iohanan had the daughter of Mosalam the sonne of Barachiah, and they spake good of him before me and tolde him my wordes, and Tobias sente letters, to put me in feare.

After the wall ones bylded the walles is repopuled. They that returned from the captivite are nombred.

CAPL VII.

When we hadde bylded the wall I byged on the woies, and the porters, the gees, & Leuites were appoynted. And I commaunded my brother Hanani and Hananiah the ruler of the palace at Jerusalem (for he was a faythful man, and feared God more then byd many other,) And I sayd vnto them: let not the gates of Jerusalem be opened vnto the sonne be hot. And whyle they are yet in synge in the walles the dores wyl be shut and barred. And there were certayne citizins of Jerusalem appoynted to be watchemen, euer one in his walles, and aboute his house. And the cite, was large of towne and greete, but the people were few therein, & the houses were not bylded.

And my God byd put in my herte that I gathered together the principall men, and the people to nombze them, and I founde a register of the nombze of them, whiche came by foure oute of the captivite: and founde wyrtten therein: * these are the sonntes of the land that wente by from the captivite of the kinge of Babilon had broughte awaye) and came to his cite, whiche came with Zorobabel: Iesua, Nehemias, Azariah, Baanab, Sabum, Marbochee, Belsan, Belsarath, Bepai, and Baanab.

The Artumims. The chylde of Ziba, the chylde of Hapupha, the chylde of Eba, the chylde of Zeror, the chylde of Phadon, the chylde of Zebad, the chylde of Hagaba, the chylde of Salmai, the chylde of Hanan, the chylde of Gabel, the chylde of Gaber, the chylde of Kaia, the chylde of Kamin, the chylde of Arcoba, the chylde of Gesein, the chylde of Alla, the chylde of Phasab, the chylde of Belsai, the chylde of Azumim: the chylde of Sephusalim, the chylde of Bachuc, the chylde of Bacupha, the chylde of Harhur, the chylde of Bazith, the chylde of Mahida, the chylde of Harfa, the chylde of Berco, the chylde of Silera, the chylde of Thamab, the chylde of Harlah, the chylde of Haripha.

The chylde of Salomons seruantes: The chylde of Sotai, the chylde of Sophter, the chylde of Phetiba, the chylde of Zaala, the chylde of Darcon, the chylde of Sidel, the chylde of Saphatiah, the chylde of Haril, the chylde of Pochereth of Zaba, the chylde of Amos. All the Artumims & the chylde of Salomons seruantes were thye hundred, nyne and two.

And thye wente by also of Thel Mela, Thel Harla, Cherub, Adon and Ezer: but they coulde not fynde the fathers house, nor they seed, whether they were of Israel. The chylde of Dalaiab, the chylde of Eobia, and the chylde of Arcoba, fye hundred and two and fower. And of the priestes the chylde of Ihabiah: the chylde of Haros, the chylde of Berthai, whiche took one of the daughters of Berthai the Galaadite to wyfe, and was named after the name. These soughte the register of theire pedigree, & when they founde it not, they were put from the Priesthode. And Iahuratha sayd vnto them, that they shoulde not eate of the moos holys, tyll there came by a Priest with the light and perfectnesse.

The hole congregation as one man, was two and fower thousande, thye hundred and thye scoie, besyde their seruantes and maydes, of whome there were seven thousande, thye hundred and seven and thye. And they had two hundred and seven and fower synginge men and women, seven hundred and fye and thye horses, two hundred and fye and fower mules, fower hundred and fye and thye camelles: fye thousande, seven hundred and twente asses.

And certayne of the auncient fathers gaue vnto the worke. Iahuratha gaue to the treasure a thousande drammes, fye bakens, fye hundred and thye pteges garments. And some of the chiefe fathers gaue vnto the treasure of the worke twenty thousande bakens, two thousande and two hundred pound of silver. And the other people gaue twenty thousande drammes, and two thousande pounde of silver, and thye scoie and seven pteges garments. And the Priestes and Leuites, the porters, the syngers, and the other of the people and the Artumims, and all Israel dwelte in their cites.

Esdras gathereth the people and readeth to them the lawes. They kepte the feast of tabernacles.

CAPL VIII. When

Jerusalem, and from the villages of Bethphage, and from the house of Galgal, and out of the fields of Geba and Bethanath: for the singers had supplied them villages about Jerusalem. And the priests and Levites purified them selves, and cleansed the people, the gates and the wall.

E And I caused the princes of Juda to go by upon the wall, and appointed two great queers of thanksgiving, which went on the right hand of the wall towards the Donge gate, and after them went Hosaiab, and half of the princes of Juda, and Asaria, Esdras, Mosolom, Juda, Ben Jamin, Semerab and Jerem: and certayne of the prelates childen with trompettes, namely Zachary the sonne of Jonathan, the sonne of Semerab, the son of Mathaniah, the sonne of Michaiab, & son of Zecur, the sonne of Asaph, and his brethren Semerab, Asarai, Melalai, Galalai, Maat Nathanael and Juda and Hanani, with the musical instrumentes of David the man of God.

And Esdras the scribe before them, towards the Westgate, and they went by our against them upon the steps of the city of David at the gorge by of the wall to the house of David, unto the Watergate eastward.

D The other queer of thanksgiving went over against them, and I after them, and the half part of the people upon the wall, towards the Watergate upwards, until the broad wall, and to the gate of Ephraim, and to the tower of Hananai, & to the tower of Sheph, until the Watergate. And in the pylongate stood they all, and to stand the two queers of thanksgiving of the house of God, and I and the half of the rulers with me, and the prelates, namely Eliakim, Maasiah, Asiniam, Michaiab, Elioenai, Zachary, Hananiah, Eleazar, Ueli, Jozanan, Melchiah, Elam and Ser. And the singers sang loud, and Jezraia was the organist.

And the same day were there great sacrifices offered, and they rejoiced: for God had given them great gladnes, so that both the wyves and children were joyful, and the mythe of Jerusalem was very farre of.

At the same tyme were men appointed over the treasure chests (wherein were the offerings, firstfrutes, & the tythes) that they should gather them out of the fields about the cities to deale them unto the prelates and Levites, according to the law: for Juda was glad of the prelates, and Levites, that they stood and waited upon the office of their God, and the office of the clefinge. And the singers & porters stood after the commaundment of David and of Salomon his sonne: for in the tyme of David and Asaph, were the chiefe singers constituted, and the songes of praise and thanksgiving unto God. In the tyme of Zorobabel and Nehemias, by all Israel, gave portions unto the singers and porters, every day his portion, and they gave thynges halowed unto the Levites, and the Levites gave thynges that were sanctified, unto the children of Aaron.

D Deuteronomy is recorde, and when they have heard it, they severed from them all strangers.

CAPL.

XIII.

A And what tyme as the booke of Holm was red in the eares of the people, there was founde written therein, & that the Ammonites and Moabites should never come into the congregation of God, because they met not the children of Israel with bread & water, and byed Balaam against them, that he should curse them: nevertheless our God turned the curse into a blessing. Now when they herde the Lawe, they severed from Israel me one that had mythe him self therein. And before this had the prelate Eliakim byed the chest of the house of our God unto his kyneman Tobiah: for he had made him a great chest and there had they afore tyme layde the thynges, frankincense, vessell, and the tythes of coyne, wyne and oyle (according to the commaundment given to the Levites, singers and porters) and the firstfrutes of the prelates.

But in all this was not I at Jerusalem: for in the two and thirtieth yere of Artaxerxes kynge of Babylon, came I unto the kynge, and after certayne dayes I got licence of the kynge to come to Jerusalem. And I gat knowledge of the euill that Eliakim had done to Tobiah, in that he had made him a chest in the court of the house of God, and it grew to store, and I call forth all the vessels of the house of Tobiah out of the chest, and commaunded them to cleanse the chest. And they brought I agayne the vessels of the house of God, the sacrifice and the incense.

And I perceived, that the portions of the Levites were not given them, for which cause the Levites and singers were fled, every one to his lande for to worke. Then reposed I the rulers, & sayd: Why forsake we the house of God? But I gathered them together, and set them in their place. Then brought all Juda the tythes of coyne, wyne and oyle unto the treasure. And we ordeyned to be treasurers over the treasure, even Selemaiah the prelate, Zawe the scribe, and of the Levites Phasaiab and under their hande Hanan the sonne of Zecur the sonne of Mathaniah: for they were counted faithfull, and their office was to distribute unto their brethren. I thinke me my God herein, and wyte not of my mercy, that I have shewed on the house of my God, and on the officers thereof.

At the same tyme sawe I some tread upon the prelates on the Sabbath and bying in cludges, and asses laden with wyne, grapes, figges, and bying all manner of burthen unto Jerusalem, upon the Sabbath day. And I rebuked them earnestly the same day that they solde the bytapes. There dwelt of Tyre also therein, which brought all manner of ware, and solde on the Sabbath unto the children of Juda and Jerusalem. Then reposed I the rulers in Juda, & sayde unto them: what euill thyng is this ye do, & breake the Sabbath day? Whyd not our fathers care it as & our God brought all this plague upon us and upon this city? And ye make the more yet upon Israel, in that ye breake the Sabbath.

And it fortuned, that when the gates of Jerusalem were touched with the evening shadowe on the Sabbath, I commaunded to shut the gates, and charged that they should not be opened till after the Sabbath: & some of my scrablers set I at the gates, that they should no burthen be brought in on the Sabbath day. Then remained the chapmen and marchantes once or twyse over nyght with the Jerusalem, with all manner of wares. Then reposed I them forth, and sayde unto them: why tarpe ye all nyght about the wall? If ye do it ones agayne, I will laye hands upon you. Frome that tyme forth came they no more on the Sabbath. And I sayd unto the Levites which were cleane, that they should come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Sabbath day. I thinke upon me (my God) concerning this also, and spare me according to thy great mercy.

And at the same tyme sawe I Jewes, that were of the kynge of Ammon, and of Moab, and thicke children spake halfe in the speche of Ammon, and coude not speake in the Jewes language, but by the longe night a man perceived every people. And I reposed them, and cursed them, and smote certayne men of them and put them by, and toke an othe of them by God: ye shall not geve your daughters unto their sonnes, neither shall ye take their daughters unto your sonnes, or for your selues. Did not Salomon the kynge of Israel synne therein? & yet amonge many paynmes was there no kynge lyke him, and he was deare unto his God, and God made him kynge over all Israel, and yet nevertheless straunge women caused him to synne? And shall we then obey you to you, to do all this great euill, to halte before our God, and make straunge wyves?

And one of the children of Tolada the son of Eliakim the hygh prelate, hadde made a contract with Sanababat the Moabite: but I chased him frome me. O my God, thinke thou upon them that desyre prelatode, and I save of the prelatode and of the Levites. Thus cleansed I them frome all suche as were strangers, and appointed the courses of the prelates and Levites, every one to his office, and to office the wood or tymes appointed, and the firstfrutes. I thinke thou upon me (O my God) for the ben.

The ende of the booke of Nehemias.

Capre Asuerus, whiche is called Artaxerxes malieth a royall feaste, wherunto the queene Vasthi wil not come: for whiche cause she is diuorced.

CAPL

I.

In the tyme of Asuerus which raygned from Inde vnto Ethiopia, ouer an hundred and seuen and twenty landes, what tyme as he sat on his seate royal in the castel of Susan in the thirde yere of his raygne, he made a feast vnto all his princes and seruantes, namely vnto the myghty men of Persia and Media, to the capytaynes and rulers of his counteryes, that he myght shewe the noble rebes of his kyngdome, and the glorious worshippe of his power, many dayes longe, euen an hydred and foure score dayes.

And when these dayes were ended, the kyng made a feast vnto all the people that were in the castel of Susa, both vnto great & small, seuen dayes longe in the court of the garden
by the kynges palace: where there hanged whete, red and yelow clothes, fastened with cordes of linnen and scarlet in bluer rynges, vpon pylers of Marble stone.

The benches were of gold and siluer made vpon a pavement of grene, white, yelow and blacke Marble. And the drinke was caryed in vessels of golde, and there was euer change of vessel. And the kynges wyne was caryed moche, accordyng to the great power of the kyng. And no man was appoynted what he shulde drinke: for the kyng had commaunded all the officers of his house, that euer one shoulde do as it liked him. And the queene Vasthi made a feast also for the women in the palace of Asuerus. And on the viij. daye when the kyng was pleasauntly meep of the wyne he commaunded Methuman, Bartha, Harbona, Bagatha, Abagatha, Zathar and Caras
the viij. chamberlaynes, that shoulde serue in presence of kyng Asuerus, to fetch the queene Vasthi with the crowne regal, that he myght shewe the people and princes her fairnesse: for she was bewtyfull. But the queene Vasthi wolde not come at the kynges wynde by his chamberlaynes. Then was the kyng verie wrothe, and his indignacion kyndled in him, and he spake to the wyse men that had vnderstandinge in the ordinaunces of the lande, for the kynges matters must be handled before al suche as haue knowledg of the lawe and iu-gement: and the next vnto him were, Car-sana, Setbar, Admatha, Tharlis, Mares, Masana and Mamucan, the seuen princes of the Persians, and Medes, whiche sawe the kynges face, and were wont to sit first next him, what lawe shulde be execute vpon the queene Vasthi, because she dyd not accordyng to the wynde of the kyng by his chamberlaynes.
Then sayde Mamucan before the kyng and the princes: the queene Vasthi hath not onely hurt the kyng, but also all the princes and al

the people in all the prouinces of kyng Asuerus, for this dede of the queene shall come aboue vnto all women, so that they shall despyse their husbandes before their eyes, and shall saye: the kyng Asuerus commaunded Vasthi to come to come before him, but she wolde not. And by this example shall all the princes wyse of Persia and Media set at naught the commaun-dement of their husbandes, when they here of this dede of the queene, thus shall there be despyctulnes and wrath ynough. If it please the kyng, let there go forth a proclamacion frome him, and let it be written ac-cordyng to the lawe of the Persians and Medians (and not to be transgressed) that Vasthi come no moze before kyng Asuerus, and let the kyng geue the kyngdome vnto another that is better then she.

And that this wytyng of the kyng whiche shalbe made, be published thowhe out all his empyre which is great, that all wyse men haue their husbandes in danoure, both great & small. This pleased the kyng & the princes, & the kyng dyd accordyng to the word of Mamucan. Then were letters sent forth to all the kynges landes, into euery lande ac-cordyng to the wytyng therof, and to euery people after their language, that euerie man shulde be Lorde and chiefe in his owne house.
And this caused he to be diuorced amonge all
people.

The queene put awaye, certayne goodly yowdamoyselles are searched out amonge whom Esther pleased the kyng. Harboreus desired to the kyng those that wolde betraye him.

CAP.

II.

These thinges done vnto the displeasure of kyng Asuerus was alayed he thought vpon Vasthi, what she had done, & when it was concluded concernyng her. Then sayde the kynges seruantes: Let there be sayde virgins sought for the kyng, & let the kyng appoynt ouersers in all the landes of his empyre, that they maye byngge together al younge virgins vnto the castel of Susa vnto the kynges lodgyng, vnder the hande of Harboreus chamberlayne, that kepeth the women, and let him geue them their appoyntment. And loke which damoysell pleased the kyng, and let her be queene in Vasthis stede. Thus ple-sed the kyng and he dyd so.

In the castel of Susa there was a Jewe, whose name was Harboreus, the son of Je-sir, the son of Semai, the son of Ais, the son of Jemini, which was caryed awaye from Jerusalem, when Jekonias the kyng of Judea was led awaye, whom Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon caryed awaye: & he was called dabab, otherwys called Esther, his mothers daughter: for she had neyther father nor mother, & she was a sayre and bewtyfull maide. And when her father and mother dyd die, Harboreus receyued her, as his daughter.

Some when the kynges commaundement was published, and accordyng to it manie damoyselles were brought to gyther vnto the castel of Susa vnder the hande of Harboreus, which was taken also vnto the kynges house vnder the hande of Harboreus the keeper of the women, and the damoysell pleased him, and she founde grace in his sight. And he caused her appoyntment to be geuen her, and her gyftes, & gave her seuen notable gentyl women of the kynges house, and arayed both her & her gen-tyl women verye richely in the house of the women. But Esther shewed not her people nor her kynde: for Harboreus had charged her, that she shoulde not tel it. And Harboreus walked euery daye before the court of the womens lodgyng, that he myght knowe howe Esther dyd, and what shulde become of her.
And when the appoynted tyme of euery damoysell came that she shulde come to the kyng Asuerus, after that she had bene xij. monethes in the lodgyng of the women (for their dekyng must haue so moche tyme, namely. viij.
monethes with Balsam and Myrrour, and. viij.
monethes with good spices, so were the women bewtyfied) then went there one damoysell vnto the kyng, and what so euer she required that must be geuen her to go with her out of the womens lodgyng vnto the kynges palace. And when one came in the eueryng, the same went frome him on the morowe into the seconde house of women, vnder the hande of Harboreus the kynges chamberlayne, whiche kept the concubynes. And she must come vnto the kyng nomore, onely it pleased the kyng and that he caused her to be called by name.

Some when the tyme came of Esther the daughter of Abihail Harboreus uncle (whom he had receyued as his owne daughter) that she shoulde come to the kyng, she desired no thinge but what Harboreus the kynges chamber-layne the keeper of the women sayde. And Esther founde fauoure in the sight of all them that looked vpon her. So Esther was taken vnto kyng Asuerus into the house royal, in the third moneth which is called Tbeth, in the viij. yere of his raygne.

And the kyng loued Esther aboute all the women, and she founde grace and mercy in his sight before all the virgines: and he set the queens crowne vpon her head, and made her queene in stede of Vasthi. And the kyng made a great feast vnto all his princes and seruants (which feast was because of Esther): & he gawed to all the landes, and gaue royal gif-tes accordyng to a kynges magnificence.

And when the virgins were gathered togy-ther the seconde tyme, Harboreus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet hadde not Esther shewed her kynde and her people, accordyng as Harboreus had bydden her: for Esther dyd after the wyse of Harboreus, lyke as whel
he was her tutenour. At the same tyme whyle Harboreus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chamberlaynes Bagathan & Thares which kept the doore were wroth, & sought to laye handes on the kyng Asuerus: wherof Harboreus gat knowledg, and tolde it vnto to queene Esther, and Esther certified the kyng therof in Harboreus name. And when inquyre was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was wytyen in the Chronicles, before the kyng.

Haman obtained of the kyng that all Jewes shulde be put to death because Harboreus hadde not geuen hym worship, as other had.

CAPL

III.

After this the kyng promoted Haman the sonne of Amadatha the Agagite, & set him hygh, and set his seate aboue all the princes that were with him. And all the kynges seruantes that were in the gate, bowed their knees, and byd reuerence vnto Haman: for the kyng had so commaunded. But Harboreus bowed not the knee, and worshipped him not. When the kynges seruantes whiche were in the kynges gate, sayde vnto Harboreus: why breaketh thou the kynges commaundement? And when they spake this dayly vnto him, and he obeyed them not, they tolde Haman, that they myght se whether Harboreus matters wolde endure: for he had told them that he was a Jewe. And whel Haman sawe that Harboreus bowed not his knee vnto him, nor worshipped him, he was full of indignacion and thought it to lye to laye handes onely on Harboreus: for they had shewed him the nation of Harboreus, but he sought to destroye all the Jewes the nation of Harboreus, that were in the hole empyre of Asuerus.

In the. i. moneth (that is the moneth Nisan) in the. xij. yere of kyng Asuerus, they cast
the. iij. (that is a lot) before Haman, on what daye and what moneth this shulde be done:
and there came out the. xij. moneth that is the moneth Abar. And Haman sayde vnto kyng Asuerus: There is a people scattered abrode & disperpled from them selues amonge all people in the landes of thyne empyre, & their lawe is contrary vnto all people, and they do not after the kynges lawes, neyther is it the kynges proffet to suffer them after this maner. If it please the kyng, let him make, that they be destroyed, and so will I wepe downe ten thousande talents of siluer, vnder the handes of the workmen, to be brought into the kynges chamber. Then toke the kyng his rynge fro-his hande, and gaue it vnto Haman the sonne of Amadatha the Agagite the Jewes enemy.
And the kyng sayde vnto Haman: Let the siluer be geuen the, and that people also, to do with all what pleaseth the.

Then were the kynges scribes called on the
xij. daye of the first moneth, and there was wytyen (accordyng as Haman commaunded) vnto the kynges princes and to the capytaynes euery where in the landes, and to the rulers of euery people in the countreys on euery side, accordyng to the wytyng of euery nation, & after their language in the name of kyng Asuerus, and sealed with the kynges rynge.
And the wytynges were sent by purshantes into all the kynges landes, to rote out: to kyll
and

to destroy all Jewes, both yong & olde, chyldren and women in one daye, that is to witte upon the thirtenth daye of the twelveth mo-neth, which is the moneth Adar and to spoyle their goodes.

This was the summe of the letters, that there shoulde be a commaundement gyven in all landes, to be published unto all people, that they shoulde be readye agaynst the same daye. And the pursuantes went in all the lande accordyng to the kynges commaunde-ment. And in the castell of Susa was a commaundement treypled. And the kyng and Haman late and dranke. But the cytie of Susa was disquieted.

¶ And sothe as the kyng knewe the cruel decree of the kyng agaynst the Jewes.

CAPL.

IIII.

When Mordecheus perceived all that was done, he rent his clothes, & put on sack clothe, and ashes, and went out into the streets of the cytie, and reid loud and lamentably, and came before the kynges gate: for there might no man enter within the kynges gate, that had sack clothe on. And in all landes and places, as farre as the kynges wyse & commaundment extended, there was great lamentation amonge the Jewes and many sacred, wept, mourned, and laye in sack clothes and in ashes. So Esther damoyselle, a be-chamberlayne, came and tolde it her. Then was the quene exceedingly assayed. And she sent rayment, that Mordecheus shoulde put them on, and laye the sack cloth frome her.
But Mordecheus wolde not take them. The king called Esther Bathath one of the kynges chaberlaynes (whiche stode before her) and gave him a commaundement unto Mordecheus, & he myght knowe what it was, and wherfore he dyd so. So Bathath went forth to Mordecheus unto the strete of the cytie, which was before the kynges gate.

And Mordecheus tolde him of all that had happened unto him, and of the summe of siuer that Haman had promysed to wepe down in the kynges chamber because of the Jewes for to destroye them, and he gave him the copy of the commaundement, that was treypled at Susa to destroye them, that he myght shew it unto Esther, and to speke to her and charge her, that she shoulde go in to the kyng, & make her prayer and supplication unto him for her
people.

And when Bathath came in, and tolde Esther the wordes of Mordecheus, Esther spake unto Bathath, and commaunded him to saye unto Mordecheus: all the kynges seruants, and the people in the landes of the kyng knowe, that who so ever cometh within the courte unto the kyng, wherhe it be man or woman, which is not called, the commaun-dement is that the same shall dye immediatly unless the kynge hoide out the golden scepter unto him, in token of clemencie that he maye live. As for me, I have not bene called to come in to the kyng now this thirty dayes.

And when Mordecheus was certified of Esther's wordes, Mordecheus had sayd agayn unto Esther: thinke not to save thyne owne lyfe, whyle thou art in the kynges house: for if thou art in the kynges house, thou shalt save all Jewes: for yf thou holdest thy peace at this tyme, then shall the Jewes be destroyed and helplessness out of an other place, and thou and thy fathers house shall be destroyed.
And who knoweth whether thou art come in to the kynges house, for this tyme sake? Esther had, grue Mordecheus this answer: I am afraid, and gather together all the Jewes that are founde at Susa, and saye unto them, that ye eat not and drinke not in these dayes, neither daye nor nyght. I and my damoyselles will fast lykewise, and so will I go in to the kyng contrary to the commaundement: yf I perishe, I perishe. So Mordecheus went his waye, and dyd all that Esther had commaunded him.

¶ Esther entred in to the kyng and bidden and Haman to a feast. Haman prepareth agayn for Mordecheus.

CAPL.

V.

On the thirde day put Esther on her all apparell, and rode in the court of the kynges palace within, once agayn to the kynges lodgyng. And the kyng sat upon his royal seate in his palace over agayn the gate of the house. And when the kyng sawe the quene standinge in the court, she founde grace in his sight. And the kyng tolde her of the golden scepter in his hande toward Esther.
So Esther went forth, and touched the toppe of the scepter. Then sayd the kyng unto her: What wilt thou quene Esther? and wherfore hast thou come in? for thou art not called: what is the matter? she answered and said: I beseeche thee, O kyng, let me have grace, and it shall be gyven thee. Esther sayd: I beseeche thee, let the kyng and Haman come this daye unto the bancket, that I have prepared. The kyng sayd: Cause Haman make hast: that he maye do as Esther hath sayde.

Now when the kyng and Haman came to the bancket that Esther had prepared, Haman sayd unto Esther after he had largelye drunke of the wyne: Esther, what is thy petition?
it shall be gyven thee. And what requiredst thou?
If it be even the halfe of the empyre, it shall be done.

Then answered Esther and sayde: my petition and desire is, yf I have founde grace in the sight of the kyng, and yf it please the kyng to give me my petition, and to fulfill my request, then let the kyng and Haman come to the bancket that I shall prepare for them, as I do will I doo to morowe as the kyng hath sayde.

Then turned Haman for the same day to his house, and mery in his mynde. And when he sawe Mordecheus in the kynges gate, that he rode not up and knelt before him, he was full of indignacion at Mordecheus. However he refrained him selfe: and when he came home, he sent, and called for his sonnes and Zares his wyfe, and tolde them of all that had happened.

¶ The kyng turneth over the chynnyles and fin-des the chynnyles of Mordecheus: and then to the chynnyles of Haman, he commaundeth Mordecheus
to be had in honoure.

¶ The kyng turneth over the chynnyles and fin-
des the chynnyles of Mordecheus: and then to the
chynnyles of Haman, he commaundeth Mordecheus
to be had in honoure.

CAPL.

VI.

The same night coulde not the kyng sleepe,
and he commaunded to bringe the chynnyles and chynnyles: whiche when they brought before the kyng they happened on the place where it was written, how Mordecheus had tolde, that the kynges two chamberlaynes (whiche kept the chynnyles) sought to laye hands on the kynges chynnyles. And the kyng sayd: what worship and good have we done to Mordecheus therfore? Then sayd the kyng unto his seruantes that ministered unto him: There is nothinge done for him. And the kyng sayd:
Who is in the court? (for Haman was gone into the court without before the kynges house that he myght speake unto the kyng to hang Mordecheus on the tre, that he had prepared for him.) And the kynges seruantes sayde unto him: behold, Haman standeth in the court.
The kyng sayd: let him come in. And when Haman came in, the kyng sayd unto him: what hast thou done unto the man, who the kyng wolde save byng? unto what worshippe? If thou wilt that I should save him, thou shalt saye: what thought in his heart? Whome shouldest thou be glad to byng? unto what worshippe, but me?
And Haman sayd unto the kyng: Let the man unto whom the kyng wolde be glad to be worshippe, be brought hither, that he maye be asayed with the royall garments whiche the kyng useth to weare: and the horse that the kyng useth upon, and that the crowne maye be set upon his heed. And let this man and horse be delivered under the hande of the kynges pynnes, that he maye appeare in the court. And the kyng wolde save him. And the kyng sayd: make hast, and take a newe garment, and the horse: & the crown.

¶ The kyng sayd: make hast, and take a newe garment, and the horse: & the crown.

¶ The kyng sayd: make hast, and take a
newe garment, and the horse: & the crown.

¶ The quene biddeth the kyng and Haman agayne, and prayeth for her selfe and her people. She accuseth Haman: and he is hanged on the gallows, which she had prepared for Mordecheus.

CAPL.

VII.

Ad when the kyng and Haman came to the bancket that quene Esther hadde prepared, the kyng sayd unto Esther on the seconde daye at the bancket of wyne:
what is thy petition quene Esther, that it maye be gyven thee? And what requiredst thou? Ye aske even halfe of the empyre, and it shall be done. Esther the quene answered and sayde:
If I have founde grace in thy sight (O kyng) and yf it please the kyng then graunte me my petition: for we are sold both I and my people to be destroyed, to be slayne and to perishe.
And wolde God we were sold to be bondme and bondwomen, then wolde I holde my tye so shoulde not the enemy be so hynde to the kynges harme. The kyng Asuerus spake and sayde unto quene Esther: Who is this? O where is he that dares presume in his mynde to do suche a thinge after that manner? Esther sayde: the enemy and adversary is this we-red Haman. Which thing when Haman herd he was exceedingly assayed before the kyng and the quene. And the kyng arose frome the bancket and from the wyne in his displeasure and went in to the palace garden. And Haman rode up, and besought quene Esther for his lyfe: for he sawe there was a mycheste prepared for him of the kyng already.

And when the kyng came agayne out of the palace garden into the pater where they had eaten, Haman hadde layde him up on the bed that Esther lay upon. Then sayde the kyng, will he force the quene also to be with him in the house? As soon as that word was out of the kynges mouth, they covered Haman with sack cloth. And Mordechai one of the chamberlaynes that stode before the kyng, sayde: Beholde, there standeth a gallows in Haman's house (the cubytos hyge, which he had made for Mordecheus)

docheus, that spake good for the kynge. The kynge sayd: hange him thereon. So they hanged Haman on the galowes that he had made for Haradocheus. So was the kynge's wrath appeased.

After the death of Haman Haradocheus is promoted then are tolozable letters sent unto the Jewes.

CAPL VIII.

The same daye dyd kynge Aluerus gyue the house of Haman the Jewes enemye unto quene Esther. And Haradocheus came before the kynge: for Esther tolde how he belonged unto her. And the kynge toke the rynge of his finger, whiche he had taken fro Haman, and gaut it Haradocheus. Moreover Esther sette Haradocheus ouer the house of Haman. And she spake yet more before the kynge, and fell downe at his feet, & besought hym, that he wolde put awaye the malice of Haman the Agagite, and his moost vngreatfull deuites that he had imagined agaynst the Jewes. And the kynge helde out the golden scepter vnto Esther. Then rose Esther, & knee before the kynge, and sayde: yf it please the kynge, and if I haue founde grace in his syght, and yf he be conuenient for the kynge, and if it be accepted in his syghte then let it be written, that the letters of the deuyce of Haman the sonne of Hamadatha the Agagite, maye be called agayne: whiche letters he wrote, to destroye the Jewes in all the kynge's landes. For howe can I se the cruell that shall happen vnto my people? and howe can I loke vpon the destruction of my kyn?

Then sayde the kynge Aluerus vnto quene Esther, and to Haradocheus the Jewe: Beholde I haue gyuen Esther the house of Haman, and hym haue they hanged vpon a tree, because he layed hande vpon the Jewes. Write ye nowe therfore for the Jewes, as it is spoken in the kynge's name, and seale it with the kynge's rynge (for the wyrtynge that were written in the kynge's name, & sealed with the kynge's rynge, durst noman disannull.) Then were the kynge's scribes called at the same tyme in the thirde moneth, that is the moneth Sivan, on the thre and twentyeth daye.

And it was wyrtten accordyng as Haradocheus commaunded vnto the Jewes and to the prynters, to the deputies and capitaynes in the landes frome Ind vntyll Ethiopia, namely an hundred and seuen and twenty landes, vnto euerye one accordyng to the wyrtynge therof, vnto euerye people after theyr speche, and to the Jewes accordyng to theyr wyrtynge in language. And it was written in the kynge Aluerus name and sealed with the kynge's rynge. And by wyrt messengers, sent he the wyrtynge, wherein the kynge graunted the Jewes (in what cytyes so euer they were) to gather them selues together, and to stande for theyr lyfe, and for to rote oute, to slaye, and to destroye all the power of the people and lande that wolde trouble them, with chylde and women, and to spoyle theyr good vpon one daye in all the landes of kynge Aluerus namely vpon the tenth daye of the twelveth moneth, which is the moneth Adar.

The summe of the wyrtynge was, that there was a commaundement geuen in all landes to be published vnto all the people, that the Jewes wolde be redye agaynst that daye to avenge them selues on their enemyes, and the messengers that bare the tybings forth with all speche, accordyng to the kynge's wyrtynge: and the commaundement was dyctated in the castell of Susan.

And Haradocheus went out from the kynge in royal apparel of pelowe & wyrtynge with a great crowne of golde, arrayed with a garment of lynnen and purple, and the cytye of Susan reioyced and was glad: but vnto the Jewes there was come lyght and gladnes with wyrtynge. And in all landes and cytyes, to what places soeuer the kynge's wyrtynge and commaundement reached, there was toye & prosperitie and good dayes amonge the Jewes: in so moche that many of the people in the lande became of the Jewes belefe, for the feare of the Jewes came vpon them.

At commaundement of the kynge, the Jewes sent their focs to dyt. The sonnes of Haman are hanged. The Jewes kepte a feastfull daye in remembrance of theyr deliuerie.

CAPL.

XL

In the twelfth moneth (that is the moneth Adar) the thirtieth daye, which is the daye of the twelfth moneth, the kynge's wyrtynge and commaundement had appoynted, that the enemyes wolde haue destroyed the Jewes, it turned contrarie wyse that the Jewes wolde subdue their enemyes. Then assembled the Jewes together in their cytyes within all the landes of king Aluerus, to lay hand on suche as wolde haue done them harme. No man coude withstande them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And the rulers in the landes, and princes and officers, and officers of the king promoted the Jewes, for the feare of Haradocheus came vnto them. For Haradocheus was greet in the kynge's house, and the reuoyce of hym was bruted in all landes, how he encreased and grew.

Thus the Jewes smote all their enemyes with a sore slaughter, and slew and destroyed their aduersaries. And at the castell of Susan, Jewes slew and destroyed fye hundred men, and slew Haradathas, Delphen, Esther, Phorathas, Adalia, Aridathas, Phorathas, Phorathas, Aridathas, Aridathas, the sonnes of Haman, the sonne of Hamadatha the enemye of the Jewes: but on his goodde they wolde take no botyes. At the same tyme the king certified of the nombre of theyr that were slayne at the castell of Susan. And the kynge sayde vnto quene Esther: The Jewes haue slayne and destroyed fye hundred men at the castell of Susan, and the ten sonnes of Haman: What shall they do in the other landes of the kynge? What is thy request, that it maye be geuen the? and what requyte thou mozt to be done? Esther sayde: Yf it please the kynge, let hym suffice the Jewes to destroye a lye to be accordyng vnto this kynge's commaundement, that they hange Haman's ten sonnes vpon the tre. And the kynge charged to be so, and the commaundement was dyctated at Susan, and Haman's ten sonnes were hanged. And the Jewes gathered them selues to gyther at Susan, vpon the thirtieth daye of the moneth Adar, & slew the hundred men at Susan, but theyr goodde they wolde not spoyle.

Moreover the other Jewes in the kynge's landes, stode for their lyues, and gat rest from their enemyes: and slew of their enemyes lxx. thousand, howebeit they sayd no harme on their goodde. This was done on the xiiij. daye of the moneth Adar, and on the xiiij. daye of the same moneth called they, whiche daye they ordeyned to be a daye of feasting & gladnes. But the Jewes at Susan were come to gyther both on the xiiij. daye and on the xiiij. and on the xv. daye they called, and the same daye ordeyned they to be a daye of feasting & gladnes. Therfore the Jewes that dwelt in the villages and buttailed townes, ordeyned the xiiij. daye of the moneth Adar, to be a daye of feasting and gladnes, and one sent gyftes vnto another.

And Haradocheus wrote all these actes, and sent the wyrtynge vnto all the Jewes that dwelt in all the landes of kynge Aluerus, both wyrtynge and seale, that they wolde freely receyue and holde the xiiij. and xv. daye of the moneth Adar, as the dayes wherein the Jewes came to reue their enemyes, and as a moneth wherein their payne was turned to lyght, and their sorowe into prosperitie: & they wolde obserue the same as dayes of welthe & gladnes, and one to sende gyftes vnto another, and to distribute vnto the poore.

And the Jewes receyued al that they hadde dyctated to, and that Haradocheus had wyrtynge vnto them: that Haman the sonne of Hamadatha enemye to all the Jewes, had deuyced to destroye all the Jewes, & caused to call Phur (that is Lot) for to put them in feare, & to bringe them to naught: and howe Esther wrote and spake to the kynge, that thowome letters his wyrtynge deuyced, whiche he imagined agaynst the Jewes, myght be turned vnto his owne heed, & how he and his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For whiche cause they call-led this daye Phurim after the name of Phur. Accordyng to all the wordes of this wyrtynge: and what theyr enemyes had sent, & what had happened vnto them.

And the Jewes let it be, and toke it vpon them and their seide, and vpon all such as toke them selues vnto them, that they wolde not myste to kepe these two dayes exactly, accordyng as they were written and appoynted, how these dayes are not to be forgotten, but to be kept of chylde's chylde amonge all kynnes in all landes and cytyes. These are the dayes of Phurim: & to save of iours, which are not to be ouerslipped amonge the Jewes, and the memoriall of them ought not to perishe frome their seide.

And quene Esther the daughter of Abthail and Haradocheus the Jewe wrote with a cytyll, to confirme this seconde wyrtynge of Phurim, and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the i. and. xliij. landes of the empire of Aluerus, with frendly and faithful wordes to confirme these dayes of Phurim, in the tyme appoynted, accordyng as Haradocheus the Jewe and Esther the quene had ordeyned in that behalfe: lyke as they, vpon their soules & vpon their seide had confirmed the actes of the x. fastinges and of her complaynte. And Esther commaunded to shew these actes of this Phurim, and to wyrtynge them in a booke.

The glory and noblenes of Aluerus: and auctoryte of Haradocheus.

CAPL.

X.

And the kynge Aluerus lard tribute vnto the lande, and vpon the fles of the see. But as touchyng all the actes of his power and auctoryte, and the great wordynge of Haradocheus, whiche the kynge gaue him, beholde, it is written in the Chronicles of the kynge of Media and Persia. For Haradocheus the Jewe was the seconde next vnto kynge Aluerus, and great amonge the Jewes, and accepted amonge the multitude of his people, as one that seeketh the welthe of his people, and speaketh the best for all his seide.

The ende of the booke of Esther.

Eg.ij.

repent it. If he be had to take any thinge as wape, who shall make him reioyce agayne?
Who shall saye vnto him: what doest thou?
He is God, whose wylde no man can withstande: but the proudest of al must soupe vnder him: howe shoulde I then answer him?
or what wylde shoulde I fynde out agaynst him? Yea, though he be rightous, yet wyl I not geue him one worde agayne, but mchely submyt my selfe to my iudge. All be it that I call vpon him, and he heare me, yet am I not sure that he hath heede my voyce: he shall trouble me so with the tempest, and wounde me out of measure without cause. He shall not let my spirite be in rest, but spillet me with distress.

If men wyl speake of strengthe, he is the strongest of all, yf men wyl speake of rygh-tousnesse, who dare be my recorde? Yf I wyl iudgye my selfe, my owne mowthe shall condemne me: Yf I wyl put forth my selfe for a perfecte man, he shall proue me a wycked doer: for that I shoulde be an innocent, my conscience knoweth it not: yea I my selfe am wery of my lyfe.

This one thing wyl I saye: he destroyeth both the rightous and vngodly. And though he be so rightous, yet laugheth he at the punishment of the innocent. As for the world, he giueth it ouer to the power of the wicked, such as the rulers be, wherof all lankes are full. Is it not so? where is there any but he is such one?

My dayes haue ben more swift then a pursuant: they are gone so depnyly, and vane sene no good thinge. They are paled away, as the wyppes that are good vnder sayle, and as the stile that gathereth to her praye. When I am purposed to forget my complaynynges, to change my countenance, and to comfort my selfe: then am I afraid of all my woikes, for I knowe thou fauourst not an euill wer.

Yf I be then a wycked one, why haue I laboured in vayne? Though I washed my self with snowe water, and made myne handes neuer so cleane, yet shouldest thou dyppe me in the myx, and myne owne clothes shoulde defyle me. For he that I must geue answer vnto, and with whome I go to laue, is not a man as I am. Neither is there any dayement to re-proue both the parties, or to laye his hand bitweene vs. Let him take his rod away fro me, yea let him make me no more afraid of hym,
and then shall I answer him without feare.
For as longe as I am in such fearefulnesse, I can make no answer. And why? it geueth my soule to lye.

Job is wery of his lyfe, and seeth out his frailty but of God. He despayrth hime to repene. A description of despayr.

CAPL.

X.

Nevertheless, now wyl I put forth my wordes: I wyl speake out of the beere heynesse of my soule, and wyl saye vnto God: why doo not condemne me, but shewe

me the cause why thou iudget me on this maner? Thyngest thou it well done to oppreme, to cast me of (beinge a worke of thy han-des) and to magnifye the counsell of the ba-des? Wast thou sicke eye, or sooth thou loke as man lookest? Are thy dayes as I dayes of man, and thy yeres as mannes yeres, that thou makest such inquiry for my wickednesse, and searchest out my synne? where as thou knowest I am no wycked person: and that there is no man able to rescue me out of thy handes? Thyne handes haue made me, and fashioned me all toge ther countre aboute, wilt thou then destroye me so depnyly? I remembre (I beseeche the) that thou made me of the moude of earthe, and shalt byng me to earthe agayne. Hast thou not myked me like myke, and pressed lyke cheese? Thou hast co-uered me with thyne and scythe, and tornd me toge with bones and knoues. Thou hast graunted me life, and done me good: and the dagger betwixt thou takest vpon me, hast preferred my spirite.

Though thou bydest these thynges in thyne heart: yet am I sure that thou remembrest them all. Wherefore hiddest thou kepe me, whil-I synned, and hast not cleared me from my offence? Yf I was wicked, who is my therfor?
Yf I be rightous, yet dare I not lyse by my beed: so full am I of confusion, and I remember myne miserie.

Thou hunted me oute, oppressed with beynesse, as it were a Lyon, and troubled me beyond all measure. Thou bynged false witnesses agaynst me, thy wythe witnesseth thou vpon me: full many are the plagis that I am in. Wherefore hast thou brought me out of my mothers wombe? O that I had perished, and I no eye had sene me. Yf they had cared me to my graue, as sone as I was born, then shoulde I be nowe, as though I had neuer ben.

Shall not my wythe lyse come sone to an ende? O holde the fro me, let me alone, that I maye ease my selfe a lytle afore I goe the-ther, whence I shall not retourn. Ransacke that lande of darkenesse and shadowe of deceit in to the darke cloudye lande and drede shadow, where as is no order, but terrible continually abyeth.

Job is vniuersally repyned of Sophar. God is repynable. He is mercifull to the repentant.

CAPL.

XL

Then answered Sophar the Naamathite and said: Wouldest thou not be that maketh my wordes be answered? Shouldest thou haue me commended thine?
Shouldest thou geue care vnto the onely? Thou wilt laugh other men to scorne, and shalt not mocke the agayne? Wilt thou saye vnto God the thing that I take in hande is perfect, and I am cleane in thy sight? O that God woulde speake, and open his lippes agaynst the, that he might shewe the out of his secret without many folde his lawe is: then shouldest thou

thou knowest that God had forgotten the, by-cause of thy synnes.

Wilt thou fynde out God with thy search? Wilt thou attayne to the perfeccion of the almyghty? He is higher then heuen, what wilt thou do? Deper then the hell, how wilt thou euen knowe him: his length is as the lengthe of the earth, and his breadth the breadth of the see. Though he turne all thynges by set to wone, close them in,
or thynk them together, who dare checke him therefor?

For it is he that knoweth the vanitie of man: he seeth their wyckednesse also, shoulde he not then consider it? A vayne bodye vaunteth him selfe, and the sonne of man is lyke a wynde asse foote. Yf thou haddest nowe a wyghter, and lyfsted by thyne handes toward him: yf thou wouldest put away the wyckednesse whiche thou haste in hande, so that no vngodlynesse dwelle in thy house:
then mightest thou lyfste by thy face without fear, thou wouldest thou be sure, and haue no need to feare.

Then wouldest thou forget thy miserie, and shynke no more of it then of the waters that runne by. Thou shouldest thy lyfe be as cleare as the noone daye, and sprynge forth as the morning. Then mightest thou haue comforte in the hope that thou hast: and slee quietly when thou art laye in. Then shouldest thou take thy rest, and no man to make the afraid, yea many one woulde let mooue by the. But the eye of the vngodlye shall be contumed, and not escape: their hope shall be miserye and solome of mynde.

Job in the mynge his patience declareth the might and power of God.

CAPL.

XII.

Job answered and sayde: Nowe vndoubtedly I se ye are onely men, and shall be as I am: but I haue buden an king as well as ye, and am no lesse then ye. Yea who knoweth not these thynges? Thus he saith vpon God, and whome God heareth, is merked of his myght: the godlye and gittes man is laughe to scorne. Godlynesse is the lampe lighted in the herres of the myre, and is set for them to stumbe vpon. The houses of robbers are in wylde and prosperitie, and they that maliciously medle agaynst God, shall without care: yea God geueth al thynges richely with his hande. For aske the catel, and they shall enforme the: the foules of the ayre, and they shall tell the: Speake to the earthe, and it shall shewe the: O to the fyrres of the see, and they shall certifie the.

Who is he that knoweth not that the hande of the Lord made all these? In whose hande is the soule of every lyminge thinge, and the breth of all men? Haue not the eares pleasure in hearinge, and the mowthe in tastynge the thyng that it eateth? Among olde personnes there is wysdome, and amonge the aged is vnderstandynge. Yea with God is wysdome and strengthe, it is he that hath the counsell and fore-knowledge. Yf he breake downe a thyng, who can set it by agayne? Yf he shutte a thyng, who wyl open it? yf he withholde the waters they drye by: yf he let them go, they destroye the earth. With him is strengthe and wysedome: he knoweth bothe the discreete and him that is discreued.

He carpeyth awaye the wyse men, as it were a spoule and byngeth the iudges out of their towers: he tooke the bandes of kynges, and gyrdeth their loynes with a bande. He leadech awaye the prestes in to captiuitie, and turneth the mighty by set to wone. He taketh the troupe out of the mouth, and disappointeth the aged of their wysdome. He pouerth out confusion vpon pynces, and comforteth them that haue ben oppressed. Loke what lyeth by in dark-nesse, he declareth it openly: and the deepe shadowe of death byngeth he to lyght. He borde increaseth the people, and destroyeth theym: he maketh them to multiplie, and dyneth them awaye. He chaungeth the herse of the pynces and kynges of the earth, and disappointeth them: so that they goo wandryng out of the maye, and grope in the darke without lyghte, raggerynge to and fro lyke drunken men.

Job reppreth his frendes with theyr owne say-nges, and condemneth hypocryte.

CAPL.

XIII.

Lo, all this haue I sene with myne eye,
heere with myne eare, and vnderstande it.
Loke what ye know, that same I knowe also, neither am I inferior vnto you. Hau-thelesse I am purposed to talke with the al-myghty, and my desyre is to commen with God. As for you, ye are workemasters of lies, and vngodlye physicians all together. Woulde God ye kepte your tonge, that ye mighte be taken for wyse men. Wherefore heare my wodes, and ponde the sentence of my lippes.
Wyl ye make answer for God with lyes, and magnifye him with discreete? Wyl ye accepte the person of God, & intercede for him?
Shall that helpe you, when he calleth you to account? Thynke ye to begyle him, as a ma is begyled? He shall punishe you, and reprimde you, yf ye do secretly accepte anye person.
Shall he not make you afraid, when he wemeth vnto you? Shall not his secretis scare fall vpon you? your remembraunce shall be lyke duste, and pyde shall be couered to claye.
Holde your tonges nowe, and let me speake,
for there is some thyng come in to my mynde.
Wherefore do I beare my selfe in my teth, and my soule in myne handes? Zoo, there is neither comforte or hope for me, yf he wyl slee me. But yf I utter a reproue myne owne wayes in his syghte, he is euen the same that maketh me hole: and why? there maye no doubtfuler come before hym. Heare my wodes, and ponder my saynges with your eares.
Beholde, nowe haue I prepared my iudgement, and knowe that I shall be founde rightous.

righteous. What is he, that will goe to lawe with me? For if I tolde my tongue, I shall lye. For the truth shall make me two chinges, and then will I not hyde my selfe from
the.

D Withdrowe thine hande from me, and let not the fearefull greade of the, make me a scape. And then sende for me to the law, that I maye aunswere for my selfe: or els, let me speake, and give thou the aunswere. I have greate are my iniquities and synnes. I have knowe my transgressions and offences. I have fore hyded thou my face, and holdest me for thyne enemye. Whyle thou be so cruel and extreme unto a synner like, and solow upon mye stubble, that thou layest so warply to my charge, and wilt venterly vndo me for the syn-nes of my yowthe: Thou hast put my foot in the stocks, thou lokest narrowly unto all my parches, & marked the fflippes of my fete: where I must consume like a foule caryon, and as a clothe that is intoye eaten.

C Job deserveth the lye of man, and prophesieth of the resurrection. I hope in the godly, till they haue that they lye for.

CAP. I. XIII.

M An that is borne of a woman, hath but a shorte tyme to lyue, and is full of byuers miseries. He cometh vp, and tal-leth awaye like a flower. He fleeth as it were a shadowe, and neuer cometh in one state.
Thynkest thou it nowe well doone, to open thyne eyes vpon such one, and to byngne me before the iudgement? Who can make that cleane, that cometh of an uncleane? No bodye. The dayes of man are knowne onely vnto the. Thou hast appoynted him his bound-es, he can not goe beyonde them. Soe frome him, that he maye telle a lyte: vntill his day come, which he lotteth for, like as a byrd lyng dothe.

Ye a tree be cut downe, there is some hope yet that it will sproute and shote forth the braunches agayne: For though a roote be warren olde and deed in the grounde, yet when the stocke getteth the fente of water, it will bubbe and byngne forth bowes, like as when it was first planted. But man when he is ded, perished and consumed awaye, what becommeth of him? The floudes when they be dyl-ed by, and the riuers when they be emptye, are filled agayne: the founteyne the flowing waters of the see: but when man slepeth, he awaketh not agayne, vntill the heuen perishe: he that not wake vp, nor ryse out of his slepe, & that thou wouldest kepe me, and byde me in the bell, vntill the wythe were fylled: and to appoynt me a tyme, when thou mightest remembre me. I say a deede man lyue agayne: All the dayes of this mye pryge maye, am I longing when my chaui-ging shall come. If thou wouldest but call me, I woulde obeye: only despitte not the worke of thine owne handes.

For thou hast numbered all my goings, yet be not thou extreme vpon my synnes. Thou hast sealed by myne offences, as it were in bagges: but be merciful vnto my wickednes.

The mountaynes fall awaye at the laste, the rockes are remoued out of thye place, the waters pearle thowme the verye stones by lye and felle, the floudes walke awaye the gra-uell and earthe: Such so be destroyed thowme the hope of men. Thou preuapled agaynst him, so that he passeth a waye: thou chaunged his state, and puttest him frome the. Whither he chylde come to worshipp of no, he can not tell: And yet they be men of lowe degree, he knoweth not. Whyle he lyueth, his flesh may haue trauaile: and whyle the soule is in him the must be in sorowe.

Eliphaz reuerent Job because he ascribeth wif-dom and pures to hym selfe. He deserveth that that faileth on the waye, & receyue Job be one of that nombre.

CAP. XV.

Then answered Eliphaz the Themanite, and sayd: I wolde a wyle man aunswere as the lycence of the wynde, and shewe helpe with the wynde of the East: Thou prouest with wordes that are nothing worth, and speakest thynges which can do no good.
As to thame thou haste set asyde, els wouldest thou not make so manie wordes before God:
but thy wyckednes teacheth thy mouth, and so thou hast chosen the craftie counsell. Thine owne mouth condemneth the, & not I: for thine owne lippes shalpe the an answer. Art thou the felle man that cur was borne? Or wouldest thou made before the bylles? Hast thou heard the secrete counsell of God, that al mye dome is to lye for the? What knowest thou that we knowe not? What vnderstandest thou that we can the same? Whyle we are olde and aged men, yea such as haue liued longer then thou for thyngers.

Thynkest thou it a small thinge of the consolations of God: and are they with the lynging wordes: mye doctryne here make the so proude? Why standest thou so greatly in thyne owne conceyte? Wherefore lokest thou eyes: that thy mynde is to putte vp agaynst God, and lettest such wordes goe out of thy mouth? What is man, that he shoulde be defied? What hath he (which is borne of a woman) whereby he myght be knowne to be righteous?
Beholde there is no trust to his saynges: for the verye heuens are not cleane in his sight. How much more then an abominable & vyl man, which dyeth with duncle lyke water? I will tell the, heare me: I will shewe the a thing that I knowe, which wylle men haue tolde, and dare not ben bye frome their saynges: vntill whom only I land was giuen, that no man getteth holde come among them.

The bogoble dysparite al the dayes of his lyfe, and the nombre of a tyrannies payes vnto him. A fearefull sounde is in the eares, and when it is pear, yet feareth he the situation: He dunclely neuer to be deliuered out of darkenesse, the swerde is alway before him. When he goeth forth to get his lyuynge, he shyneth playnly that the dape of darkenesse is at hande. For some and carefullye make him asyde, and compasse hym rounde aboute, lyke as it were a kynge with his hode to the battayle. For he hath fetched out his hande agaynst God, and armed hym selfe agaynst the almyghty. He runneth proudly vpon him, and with a sworde necke fycheth he agaynst hym: where as he con-ceyeth his face with fatnesse, and maketh his body well faryng. Therefore shall his dwel-lyng be in desolate cyles, and in houses, whiche no man inhabiteth, but are become heapes of stones.

He shall not be eythe, neither shall his substance continue, nor encrease vpon earthe. He shall neuer come oute of darkenesse, the flame shall byr by his braunches, with the blade of the mouth of God shall he be taken away.
He will neyther applye hym selfe to saythfulnesse, nor to lye, so soe is he deceyued with banter.

He shall perishe afore his tyme be worne out, and his hande shall not be greene. He shall be plucked of as an vnweyly geape from the tree, and shall let his floure fall as the olyue dothe. For the congregation of hypocrites is infertill, and the fyre shall consume the houses of such as are grey to receyue gifts.
He receyue trauaile, he beareth mischance,
and his bodye bringeth forth dyscepte.

Job receyue his mysferye, sayth that he suffreth more then his wyckednesse hath deserued.

CAP. XVI.

Job answered and sayd: I haue ofte times deniede such thynges. Miserable quere of comforte are ye, all the forte of you. Shall not thy bayne wordes come yet to an ende?
Shall thou yet anye more to saye? I coulde speake as ye doo also. But wolde God that your soule were in my soules shede: then woulde I heape by wordes agaynst you, and take mye venge at you. I wolde comforte you with my mouth, and releas your payne with the talke of my lippes. But what shall I do? For all my wordes, my sorowe will not cease: and though I holde my tongue, yet will it not departe fro me. And nowe that I am full of payne, and all that I haue destroyed, wherof my wyngles beare witnesse: there standeth by a dissembler to make me answere with lyes to my face. He is angrie at me, he hateth me, and gnaweth vpon me with his teeth. Agayne enemye scouletch vpon me with his eyes.

He haue opened their mouthes in the vpon me, and smitten me vpon the cheeke dryppingly, they haue cald the felices thowme myne dysciple. God hath giuen me ouer to the bygones, and deliuered me in to the handes of the wicked. I was sorowful in welche, but sorowful he hath brought me to nought. He hath ca-

ken me by the necke, he hath ret me, and set me as it were a marke for him to shote at: he hath compassed me rounde aboute with his darters, he hath wounded my loynes, and not spared.
My bowels hath he poured vpon the grounde.
He hath giuen me one wounde vpon an other, and is fallen vpon me like a giant. I haue sowed a sache clothe vpon my shynne, and lye in my strength in the dust.

My face is swollen with weeping, and mine eyes are waxen brinne. I hope be it there is no wyckednesse in my handes, and my praye is cleane. Werth couer not my bloud, and let my cryng lye no to come. For loo, my wit-nesse is in heauen: and he that knoweth me, is aboue in the verye. My frendes laughe me to rogne, but myne eye poureth oute teares vnto God. Though a bodye myght pleat with God as one man dothe with an other, yet the nombre of my peres are come, and I muste goo the waye, from whence I shall not turne agayne.

Job sayth that he consumeth a waye and yet doth pauently abyde it.

CAP. XVII.

My bress sayeth, my dayes are worsened. I am harde at deethes doye. I haue disceyued no man, yet muste myne eye continue in heuynesse. Deliuere me and set me by the: who shall then be able to chaste my handes together? Thou hast withholden thine mercy frome vnderstandynge, therefore shall they not be sette by on lye. He promyseth his frendes parte of his good, but his owne chylde spende it. He hath made me as it were a by worde of the common people. I am his gelyng stocke amonge them. My counsaunce is heuynesse for verye anger, and the memberes of my bodye are become lyke a shadowe.
Vnto such men therefore shall we be comforted, and the innocent shall take parte agaynst the hypocrite.

The righteous will kepe his waye, and he that hath cleane handes, will neuer be stronger and stronger. As for you, tourne you and get you hence, for I can not se one wyle man amonge you. My dayes are past, my thoughtes are banysht awaye, whiche haue ben myne herte chaungynge the nyght in to daye, and the lyght in to darkenesse.
Though I tarp neuer so muche, yet I graue is my house, and I muste make my bedde in the darche. I call corruption my father, and the wormes call I my mother and my syster.
What helpeth then my longe sayng? Or who will fulfill the thyng that I lye for?
All that I haue shall goe downe in to the pit,
and lye with me in the dust.

Salad reuereth the paynes of the vnfortunall and wycked.

CAP. XVIII.

neede? Hath he such pleasure and desyre in the almyghyte, that he bare alwaies cal upon God? I will teache you in the name of God, and the thyng that I haue of the almyghyte will I not kepe from you. Beholde ye stande in your owne conceyte, as though ye knewe all thynges. Wherfore then do ye go aboute with suche vayne wordes? sayinge: This is the porcion that the wicked shall haue of God, and the heretage that cryauntes shall receyue of the almyghyte. If he get manye chyldren, they shall perishe with the swerde, and his posterite shall haue scarcenesse of breed. Like whom he leaueyth behynde hym, they shall dye and be buryed, and no man shall haue pitye of his wyddowes. Though he haue as muche money as the bulke of the earth, and caryment as redde as the claye, he maye well prepare it: but the goulfe shall put it vpon him, and the innocent shall deale oute the moneye. His house shall endure as the mothe, & as a boothe that the watchman maketh. When the ryche man dyeth, he caryeth nothyng with him: he is gone with the twyncklyng of an eye. Destruction taketh holde vpon hym as a water floude, and the tempest sleaeth hym awayne in the nyght season. A behement wynde caryeth him hence, and departeth: a storme plucketh him out of his place. It rusheth in vpon him and sparcth him not, he maye not escape from the power therof. Then clap men their handes at him, yea and icke of him when they loke vpon his place.

¶ Job sheweth that the wisdom of God is vnsearchable.

CAPL XXVIII.

There are places where siluer is molten, and where gold is tryed: where yron is dygged oute of the grounde, and stones resolu'd to metall. The darkenesse shall once come to an ende, he can seeke out the ground of all thynges: the stones, the darke, and the horrible wadowe. With the rupe of water pareteth he aunder the straunge people, that knoweth no good neyghbourhood: suche as are rude, vnmannerly, and boyssours. He bringeth foode oute of the earth, and that which is vnder, consumeth he with fyre. There is founde a place, whose stones are cleue Saphires, and where the clottes of the earth are gold. There is a waye also that the byrdes knowe not, that no vulture eye hath sene: wherein the proude and vye mynd walke not, and where no yron cometh. There putteth he his hande vpon the stonye rocks, and ouerthroweth the mountaynes. Spuers flowe oute of the rockes, and loke what is pleasaunt, his eye seeth it. Out of dropes bringeth he great floudes togyther: and the thyng that is hyde, bringeth he to lyghte. Now cometh a man then by wysdome? Where is the place that men fynde vnderstandyng? Certeily no man can tell how worthy a thyng we is, neither is it founde in the lande of the livinge. The depe sayth: He is not in me. The see saith: He is not with me. She can not be gotten for the most fyne golde, neither maye the pyre of hye be bought with anye moneye. No wedges of golde, of syluer, no pious Ourelones, no Saphires maye be compared vnto her. No, neither gold, ne chrystal, necher stonye stones, ne golden plate. There is nothyng so myghty, or so excellēt, as is ones to be named vnto her: for perfect wysdome goeth farre beyonde them all. The Topas that cometh oute of Indee, maye in no wyse be lykened vnto her, yea no maner appatell, howe pleasaunt and fayre so euer it be.

Whence then cometh wysdome? where is the place of vnderstandyng? She is hyde from the eyes of all men, yea & from the fowles of the ayre. Destruction and deathe saye: we haue herde tell of her with our eares. But God seeth her waye, and knoweth her place. For he beholdeth the endes of the world, and loketh vpon all that is vnder heauen. When he wyndeth the wyndes, and measurith the waters: when he seth the rayne in order, and gathreth the myghty floudes a lanye, then dyd he se her, then declared he her, prepared he, and hurme her. And vnto man he sayd: Beholde to seeke the Roide is wysdome: and to forsaue twyll, is vnderstandyng.

¶ Job complaineth of the prosperitie of the vnjust, subtellye reprovyng his frendes of inuice, because they sayde that Job suffered according to his deservyng.

CAPL XXIX.

S Job proceeded and wente forth in his communication, sayinge: O that I were as I was in the monethes past, and in the dayes when God preferred me: when his lyght shined vpon my heed: when I went after the same lyght, and my waye was the waye of the darckenesse. As I rode with me, when I was welthy and hadde enough: when God prospered my house: when the myghty was with me: when my household folkes rode aboute me: when my wayes ran ouer with butter, and when the founteynes gaue me cryers of oyle: when I went thorow the cite vnto the gate, and when they sette me a chayre in the street: when the younge men (as soone as they sawe me) bowed theym selues, and when the aged arose, and rode vnto me: when the Prynces leste of theyr talkyng, and layde theyr handes vnto my mouth: when the myghty kepte hym selfe byre, and when theyr tonges cleaued to the rofe of theyr mouthes. When all they that herde me, called me happye: and when all they that sawe me, wysshed me good. For I deliuered the poore: when he cryed, and I should haue ben lost, gaue me a good word, and the myddes hearte praised me. And when I put vpon me cryghtousnesse, which couereth me as a garment, and captiue was my fote to the lame, I was a father vnto the poore, and when I knewe not these causes, I sought it oute diligently. I brake the crannes of the myghty, and pluckte the spoyls oute of theyr teth.

Wherfore I thought vnto my selfe, that I should haue ben as manye as the sondes of the see. For my roote was spreade oute by the water, and the dewe laye vpon my corne. My honoure encreased moze and moze, and my howe was euer the stronger in my hande. Vnto me men gaue eare, me they regarded, and with silence they caryed for my counsell. If I hadde spoken, they wolde haue it none other wyse, my wordes were so well taken amongethem. They wayted for me as the water dothe for the rayne: and gaped for me, as the grounde dothe to receyue the latter raine. When I laughed, they knewe well it was not earnest: and this testimonye of my countenance fail not to the earth. When I agreed vnto theyr waye, I was the chyefe, and late as a hyng amonge his seruantes: & as one that comforteth suche as be in heauynesse.

¶ The great dyspyrnyng of men and curse of God that Job suffereth.

CAPL XXX.

But now they that are myne infernynges, and ponger then I, haue me in dyspyrnyng: yea euen they, whose fathers I wold haue thought scoone to haue set with the wyges of my cattell. The power and strengthe of theyr handes myghte doo me no good, and as for their age, it is spent and passe awaye withoute anye profyte. For verie mysere and hunger, they wente aboute in the wilderness lyke wyretches and beggers, pluckynge vpon herbes amonge the busshes, and the Junters roote was theyr meate. And when they were byuen forth, men cryed after them, as it had ben after a shepe. Their dwellynge was by the soule byookes, yea in the caues and denes of the carthe. Vpon the byre they wente they aboute tryng, and in the byrme they gathered them togyther. They were the chyldren of foolles and vylaynes, which are deed alwaies from the worlde. Now am I their songe, and am become their iesting stoche: they abhorre me, they flee farre fro me, and sayne my face with spetle. For the Lord hath opened his quyre, he hath byre me, and put my byrpie in my mouth. Vpon my myghty hande they rose togyther agaynste me, they haue hurte my sette, made awaye to destroye me, and my pathe haue they cleue. It was easie for them to doo me harme, that they neede no man to helpe them. They fell vpon me, as it had ben the byre: theyng of waters, and came in by heapes to destroye me. Scarcenesse is courned agaynste me.

¶ Synne honoure hangeth alwaies moze sorow then wynde, and my prosperitie departed hence lyke as it were a cloude. Wherfore is my mynde poured full of heuynesse, and the dayes of my trouble haue taken holde vpon me. My bones are pearled thorow in the nyght season, and my synowes take no rest. With all their power haue they chaunged my garment, and gyrded me therewith as it were with a cote. I am eue as it were clappe, and am become like ashes and dust. When I crye vnto the, thou doest not heare me: and though I stande before the, yet thou regardst me not. Thou art become myne enemy, and with thy violent hande, thou takest parte agaynst me. In tymes past thou dydest set me by on byre, as it were aboute the wynde, but nowe haue thou gyuen me a verie sore fall. Sure I am that thou wilt deliuer me vnto deeth: where as a lodgyng is prepared for all thyng lyngyng. Nowe ise not men to do violence vnto them that are destroyed allredye: but where hurte is done, there use they to helpe. Dyd not I wepe in the tyme of trouble? Hadst not my soule compassion vpon the poore? Yet neuer beleste, where as I looked for good, & uyl happened vnto me: and where as I waited for lyghte, there came darkenesse. My bowelles sette within me, and take no rest, for the dayes of my trouble are come vnto me. Heely and lowly came I in, yea and withoute anye displeasure: I rode vpon in the congregation and communed with them. But nowe, I am a companion of Dragons, and a felowe of Vniches. My skynne vpon me is courned to blacke, and my bones are bent to heate: my harpe is courned to sorow, and my pyre to wepyng.

CAPL XXXI.

I made a couenaunt with myne eyes, that I wolde not loke vpon a damosell. For howe great a porcion shall I haue of God from aboute? and what enderstaunce frome the almyghyte on byre? As for the vngodlye, and he that ioyneyth him selfe to the company of wicked doers, shall not destruction and mysere come vpon him? Dothe not he se my wayes, and tell all my gopnges? If I haue cleued vnto vanite, or if my fere haue runne to dyscrepette, lette me be weped in an euen balauce, that God maye se myne innocenye. Yf so be that I haue withdrawen my fote out of the sighte waye: yf myne herte hath folowed myne eye syght, yf I haue sayned or dyspleed my handes: O then is it reason, that I towe, and an other eate: yea that my generation and offsprynge be cleane rooted oute. Yf myne herte hath lusted after my neyghbours wyfe, or yf I haue layde warpe at his woze: O then lette my wyfe be an other mannes harlot, and let other lye with her. For this is a wykenesse and synne that is worthy to be punished, yea a fyre that bitterly shold consume me, and rote oute all my substaunce. Dyd I euer thynke scoone to do cryghte vnto my seruantes and maydens, when they had any matter agaynst me?

me? But serenge that God wyll fyr in iudge-ment what shall I doe? And so; so mothe as be wyll nedes bysyr me, what answer shall I geue him? Is that falsproued me in my mothers wombe. made he not him also: were we not bothe weyn a lyke in oure mothers bo-dres? When he rooze desyret any thyng of me, haue I denyed it them? Haue I caused wyddowe stante waytyng for me in dayne?
Haue I eaten my portion alone, that the facherlesse hath had ro part with me: for mercy grewe by wysch me fro my yowth, and compassion fro my mothers wombe. Haue I sene any man perisse thowgh nakednesse and want of clothyng? Or any pooze man to; lacke of ray-ment, whose sydes thanked me not, bicause he was warmed with the molle of my thepe?

Drd I euer lyfte vp my hande to hurt the fatherlesse? yea in the gate where I sawe my selfe to be in auctoritie: then let myne arme fall fro my shoulder, and myne arme holes be broken from the ioyntes. For I haue euer feared the vengeance and punishment of God, and knowe wepe well, that I was not hable to beare his burthen. Haue I put my trust in golde? Or haue I sayde to the syned golde of all: thou arte my confidence? Haue I reioysed bycause my substance was greace, and because my hande gat so moche? Drd I euer greatly regarde the splinge of the sonne?
or hadde I the gorge downe of the moone in greace reputation? Wathe my herte medled pynfully with any dyscreit? Or byd I euer kille myne owne hande? that were a wickednesse woorthye to be punished, for then woulde I haue denyed the God that is about. Haue I euer reioysed at the hurte of myne enemye?
Or was I euer glad that anye harme happened vnto him? Oh no. I neuer suffered my mouthe to wo suche a synne as to wyspe him euill. Yet they of myne owne howsholde saye:
who wall lette vs to haue oure bellie full of his fleshe? I haue not suffered a straunger to lie withoute, but opened my voyces vnto him.
Haue I euer done anye wicked dede, where thowme I warned my selfe before men: or a-nye abhominacion, that I was fayne to hyde it? For ys I hadde feared anye greace multitude of people: or ys I hadde ben despised of the symple: Or then woulde I haue bene ascapde. Thus haue I quickly spent my lyfe, and not gone out at the voyce. Or that I hadde one whiche wolde beare me. Lo, this is my cause. Lette the almyghty geue me aunswere: and let him that is my contraye partye, sue me with a lybell. Then shall I take it vpon my shoulder, and as a garlande aboute my heed. I haue tolde the nombre of my go-singes, and deliuered them vnto him as to a pyrce. But ys case be that my lande crye against me, or that the forowes therof make anye complaunte: Yf I haue eaten the feu-res therof vnpayed for, yea ys I haue greued anye of the plowmen: then lette thyddes growe in steed of my whete, and thownes for my barleye.

There end the words of Job.

Chus after the other had finished their course in prison, respectuely them of solitudes. Begging not a man wyle, but the spirit of God.

CAPL. XXXII.

So theſe theſe men wolde ſtue no more Job, becauſe he beide him ſelfe a ryght eous man. But Eliu the ſonne of Bar-chei the Buſine of the kyned of Ram, was very ſore diſpleaſed at Job, that he called him ſelfe iuſt befoze God. And to Jobs theſe ſayde he was angrye alſo, becauſe they hadde made no reaſonable aunſwere to ouercome hym.
Some ſayde Eliu yll they hadde ended the communication with Job, ſoz why they were elde then he. So when Eliu the ſonne of Ba-rachei the Buſine ſawe that theſe theſe men were not habile to make Job anſwere, he was impatient, ſo that he gaue anſwere him ſelfe and ſayde: Only beſeinge that I am yonger, and ye be men of age, I was afraid, I durde not ſweke forthe my mynde, ſoz I thoughte thus with in my ſelfe: It becommeth olde me to ſpeake, and the aged to teache wiſdome.
Every man (no doubte) hath a mynde, but it is the inſpiration of the almighty that geueth vnderſtandynge. All men are not wiſe, neither dothe euerye aged man vnderſtande the thyng that is lawfull. Therfoze wyll I ſpeake alſo (in ſo farre as I maye be able) and wyll ſhewe you myne opinion. ſoz when I hadde wayed wyll ye made an end of your talkynge, and herde your wiſdome, what argumentes ye made in your communications yea when I hadde diligently pondered what ye ſayd: I founde not one of you that made any good argument agaynſte Job, ſoz that theynſe could make anſwere vnto his wordes: I ſhoulde praiſe your ſelues to haue founde out wiſdome: becauſe it is God that hath made hym ouer, and no man. Neuertheleſſe ſerue he hath not ſpoken vnto me, therfoze wyll not I anſwere hym as ye haue done: for they were ſo abaſhed, that they could not make anſwere, nor ſpeake one word: but ſithen wyll not ſpeake. And ynge wyll like ſome men, and makinge no anſwere: I haue a good hope ſoz my parte to ſhewe him an anſwer, and to ſhewe him my meaning. ſoz I am full of wordes, and the ſpíríte that is within me, compelleth me.

Beholde, I am as the newe wyne, which hath no ventre, and butteth the newe bottles in sunder. Therefore wyl I speake, that I may haue a ventre: I wyl open my lippes, and make answer: I wyl open my lippes, and personne, no man by it I spare. For I shal go aboute to please men, I knowe not what sone my maker wolde take me awaye.

Thus heareth wherein Job offendeth. What he saith he not Argue, nor curiously search, but he watches.

CAPL. XXXIII

Wherfore heare my wordes (O Job) and hearken vnto me all that I wyll saye: Beholde, I wyll open my mouth, and my tonge shall speake oute of my chawes.
 My heere shall exorde my wordes a right, and my lippes shall talke of pure wysdome. The spirit of God hath made me, and the breath of the almyghty hath gyuen me my life. Yet thou canst, then gyue me answer: prepare thy self to stande before me face to face. Beholde before God am I zeal as thou, for I am fashioned and made euen of the same mould. Therefore thou needst not be ashyde of me, neither needst thou to feare, that my reproche shall be to heuy for the. Howe haste thou spoken in mine eares, and I haue herd the voyce of thy wordes: I am cleare without any faulte. I am innocent, and there is no wyckednes in me.
 But lo, he hath opened a quarrell agaynst me, and taken me for his enemy: he hath put my feet in the stocks, and loketh narrowly vnto all my pathes. Beholde, vnto these vnureasonable wordes of thyne will I make an-swere.

Shoulde God be reproued of man? Why dost thou then aspye agaynst him because he punisheth the accomplis of all his doynge?
For when God doth ones commaunde a thing there shold no man be curious, to seeke to be= gin it be right. In dreames and visions of the night season (when slombing cometh vpon men that they fall a slepe in their beddes) he toucheth them in the eares, he informeth the eare witheth them playnely that it is he willeth the withereth man from euill. deliuereyth him from pyre kepeth his soule from destru= ction, and his lyfe from the swerde. he challe= neth him with spekenesse, and bringeth him to his bed: he layeth soze punishment vpon his bones, so þ his lyfe may awake with no bled, and his soule abhorreth to eate anye dayntye meat: in to moche that his body is clene con= sumed awaye, and his bones appere no more.
his soule dyeth on to destruction, and his lyfe to deth. Now if there be a messenger (one amonge a thousande) sent for to speake vnto man, and to wryte him the ryght waye: then the Lord is mercifull vnto him, and sayeth:
he shall be deliuered, that he fall not downe to destruction. for I am sufficiently recon= ced. Then his flesshe (whiche hath ben in mi= serie a trouble) shal be as it was in his yowth.
for he yelde him selfe vnto God, he is gra= uous, and witheth him his countenance to p= hully, and rewardeth man for his ryghtou= nesse. Suche a respyce hathe he vnto men.
Therefore let a man confesse (and saye) I offen= ded, but he hath chassened and reformed me:
I shal brightously, neuertheless he hath not recompensed me thereafter. Yea he hath deli= uered my soule from destruction, and my lyfe that it seeth the light. Lo, thus worketh God alwaies with man, that he kepeth his soule from perispyng, and letteth him enioye the light of the lypunge. Marke well (O Job) and heare me: holde the still, vntyll I haue spoken. But when thou shalt any thinge saye, thou answer me, and speake, for thy an= more please me. Yf thou hast nothing, then beare me, & holde thy tongue, so shall I teach the wysdome.

Thus prayeth the iustice of God, whiche iudgeth the worlde, and gouerneth all.

CAP. XXXIII.

Elſu proceedinge forth in his communication, ſayd: heare my wordes (O ye iſrmen) hearken vnto me, ye that haue vnder-ſtandynge. For lyke as the mouth taſteth the meates, ſo the eare proueth and diſcerneth the wordes. As for the iudgement, let vs ſeeke it out amonge our ſelues, that we may knowe what is right. And why? Job hath ſayde: I am righteous, but God dothe me wronge. I muſt needs be a lyer, though he my cauſe be righte, and violently I am plagued wher as I made no fault: where is there ſuche one as Job, that dyppeth by ſcornfulneſſe like water? whiche goeth in the company of wycked doers, and walketh with vngodly men? For he ſaythe: Though a man be good, yet is he nought before God. Therefore heeke vnto me ye that haue vnderſtandynge.

Farre be it from God, that he shold medle with wickednes: and farre be it from the almighty, that he shold medle with vnrighteous dealing: but he rewardeth the workes of mā and causeth euery man to fynde accordaunce to his wayes. for sure it is that God condēneth no man wrongfully, and the iudgement of the almighty is not vnrighteous. Who enseth the earthe in his strebe? Or to whome hath he set to gouerne the dole world? To whome hath he giuen his beere, for to drinke his spirite and breath vnto him? All fleshe shall come togy-ther vnto nought, and all men shall turne againe vnto earth. yf thou now haue vnderstandyng, heare what I say, andarken to the voce of my wordes.

Maye he be made whole, that louth no righte? Yf thou were a very innocent man, wouldest thou then be punished? For he is such the same, that knoweth the rebellious kynges, and saith to Princes: Cingdyls men are ye. He hath no respect vnto the personnes of the lordlye, and regardeth not the eyche more then poore. for they be all the worke of his handes. In the twinklinge of an eye shall they be slayne: and at mydnyghe, when they perceiue the tyrannikes rage, then shall they perishe and be taken awaie withoute handes. And why? his eyes loke vpon the mapes of man, and he seeth all his gorgnes.
There is no darkenesse nor thicke shadowe,
that can hyde the wycked doers from hym.
For no man shall be suffered to go in to iudge-ment with God.

Many one, read innumerable booke he pur nyshe, and seetheth other in their studies for he knoweth their cupill and darke workes, there fore shall they be drooped. They that were in the Netie of Errors, dralle like ynbodye men.
Therefore turned they backe trayterously and bafaghtfully from him, and wold not seeeue his

his wayes. In so much that they haue caused þ voyce of the poyse to come vnto him, & now he heareth the complainte of such as are in necessite. If he deliuer and graunte parton, who will iudge or condemne? But if he hye away his countenance, who will turne it about agayne, whether it be to the people or to any man? For the wickednesse and synne of the people, he maketh an hypocrite to rep- gne ouer them. For so moche then as I haue begon to talke of God, I will not hynde þ.
If I haue gone a myle, enloume me: yf I haue done wronge, I will leaue of. With thou not geue a reasonable answer? Art thou a-scaped of any thinge, scrage thou begannest first to speake, and not I: For is the men of vnderstandinge and wysdome, that haue herd me, myght saye: What canst thou speake?
As for Job he hath neyther spoken to the purpose nor wysely. O father, let Job be well tryed, because he hath turned him selfe to the wicked: for about his synnes he hath blas-phemed, which offence he hath done euen before vs, in that he dyspeth agayn God with his wordes.

¶ Neither doth godlynes profite, or vngodlynes harme to God, but to man.

CAPL. XXXV.

Enspake moze ouer, and sayde: What hast thou it ryght that thou sayest: I am ryghteous before God: I charge thou sayest so, howe well thou knowest it? What thinge hast thou more excellent then I, that am a synner? Euen so will I geue answer vnto the answers: loke vnto the heauen, and beholde it: conspice the cloudes, how they are hygher then thou. If thou synnest, what dost thou vnto him? If thyne offences be many, how gettest thou his fauoure?
If thou be ryghteous: what gresseth thou vnto him? What requerest thou of his handes? Or saueth an vngodly personne as thou, and of the sonne or man that is righteous as thou pretended to be: there is a great reye and complaine made by them that are oppressed with violence, for eury man complayneth vpon þ cruell arme of tyrannye. For such one neuer sayth: Where is God that made me? & that synneth vpon vs, that we myght praye him in the myght? Which groweth vs moze vnderstandinge, then he doeth the bralles of the earth, and teacheth vs moze then the fowles of heauen.

If anye suche complaine, no man groweth aunswere, and that because of the wickednesse of proude iayntes. But yf a man call vpon God, doeth not he heare hym? Doeth not the almyghty accepte his crye? When thou speakest thus, wouldest not he pardon the, yf thou open thy selfe before him, and put thy trust in him? Then he shal be no violence in his wayes, neyther had he pleasure in cry-ous and depe iniquityons. Therefore haue Job opened his mouthe but in vayne, and solythyly hath he made so many wordes.

¶ Euen so wylth wherefore God punyssheth and receiveth.

CAPL. XXXVI.

Enproceeded forth in his talkynge sayde: Holde the still a lytle, and I shal shewe the, what I haue yet to speake in Gods behalfe. I will open vnto the yet moze of myne vnderstandinge, and poynt my mouth ryghteous. True are my wordes, and no he and the knowledge, whether I argue against the, is perfect. Beholde, God which not away the myghty, for he him selfe is myghty in power and wysdome.

As for the vngodly, he perserueth them not but helpeth the poore to their right. He receiveth not his eyes awaye frome the ryghteous, he setteth vp hynges in their throne, and syt-teth them, so that they alwaye sit there.
But yf they be larye in synne and chynce, þ or bounde with the bondes of powertie: then sheweth he them their workes and deedes, and the synnes wherewith they haue used cruell violence.

He with punysshynge and nuryng of fillouneth them in the caces, warneth them to leaue of frome their wickednesse, and to remende. If they now will take hyde and bebekent, they shall weate out their dayes in prosperite, and their peres in pleasure. But yf they will not obeye, they shall geue rowe the swerde, and perswade, or they be ware. As for such as be synners, vnderstand and hypocrites, they heape vp wrath for themselues: for they call not vpon him, though they be his prisoners. Thus they looke synneth in folye, and they lyfe with the damned. The poore dyspetheth he out of straynesse, and comfortethe such as be in celatue and trouble. Euen so shall he heape (yf thou wilt be content) terme the bottomlesse pyete that is beneth: and yf thou wilt holde the quyre, he shall fill thy table with plente.

¶ Next he telleth thou hast condemned the gement of the vngodly, yea euen such a gement and sentence shalt thou suffer. For thou shalt not thy cause be styllled with cruell pactyed with many gressers. Hath God ned then, that the glorious lyfe of the,
all suche myghty men, wouldest not be put downe? Prolonge not thou the tyme, yf there come a myght for the, to set other ple in thy steade. But beware that thou lot aske to wickednesse and synne, wherbytherio thou hast chosen moze then wylnesse. Beholde, God is of a myghty power: Where is such a gurse and lawe? ut as he: Who shal reprove him of his Who wilt saye vnto hym: thou hast done wronge?

¶ Consydre howe greet and excellent is his hes be, whome all men loue and praye: for and wylth at him, and yet they be hym
and

of. Beholde, so great is God, that he passeth our knowledge, neyther are we habile to come to the experience of his peres. He turneth the water to small dropes, he dryueth the cloudes together for to rayne, so that they poynt to me and drop vpon men. He capeth the cloudes (a couering of his tabernacle) and causeth his lyght to shyne vpon them, and to couer the botome of the see. By these thin-ges gouerneth he his people, and groweth the abundance of meate. In the turning of an hande he dyspeth the lyght, and at his commandement it cometh agayne. The tryng wherof sheweth he to his frendes and to the cattell.

¶ Euen so wylth that the wysdome of god is vnsearch-able.

CAP. XXXVII.

At this, my heart is astonied, and mound out of his place. Heare then the founde of his voyce, and the noyse that goeth out of his mouth. He gouerneth eury thinge vnder the heauen, and his lyght reacheth vnto the ende of the worlde. A roaring voyce foloweth him: for his glorious maiesty growethe such a thondre clap, that (though a man heare it) yet maye he not perceyue it afterward. It groweth an horrible sounde, whil-God sendeth out his voyce: greater thynges doth he, which we can not compyse. Whilhe commaundeth the snowe, it falleth vpon the earth: As sone as he groweth the rayne a charge, forthwith the flowres haue their strenght and fall downe. He sendeth frost vpon eury man, that they myght knowe their owne workes. The bralles crepe into their denues, and take their rest. Oute of the Southe, cometh the tempeste, and colde oute of the North.

At the birth of God, the frost cometh,
and the waters are fied abrode. The cloudes do their labour in gyngne moystnesse, the cloudes poynt downe their rayne. He dis-tributeth also on eury syde, accordyng as it plea-seth him to deale oute his workes, that they saye so, what so euer he commaundeth them they do the hole worlde: whether it be to pu-nysh any lande, or to doo good vnto them, that like hym.

¶ Behen vnto this (O Job) stande still, and consydre the wondrous workes of God. Arise then of counsell with God, when he doeth these thynges? When he causeth the lyght to come forth of his cloudes? Arise thou of his counsell when he spreadeth out the cloudes?
Hast thou the perfect knowlet ge of his wonders? and howe thy clothes are warme, whilthe lande is still thowm the South wynde?
Hast thou helped hym to spreade out the heauen, which is to loke vpon, as it were east of clere metall? Teache vs what we shal saye vnto hym, for we are vnnmete because of darkenesse.

¶ Shal it be tolde him what I saye? Shuld a man speake, or shuld he kepe it backe? For eury man seyth not the lyght, that he heareth clere in the cloudes, which he clenseth when he maketh the wynde to blome. Colde is brought out of the North, but the prayse and honoure of Gods feare cometh frome God him selfe. It is not we that can fynde out the almighty: for in power, equitie, and righte-ousnesse, he is hygher than can be expessed.
Sythe then that eury body feareth him, wher-shouldest not all wyse men also stande in awe of him?

¶ The wonders that the Lord hath done frome the begynnyng.

CAPL. XXXVIII.

Then spake the Lord vnto Job oute of the storme, and sayde: What is he that dyspeth his mynde with folys wordes?
Cryde vp the sonnes lyke a man, for I will question the, se thou geue me a direct answer.
Where wast thou, when I layde the foundations of the earth? Tell playnly if thou haue vnderstandynge. Who hath measured it, kno-west thou? Or, who hath spied the lyne vpon it? Where vpon stande the pylers of it? Or, who layd the corner stone? Where wast thou when the morninge starres prynced me to gyther, and all the children of God reioyced umphantely? Who shut the se with doores, when it brake forth as a childe out of his mothers wombe? When I made the cloudes to be a couerynge for it, and swabbed it with the darcke? When I gaue it my commaunde-ment, makinge doores and barres for it, say-enge: Hyther to walt thou come, but no further, and here walt thou lape downe thy prowde and hygh waues? Hast thou gyuen the morninge his charge, (as sone as thou wast voyce) and shewed the daye sprynge his place, that it might take holde of the corners of the earthe, and that the vngodly myghte be shaken out? Their tokens and weapons, hast thou turned lyke claye, and set them vp agayne as the chaungynge of a garment. Yea thou hast spored the vngodly of their lyght, and broken the arme of the prowde. Camest thou euer into the grounde of the see? or hast thou walked in the lowe corners of the depe?
Hast thou the gates of death bene opened vnto þ?
or hast thou sene the doore of euerylastynge treasure? Hast thou also perceyued how broad the earth is? Now yf thou hast knowledge of all, then shew me where lyght dwelleth, and where darcknesse is: that thou maydest bringe vs vnto their quarters, yf thou canst tell the waye to their houses.

¶ Knowest thou (when thou wast boyne) how olde thou shouldest be? Wentest thou euer in to the thysauries of the snowe? or hast thou sene the secrete places of the bayle, whilke I hane ordeined against the tyme of trouble, as gainste the tyme of batayle and warre? By what

What waye is the fyghe parted, and the heate draft out vpon the earth? Who climeth the aboundaunce of waters into ryuers, or who maketh a waye for the storme weether, that it waiceth and mooueth the hye and baren groundes: to make the grasse growe in places where no body dwelleth, and in the wyld-ernes where no man remayneth? Who is the father of rayne? Or who hath begotten the drops of dew? Out of whose wombe came the yse? Who hath gendered the colde-nes of the arie? that the waters are as harde as stones, and the congelled about the eye.
Hast thou brought the scuen flares together?
Or art thou habile to breake the circle of bea-uities? And hast thou brynge forth the moony ageflares of the euerynge flares at conuenient tyme, and conuerse them home agayne? Know-est thou the course of beauiies, that thou mayst set by the ordinance thereof vpon the earth? Excuse, canst thou lyfte by thy voyce to the clouds, that they maye petye downe a greates rayne vpon the? And hast thou thondre also that they maye goo their waye, and be obedient vnto the, sayenge: Lo here are we? Who strengtheth sure wysdome? And fast vnderstandinge? Who numbereth the cloudes in wysdome? Who sylleth the vehement waters of the heauen? Who turneth the shottes to snow, and then to be clottes agayne?
Huncest thou the playe from the Lyon? Or fistest thou his whelpes spenge in their dennes and lurkinges in their couches? Who purseyeth meat for; the rauen, when his younge crye vnto God, and sayeth aboute so; wante of meate?

God speaketh unto Job, & wringeth him by the reins: & saith unto him, & to his friends, that his righteousness is vain: & he is perished.

CAPL. XXXIX

Knowest thou the tyme when the wyld gottes byrge forth their younge among the stony rocks? Or sayest thou wayte when they bynds die to lorne? reherrest thou the monethes after they engendre, that thou knowest the tyme of their bearynge? or when they lye to wome, when they cast their younge, and when they are deliuered of their trauble and payne? How tyme younge growe by, and waxe great? how tyme good feydinge? Who let-teeth the wyld ass go free? or who loosedeth bondes of the mule? Into whom I haue gyuen the wyld asinie to be their house, and the brynnyed londe to be their dwelling place.
That they maye geue no losse for the multitude of people in the caryages, neyther they re-bide the caryenge of the oxen: but seke their pasture about the mountaynes, and solace in the gyrne graile.

fynge flones, he careth as moche for fubble

The repentance of Job. He prayeth for his friends, and his goodes are restored double vnto hym.

CAPL. XLII.

Then Job answered the Lord, and sayd: I knowe that thou hast power ouer all thynges, and that there is no thought that I can kepe hyde vnto the. For who can kepe his owne counsell so secreete, but it shall be knowen? Therfore haue I spoken vnto my selfe, sayinge these thynges are so hygh, and passe myne vnderstandyng. O hearken thou vnto me also, & let me speake: answere vnto the thynges that I will aske the. I haue greden dyuerse eare vnto the, and now I se the with myne eyes. Wherefore I geue myne owne selfe the blame, and take repentance, in the duste and ashes.

Nowe when the Roide hadde spoken these wordes unto Job, he sayde unto Eliphaz the Themanite: I am dispeaced with p and thy two frends, for ye haue not spoke p thing that is right

is right before me, lyke as my seruaunt Job hath done. Therfore take seven oxen and seven rammes, and go to my seruaunt Job, offer vp also for you selues a burnt offering: and let my seruaunt Job praye for you. Him will I accept, and not deal with you after your so lyttle: in that ye haue not spoken þ thing whiche is righte, lyke as my seruaunt Job hath done.

So Elphas the Themanite, Baldad the Subite and Sophar the Naamathite wente their waye, and dyd accordyng as the Lorde commaunded them. The Lorde also accepted the personne of Job, and the Lorde turned him into Job, when he prayed for his seruaunts: Yea the Lorde gaue Job twyse as much as he had afore.

And then came there vnto him all his brethren, all his sisters, with all them that had bene of his acquaintance afore, and ate bread with him in his house, wondunge at him, & comfortyng him ouer all the trouble, that þ Lorde hadde brought vpon him. Every man gaue him a shepe and a Jewell of golde.

And the Lorde made Job ryche then he was before: for he hadde fourtene thousande shepe, five thousande Camels, a thousande yoke of oxen, and a thousande asses. He had also children also, seven sonnes and three daughters. The first called Dabe: the seconde Dene: the thirde All pleiteousnes. In all the lande were none founde so paye, as the daughters of Job, & their father gaue them enheritaunce among their brethren. After this lpyed Job fourtye yeres, so that he sawe his children, and his childrens children to the fourth generation. And so he dyed, beinge old and of a perfect age.

Blessed is þ man, that getteth not in the counsell of the vngodly: that abyeth not in the way of synners, and stretteth not in þ seat of the scornfull.

But he trusteth in the labe of the Lorde, and exerceyth him selfe in his lawe, Suche man is lyke a tree planted by the water, that byngeth forth frute in due season.

His leaues shall not fall of, and what soeuer he doth, shall prosper.

For he is with the vngodly, not so but they are lyke dust, which the wynde scattereth away from of the grounde.

Therfore the vngodly shall not stande in þ iudgement, neyther the synners in the congregacion of the righteous.

For the Lorde aloweth the way of the righteous, but the waye of the vngodly shall perishe.

Why do the hepyen grudge: why do the people ymagyne hayne thynges?

The kynges of the earthe stande vp, & the rulers are come togither, against þ Lorde, and against his anointed.

Let vs breake their bondes asunder, and cast awaye their yoke from vs.

But he þ dwelleth in heauen, shall laughe them to scorne: the Lorde him selfe shall haue them in derision.

Thi shall he speake vnto them in his wrath, and bere them in his fowre displeasure.

Yet haue I set my kynge vpon my holy hill of Sion.

Serue the Lord with feare, and reioyce before him with reuerence.

To the chaunter vpon Shushy Laben, a Psalm
of David.

I will grue thanks vnto the (O Lord) with my hole herte, I will speake of all thy maruelous workes.

I will be glad, and reioyce in thee, yea my songs will I make of thy name, O thou most high.

Because thou hast dyuen myne enemies backe, they were discomfited, and percipied at thy presence.

For thou hast maynteyned my right & my cause: thou sittest in the throne that art the ouerlodge.

Thou rebukest the heythen, and destroyest the ungodly, thou puttest out their name for euer.

The enemies swardes are come to an ende, thou hast ouerthrowen their cyties, their memorial is perished with them.

But the Lord endureth for euer, he hath prepared his seate vnto iudgement.

He gouerneth the world with righteousnes, and ministreth true iudgement vnto the
people.

The Lord is a defence for þe poore, a defence
in the tyme of trouble.

Therefore they þe know thy name, put their trust in the: for thou (Lord) neuer failest

Praise ye the Lord, which dwelleth in Heliou, thine the people of his wynges.

And why? he maketh inquisition for their bloud, and remembereth them: he forgetteth not the complaynt of the poore.

Have mercy on me (O Lord) confesse the trouble that I am in amonge myne enemy-es, thou that lyest me up from the gates of hele.

That I maye shew all thy prayles within the gates of the daughter of Sion, and reioyce

But the heythen, are sunken downe in the pye that they made: in the same nette whiche they layd oute pyracy, is their owne feete taken.

Thus the Lord is knowne to execute true iudgement, when the ungodly is trapped in the workes of his owne handes. Selah.

The wicked must be turned vnto hell, and all the heythen that forget God.

But the poore shall not alwaye be out of re-membraunce, the patient abydinge of such as
be in trouble shall not perishe for euer.

Reyle Lord, let no man haue the vpper

O Lord set a scolemaster ouer them, that the heythen maye knowe them selues to be but men. Selah.

There is no Gylt in the heythen.

Why art thou gone so farre of, O Lord?
wilt thou hyde thy selfe in tyme of trouble?

Why the ungodly hath the ouerhande, þe poore must suffice persecution.

O that they were taken in the ymaginaciō whiche they go about.

For the ungodly maketh boote of his owne heartes desire, the courteous blesteth him selfe, and blasphemeth the Lord.

The ungodly is so proude and full of indignation, that he careth not: neyther is God before his eyes.

His wayes are alway filthy, thy iudgmentes are farre out of his sight, he despyeth all his enemies.

For he saith in his heart: Truly, I shall neuer be cast downe, there shall no harme happen vnto me.

His mouth is full of cursinge, fraude and discreete: vnder his tongue is traunple and sorrow.

He sitteth lurking in the gardens, that he maye pynely murder the innocent, his eyes are set vpon the poore.

He lyeth in awayer secretly, as it were a lyon in his denne.

He lurketh that he maye rauish the poore, yea to rauish the poore, when he hath gotten him in to his net.

When he smytheth he, then oppresteth he & casteth downe the poore with his auarice.

For he saith in his heart: Truly, God hath forgotten, he hath turned away his face, so that he will neuer see it.

Reyle O Lord God, lyft by thyne hande, and forget not the poore.

Wherefore shoulde the wicked blaspheme
God and saye in his heart: truly, he careth not for it.

This thou seest, for thou considerest the mystery and sorrow.

The poore gructh him selfe out into thy hand and committeth him vnto the, for thou art þe helper of the friendlesse.

Break thou the arme of the ungodly and malicious, searche out the wickednesse whiche he hath done, that he maye perishe.

The Lord is kynge for euer, the heythen shall perishe out of his lande.

Lord, thou hearest the desirous longynge of the poore: their heart is sure, that thyne ear hearkeneth therto.

Helpe the fatherlesse and poore vnto their right, that the ungodly be no more exalted vpon earth.

He that setteth not by the vngodly, but maketh moche of them that feare the Lorde: that sheweth vnto his neyghbour, and his poyncteth him not.

He that gyueth not his moneye vpon vanyte, and taketh no reward against the meane.

Who so doth these thinges, shall not be removed.

XV.

To the chaunter, of David.

Preserue me (O God) for in the day of trouble.

I haue sayd vnto the Lorde: thou art my God, my goodes are nothinge vnto the.

All my trespase is vpon the sayntes that are in the earth, and vpon such lyke.

But they that runne after an other, shall haue great trouble.

Their sacrifices of bloude will not I offer, neither make mencion of their name in my mouth.

The Lorde him selfe is my good and my mercie, thou mayntaynest myne enemye: I will.

The lot is fallen vnto me in a sayre ground for I haue a goodly heritage.

I will thanke the Lorde for gyauynge me trespase: my reynes also haue chastered me in the right season.

Howe haue I sawe I God allwayes before me, for he is on my right hande, that I shoulde not fall.

Therfore byd my heart reioyce, and my tongue was glad, my kelshe also shall rest in hope.

For thou shalt not leaue my soule in hell, neither shalt thou suffer thy saynt to be captiue.

Thou shalt shew me the wayes of lyfe: thou shalt make me full of ioye with thy countenance.

At thy right hande there is pleasure & ioye in thy mercy.

PSAL.

XVI.

To the chaunter, of David.

Hear the ryght (O Lorde) conspyre my complaynte: hearken vnto my prayer, & gorth not out of a fayned mouth.

Let my sentence come forth frome thy presence: and loke vpon the thinge that is equal.

Thou hast proued and bysted myne heart in the nyght season: thou hast tryed me in the fire: and hast founde no wickednesse in me: for I utterly purposed that my mouth shoulde not offende.

Because of thy wordes of thy lippes, I haue kepte me frome the wordes of men: in þ waye of the murderer.

Wher thou my goynges in thy pathes: that my feete shalde slippe not.

For vnto the I crye: heare me O God: encline thine eares to me: and hearken vnto my wordes.

Shew the maruclous longynge kyndnesse, that thou hast shewed vnto me: which putteth their trust in the, frome such as resist thy right hand.

Repay me as the baile of an eye, defende me frome the wyndes of thy wynges.

Frome the vngodly that trouble me, frome myne enemyes which compass my soule round about.

Which maynteyne their owne welchynesse by oppression, and their mouth speaketh hard thinges.

They lye in waye in our waye on euery side turning their eyes towne to the ground.

Aske a Lyon that is greedy of his pray, and as it were a Lyons whelpes luthynge in his denne.

Aske Lorde, discomfite him and cast him downe: deliuer my soule with thy swerde fro the vngodly.

Frome the men of thy hande (O Lorde) frō the men of the worlde, which haue their possession in this lyfe: whose belyes thou fillest with thy treasure.

They haue children at their desire, and leaue the rest of their substance for their ba-bes.

But I will beholde thy presence in righte-ousnesse: and when thy gloire appeareth, I shall be satisfied.

PSAL.

XVII.

After the bynes. xiii.

To the chaunter of David seruant of the Lorde whiche sayd vnto the Lorde the wordes of this songe, on the daye in whiche the Lorde deliuered him frome the hande of all his enemyes, and frome the hande of Saul, and sayde.

I will loue the (O Lorde) my strength.

The Lorde is my succour, my refuge, my Saviour: my God, my helpe in whom I trust: my buckler, the hoine of my helth, and my protection.

I will prayse the Lorde, and call vpon him, so shall I be safe from myne enemyes.

The sorowes of treach compassed me, & the bykes of vngodlynes made me astrayed.

The paynes of hell came about me, & snares of death toke holde vpon me.

Yet in my trouble I called vpon the Lorde, and complayned vnto my God.

So he herde my voyce out of his holy temple, and my complaynte came before him, euē into his eares.

Then the earth trembled and quaked, the very foundations of the hylls shoke & were remoued, because he was wroth.

There went a smoke out of his nostrilles & a consuming fire out of his mouth, so that coles were kindled at it.

He bowed the heauens and came downe, & it was darcke vnder his feet.

He rode vpon the Cherubyns and byd he: he came syenge with the wynges of the mynde.

He made darcknes his paupylon round about him, with darcke water and thicke cloudes to couer him.

At the brightnes of his presence the cloudes remoued, with hayle stones and coles of fyre.

The Lorde also thondred out of the heauē and the berygh gaue his thondre with hayle stones and coles of fyre.

He sent out his arrowes and scattered them, he caste fōre lyghtenynge, and destroyed them.

The springes of waters were sent, and the foundacions of the rounde world were discovered at thy chydng (O Lorde) at the bla-ze of thy glory.

31. 19.

Apuge

Gynge and breath of thy displeasures.
He sent home from the bryght to fete me, and toke me out of great waters.
He deliuered me from my stronge enemies, and from my foes which were to my ly for me.

They prevented me in the tyme of my trouble, but the Lorde was my defence.
He brought me forth also into libertie: and deliuered me, because he had a fauoure vnto me.

The Lorde shall rewarde me after my ryghteous dealinge, & accordyng to the cleynesse of my handes shall he recompence me.

For I haue kept the wayes of the Lorde: & haue not behaued my selfe wyckedly agaynst
my God.

I haue an eye vnto all his lawes, and caste not out his commaundementes from me.

Unconspyt will I be before him, and will eschew myne owne wyckednes.

Therefore shall the Lorde rewarde me after my ryghteous dealinge, and accordyng vnto to the cleynesse of my handes in his eye sight.

With the holy thou shalt be holy, & with the innocent thou shalt be innocent.

With the cleane thou shalt be cleane, and with the frowarde thou shalt be frowarde.

For thou shalt save the poore oppressed, and brynge downe the hygh lokes of the proude.

Thou lightest my candle, O Lorde my God thou makest my darkness to be light.

For in the I can discomfyt an host of men:
for in my God I can leape ouer the wall.

The waye of God is a perfect waye: the wordes of the Lorde are tryed in the fyre: he is a shilde of defence, for all them that trust
in him.

For who is God, but the Lorde? Or, who hath any strength, but our God?

It is God that gyded me with strength, & made my waye unconspyt.

He hath made my fete lyke hertes fete, & set me vp on hygh.

He teacheth myne handes to fight, and ma-keth myne armes to breake euen a bowe of Asie.

Thou hast gyde me the defence of thy helth thy right hande vpholdeth me, and thy louing correction maketh me great.

Thou hast made rowme ynough vnder me for to goo, that my foote steeppes shoulde not slippe.

I will folowe vpon myne ennemys, and take them: I will not tume tyl they be discomfited.

I will smyte them, they shal not be hable to stande, but fall vnder my fete.

Thou hast gyded me with strength vnto battel, thou hast thowen them al downe vnto me, that rose vp agaynst me.

Thou hast made myne ennemys to tourne their backs vpon me, thou hast destroyed the that hated me.

They cryed, but there was none to helpe them: yea euen vnto the Lorde, but he herde them not.

I will beate them as small as the dust clay in the wynde, I will cast them out as the day in the streets.

Thou shalt deliuer me from the strynges of the people, thou shalt make me the head of the theythen.

A people to whom I haue not knowne shall serue me.

As sone as they heare of me, they shall obey me, but the straunge chyldren dissemble with
me.

The straunge chyldren are wakened, and go haltinge out of their parhes.

The Lorde is true: and blessed be my helper, praysed be the God of my helth.

Euen the God which sayth that I be angryed, and subdueth the people vnto me.

It is he that deliuereth me from my cruel ennemys: thou shalt lyft me vp from them that rise agaynst me, thou shalt red me from the wycked man.

For this cause I will gyue thanks vnto (O Lorde) amonge the gentyles, and I will prayses vnto thy name.

Great prosperitee gyueth he vnto his kynge and sheweth louynge kyndnes vnto Dauid his annoynted, yea and vnto his lez for euer more.

PSAL. XVIII.

To the chaunter, a Psalm of Dauid.

The heuene beuens declare the glorye of God, and the very firmament sheweth his hande worke.

One daye telleth an other, and one night certifieth an other.

There is neyther speache ne language, but their voyces are herde amonge them.

Their sounde is gone oute into all landes, and their wordes into the endes of the worlde.

In theyn hath he set a tabernacle for the sunne, which cometh forth as a byrd out of his chymbe, and reioysseth as a gyant to run his course.

It goeth forth from the one ende of the heauen, and turneth about vnto the same ende agayne, and there maye no man hyde him selfe from the heate therof.

The lawe of the Lorde is a perfect lawe, it quickneth the soule.

The testimony of the Lorde is true, and uerth wylsome euen vnto babes.

The statutes of the Lorde are ryghte, and reioyse the herte: the commaundment of the Lorde is pure, and gyueth light vnto the eyes.

The feare of the Lorde is cleane, and conuerteth for euer: the iudgements of the Lorde are true and righteous all together.

More pleasaunt are they then golde, yea then moche fyne gold: sweeter then hony and the hony combe.

These thy seruante keepeth, and so: he
of them there is great rewarde.

Who can tell, how oft he offendeth: if thou shalt

cast me from my secrete hautes.

Keep thy seruante also frome presumptu-
ousnes, lest they get the dominion ouer me:
for I shall be vnderfyled, and innocent frome
the greates offence.

Yea the wordes of my mouth, and the meditation of my herte shall be acceptable vnto
thee, O Lorde, my helper and my reuemer.

Keep thy seruante also frome presumptu-
ousnes, lest they get the dominion ouer me:
for I shall be vnderfyled, and innocent frome
the greates offence.

Yea the wordes of my mouth, and the meditation of my herte shall be acceptable vnto
thee, O Lorde, my helper and my reuemer.

PSAL. XIX.

To the chaunter, a Psalm of Dauid.

The Lorde heare the in the tyme of trouble: the name of the God of Jacob bestablisheth.

Sende the helpe frome the sanctuary: and strengthen the out of Syon.

Remember all thy offerynge, and accepte thy burnt sacrifice. Selah.

Remember the thy vertes desyre, and fulfill all thy mynde.

We will reioyse in thy helthe, and triumphe in the name of the Lorde our God: the Lorde performe all thy petitions.

Some knowe I, that the Lorde helpeth his annoynted, and will heare him frome his holye heauen: mygdere is the helpe of his right hande.

Some put theyr truste in charettes, and some in hories: but we will remember the name of the Lorde our God.

They are broughte downe and fallen, but we are risen and stande vpryght.

Save Lorde, and helpe vs, O kyng, when we call vpon the.

PSAL. XX.

To the chaunter, a Psalm of Dauid.

Hide, home forfall is the kynge in the drenche: O home excedynge glad is he
of the sayunge helthe.

Thou hast gyuen him his hertes desyre, and hast not put hym from the request of his lippes. Selah.

For thou hast prevented him with lyberall offerynge: and sette a crowne of golde vpon his head.

He asked lyfe of the, and thou gauest him a longe lyfe, euen for euer and euer.

His honour is great in thy sayunge helthe:
glorie and greates worshipp shalt thou laye vpon hym.

For thou shalt gyue hym euertlastynge helthe: and make him glad with the tope of thy countenance.

And why? because the kynge putteth his truste in the Lorde: and in the mercede of the Lorde he shall not myschaunce.

Lette all thyne ennemys fele thy hande:
let the ryghte hande synde oute all them that hate the.

Thou shalt make them lyke a fyre ouen in tyme of thy wrath: the Lorde shall de-stroye them in his displeasure, and the fyre shall consume them.

Theyr frute shalt thou roote oute of the earthe: and theyr sede frome the chyldren of men.

For they purposed myschaunce agaynst the:
and imagined suche traueses, as they were not hable to performe.

Therefore shalt thou put them to flight: & with thy strynges thou shalt make redde thyne arowes agaynst the faces of them.

We thou exalted, Lorde, in thyne owne strength: so will we synge and prayse thy power.

PSAL. XXI.

To the Chaunter vpon Biceth, of the moynynge starre, a Psalm of Dauid.

My God, my God: why hast thou forsaken me? the wordes of my complaynte are farre fro my helthe.

O my God, I crye in the daye tyme, but thou hearest not: and in the night season also I take no rest.

Yet dwellest thou in the sanctuary, O thou worshyp of Israel.

Oure fathers hoped in the: they trusted in the, and thou dydest deliuer them.

They called vpon the, and were helpeds:
they put theyr trust in the, and were not confounded.

But as for me, I am a woyme and no man:
a beere scoyne of men and the oute case of the
people.

All they that se me, laughe me to scozne:
they shoute oute theyr lippes, and shake theyr herdes.

Be trusted in God, let him deliuer him: let him helpe him, yf he will haue him.

But thou art he that toke me out of my mothers wombe: thou wast my hope, whē I ban-sed yet vpon my mothers brylles.

I haue ben lesse vnto the, euen lyche as I was boyme: thou arte my God, euen from my mothers wombe.

Go not fro me then, for trouble is harde at hande, and here is none to helpe me.

Great builles are come about me: fat oxen close me in on euery syde.

They gape vpon me with theyr mou-thes: as it were a rampynge and roynge Lyon.

I am poured oute lyke watter: all my bones are oute of ioynte: my herte in the myddell of my bodye, is euen lyche meltynge waxe.

My strength is dreyed by lyke a pottelherde, my range cleaueth to my gonnes:
and thou hast broughte me in to the bulke of deathe.

For dogges are come aboute me: the counsell of the wycked hath layde siege agaynst
me.

They perles my handes and my fete, I might haue tolde all my bones: but they shode not synge and tokyng vpon me.

They haue parted my garmentes amonge them, and cast lottes vpon my vesture.

But be not thou farre from me, O Lord: thou art my succour, haue the to helpe me.
Deliver my soule from the thwerde, my refuge from the power of the dogge.
Save me from the lyons mouth: and heare me bitwene the hornes of the unicornes.
So wyl I declare thy name vnto my brethren: in the midst of the congregacion wyl I prayse the.
Prayse the Lord ye that feare him: magnifie him all ye seed of Jacob, and let all the seed of Israel feare him.

For he hath not despised me abhorred the miserable state of the poore: he hath not hyd his face from me, but when I called vnto hym, he herde me.

I wyl prayse the in the great congregacion, and performe my vowes in the sight of all the that feare the.

The poore shall eate and be satisfied: they that seeke after the Lord shall prayse him: our hearts shall be true for euer.

All the endes of the world shall remember them selues, & be turned vnto the Lord: and all the generations of the heathen shall worship before him.

For the kingdom is the Lordes: and he shall be the gouernour of the heathen.

All suche as be fatte vpon earthe: shall eate also and worshipping: all they that lye in the duste and lye so hardly, shall fall downe before him.

The seed shall serue him, and preache of the Lord for euer.

They shall come and declare his righteousnesse: vnto a people that shall be borne, whom the Lord hath made.

PSAL. XXII.

Of Psalms of David.

After the Psalms.

Slape. xl.
dierem. xxi.
Eccl. xxvii.
John. x. a
1. Pet. ii.

The Lord is my Shepherd: I can want nothing.

He feedeth me in a grene pasture, and leadeth me to a fresh water.

He quickneth my soule, and byngeth me forth in the waye of rightousnesse for his names sake.

Though I walke in the valey of the shadowe of death, yet I feare no euill, for thou art with me: thy staffe and thy shep-hoke comfort me.

Thou preparedst a table before me agaynst my enemies: thou annoyntest my head w oyle, and fyllest my cup full.

Oh let thy louynge kyndnes and mercye fo-low me all the dayes of my lyfe, that I maye dwell in the house of the Lord for euer.

PSAL. XXIII.

Of Psalms of David.

After the Psalms.

The Lord is the Lordes, and all that therein is: the compasse of the world, and all that dwell therein.

For he hath founded it vpon the seas: and buylded it vpon the floudes.

Who shall go vp in to the hill of the Lord: or who shall remayne in his holy place?

Such he that hath innocent handes and a cleane heart: which lieth not by his tongue to vanitie, and sweareth not to disceyue.

He shall receyue the blessing from the Lord, and mercye from God his sauour.

This is the generacion of them that seeke him: of them that seeke thy face, O Lord. Selah.

Open your gates (O ye princes) let the myladyng wayes be opened, that the kyng of glo-
rye maye come in.

Who is this kyng of glory? It is the Lord stronge and mightye, euen the Lord mightye in battaile.

Open your gates (O ye princes) let the myladyng wayes be opened, that the kyng of glo-
rye maye come in.

Who is this kyng of glory? It is the Lord of hostes, he is the kyng of glory. Selah.

PSAL. XXIII.

Of David.

Vnto the, O Lord, I lyfte vp my soule: my God, I truste in the, let me not be confounded, lest myne enemies triumphe ouer me.

For all they that hope in the, shall not be ashamed: but suche as be scornfull without cause, shall be put to confusion.

Show me thy wayes (O Lord) and teach me thy pathes.

Leade me in thy trueth, and let me not be thou arte the God of my belthe, and in thes my hope all the daye longe.

Call to remembrance, O Lord, thy tender mercyes, and thy louynge kyndnes, which I haue ben euer of olde.

Oh remember not the synnes and offences of my yowthe, but accordynge vnto thy mercy: thyneke vpon me, O Lord, for thy goodnesse.

How frendly and righteous is the Lord: therefore wal he teache synners in the waye.

He leadeth the simple a right: and such as be meke, them learneth he his wayes.

All the wayes of the Lord, are very myghty and saythfulnesse, vnto such as kepe his testament and couenaunt.

For thy names sake, O Lord, be mercifull vnto my synne, for it is great.

What so euer he be that feareth the Lord, he shall shewe hym the waye that he hath chosen.

His soule shall dwell at ease: and his inheritance shall possesse the lande.

The secretes of the Lord are amonge them that feare him: and he sheweth them his counsaile.

Myne eyes are euer lookinge vnto the Lord: for he shall plucke my feete out of the nette.

Turne the vnto me, and haue mercye vpon me for I am desolate and in myserye.

The sorowes of my heart are great, byynge me out of my troubles.

Like vpon myne aduersite and woo: and forgyue me all my synnes.

Consider how myne enemies are many, & heare a malicious hate agaynst me.

Kepe my soule, and deliuer me: lette me not be confounded, for I haue put my truste in the.

Lette innocencye and ryghtous deaspnge warre vpon me, for my hope is in the.

Deliver Israel, O God, out of all his trouble.

PSAL. XXV.

Of David.

Be thou my iudge, O Lord, for I walke innocently: my trust is in the Lord, therefore shall I not fall.

Examine me, O Lord, and proue me: enserche my reynes and my heart.

For thy louynge kyndnesse is before myne eyes: and I walke in thy trueth.

I feare not amonge vayne persons, and haue no felawshipp with the dysceitfull.

I hate the congregacion of the wicked, and I wyl not set amonge the vngodly.

I walke with my handes with innocencye, O Lord, and so go I to thyne aulter.

That I may shewe the voyce of thy prayse: and tell of all thy wonderous workes.

O Lord, I loue the habytacion of thy house, and the place where thy honour dwelleth.

Destroye not my soule with the synners: me-lyste with the bloudthirstyge.

In whose handes is wyckednesse, and they: right hande is full of gyftes.

But I wyl walke innocently: deliuer me, and be mercifull vnto me.

My soule standeth ryght: I wyl prayse the (O Lord) in the congregacions.

PSAL. XXVI.

Of David.

The Lord is my lyghte and my helthe: whome then shal I feare? the Lord is the strength of my life, for whom then shal I be afrayde?

Therefore when the wycked, euen myne enemies came vpon me to eate vp my fleshe, they stumbled and fell.

Though an hoste of men were layde against me, yet shal not my heart be afrayde: and though there arose vpon warre agaynst me, yet wyl I put my trust in him.

One thing haue I desired of the Lord, whiche I wyl requyre: namely, that I maye dwell in the house of the Lord all the dayes of my lyfe, to beholde the sayre beaurie of the Lord, and to bylde his temple.

For in tyme of trouble he hath hydde me in his tabernacle, yea in the secreete place of his dwellyng hath he kepte and set me by vpon a cocke of stone.

And now hath he lyfte by my heed above myne ennemyes, that compassed me rounde about.

Therefore wyl I offre in his dwellyng, the oblation of thankesgyuyng: I wyl syng and speake prayles vnto the Lord.

Hearken vnto my voyce, O Lord, when I crye vnto the: haue mercye vpon me and heare me.

My heart speaketh vnto the: my face sekerly the: yea Lord thy face wyl I seeke.

Hyde not thou thy face from me: cast not thy seruaunt of in displeasure.

Thou art my succour, leaue me not, neither forsake me, O God my sauour.

For my father and my mother haue forsake me: but the Lord hath taken me vp.

Show me thy waye, O Lord: and leade me in the ryghte path, because of myne ennemyes.

Deliver me not in to the toyles of myne aduersaries: for there are false wytnesses rylen by agaynst me: and they ymagen mys-chiese.

Nevertheless I bylde veryly to se the goodnesse of the Lord, in the lande of the lyuynge.

Tary thou the Lordes lesure: be stronge, let thyne here be of good comfort, and wayte thou vnto the Lord.

PSAL. XXVII.

Of David.

After the Psalms.

Vnto the wyl I crye, O my stronge defence: thyneke no shame of me, lest ye thou make that as though thou herdest not, I become lyke them that go downe in to the pytte.

Heare the voyce of my humble petticion, when I crye vnto the: and hold vp my handes towards thy holy temple.

Plucke me not awaye amonge the vngod-ly and wicked doers, whiche speake frendly to their neighbour, but ymagen myschiese in their heartes.

Retwarde them accordynge to their de-des, and wyckednesse of their owne inuen-cions.

Accompence them after the workes of they: handes: paye them that they haue de-serued.

For they regarde not the workes of the Lord, ne the operation of his handes: therefore shall he breake them downe, & not buylde them vp.

Prayled be the Lord: for he hath herde the voyce of myne humble petticion.

The Lord is my strength and my shyld: my heart hoped in him, and I am helpe: therefore my heart daunteth for ioye, and I wyl sing prayles vnto him.

The Lord is the strength of his people: he is the defender and sauour of his annoynted.

Helpe

Helpe the people, grue the blessinge vnto thyne inheritaunce: fede them and set them vp for cure.

PSAL. XXVII.

A Psalm of David.

After the De-
bines. xxx.

Ascribe vnto the Lorde, O ye myghtye: ascribe vnto the Lorde w^{ch} is stronge.

Grue the Lorde the honoure of his name:
bowe your selues to the holie matie of the Lorde.

It is the Lorde that commandeth the waters: It is the glorious God that ma-keth the thunder, it is the Lorde that ruleth the see.

The voyce of the Lorde is myghy in o-peracion: the voyce of the Lorde is a glory-ous voyce.

The voyce of the Lorde breaketh the cedars: yea the Lorde breaketh the Cedars of Libanus.

He maketh them to sayp lyke a calfe: Liba-nus and Sion lyke a pong Cynoyne.

The voyce of the Lorde blupdeth the flames of fyre: the voyce of the Lorde waketh the wyldernesse: yea the Lorde waketh the wyl-dernesse of Edes.

The voyce of the Lorde moueth the hydes: and discovereth the thycke bushes: in his temple shall euerye man speake of his honoure.

The Lorde splitteth the water founte: & the Lorde remaineth a kynge for euer.

The Lorde shall grue power vnto his people, the Lorde shall grue his people the bless-inge of pear.

PSAL. XXIX.

After the De-
bines. xxx.A Psalm and songe of the dedycation of the house of David.

I will magnifye the, O Lorde, for thou hast set me vp: and not suffered my foes to triumpe ouer me.

O Lorde my God, I cryed vnto the: & thou hast healed me.

Thou Lorde hast brought my soule oute of hell: thou hast hepte my lyfe, where as they so downe to the yrt.

Sing prayes vnto the Lorde (O ye sayntes of I^h) grue thanks vnto him for a remembraunce of his holynesse.

For his torach endureth but the thyrnyng of an eye, and his plesure is in life: beynesse maye well endure for a nyght, but lope commeth in the morning.

As for me, when I was in prosperite, I said:
I will neuer fall moze.

And why? thou Lorde of thy goodnes haddest made my lyfe so stronge.

But as soone as thou turnedst thy face fro me, I was brought in feare.

Then cryed I vnto the, O Lorde, yea vnto the Lorde made I my prayer.

What prospe is there in my bloude: y^e go downe to corruption?

Maye the duste grue thanks vnto the: y^e shall it declare thy sayntnesse?

Heare, O Lorde, and haue mercy vpon me:
Lorde be thou my helper.

And so thou hast turned my heynesse into ioye: thou hast put of my sackclothe, and gy-ded me with gladnesse.

What myne honour myght syng prayes to
to the without ceasing: O Lorde my God, I will grue thanks vnto the for euer.

PSAL. XXX.

To the chaunter, a Psalm of David.

In the, O Lorde, is my trust: let me not be put to confusion, but deliuer me in thy ryghtousnesse.

Some downe thyne care to me, make haste to deliuer me: be thou my stronge rocke and a house of defence, that thou mayst saue
me.

For thou arte my stronge holbe and my refuge: be thou my guyde, and leade me for thy names sake.

Drawe me oute of the netts that they haue layde pyquely for me, for thou arte my stronge.

In to thy handes I commende my spyrte: y^e thou hast deliuered me, O Lorde, thou God of trouth.

I hate them that holde of vanities: and my trust is in the Lorde.

I will be glad and reioyse in thy mercy: for thou hast comforted my trouble, thou hast knowen my soule in a dueritie.

Thou hast not deliuered me ouer to the handes of the enemye, but hast set my feet in a large towne.

Haue mercy vpon me, O Lorde, for I am in trouble, myne eye is consumed for verye pryuysse, yea my soule and my bodye.

My lyfe is waxen olde with heynesse: and my yeres with mounynge.

My strenght faileth me because of myne inuicible, and my bones are corrupte.

I am become a byre reproche amonge all myne enemyes: my neygboours and they of myne owne acquyntaunce are a waye of me they that se me in the streete, conuey them sel-ues fro me.

I am cleane forgotten and oute of mynde,
as a dead man: I am become lyke a byrde vntill.

For I haue herde the blasphemye of the multitude: euerye man abhorreth me, they haue gathered a counsell together a-gainste me, and are purposed to take awaye my lyfe.

But my hope is in the Lorde, and I say:
thou arte my God.

My tyme is in thy hande: deliuer me from the hande of myne enemyes, and from theyr that pursue me.

Showe thy seruant the lycht of thy com-mendaunce: helpe me for thy mercyes sake.

Let me not be confounded, O Lorde:
for I will vpon the: let the vngodlye rather be put to confusion, and brought vnto the hell.

Let the lyng lypes be put to silence: which sayp, with a synfully, & despitously speake against the ryghtous.

Howe grete and manyfolde is thy good:
whiche thou hast hyde for theym that feare
the.

What thynges bynged thou to passe for them that put their trust in the: euen before the eyes of men?

Thou hydest them pryuely by thyne owne refuge from the proude men: thou keptst them secretly in thy tabernacle, from the stryfe of luges.

Thanks be to the Lorde: for he hath welcome thynges great kynodes in a stronge my.

For when the sobeyn feare came vpon me,
I sayd: I am cast out of thy sight.

Remember thou herdest myne humble prayer: when I cryed vnto the.

Blow the Lorde (all ye his sayntes) for the Lorde preferreth the sayntes, and plentifully rewardeth the pious wer.

Be stronge therefore and take good herte into you: all ye that put your trust in the Lorde.

PSAL. XXXI.

An instruction of David.

Blessed are they, whose vngodlynesse is forgiven: and whose synnes are co-uerd.

Blessed is the man, vnto whom the Lorde forgetteth no synne: in whose spyrte there is no guile.

For whyle I helde my tongue: my bones consumed awaye, thowome my daye commynge.

And because thy hand was so heuy vpon me both daye and nyght: my moysture was lyke the dewe in sommer. Helah.

Therefore I confessed my synne vnto the: &
yd not myne vngodlynesse.

I sayd, I will knowlege myne offence, and wille my selfe vnto the Lorde: and so thou forgauest me the wyckednesse of my synne.

Helah.

For it is well euerye saynt make his prayer into the due reason: therefore shall not the great water fountes come nye him.

Thou arte my defence in the trouble that is come aboute me: compass thou me arounde also with the tope of deliuerance.

Helah.

I will informe the, and shewe the the waye whiche thou shalt goo: I will fasten myne eye vpon the.

Be not ye now lyke hoxes & mules, which
haue no vnderstandyng.

Whose mouthes thou must holde with byt-ten byde, yf they will not obeye the.

Great plagis shall the vngodly haue, but who so putteth his trust in the Lorde, mercy shall compasse him on euery syde.

Be gladd, O ye ryghtous, and reioyse in the Lorde: be sayfull all ye that are true of herte.

PSAL. XXXII.

After the De-
bines. xxxii.

Reioyse in the Lorde, O ye ryghtous, for it becommeth well the soule to be thankfull.

Playe the Lorde with harpe: syng psalmes vnto him with the lute and instrumēt of ten stringes.

Syng him a newe songe, yea sing lustily vnto him with a lusty courage.

For the woide of the Lorde is true: and all his woikes are sayntfull.

He loueth mercy and indgement: the earth is full of the goodnesse of the Lorde.

By the woide of the Lorde were the heuts made: and all the bestes of them by the blyth of his mouth.

He gathereth the waters together as it were in a bottell: and lapeth by the hope in secret.

Let all the earth feare the Lorde: and let all them that dwell in the world, stande in awe of him.

For loke what he sayth, it is done: and loke what he commandeth, it standeth fast.

The Lorde bynged the counsell of the wyse: them to nought, and turned the wylles of the people.

But the counsell of the Lorde endureth: & the thoughtes of his herte frome generacion to generation.

Blessed are the people that holde the Lorde for their God: and blessed are the folke whom he hath chosen to be his heritage.

The Lorde loketh downe from heuen, and beholdeth all the chyldren of men: from his strong seat he conspyereth all them that dwell
in the world.

He onely hath facioned all the bestes of the,
and knoweth all their woikes.

A kyng is not helpe by his owne grete holle: neither is a graunte saued thowome the might of his owne strenght.

A horse is but a bayne thing to saue a man, it is not the power of his strenght that can de-liuer him.

Behold, the eye of the Lorde loketh vnto them that feare him, and put their trust in his mercy.

That he may deliuer their soules from deth:
and to fede them in the deare tyme.

Let our soules patiently abide the Lorde: for he is our helpe and myde.

So shall our bestes reioyse in him: because we haue hoped in his holy name.

Let thy mercifull kynnesse, O Lorde, be vpon vs: lyke as we put our trust in the.

PSAL. XXXIII.

After the De-
bines. xxxiii.

* Of David, when he sayned hym selfe to be made before Dauid: whiche dyed hym awaye and he departed.

I will

I will alwaye give thanks vnto the Lord, his people shall curre in my mouth. My soule shall make her boile in the Lord: the humble shall heare thereof, and be glad.

As for ye the Lord with me: let vs make his name together.

I sought the Lord, and he heard me: yea he deliuered me out of all my feare.

They that haue an eye vnto hym, shall be ioynted, and they faces shall not be ashamed.

Whis poore man cryed vnto the Lord: and he heard him, yea and deliuered him out of all his troubles.

The angell of the Lord pitched his tente rounde aboute him that feare him, and deliuereth him.

Salte and se how frendly the Lord is: blessed is the man that trusteth in him.

Feare the Lord: for that he thy sayntes: for they that feare him lacke nothing.

The rich shall want and suffer hunger: but they which seeke the Lord shall want no manner thing that is good.

Come heret, o ye children, hearken vnto me: I will teach you the feare of the Lord.

Who so iustly to iust, and would saynt se good dayes.

Let him escape his tongue from euill: and his lippes that they speake no guile.

Let him aske euill saynt and do good: let him like prayre and confite.

For the eyes of the Lord are ouer the righteous: and his eares are open vnto their prayre.

But the face of the Lord beholdeth them that do euill, to destroye the remembrance of them out of the earth.

When the righteous crye, the Lord heareth them: and deliuereth them out of all they troubles.

The Lord is nye vnto them that are contrite in heart, and wil helpe such as be of an humble spirit.

Great are the troubles of the righteous, but the Lord deliuereth them out of all.

He keepeth al their bones, so that not one of them is broken.

But misfortune shall see the vngodly, and they that hate the righteous shall be giltye.

The Lord deliuereth the soules of his seruantes, and all they that put their trust in him shall not offende.

PSAL. XXXIII.

Of David.

After the hymnes.

Serue thou with them, o Lord, & serue with me: speake thou agaynst them, that haue agaynst me.

Let the hande vpon the spyde and spere: and stande by to helpe me.

Make out the sword and stop the way agaynst them that persecute me: laye vnto my fault, I am the pryde.

Let them be confounded and put to shame.

that seke after my soule: let them be touned backe and be brought to confusion, that pryncen mischief for me.

Let them be as the duste before the wynde: and the angell of the Lord scattere them.

Let them waye be darcke and spyde: and the angell of the Lord to persecute them.

For they haue pryncely layde theiuent to: droppe me without cause: yea & made a pryde my soule which I neuer deserued.

Let a fowle destruction come vpon him: & wares, and the net that he hath layde vnto: let him selfe, that he maye fall into his owne mischief.

But let my soule be ioyfull in the Lord: & reioyse in his helpe.

All my bones shall saye: Lord who is like vnto the: which deliuereth the poore from that are so stronge for him, yea the poore: and the needy from his spoylers.

Falle witnessethes are cryed by, and say to my charge thynges that I knowe not.

They reward me euill for good, to the great discomfort of my soule.

Reuerberelle when they were syche, I am on sackcloth: I humbled my soule vnto synge, and my prayer turned in to myne own boioine.

I behaued my self as though it had ben my frende of my brother: I went heuily, as one that mourneth for his mother.

But in myne aduersite they reioyce & gather them together: yea the very same come together agaynst me vnto wares, makinge moies & me, and cease not.

With the georde and scornfull hypocrites they galled vpon me with their teeth.

Lord when wilt thou loke vpon this: & deliuer my soule from the wicked rumour of them, my desynge from the lyons?

So will I geue the thanks in the great congregation: and prayse the amonge many people.

Let them not triumphe ouer me, that are myne enemies for nought: let them not toynke with they eyes that hate me without cause.

And why? their commenting is not forpitt, but they ymagen false wordes agaynst: for the tastes of the lande.

They gaze vpon me with their mouthes, sayinge: there, there: we se it with our eyes.

This thou seest, o Lord: hold not thy tongue: thou seest, o Lord: hold not thy tongue.

Awake Lord and stande by: avenge thou my cause my God and my Lord.

Judge me, o Lord my God, according to thy rightousnesse, that they triumphe not ouer me.

Let them not say in their heartes, there thou so wold we haue it: let them not say we haue overcome him.

Let them be put to confusion & shame, that reioyce at my trouble: let them be clothed in rebuke and dishonour, that booke them selfe agaynst me.

24

Let them also be gladd and reioyce, that haue my rightous desynge: yea let them saye alwaye: blessed be the Lord, which hath pleasure in the prosperite of his seruant.

And as for my tounge, it shall be talkynge of thy rightousnesse and of thy prync, al the daye longe.

PSAL. XXXV.

Of the hammer, of David the seruante of the Lord.

My hearte sheweth me the tryckednesse of the vngodly: that there is no feare of God before his eyes.

For he dissembleth before his face, so longe till his abhominable synne be found out.

The wordes of his mouth are vneygh: he is full of deceit: he will not be fernd to be good.

He ymagineth mischief vpon his bed: he will come in no good waye, he refuse the thyng that is euill.

Thy mercy, o Lord, reacheth vnto the heauens: and thy faithfulnesse vnto the cloudes.

Thy rightousnesse standeth like the stronge mountaynes: and thy iudgemente space the great depe.

Thou, Lord: preferrest bothe men and beastes.

How precious is thy mercy, o God, that the children of men may put their trust vnder the shadow of thy wynges?

They shall be satisfied with the fructuousnesse of thy house: and thou shalt giue them out the fruct of thy pleasures.

For by the is the well of life: in thy light, shall we see light.

Spoke thou thy louing kindnesse vnto: he that knowe the, and thy rightousnesse vnto the that are true of heart.

Let not the foote of pryde ouertake me: let not the hande of the vngodly cast me downe.

As for wicked doers, they fall: they are cast downe, and are not able to stande.

PSAL. XXXVI.

Of the Psalme of David.

Let not thy self at the vngodly: be not thou furious agaynst the euill doers.

For they shall soone be cut downe lyke the grasse: and be withered euill as the greene floure.

Put thou thy trust in the Lord, and be do: thy good: so shalt thou dwell in the land, and multiply thou seede the.

Delight thou in the Lord: and he shall geue thee thy heartes desire.

Commit thy waye vnto the Lord, sette thy hope in hym: and he shall byynge it to thee.

He shall make thy rightousnesse as cleare as the lyght: and thy iust dealing as the noue daye.

Hold the spyll in the Lord, and abyde patiently vpon him: but geue not thy selfe at one that hath prospered, and lyueth in abhominacion.

As thou art from wrath, let go thy pleasure: let not thy gelowse moue thee also to do euill.

For wicked doers shall be rooted out, but they that patiently abyde the Lord, shall inherite the lande.

Reuerberelle, their swordes shall goo thorow their owne hertes: and their bowes shall be broken.

A small thyng that the righteous hathe: is better then great riches of the vngodly.

For the sinner of the vngodly shall be broken: but the Lord vpholdeth the rightous.

The Lord knoweth the dayes of the godly: and that which shall come vnto them for euill.

For they shall not be troubled in the perillous tyme: and in the dayes of distresse, they shall haue paynt.

But the vngodly shall perishe: and when the remembrance of the Lord are in their heartes, they shall consume, yea as the smoke that they consume awaye.

The vngodly boioine, and payeth not agayne: but the righteous is merciful and lyderall.

Suche as be blessed of him, shall possesse the lande: and they whom he curseth, shall be rooted out.

The Lord ordaineth a good man going: and hath pleasure in his way.

Though he fall, he shall not be hurt: for the Lord vpholdeth him with his hande.

I haue ben yong and now am old: yet saye I neuer sawe the righteous forsaken, nor his seed to seche their ouer.

The righteous is euer merciful, and lendeth gently: therefore shall his seed be blessed.

He fleeth from euill, and do that is good: so shall thou dwell for euer.

For the Lord loueth that is right, he forsaketh not his sayntes, but they shall be preserved for euermore: where as the seed of the vngodly shall be rooted out.

Yea the righteous shall possesse the lande: & dwell therein for euer.

The mouth of the righteous is prynced in wisdom: and his tounge talketh of iudgement.

The law

The law of his God is in his heart: therefore he will not be moved.
The righteous shall be as the tree, and shall bring forth fruit in his season: his leaf shall not wither, neither shall he be cut down, nor shall he be moved.

But the Lord will not leave him in his hand: he will condemn him when he is sighted.

Hope thou in the Lord, and keep his way,
and he will promote thee, that thou shalt have the land by inheritance, and thou shalt be blessed.

I myself have seen the righteous in great power: and flourish like a green bay tree: but when I went by, lo, he was gone, I sought him, but he could no where be found.

Keep innocence, and take heed unto the things that are right: so that thou shalt bring a man peace at last.

But the transgressors shall receive their reward: and the ungodly shall be rooted out at the last.

The help of the righteous cometh of the Lord: he is their strength in time of trouble.

The Lord shall stand by them, and save them: he shall deliver them from the ungodly, and help them, because they put their trust
in him.

PSAL. XXXVII.

After the
psalmist.

To the chaunter, to bring to remembrance.

Do not fret, because of the ungodly, because they shall be cut off like the chaff: because they shall be cut off like the chaff.

Wait on the Lord, and he shall bring forth his strength, and he shall make thy way
straight.

Be not as the ungodly, which are perished:
nor as the wicked, which are cut off.

For the Lord shall consume them, and he shall bring forth his strength, and he shall
make thy way straight.

Wait on the Lord, and he shall bring forth
his strength, and he shall make thy way
straight.

Be not as the ungodly, which are perished:
nor as the wicked, which are cut off.

For the Lord shall consume them, and he
shall bring forth his strength, and he shall
make thy way straight.

Wait on the Lord, and he shall bring forth
his strength, and he shall make thy way
straight.

Be not as the ungodly, which are perished:
nor as the wicked, which are cut off.

For the Lord shall consume them, and he
shall bring forth his strength, and he shall
make thy way straight.

Wait on the Lord, and he shall bring forth
his strength, and he shall make thy way
straight.

Be not as the ungodly, which are perished:
nor as the wicked, which are cut off.

For the Lord shall consume them, and he
shall bring forth his strength, and he shall
make thy way straight.

Wait on the Lord, and he shall bring forth
his strength, and he shall make thy way
straight.

Be not as the ungodly, which are perished:
nor as the wicked, which are cut off.

For the Lord shall consume them, and he
shall bring forth his strength, and he shall
make thy way straight.

Wait on the Lord, and he shall bring forth
his strength, and he shall make thy way
straight.

and that can make no resistance with his mouth.

For in the Lord is my trust: I shall not be moved.

My heart is as the hearth of the Lord: I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

I shall not be moved: I shall not be moved:
I shall not be moved.

while before I go hence: and be no more
in the world.

PSAL. XXXIX.

To the chaunter, a psalm of David.

I waited patiently for the Lord, while he delayed his promise unto me: and he delayed his promise.

He brought me out of the horrible pit, out of the mire and clay: he set my feet upon the rock, and established my goings.

He hath put a new song in my mouth, even a thanksgiving unto our God.

Many men sing this: but shall the Lord be angry with them?

Blessed is the man that setteth his hope in the Lord: and turneth not unto the proud, to such as go about with lies.

O Lord my God, great are thy wondrous works which thou hast done: and in thy thoughts toward us, there may none be like unto thee.

I would declare them and speak of them:
but they are so many, that they can not be numbered.

Sacrifice and offering thou wouldst not have, but a body thou hast ordained me: burnt offerings and sacrifice for thyne thou hast not allowed.

Then sayde I: lo I come. In the beginning of the booke it is written of me, that I will be faithful thy will, O my God, and that I will content to do: yea thy law is within my heart.

I will praise of thy righteousness in the great congregation: lo, I will not hold my tongue, O Lord, and that thou knowest.

I do not hide thy righteousness in my heart: my talking is of thy truth and saving health: I keep not thy law in mine mouth, but I have declared it.

Turne not thou thy mercy from me, O Lord:
because thy loving kindness and truth always prevail.

For innumerable troubles are come aboute me: my sinnes have taken such hold upon me that I am not able to take up: yea they are more than the heaves of my head, and they have troubled me.

O Lord, let it be thy pleasure to behold me: make haste (O Lord) to help
me.

Let them be ashamed and confounded that despise my soul: let them be put to confusion, that wish me harm.

Let them soon be brought to shame, & crye unto thee: there they are.

But let all those that seek thee, be joyful and glad in thee: and let all such as desire thy saving health, saye always: the Lord be praised.

As for me, I am poor and in misery: but the Lord hath helped me.

Thou art my helper and redeemer: make no long tarrying, O my God.

PSAL.

XL.

After the
psalmist.

To the chaunter, a psalm of David.

Blessed is he that considereth the power:
the Lord shall deliver him in time of trouble.

The Lord shall preserve him, and keep him alive: he shall make him to prosper upon earth and shall not deliver him in the will of his enemies.

The Lord shall refresh him when he lyeth sick upon his bed, yea thou makest his bed in all his sickness.

I sayd: Lord be merciful unto me: heale
my soul, for I have sinned against thee.

Myne enemies speake evil upon me: when shall he dye, and his name perish?

Though he came in to see, yet meant he to falsch in his heart: heaping mischief upon him selfe.

All they that hate me, run together against me: and ymagin evil against me.

They have given a wicked sentence upon me:
when he lyeth, he shall crye up no more.

Yea even mine owne familiar friend whom I trusted, which did eat my bread, hath lyfte up his heel against me.

But be thou merciful unto me, O Lord:
saye thou me up, and I shall reward them.

By this I know thou favourst me that my enemy shall not triumph over me.

Thou hast upholden me because of myne innocence: and sette me before thy face for ever.

Blessed be the Lord God of Israel: from hence forth, and for ever more, Amen, Amen.

PSAL.

XLI.

After the
psalmist.

To the chaunter a mention of the sources of Lebanon.

Like as the hart desireth the water brook:
so longeth my soul after thee, O Lord.

My soul is a thirst for God, yea even for the living God: when shall I come & behold the face of God?

My teares are my meate daye and nyghte:
while it is daye said unto me: where is now thy God?

Now when I thinke therupon, I pour out my heart by my selfe: for I would farre go hence with the multitude, and passe over unto them unto the house of God, in the voyce of psalme and thanksgivinge, amonge such as keep holy daye.

Why arte thou so full of heavynesse (O my soul) and why arte thou so inquiete within
me?

But thy truste in God, for I will yet give him thanks for the help of his countenance.

Thy God

My God, my soule is vexed within me therefore I remember the land of Jordan, and the city of Jericho.

One time calleth another with the voyce of the whistles: all the waues and water flows are gone over me.

The Lord hath promised his loving kindness day by day, therefore will I praise him in the night season, and make my prayer unto the God of my life.

I will say unto God my strong rock: why hast thou forgotten me? why go I thus heavily while the enemy oppresseth me?

While my bones are broken, and while mine enemies call me in the street day by day, saying on to me: where is now thy God?

Why art thou so heavy, O my soule? and why art thou so disquieted within me?

Put thy trust in God: for I will yet thanke him for the helpe of his countenance, and because he is my God.

After the Psalms.

PSAL. XLII.

Give sentence upon me (O God) and decide my cause against the unholie people: deliver me from the deceitful and wicked man.

For thou (O God) art my strength: why hast thou forsaken me from the? why go I then so heavily, while the enemy oppresseth me?

Send out thy light and thy truth, that they may lead me and bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy dwelling.

That I may go in to the altar of God, and unto the God which is my hope and pleasure: and upon the harpe to give thanks unto the, O God, my God.

Why art thou so heavy (O my soule) and why art thou so disquieted within me?

Put thy trust in God: for I will yet give him thanks for the helpe of his countenance, and because he is my God.

After the Psalms.

PSAL. XLIII.

To the chanter an instruction of the sonnes of David.

When I have heard with mine eares, O God, our fathers have tolde vs, what thou hast done in their time of old.

Howe thou hast brought out the Hebrews with thy hand, and planted them in: howe thou hast destroyed the nations and cast them out.

For they gat not the land in possession: thou towe them owne sword, neither was it their owne arm that helped them.

But thy right hand, thyne arme & the light of thy countenance, because thou haddest a favour unto them.

Thou art the King and my God: thou sendest helpe unto Jacob.

Thou shalt say: yee are our thow our enemies: for I will yet give him thanks for the helpe of his countenance, and because he is my God.

For I will yet give him thanks for the helpe of his countenance, and because he is my God.

my sword that shall helpe me.

But it is thou that saucst vs from our enemies: and puttest them to confusion that hate vs.

We will alwaye make our boast of God: praise thy name for ever. Selah.

But now thou forsakest vs, and puttest us to confusion, and goest not forth with our hostes.

Thou makest vs to turne our backs upon our enemies, so that they which hate vs speake out goodes.

Thou lettest vs be eaten by like thepre: and scattered vs among the Panims.

Thou lettest thy people for nought: and recked no money for them.

Thou makest vs to be rebuked of our neighbours, to be laughed to scorn, and habite in derision, of them that are round about vs.

Thou hast made vs a very byword among the heathen: and that the people make their heedes at vs.

My confusion is day by day before me: and the shame of my face covereth me.

For the voyce of the slanderer and blasphemer: for the enemy and avenger.

All this is come upon vs: and yet hast thou not forgotten the, nor behaved our selues as faithfully in thy covenant.

Our heart is not turned backe, neither our droppes gone out of the waue.

For thou hast smitten vs in the place of dragons, and covered vs with the shadow of thy hand.

If we had forgotten the name of our God, and holden up our handes to any strange God.

Should not God find it out? for he knoweth the very secretes of the heart.

But for thy sake we are killed all the day long: and are counted as sheepe appointed to be slayne.

Alas Lord, why sleepest thou? awake, and be not of for ever.

Wherefore hidest thou thy face? why hast thou cleane forgot our miserye and oppression?

For our soule is brought lowe even unto the dust, and our help cleueth unto the ground.

Arise, O Lord, helpe vs and deliuer vs by thy mercy sake.

PSAL. XLIII.

To the chanter upon Solomon, an instruction of the children of David, a song of love.

My heart is entpyrge good matter: I will speake of that which I have made: the King: my tongue is the pen of a scribe.

Thou art the fayer among the children of men, full of grace are thy lipps, therefore shall they beleeue the for ever.

Spide the mouth thy sword upon thy thigh (O thou myghty) with us; we pray and no more.

Good lucke have thou with thyne house, and thyne people.

Good lucke have thou with thyne house, and thyne people.

When with the truth, mekenesse and righte: and thy right hand shall teache wondrous things.

Thy arrows are warpe, the people shall be subdued into the: euen in the myddest among the Kinges enemies.

Thy seat (God) endureth for ever: the scepter of thy Kingdome is a right scepter.

Thou hast loved righteousnesse, and hated iniquite: therefore God (which is thy God) hath anointed the with the oyle of gladnes above thy fellows.

All thy garments are lyke hyrc, Aloes, & cassia, when thou comest out of thyne palace in thy beautifull glory.

Kinges daughters go in thy goodly array, and upon thy right hand standeth a quene in a garment of most pure golde.

Thy King (O daughter) consider & bowe thine eares: forget thine owne people, and thy fathers house.

As well the Kinge shall pleasure in thy beauty, for he is thy Lord, and thou shalt worship him.

The daughters of Tyre shall be there with gifts, the Kinge among the people shall make their supplication before the.

The Kinges daughter is all glorious within: her clothing is of wrought golde.

She shall be brought unto the Kinge in a garment of needle worke, and maydens as her: such as be next her shall be brought unto the.

With hope & gladnesse shall they be brought: and go in to the Kinges palace.

In the day of thy fathers thou hast gotten children, whom thou shalt make princes in all landes.

I will remember thy name from one generation to another: therefore shall the people give thanks unto the, worde without end.

PSAL. XLV.

To the chanter, a song of the children of David.

Our troubles & aduersite, we haue founde that God is our refuge, our strength and helpe.

Therefore we will not feare, though the earth shaketh, and though the hills were carryed in to the myddest of the see.

Though the waters of the see ragged and were neuer so troublous, and though the mountaynes shooke at the tempeste of the lorde.

For there is a founte which with his rivers maketh the city of God, the holy dwelling of the King.

God is in the myddest of her, therefore shall he not be remoued: for God helpeth her, and shall stand early.

The heathen are mad, the Kingdomes make a noise: but when he shal weleth his voyce, the earth shall melt away.

The Lord of hostes is with vs: the God of Jacob is our defence.

Come brother and behold the trophies of the Lord: what destructions he hath brought upon the earth.

He hath made warres to cease in all the world: he hath broke the bow, he hath knapped the speere in sonde, and brent the charrettes in the fyre.

Be still then, and confesse that I am God: I will be exalted among the Gentiles, and I will be exalted upon earth.

The Lord of hostes is with the: the God of Jacob is our defence. Selah.

To the chanter, a Psalm of the children of David.

Clapp your handes together (all ye people) singe unto God with the voyce of a thanksgivinge.

For the Lord most hye is to be feared: and he is the great King upon all the earth.

He shall subdue the people under vs, and the paynims vnder our feete.

He choiceth vs for an heritage the beautie of Jacob whom he loved. Selah.

God is gone by with a merry noise: & the Lord with the sounde of the trompet.

Singe praises, singe praises unto God: singe praises, singe praises unto our Kinge.

For God is King of all the earth: sing praises unto him with understanding.

God is King over the heathen: God sitteth in his holy seate.

The princes of the people are gathered together unto the God of Abraham: for God is farre hye exalted, then the mightie lordes of the earth.

PSAL. XLVII.

After the Psalms.

A song of a Psalm of the children of David.

Great is the Lord and hye to be praised, in the city of our God: euen upon his holy hill.

The hill of Zion is like a fayre plant which of all the landes reioyceth: upon the north syde lyeth the city of the great King.

God is wel known in her palaces: that he is the defence of the same.

For lo, Kinges are gathered, and gone by together.

They marched to se suche Kinges: they were astonied, and sodenly cast downe.

Fear came upon them: and sozow as vpon a woman in her travail.

Thou shalt breake the hyppes of the sea: thou shalt smite the East wynde.

Like as we haue herde, so se we in the city of the Lord of hostes, in the city of our God: God upholdeth the same for ever.

Selah.

We waite for thy loving kindness (O God) in the myddest of thy temple.

Selah.

Selah.

O God, according vnto thy name, so is thy prayer vnto the worldes ende: thy right hand is full of righteousness.

Ob sette the mounte Zion rejoyse: and the daughters of Juda be glad, by cause of iudgementes.

Walke about Zion: go rounde aboute her and tell her fortresses.

Marke well her walles, sette vp her all ye that dwell vpon the erth.

Psalm lxxvii.

My mouth shall speake of wisdom, and my heart shall muse of vnderstanding.

I will encline myne eare to the parable, and I will encline myn eare vnto the harpe.

Wherefore wolde I feare vntill dayes, when the wickednesse of my helles compasseth me round about?

They that put theyr truste in their good:
and booke theyr felices in the fordon of theyr rychesses.

No man maye deliure his brother: ne make agreement vnto him for God.

For it costeth more to redeme their soules:
so that he must let y alone for euer, yea though he lye long, and se not the graue.

For it shall be sene, that such wyse men shall lye and perishe together, as well as the ignorant and folyshe, and leue their goodes for other.

Loke what is in their house, it continueth vntill: their dwellinge places endure from one generation to an other, & are called after theyr owne names vpon erth.

Nevertheless man abideth not in suche honour, but is compared vnto the brute beestes, & becommeth like vnto them.

This waye of theirs is verie folyshe, and yet they possesse it with theyr mouthes.
Selah.

They lye in the hell lyke wepe, death shall gnaue vpon them, & the righteous shall haue do-minacion of them in the morninge by tymes:
their strength shall consume, and hell shall be their dwellinge.

But God shall deliure my soule frome
the power of hell, when he requyet me.
Selah.

Be not thou afraid to se one is made ryche:
and the glory of his house increased.

* Job. xlviii. D
For he shall carpe nothyng awaye with

PSAL XLIX.

A Psalm of Asaph.

The Lord euen the mightye God hath spoken and called the world frome the springe of the sunne, vnto the gorgye downe of the same.

Out of Zion appereth the glorious beatye of God.

Dure God shall come, and not kepte silence: there goeth before him a consuming fyr, and a myghtye tempest rounde aboute him.

He shall call the heuens from aboute: the erth, that he may iudge his people.

Setteth my sayntes together vnto me: that they sette more by the couenaunt then by my offeringe.

And the heuens shall declare his righteousnesse: for God is Judge hym selfe.
Selah.

Heare, o my people: let me speake, let me testifie amonge you, o Israel: I am God, & y euen the God.

I requyet the not because of thy sacrifice, thy burntofferinges are alwaye before me.

I will take no bullockes out of thy house:
ne goates out of thy foldes.

For all the beestes of the feld are myne, and thousandes of cattell vpon the hylls.

I knowe all the foules vpon the mountaynes: and the wyde beestes of the feld are in my sight.

Yf I be hungrye, I will not tell the: for the hole world is myne, and all that there in is.

Thinkest thou that I will eate the flesh of oxen, or drinke the bloude of goates?

Like vnto God prayse and thankesgynge: and paye thy bowes vnto the moone byed.

And call vpon me in the tyme of trouble:
for I will heare the, that thou shalt thank
me.

But vnto the vngodly sayth God, whye shalt thou preache my lawes, and take my cou-enaunt in thy mouth?

Where as thou hatest to be reformed: and castest my wordes behynde the?

Yf thou seest a thiefe, thou runnest with him:
and art partaker with the aduocates.

Thou seestest thy mouth speake wickednesse:
and thy tonge paynteth disceyte.

Thou synnest and speakest agaynst thy brother: yea and sleauest thyne owne chere sonne.

This thou doest, while I holde my tongue, and thinkest me to be euen such one as thy selfe: but I will requyet the, and set my selfe agaynst the.

For this, ye that forget God: least I

To the chaunter, a Psalm of David, when the Pharisee Sathana came vnto him, after he had lye-

Have mercy vpon me (O God) after thy goodnes, and accominge vnto thy great mercy, to awaye myne offences.

Wash me wel from my wickednesse, and cleane me from my synne.

For I knowledge my fautes, and my synne is euen before me.

Against the onely, agaynst the haue I synned, and mine eynen in thy sight: & thou might st be iustified in thy sayenges, and shouldest ouercome, when thou art iudged.

Behold, I was bozne in wickednesse, and in synne hath my mother conceyued me.

But lo, thou hast a pleasure in the truth, &
thou shewest me secretes of wisdom.

Purge me with hyssope, and I shall be cleane whiter then snowe, and I shall be whiter then snowe.

Oh let me heare of ioye and gladnesse, that thy bones whiche thou hast broken, maye re-uiue.

Turne thy face from my synnes, and put all my iniquities.

Make me a cleane heart, O God, and reue-lyght myne in thy sight.

Call me not awaye from thy presence, and do not thy holy spytte from me.

Give me the comfort of thy helpe agayne,
and stablish me with thy fre spytte.

Then shall I teache thy wayes vnto the wicked, that synners maye be converted vnto thee.

Deliver me from bloude guiltynesse, O
God, thou that art the God of my healthe, that my tongue maye praise thy ryghteous-
nesse.

Open my lippes, O Lord, that my mouth
maye shewe thy prayse.

For thou haddest pleasure in sacrifice, I will give it the: but thou deliest not in burntofferinges.

The sacrifice of God is a troubled spytte, a broken and a contrite heart, O God, shalt thou

Be sauourable and gracious vnto Sion,

God looked downe from heauen vpon the children of men, to se yf there were anye that wolde vnderstande, or seke after God.

But they are all gone out of the waye, they are all become vngodly: there is none

How can they haue vnderstandinge, that ped at the presence of God in Sinai, at the presence of God, whiche is the God of Israel.

Thou O God sendest a gracious earne vnto thyne enheritaunce, and relectyest it, when it is drye.

That thy bestes maye dwell therein, which thou of thy goodnesse hast prepared for the poore.

The Lord shall gyue the word, with great hades of euangelists.

Kynges with their armyes shall flee, and they of the householde, shall drudge the spore.

Yfso be that ye lye amonge the pales, the mores fethers shall be covered with silke, and the wynges of the colour of golde.

When the almyghty setteth kynges vpon
the earth, it shall be cleare euen in the dark-
nesse.

The hill of Basan is Gods hill, the hill of Basan is a plenteous hill.

Why hoppe ye so, ye great hylls?
It pleaseth God to dwell vpon this hill, for the Lord will abyde in it for euer.

The chariettes of God are many thousand tymes a thousand, the Lord is amonge them in the holy Sinai.

Thou art gone by on hygge, thou hadst captiuitie captiue, and receyued gyftes for me Yea euen for thyne enemyes, that they might dwell with the Lord God.

Prayed be the Lord dayly, euen the God which helpeth vs, and pouereth his benefites vpon vs.
Selah.

The God that is our Sautour, euen God
the Lord by whome we escape death.

The God that smytheth the enemyes vpon the heades and vpon the heavy scalpes: such as go on still in their wickednes.

The Lord hath sayde: some will I bring agayne frome Basan, some will I byngeth agayne frome the depe of the see.

That thy fote maye be dreyed in the blood of thyne enemyes, and that thy wynges may lyche it vp.

It is well sent, O God, haue thou god, how thou my God and kyng goest in the Synay.

The synners go before, and then the mistresses amonge the maydens with the wylles.

Gyue thanks vnto God the Lord in the congregation, for the welles of Israel.

There lyeth Ben Jamin, the Prynces of Juda, the Prynces of Zabulon, and the Prynces of Repehalp beare rule amonge
them.

The God hath committed strength vnto the, stablyshe the thinge, O God, that thou hast wrought in vs.

For thy temples sake at Jerusalem shall gye synge presentes vnto the.

Reioyce the bestes amonge the rebes, the heape of bulles with the calves: those that dysse for money.

O scatter the people that helpe in ba-table.

The prynces shall come out of Egypt, the Assyrians lande shall stretch out her handis vnto God.

Synge vnto God, O ye synners of the earth: synge prayles vnto the Lord.
Selah.

Which lieth in the heauens ouer all from
the

the begynnyng: Lo, he shall sende oute his power, and that a myghty voyce.
Impute the power vnto God, his glory is in Israel, and his might in the cloudes.
God is wonderfull in his sanctuarie, he is the God of Israel, he will gyue strength and power vnto his people. Blessed be God.

PSAL. LXVIII.

To the chaunter vpon Hosannu of David.

Help me, O God, for the waters are come in euen vnto my soule.

I lycke faste in the depe myre, where no ground is: I am come into depe waters, &
the floudes will drowne me.

I am wrye of cryeng, my throte is drye, my lyght faileth me, for waytinge so longe vpon
my God.

They that hate me without cause, are moueth the heares of my head: they are myne enemyes and wolde destroye me yf I were myghty: I am fayne to paye the thynges that I neuer toke.

God thou knowest my simplicitie, and my fautes are not hyd from the.

Let not them trust in the, O Lord God of hostes, be ashamed for my cause: let not those that seke the, be confounded thow me O God of Israel.

And why? for thy sake wo I suffer reproche,
same couereth my face.

I am become a stranger vnto my brethren, and an aleaunt vnto my mothers children.

For the zeale of thyne house hath euen eaten me, and the rebukes of them that rebuked me,
is fallen vpon me.

I wept and chafened my selfe with fasting and that was turned to my reproche.

I put on a sack clothe, and therefore they tested vpon me.

They that late in the gate, spake againste me, and the bynharides made songes vpon
me.

But Lord I made my prayer vnto the in an acceptable tyme.

Heare me, O God, with thy great mercy &
thy helpe.

Take me out of the myre, that I synke not:
O let me be deliuered frome them that hate me, and out of the depe waters.

Let the water floude drowne me, that the depe swallowe me not by, and that I perishe not by mouth vpon me.

Heare me, O Lord, for thy longynge kynd ness is comfortable: turne the vnto me according vnto thy great mercy.

Bringe not thy face from thy seruante, for I am in trouble: haue the to helpe me.

Drawe myghte vnto my soule, and saue it:
deliuer me because of myne enemyes.

Thou knowest my reproche, my shame and my dishonour: myne aduersaries are all in thy sight.

The rebuke breaketh my heart, and maketh cryng: I loke for some to haue pitye vpon me, but there is no man: and for some to com-forte me, but I fynde none.

They gaue me gall to eate, & when I was thirsty, they gaue me bynegge to dyspoyse.

Let their table be made a snare to take the felous with all, an occasion to fall and a re-warde vnto them.

Let their eyes be blynded, that they se not and euer home to wone their backes.

Drawe out thyne indignation vpon them, and let thy wrathful displicature take hold of
them.

Let their habitation be voyde, and no man
to dwell in their cenes.

For they persecute him whō thou hast sym-
p-ten, and blynde thy woundes they haue gyue him mo.

Let them fall frome one wyckednesse to an other, and not come into thy righteous-
nesse.

Let them be tynned out of the booke of the lyuynge, and not be writen amonge the righteous.

As for me, I am poore and in heurpnesse, let thy helpe defende me, O God.

That I maye prayse thy name of God with a songe, and magnifye it with thankes-
uynge.

This shall please the Lord better then a bullocke, that hath hoynes and hoofs.

O confyde this and be glad (ye that be in aduersite) seke after God, & your soule shall
lyue.

For the Lord heareth the poore, and deliue-reth not his prysoners.

Let heauen and earth praise him, the see &
all that moueth therein.

For God will saue Sion, and buyde the crites of Juda, that men maye dwell there, &
haue them in possession.

The seche of his seruantes shall inheret in and they that loue his name, shall dwell
therin.

PSAL. LXIX.

After the Ps.
by I. I. I.To the chaunter, of David to bynne to remembrance.

Help me, O God, to deliuer me, and to helpe me, O Lord.

Let them be shamed and confounded that seke after my soule: let them be turned backwarde, and put to confusion, that wylde me euill.

Let them sone be brought to shame, & crye ouer me, there there.

But let all those that seke the, be ioyfull and glad in the: and let all suche as deliue in thy sauynge healthe, saye alwaye: the Lord be praised.

As for me, I am poore and in mysery, haue
God for to helpe me.

Thou art my helpe, my redemer & my God
O make no longe taryenge.

PSAL. LXX.

After the Ps.
by I. I. I.

In the

In the, O Lord, is my trust, let me neuer be put to confusion, but epe me, & deliuer me thow the righteousnesse: enclyne thine eare vnto me, and helpe me.

Be thou my stronge holde (where vnto I maye alwaies be) thou that haste promysed to helpe me: for thou art my house of defence & my castell.

Deliver me, O my God, out of the hande of the vngodly, out of the hande of p vntigh- teous and cruell man.

For thou, O Lord God, art the thing that I longe for, thou art my hope euen frome my yowthe.

I haue leaned vpon the euer sythes I was borne, thou art he that take me out of my mothers wombe, therfore is my prayse alwaies of the.

I am become a wonder vnto the multitude but my sure trust is in the.

O let my mouth be fylled with thy prayse and honour all the daye longe.

Cast me not awaye in myne olde age, for- sake me not when my strength faileth me.

For myne enemyes speake against me, and they that laye wayte for my soule, take their counsell together, sayenge: God hath forsaken him, persecute him, take him, for there is none to helpe him.

So not farre frome me, O God: my God, haue the to helpe me.

Let them be confounded and perished, that are against my soule: let them be covered with shame and dishonoure, that seke to do me euyl.

As for me I will patiently abyde alwaies, and will euer encrease thy prayse.

My mouth shall speake of thy righteousnes and sauinge verily all daye longe, for I knowe no ende thereof.

Let me go in (O Lord God) and I will make mention of thy power and righteousnes onely.

Thou, O God, hast lerned me from my yowthe vntill now, therfore will I tel of thy wondrous workes.

Forsake me not, O God, in myne olde age, when I am graye headed: vntill I haue shewed thyne arme vnto chyldren thyldren, and thy power to all them that are yet for to come.

Thy righteousness, O God is very hygh, thou that dost great thinges: O God, who is lyke the?

O what great troubles and aduersities hast thou shewed me? and yet dydest thou tourne and refreth me: and broughtest me frome the depe of the earth agayne.

Thou hast brought me to great honoure, & comforted me on euery syde.

Therfore will I prayse the and thy fayth- fulnesse, O God, playenge vpon the lute, vnto the will I singe vpon the harpe, O thou bo- dy one of Israel.

My lipps wolde saye singe prayses vnto the: and so wolde my soule whom thou hast deliuered.

My tongue talke of thy righteousness all the daye longe, for they are confounded brought vnto shame, that sought to do me euyl.

PSAL.

LXXI

Of Solomon.

Give the kyng thy iudgement, O God, and thy righteousness vnto the kyngs sonne.

That he may gouerne thy people accordyng vnto right, and defende thy poe.

That the mountaynes maye bynge pear, the lytle hylles righteousness vnto the people. He shall kepe the simple folke by their right defende the chyldren of the poe, and purge the wronges doer.

Thou shalt be feared as longe as the sonne and moone endure, from one generation to another.

He shall come downe lyke the rayne into a fild of wolfe, and lyke the droppes that water the earth.

In his tyme shall ryghteousnes flourish, and aboundaunce of peace, so longe as I more endure.

His dominion shall be from the one se to the other, and from the floude vnto the wyldernes ende.

They that dwell in the wyldernes shall knele before him, and his enemyes shall lyke the dust.

The kynges of the see and of the Iles shall bringe presentes, the kynges of Arabye shall offer gyftes.

All kynges shall worshyp him, and all prynces shall do him seruice.

For he shall deliuer the poe when they crye, and the needy that hath no helpe.

He shall be fauourable to the simple poe, he shall preserve the soules of such as be in aduersitee.

He shall deliuer their soules frome extor- sion and wronge, and deace shall then bloude in his sight.

He shall lreue, and vnto him shall be gre- uen of the golde of Arabia: Prayer shall be made euen vnto him, and saye: Shall hee played.

There shall be an heape of corne in the earth hygh vpon the hylles, his frute shall make lyke Libanus, and shall be grene in the qu, lyke grass vpon the earth.

His name shall endure for euer, his name shall remayne vnder the sunne amonge hy- berities, which shall be blessed thow him, & all the herthen shall prayse him.

Blessed be the Lord God, euen the God of Israel, whiche onely doeth wondrous thinges.

And blessed be the name of his master for euer, and all landes be fulfilled with his glo- ry. Amen, Amen.

Here ende the prayers of Dauid, the sonne of Jesse.

PSAL.

LXXII.

Of Asaph.

O how longe is God vnto Israel, to lreue as are of a cleane hert?

For he helpe my feete were almost gone, my treadynges had well nigh the hylle.

And why? I was greued at the wycked, so lreue vngodly in such welthe.

For they are in no parell of teth, but stand as lyke a palace.

They come in no mysfortune lyke other folke, neyther are they plagued lyke other men.

And this is the cause that they be so puffed up with pride, and overwhelmed with cruell and vnrighteousnesse.

Their eyes swell for fatnesse, they do euen what they lyst.

Loyspt are they, and speake blasphemys: they saye, we are not in danger, for we are not in danger, for we are not in danger.

They stretch forth their mouthe vnto the heauen, and their tongue goeth thow the heauen.

Therfore fall the people vnto them, and ther out lreue they no small vantage.

Why saye they? how shall God perceyue it? is there knowledge in the mouth of ydolls?

No, these are the vngodly, these prophete in the mouth, these haue cythelle in posses- sion.

Should I then cleanse my herte in vayne (thought I) and walke my handes in inno- cency?

Therfore shall I be then purged daye- ly, and be chastened euery moynge?

As I haue almost also saye euen as they: but, then shal I haue condemned the ge- neration of the cythellen.

Then thought I es vnderstand this, but it was to hard for me.

Why I went into the Sanctuary of God and saw the ende of these men.

Alas, how thou hast set them in a stry- per place, that thou mayest cast them downe to theabysses and destroye them.

O how suddenly do they consume, perishe, & come to a fearfull ende?

As thou lyke as a dream when one awak- eth, so makest thou their ymage to vanishe out of the cyne.

Thus my hert was greued, and it went e- uen as my mynes.

So lreue was I and ignorant, and as it were a beast before the.

For he helpe I am alwaies by the, thou heldest me by my right hande.

Thou ledest me with thy counsel, and af- firmed receyuest me vnto glory.

O what is there prepared for me in heau- en? is there nothinge vpon earth, that I desire in comparison of the.

Why saye and my hert sayeth, but God is the strength of my herte, and my portion for euer.

For he, they that forsake the shall perishe:

thou destroyest all them that commit forni- cation against the.

But it is good for me, to holde me fast by God, to put my trust in the Lord God, and to speake of all thy workes.

After the Psalms.

An instruction of Asaph.

O God, wherfore dost thou cast vs so cleane away? why is thy wrath so hot against the shepe of the pasture?

O think vpon thyne assemble, whom thou hast purchased frome the begynnyng: the name of thyne inheritance, whom thou hast redeemed, euen this hye of Sion wherein thou dwellest.

Trudge vpon them with thy fete, and caste them downe to the grounde, for the enemye hath destroyed all together in the Sanctua- ry.

Thyne aduersaries roare in thy houses, & set by their banners for tokens.

When maye se the axes glister aboue, lyke as those that hew in the wood.

They cut downe all the sprynges worke of the holy place with bylles and axes.

They haue set fire vnto the Sanctuary, they haue defiled the dwelling place of thy name, euen vnto the grounde.

Yea they saye in their heertes: let vs spoyle them all together, thus haue they bent vp at the houses of God in the lande.

We se out tokens no more, there is not one prophet more, no not one that vnderstandeth any more.

O God, how longe shall the aduersarye do this dishonoure? how longe shall the enemye blaspheme thy name? for euer?

Why with drawest thou thyne hand? why pluckest thou not thy right hande out of thy bosome, to consume thyne enemyes?

But God is my kyng of olde, the helpe is done vpon earth, he doth it him selfe.

Thou diuidest the see thow the power, thou brakest the heades of the dragons in watres.

Thou smyttest the heades of Rucathan in peeces, and gnest him to be meat for the peo- ple in the wilderness.

Thou dyggest by welles and byokes, thou dyest by myghty waters.

The daye is thine, and the nyght is thine: thou hast prepared the lyghtes and the Sunne.

Thou hast set at the borders of the earth, thou hast made both sonne and mynter.

Remember this, O Lord, how the enne- mye rebuketh, and how the folke people blas- pheme thy name.

O deliuer not the soule of thy turtle doue vnto the beastes, and forget not the assemble of the poe for euer.

Take vpon the couenaunt, for the darthe houses of the earth are full of wyckednesse.

O let not the simple go awaye ashamed: for the poe and needy geue prayse vnto the.

To the chaunter, destroye not, a Psalm and longe of Asaph.

Vnto the, O God, will we give thanks, yea vnto the will we give thanks, and singe thy name is to rygge, we will tell of thy wondrous workes.

When I maye get a convenient tyme, I shall iudge accordyng vnto right.

The earth is weak and all that is therein, but I beare up by thy pylets.

I sayde vnto the mad people, wale not so madly, and to the vngodly: let not by youre hoines.

Set not by your homes on tyege, & speake not with a stiff necke.

For promotion cometh neyther from the East nor from the West, nor yet from the North.

And why? God is the iudge: he putteth downe one, and setteth up another.

For in the hande of the Lorde there is a cup full of stronge wyne, and he poureth out of it same.

As for the drygges therof, all the vngodly of the earth shall drynke them, and sucke the cure.

But I will talke of the God of Jacob, and prayse him for euer.

All the hoines of the vngodly wyl I breake and the hoines of the ryghteous shall be exalted.

PSAL. LXXV.

After the 2^d bynes. lxxv.

To the chaunter, in Agineth, a Psalm and longe of Asaph.

In Juda is God knownen, his name is greet in Israel.

At Salem is his tabernacle, & his dwellinge in Sion.

There breaketh he the arrowes of the bowe the wynde, the swarte, and the hole bat-tayle.

Thou art of more honour and myght then the byles of robbers.

The proud shall be robbed and slepe there aspe, and the myghty shall be habie to do nothinge with their handes.

When thou rebukest them, O God of Jacob, both the charrettes and horsemen shall fall on slepe.

Thou arte fearfull, for who maye abyde in thy sight, when thou art angry?

When thou lettest thy iudgement be heard from heauen, the earth trembleth and is still.

Yea when God ariseth to geue iudgement and to helpe all them that be in aduersite by the earth. Selah.

When thou punishest one man, he wote knowledge that thou arte ready to punishe other mo.

Loke what ye promyse vnto the Lorde rem God, so that ye kepe it, all ye that be aboute him: byngge presentes vnto him that ought to be feared.

Which taketh awaye the byrth of Sion and is wonderfull amonge the bynges of the earth.

PSAL. LXXVI.

To the chaunter, for Judith a Psalm of Asaph.

I cryed vnto God with my voyce, & vnto God cryed I with my voyce, and he hearkened me.

In the tyme of my trouble I sought the Lorde, I helde by myne handes vnto him in myghte reason, for my soule refused all other comfote.

When I was in heynesse, I thought the Lorde: when my bet was bared, then by I speake. Selah.

Thou heldest myne eyes wakynge, I was so feble, that I coude not speake.

Then rememberd I the tymes of olde, and the yeres that were past.

I called to remembrance my longe tyme night, I communed with myne owne hart, & sought out my spure.

Wyll the Lorde cast out for euer? Will he be no more interceded?

Is his meercy cleane gone? Is his promyse come utterly to an ende for euermore?

Wyl the Lorde forgotten to be gracious?

O, hath he that by his longynge hymself in displeasure?

At the laste, I came to this vowe, that I thought: O why art thou so folgyng the hande of the most byghst can chaunge?

Therefore will I remember the word of the Lorde, and cal to mynde thy wondrous olde tyme.

I will speake of all thy workes, and wyl hymge walbe of thy wynges.

Thy maye, O God, is holpe: who is great and myghty as God?

Thou arte the God that art with wonder, thou hast declared thy power amonge the people.

Thou with thyne arme hast deliuered thy people, euen the sonnes of Jacob and Israel. Selah.

The waters sawe the, O God, the waters sawe the, and were afrayed, the breastes were moued.

The thicke cloudes poured out water, the cloudes thondered, and thyne arrowes went abroade.

Thy thonder was heard roundabout, the highwayes shone vpon the ground, the earth was moued and shoke withall.

Thy maye was in the see, and thy pathes in the great waters, yet coude no man knowe thy secrettes.

Thou leddest thy people lyke a flocke of shepe, by the hande of Moses and Aaron.

PSAL. LXXVII.

Instruction of Asaph.

Hear my lawe, O my people, encline your eares vnto the wordes of my mouth.

I wyl open my mouth in parables, & speake obshynges of olde.

Which we haue herd and knownen, & such as our fathers haue tolde vs.

That we shoulde not hye them frome the chylidren of the generacions to come: but to shewe the honour of the Lorde, his myght and wonderfull workes that he hath done.

He made a couenaunt with Jacob, and gaue Israel a lawe, which he commaunded out fore-fathers to teache their chylidren.

That their posteritie myght knowe it, & the chylidren which were yet vnbayne.

To thent that when they came by, they might shewe these chylidren the same.

That they also might put their trust in God not to forget what he had done, but to kepe his commaundmentes.

And not to be as their forefathers, a froward and ouertwarte generacion, a generacion that set not their heart a right, and whose harte was not true towards God.

As he as the chylid of Ephraim, which be- came harcelled and carpenge bowes, turned them selues back in the tyme of batayle.

They kept not the couenaunt of God, and wold not walke in his lawe.

They forgot what he hadde wone, and the wonderfull workes that he hadde shewed for them.

Shamelous thinges byd he in the sight of his fathers in the lande of Egypt, euen in the syde of Zoan.

He dryed the see and let them goo thowyn, and made the waters to stande lyke a wall.

In the day tyme he led them with a cloude and all the nyght thowyn with a lyght of fyre.

He cloued the hard rockes in the wyldernes and gaue them drynke therof, as it had bene out of the great drapth.

He brought waters out of the stony rocke, so that they gushyd out lyke the ryuers.

Yet all this they synned agaynst him, and prouoked the most byghst in the wyldernes.

They tempted God in their hertes, and re- fused meat for their lust.

For they spake agaynst God, and sayde: yea, God shall prepare a table in the wyldernes, shall he?

As he smote the stony rocke, that the water streames gushyd out, and the streames shewed with all: but how can he geue byed & prouyde flesch for his people?

When the Lorde herde this, he was wroth so the fyre was kyndled in Jacob, and heuyt displeasure agaynst Israel.

Because they beleued not in God, and put not their trust in his helpe.

So he commaunded the cloudes aboue, & opened the wyndes of heauen.

He rayned downe Manna vpon them for to eate, and gaue them byed frome heauen.

When ate they angels tode, for he sent the meat ynough.

He caused the east wynde to blow vnder the heauen, and shewd his power he brought in the south wynde.

He made flesch to rayne vpon them as thicke as duff, and seched soules lyke as the sande of the see.

He let it fall amonge their tentes rounde about their habitations.

So they ate, and were fylled, for he gaue them their owne desire.

They were not disappointed of their lust.

But whyle the meat was yet in their mouthes: the heuy wrath of God came vpon them so the welthrest of them, & smote downe the chosen men of Israel.

But for all this they synned yet more, and beleued not his wonderous workes.

Therefore their dayes were consumed in battie, & sodenly their yeres were gone.

When he slewe them, they sought him, and turned them early vnto God.

They thought then that God was there succoure, and that the byge God was their redemer.

Neuerthelesse they byd but flatter him in their mouthes, & assembled with him in their tongues.

For there heere was not holt with him, neyther continued they in his couenaunt.

But he was so meercyfull, that he forgave their mysdoes, and destroyed them not.

Yea many a tyme tourned he his wrath awaye, and wold not suffice his hole displeasure to arple.

For he considered that they were but fleshe euen a wynde that passeth awaye, and cometh not agayne.

O how oft haue they greued him in the wyldernes?

How many a tyme haue they prouoked him in the deserte?

They turned backe, and tempted God, and moued the holy one in Israel.

They thought not of his hande, in the daye when he deliuered them frome the hande of the enemy.

How he hadde wrought his myracles in Egypt, and his wonderes in the lande of Zoan.

How he turned their waters in to bloude so that they myght not drynke of the ryuers.

How he sent lycr amonge them, to eate the by, and frozges to destroye them.

How he sent lycr amonge them, to eate the by, and frozges to destroye them.

How he sent lycr amonge them, to eate the by, and frozges to destroye them.

How he sent lycr amonge them, to eate the by, and frozges to destroye them.

How he sent lycr amonge them, to eate the by, and frozges to destroye them.

How he sent lycr amonge them, to eate the by, and frozges to destroye them.

How he sent lycr amonge them, to eate the by, and frozges to destroye them.

When he gaue their futes vnto the Lauoyers, and their laboure vnto the Gra-uoyers.

When he bet downe their hympardes with harpes, and their Mulbery trees with the harp.

When he smote their cattell with hayle floenes, and their flockes with boote thonder boltes.

When he sent vpon them the furpousnes of his wrath, anger and displeasure: with trouble and fallunge in of euill aungels.

When he made a waye to his fearefull in-ri nation, and spared not their soules frome death, yea and gaue their cattell ouer to the pe-silence.

When he smote all the first borne in Egypt
the most principal and myghtyest in the dwelllynges of Ham.

His owne people, he lead them forth lyke sheepe, and caried them in the welldreffe like a flocke.

He brought the out safely, that they shuld not feare, and ouerwhelmed their enemyes with the see.

He caried the vnto the borders of his Sau-uagary: euen in to this day, which he purchased with his right hande.

He dyed out the Hyethen before them, caused their lande to be diuided among them for an heritage, and made the trybes of Israel to dwell in their tentes.

For all this they tempted and displeased the moost hygge God, and kept not his couenant.

But tourned these backes, and fell a waye lyke their forefathers, hartynge alythe lyke a broken bowe.

And as they geued hym with their hygge places, and prouoked hym with their vni-gits.

When God herde this, he was wroth, and toke sore displeasure at Israel.

So that he forsoke the tabernacle in Silo, euen his habitation wherin he dwelt among
men.

He deliuered their poluer into captiuitie, &
their glory into the enemyes hande.

He gaue his people ouer into the swerde,
for there was wylde with his heritage.

The fire consumed their pong men, & their maydens were not gyuen to marriage.

Whyle prestes were slayne with the swerde, and there were no wyddowes to make lamentation.

So the Lord awakened as one oute of slepe and he awoke refreshed with hygge.

He smote his enemyes in the hynde part:
tes, and put downe the hynde part of him.

When he sawe the tabernacle of Joseph, & chose not for him the tabernacle.

When he sawe the temple of Iuda, euen the temple of Iuda, he chose not for him the temple.

And yet he chose this temple on hygge,
and layde the foundation of it, & ground
it with the hygge.

He chose also his sanctuary, & chose the temple of Iuda.

As he was solomynge the vnto the
with ponge, he toke hym, that he myghte Jacob his people, and Israel his inheritaunce.

So he fed them with a faithfull and true herb, and culed them with al the diligency of his power.

PSAL. LXXVIII

A Psalm of Asaph.

O God, the Hyethen are broke into thy heritage: the holy temple haue they spiled, and made Jerusalem an heap of stones.

The red bodies of thy seruantes haue they gyuen vnto the foules of the ayre to be trouered, and the fleshy of thy sayntes vnto beastes of the lande.

Their bloude haue they shed lyke wateren every syde of Jerusalem, and there was none to bury them.

We are become an open shame vnto our enemies, a very scoorne and derision vnto them that are round about vs.

Howe longe wilt thou be angry thy gelousy burne lyke fire for euer?

Poure out thyne indignacion vpon them then that knowe the not, and vpon the hyggones that cal not vpon thy name.

For they haue deuoured Jacob, and cast his dwelling place.

Remember not our oide synnes, but have mercy vpon vs, and that sone, for we are come to great mysery.

Helpe vs, O God our sauour, for the glory of thy name: O deliuer vs, & forgyt our synnes for thy names sake.

Wherefore shall the Hyethen say: wher is nowe their God?

Let the vengeance of thy seruantes that is thy, be openly shewed vpon them then in our sight.

Let the sorowfull cryng of the pre-stres come before the, and according vnto power of thyne arme, persecute those that are appointed to dye.

And for the blasphemy wherewithout neighboures haue blasphemed the, wher they say, O howe shal he be into church some.

So we that be the people and shepe of thy pasture, shall geue the thanks for euer, & will alwaye be thyngs for thy name more and more.

PSAL. LXXIX

A Psalm of Asaph.

Hear thou Opephets of Israel, that leade Jacob lyke a flocke of sheepe: thou that spreddest the Cherubims.

Before Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasse:
there by thy power, and come helpe vs.

Tourne vs agayne, O God, wher the light of thy countenance, and we shall be holde.

O howe God of hostes: howe longe wylt thou be angry ouer the prayer of thy
people?

Thou hast fed the with the bread of teares:
for thou hast gyuen them plenteuousnes of teares to drinke.

Thou hast made vs a very drye vnto our neighbour: and our enemyes laughe vs to scorne.

Tourne vs agayne thou God of hostes: wher the light of thy countenance, and we shall be holde.

Thou hast brought a hympard for the of Egypt: thou diddest cast out the Hyethen, and placit.

Thou madest a waye for it, and caused it to reuerce, so that it fylled the lande.

The hylls were couered with the shadowe of it: and so were the strong Cedars trees with the boughes thereof.

She stretched out her branches vnto the see:
and her boughes vnto the water.

Why haste thou then broken downe her bough: that al they which go by, plucke of her pappes?

The wyld boze oute of the wood hath reuerced it: and the bees of the felde haue de-uoured it.

Tourne the agayne thou God of hostes: loke downe from heuen, beholde and visite this temple.

Remember it that thy right hand hath planted: and the sonne whom thou madest so moche of thy selfe.

For why? it is brent with fyre, and lyeth bare: O let them perishe at the rebuke of thy wrathe.

Lette thy hande be vpon the man of thyngs: and vpon the man whom thou madest so moche of, for thyne owne life.

And so wyl not we goo backe frome the:
O lette vs lyue, and we shall call vpon thy name.

Tourne vs agayne, O howe God of hostes:
reuerce the light of thy countenance, and we shall be holde.

PSAL. LXXX

A Psalm of Asaph.

Sing meryly vnto God, whiche is our strength: make a cherefull noise vnto the God of Jacob.

Take the psalme, byng hyther the tabret:
the mery harpe and lute.

Blow vpon the trumpettes in the newe mone:
vpon our solenne feast daye.

For this is the vse in Israel: and a lawe of the God of Jacob.

Thus he ordeined in Joseph for a testimony, that he came out of Egypt: and had heede a strange language.

When he eased his shoulder from the burden.

then: & when his handes were deliuered from
the portes.

When thou calledst vpon me in trouble, I helped the: & heere the, what time as the scorne fel vpon the: & I proued the also at the water of styffe. Selah.

Hear, O my people: for I assure the, O Israel, if thou wylt hearken vnto me:

There shall no strange God be in the:
neither shalte thou worship any other God.

I am the Lord thy God which brought the out of the lande of Egypt: open thy mouth wyde, and I shal fyll it.

But my people wolde not heare my voyce:
and Israel wolde not obey me.

So I gaue them vp vnto their owne heetes lust: and let them folowe their owne ymaginacions.

O that my people wolde obey me: for if I rael wolde make in my wayes:
I wolde soone put downe they: enne-myes: and tourne myne hande agaynst they:
aduersaries.

The haters of the Lord shoulde mysse Israel: but they: tyme shoulde endure for euer.

He shoulde fede them with the fynest whete floure: and satisfye them with honny out of the Rocke.

PSAL. LXXXI

A Psalm of Asaph.

God standeth in the congregation of the Goddesses: and is a Judge amonge the Judges.

Howe longe wylt ye gyue wronge iudge-ment: and accept the persons of the vngodly?
Selah.

Defende the poore and fatherlesse: se that suche as be in neede and necessite haue ryghte.

Deliver the outcast and poore: and saue him
from the hande of the vngodly.

Neuertheless they wil not be leered and vnderstande, but walke on hyll in darkness:
therefore must all the foundation of the lande be moued.

I haue sayd, ye are goddes: ye are the chyldren of the most hygh.

But ye shal dye lyke men: and fall like one of the tyrantes.

Arise, O God, and iudge thou the earthe: for all Hyethen are thyne by enuery
lawe.

PSAL. LXXXII

A Song and Psalm of Asaph.

Nolde not thy tongue, O God, kepe not thy silence: refrayne not thy selfe, O God.

For loo, thyne enemyes make a murmu-ringe: and they that hate the, lyce vpon cherytrees.

They

They smagen craftely agaynst the people : and take counsell agaynst the secretes ones.

Come, saye they let vs rote them out from among the people, that the name of Israel may be put out of remembrance.

For they haue caste their heedes together with one consent : and are confederate a-gaynst the.

The tabernacles of the Edomites and Ismaelytes : the Moabites and Hagarenes.

Gabal, Ammon, and Amalech : the Philistines with them that dwell at Tyre.

Allur also is ioynd vnto them, and help the children of Lotb. Selah.

But thou to them as vnto the Madian-ites, vnto Sicea : and vnto Jabin by the brooke of Eison.

Whiche perished at Endor : and became as the donge of the earth.

Make al their princes lyke Oreb and Zeb-yea make all their princes lyke as Zebai and Salmana.

Whiche saye, we will haue the houses of God in possession.

O my God, make them lyke vnto a whele,
as the stubble before the wynde.

Lyke as a fyre that burneth by the wodde, and as the flame that consumeth the moun-taines.

Persecute them euen so with thy tempest, & make them aspayre with thy storme.

Make their faces ashamed, O Lord, that they may seeke thy name.

Lette them be confounded and bered euen more and more : let them be put to shame and peryshe.

That they maye knowe that thou arte alone, that thy name is the Lord : and that thou onely arte the mooste hyght ouer all the earth.

PSAL. LXXXIII.

After the De-
buss. lxxxiij

Upon Githith, a Psalm of the sonnes of Leui.

O how amiable are thy dwellings, thou
Lord of hostes?

My soule hath a desire & longing for the court of the Lord : my heart and my flesh ecclipse in the liuing God.

For the sparrow hath founde her an house, &
the swallow a nest, where she may lay her yong :
euen thy altars, O Lord of hostes, my kinge and my God.

O howe blessed are they that dwell in thy house : they are alwaye praysyng the.

Blessed are the men whose strength is in thee : in whose hande are thy wayes.

Whiche goynge thorow the valey of misery ble it for a well, and the poles are fylled with water.

Ther goo frome strength to strength, and to the God of goddes appereth vnto them in Sion.

O Lord God of hostes, heare my prayer :
ken, O God of Jacob.

Beholde O God our defence, loke vpon the face of thyne annoynted.

For one daye in thy court, is better than
thousande.

I hadde rather be a doze keeper in the house of my God : then to dwell in the tentes of the vngodly.

For the Lord God is a light and helpe, the Lord will grue grace and wylshyp, and no good thinge shall he withholde from them that liue a godly lyfe.

O Lord God of hostes : blessed is the man that putteth his trust in the.

PSAL. LXXXIII.

To the chaunter, a Psalm of the sonnes of Leui.

Lorde, thou haest a loue vnto thy lande, thou dyddest byng agayne the captiues of Jacob.

Thou dyddest forgyn the offence of thy people : and coueredest all theyr synnes.

Selah.

Thou tokest awaye all thy displeasure, and turnedst thy selfe from thy wrathful rebu-
tion.

Turne vs then, O God our sauour, and let thyne angre cease from vs.

Wilt thou be displeased at vs for euer : wilt thou stretch out thy wrath from one generation to an other?

Wilt thou not turne agayne and quicken vs,
that thy people maye reioyce in thee?

I wyl haeken what the Lord God wil do, for he shal speake pear vnto his people, and in his sayntes, that they couene not them selues vnto folyshnesse.

For his saluacion is nye them that sear-che : so that glory shal dwell in our lande.

Mercy and truth are met together, righte-nesse and pearhysse eche other.

Truthe shall ryse oute of the earth : and rightynesse shall loke downe from heauen.

And why? the Lord shall shewe louynge kindnesse : and oure lande shall grue her crease.

Rightynesse shall go before him, and prepare the waye for his commynge.

PSAL. LXXXV.

A Prayer of Dauid.

Bow downe thyne eare, O Lord, and heare me : for I am comfortlesse and
poore.

O kepe my soule, for I am holy : my God helpe thy seruante that putteth his trust in
the.

Be mercifull vnto me, O Lord, for I call dayly vpon the.

Comfort the soule of thy seruant, for thou sayest, O Lord, do I lyft vp my soule.

for thou Lord arte good and gracious :
and of grate mercede vnto all them that call vnto the.

Grue eare Lord vnto my prayer, and ponder my humble desire.

In the tyme of my trouble I call vpon the,
in then hearest me.

Among the goddes there is none lyke vnto the, O Lord, there is not one that can do as thou doest.

All nationes whome thou hast made, shall come and worship before the, O Lord, & shall glorify thy name.

For thou art grate, thou doest wonderful thinges, thou art God alone.

Prayse me in thy waye, O Lord, that I may behold in thy truth : O let my heart desire in sea-me thy name.

I thanke the, O Lord my God : and wyl praise thy name for euer.

For great is thy mercede towarde me : thou hast deliuered my soule from the nethe-
re.

O God, the proude are rylen agaynst me,
and the congregation of the wyghtye sekerb after my soule, and sette not the before they lys.

But thou, O Lord God, art full of compassion and mercy, long suffering, great in goodnes and truth.

O turne the then vnto me, haue mercy vpon me : grue thy strength vnto thy seruante, and helpe the sonne of thyne handmaide.

Shewe some token vpon me for good, that thy wyghte hate me, make se it, and be aware : because thou Lord hast helped me, and comforted me.

PSAL. LXXXVI.

A Psalm and songe of the sonnes of Leui.

His foundacions are vpon the holpe of hylls : the Lord toucheth the gates of Sion more then all the dwellynge of Jacob.

These excellent thinges are spoken of the honoure of God. Selah.

I will thinke vpon Rahab and Babylon, so that they shall knowe me.

For the Philistines also, and they of Tyre, with the Moabites. Lo, there was he borne.

And of Sion it shal be reported, that he was borne in her, euen the moost hyght which hath blessed vs.

The Lord shal cause it to be preached and written among the people, that he was borne there. Selah.

Therefore the dwellynge of all synners and villars is in the.

PSAL. LXXXVII.

A Psalm and songe of the sonnes of Leui, to be chaunter vpon Sabbath, for assigment, an instruction of Heman the Cherethite.

O Lord God my sauour, I crye haue an-night before the : O let my prayer enter in to thy presence, and heare my crye to my calling.

For my soule is full of trouble, and my lyfe is aweth nigh vnto hell.

I am counted as one of the that go downe vnto the pit : I am euen as a man that hath no strength.

Free amonge the deed, lyke vnto them that ly in the graue : with the be oute of re-memb'ance, and are cutte awaye from thy hande.

Thou hast sayde me in the lowest pit, in the darknesse, and in the depe.

Thyne indignacyon lyeth harde vpon me : and thou berest me with all thy floudes.

Selah.

Thou hast put awaye myne acquitance farre fro me : and made me to be abhorred of them : I am so false in pylon, that I can not get forth.

My sight fayleth for very trouble : Lord I call dayly vpon the, and stretch out my handes
vnto the.

Deest thou shewe wonders amonge the deed?

Can the Philistines rapse them by agayne,
that they may prays the?

Shall thy louynge kindnesse be shewed in the graue : O thy sayntnesse is destruction?

Shall thy wonderful workes be knowne
in the darcke? or the rightynesse in the land where all thinges are forgotten?

Vnto the I cry, O Lord, and early commeth my prayer before the.

Lord, why puttest thou awaye my soule?
wherefore hydest thou thy face fro me?

My strength is gone to : verye sorowme and miserye : with fearfulness doe I beare my burthens.

Thy wrathfull displeasure goeth ouer me :
the feare of the oppresor me.

They come rounde aboute me dayly lyke water : and compass me together on euerye syde.

My louers and frendes haue thou put awaye fro me : and turned awaye myne acquittance.

PSAL. LXXXVIII.

An instruction of Ethan the Ezrahite.

After the De-
buss. lxxxviii.

My songe shall be alwaye of the louynge kindnesse of the Lord : with my mouthe wyl I euer be shewynge thy sayntnesse frome one generation to an other.

For I haue sayd : mercede shall be set vp for euer, thy sayntnesse shal : thou shal lyue in the heuens.

* I haue made a couenante with my choosen : I haue sworn vnto Dauid my seruant.

Thy seed wyl I stablish for euer, and set vp

up frome one generation to another.

O Lord, the very heuens shall praise thy workes: yea, and thy saythfulnesse in the congregation of the sayntes.

For who is he among the clowdes, that may be compared vnto the Lord?

Yea, who is he among the goddes, that is like vnto the Lord?

God is greatly to be feared in the counsell of the sayntes, & to be had in reuerence of all them that are aboute him.

O Lord God of hostes, who is lyke vnto thee in power? thy truthe is rounde aboute thee.

Thou abatest the ragynge of the see:
thou stillest the waues thereof, when they aspyle.

Thou breakest the proude lyke one that is wounded, thou scatterest thyne enemies abrode withe thy myghty arme.

Cxxxix. a.

The heuens are thyne, the earth is thyne: thou hast layd the foundation of the round worlde, and all that therein is.

Thou hast made the North and the South: Sabot and Betmon: shall reioyse in thy name.

Thou hast a myghty arme, stronge is thy hande, and hye is thy right hande.

Myghtynesse and quiete is the habitacion of thy seate: merce and truthe goe before thy face.

Blessed is y^e people, O Lord, that can reioyse in thee, and walkech in the light of thy countenaunce.

Their delpte is in thy name all the daye long, and thorow thy myghtynesse they shall be exalted.

For thou arte the gloire of thine strengthe and thorow thy sauoure shalt thou lyfte vp
